

ವಿಷಯಾನುಕ್ರಮಣಿಕೆ

RGVEDA-SAMHITĀ · VOLUME 5 · ENGLISH TRANSLATION

॥ श्री महागणाधिपतये नमः ॥

Ṛgveda-saṃhitā

with the Bhāṣya of Sāyaṇācārya and the Kannada Commentary of H. P. Venkata Rao

VOLUME 5

Maṇḍala 1 · Sūktas 47–61 and the Pariśiṣṭa · Fourth Adhyāya of the First Aṣṭaka

English Translation by Bhargavi Upadhyā

prepared with the assistance of Claude, an AI model by Anthropic

Based on the Kannada edition of Asthāna Mahāvidvān H. P. Venkata Rao, Editor

Śrī Jayacāmarājendra Vedaratna-mālā · Mysore, 1949

© 2026 Bhargavi Upadhya. The English translation, together with its notes, footnotes, collected notes and apparatus, is the copyright of Bhargavi Upadhya. All rights reserved.

This translation is based on the Kannada edition of the R̥gveda-saṃhitā with the Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, edited and translated by Asthāna Mahāvidvān H. P. Venkata Rao and printed at Śrī Śāradā Press, Mysore, 1949, published by the gracious permission of His Highness Śrī Jayacāmarājendra Wadiyar Bahadur, G.C.B., G.C.S.I., Maharaja of Mysore. The ornate cover reproduced on the first page is from that edition.

The English translation was prepared with the assistance of Claude, an artificial-intelligence model made by Anthropic, working from scanned pages of the original. Readings that remain uncertain are marked [?] in the text.

[Publisher, ISBN, edition and printing details — to be supplied. Permissions status of the 1949 original and of the portraits — to be confirmed before publication.]

PATRON OF THE FIRST EDITION

ಯಮನಂಶಪಯಃಪಾಶಾನ್ಮುಖಕರರೂ ಸತ್ಸಂಪ್ರದಾಯವೈದಿಕಸಿದ್ಧಾಂತವರ್ಧಕರೂ ಮೈಸೂರು ಮೇಲವನ್ನಾಳುವ ಧರ್ಮಪ್ರಭುಗಳೂ ಆದ ಶ್ರೀಮನ್ಮಹಾರಾಜ
ಶ್ರೀ ಜಯಚಾಮರಾಜೇಂದ್ರ ಒಡೆಯರ್ ಬಹದ್ದೂರ್, ಜಿ.ಸಿ.ಬಿ, ಜಿ.ಸಿ.ಎಸ್.ಐ. ರವರು,

His Highness Śrī Jayacāmarājendra Wadiyar Bahadur, G.C.B., G.C.S.I., Maharaja of Mysore, by whose gracious permission the original edition was published.

GURU & PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF SCHOLARS

ಶ್ರೀ ಜಗದ್ಗುರು ನಾಗಲಿಂಗಪರಿವ್ರಾಜಕಾಚಾರ್ಯ ಸೀತಾಪ್ತಪಾದ
ಶಿಲ್ಪಸಿದ್ಧಾಂತಿ ಶಿವಯೋಗಿ ಶ್ರೀ ಸಿದ್ಧಲಿಂಗಸ್ವಾಮಿಗಳವರು
ನೇರವಮರ್ಶನ ವಿದ್ವನ್ಮಂಡಲಿಯ ಅಧ್ಯಕ್ಷರು

Śrī Jagadguru Nāgaliṅga-parivrājākācārya-pīṭhādhyakṣa Śilpasiddhānti Śivayogi Śrī Siddhaliṅga Svāmigaḷavaru,
President of the Veda-vimarśana Vidvan-maṇḍali

THE PRESENT DAY

Contents

The Fourth Adhyāya of the First Aṣṭaka 1

Sūkta 47 · ayaṃ vāṃ madhumattamaḥ.....3

Rik 1	6	Rik 5	25	Rik 9	40
Rik 2	10	Rik 6	28	Rik 10.....	44
Rik 3	16	Rik 7	32
Rik 4	19	Rik 8	35

Sūkta 48 · saha vāmena.....49

Rik 1	51	Rik 7	84	Rik 13.....	115
Rik 2	57	Rik 8	87	Rik 14.....	122
Rik 3	62	Rik 9	92	Rik 15.....	128
Rik 4	68	Rik 10.....	98	Rik 16.....	132
Rik 5	71	Rik 11.....	105
Rik 6	77	Rik 12.....	111

Sūkta 49 · uṣo bhadrebhiḥ.....141

Rik 1	143	Rik 3	152
Rik 2	147	Rik 4	158

Sūkta 50 · ud u tyam.....165

Rik 1	167	Rik 6	194	Rik 11.....	216
Rik 2	171	Rik 7	198	Rik 12.....	223
Rik 3	177	Rik 8	202	Rik 13.....	226
Rik 4	181	Rik 9	205
Rik 5	189	Rik 10.....	211

Sūkta 51 · abhi tyam meṣam.....233

Rik 1	236	Rik 6	265	Rik 11.....	288
Rik 2	242	Rik 7	270	Rik 12.....	292
Rik 3	249	Rik 8	274	Rik 13.....	298
Rik 4	255	Rik 9	279	Rik 14.....	306
Rik 5	259	Rik 10.....	284	Rik 15.....	311

Sūkta 52 · tyam sumeṣam [?].....317

Rik 1	318	Rik 4	333	Rik 7	350
Rik 2	324	Rik 5	338	Rik 8	353
Rik 3	328	Rik 6	346	Rik 9	357

Rik 10.....	362	Rik 12.....	370	Rik 14.....	378
Rik 11.....	366	Rik 13.....	374	Rik 15.....	383
Sūkta 53 · nyū ṣu vācam.....				389
Rik 1.....	390	Rik 5.....	409	Rik 9.....	430
Rik 2.....	395	Rik 6.....	412	Rik 10.....	434
Rik 3.....	400	Rik 7.....	417	Rik 11.....	438
Rik 4.....	405	Rik 8.....	425
Sūkta 54 · mā no asmīn				443
Rik 1.....	445	Rik 5.....	461	Rik 9.....	478
Rik 2.....	449	Rik 6.....	466	Rik 10.....	482
Rik 3.....	453	Rik 7.....	470	Rik 11.....	486
Rik 4.....	457	Rik 8.....	475
Sūkta 55 · divaś cid asya				493
Rik 1.....	495	Rik 4.....	507	Rik 7.....	517
Rik 2.....	499	Rik 5.....	510	Rik 8.....	521
Rik 3.....	503	Rik 6.....	513
Sūkta 56 · eṣa pra pūrvīḥ				527
Rik 1.....	528	Rik 3.....	535	Rik 5.....	543
Rik 2.....	531	Rik 4.....	539	Rik 6.....	546
Sūkta 57 · pra manhiṣṭhāya.....				551
Rik 1.....	552	Rik 3.....	559	Rik 5.....	567
Rik 2.....	555	Rik 4.....	563	Rik 6.....	570
Sūkta 58 · nūcit sahojāḥ.....				575
Rik 1.....	577	Rik 4.....	588	Rik 7.....	597
Rik 2.....	580	Rik 5.....	591	Rik 8.....	600
Rik 3.....	584	Rik 6.....	594	Rik 9.....	603
Sūkta 59 · vayā ide agne.....				609
Rik 1.....	610	Rik 4.....	619	Rik 7.....	630
Rik 2.....	613	Rik 5.....	622
Rik 3.....	617	Rik 6.....	625
Sūkta 60 · vahnīm yaśasam				635
Rik 1.....	636	Rik 3.....	643	Rik 5.....	649
Rik 2.....	640	Rik 4.....	646
Sūkta 61 · asmā id u.....				657
Rik 1.....	659	Rik 2.....	664	Rik 3.....	668

Rik 4	671	Rik 9	693	Rik 14.....	712
Rik 5	675	Rik 10.....	698	Rik 15.....	715
Rik 6	679	Rik 11.....	701	Rik 16.....	719
Rik 7	683	Rik 12.....	704
Rik 8	689	Rik 13.....	709

Parīśiṣṭa — Appendix on the Deities and Persons of the Ṛgveda

..... 727

Deities of the Heavenly Region (svargasthānada devategaḷu)	729
Deities of the Atmosphere (Antarikṣada devategaḷu)	781
The Maruts (Marud-devategaḷu).....	813
Deities of the Earth (Bhūmiya devategaḷu).....	827
Deities in the Form of Abstract Ideas (Bhāvanārūpa devategaḷu).....	871
Female Deities (Strī devategaḷu)	885
Paired Deities (Devatā dvandvagaḷu)	889
Groups of Deities (Devatāgaṇagaḷu)	897
Protective Deities (Rakṣaka devategaḷu)	911
(Imaginary) Historical Seers and Persons of Divine Descent (Kālpanika — aitihāsika ṛtvijaru mattu devāṁśapuruṣaru)	913
The Bhṛguṣ (Bhṛgugaḷu)	915
Animals and Lifeless Things (Prāṇigaḷu mattu nirjīva vastugaḷu)	929
Material Things Imagined as Deities (Devategaḷendu bhāvisalpaṭṭa bhautika vastugaḷu)	938
Implements (Upakaraṇagaḷu).....	940
Emblems — Images (Lāñchanagaḷu — Pratimegaḷu).....	942
Evil Deities and Piśācas (Pāpadevategaḷu mattu Piśācigaḷu)	944
Eschatology (Antimagati śāstra) — The Doctrine of the Last Journey	959
Hell (Naraka).....	966
The Fathers (Pitṛgaḷu).....	968

Collected Notes 975

The Fourth Adhyāya of the First Aṣṭaka

Sūkta 47 — "ayaṃ vāṃ madhumattamaḥ"

original p. 1

1

Forty-seventh Sūkta ²

original p. 1

title of the Fourth Adhyāya, Sāyaṇa's introduction, and the beginning of the Kannada anuvāda

Printed on the page: the Om emblem; śrī mahāgaṇādhīpataye namaḥ; the series title Sāyaṇabhāṣyasahitā Ṛgveda-saṃhitā, Bhāga 5 (the Kannada numeral reads "५"); the heading prathamāṣṭake caturtho 'dhyāyaḥ with its Kannada rendering "modalaneya aṣṭakadalli nālkaneya adhyāyavu" ("the fourth adhyāya in the first aṣṭaka"); and the same six verses of homage as in the earlier volumes.

वागीशाद्याः सुमनसः सर्वार्थानामुपक्रमे । यं नत्वा कृतकृत्याः स्युस्तं नमामि गजाननम्
॥ यस्य निःश्वसितं वेदा यो वेदेभ्योऽखिलं जगत् । निर्ममे तमहं वन्दे विद्यातीर्थमहेश्वरम्
॥ वेदः शिवः शिवो वेदो वेदाध्यायी सदाशिवः । तस्मात्सर्वप्रयत्नेन वेदमेव सदा जपेत् ॥

1. Fourth sūkta of the Ninth Anuvāka; first of the Fourth Adhyāya.

2. no separate title line is printed at the head of p. 1: the sūkta begins directly under the Adhyāya title; the heading block with "Sūkta — 47" is on p. 2

*vāgīśādyāḥ sumanasah sarvārthānām upakrame | yaṃ natvā
kṛtakṛtyāḥ syus taṃ namāmi gajānanam || yasya niḥśvasitaṃ
vedā yo vedebhyo 'khilaṃ jagat | nirmame tam ahaṃ vande vidyātīrthamaheśvaram || vedaḥ śivaḥ śivo vedo vedādhyāyī
sadāśivaḥ | tasmāt sarvaprayatnena vedam eva sadā japeṭ ||*

Translation ³: "May the gods headed by Vāgīśa (Brahmā), by bowing to whom, at the start of all undertakings, men have their aims accomplished — to that elephant-faced one I bow. I salute Vidyātīrtha-Maheśvara, whose breath is the Vedas and who created the whole world from the Vedas. The Veda is Śiva and Śiva is the Veda; the reciter of the Veda is Sadāśiva. Therefore with every effort one should always repeat the Veda alone."

Sāyaṇa's introduction ⁴

अथ प्रथमाष्टके चतुर्थोऽध्याय आरभ्यते । अयं वामिति नवमानुवाकस्य चतुर्थं सूक्तं दशर्चम् ।
अत्रानुक्रान्तं । अयं दश प्रागाथं त्रिति [?] । ऋषिश्चान्यैरिति [?] परिभाषितत्वात्कण्वपुत्रः
प्रस्कण्व ऋषिः । तथा पूर्वत्राश्विनं त्रित्युक्तत्वात्तेह्यादिपरिभाषयेदमपि सूक्तमश्विदेवताकं[?]
। अनयैव परिभाषयेदमुत्तरं च प्रागाथं । अतः प्रथमातृतीयाद्या आयुजो बृहत्यः ।
द्वितीयाचतुर्थाद्या युजः सतोबृहत्यः ॥ प्रातरनुवाक आश्विने क्रतौ बार्हते छन्दस्येतत्सूक्तं ।
अथाश्विन इति खण्डे सूत्रितं । इमा उ वामयं वां । आ. ४-१३ [?] । इति ॥ आश्विनशस्त्रेऽस्यैतत्सूक्तं प्रातरनुवाकन्यायेन । आ. ६-५ [?] । इत्यतिदिष्टत्वात् ॥

*atha prathamāṣṭake caturtho 'dhyāya ārabhyate | ayaṃ vām iti
navamānuvākasya caturthaṃ sūktaṃ daśarcam | atrānukrāntaṃ
| ayaṃ daśa prāgāthaṃ triti [?] | ṛṣiś cānyair iti [?]
paribhāṣitatvāt kaṇvaputraḥ praskaṇva ṛṣiḥ | tathā pūrvatrāśvinaṃ trityṛktatvāt tehyādiparibhāṣayedam api sūktam aśvidevatākaṃ [?] | anayaiva paribhāṣayedam uttaraṃ ca
prāgāthaṃ | ataḥ prathamātrītyādyā āyujō br̥hatyāḥ |
dvitīyācaturthādyā yujāḥ satobr̥hatyāḥ || prātaranuvāka āśvine
katau bār̥hate chandasy etat sūktaṃ | athāśvina iti khaṇḍe*

3. the same verses as in Volume 4, editorial and tentative

4. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; the words marked [?] are crowded

*sūtritaṃ | imā u vām ayaṃ vām | ā. 4-13 [?] | iti | | āśvinaśastre
'syaitat sūktaṃ prātaranuvākanyāyena | ā. 6-5 [?] | ity atidiṣṭatvāt
| |*⁵

Translation ⁶: "Now the Fourth Adhyāya of the First Aṣṭaka begins. 'Ayaṃ vām' is the fourth sūkta of the ninth anuvāka, of ten ṛks. The Anukramaṇikā here: 'ayaṃ daśa prāgāthaṃ ...' [?]. The ṛṣi is Praskaṇva, son of Kaṇva, as fixed by the convention [of the Anukramaṇikā] [?]. And since the preceding was said to be Āśvina, by the convention [?] this sūkta too has the Aśvins as deity. By the same convention this and the next are Prāgātha; hence the first, third, and following odd ṛks are Bṛhatī, the second, fourth and following even ṛks Satobṛhatī. In the Prātaranuvāka, at the Āśvina rite, this sūkta is used in the Bārhatata metre; it is prescribed in the section 'athāśvina': 'imā u vām, ayaṃ vām' (Āśv. 4-13 [?]). In the Āśvina-śastra it is used by the rule of the Prātaranuvāka, since this is extended there (Āśv. 6-5 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada), pp. 1-2 — "Ayaṃ vām is the fourth sūkta in the ninth anuvāka. It has ten ṛks. In the Anukramaṇikā it is stated that the ten ṛks of this sūkta are in the Prāgātha metre. The ṛṣi of this sūkta is Praskaṇva, the son of Kaṇva. The Aśvin gods are the deities of this sūkta. 'Prāgātham bārhatam' as a metre means, according to the paribhāṣā sūtra, [that] the first, third, fifth, seventh and ninth ṛks are in the Bṛhatī metre; the third [sic: evidently the second], fourth, sixth, eighth and tenth ṛks are in the Satobṛhatī metre. When the mantras of the Bṛhatī-metre in the mantras that have the Aśvin gods as deity in the Āśvina-kratu are recited at the time of reciting the mantras of the Prātaranuvāka, this sūkta is recited. This matter is stated in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta-sūtra in the section 'athāśvina' by the sūtra

5. Crowded: the Anukramaṇikā clause "ayaṃ daśa prāgāthaṃ ...", the parenthetical references to the "paribhāṣā", and the word "kratau" — printed so that it reads like "katau"; all [?].

6. editorial and tentative

'imā u vām ayaṃ vām' (Ā. 4-13 [?]); and in the same Śrauta-sūtra it is said that at the time of reciting the Śastra mantras of the Aśvin gods this sūkta is to be used as Prātarānuvāka mantras (Ā. 6-5 [?])." ⁷

॥ ॐ ॥

सूक्त — ४७

॥ मण्डल — १ ॥ अनुवाक — ९ ॥ सूक्त — ४७ ॥ ॥ अष्टक — १ ॥ अध्याय — ४ ॥
वर्ग — १, २ [?] ॥ ॥ सूक्तदल्लिरुव ऋक्संख्यै — १० ॥ ॥ ऋषिः — प्रस्कण्वः काण्वः ॥
॥ देवता — अश्विनौ ॥ ॥ छन्दः — प्रागाथं बार्हतं । १, ३, ५, ७, ९ बृहती । २, ४, ६, ८, १०
सतोबृहती ॥

sūkta 47 | maṇḍala 1 | anuvāka 9 | aṣṭaka 1 | adhyāya 4 | varga 1, 2 [?] | ṛks 10 | ṛṣi: Praskaṇva Kāṇva | devatā: the Aśvins | chandas: Prāgātha-Bārhatta — Riks 1, 3, 5, 7, 9 Bṛhatī; Riks 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 Satobṛhatī. ⁸

original pp. 2-6

Rik 1

Samhitā-pāṭha ⁹

अयं वां मधुमत्तमः सुतः सोम ऋतावृधा । तमश्विना पिबतं तिरोअह्न्यं धत्तं रत्नानि दाशुषे ॥ १ ॥

*ayaṃ vām madhumattamaḥ sutaḥ soma ṛtāvṛdhā | tam aśvinā
pibataṃ tiroahnyaṃ dhattaṃ ratnāni dāśuṣe || 1 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अयम् । वाम् । मधुमत्सुतमः । सुतः । सोमः । ऋतावृधा । तम् । अश्विना । पिबतम् ।
तिरःसह्न्यम् । धत्तम् । रत्नानि । दाशुषे ॥ १ ॥

7. The Kannada numeral for the second group of Satobṛhatī ṛks, "३, ५, ७, ९, १०", reads like "3" where "2" is meant; kept as read.

8. The varga numerals are small and read with doubt.

9. accents not reproduced

*ayam | vām | madhumat-tamaḥ | sutaḥ | somaḥ | ṛta-vṛdhā | tam | aśvinā | pibatam | tiraḥ-ahnyam | dhattam | ratnāni |
dāśuṣe || 1 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे ऋतावृधा ऋतस्य सत्यस्य यज्ञस्य वा वर्धयितारावश्विना अश्विनौ वां युवयोरयं
पुरोवर्ती सोमः सुतोऽभिषुतः । कीदृशः । मधुमत्तमोऽतिशयेन माधुर्यवान् ।
तिरोअह्न्यं तिरोभूते पूर्वस्मिन्नहनि अभिषुतं तं सोमं पिबतं । दाशुषे हविर्दत्तवते यजमानाय रत्नानि रमणीयानि धनानि धत्तं । प्रयच्छतम् ॥

*he ṛtāvṛdhā ṛtasya satyasya yajñasya vā vardhayitārāv aśvinā aśvinau vām yuvayor ayaṃ purovartī somaḥ suto 'bhiṣutaḥ |
kīdṛśaḥ | madhumattamo 'tiśayena mād'huryavān | tiroahnyam
tirobhūte pūrvasminn ahani abhiṣutaṃ taṃ somaṃ pibataṃ | dāśuṣe havir dattavate yajamānāya ratnāni ramaṇīyāni dhanāni
dhattam | prayacchatam ||*

Translation: "O ṛtāvṛdhā, increasers of truth or of the sacrifice, O Aśvins: ayam, this Soma lying before (you), vām, yours, is sutaḥ, pressed. Of what kind? Madhumattamaḥ, exceedingly sweet. Tiroahnyam: pressed on the previous, vanished day — tam somam pibatam, drink that Soma. Dāśuṣe, to the sacrificer who has given the oblation, ratnāni, delightful riches, dhattam, give (prayacchatam)."

Grammatical tail ¹⁰ - vām: for the genitive dual of yuṣmad, vām by yuṣmadasmadoḥ ṣaṣṭhīcaturthīdvitīyāsthayor vāmṇāvau (Pā. 8-1-20 as read [?]); it is unaccented. - madhumattamaḥ: root mana jñāne; "manyate, he who knows" = madhu; the suffix u by phalipāṭinami...; initial acute by the continued "nit"; dh as an end-substitute; "madhumān, exceedingly" = madhumattamaḥ with matup and tamap; both being pī, they are unaccented and only the word-accent remains. - ṛtāvṛdhā: root vṛdh, with the causative sense included, kvip; by anyeṣām api dṛśyate the first member lengthens. - tiroahnyam: ahni bhavaḥ = ahnayaḥ; yat by bhave chandasi; the ṭi-loss is excluded by ahnaṣṭakhoreva (Pā. 6-4-144 as read [?]); nas taddhite therefore does not drop the ṭi; the prakṛtibhāva by ye cābhāvakarmanoḥ (Pā. 6-4-168 as read [?]) is optional in the Chandas and does not come; alloponaḥ drops the a; "tirohito 'hnyah"; tiro 'ntardhau (Pā. 1-4-71 as read [?]) gives gati-status, indeclinable; the compound with an indeclinable first member keeps its accent. - dāśuṣe: dāśvān sāhvān mīḍhvāmś ca (as printed): the kvasu-ending word given by nipātana; in the dative singular, saṃprasāraṇa of vasu (Pā. 6-4-131 as read [?]); ṣatva by śāsivasighasīnām ca.

10. characterized, numerals as read [?]

Pratipadārtha — "ṛtāvṛdhā — O promoters of the sacrifice or of truth; aśvinā — O Aśvin gods; vām — for you two; madhumattamaḥ — most sweet; ayaṃ somaḥ — this Soma juice; sutaḥ — has been pressed; tiroahnyam — pressed on the day before (yesterday); tam — that Soma juice; pibatam — drink; dāśuṣe — to the sacrificer who offers the oblation; ratnāni — delightful riches; dhattam — give."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Aśvin gods, you promote the sacrifice or truth. For you this Soma juice was made ready on the very day before. Drink this exceedingly sweet Soma juice. Give delightful, mind-gladdening riches to the sacrificer who offers the oblation."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 3)

— "O Aswins, encouragers of sacrifice, this most sweet Soma juice is pre-pared [sic: line-break hyphen, "pre-pared", printed in the line "is pre-" / "pared"] for you; it is of yesterday's expressing ; drink it and grant riches to the sacrificer"

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 4 ¹¹ - ṛtāvṛdhā — "promoters of truth or of the sacrifice. We have already explained the meaning of this word." - tiroahnyam — "tirobhūte pūrvasmin dine; tirohito 'hnyas tiroahnyaḥ: the day that has gone by, the previous day, yesterday." - dāśuṣe — "havirdattavate yajamānāya: to the sacrificer who gives the oblation."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹² - vām: the genitive dual ending of yuṣmad ("yuvayoh"); yuṣmadasmadoḥ śaṣṭhīcatirthīdvitīyāsthayor vāṃnāvau (Pā. 8-1-20 as read [?]) — युष्मदस्मदोः षष्ठीचतुर्थीद्वितीयास्थयोर्वानावौ — the genitive, dative and accusative dual forms of yuṣmad and asmad, standing after a word and not at the beginning of a pāda, are replaced by vām and nau, and are unaccented; the Kannada author notes that tvā, mā in the singular and vas, nas in the plural exist, so that the dual forms vām, nau remain for this rule. - madhumattamaḥ: root mana jñāne; the Uṇādi rule phalipāṭinamijanām gukpaṭinākiteś ca (Uṇ. 1-[?]8 as read [?]) — फलिपाटिनमिजनां गुक्पटिनाकितेश्च — the suffix u, being nit; with guk for phal, paṭi for pāṭ, nāki for nam, a th for the n of man and t for the n of jan; so after mana, u, with dh for n: madhu; ñnityādir nityam (Pā. 6-1-197 as read [?]) gives the initial acute. "Madhu asya asti": tadasyāsty asminn iti matup (Pā. 5-2-94 as read [?]); for "excess", atiśāyane tamabiṣṭhanau (Pā. 5-3-55 as read [?]) gives tamap; matup and tamap are both pit and therefore unaccented (anudāttau suppitau, Pā. 3-1-4 as read [?]); the initial acute that belonged to madhu stays, the rest becomes non-acute; udāttād anudāttasya svaritaḥ gives the svārīta to the thu after the acute; the rest follow svarītāt saṃhitāyām anudāttānām. - ṛtāvṛdhā: although there is no ñic, the root ṛdh vardhane has the sense of it; kvīp ca (Pā. 3-2-76 as read [?]) gives kvīp; all letters of the suffix drop; anyeṣām api dṛśyate (Pā. 6-3-137 as read [?]) lengthens the first member, ṛta, as it is seen to lengthen other first members besides those listed from nīpāta and so on; in the vocative dual the ending au is ā (supām suluk...): ṛtāvṛdhā. - tiroahnyam: ahni bhavaḥ — "belonging to the day"; bhave chandasi (Pā. 4-4-110 as read [?]) gives yat; ahan + ya; ahnaṣṭakhoreva (Pā. 6-4-144 as read [?])

11. the heading is printed "viśeṣa viśayaḥ"

12. pp. 4–6 — grammar pages, noted briefly

[?]) — the ṭi of ahan drops only before ṭa and kha; so, with other suffixes, no ṭi-loss, and nas taddhite (Pā. 6-4-144 as read [?]) does not apply; alloponaḥ (Pā. 6-4-134 as read [?]) drops the a of an; ye cābhāvakarmaṇoḥ (Pā. 6-4-168 as read [?]) would require prakṛtibhāva; but sarve vidhayaś chandasi vikalpyante (Paribhāṣā, "63" as read [?]) makes it optional, so it does not come. Tiras + ahnya; sasajuṣo ruḥ; ato ror aplutād aplute gives u; ād guṇaḥ; tiro 'ntardhau (Pā. 1-4-71 as read [?]) — tiras in the sense of "concealment" is a gati (the Kannada author notes that it is read in the svar-ādi list); then svarādinipātam avyayam gives the name avyaya; and tatpuruṣe tulyārthatrītyā... (Pā. 6-2-2 as read [?]) gives the indeclinable first member its natural accent. - dāśuṣe: root dāś dāne; dāśvān sāhvān mīḍhvāmś ca (Pā. 6-1-12 as read [?]) — the forms dāśvān, sāhvān, mīḍhvān are given by nipātana as ending in kvasu; in three places the doubling is absent, and the ī-augment is absent in some and present in others; in the second the parasmaipada and the lengthening of the penultimate are also given by nipātana; dāś + vas: dāśvas; jas; in the dative singular, vasoḥ saṃprasāraṇam (Pā. 6-4-131 as read [?]) — saṃprasāraṇa (v → u) of the aṅga ending in vasu and having the bha-designation; u and the pūrvarūpa; ādeśapratyayayoḥ (Pā. 8-3-59 as read) gives ṣ for s; śāsivasighasīnām ca (Pā. 8-3-60 as read [?]) — here the Kannada author discusses at length whether vas in this sūtra refers to the root vasa nivāse or to the suffix vasu, and, by the maxim "sahacaritāsahacaritayoḥ saḥacaritasyaiva grahaṇam" (Paribhāṣā, "113" as read [?]), concludes that the root is intended; and that the Kaumudī uses this sūtra in treating the root vasa nivāse in the first class so as to avoid confusion; the argument is outlined, not transcribed. || 1 ||

original p. 6

Rik 2

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

त्रिवन्धुरेण त्रिवृता सुपेशसा रथेना यातमश्विना । कण्वासो वां ब्रह्म कृण्वन्त्यध्वरे तेषां सु शृणुतं हवम् ॥ २ ॥

*trivandhureṇa trivṛtā supeśasā rathenā yātam aśvinā | kaṇvāso
vāṃ brahma kṛṇvanty adhware teṣāṃ su śṛṇutam havam || 2 ||* ¹³

Pada-pāṭha

त्रिवन्धुरेण । त्रिवृता । सुपेशसा । रथेन । आ । यातम् । अश्विना । कण्वासः । वाम् । ब्रह्म । कृण्वन्ति । अध्वरे । तेषाम् । सु । शृणुतम् । हवम् ॥ २ ॥

*tri-vandhureṇa | tri-vṛtā | su-peśasā | rathena | ā | yātam |
aśvinā | kaṇvāsaḥ | vāṃ | brahma | kṛṇvanti | adhware | teṣām |
su | śṛṇutam | havam || 2 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे अश्विना त्रिवन्धुरेणोन्नतानतरूपत्रिविधबन्धनकाष्ठयुक्तेन ।
त्रिवृताप्रतिहतगतिकया लोकत्रये वर्तमानेन सुपेशसा शोभनसुवर्णयुक्तेन रथेना यातं
। इहागच्छतं । कण्वासः कण्वपुत्रा मेधाविन ऋत्विजो वा वां युवयोरध्वरे योगे ब्रह्म
स्तोत्ररूपं मन्त्रं हविर्लक्षणमन्नं वा कृण्वन्ति । कुर्वन्ति । तेषां कण्वानां हवमाह्वानं सु
शृणुतं । सुष्ट्वादरेण शृणुतम् ॥ त्रिवन्धुरेण । बध्नन्तीति बन्धुराः । बन्धेरौणादिक
उरन्प्रत्ययः । त्रयो बन्धुरा यस्यासौ त्रिवन्धुरः । त्रिचक्रादिषु पाठात् त्रिचक्रादीनां
छन्दस्युपसंख्यानं । पा. ६-२-१९९-१ [?] । इत्युत्तरपदान्तोदात्तत्वं । त्रिवृता । त्रिषु
लोकेषु वर्तत इति त्रिवृत् । क्विप्वेति क्विप् । सुपेशसा । पेश इति हिरण्यनाम ।
शोभनं पेशो यस्यासौ सुपेशाः । आद्युदात्तं द्व्यच्छन्दसीत्युत्तरपदाद्युदात्तत्वं । शृणुतं
। श्रु श्रवणे । श्रुवः शृ च । तत्सन्नियोगेन धातोः शृभावश्च । हवं ।
ह्यतेर्भविऽनुपसर्गस्य । पा. ३-३-७३ [?] । इत्यप् । संप्रसारणं च गुणावादेशौ । प्रत्ययस्य पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे धातुस्वरः ॥

*he aśvinā
trivandhureṇonnatānatarūpatrividhabandhanakāṣṭhayuktena |
trivṛtāpratihatagatikayā lokatraye vartamānena supeśasā*

13. The print reads trivandhureṇa with v throughout — the usual form is tribandhura; It is given as printed [?].

śobhanasuvārṇayuktena rathenā yātaṃ | ihāgacchataṃ | kaṇvāsaḥ kaṇvaputrā medhāvina ṛtvijo vā vām yuvayor adhware yoge brahma stotrarūpaṃ mantraṃ havirlakṣaṇam annaṃ vā kṛṇvanti | kurvanti | teṣāṃ kaṇvānām havam āhvānaṃ su
 śṛṇutam | suṣṭhv ādareṇa śṛṇutam | | trivandhureṇa | badhnantīti
 bandhurāḥ | bandherauṇādika uranpratyayaḥ | trayo bandhurā
 yasyāsau tribandhuraḥ | tricakrādiṣu pāṭhāt tricakrādīnām
 chandas upasaṃkhyānaṃ | pā. 6-2-199-1 [?] | ity uttarapadāntodāttatvaṃ | trivṛtā | triṣu lokeṣu vartata iti trivṛt |
 kvip ceti kvip | supeśasā | peśa iti hiraṇyanāma | śobhanaṃ peśo
 yasyāsau supeśāḥ | ādyudāttam dvyaś chandasīty
 uttarapadādyudāttatvaṃ | śṛṇutam | śru śravaṇe | śruvaḥ śr ca |
 tatsanniyogena dhātoḥ śrbhāvaś ca | havam | hvayater bhāve
 'nupasargasya | pā. 3-3-73 [?] | ity ap | saṃprasāraṇaṃ ca
 guṇāvādeśau | pratyayasya pītvād anudāttatve dhātusvaraḥ | |

Translation: "O Aśvins, trivandhureṇa, with your chariot furnished with three kinds of fastening-pieces of wood, raised, lowered [and the like]; trivṛtā, going with unhindered course through the three worlds; supeśasā, with fine gold: ā yātaṃ, come here. Kaṇvāsaḥ, the Kaṇvas — sons of Kaṇva, wise priests — vām, in your adhware, sacrifice, brahma kṛṇvanti, make (the mantra in the form of praise, or food in the form of the oblation). Teṣāṃ, of those Kaṇvas, havam, the call, su śṛṇutam, hear well, with full regard. Trivandhureṇa: 'those that bind are bandhurāḥ'; the Uṇādi suffix uran after bandh; 'he who has three bandhuras'; by listing under tricakra etc., the upasaṃkhyāna for the tricakra class in the Chandas (Pā. 6-2-199 vārttika [?]) gives the end of the second member the acute. Trivṛtā: 'who exists in the three worlds', kvip. Supeśasā: peśa is a name of gold; 'he who has fine gold'; the second member is initial-acute. Śṛṇutam: root śru śravaṇe, śr for the root with śru; havam: from hve, in the abstract sense without a prefix, ap (Pā. 3-3-73 [?]); saṃprasāraṇa, guṇa, āv-substitution; the suffix being pit, the accent is that of the root." ¹⁴

Rik 47.2, continued ¹⁵

Pratipadārtha — "aśvinā — O Aśvin gods; trivandhureṇa — beautiful with three seats (or posts); trivṛtā — (since it has no obstruction) moving in the three worlds (going about them); supēśasā — made of excellent gold; rathena — with the chariot; āyātam — come (here); kaṇvāsaḥ — the sons of Kaṇva or wise priests; vām — to you; adhvare — in the sacrifice; brahma — a mantra in the form of praise, or food in the form of the oblation; kṛṇvanti — make (offer); teṣām — of those sons of Kaṇva or wise priests; havam — the invocation; su śṛṇutam — hear with regard."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Aśvin gods, come to this place of sacrifice, seated in your chariot, which is made of excellent gold, is beautiful with three seats, and moves in the three worlds without obstruction. Here the sons of Kaṇva, or wise priests, offer you, in the sacrifice, mantras in the form of praise or food in the form of the oblation. Hear their invocation with regard."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 7)

— "Come hither, O Aswins, in your triangular and beautiful car of the three-fold pole. The Kanwas compose and ^repeat [sic: the first letter of "repeat" is printed raised] your praise at the sacrifice ; Kindly hear their invocation."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḥ), pp. 7–8 - "In this ṛk the form of the chariot of the Aśvin gods is described. Trivandhureṇa trivṛtā rathena: the idea is that their chariot is triangular in shape and has three posts. The commentator explains the word trivṛtā as 'having unobstructed motion in the three worlds'. This manner of describing the chariot of the Aśvin gods is seen in several places in the Ṛgveda. For example:" — three Ṛgveda citations, untranslated in the source; each is given in three layers, with an editorial and tentative gloss, references "as read [?]"

14. On the sense of "adhvare ... brahma" in the bhāṣya, the printed text reads yoge ("in your yoga") for yajñe, as read, [?]; given as printed.

15. from p. 7

1. | त्रिवन्धुरेण त्रिवृता रथेन त्रिचक्रेण सुवृता यातमर्वाक् ॥ ¹⁶

trivandhureṇa trivṛtā rathena tricakreṇa suvṛtā yātam arvāk || — editorial and tentative: "Come hither with your chariot of the three seats, the threefold, three-wheeled, well-rolling one."

2. | त्रिवन्धुरेण त्रिवृता रथेना यातमश्विना ॥ ¹⁷

trivandhureṇa trivṛtā rathenā yātam aśvinā || — editorial and tentative: "Come, O Aśvins, with the three-seated, threefold chariot." (the line is the same as the first half of this Rik 2)

3. | अर्वाङ् त्रिचक्रो मधुवाहनो रथो जीराश्वो अश्विनोर्यातु सुष्टुतः । त्रिवन्धुरो मघवा विश्वसौभगः शं न आ वक्षद्विपदे चतुष्पदे ॥ ¹⁸

arvāṅ tricakro madhuvāhano ratho jīrāśvo aśvinor yātu suṣṭutaḥ | trivandhuro maghavā viśvasaubhagaḥ śaṃ na ā vakṣad dvipade catuṣpade || — editorial and tentative: "May the Aśvins' well-praised chariot, three-wheeled, honey-bearing, drawn by swift horses, come this way; three-seated, bountiful, bringing all good fortune, may it bring well-being to us, to our bipeds and quadrupeds."

"In these ṛks, the chariot of the Aśvin gods is described in many places as having three wheels. Therefore, in describing the chariot of the Aśvin gods, the words trivandhura, trivṛt and tricakra have been used by many sages, and so it can be understood that these words have a definite meaning." - kaṇvāsaḥ — "medhāvino ṛtvijaḥ: wise priests; or the sons of the sage Kaṇva; the descendants of the sage Kaṇva." - brahma — "among the twenty-eight [?] names of food beginning andhaḥ, vājaḥ, the word brahma is read, so brahma means food (Ni. 2-[?] as read); and among the twenty-eight [?] names of wealth beginning rekṇaḥ, the word brahma is read, so brahma means wealth (Ni. 2-[?] as read); and, according to (Ni. 13-[?] as read), brahma means stotra: three meanings. Here any of the meanings may be given."

16. R. Saṃ. 1-118-2 as read [?]

17. R. Saṃ. 8-8-[?] as read [?]

18. R. Saṃ. 1-157-3 as read [?]

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁹ - tribandhureṇa ²⁰: root bandha bandhane; "badhnanti iti bandhurāḥ"; the Uṇādi suffix uran; "trayaḥ bandhurāḥ yasya saḥ", a bahuvrīhi meaning "having a carriage of wood tied in three ways". Bandhura by the nit-accent is initial-acute; tri by the prātipadika accent is end-acute; after the compound is formed, bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam (Pā. 6-2-1 as read) would give the first member's natural accent; but in the section on end-acute (antodātta), the vārttika "tricakrādīnāṃ chandasy upasaṃkhyānam" (Pā. 6-2-199 vārttika, as read "6-2-199-1" [?]) — "tricakra and the like are to be added in the Chandas" — gives the end of such words as tricakra and tribandhura the acute in the Chandas; this overrides the first member's natural accent, giving end-acute. - trivṛtā: "triṣu lokeṣu vartate", "is in the three worlds"; after the root vṛtu vartane, with tri as upapada, kvip; instrumental singular. - supeśasā: peśa is a name for gold; "śobhanaṃ peśaḥ yasya saḥ", "having fine gold"; ādyudāttaṃ dvyac chandasi (Pā. 6-1-119 as read [?]) — a second member of two vowels, after su, is initial-acute in the Chandas; here, after the root piśa dīpane, the Uṇādi suffix asun, so peśas is initial-acute. - śṛṇutam: root śru śravaṇe, loṭ, second person dual thas; loṭo laṇvat gives laṇ-likeness; tasthasthamipāṃ

19. pp. 8–9 — grammar pages, noted briefly

20. the print here spells the first member with b:
"tribanduraṇa" / "tribandhura"

tāṃtaṃtāmaḥ (Pā. 3-4-101 as read [?]) gives tam; śru + ta; śruvaḥ śr ca (Pā. 3-1-74 as read [?]) — श्रुवः श्रु च — before a karṭṛ-sense sārvadhātuka suffix in the Vedic, śr is substituted for śru and śnu comes as the vikaraṇa in place of śap: śr + nu + ta; the Kannada author says that both substitute and vikaraṇa are "left over together" (sanniyogaśiṣṭa), so both come in a single act; ur nuvarṇāt [i.e. nor ṇatvaṃ, as printed — crowded [?]] gives the n its ṇ: śṛṇutam. - havam: root hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca; bhāve 'nupasargasya (Pā. 3-3-70 as read [?]) — भावेऽनुपसर्गस्य — in the abstract sense, for a root without a prefix, saṃprasāraṇa of hve (v → u) and the suffix ap; hu + e + a, pūrvārūpa: hu + a; sārvadhātukārdhahātukayoḥ gives guṇa: u → o; āv in place of that o; accusative singular am: havam; the suffix ap is pit and the case-ending is sup, so both are unaccented (anudāttau suppitau), and the root-accent alone remains. || 2 ||

original p. 9

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

अश्विना मधुमत्तमं पातं सोममृतावृधा । अथाद्य दसा वसु बिभ्रता रथे दाश्वान्समुप गच्छतम् ॥ ३ ॥

*aśvinā madhumattamaṃ pātaṃ somam ṛtāvṛdhā | athādyā dasrā
vasu bibhratā rathe dāśvāṃsam upa gacchatam || 3 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अश्विना । मधुमत्तमम् । पातम् । सोमम् । ऋतवृधा । अथ । अद्य । दसा । वसु । बिभ्रता । रथे । दाश्वान्सम् । उप । गच्छतम् ॥ ३ ॥

*aśvinā | madhumat-tamam | pātam | somam | ṛta-vṛdhā | atha |
adya | dasrā | vasu | bibhratā | rathe | dāśvāṃsam | upa |
gacchatam || 3 ||* ²¹

Rik 47.3, continued ²²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे ऋतावृधा यज्ञस्य वर्धकावश्विना मधुमत्तमं सोमं पातं । पिबतं । हे दस्राश्विनौ
 सोमपानार्थमथास्मदाह्वानानन्तरमद्यास्मिन्नहनि रथे स्वकीये वसु बिभ्रता
 अस्मदुपयुक्तं धनं धारयन्तौ दाश्वांसं हविष्प्रदं यजमानमुप गच्छतं । समीपे प्राप्नुतम्
 ॥ बिभ्रता । डुभृञ् धारणपोषणयोः । शतरि जुहोत्यादित्वाच्छपः श्लुः ।
 भृजामित्यभ्यासस्येत्वं । शतुर्जित्त्वादुणाभावे यणादेशः । अभ्यस्तानामादिरित्याद्युदात्तत्वम् ॥

*he ṛtāvṛdhā yajñasya vardhakāv aśvinā madhumattamaṃ somaṃ
 pātaṃ | pibataṃ | he dasrāśvinau somapānārtham athāsmadāhvānānantaram adyāsminn ahani rathe svakīye vasu bibhratā asmadupayuktaṃ dhanam dhārayantau dāśvāṃsaṃ haviṣpradaṃ yajamānam upa gacchataṃ | samīpe prāpnutam ||
 bibhratā | ḍubhṛñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ | śatari juhotyādittvāc
 chapah śluḥ | bhṛñām ity abhyāsasyetvaṃ | śator jittvād
 guṇābhāve yaṇādeśaḥ | abhyastānām ādir ity ādyudāttatvam ||*

Translation: "O ṛtāvṛdhā, promoters of the sacrifice, O Aśvins, drink the most sweet Soma. O dasrā, O Aśvins, for the drinking of Soma, atha, after our call, adya, today, rathe, in your own chariot, vasu bibhratā, bearing wealth useful to us, dāśvāṃsam upa gacchataṃ, come near to the sacrificer who offers the oblation, reach (him) close by. Bibhratā: root ḍubhṛñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; śatr; ślu for śap because the root is of the juhotyādi class; i for the reduplicative syllable by bhṛñām...; since śatr is *jī*t, there is no guṇa, and yaṇ; the initial acute by *abhyastānām ādī*ḥ."

Pratipadārtha — "ṛtāvṛdhā — O Aśvin gods, promoters of sacrifice; madhumattamam — exceedingly sweet; somam — the Soma juice; pātam — drink; dasrā — O Aśvin gods of delightful

21. The bhāṣya of Rik 3 begins at the foot of p. 9 and runs on to p. 10; not yet written.

22. from the foot of p. 9

form (for drinking the Soma juice); atha — after our call; adya — today; rathe — in your chariot; vasu — (useful to us) wealth; bibhratā — bearing; dāśvāṃsam — the sacrificer who gives the oblation; upa gacchatam — approach."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Ásvin gods, promoters of the sacrifice and of delightful form, drink the exceedingly sweet Soma juice. For the drinking of Soma, be pleased to accept our invitation, and, carrying in your chariot wealth that is useful to us, come to the sacrificer who offers the oblation."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 10)

— "Aswins, encouragers of sacrifice and of pleasing aspects, drink this most sweet soma juice ; approach to-day the giver of the offering, bearing wealth."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 10 - ṛtāvṛdhā — "the explanation of this word is given in the first ṛk of this sūkta. This word is used especially when praising the Ásvin gods." - adya — "now, or today." - dasrā — "among the Ásvin gods one is named dasra and the other nāsatya; though so, here this word is used to indicate both."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²³ - bibhratā: root ḍubhrñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; laṭ; laṭaḥ śatṛśānacau (Pā. 3-2-124 as read [?]) gives śatṛ for laṭ; śap; juhotyādibhyaḥ śluḥ (Pā. 2-4-75 as read [?]) gives ślu for śap; ślau (Pā. 6-1-10 as read [?]) gives doubling when ślu follows: bhr̥ + bhr̥ + at; bhr̥ñām it (Pā. 7-4-76 as read [?]) — भृजामि — i for the reduplicative syllable of the three roots bhr̥ñ, māñ and ohāñ, when ślu follows [the Kannada author says "of the three roots beginning with bhr̥ñ"]; the i standing for ṛ, uraṇ raparaḥ (Pā. 1-1-51) gives it a repha: bhir; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ drops the r: bhi + bhr̥ + at. The suffix śatṛ is not pit but is sārvadhātuka; by sārvadhātukam apit (Pā. 1-2-4 as read) a sārvadhātuka that is not pit is ñit, so śatṛ acts as ñit; therefore, by kniti ca (Pā. 1-1-5 as read), the guṇa that would arise through gi, ki or ñit suffixes as cause is forbidden, and sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ (Pā. 7-3-84 as read) gives no guṇa; iko yaṇaci gives yaṇ: r → r; in the nominative dual the au takes ā by supāṃ suluk... (Pā. 7-1-39 as read): bibhratā. - abhyastānām ādiḥ (Pā. 6-1-189 as read) — the sārvadhātuka suffix coming in place of l, beginning with a vowel and not being iṭ: the first of the repeated word is acute — here at is a vowel-initial laḥ-sthānika sārvadhātuka; bibhr is abhyasta, its first bhi is acute. || 3 ||

original pp. 11–13

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

त्रिषधस्थे बर्हिषि विश्ववेदसा मध्वा यज्ञं मिमिक्षतम् । कण्वासो वां सुतसोमा अभिद्यवो युवां हवन्तेऽश्विना ॥ ४ ॥

triṣadhasthe barhiṣi viśvavedasā madhvā yajñam mimikṣatam | kaṇvāso vāṃ sutasomā abhidyaavo yuvāṃ havante 'śvinā || 4 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्रिऽसधस्थे । बर्हिषि । विश्वऽवेदसा । मध्वा । यज्ञम् । मिमिक्षतम् । कण्वासः । वाम् । सुतऽसोमाः । अभिऽद्यवः । युवाम् । हवन्ते । अश्विना ॥ ४ ॥

tri-sadhasthe | barhiṣi | viśva-vedasā | madhvā | yajñam |
mimikṣatam | kaṇvāsaḥ | vām | suta-somāḥ | abhi-dyavaḥ |
yuvām | havante | aśvinā || 4 || ²⁴

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

24. The Samhitā prints the first word triṣadhasthe, the Pada tri-sadhasthe: the s becomes ṣ by sandhi.

हे विश्ववेदसा सर्वज्ञावश्विनौ त्रिषधस्थे [कर्माश्रय]त्रयरूपेणास्तीर्णतया [?] त्रिषु
स्थानेष्ववस्थिते बर्हिषि दर्भे स्थित्वा मध्वा मधुरेण रसेन यज्ञं मिमिक्षतं ।

सेक्तुमिच्छतं । हे अश्विना वां युष्मदर्थं सुतसोमा अभिषुतसोमयुक्ता
अभिद्यवोऽभिगतदीप्तयः कण्वासो युवामुभौ हवन्ते । आह्वयन्ते ॥ त्रिषधस्थे । त्रिषु
स्थानेषु सह तिष्ठतीति त्रिषधस्थं बर्हिः । सुपि स्थ इति कप्रत्ययः । आतो लोप इटि
चेत्याकारलोपः । सध मादस्थयोश्छन्दसि । पा. ६-३-१६ । इति सहशब्दस्य
सधादेशः । मध्वा । आगमानुशासनस्यानित्यत्वान्नुमभावः । जसि चेत्यत्र जसादिषु
छन्दसि वावचनं । पा. ७-३-१०९-१ [?] । इति वचनान्नाभावाभावश्च । मिमिक्षतं ।

मिह सेचने । सन्येकाच इतीट्प्रतिषेधः । हलन्ताच्चेति सनः
कित्त्वान्नाल्लघूपधगुणाभावः । अभ्यासहलादिशेषौ । ढत्वकुत्वषत्वानि । सुतसोमाः ।
सुतः सोमो यैः । बहुव्रीहिस्वरः । अभिद्यवः । द्युरिति [अहर्]नाम [?] । तेन
तत्सम्बन्धी प्रकाशो लक्ष्यते । अभिगता द्युं । अत्यादयः क्रान्ताद्यर्थे द्वितीयया । म.
२-२-१८-४ [?] । इति समासः । अव्ययपूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वम् ॥

he viśvavedasā sarvajñāv aśvinau triṣadhas²⁵the [karmāśraya]trayarūpeṇāstīrṇatayā [?] triṣu sthāneṣv avasthite barhiṣi darbhe sthitvā madhvā madhureṇa rasena yajñam mimikṣataṃ | sektum icchataṃ | he aśvinā vāṃ yuṣmadartham sutasomā abhiṣutasomayuktā abhidya²⁵vo 'bhigatadīptayaḥ kaṇvāso
 yuvām ubhau havante | āhvayante || triṣadhas²⁵the | triṣu
 sthāneṣu saha tiṣṭhatīti trisadhas²⁵tham barhiḥ | supi stha iti kapratyayaḥ | āto lopa iṭi cety ākāralopaḥ | sadha mādasthayoś chandasi | pā. 6-3-96 | iti sahaśabdasya sadhādeśaḥ | madhvā |
 āgamānuśāsanasyānityatvān numabhāvaḥ | jasi cety atra jasādiṣu
 chandasi vāvacanaṃ | pā. 7-3-109-1 [?] | iti vacanān
 nābhāvābhāvaś ca | mimikṣataṃ | miha secane | sanyekāca
 itīṭpratiṣedhaḥ | halantāc ceti sanaḥ kittvāl laghūpadhaguṇābhāvaḥ | abhyāsahalādiśeṣau |
 dhatvakutvaṣatvāni | sutasomāḥ | sutaḥ somo yaiḥ |
 bahuvrīhisvaraḥ | abhidya²⁵vaḥ | dyur itīty [ahar]nāma [?] | tena
 tatsambandhī prakāśo lakṣyate | abhigatā dyuṃ | atyādayaḥ
 krāntādyarthe dvitīyayā | ma. 2-2-18-4 [?] | iti samāsaḥ |
 avyayapūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvam || ²⁵

Translation: "O viśvavedasā, omniscient Aśvins, triṣadhas²⁵the, on the barhis, the darbha grass that is laid out in the form of three [?] and stands in three places, sitting, madhvā, with the sweet juice, yajñam mimikṣatam, wish to sprinkle the sacrifice. O Aśvins, vāṃ, for you, kaṇvāsaḥ, the Kaṇvas, sutasomāḥ, with Soma pressed, abhidya²⁵vaḥ, of resplendent brightness, yuvām, you both, havante, call. Triṣadhas²⁵the: 'the barhis which stays together in three places'; the suffix ka by supi sthaḥ; the ā drops by āto lopa iṭi ca; sadha for saha in the Chandas by sadha mādasthayoś chandasi (Pā. 6-3-96); madhvā: because the rule for augments is not invariable, the num does not come; the option (vā) in the Chandas

25. Crowded: the words after triṣadhas²⁵the ("karmāśraya-trayarūpeṇa..."), and dyur iti ... nāma, which reads like "dhyur ita harnāma", perhaps "dyur ity ahar nāma"; the Pāṇini and Mahābhāṣya-style numerals; all [?].

for the jas-and-other endings; mimikṣatam: root miha secane; no iṭ by sany ekāca...; san is kit by halantāc ca, so no guṇa of the light penultimate; the reduplication and the remaining consonant; ḍhatva, kutva, ṣatva; sutasomāḥ: 'those by whom Soma is pressed', a bahuvrīhi; abhidyavaḥ: dyu is a name for ... ['day', ahar [?]], by which the light connected with it is indicated; 'those who have gone to dyu'; the compound of ati etc. with the accusative in the sense of 'gone to' (Ma. 2-2-18 [?]); the accent of an indeclinable first member."

Pratipadārtha — "viśvavedasā — O Áśvin gods, who know all; triṣadhas — in the three places; barhiṣi — on the darbha seat; madhvā — with the sweet juice; yajñam — the sacrifice; mimikṣatam — wish to sprinkle; áśvinā — O Áśvin gods; vām — you two; sutasomāḥ — holding the pressed Soma juice; abhidyavaḥ — with brightness; kaṇvāsaḥ — the sons of Kaṇva or the wise priests; yuvām — you two; havante — call with prayer."

Bhāvārtha — "O all-knowing Áśvin gods, for you to sit, the darbha seats have been made ready in three places, one after another. Sitting on them, wish to sprinkle the sacrifice with the sweet juice. O gods, the Kaṇvas, the sons of Kaṇva or wise priests, who are radiant, hold the pressed Soma juice and call you both with prayers."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 12) — "Omniscient Aswins, sitting on the thrice heaped kusa grass, sprinkle the sacrifice with the sweet (soma) juice; the bright Kanwas having extracted the soma juice are invoking you." ²⁶ on the darbha seat that is spread in three places; the idea is that, as a seat on which to sit, the darbha grass is laid on the ground one layer on another, so as to make a seat of three layers." - viśvavedasā — "those who know everything, omniscient; [the source adds in English:] 'Omniscient'." - madhvā — "Although the word madhu means honey, in the Ṛgveda the word madhu is generally used as an adjective of the Soma juice. In such contexts one should give madhu the sense 'sweet like honey, delicious'. In many places, without the word soma, the word madhu alone is used to indicate Soma. So it is in this ṛk too." - sutasomāḥ — "they who have prepared the Soma juice (on the day before)." - abhidyavaḥ — "abhigataḍṭṭayaḥ: the shining ones, that is, the famous."

Rik 47.4, continued ²⁷

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 13 - triṣadhas — "[karmāśraya]trayarūpeṇāstīrṇatayā triṣu sthāneṣv avasthite barhiṣi darbhe [the first words of the Sanskrit are crowded, [?]]:

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁸ - triṣadhasṭhe: "triṣu = in three places, saha = together, tiṣṭhati = stays"; trisadhasṭham means barhis, the darbha grass. Supi sthaḥ (Pā. 3-2-4 as read [?]) — सुपिस्थः — when a subanta stands as upapada, the suffix ka comes after the root sthā: tri + saha + sthā + a; āto lopa iṭi ca (Pā. 6-4-64 as read) drops the ā of sthā; sadha mādashayōś chandasi (Pā. 6-3-96 as read) — सध मादस्थयोश्छन्दसि — in the Veda, when māda or stha follows, sadha replaces saha; tri + sadha + stha + a; pūrvapadāt (Pā. 8-3-106 as read [?]) — पूर्वपदात् — ṣ for the s that follows an iṇ or ku-letter in the first member: i of tri → tri-ṣadhasṭha: triṣadhasṭham. - madhvā: the word madhu is formed by the Uṇādi rule phalipāṭi... (Uṇ. [?]); it is always neuter; after it the instrumental singular ṭā; iko 'ci vibhaktau (Pā. 7-1-73 as read) would give num to the aṅga ending in i, u or ṛ when a vowel-initial case-ending follows; but that augment, which should properly come, does not come by the saying āgamaśāstram anityam (Paribhāṣā, "98" as read [?]) — "the rule of augments is not invariable"; ājjaśer asuk-type rules aside, 26. The Special Topics and grammar of Rik 4 begin on p. 13, not yet written.

27. from p. 13

28. pp. 13–14 — grammar pages, noted briefly

ājino nāstriyām (Pā. 7-3-120 as read [?]) gives nā for ṭā after a ghi-stem; this does not apply in the feminine; though nā should properly come, jasi ca (Pā. 7-3-109 as read [?]) — in this sūtra "in the case of jas and the others, in the Chandas, optionally" is a stated option (vāvacanam: aco 'ñṇiti-type vārttika, as read "7-3-109-1" [?]); here the word ādi is not "beginning" but "kind" (prakāra): by "similarity in one context" what is meant is that, ñau ca ñyupadhāyāḥ hrasvaḥ-type rules being optional in the Chandas, nā does not come; yaṇ comes, and madhvā results. - mimikṣatam: root miha secane; dhātoḥ karmanāḥ samānakarṭṛkād icchāyām vā (Pā. 3-1-7 as read) gives san; ekāca upadeśe 'nudāttāt' (Pā. 7-2-10 as read) — an ārdhadhātuka beginning with a consonant takes no iṭ after a root of one vowel that is unaccented in the list; miha has one vowel, and in the verse "vasatir dahati dihi duhor nehā mih" the root mih is read among the unaccented-in-the-list roots; so no iṭ; hal-antāc ca (Pā. 1-2-10 as read) makes san kit after a root ending in a consonant preceded by i, u, ṛ, ḷ; so san is kit, and the guṇa of the light penultimate (pugantalaghūpadhasya ca) is forbidden by kniti ca; doubling: mih + mih + sa; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ drops the h of the reduplicative syllable; hoḍhaḥ (Pā. 8-2-31 as read) gives ḍh, and as jhal follows, ḍh in the word-end area; ṣaḍhoḥ kaḥ si (Pā. 8-2-41 as read) gives k before s; ādeśapratyayaayoḥ gives ṣ: mimikṣata; the dual thas → tam. - sutasomāḥ: "sutaḥ somaḥ yaiḥ", by whom Soma was pressed; being a bahuvrīhi, the natural accent of the first member comes. - abhidyavaḥ: dyu is a name for the day; the light of the day exists even in the dark of night; on the basis of the day's connection, the word dyu denotes by lakṣaṇā the light connected with the day; "abhigatāḥ dyum", those who have reached light; the Kannada author cites atyādayaḥ krāntādyarthe dvitīyayā (Mahābhāṣya vārttika, "2-2-18-4" as read [?]) — compound of ati etc. with an accusative-ending subanta in the sense of "gone beyond", etc.; the first member abhi is an indeclinable; tatpuruṣe tulyārthatṛtīyā... gives it its natural accent. || 4 ||

original pp. 15-17

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

याभिः कण्वमभिष्टिभिः प्रावतं युवमश्विना । ताभिः ष्वस्माँ अवतं शुभस्पती पातं सोममृतावृधा ॥ ५ ॥

*yābhiḥ kaṇvam abhiṣṭibhiḥ prāvataṃ yuvam aśvinā | tābhiḥ śv
asmāṃ avataṃ śubhaspatī pātaṃ somam ṛtāvṛdhā || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

याभिः । कण्वम् । अभिष्टिभिः । प्र । आवतम् । युवम् । अश्विना । ताभिः । सु । अस्मान् । अवतम् । शुभः । पती इति । पातम् । सोमम् । ऋतावृधा ॥ ५ ॥

*yābhiḥ | kaṇvam | abhiṣṭi-bhiḥ | pra | āvatam | yuvam | aśvinā |
tābhiḥ | su | asmān | avatam | śubhaḥ | patī iti | pātam | somam
| ṛta-vṛdhā || 5 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे अश्विना युवं युवामुभौ याभिरभिष्टिभिरपेक्षिताभी रक्षाभिः कण्वं महर्षिं प्रावतं
रक्षितवन्तौ हे शुभस्पती शोभनस्य कर्मणः पालकौ ताभी रक्षाभिरस्माननुष्ठातृन् सु
अवतं [?] । सुष्ठु रक्षतम् । हे ऋतावृधा यज्ञस्य वर्धकौ सोमं पातं । पिबतं ।
स्पष्टमन्यत् ॥ अभिष्टिभिः । अभिमुख्येनेष्यन्त इत्यभिष्टयः फलानि । इषु इच्छायां । कर्मणि क्तिनि तितुत्रेत्यादिनेट्प्रतिषेधः । एमनादिषु छन्दसि पररूपं वक्तव्यं । पा.
६-१-१४-६ [?] । इति पररूपत्वं । ताडौ चेति गतेः प्रकृतिस्वरत्वं ।
उपसर्गाश्चाभिवर्ज । फि. ४-१३ [?] । इत्यभिरन्तोदात्तः । शुभस्पती । शुभ दीप्तौ ।
क्विप्चेति क्विप् । षष्ठ्याः पतिपुत्रेति विसर्जनीयस्य सत्त्वं । सुबामन्त्रित इति
षष्ठ्यन्तस्य परांगवद्भावात् षष्ठ्यामन्त्रितसमुदायस्याष्टमिकं सर्वानुदात्तत्वं ॥ ५ ॥

he aśvinā yuvaṃ yuvām ubhau yābhir abhiṣṭibhir apekṣitābhī rakṣābhiḥ kaṇvaṃ maharṣiṃ prāvataṃ rakṣitavantau he śubhaspatī śobhanasya karmaṇaḥ pālakau tābhī rakṣābhir asmān anuṣṭhātṛn su avataṃ [?] | suṣṭhu rakṣatam | he ṛtāvṛdhā yajñasya vardhakau somaṃ pātaṃ | pibataṃ | spaṣṭam anyat ||
 abhiṣṭibhiḥ | abhimukhyeneṣyanta ity abhiṣṭayaḥ phalāni | iṣu
 icchāyām | karmaṇi ktini titutretyādinetpratiṣedhaḥ | emanādiṣu
 chandasi pararūpaṃ vaktavyaṃ | pā. 6-1-94-6 [?] | iti
 pararūpatvaṃ | tāḍau ceti gateḥ prakṛtisvaratvaṃ | upasargāś cābhivarjaṃ | phi. 4-13 [?] | ity abhir antodāttaḥ | śubhaspatī |
 śubha dīptau | kvip ceti kvip | ṣaṣṭhyāḥ patiputreti visarjanīyasya
 satvaṃ | subāmantrita iti ṣaṣṭhyantasya parāṅgavadbhāvāt
 ṣaṣṭhyāmantritasamudāyasyāṣṭamikaṃ sarvānudāttatvaṃ || 5 ||

29

Translation: "O Aśvins, yuvam, you two, with the abhiṣṭibhiḥ, the desired protections, with which you protected the great sage kaṇvam, prāvataṃ; O śubhaspatī, guardians of good work, with those same protections protect asmān, us, the performers, well (su avataṃ): protect well. O ṛtāvṛdhā, promoters of the sacrifice, somaṃ pātaṃ, drink the Soma. The rest is clear. Abhiṣṭibhiḥ: abhiṣṭayaḥ are fruits that are chiefly wished for; the root iṣu icchāyām; ktin in the passive; the iṭ is excluded by tituttra...; in the Chandas pararūpa is to be said for emanādi words (Pā. 6-1-94 vārttika [?]); the first member keeps its accent by tāḍau ca; the list says abhi is end-acute among the prepositions (Phiṭ-sūtra 4-13 [?]). Śubhaspatī: root śubha dīptau, kvip; the visarga becomes s by ṣaṣṭhyāḥ patiputra...; the genitive-ending word being treated as part of the following by subāmantrite parāṅgavat..., the whole of the genitive-and-vocative group gets the all-unaccented of the eighth chapter."

29. The words "spaṣṭam anyat", "the rest is clear", are the print's own. The words "su avataṃ" (the print reads like "śv avataṃ") and the numerals are crowded [?].

Pratipadārtha — "śubhaspatī — O Áśvin gods, protectors of holy acts or of rites of dharma; aśvinā — O Áśvins; yuvam — you both; yābhiḥ — with which; abhiṣṭibhiḥ — with desired protections; kaṇvam — the sage Kaṇva; prāvatam — you protected; tābhiḥ — with those protections; asmān — us (the performers of the sacrifice); su avatam — protect well; ṛtāvṛdhā — O promoters of the sacrifice or of truth; somam — the Soma juice; pātam — drink."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Áśvin gods, protectors of holy acts, both of you together protected the sage Kaṇva with the protections he desired. With those same protections protect well us too, who perform the sacrifice. O Áśvin gods, promoters of sacrifice or of truth, drink the Soma juice."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 16)

— "O Aswins, with such protection as you extended to Kanwa protect us also ; cherishers of pious acts, drink, the soma juice."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 16 - "When the Kāṇvas, the descendants of the sage Kaṇva, pray to the Áśvin gods, they ask: 'As you protected the sage Kaṇva, the first ancestor of our line, so protect us too.'" - abhiṣṭibhiḥ — "āpekṣitābhī rakṣābhiḥ: with the protections that are necessary or that we desire; that is, from the fear of enemies, from the harm of cruel beasts, or from the fear of diseases: this is the idea." - śubhaspatī — "these words are used especially when addressing the Áśvin gods in praise."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁰ - abhiṣṭibhiḥ: "abhi, facing; iṣyante, are desired"; the root iṣu icchāyām; striyām ktin (Pā. 3-3-94 as read [?]) — स्त्रियां क्तिन् — in the feminine the suffix ktin comes after all roots, in the abstract sense and in a kāraka sense other than the agent; so ktin after iṣ in the passive: iṣ + ti;

30. pp. 16–17 — grammar pages, noted briefly

titutratathasisusarakaseṣu ca (Pā. 7-2-9 as read [?]) — the ten kṛt suffixes beginning with tī, tu, tra, tha, si, su, sara, ka, sa take no iṭ; hence the iṭ is excluded; emanādiṣu chandasi pararūpaṃ vaktavyam (vārttika on Pā. 6-1-94, as read "6-1-94-6" [?]) — in the Chandas, when eman and the like follow, pararūpa is to be said — and the word iṣṭi is to be included among eman etc.; so, when abhi + iṣṭi is formed, the homogeneous lengthening is overridden and pararūpa comes, a single i standing in place of the two; ktin is nit, so as a kṛt (tāḍau ca nitikṛty atau, Pā. 6-2-50 as read [?]) — when a kṛt beginning with t and not tu, and being nit, follows, the gati before it keeps its natural accent; abhi by its natural accent: upasargāś cābhivarjam (Phiṭ-sūtra, "4-13" as read [?]) — the prepositions other than abhi are initial-acute; abhi is end-acute; this stays after compounding. - śubhaspatī: root śubha dīptau; kvip ca (Pā. 3-2-76 as read [?]) — after all roots, whether there is an upapada or not, in the world and in the Veda, kvip; śubhaḥ + pati; ṣaṣṭhyāḥ patiputrapṛṣṭhapārapadapayaspoṣeṣu (Pā. 8-3-53 as read [?]) — षष्ठ्याः पतिपुत्रपृष्ठपारपदपयस्पोषेषु — visarga of the genitive becomes s when pati, putra, pṛṣṭha, pāra, pada, paya or poṣa follows; subāmantrite parāṅgavat svare (Pā. 2-1-2 as read [?]) — when it is accent that is to be determined, a subanta standing before a vocative is treated as part of the following word; śubhaḥ is thus treated as a part of patī; so these two make a single word; ṣaṣṭhyāmantritasamudāyasya [as read from the Kannada: some say that the vocative ending of the first case is called āmantrita]; āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19 as read) gives the all-unaccented to both. || 5 ||

original p. 17

Rik 6

Samhitā-pāṭha

सुदासे दस्त्रा वसु बिभ्रता रथे पृक्षो वहतमश्विना । रयिं समुद्रादुत वा दिवस्पर्यस्मे धत्तं पुरुस्पृहम् ॥ ६ ॥

*sudāse dasrā vasu bibhratā rathe prkṣo vahatam aśvinā | rayim
samudrād uta vā divas pary asme dhattam purusprham || 6 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

सुडासे । दस्रा । वसु । बिभ्रता । रथे । पृक्षः । वहतम् । अश्विना । रयिम् । समुद्रात् । उत ।
वा । दिवः । परि । अस्मे इति । धत्तम् । पुरुऽस्पृहम् ॥ ६ ॥

*su-dāse | dasrā | vasu | bibhratā | rathe | prkṣaḥ | vahatam |
aśvinā | rayim | samudrāt | uta | vā | divaḥ | pari | asme iti |
dhattam | puru-sprham || 6 ||* ³¹

Rik 47.6, continued ³²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे दस्रा दर्शनीयावश्विनौ सुदासे शोभनदानयुक्ताय राज्ञे पिजवनपुत्राय रथे वसु
बिभ्रता युवां पृक्षोऽन्नं वहतं । प्रापयितवन्तौ । समुद्रादन्तरिक्षात् ।
समुद्रमित्यन्तरिक्षनाम । समुद्रोऽध्वरमिति तन्नामसु पाठात् । उत वा दिवस्पति
अथवा स्वर्गात्पय्योहृत्य पुरुस्पृहं बहुभिः स्पृहणीयं रयिं धनमस्मे धत्तं । अस्मासु
स्थापयेतम् ॥ सुष्ठु ददातीति सुदाः । असुनि कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं । दिवस्पति ।
पञ्चम्याः परावध्यर्थे । पा. ८-३-५१ [?] । इति विसर्जनीयस्य सत्त्वं । पुरुस्पृहं ।
स्पृह ईप्सायां । चुरादिरदन्तः । पुरुभिः स्पृह्यत इति पुरुस्पृहः । कर्मणि घञ् । अतो
लोपस्य स्थानिवत्त्वान्नघूपधगुणाभावः । जित्स्वरेणोत्तरपदस्याद्युदात्तत्वे कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरेण तदेव शिष्यते ॥

*he dasrā darśanīyāv aśvinau sudāse śobhanadānayuktāya rājñe pijavanaputrāya rathe vasu bibhratā yuvāṃ prkṣo 'nnaṃ vahataṃ | prāpayitavantau | samudrād antarikṣāt | samudram ity antarikṣanāma | samudro 'dhvaram iti tannāmasu pāṭhāt | uta vā divas pari athavā svargāt paryohṛtya purusprham bahubhiḥ sprhaṇīyaṃ rayim dhanam asme dhattam | asmāsu sthāpayetam
|| suṣṭhu dadātīti sudāḥ | asuni kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ |*

31. The bhāṣya of Rik 6 begins at the foot of p. 17 and runs on to p. 18;
not yet written.

32. from the foot of p. 17

*divaspari | pañcamyāḥ parāvadhyarthe | pā. 8-3-51 [?] | iti
visarjanīyasya satvaṃ | puruspr̥haṃ | spr̥ha īpsāyām | curādir adantaḥ | purubhiḥ spr̥hyata iti puruspr̥haḥ | karmaṇi ghañ | ato lopasya sthānivattvāl laghūpadhaguṇābhāvaḥ | ñitsvareṇottarapadasyādyudāttatve kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvareṇa
tad eva śiṣyate ||* ³³

Translation: "O dasrā, O Aśvins, beautiful to behold: sudāse, to King Sudās, the son of Pijavana, who is endowed with fair giving, rathe, in your chariot, vasu bibhratā, bearing wealth, you two pr̥kṣaḥ vahatam, brought food; samudrāt, from the atmosphere — samudra is a name of the atmosphere, being read among its names ('samudro 'dhvaram'). Uta vā divas pari, or, bringing from heaven, puruspr̥ham rayim, wealth that is longed for by many, asme dhattam, place in us. Sudāḥ: 'he who gives well'; with asun, the accent of a second member that ends in a kṛt. Divaspari: the visarga becomes s by the rule on the ablative in the sense of 'above, beyond' (Pā. 8-3-51 [?]). Puruspr̥ham: root spr̥ha īpsāyām, of the curādi class, ending in a; 'puruspr̥haḥ, longed for by many'; ghañ in the passive; because the dropped a is treated as present, the guṇa of the light penultimate does not come; ..."

Pratipadārtha — "dasrā — O Aśvin gods of beautiful form; sudāse — to Sudās (the son of Pijavana), who is endowed with excellent giving; rathe — in the chariot; vasu — wealth; bibhratā — bearing, you who came; pr̥kṣaḥ — abundant food; vahatam — brought; samudrāt — from the atmosphere; uta vā — or; divas pari — from heaven (having brought); puruspr̥ham — wealth longed for by many; rayim — the wealth; asme — in us; dhattam — place (give to us too)."

Bhāvārtha

33. The reading "ñitsvareṇa" is crowded; the print has a letter like ghāt, read ñit [?].

— "O Ásvín gods of beautiful form, you brought in your chariot wealth and, in abundance, food for King Sudās, the son of Pijavana, who is of excellent and generous giving. In the same way, bring and give us too wealth that many people long for, whether from the atmosphere or from heaven."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 18)

— "Good-looking Aswins, you brought in your car abundant food to Sudas; In the same manner bring us riches which many covet whether from the sky or from heaven beyond."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), pp. 18–19 - sudāse — "Sudās was the son of a well-known king named Pijavana. In the Viṣṇu Purāṇa it is described that a king named Sudās was born in the solar line; another king of the same name in the lunar line; and yet another king of the same name in the lunar line as the son of the king Divodāsa. The name of Divodāsa is mentioned in the Ṛgveda." - prkṣaḥ — "since the word prkṣaḥ is read among the twenty-eight [?] words that signify food, beginning andhaḥ, vājaḥ (Ni. 2-[?] as read), prkṣa means food or sustenance." - samudrāt — "since the word samudraḥ is read among the sixteen names of the atmosphere beginning ambaram, viyat (Ni. 1-[?] as read), samudrāt means 'from the atmosphere'. Besides this, because the words uta vā divas pari are used in this ṛk, the ṛṣi prays that the Ásvín gods bring wealth from their own place, heaven or the atmosphere." - purusprham — "bahubhiḥ sprhaṇīyam: desired by many; all desire riches such as wealth, power; it is wanted by all. The ṛṣi's idea is that such wealth be given."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁴ - sudāse: "suṣṭhu dadāti iti sudāḥ"; after the root ḍudāñ dāne with su before it, sarvadhātubhyo 'sun (Uṇ. 4-[?]8 as read [?]) gives asun; by the nit-accent the second member would be initial-acute; but gatikārapapadāt kṛt (Pā. 6-2-139 as

34. p. 19 — grammar page, noted briefly

read [?]) leaves the first member's natural accent; the dative singular. - divaspari: divaḥ is an ablative, with pari following; pañcamyāḥ parāvadhyarthe (Pā. 8-3-51 as read [?]) — पञ्चम्याः परावध्यर्थे — "the visarga belonging to an ablative case-ending becomes s when pari, which expresses the sense of 'above' (upari-bhāva) as in adhi ("one who is above"), follows". - puruspr̥ham: root spṛha īpsāyām, which is read in the hatvādi list as ending in a (curādi); "purubhiḥ spṛhyate" — "longed for by many", the ghaṇ in the passive; ato lopaḥ (Pā. 6-4-48 as read [?]) drops the a; because that dropped a is treated as present (ac-pareṣv [as read: ac parasmin pūrvavidhau, Pā. 1-1-57]), the guṇa of the light penultimate (pugantalaghūpadhasya, Pā. 7-3-86) does not come; the second member is initial-acute by the ñit accent; after compounding, kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvara applies and this alone remains. || 6 ||

original pp. 19–20

Rik 7

Samhitā-pāṭha

यन्नासत्या परावति यद्वा स्थो अधि तुर्वशे । अतो रथेन सुवृता न आ गतं साकं सूर्यस्य रश्मिभिः ॥ ७ ॥

*yan nāsatyā parāvati yad vā stho adhi turvaśe | ato rathena suvṛtā
na ā gatam sākaṃ sūryasya raśmibhiḥ || 7 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

यत् । नासत्या । परावति । यत् । वा । स्थः । अधि । तुर्वशे । अतः । रथेन । सुवृता । नः । आ । गतम् । साकम् । सूर्यस्य । रश्मिभिः ॥ ७ ॥

yat | nāsatyā | parāvati | yat | vā | sthaḥ | adhi | turvaśe | ataḥ | rathena | su-vṛtā | naḥ | ā | gatam | sākaṃ | sūryasya | raśmi-bhiḥ || 7 || ³⁵

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे नासत्यावसत्यरहितावश्चिनौ यद्यदि युवां परावति दूरदेशे स्थो वर्तथे । यद्वा
 अथवाधि तुर्वशेऽधिके समीपे स्थः । अतोऽस्माद्दूरात्समीपाद्वा सूर्यस्य रश्मिभिः साकं
 सूर्योदयकाले सुवृता शोभनवर्तनयुक्तेन रथेन नोऽस्मान् प्रत्या गतं । आगच्छतम् ॥
 नासत्या । सत्सु भवौ सत्यौ । न सत्यावसत्यौ । न असत्यौ नासत्यौ ।
 नभ्राणनपादित्यादिना नजः प्रकृतिभावः । स्थः । अस भुवि । शनसोरल्लोप
 इत्यकारलोपः । यद्वृत्तयोगादनिघातः । गतं । गमेल्लोपि बहुलं छन्दसीति शपो लुक् । अनुदात्तोपदेशेत्यादिनानुनासिकलोपः ॥

*he nāsatyāv asatyarahitāv aśvinau yad yadi yuvāṃ parāvati dūradeśe stho vartethe | yad vā athavādhi turvaśe 'dhike samīpe
 sthaḥ | ato 'smād dūrāt samīpād vā sūryasya raśmibhiḥ sākaṃ sūryodayakāle suvṛtā śobhanavartanayuktena rathena no 'smān pratyā gataṃ | āgacchataṃ | | nāsatyā | satsu bhavau satyau | na
 satyāv asatyau | na asatyau nāsatyau | nabhrāṇnapād ity ādinā
 nañāḥ prakṛtibhāvaḥ | sthaḥ | asa bhuvi | śnasor allopa ity akāralopaḥ | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ | gataṃ | gamer loṭi
 bahulaṃ chandasīti śapo luk | anudāttopadeśety
 ādinānunāsikalopaḥ | |* ³⁶

Translation: "O Nāsatyas — you who are free of untruth — O Aśvins, yat, if you two parāvati, are in a far-off place, yad vā, or adhi turvaśe, are in a nearer place: ataḥ, from that far place or near place, sūryasya raśmibhiḥ sākaṃ, together with the rays of the Sun, at the time of the Sun's rising, rathena suvṛtā, with your chariot of fair movement, naḥ ā gataṃ, come to us. Nāsatyā: 'those who exist among the true are true'; 'not true' is asatyā; 'not untrue' is nāsatyā; the natural state of na by nabhrāṇ-napāt....

35. The print divides parāvati with an avagraha mark as parā-vati.

36. The clause "nāsatyā | satsu bhavau satyau | ..." is as read; the Kannada print of the etymology is crowded [?].

Sthaḥ: root asa bhuvi; the a drops by śnasor allopaḥ; because of the yad-connexion, there is no all-unaccented. Gatam: loṭ of gam; śap drops; the nasal drops by anudāttopadeśa...."

Pratipadārtha — "nāsatyā — O Aśvin gods who are free of untruth; yat — if (you); parāvati — in a distant place; sthaḥ — are (both); yad vā — or; adhi turvaśe — in a very near place (are); ataḥ — from there (from the far place or from the near place); sūryasya — of the Sun; raśmibhiḥ sākam — together with the rays (at the time of sunrise); suvṛtā — of excellent motion; rathena — in the chariot; naḥ — facing us; ā gatam — come."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Aśvin gods, free of untruth, whether you are in a distant place or in a place very near to us, at the time of the Sun's rising come to us from the place where you are, together with the rays of the Sun, in your chariot of excellent motion, facing us."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 20) — "O Truthful Nasatyas, whether you happen to be far off at a distance or close at hand, come to us in your well-constructed chariot along with rays of the sun (in the morning)." ³⁷

Rik 47.7, continued ³⁸

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 21 - parāvati — "since the word parāvat is read among the five names of 'far' beginning ākāt, parākāt (Ni. 3-[?]) as read), parāvati means 'in the distance'." - turvaśe — "since the word turvaśe is read among the eleven names that signify 'near', beginning taḷit, āsāt (Ni. 3-[?]) as read), turvaśe means 'in the neighbourhood'." - ā gatam sākam

37. The Special Topics and grammar of Rik 7 begin on p. 21, not yet written.

38. from p. 21

sūryasya raśmibhiḥ — "'come with the rays of the Sun': that is, come as soon as the Sun has risen in the morning; this is the idea."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁹ - nāsatyā: "satsu sādhuḥ satyaḥ"; "na satyaḥ asatyaḥ"; "na asatyaḥ nāsatyaḥ". Tatra sādhuḥ (Pā. 4-4-98 as read [?]) gives yat; if the analysis is "satsu bhavau" ("they who are among the good"), then bhave chandasi (Pā. 4-4-110 as read [?]) gives yat (the Kannada author adds that the process is given differently at Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-3-3 [as read]). Everywhere nabhrāṇnapānnavedānāsatyā... (Pā. 6-3-75 as read [?]) gives prakṛtibhāva, so the n of na is not dropped. - sthaḥ: root asa bhuvi; laṭ, second person dual thas; śnasor allopaḥ (Pā. 6-4-111 as read) — a sārvadhātuka beginning with kit or ñit, or of the kind with an ś-marker, dropped, drops the a of the root as and of the suffix śna; so the a of as is lost: s + thas; ru, visarga: sthaḥ. The word yad vā occurs here with yad. Yadvṛttān nityam (Pā. 8-1-66 as read) — the Kannada author remarks that the Mahābhāṣya explains yadvṛtta as "yadā eṣā yadvṛttam" [as printed, crowded, [?]]; by it, a finite verb after the word with yat is not all-unaccented; and by pūjanāt pūjitam anudāttaṃ kāṣṭhādibhyaḥ (Pā. 8-1-67 as read [?]) — the re-statement with pūjita shows that, as said, "atra prakaraṇe pañcamī nirdeśe 'pi nānantaryam iṣyate" (as printed): hence, even where vā intervenes, the prohibition holds. - gatam: root gamḥ gatau; loṭ; loṭo laṇvat; tasthasthamipāṃ tāmtamāmaḥ (Pā. 3-4-101 as read) gives thas, tam; bahulaṃ chandasi (Pā. 2-4-73 as read) gives luk for śap; anudāttopadeśavanatitanotyādīnām anunāsikalopo jhali kñiti (Pā. 6-4-37 as read) drops the nasal m. || 7 ||

original pp. 21–25

Rik 8

Samhitā-pāṭha

अर्वाञ्चा वां सप्तयोऽध्वरश्रियो वहन्तु सवनेदुप । इषं पृञ्चन्ता सुकृते सुदानव आ बर्हिः सीदतं नरा ॥ ८ ॥

arvāñcā vām saptayo 'dhvaraśriyo vahantu savanedup pa | iṣaṃ
pr̥ñcantā sukṛte sudānava ā barhiḥ sīdatam narā || 8 || 40

Pada-pāṭha

अर्वाञ्चा । वाम् । सप्तयः । अध्वरऽश्रियः । वहन्तु । सवना । इत् । उप । इषम् । पृञ्चन्ता । सुऽकृते । सुऽदानवे । आ । बर्हिः । सीदतम् । नरा ॥ ८ ॥

arvāñcā | vām | saptayaḥ | adhvara-śriyaḥ | vahantu | savanā |
it | upa | iṣam | pr̥ñcantā | su-kṛte | su-dānave | ā | barhiḥ |
sīdatam | narā || 8 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे अश्विनौ अध्वरश्रियो योगसेविनः सप्तयोऽश्वाः सवनेदुपास्मदनुष्ठेयानि त्रीणि
सवनान्येवोपलक्ष्यार्वाञ्चाभिमुखौ वां युवां वहन्तु । प्रापयन्तु । हे नराश्विनौ सुकृते
सुष्ठु कर्मकारिणे सुदानवे शोभनदानयुक्ताय यजमानायेषमन्नं पृञ्चन्ता संयोजयन्तौ
युवां बर्हिरा सीदतं । दर्भं प्राप्नुतम् ॥ अर्वाञ्चा । सुपां सुलुगिति विभक्तेराकारः ।
अध्वरश्रियः । अध्वरं श्रयन्तीत्यध्वरश्रियः । क्विव्वचिप्रच्छीत्यादिना । उ. २-६२
[?] । क्विब्दीर्घश्च । वहन्तु । वह प्रापणे । शपः पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वं । तिङश्च
सार्वधातुकस्वरेण धातुस्वरेणाद्युदात्तत्वं । पादादित्वान्निघाताभावः । सवना । षुञ्
अभिषवे । अभिषूयन्ते सोमा एष्विति सवनानि । अधिकरणे ल्युट् । योरनादेशः ।
गुणावादेशौ । लितीति प्रत्ययात्पूर्वस्योदात्तत्वं । शेषछन्दसि बहुलमिति शेलोपः ।
पृञ्चन्ता । पृची सम्पर्के । शतरि रुधादित्वाच्छनम् । शनसोरल्लोप इत्यकारलोपः ।
प्रत्ययस्वरः । सुकृते । सुकर्मपापेत्यादिना । पा. ३-२-८९ [?] । करोतेर्भूते काले
क्विप् । ह्रस्वस्य पिति । पा. ६-१-७१ [?] । इति तुक् । सुदानवे । शोभनं दानु दानं
यस्यासौ सुदानुः । दानुशब्दो नुप्रत्ययान्त आद्युदात्तः । आद्युदात्तं द्व्यच्छन्दसीति
बहुव्रीहावुत्तरपदाद्युदात्तत्वं । सीदतं । षट् विशरणगत्यवसादनेषु ॥

40. The second pāda of the first line is printed सवनेदुप ("savanedupa"); It is given as printed, and read as savanā id upa from the Pada.

he aśvinau adhvaraśriyo yogasevinaḥ saptayo 'śvāḥ savanedupāsmadanuṣṭheyāni trīṇi savanāny
evopalakṣyārvāñcābhimukhau vāṃ yuvāṃ vahantu | prāpayantu
| he narāśvinau sukr̥te suṣṭhu karmakāriṇe sudānave śobhanadānayuktāya yajamānāyeṣam annaṃ pr̥ñcantā saṃyojayantau yuvāṃ barhiḥ ā sīdataṃ | darbhaṃ prāpnutam ||
arvāñcā | supāṃ suluk iti vibhakter ākāraḥ | adhvaraśriyaḥ |
adhvaraṃ śrayantīty adhvaraśriyaḥ | kvibvacipracchītyādinā | u.
2-62 [?]| kvibdīrghaś ca | vahantu | vaha prāpaṇe | śapaḥ pittvād
anudāttatvaṃ | tiṇaś ca sārva dhātukasvareṇa
dhātusvareṇādyudāttatvaṃ | pādādittvān nighātābhāvaḥ |
savanā | ṣuñ abhiṣave | abhiṣūyante somā eṣv iti savanāni |
adhikaraṇe lyuṭ | yor anādeśaḥ | guṇāvādeśau | liti pratyayāt pūrvasyodāttatvaṃ | śeś chandasi bahulam iti śer lopah |
pr̥ñcantā | pr̥cī samparke | śatari rudhādittvāc chnam | śnasor
allopa ity akāralopah | pratyayasvaraḥ | sukr̥te | sukarmapāpety
ādinā | pā. 3-2-89 [?]| karoter bhūte kāle kvip | hrasvasya piti |
pā. 6-1-71 [?]| iti tuk | sudānave | śobhanaṃ dānu dānaṃ
yasyāsau sudānuḥ | dānuśabdo nupratyayānta ādyudāttaḥ | ādyudāttatvaṃ dvyac chandasīti bahuvrīhāv
uttarapadādyudāttatvaṃ | sīdataṃ | ṣadl
viśaraṇagatyavasādaneṣu || ⁴¹

Translation: "O Aśvins, adhvaraśriyaḥ, attached to the sacrifice, saptayaḥ, your horses, savanā id upa, (aiming at) the three pressings that are to be performed by us, arvāñcā, turned towards (us) — vāṃ, you two — vahantu, let them bring. O narā, O leaders, Aśvins, iṣam pr̥ñcantā, joining food, to sukr̥te, the sacrificer who does his work well, sudānave, who gives well — you two, ā barhiḥ sīdataṃ, sit on the darbha grass. Arvāñcā: ā for the case-ending by supāṃ suluk. Adhvaraśriyaḥ: 'those who attend on the sacrifice'; kvip (Uṇ. 2-62 [?]) with lengthening. Vahantu: root vaha prāpaṇe; śap being pit is unaccented; the root-

41. The words "savanedupāsmadanuṣṭheyāni" are as printed and crowded [?]; the Uṇādi number and two Pāṇini numbers [?].

accent gives the initial acute; the head of the pāda, so no all-unaccented. Savanā: root ṣuñ abhiṣave; 'where Soma is pressed' are savanas; lyuṭ in the locative sense; ana for yu; guṇa and āv-substitution; the acute before a lit-suffix; śi dropped in the Chandas. Prñcantā: root prcī samparke; śatṛ; śnam by the rudhādi class; the a of śna drops. Sukṛte: kvip of kṛ in the past sense after su; the tuk-augment by hrasvasya piti (Pā. 6-1-71 [?]). Sudānave: 'he whose giving is good'; dānu, ending in nu, is initial-acute; in the bahuvrīhi the second member is initial-acute. Sīdatam: root ṣadl viśaraṇagatyavasādaneṣu."

Pratipadārtha — "adhvaraśriyaḥ — (O Aśvin gods) serving the sacrifice; saptayaḥ — the horses; savanedupa — (that we perform) with regard to the three pressings; arvāñcā — turned towards them; vām — you two; vahantu — let them bring; narā — O leaders; sukṛte — who does holy acts; sudānave — endowed with excellent giving; iṣam — food; prñcantā — giving to the sacrificer; barhiḥ — on the darbha seat; ā sīdatam — sit."

Bhāvārtha — "O Aśvin gods, let your horses, who serve the sacrifice, bring you to our sacrifice, facing us, at the three times of pressing that we perform. O leaders, the sacrificer is one who does holy acts and is endowed with excellent giving. Come to him, giving him food, and sit on the darbha seat."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 23)

— "May your horses, the grace of the sacrifice, bring you to be present at our rite ; guides (of men) bestowing food upon the pious and liberal donor of he offering [sic: for "the offering"], sit down on the sacred grass."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 23 - adhvaraśriyaḥ — "adhvaram śrayantīty adhvaraśriyaḥ; yogasevinaḥ: those who go for the sacrifice, or those who exert themselves for the sacrifice." - saptayaḥ — "horses. Since the word sapti is read among the twenty-six [?] names of horses beginning atyah, hayaḥ (Ni. 1-[?]2 as read)." - savanā — "trīṇi savanāni: the three pressings, the morning pressing (prātaḥsavana), the midday pressing and the third pressing, are the special rites performed in the sacrifices in which Soma juice is prepared at the morning, midday and evening times; they are called savanas; the savanas are three." - prñcantā — "prcī samparke: joining, giving; making contact."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴² - arvāñcā: supāṃ suluk... (Pā. 7-1-39 as read) gives ā for the dual ending au of the second case. - adhvaraśriyaḥ: "na vidyate dhvaraḥ (injury) yasmin saḥ"; "adhvaraṃ śrayanti", those who resort to the sacrifice, i.e. adhere to the rite; kvibvacipracchi...śrisrudrupluṣvājñāṃ dīrgho 'saṃprasāraṇaṃ ca (Uṇ. 2-[?]6 as read [?]) — after roots vac etc. kvip, with lengthening, and no saṃprasāraṇa that would otherwise be given by being kit; here, after śriṇ sevāyām, kvip, the lengthening: adhvaraśrī; jas, iy-substitution. - vahantu: root vaha prāpaṇe, loṭ, śap, being pit it is unaccented; for the lasārvadhātuka that follows a root with an accent given in the list, tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam (Pā. 6-1-186 as read [?]) is unaccented; the root-accent remains: vahantu, standing at the head of the pāda, so no all-unaccented. - savanā: root ṣuñ abhiṣave; "abhiṣūyante somaḥ eṣu", the abhi being a prefix, the ṣ of the root becomes s (dhātvādeḥ ṣaḥ saḥ, Pā. 6-1-64 as read); karaṇādhikaraṇayoś ca (Pā. 3-3-117 as read [?]) gives lyuṭ in the locative sense; yuvor anākau (Pā. 7-1-1 as read) gives ana for yu; guṇa, av: savana; in the accusative plural, śas: jaśśasoḥ śiḥ (Pā. 7-1-20 as read) gives śi for jas and śas after a neuter aṅga: savana + śi; śi sarvanāmasthānam (Pā. 1-1-42 as read) gives śi the name sarvanāmasthāna; napuṃsakasya jhalacaḥ (Pā. 7-1-72 as read) gives num to a neuter aṅga ending in a consonant or a vowel; navanan + śi; sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau (Pā. 6-4-8 as read) lengthens the penultimate; śe chandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-1-70 as read [?]) drops śi variously in the Veda; nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya (Pā. 8-2-7 as read) drops the n:

42. pp. 23–25 — grammar pages, noted briefly

savanā. - pr̥ñcantā: root prcī samparke; laṭ, śatṛ; rudhādibhyaḥ śnam, śna as the vikaraṇa, being mit, comes after the penultimate (pr-na-c-at); śnasor allopaḥ (Pā. 6-4-111 as read) — dropping the a of śna before a kit or nit or śatṛ-like suffix; naś chapadāntasya jhali (Pā. 8-3-24 as read) gives anusvāra, anusvārasya yayi parasavarṇaḥ (Pā. 8-4-58 as read) gives the homogeneous nasal: pr̥ñcat; in the nominative dual ā; the suffix at is acute by the suffix-accent. - sukṛte: su is a preposition; root ḍukṛñ karṇe; sukarmapāpamantrapuṇyeṣu kṛñāḥ (Pā. 3-2-89 as read [?]) — after su, karman, pāpa, mantra, puṇya as upapada, kṛip after kṛñ in the past sense; hrasvasya piti kṛti tuk (Pā. 6-1-71 as read) gives the tuk: sukṛt; dative singular. - sudānave: "su = good, dānu = gift, yasya saḥ = he who has it"; a bahuvrīhi; dābhābhyām nuḥ (Uṇ. 3-[?]8 as read [?]) with the continued nit-ness: after dā the suffix nu, being nit, so the word is initial-acute; ādyudāttaṃ dvyac chandasi (Pā. 6-2-119 as read [?]) — a second member after su, having two vowels and initial-acute, keeps the initial acute in the bahuvrīhi. - sīdatam: root ṣadl; loṭ, thas, tam, śap; pāghrādhmā... gives sīda; all-unaccented. || 8 ||

original p. 25

Rik 9

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

तेन नासत्या गतं रथेन सूर्यत्वचा । येन शश्वदूहथुर्दाशुषे वसु मध्वः सोमस्य पीतये ॥ ९

॥

tena nāsatyā gataṃ rathena sūryatvacā | yena śaśvad ūhathur dāśuṣe vasu madhvaḥ somasya pītaye || 9 ||

Pada-pāṭha

तेन । नासत्या । आ । गतम् । रथेन । सूर्यत्वचा । येन । शश्वत् । ऊहथुः । दाशुषे । वसु । मध्वः । सोमस्य । पीतये ॥ ९ ॥

tena | nāsatyā | ā | gatam | rathena | sūrya-tvacā | yena | śāsvat
| ūhathuḥ | dāśuṣe | vasu | madhvaḥ | somasya | pītaye || 9 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे नासत्या सूर्यत्वचा सूर्यसंवृतेन सूर्यरश्मिसदृशेन वा तेन प्रसिद्धेन रथेना गतम् ।
आगच्छतम् । दाशुषे हविर्दत्तवते यजमानाय वसु धनं शश्वत् सर्वदा येन रथेनोहथुः
प्रापितवन्तौ । तेन रथेनेति पूर्वत्रान्वयः । किमर्थमागमनमिति तदुच्यते । मध्वो
मधुरस्य सोमस्य पीतये सोमपानार्थम् ॥ सूर्यत्वचा । त्वच संवरणे । त्वचतीति
संवृणोतीति त्वग्रश्मिः । सूर्यस्य त्वगिव त्वग्यस्य । सप्तमीपमानेत्यादिना [?] ।
पा. २-२-२४-१ [?] । बहुव्रीहिरुत्तरपदलोपश्च । सूर्यशब्दः । षू प्रेरणे इत्यस्मात्
क्यपि राजसूयसूर्येत्यादिना रुडागमसहितो निपातितः । ततः प्रत्ययस्य
पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे धातुस्वरेणाद्युदात्तः । स एव बहुव्रीहौ पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरेण शिष्यते ।
ऊहथुः । वह प्रापणे । लिट्यसंयोगाल्लिट् कित् । पा. १-२-५ । इति लिटः कित्त्वे
वचिस्वपीत्यादिना संप्रसारणं । अभ्यासहलादिशेषौ सवर्णदीर्घः । प्रत्ययस्वरः । यद्वृत्तयोगादनिघातः ॥

he nāsatyā sūryatvacā sūryasaṃvṛtena sūryaraśmisadr̥śena vā
tena prasiddhena rathenā gatam | āgacchatam | dāśuṣe havirdattavate yajamānāya vasu dhanam śāsvat sarvadā yena rathenohathuḥ prāpitavantau | tena rathene ti pūrvatrānvayaḥ |
kimarthamāgamanam iti tad ucyate | madhvo madhurasya
somasya pītaye somapānārtham || sūryatvacā | tvaca saṃvaraṇe
| tvacatīti saṃvṛṇotīti tvagraśmiḥ | sūryasya tvag iva tvag yasya |
saptamīpamānety ādinā [?] | pā. 2-2-24-1 [?] | bahuvrīhir
uttarapadalopaś ca | sūryaśabdaḥ | ṣū prerāṇe ity asmāt kyapi rājasūyasūryety ādinā ruḍāgamasahito nipātitaḥ | tataḥ pratyayasya pīttvād anudāttatve dhātusvareṇādyudāttaḥ | sa eva bahuvrīhau pūrvapadaprakṛtisvareṇa śiṣyate | ūhathuḥ | vaha prāpaṇe | liṭy asaṃyogāl liṭ kit | pā. 1-2-5 | iti liṭaḥ kittve
vacisvapīṭy ādinā saṃprasāraṇam | abhyāsahalādiśeṣau
savarṇadīrghaḥ | pratyayasvaraḥ | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ || 43

Translation: "O Nāsatyas, sūryatvacā, covered with (hidden by) the Sun, or like the rays of the Sun, tena rathena, with that well-known chariot, ā gatam, come — yena, with which chariot you two, dāśuṣe, to the sacrificer who gave the oblation, vasu, wealth, śaśvat, always, ūhathuḥ, have brought. 'With that chariot' is to be construed with what precedes. Why the coming? Madhvaḥ somasya pītaye, to drink the sweet Soma. Sūryatvacā: root tvaca saṃvaraṇe; 'the Sun's skin, as it were, is its skin'; a bahuvrīhi with dropping of the later member [by the rule on the locative or an upamāna first member, [?]]; the word sūrya, from the root ṣū prerāṇe with kyap and the ruṭ-augment by rājasūyasūrya...; the suffix being pīt, the root-accent: initial-acute; this alone remains, by the first member's natural accent in the bahuvrīhi. Ūhathuḥ: root vaha prāpaṇe; the liṭ is kit by liṭy asaṃyogāt (Pā. 1-2-5); saṃprasāraṇa by vacisvapi...; the reduplicative syllable and the remaining consonant; the homogeneous lengthening; the suffix-accent; because of the yad-connexion, no all-unaccented." ⁴⁴

Rik 47.9, continued ⁴⁵

Pratipadārtha — "nāsatyā — O Ásvins gods; yena — with which chariot (in which); dāśuṣe — to the sacrificer who gives the oblation; vasu — wealth; śaśvat — always; ūhathuḥ — have brought, conveying; sūryatvacā — covered by the Sun (by the rays of the Sun), or like the rays of the Sun; tena — by that well-known; rathena — with the chariot (sitting in it); madhvaḥ — sweet; somasya — of the Soma juice; pītaye — for drinking; ā gatam — come."

Bhāvārtha

43. The Pāṇini/Mahābhāṣya numbers after saptamīpamānety ādinā are crowded and the first words are uncertain [?]. "tena rathene ti" is tena rathene'ti, "'with that chariot': the connexion is with the preceding".

44. The Pratipadārtha, Bhāvārtha, English, Special Topics and grammar of Rik 9 begin on p. 26, not yet written.

45. from p. 26

— "O Ásvin gods, your chariot is famous in the world. In it you have always conveyed wealth to the sacrificer who gives the oblation. When it travels, it is covered by the rays of the Sun, or shines like the rays of the Sun. Come, seated in that chariot, to drink the Soma juice."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 26)

— "Truthful Aswins, come hither to drink the sweet soma with your chariot, bright as the sun in which you have ever conveyed wealth to the worshipper."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 26 - sūryatvacā — "sūryasaṃvṛtena, sūryaraśmisadrśena vā: covered by the Sun, or like the rays of the Sun, that is, shining like the Sun." - śāśvat — "sarvadā: always." - "In this ṛk there are uses of the words yena and tena. 'O Ásvin gods, come here, sitting in that shining chariot of yours, like the Sun, in which you have been bringing wealth and the like to the sacrificer who performs the sacrifice, to drink the Soma': this is the idea."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁶ - sūryatvacā: root tvaca saṃvaraṇe; "tvacati = saṃvṛṇoti", tvak (the sense of "covering", i.e. concealing; the Sun's ray covers the whole world, or conceals); "sūryasya tvag iva tvak yasya saḥ", one whose ray is like the Sun's ray. Rājasūyasūryaṃṣodyarucyakupyakṛṣṭapacyāvyathyāḥ (Pā. 3-1-114 as read [?]) — राजसूयसूर्य... — in the words of this sūtra, the kyap-ending forms are given by nipātana; the augment ruṭ is also given by nipātana in the word sūrya; the suffix is pit, so unaccented; the first member's natural accent in the bahuvrīhi. - ūhathuḥ: root vaha prāpaṇe; liṭ, thas → athus (tasthasthamipāṃ...); asaṃyogāl liṭ kit (Pā. 1-2-5 as read) makes liṭ kit; doubling; liṭy abhyāsasyobhayeṣām (Pā. 6-1-17 as read) gives saṃprasāraṇa to the reduplicative syllable of roots such as vaci and grahi, when liṭ follows: the v of the reduplicative syllable becomes u, pūrvarūpa; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ drops the h; u + vah + athus; vacisvapiyajādīnām kiti (Pā. 6-1-15 as read) gives saṃprasāraṇa of vah before a kit suffix; pūrvarūpa: u-uh-athus; savarṇadīrgha; ru, visarga; the suffix-accent. The yad-connexion is present through yena, so no all-unaccented. || 9 ||

original pp. 27-29

Rik 10

Samhitā-pāṭha

उक्थेभिरवागवसे पुरुवसू अर्कैश्च नि ह्वयामहे । शश्वत्कण्वानां सदसि प्रिये हि कं सोमं पपथुरश्विना ॥ १० ॥

*ukthebhir arvāg avase purūvasū arkaiś ca ni hvayāmahe | śaśvat
kaṇvānām sadasi priye hi kaṃ somam papathur aśvinā || 10 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

उक्थेभिः । अर्वाक् । अवसे । पुरुवसू इति पुरुवसू । अर्कैः । च । नि । ह्वयामहे ॥ शश्वत् । कण्वानाम् । सदसि । प्रिये । हि । कम् । सोमम् । पपथुः । अश्विना ॥ १० ॥

*ukthebhiḥ | arvāk | avase | puruvasū iti puru-vasū | arkaiḥ | ca |
ni | hvayāmahe || śaśvat | kaṇvānām | sadasi | priye | hi | kaṃ |
somam | papathuḥ | aśvinā || 10 ||* ⁴⁷

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

पुरुवसू प्रभूतधनावश्विनौ अवसेऽस्मद्रक्षणार्थमुक्थेभिरुक्थैः शस्त्रैरर्कैश्चार्चनसाधनैः
स्तोत्रैश्चार्वागस्माभिमुख्येन नि ह्वयामहे । निकरामाह्वयामः । हे अश्विना कण्वानां
कण्वपुत्राणां मेधाविनां वा प्रिये सदसि यज्ञस्थाने शश्वत्सर्वदा सोमं पपथुर्हि कं ।
युवां पीतवन्तौ खलु ॥ उक्थेभिः । बहुलं छन्दसीति भिस ऐसादेशाभावः । बहुवचने
झल्येदित्येत्वं । अर्कैः । ऋच स्तुतौ । पुंसि संज्ञायां घः प्रायेणेति करणे घः । चजोः
कु घिण्यतोरिति कुत्वं । नि ह्वयामहे । निसमुपविभ्यो हः । पा. १-३-३० ।

47. The Samhitā prints the second word as arvāg, the Pada as arvāk: the final consonant is voiced by sandhi.

इत्यात्मनेपदं । सदः । सीदन्त्यस्मिन्निति सदः । असुनो नित्त्वादाद्युदात्तत्वं । पपथुः
 । पा पाने । लिट्यतो लोप इति चेत्याकारलोपः । प्रत्ययस्वरः । हि चेति निघातप्रतिषेधः ॥ १० ॥

*purūvasū prabhūtadhanāv aśvinau avase 'smadrakṣaṇārtham ukthebhir ukthaiḥ śāstrair arkaiś cārcanasāadhanaiḥ stotraiś cārvāg asmābhimukhyena ni hvayāmahe | nikarām āhvayāmaḥ | he aśvinā kaṇvānām kaṇvaputrānām medhāvinām vā priye sadasi yajñasthāne śasvat sarvadā somam papathur hi kam | yuvām pītavantau khalu || ukthebhiḥ | bahulam chandasīti bhisa
 aisādeśābhāvaḥ | bahuvacane jhaly et ity etvam | arkaiḥ | ṛca stutau | puṃsi saṃjñāyām ghaḥ prāyeṇeti karaṇe ghaḥ | cajoḥ ku ghiṇṇyatoriti kutvam | ni hvayāmahe | nisamupavibhyo hvaḥ | pā.
 1-3-30 | ity ātmanepadam | sadaḥ | sīdanty asminn iti sadaḥ |
 asuno nittvād ādyudāttatvam | papathuḥ | pā pāne | liṭy ato lopa
 iṭi cety ākāralopaḥ | pratyayasvaraḥ | hi ceti nighātapratīṣedhaḥ
 || 10 ||*

Translation: "Purūvasū, O Aśvins of abundant wealth, avase, for our protection, ukthebhiḥ, with uktha-hymns (śāstras, recitations), arkaiḥ ca, and with arkas, hymns that serve as means of worship, arvāk, turned towards us — ni hvayāmahe, we call you earnestly. O Aśvins, kaṇvānām, of the Kaṇvas, the sons of Kaṇva or wise priests, priye sadasi, in the dear seat, the place of sacrifice, śasvat, always, somam papathuḥ hi kam, you have drunk the Soma (kam: the print explains the particle as 'indeed'); you two have drunk, surely. Ukthebhiḥ: bhis does not become ais (bahulam chandasi); e by bahuvacane jhaly et. Arkaiḥ: root ṛca stutau; gha by puṃsi saṃjñāyām ghaḥ prāyeṇa in the instrument sense; ku by cajoḥ ku ghiṇṇyatoḥ. Ni hvayāmahe: the ātmanepada by ni-sam-upa-vibhyo hvaḥ (Pā. 1-3-30). Sadaḥ: 'in which they sit'; asun is nit and so initial-acute. Papathuḥ: root pā pāne; liṭ; the ā drops by āto lopa iṭi ca; the suffix-accent; the all-unaccented is blocked by hi ca."

Pratipadārtha — "purūvasū — the Áśvin gods who have abundant wealth; avase — for (our) protection; ukthebhiḥ — with śastra mantras; arkaiḥ ca — and with hymns of worship; arvāk — facing us (in order to come near us); ni hvayāmahe — we call earnestly (praying); aśvinā — O Áśvin gods; kaṇvānām — of the sons of Kaṇva, or wise priests; priye sadasi — in the dear place of sacrifice; śāśvat — always; somam — the Soma juice; papathuḥ hi kam — you have drunk, have you not?"

Bhāvārtha — "We call earnestly, with uktha mantras and with hymns of worship, the Áśvin gods who have abundant wealth, to come near us for our protection. O Áśvin gods, have you not always drunk the Soma juice in the sacrificial hall, dear to you, of the sons of Kaṇva or wise priests?"

English Translation (the source's own, p. 28)

— "With hymns and songs we invoke the wealthy Aswins to be present for our protection. Have you not always drunk the soma juice in the favoured dwelling of the Kanwas?"

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 28 - ukthebhiḥ — "śastra-mantras, that is, Ṛgveda mantras recited firmly (steadily)." - arkaiḥ ca — "stotraiḥ ca: with Sāmaveda mantras fit for singing." - sadasi priye — "in the sacrificial hall of the Kaṇva line, dear to you. Sīdanty asmin iti sadaḥ: a place to sit, an assembly, a sacrificial hall, and so on."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁸ - ukthebhiḥ: root vaca paribhāṣaṇe; the Uṇādi rule pātrā-tudi-vaci-rici-sici-bhyaḥ thak (Uṇ. 2-[?]4 as read [?]) gives the suffix thak after these roots; vacisvapi... gives saṃprasāraṇa; bahulaṃ chandasi (Pā. 7-1-10 as read) — ais does not come for bhis; bahuvacane jhaly et (Pā. 7-3-103 as read) — e for the final a of an aṅga ending in a, before a plural sup beginning with a jhal. - arkaiḥ: root ṛca gatau [as printed; the bhāṣya says stutau]; pum̐si saṃjñāyām ghaḥ prāyeṇa (Pā. 3-3-118

48. p. 29 — grammar page, noted briefly

as read [?]) — in the masculine, in a name, the suffix gha comes by and large in the instrument or locative sense; cajoḥ ku ghinṇyatoḥ (Pā. 7-3-52 as read [?]) gives k and g for c and j before gha, ñit and yat; ṛ gets guṇa of the light penultimate and raparatva: arka. - ni hvayāmahe: root hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca, which is ñit; the ātmanepada follows from svaritañitah kartrabhiprāye kriyāphale (Pā. 1-3-72 as read) when the fruit goes to the agent, and also in some cases without it; nisamupavibhyo hvaḥ (Pā. 1-3-30 as read) — after ni, saṃ, upa, vi, the root hveñ takes the ātmanepada. - sadasi: "sīdanty asmin", the place where all sit together; sarvadhātubhyo 'sun (Uṇ. 4-[?]8 as read [?]) after ṣadl; being ñit, initial-acute. - papathuḥ: root pā pāne; liṭ, thas → athus; pā + athus, doubling, shortening of the reduplicative syllable; papā + athus; āto lopa iṭi ca (Pā. 6-4-64 as read) — the ā drops before an ārdhadhātuka that is kit or ñit beginning with a vowel, and before iṭ; so the ā drops; ru, visarga; hi ca (Pā. 8-1-34 as read) — when hi is present, a finite verb is not unaccented; so the all-unaccented is blocked; the a of athus is acute by the suffix-accent. || 10 ||

Close of Sūkta 47. After the grammar of Rik 10, at the foot of printed p. 29, only a flourish (a printer's ornament) closes the sūkta; no printed closing sentence ("illige ... sūktavu mugidudu") appears. The sūkta (ayaṃ vāṃ madhumattamaḥ, ten Riks) therefore occupies printed pp. 1–29 (PDF 17–45). The next leaf, p. 30 = PDF 46, begins with the large title "nalavattettaneya sūktavu" ("the forty-eighth sūkta") at the head of the page — a clean boundary, and the contents table's page for Sūkta 48 (p. 30) is confirmed.

Summary of Sūkta 47. Ten Riks to the Aśvins, the first sūkta of the Fourth Adhyāya. Rik 1 offers them the sweet Soma pressed on the previous day and asks riches for the sacrificer; Rik 2 invites them in their three-seated, three-fold chariot, as the Kaṇvas make hymns; Rik 3 asks them to drink the Soma and then come, bearing wealth, to the sacrificer; Rik 4 says the Kaṇvas, with Soma pressed, call them to sit on the three-layered grass and sprinkle the sacrifice; Rik 5 asks them to protect us as they protected Kaṇva; Rik 6 asks for the food and the much-desired wealth they brought to Sudās, son of Pijavana; Rik 7 asks them to come, whether from far or near, with the Sun's rays; Rik 8 asks that their horses bring them to the three pressings and that they sit on the grass; Rik 9 invites them in the sun-bright chariot that has always carried wealth to the giver; Rik 10 says we call them with uktha-hymns and arkas for protection and asks whether they have not always drunk Soma in the Kaṇvas' hall. All ten Riks are written in full. The doubtful parts are the many reference numerals (all "as read [?]"). several crowded words flagged under each Rik, the Anukramaṇikā clause in the introduction, and the outlined (not transcribed) grammar discussions (madhvā, yadvṛtta, vas in śāsivasighasīnām).⁴⁹

49. Fifth sūkta of the Ninth Anuvāka.

Sūkta 48 — "saha vāmena"

original p. 30

Forty-eighth Sūkta ¹

Pages 30–31 (PDF 46–47) — Sāyaṇa's introduction, the Kannada anuvāda, and the heading

Sāyaṇa's introduction ²

सह वामेनेति षोडशर्चं पञ्चमं सूक्तं । प्रस्कण्व ऋषिः । बार्हतत्वाद्[?] आयुजो बृहत्यो युजः
सतोबृहत्यः । उषा देवता । सह षोळशोषस्यं [?] इत्यत्रानुक्रमणिका । प्रातरनुवाक उषस्ये
क्रतौ बार्हते छन्दसीदं सूक्तं । अथोषस्य इति खण्डे सूत्रितं । प्रत्यु अदर्शि सह वामेनेति बार्हतं
। आ. ४-१४ [?] । इति । तथाश्चिनशस्त्रेऽप्येतत्सूक्तं । प्रातरनुवाकन्यायेन । आ. ६-५ [?] । इत्यतिदिष्टत्वात् ॥

*saha vāmeneti ṣoḍaśarcaṃ pañcamam sūktam | praskaṇva ṛṣiḥ |
bārhatatvād [?] āyujō br̥hatyo yujāḥ satobr̥hatyaḥ | uṣā devatā |
saha ṣoḷaśoṣasyam [?] ity atrānukramaṇikā | prātaranuvāka
uṣasye kratau bārhate chandasīdam sūktam | athoṣasya iti khaṇḍe
sūtritam | praty u adarśi saha vāmeneti bārhatam | ā. 4-14 [?] | iti
| tathāśvinaśastre 'py etat sūktam | prātaranuvākanyāyena | ā.
6-5 [?] | ity atidiṣṭatvāt |*

1. large Kannada title line at the head of p. 30: "nalavattettaneyā sūktavu"

2. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; the words marked [?] are crowded

Translation ³: "'Saha vāmena' is the fifth sūkta, of sixteen ṛks. The ṛṣi is Praskaṇva. The odd ṛks are Bṛhatī, the even ṛks Satobṛhatī [? the opening words are crowded]. The deity is Uṣas. The Anukramaṇikā here: 'saha ṣoḍaśoṣasyam' [?]. In the Prātaranuvāka, at the Uṣasya rite, this sūkta is [used] in the Bārghata metre; it is prescribed in the section 'athoṣasya': 'praty u adarśi, saha vāmena, the Bārghata' (Āśv. 4-14 [?]). Likewise, this sūkta is [used] in the Āśvina-śāstra by the rule of the Prātaranuvāka, as it is extended there (Āśv. 6-5 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada), p. 30 — "The sūkta beginning saha vāmena is the fifth sūkta in the ninth anuvāka. It has sixteen ṛks. The ṛṣi of this sūkta is Praskaṇva, the son of Kaṇva. The odd-numbered ṛks of this sūkta, 1, 3, 5 and so on, are in the Bṛhatī metre; the even-numbered ṛks, 2, 4, 6 and so on, are in the Satobṛhatī metre. The deity is Uṣas. The Anukramaṇikā's 'saha ṣoḍaśoṣasyam' gives the description of the ṛṣi, deity and metre. At the time of reciting the Prātaranuvāka mantras, the ṛks of this sūkta are used as the mantras in Bṛhatī metre connected with the Uṣasya rite. This is explained in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta-sūtra, in the section beginning 'athoṣasya', by the sūtra 'praty u adarśi saha vāmeneti' (Ā. 4-14 [?]). Besides, it is said in the same place (Ā. 6-5) that this sūkta is used for the Śāstra mantras of the Āśvins at the time of reciting the Prātaranuvāka mantras."

॥ ॐ ॥

सूक्त — ४८

॥ मण्डल — १ ॥ अनुवाक — ९ ॥ सूक्त — ४८ ॥ ॥ अष्टक — १ ॥ अध्याय — ४ ॥
वर्ग — ३, ४, ५ ॥ ॥ सूक्तदल्लिरुव ऋक्संख्यै — १६ ॥ ॥ ऋषिः — प्रस्कण्वः काण्वः ॥
॥ देवता — उषाः ॥ ॥ छन्दः — प्राग्गाथं बार्हतं । १, ३, ५, ७, ९, ११, १३, १५ बृहती । २, ४, ६, ८, १०, १२, १४, १६ सतोबृहती ॥

3. editorial and tentative; the clause on metre and the Anukramaṇikā words are crowded

sūkta 48 | maṇḍala 1 | anuvāka 9 | aṣṭaka 1 | adhyāya 4 | varga 3, 4, 5 | ṛks 16 | ṛṣi: Praskaṇva Kāṇva | devatā: Uṣas | chandas: Prāgātha-Bārḥata — Riks 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, 11, 13, 15 Bṛhatī; Riks 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14, 16 Satobṛhatī. ⁴

original pp. 30–34

Rik 1

Samhitā-pāṭha ⁵

सह वामेन न उषो व्युच्छा दुहितर्दिवः । सह द्युम्नेन बृहता विभावरि राया देवि दास्वती ॥ १ ॥

saha vāmena na uṣo vyucchā duhitar divaḥ | saha dyumnena
bṛhatā vibhāvari rāyā devi dāsvatī || 1 || ⁶

Pada-pāṭha

सह । वामेन । नः । उषः । वि । उच्छ । दुहितः । दिवः । सह । द्युम्नेन । बृहता । विभावरि । राया । देवि । दास्वती ॥ १ ॥

saha | vāmena | naḥ | uṣaḥ | vi | uccha | duhitaḥ | divaḥ | saha |
dyumnena | bṛhatā | vibhāvari | rāyā | devi | dāsvatī || 1 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे दुहितर्दिवो द्युदेवतायाः पुत्रि उष उषःकालदेवते नोऽस्मदर्थं वामेन धनेन सह व्युच्छ
। प्रभातं कुरु । हे विभावयुषोदेवते बृहता प्रभूतेन द्युम्नेनान्नेन सह व्युच्छ । हे देवि
त्वं दास्वती दानयुक्ता सती राया पशुलक्षणेन धनेन सह व्युच्छ ॥ उच्छ । उच्छी विवासे । दुहितर्दिवः । सुबामन्त्रिते परांगवत्स्वर इत्यत्र परमपि छन्दसि । पा.
२-१-२-६ [?] । इति वचनात् दिव इत्यस्य पूर्वाङ्गवद्भावे सत्यामन्त्रितस्य चेति
षष्ठ्यामन्त्रितसमुदायस्याष्टमिकं सर्वानुदात्तत्वं । बृहता । बृहन्महतोरुपसंख्यानमिति

4. The varga numerals are small and read with doubt. In the Kannada anuvāda the print lists the first group as "1, 3, 5, ..." and the second as "2 [printed like 3], 4, 6, ...".

5. accents not reproduced

6. The print has vyucchā with a long ā in the Samhitā, and the Pada vi | uccha; Both are given as printed.

विभक्तेरुदात्तत्वं । विभावरी । भा दीप्तौ । आतो मनिन्क्वनिब्वनिपश्च इत्यादिना
 वनिप् । वनो र च इति डीप् । तत्सन्नियोगेन नकारस्य रेफादेशः । सम्बुद्धौ ह्रस्वत्वं
 । दास्वती । डुदाञ् दाने । भावेऽसुन्प्रत्ययः । तदस्यास्ति । पा. ५-२-९४ [?] । इति
 दास्वती । मादुपधायाः इति मतुपो वत्त्वं । उगितश्चेति डीप् ॥

*he duhitar divo dyudevatāyāḥ putri uṣa uṣaḥkāladevate no
 'smadartham vāmena dhanena saha vyuccha | prabhātāṃ kuru | he vibhāvary uṣodevate br̥hatā prabhūtena dyumnennānnena saha vyuccha | he devi tvam dāsvatī dānayuktā satī rāyā paśulakṣaṇena dhanena saha vyuccha || uccha | uchī vivāse | duhitar divaḥ | subāmantrite parāṅgavat svara ity atra param api chandasi | pā.
 2-1-2-6 [?] | iti vacanād diva ity asya pūrvāṅgavadbhāve satyāmantritasya ceti ṣaṣṭhyāmantritasamudāyasyāṣṭamikaṃ sarvānudāttatvam | br̥hatā | br̥hanmahator upasaṃkhyānam iti vibhakter udāttatvam | vibhāvary | bhā dīptau | āto manin kvanib vanipāś ca ity ādinā vanip | vano ra ca iti nīp | tatsanniyogena nakārasya rephādeśaḥ | sambuddhau hrasvatvam | dāsvatī | ḍudāñ dāne | bhāve 'sun pratyayaḥ | tad asyāsti | pā. 5-2-94 [?] |
 iti dāsvatī | mādupadhāyāḥ iti matupo vatvam | ugitaś ceti nīp | |*

7

Translation: "O duhitar divaḥ, daughter of the heavenly deity, O Uṣas, goddess of the time of dawn, naḥ, for us, vāmena, with wealth, saha vyuccha, dawn: make the break of day. O vibhāvary, O Uṣas, with br̥hatā dyumnena, abundant food, dawn. O devi, you, dāsvatī, being generous, rāyā, with wealth in the form of cattle, dawn. Uccha: root uchī vivāse. Duhitar divaḥ: by the statement that, in the Chandas, even a following word counts as a preceding part for accent (Pā. 2-1-2 vārttika [?]), divaḥ acts as a preceding part, and the genitive-and-vocative group gets the all-unaccented of the eighth chapter. Br̥hatā: the case-ending is acute by br̥hanmahator upasaṃkhyānam. Vibhāvary: root bhā dīptau; vanip

7. The print has rāyo where the Saṃhitā has rāyā in the bhāṣya's "rāyo paśulakṣaṇena": taken as a misprint; and "nakārasya rephādeśaḥ" is the reading of "rephādeśaḥ" [?].

by āto manin...; nīp by vano ra ca, with r for n; shortened in the vocative. Dāsvatī: root ḍudāñ dāne; asun in the abstract sense; matup ('he has it'), the v for m; nīp by ugitaś ca."

Pratipadārtha — "duhitar divaḥ — O Uṣas, daughter of the deity of heaven; naḥ — for us; vāmena saha — with wealth; vyuccha — dawn; vibhāvāri — O Uṣas, who spread radiance; bṛhatā — abundant; dyumnena saha — with food (dawn); devī — O goddess; dāsvatī — being endowed with giving; rāyā — with wealth in the form of cattle (dawn)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, daughter of heaven, dawn upon us with wealth. O Uṣas, who spread radiance, dawn with abundant food. O goddess, being generous, dawn with wealth in the form of cattle and the like."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 31)

— "O Ushas, daughter of heaven, dawn upon us with riches ; O brilliant goddess dawn upon us with abundant food ; bountiful goddess, dawn upon us with wealth (of cattle)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), pp. 32–33 - "The deity of this sūkta is the time of dawn, or the deity who presides over the time of dawn. In the Ṛgveda there are about twenty sūktas that have the Uṣas deity. All of these are sūktas of the highest class: in description, in the joining of words and in the treatment of the subject they are of great importance. The brightness that arises when night is over and before the Sun rises is the time of dawn. That time of dawn must have given great delight to the sages and the people of that time. Therefore they described the time of dawn very well. In general, the time of dawn is imagined as a woman with a body, and the qualities and the ornaments of that deity are variously described. Since light comes to us from the atmosphere, it is natural that the dawn should be described as duhitā divaḥ, 'the daughter of the atmosphere, or of heaven'. Since this deity rises every day, she is described in various ways: as a young woman ever new and not past her youth; as one who, as the days pass, reduces men's lifespan; as one who, as soon as she rises, gives joy to all beings; as one who, on rising, drives away the night-wandering Rākṣasas, Piśācas and the like; as the mother of the cows, because in the morning she makes light and causes the cows to come out from the stalls; and, because at sunrise the Sun's rays are slightly red, as one who travels swiftly seated in a chariot to which red horses or bulls are yoked." - On the derivation of the word uṣas the great sage Yāska's explanation is as follows (untranslated in the source; reference "Ni. 2-1[?]9" as read):

उषाः कस्मादुच्छतीति सत्या रात्रेरपरः कालः ॥ (Ni. 2-[?] as read [?])

uṣāḥ kasmād ucchatīti satyā rātrēr aparāḥ kālaḥ || — editorial and tentative: "Why is uṣas so called? Because (she) ucchati (dispels); truly she is the later time of the night."

The Kannada author gives Yāska's fuller wording: "How does the word uṣas arise? 'Ucchatīti satyāḥ, uchī vivāse; vivāsayati hīyaṃ tamāṃsi, tasmād ucchatīty enām asyā uṣā ity etad abhidhānaṃ bhavati. punar iṣu mukhā? rātrēr aparāḥ kālaḥ.'" (Ni. 2-[?] as read; Sanskrit as printed, crowded [?]) — उच्छतीति सत्याः उछी विवासे । विवासयति ह्ययं तमांसि तस्मादुच्छतीत्येनमस्या उषा इत्येतदभिधानं भवति । पुनरिषुमुखा ? रात्रेरपरः कालः — ucchatīti satyāḥ | uchī vivāse | vivāsayati hy ayaṃ tamāṃsi | tasmād ucchatīty enam asyā uṣā ity etad abhidhānaṃ bhavati | punar iṣumukhā | rātrēr aparāḥ kālaḥ — editorial and tentative, doubtful: "'She dawns' (ucchati) for the true (satyā): uchī in the sense of 'to drive away'; for she drives away the darknesses; therefore, as she drives away (ucchati), this name 'uṣā' is given to her. Again, whose face is toward the arrow? [crowded] — the later time of the night." The Kannada author explains: "The word uṣas arises from the root uchī, which means 'to put out'. What is put out? Darkness. Because she gives light by putting out darkness, this deity is named uṣas. Who is this deity? She is the last part of the night, that is, the time when, the night being over, the light spreads before the rising of the Sun. This is called 'rātrēr aparāḥ kālah'. Yāska states another sense in another place in his Nirukta:" — untranslated in the source:

उषाः वष्टेः कान्तिकर्मण उच्छतेरितरा माध्यमिका ॥ (Ni. 1[?]-2[?] as read [?])

uṣāḥ vaṣṭeḥ kāntikarmaṇa ucchater itarā mādhyamikā || — editorial and tentative: "Uṣas from vaṣṭi (the root vaś), 'to shine, to desire'; from ucchati [it is] the other, the middle-region one." The Kannada author explains: "that is, the word uṣas arises from the root vaśa kāntau; because it gives light, this deity is named uṣas (as against the sense of 'putting out darkness' given by the root uchī, the derivation from uchī is to be said to be mādhyamika, optional)." - "These sages describe this Uṣas deity in many ways: as the dearest of the Sun — since she is born after the night has gone and the light comes — as the daughter of the night, as the sister of the Ādityas, Bhaga and Varuṇa, as the daughter of heaven, as the friend of the Aśvin gods, and with other epithets." - duhitar divaḥ — "daughter of heaven or of the atmosphere. Since the Sun's light reaches us from the atmosphere (heaven), and since the time of dawn exists as a forerunner of the Sun's rising, the goddess Uṣas is called duhitā divaḥ, 'daughter of heaven'" ⁸. - dyumnam — (untranslated in the source; reference "Ni. 5-[?]" as read)

द्युम्नं द्योततेर्यशो वा अन्नं वा ॥ (Ni. 5-[?] as read [?])

dyumnaṁ dyotater yaśo vā annaṁ vā || — editorial and tentative: "dyumna (is from) dyotati, 'it shines': fame, or food." "The word dyumna has many meanings: fame or food. In this ṛk the commentator has accepted the sense of food. And since the word dyumna is read among the twenty-eight [?] names for wealth beginning maghaṁ, rekṇaḥ (Ni. 2-[?] as read), dyumna may also mean wealth." - vibhāvarī — "since vibhāvarī is read among the sixteen names of Uṣas beginning vibhāvarī, sūnarī, bhāsvatī (Ni. 1- [?]9 as read), vibhāvarī means the goddess Uṣas." - dāsvatī — "dānayuktā; root ḍudāñ dāne: she who gives; one who gives food, wealth and the like."

8. the source adds in English: "daughter of heaven"

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁹ - uccha: root uchī vivāse, bhvādi; used generally with the prefix vi before it; vivāsa means "completion", an end; śap; for the second-person singular sip → hi by loṭ; hi's dropping after an a-ending stem: so uccha. - duhitar divaḥ: subāmantrite parāṅgavat svare (Pā. 2-1-2 as read [?]) — when accent is being determined, a vocative subanta standing before another word is treated as part of that following word; on this sūtra the vārttika "param api chandasi pūrvāṅgavat" (Pā. 2-1-2 vārttika, as read "2-1-2-6" [?]) has been begun: "in the Chandas, even a following word is treated as a preceding part"; following it, here duhitaḥ is a vocative before; the vocative of the first case is called āmantrita; so divaḥ, though standing after, acquires the nature of a preceding part; since duhitaḥ is a part, duhitar divaḥ becomes a single vocative; then āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19 as read) gives the all-unaccented to the vocative group, which stands within the pāda and not at its head. - br̥hatā: after br̥hat, the instrumental singular ṭā; the case-ending should be acute by the rule on case-endings; by the vārttika br̥hanmahator upasaṃkhyānam (as printed) the case-ending after br̥hat is acute. - vibhāvarī: root bhā dīptau, adādi; ato manin kvanib vanipaś ca (Pā. 3-2-74 as read [?]) — whether the word be a subanta or a prefix standing as upapada, the suffixes manin etc. come after a root ending in a in the Chandas; here, the prefix vi being upapada (a word pronounced near is called upapada), vanip after bhā: vibhāvan, a stem in n; vano ra ca (Pā. 4-1-7 as read) — nīp after a stem ending in van [or vana], and r in place of n: vibhāvarī; yū strī ākhyau nadī (Pā. 1-4-3 as read) gives the name nadī; ambārthanadyor hrasvaḥ (Pā. 7-3-107 as read) shortens a nadī-

ending stem in the vocative; eñhrasvāt sambuddheḥ (Pā. 6-1-69 as read) drops su after a short-ending word in the vocative: vibhāvari. - dāsvatī: root ḍudāñ dāne, juhotyādi; sarvadhātubhyo 'sun (Uṇ. 4-[?]8 as read [?]) gives asun in the abstract sense; the stem dāsas, ending in s; "dāḥ = dānam asyāsti" — tadasyāstyasminniti matup (Pā. 5-2-94 as read [?]) gives matup; dās + matup; mādupadhāyās ca matoḥ vo 'yavādibhyaḥ (Pā. 8-2-9 as read [?]) — because an a is the penultimate, the m of matup becomes v: dāsvat; when the feminine is intended, ugitaś ca (Pā. 4-1-6 as read) gives nīp to a prātipadika ending in an ugit-suffix (uk is a marker in matup, so it is ugit): dāsvatī. || 1 ||

original p. 35

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

अश्वावतीर्गोमतीर्विश्वसुविदो भूरि च्यवन्त वस्तवे । उदीरय प्रति मा सूनृता उषश्चोद राधो मघोनाम् ॥ २ ॥

*aśvāvatīr gomatīr viśvasuvido bhūri cyavanta vastave | ud īraya
prati mā sūnṛtā uṣaś coda rādho maghonām || 2 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अश्वऽवतीः । गोऽमतीः । विश्वऽसुविदः । भूरि । च्यवन्त । वस्तवे । उत् । ईरय । प्रति । मा । सूनृताः । उषः । चोद । राधः । मघोनाम् ॥ २ ॥

*aśva-vatīḥ | go-matīḥ | viśva-suvidaḥ | bhūri | cyavanta | vastave
| ut | īraya | prati | mā | sūnṛtāḥ | uṣaḥ | coda | rādhaḥ | maghonām || 2 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अश्वावतीरश्चैरुपेता गोमतीर्बहुभिर्गोभिर्युक्ता विश्वसुविदः कृत्स्नस्य धनस्य सुष्ठु
लम्भयिष्य उषोदेवता वस्तवे प्रजानां निवासाय भूरि प्रभूतं यथा भवति तथा च्यवन्त
। प्राप्ताः । हे उषोदेवते मा प्रति मामुद्दिश्य सूनृताः प्रियहितवाचा उदीरय । ब्रूहि ।

मघोनां धनवतां सम्बन्धि राधो धनं चोद । अस्मदर्थं प्रेरय ॥ अश्वावतीः । मन्त्रे
 सोमाश्चेन्द्रियविश्वदेव्यस्य मतौ । पा. ६-३-१३१ [?] । इति पूर्वपदस्य दीर्घत्वं । वा
 छन्दसीति पूर्वसवर्णदीर्घनिषेधस्य पाक्षिकस्योक्तेः पूर्वसवर्णदीर्घत्वं । च्यवन्त । च्युङ्
 गतौ । लङि बहुलं छन्दस्यमाङ्ग्योगेऽपीत्यङभावः । वस्तवे । वस निवासे । तुमर्थे
 सेसेनिति तवेन्द्रप्रत्ययः । नित्त्वादाद्युदात्तत्वं । ईरय । ईर गतौ कम्पने च । हेतुमति
 णिच् । चोद । चुद सञ्चोदने चौरादिकः । लोटि छन्दस्युभयथेति कप
 आर्धधातुकत्वात् णोरनितीति णिलोपः । शपः पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे धातुस्वरः । पादादित्वान्निघाताभावः । मघोनां । षष्ठीबहुवचने श्रयुवमघोनामतद्धिते । पा.
 ६-४-१३३ [?] । इति संप्रसारणं ॥ *aśvāvatīr aśvair upetā gomatīr bahubhir gobhir yuktā viśvasuvidāḥ kṛtsnasya dhanasya suṣṭhu lambhayitryā uṣodevatā vastave prajānāṃ nivāsāya bhūri prabhūtaṃ yathā bhavati tathā cyavanta | prāptāḥ | he uṣodevate mā prati mām uddīśya sūnṛtāḥ priyahitavācā udīraya | brūhi | maghonāṃ dhanavatāṃ sambandhi rādho dhanam coda | asmadarthaṃ preraya ||

 aśvāvatīḥ | mantre somāśvendriyaviśvadevyasya matau | pā.
 6-3-131 [?] | iti pūrvapadasya dīrghatvaṃ | vā chandasīti pūrvasavarṇadīrghaniṣedhasya pākṣikasyokteḥ pūrvasavarṇadīrghatvaṃ | cyavanta | cyuṅ gatau | laṇi bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pīty aḍabhāvaḥ | vastave | vasa nivāse |
 tumarthe sesen iti tavenpratyayaḥ | nittvād ādyudāttatvaṃ | īraya
 | īra gatau kampane ca | hetumati ṇic | coda | cuda sañcodane caurādikaḥ | loṭi chandasy ubhayatheti kapa ārdhadhātukatvaṃ
 ṇer aniti ṇilopaḥ | śapaḥ pīttvād anudāttatve dhātusvaraḥ |
 pādādittvān nighātābhāvaḥ | maghonāṃ | ṣaṣṭhībahuvacane
 śvayuvamaghonām ataddhite | pā. 6-4-133 [?] | iti
 samprasāraṇam || ¹⁰*

Translation: "Aśvāvatīḥ, furnished with horses, gomatīḥ, joined with many cows, viśvasuvidāḥ, who well procure all wealth — the dawns, the goddess Uṣas in many forms — vastave, for the dwelling of the people, bhūri, abundantly, cyavanta, have arrived. O goddess Uṣas, mā prati, turning to me, sūnṛtāḥ, kind and beneficial words, ud īraya, utter, speak; maghonām, of those who have wealth, rādhaḥ, the wealth, coda, send, impel for us. Aśvavatīḥ: the first member is lengthened by 'in a mantra, before mati' (Pā. 6-3-131 [?]); since the prohibition of the homogeneous lengthening is optional in the Chandas, the lengthening is allowed. Cyavanta: root cyuñ gatau; in the imperfect the aṭ does not come, by bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pi. Vastave: root vasa nivāse; tavenū; initial-acute because nit. Īraya: root īra gatau kampane ca; ñic in the causative. Coda: root cuda sañcodane, of the curādi class; in the imperative, ñi drops by ñer aniṭi because kap is an ārdhadhātuka; the root-accent; because it stands at the head of a pāda, no all-unaccented. Maghonām: saṃprasāraṇa in the genitive plural by śvayuvamaghonām ataddhite." ¹¹

Rik 48.2, continued ¹²

Pratipadārtha — "aśvavatīḥ — (abundantly) endowed with horses; gomatīḥ — (in great numbers) possessing cows; viśvasuvidāḥ — the dawn-goddesses, worthy of favouring us by giving wealth of all kinds; vastave — for (the people's) dwelling-place; bhūri — very much (so that there is enough for all); cyavanta — have arrived; uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; mā prati — towards me (with me); sūnṛtāḥ — pleasant and beneficial words; udīraya — speak; maghonām — belonging to the wealthy; rādhaḥ — wealth; coda — send (make it come to us)."

Bhāvārtha

— "The deities of the time of dawn, in the form of horses and in the form of cows, possess wealth in abundance. They have the riches that are enough for the dwelling-place of all people. They are fit to favour the people with wealth of every kind. O goddess Uṣas, speak words that are pleasant and beneficial to me. Make the wealth that belongs to the wealthy come to us as well."

10. The print reads "somāścendriya..." in the first rule-name; "somāśvendriya..." is given [?]. The sentence "ñer aniṭi" is the print's "ñerani..."; the second pāda of "coda" crowded.

English Translation (the source's own, p. 36)

— "Ushases, rich in horses, rich in cows, procurers of all wealth have many times dawned and passed away. Ushas, speak to me kind words and send us the affluence [sic: "affluence"] of the wealthy."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 36–37 - "In the first half of this ṛk the plural words aśvāvatīḥ, gomatīḥ, viśvasuvidaḥ have been used as epithets of the goddess Uṣas. Since the time of dawn arrives every day, the ṛṣi has imagined the Uṣas deity as many deities and praises her. In the second half of the ṛk the goddess Uṣas is addressed in the singular." - aśvāvatīḥ, gomatīḥ, viśvasuvidaḥ — "those who possess horses and the like; that is, those who give horses, cows and wealth. The chief idea is that the praisers should be given horses and the like and that kind words should be spoken about them, and that wealth should be given to him [the poet] as it is among the wealthy." - cyavanta — "cyuñ gatau: they have obtained, they have joined." - vastave — "vasa nivāse: for dwelling-places; that is, 'make us obtain dwelling-places such as houses': this is the idea." - coda — "preraya: send, favour." - maghonām — "magha means wealth. The idea of the ṛṣi is: favour us, too, with the wealth that is natural among the wealthy, and make us wealthy."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā¹³ - aśvāvatīḥ: matup is added in the sense "of whom there are horses"; because it follows an a-ending stem, mādupadhāyās ca... gives v for the m; ñīp by ugitās ca when the feminine is meant; aśvavatī; mantrē somāśvendriyaviśvadevyasya

11. The Pratipadārtha, Bhāvārtha, English, Special Topics and grammar of Rik 2 begin on p. 36, not yet written.

12. from p. 36

13. pp. 37–38 — grammar pages, noted briefly

matau (Pā. 6-3-131 as read [?]) — the first member is lengthened before matup in a mantra in the words soma, aśva, indriya, viśvadevya: aśvāvātī. In the nominative plural, jas: prathamayoḥ pūrvasavarṇaḥ (Pā. 6-1-102 as read) would give the homogeneous lengthening; dīrghāj jasi ca (Pā. 6-1-105 as read) forbids it after a long vowel when jas or ic follows: aśvāvatyah would be expected; but vā chandasī (Pā. 6-1-106 as read) makes that optional in the Chandas, so here the homogeneous lengthening occurs: aśvāvātīḥ. - cyavanta: root cyuñ gatau, bhvādi; lañ, third person plural; jha → anta (jho 'ntaḥ); śap; aṭ would come to a root before lañ; but bahulaṃ chandasy amāñyoge 'pi (Pā. 6-4-75 as read [?]) — in the Chandas, aṭ and āṭ do not come even without mā; so here no aṭ; guṇa before śap, av, pararūpa. - vastave: root vasa nivāse, bhvādi; for a root denoting "for the sake of an action" tumun would come; tumarthe sesenasen... (Pā. 3-4-9 as read) gives tavenū; the n of tavenū is a marker; ñnityādir nityam (Pā. 6-1-197 as read) gives the initial acute. - īraya: root īra gatau kampane ca, adādi; hetumati ca (Pā. 3-1-26 as read) — the agent's inciting, feeding and so on is "cause"; ñic, and since ñic is in the list sanādi, the ñijanta gets dhātu-status (sanādyantā dhātavaḥ); loṭ, second person singular sip, śap before it, hi for sip, dropped after an a-ending: īra + a, guṇa, ay. - coda: root cuda sañcodane, curādi; satyāpapāśarūpaviñātūlaślokaśenāmatvacavarmavarṇacūrṇacurādibhyo ñic (Pā. 3-1-25 as read) gives ñic in the same sense; guṇa of the light penultimate; sip, hi; śap after the ñijanta; choda + a + hi; the hi drops after an a-ending stem; chandasy ubhayathā (Pā. 3-4-117 as read) — suffixes enjoined in the chapter on roots bear both the name sārvadhātuka and ārdhadhātuka in the Chandas; so śap here is called ārdhadhātuka; then ñer aniṭi (Pā. 6-4-51 as read) drops ñi before an ārdhadhātuka that is not iṭ-beginning; the a of śap is added: coda; śap is pīṭ and unaccented by anudāttau suppitau, and the root-accent (end-acute) remains; tiñ atinaḥ would give the all-unaccented, but, apādātau forbids it, as the word is at the head of the pāda, so it does not come. - maghonām:

given by nipātana in śvanukṣann... (Uṇ. 1-[?]56 as read [?]): after the word maha, the suffix kvanip and the augment a [as printed: "aāgama"], the h becoming gh in another śāstra, are all given by nipātana; then in the genitive plural, magha-van + ām; śvayuvamaghonām ataddhite (Pā. 6-4-133 as read) — saṃprasāraṇa for the aṅgas śvan, yuvan, maghavan, ending in an and having the bha-name, when a non-taddhita suffix beginning with a vowel follows; yaci bham gives the bha-name; igyaṇaḥ saṃprasāraṇam — the ik standing in place of yaṇ; va of maghavan becomes u; saṃprasāraṇāc ca (Pā. 6-1-108 as read) gives pūrvarūpa to the vowel after: magha + u + n + ām; guṇa and the like give the form stated. || 2 ||

original pp. 38–42

Rik 3

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

उवासोषा उच्छाच्च नु देवी जीरा रथानाम् । ये अस्या आचरणेषु दध्निरे समुद्रे न श्रवस्यवः ॥ ३ ॥

uvāsoṣā ucchāc ca nu devī jīrā rathānām | ye asyā ācaraṇeṣu dadhrire samudre na śravasyavaḥ || 3 ||

Pada-pāṭha

उवास । उषाः । उच्छात् । च । नु । देवी । जीरा । रथानाम् । ये । अस्याः । आऽचरणेषु । दध्निरे । समुद्रे । न । श्रवस्यवः ॥ ३ ॥

uvāsa | uṣāḥ | ucchāt | ca | nu | devī | jīrā | rathānām | ye | asyāḥ | ā-caraṇeṣu | dadhrire | samudre | na | śravasyavaḥ || 3 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

उषा देव्युवास । पुरा निवासमकरोत् । प्रभातं कृतवतीत्यर्थः । च नु अद्याप्युच्छात् ।
 व्युच्छति । प्रभातं करोति । कीदृशी देवी । रथानां जीरा प्रेरयित्री । उषःकाले हि
 रथाः प्रेर्यन्ते । अस्या उषस आचरणेष्वगमनेषु ये रथा दध्निरे धृताः सज्जीकृता
 भवन्ति तेषां रथानामिति पूर्वत्रान्वयः । रथप्रेरणे दृष्टान्तः । श्रवस्यवो धनकामाः
 समुद्रे न । यथा समुद्रमध्ये नावः सज्जीकृत्य प्रेरयन्ति तद्वत् ॥ उवास । वस निवासे
 । णलि लिट्यभ्यासस्योभयेषां । पा. ६-१-१७ । इत्यभ्यासस्य संप्रसारणं ।
 लिट्स्वरेण प्रत्ययात्पूर्वस्योदात्तत्वं । उच्छात् । लेट्यडागमः । इतश्च लोप
 इतीकारलोपः । तुदादित्वाच्छप्रत्ययः । आगमानुदात्तत्वे प्रत्ययस्वरः । उषा इत्यस्य
 वाक्यान्तरगतत्वात्तदपेक्षयास्य निघातो न भवति । समानवाक्ये
 निघातयुष्मदस्मदादेशा वक्तव्याः । पा. ८-१-१८-३ [?] । इति वचनात् । जीरा । जु
 इति गत्यर्थः सौत्रो धातुः । जोरी च । उ. २-२४ [?] । इति रक्प्रत्ययः । अस्याः ।
 इदमोऽन्वादेश इत्येशादेशोऽनुदात्तः । विभक्तिरपि सुप्त्वादेनुदात्तेति सर्वानुदात्तत्वं ।
 आचरणेषु । चर गत्यर्थः । ल्युट् च । पा. ३-३-११३ । इति भावे ल्युट् । लिट्स्वरेण
 प्रत्ययात्पूर्वस्योदात्तत्वं । कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं । दध्निरे । धृङ् अवस्थाने । लिटः
 किच्त्वाद्गुणाभावे यणादेशः । चित्त्वादन्तोदात्तत्वं । यद्वृत्तयोगादनिघातः । श्रवस्यवः
 । श्रूयत इति श्रवो धनं । असुन् । तदात्मन इच्छन्तीति श्रवस्यवः । सुप आत्मनः क्यच् । क्यच्छन्दसीत्युप्रत्ययः ॥

uṣā devy uvāsa | purā nivāsam akarot | prabhātaṁ kṛtavatīty
 arthaḥ | ca nu adyāpy ucchāt | vyucchati | prabhātaṁ karoti |
 kīdṛśī devī | rathānāṁ jīrā prerayitrī | uṣaḥkāle hi rathāḥ
 preryante | asyā uṣasa ācaraṇeṣv āgamaneṣu ye rathā dadhrire dhṛtāḥ sajjīkṛtā bhavanti teṣāṁ rathānāṁ iti pūrvatrānvayaḥ |
 rathaprerāṇe dṛṣṭāntaḥ | śravasyavo dhanakāmāḥ samudre na |
 yathā samudramadhye nāvaḥ sajjīkṛtya prerayanti tadvat | | uvāsa
 | vasa nivāse | ṇali liṭy abhyāsasyobhayeṣāṁ | pā. 6-1-17 | ity abhyāsasya saṁprasāraṇaṁ | litṣvareṇa pratyayāt
 pūrvasyodāttatvaṁ | ucchāt | leṭy aḍāgamaḥ | itaś ca lopa itikāralopaḥ | tudādittvāc chapratyayaḥ | āgamānudāttatve
 pratyayasvaraḥ | uṣā ity asya vākyaāntaragatatvāt tadapekṣayāsyā
 nighāto na bhavati | samānavākye nighātayuşmadasmadādeśā
 vaktavyāḥ | pā. 8-1-18-3 [?] | iti vacanāt | jīrā | ju iti gatyarthaḥ
 sautro dhātuḥ | jorī ca | u. 2-24 [?] | iti rakpratyayaḥ | asyāḥ |

*idamo 'nvādeśa ity eśādeśo 'nudāttah | vibhaktir api suptvād
 enudātteti sarvānudāttatvaṃ | ācaraṇeṣu | cara gatyarthaḥ | lyuṭ
 ca | pā. 3-3-113 | iti bhāve lyuṭ | litsvareṇa pratyayāt
 pūrvasyodāttatvaṃ | kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ | dadhrire |
 dhṛi avasthāne | liṭaḥ kittvād guṇābhāve yañādeśaḥ | cittvād antodāttatvaṃ | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ | śravasyavaḥ |
 śrūyata iti śravo dhanam | asun | tad ātmana icchantīti
 śravasyavaḥ | supa ātmanaḥ kyac | kyāc chandasīty upratyayaḥ
 || ¹⁴*

Translation: "The goddess Uṣas uvāsa, dwelt before — meaning she made the daybreak; ca nu, and now too, ucchāt, she dawns (vyucchati): she makes the daybreak. What kind of goddess? Rathānām jīrā, the impeller of chariots; for at the time of dawn chariots are set in motion. Asyāḥ ācaraṇeṣu, in the comings of this Uṣas, ye rathāḥ dadhrire, the chariots that are yoked, got ready — of those chariots: so it is connected with the earlier part. A comparison on the setting in motion of chariots: śravasyavaḥ, those who desire wealth, samudre na, as they get ships ready in the middle of the sea and set them in motion — so (does she). Uvāsa: root vasa nivāse, ṇal in liṭ; saṃprasāraṇa of the reduplicative syllable by liṭy abhyāsasyobhayeṣām (Pā. 6-1-17); the acute before the suffix by lit-accent. Ucchāt: the aṭ of leṭ; the i drops by itaś ca lopah; śa because the root is of the tudādi class; since the augment is unaccented, the suffix-accent comes; because uṣāḥ is in another sentence, this verb is not unaccented in relation to it; in one sentence the all-unaccented and the substitutes yuṣmad and asmad are to be said (Pā. 8-1-18 vārttika [?]). Jīrā: ju is a sautra root in the sense of going; the suffix rak by jorī ca (Uṇ. 2-24 [?]). Asyāḥ: eś for idam in the anvādeśa, unaccented; the case-ending is also unaccented, so all-unaccented. Ācaraṇeṣu: root cara gatyarthaḥ; lyuṭ ca (Pā. 3-3-113),

14. The first words "uṣā devy uvāsa" appear with the word "devī" as in the Pada; two Pāṇini numbers, the Uṇādi number and the reading "supto 'dvenudātteti" [print: "suptvādenudātteti"] are crowded [?].

lyuṭ in the abstract sense; the acute before the suffix by lit-accent; the accent of a second member that ends in a kṛt. Dadhrire: root dhṛ̥ avasthāne; because liṭ is kit, there is no guṇa and yaṇ comes; because the suffix is cit, end-acute; because of the yad-connexion, no all-unaccented. Śravasyavaḥ: śrūyate, 'what is heard' is śravas, wealth; asun; 'they who desire that for themselves'; kyac after a sup in the sense of 'for oneself'; the Vedic u-suffix after kya."

Pratipadārtha — "śravasyavaḥ — those who desire wealth; samudre na — as, in the middle of the sea, ships are set going; asyāḥ — of this Uṣas; ācaraṇeṣu — at the times of coming; ye — which chariots; dadhrire — are yoked to horses and made ready for travel; rathānām — of those chariots; jīrā — the impeller; uṣāḥ devī — the goddess Uṣas of divine form; uvāsa — has made her dwelling (has also risen before and made the daybreak); ca nu — even now too; ucchāt — rises and makes the daybreak."

Bhāvārtha

— "As those who desire wealth fit out ships in the middle of the sea and set them going, so, at the times of the coming of the goddess Uṣas of divine form, chariots made ready for travel are set going. The goddess Uṣas, the impeller of those chariots, has risen before many times and made the daybreak. Even now she rises and makes the daybreak."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 40)

— "The divine Ushas dwelt (many times); may she dawn to-day, the propeller of chariots which are harnessed (with horses) at her coming, as those who are desirous of wealth send ships to sea."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 40 - uvāsoṣāḥ — "the goddess Uṣas (formerly) dwelt: that is, she has risen many times before. The idea is that she is rising even now and will rise hereafter too." - śravasyavaḥ — "śrūyate iti śravo dhanam: among the twenty-eight [?] names of wealth beginning magham, rekṇaḥ, the word śravaḥ is read (Ni. 2-[?] as read); so śravaḥ means wealth. 'Tad ātmana icchantīti śravasyavaḥ': those who desire wealth are called śravasyavaḥ."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁵ - uvāsa: root vasa nivāse, bhvādi, liṭ, third person singular; parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus... (Pā. 3-4-82 as read) gives ṇal for tip; liṭi dhātor anabhyāsasya (Pā. 6-1-8 as read) gives doubling: vas + vas + a; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ (Pā. 6-4-60 as read [?]) leaves only the first consonant of the first part; liṭy abhyāsasyobhayeṣām (Pā. 6-1-17 as read) gives saṃprasāraṇa to the reduplicative syllable of vacy- roots and grah- roots; vaci-svapi-yajādīnām includes vas, so saṃprasāraṇa of its reduplicative syllable; pūrvārūpa: u + vas + a; since the ṇ of ṇal is a marker, ata upadhāyāḥ (Pā. 7-2-116 as read) gives vṛddhi of the penultimate a: uvāsa. Ṇal is lit, so liti (Pā. 6-1-193 as read) gives the acute to the syllable before the suffix, i.e. the ā after v; anudāttam padam ekavarjam leaves the rest unaccented; and the ā standing after an acute becomes svarita. - ucchāt: root uchi vivāse, tudādi; being read in the bhvādi list it is generally taken with vi before it; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ (Pā. 3-1-77 as read) gives śa; leṭ, third person singular tip; with ti, the i drops by itaś ca lopāḥ parasmaipadeṣu (Pā. 3-4-97 as read); leṭo 'dāṭau (Pā. 3-4-94 as read) gives aṭ or āt; here aṭ; chec ca (Pā. 6-1-73 as read) gives tuk to a short vowel before ch; for it, ścutva gives c; since in ucchāt the śap is pit, it is unaccented; the āt which comes to leṭ is āgamā anudāttāḥ, unaccented; then ādyudāttaś ca (Pā. 3-1-3 as read) gives the initial acute of the suffix; so, end-acute, ucchāt. Samānavākye nighātayuşmadasmadādeśā vaktavyāḥ (Pā. 8-1-18 vārttika, as read "8-1-18-3" [?]) — "when in the same sentence": here, although a finite verb follows uṣāḥ, uṣāḥ belongs to a different sentence, and ucchāt has no connexion with it, so tiṇ atīnaḥ does not give the all-unaccented. - jīrā: root ju gatau, not read in the bhvādi list but a sautra root denoting going, fixed only in the sūtras; jorī ca (Uṇ. 2-[?]4 as read [?]) gives the suffix rak; with rak, the root's vowel becomes ī; when the feminine is meant, ṭāp (since it ends in a); jīra + ā (the ā remaining after ṭāp): jīrā. - asyāḥ: after idam in the genitive singular (ñas): idamo 'nvādeśe śanudāttas tṛtīyātau (Pā. 2-4-32 as read) — in anvādeśa, idam has the unaccented substitute aś before the third and following case-endings; being pī, it replaces the whole; the feminine ṭāp; sarvanāmnaḥ syād hrasvaś ca (Pā. 7-3-114 as read) gives syāt to ñas after a pronoun ending in ā, and shortens; the case-ending is unaccented by anudāttau suppitau, and the aś substitute is unaccented: so asyāḥ is all-unaccented. - ācaraṇeṣu: root cara gatibhākṣaṇayoḥ, bhvādi; here in the sense of motion; lyuṭ ca (Pā. 3-3-115 as read [?]) — napuṃsake bhāve — the lyuṭ in the abstract sense in the neuter; yu → ana by yuvor anākau; āñ as a prefix; aṭkupvāñnumvyavāye 'pi (Pā. 8-4-2 as read) — ñ for n even when separated by aṭ, a ku-letter, pu-letter, āñ or num; ācaraṇa, in the locative plural supi ca: ācaraṇeṣu; lyuṭ is lit, so the syllable before it is acute (liti, Pā. 6-1-193); the a after c is acute; since caraṇa is a kṛdanta second member in a compound with a gati, gatikārakopapadāt kṛt (Pā. 6-2-139 as read) leaves the natural accent of the second member: ācaraṇeṣu. - dadhrīre: root dhṛñ avasthāne, divādi [as printed]; liṭ, third person plural jha → irec; doubling: dhṛ + dhṛ + ire; urat (Pā. 7-4-66 as read) gives a for the ṛ of the reduplicative syllable; with raparatva, halādiśeṣa leaves dha; abhyāsecarca gives da: dadhr + ire; when an ārdhadhātuka follows, guṇa would come, but asaṃyogāl liṭ kit (Pā. 1-2-5 as read) makes liṭ kit, and kñiti ca forbids guṇa; yaṇ: dadhrīre; irec is cīt, so by citaḥ (Pā. 6-1-163 as read) the end-acute; the yad in the earlier part (ye) is present, so tiñ atīnaḥ gives no all-unaccented. - śravyasyavaḥ: śrūyate iti śravaḥ dhanam; after śru, sarvadhātubhyo 'sun (Uṇ. 4-[?]8 as read [?]) gives asun; before asun, guṇa, and āv-substitution: śravas; "śravaḥ ātmanaḥ icchanti"; supa ātmanaḥ kyac (Pā. 3-1-8 as read) — kyac after a subanta that is the object of the wish, standing in the sense of

"wishes for himself", when the agent of the wish is the same; kyac gets the dhātu-name by sanādyantā dhātavaḥ; kyāc chandasī (Pā. 3-2-170 as read) gives u after a kyac-ending root in the Chandas, after tācchīlya and the rest; the word śravasya is kyajanta, so tācchīlya is intended; śravasya + u; ato lopah (Pā. 6-4-48 as read) drops the a: śravasyu, a stem in u; jas: śravasyavaḥ. || 3 ||

original p. 43

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

उषो ये ते प्र यामेषु युञ्जते मनो दानाय सूरयः । अत्राह तत्कण्व एषां कण्वतमो नाम गृणाति नृणाम् ॥ ४ ॥ *uṣo ye te pra yāmeṣu yuñjate mano dānāya sūrayaḥ | atrāha tat

kaṇva eṣāṃ kaṇvatamo nāma grṇāti nṛṇām || 4 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

उषः । ये । ते । प्र । यामेषु । युञ्जते । मनः । दानाय । सूरयः । अत्र । अह । तत् । कण्वः । एषाम् । कण्वतमः । नाम । गृणाति । नृणाम् ॥ ४ ॥

*uṣaḥ | ye | te | pra | yāmeṣu | yuñjate | manaḥ | dānāya |
sūrayaḥ | atra | aha | tat | kaṇvaḥ | eṣāṃ | kaṇva-tamaḥ | nāma
| grṇāti | nṛṇām || 4 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उषस्ते तव यामेषु गमनेषु सत्सु ये सूरयो विद्वांसो दानाभिज्ञा दानाय
धनादिदानार्थं मनः स्वकीयं प्र युञ्जते । प्रेरयन्ति । दानशीला उदाराः प्रभवः
प्रातःकाले दातुमिच्छन्तीत्यर्थः । एषां दातुमिच्छतां नृणां तन्नाम दानविषये
लोकप्रसिद्धं नाम कण्वतमोऽतिशयेन मेधावी कण्वो महर्षिरत्राहास्मिन्नेवोषःकाले
गृणाति । उच्चारयति । यो दातुमिच्छति यष्टा नामग्रहणेन दातारं प्रशंसति

तावुभावप्युषःकाल एव तथा कुरुत इत्युषसः स्तुतिः ॥ गृणाति । गृ शब्दे ।
 क्र्यादिकः । प्वादीनां ह्रस्व इति ह्रस्वत्वं । नृणां । नामि नृ च । पा. ६-४-६ । इति दीर्घप्रतिषेधः । नृ चान्यतरस्यां । पा. ६-१-१८४ । इति विभक्तेरुदात्तत्वम् ॥

*he uṣas te tava yāmeṣu gamaneṣu satsu ye sūrayo vidvāṃso dānābhijñā dānāya dhanādidānārthaṃ manaḥ svakīyaṃ pra yuñjate | prerayanti | dānaśilā udārāḥ prabhavaḥ prātaḥkāle
 dātum icchantīty arthaḥ | eṣāṃ dātum icchatām nṛṇāṃ tan nāma dānaviṣaye lokaprasiddhaṃ nāma kaṇvatamo 'tiśayena medhāvī kaṇvo maharṣir atrāhāsminn evoṣaḥkāle grṇāti | uccārayati | yo dātum icchati yaṣṭā nāmagrahaṇena dātāraṃ praśaṃsati tāv ubhāv apy uṣaḥkāla eva tathā kuruta ity uṣasaḥ stutiḥ || grṇāti |
 gr śabde | kryādikaḥ | pvādīnām hrasva iti hrasvatvaṃ | nṛṇām |
 nāmi nṛ ca | pā. 6-4-6 | iti dīrghapratishedhaḥ | nṛ cānyatarasyām
 | pā. 6-1-184 | iti vibhakter udāttatvam ||*

Translation: "O Uṣas, te yāmeṣu, while your goings are on, ye sūrayaḥ, the learned, those who know about giving, dānāya, for giving wealth and the like, manaḥ pra yuñjate, set their own mind on it — the meaning is that the generous, noble masters wish to give at the morning time. Of these men who wish to give, tat nāma, that name known in the world in the matter of giving, kaṇvatamaḥ, the greatly wise great sage kaṇvaḥ, atra aha, in this very time of dawn, grṇāti, utters. He who wishes to give, the sacrificer, praises the giver by taking the name — both do so at dawn: this is the praise of Uṣas. Grṇāti: root gr śabde, kryādi; shortening by pvādīnām hrasvaḥ. Nṛṇām: lengthening is forbidden by nāmi nṛ ca (Pā. 6-4-6); the case-ending is acute by nṛ cānyatarasyām (Pā. 6-1-184)."

Pratipadārtha — "uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; te — your; yāmeṣu — at your comings (at the time of dawn); ye sūrayaḥ — those masters who know the greatness of giving (the generous); dānāya — for giving (wealth and the like); manaḥ — their mind; prayuñjate — direct (wish to give); eṣāṃ nṛṇām — of such men (who wish to give); tat nāma — that name known in the world as givers; kaṇvatamaḥ — the exceedingly wise; kaṇvaḥ — the sage Kaṇva; atra aha — at this very time of dawn; grṇāti — utters (praises)." ¹⁶

Rik 48.4, continued ¹⁷

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, at the time of dawn, as soon as you rise, wise masters who know the greatness of giving wish to give. The wise sage Kaṇva praises the names of such generous men, known in the world as givers, at this very time of dawn. Thus the giving of the generous and the praise of these givers go on at the time of dawn. This is the power of the time of dawn."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 44)

— "Ushas, at your comings wise men turn their minds to free gifts ; of these men the most wise Kanwa proclaims the fame."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 44 - atra aha — "now, or at this time of dawn." - kaṇvatamaḥ — "atiśayena medhāvī: the very wise one among the Kaṇva line, or the sage Kaṇva." - "The sense of the ṛk is somewhat difficult. Even so, it is not at all hard to understand the ṛṣi's intention."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁸ - grṇāti: root gr śabde, kryādi; kryādibhyaḥ śnā (Pā. 3-1-81 as read) gives śnā as the vikaraṇa; third person singular tip; the vikaraṇa before a sārvadhātuka; gr + nā + ti; pvādīnām hrasvaḥ (Pā. 7-3-80 as read) shortens the root's vowel; rvarṇān nasya ṇatvaṃ vācyam (vārttika, as read) gives ṇ optionally for the n after r: grṇāti; tiṅ atiṅaḥ gives the all-unaccented, since a finite verb stands in the pāda's middle. - nṛṇām: the stem nṛ, masculine, ending in r; the genitive plural ām; hrasvanadyāpo nuṭ (Pā. 7-1-54 as read) gives nuṭ to ām after a 16. The Bhāvārtha, English, Special Topics and grammar of Rik 4 begin on p. 44, not yet written.

17. from p. 44

18. pp. 44-45 — grammar pages, noted briefly

short-vowel stem; being ṭit, it comes at the front: nṛ + nām; nāmi (Pā. 6-4-3 as read) would lengthen the aṅga that ends in a vowel; nṛ ca (Pā. 6-4-6 as read) makes this lengthening optional for the stem nṛ before nām, and so here it is not made. Anudāttau suppitau would make the case-ending unaccented; but nṛ cānyatarasyām (Pā. 6-1-184 as read) makes the case-ending of a word ending in nṛ (and so on), beginning with a consonant, optionally acute; so the case-ending is acute; with the nuṭ added, the case-ending is a consonant-initial one; because the case-ending is acute, the word nṛṇām is end-acute. || 4 ||

original pp. 45-49

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

आ घा योषेव सूनर्युषा याति प्रभुञ्जती । जरयन्ती वृजनं पद्वदीयत उत्पातयति पक्षिणः ॥ ५ ॥

*ā ghā yoṣeva sūnary uṣā yāti prabhuñjatī | jarayantī vṛjanam
padvad īyata ut pātayati pakṣiṇaḥ || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

आ । घ । योषाऽइव । सूनरी । उषाः । याति । प्रभुञ्जती । जरयन्ती । वृजनम् । पत्स्वत् । ईयते । उत् । पातयति । पक्षिणः ॥ ५ ॥

*ā | gha | yoṣā-iva | sūnarī | uṣāḥ | yāti | pra-bhuñjatī | jarayantī
| vṛjanam | pat-vat | īyate | ut | pātayati | pakṣiṇaḥ || 5 ||* ¹⁹

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

उषा देवी प्रभुञ्जती प्रकर्षेण सर्वं पालयन्त्या याति घ । प्रतिदिनमागच्छति खलु ।
तत्र दृष्टान्तः । सूनरी सुष्ठु गृहकृत्यस्य नेत्री योषेव गृहिणीव । कीदृशयुषाः । वृजनं
गमनशीलं जङ्गमं प्राणिजातं जरयन्ती जरां प्रापयन्ती । असकृदुषस्यावृत्तायां

वयोहान्या प्राणिनो जीर्णा भवन्ति । किंच उषःकाले पद्वत् पादयुक्तं प्राणिजातमीयते । निद्रां परित्यज्य स्वस्वकृत्यार्थं गच्छति । किंच इयमुषाः पक्षिण उत्पातयति ।

पक्षिणो ह्युषःकाले समुत्थाय तत्र तत्र व्रजन्ति ॥ ऋचि

तुनुघमक्षुतङ्कुत्रोरुष्याणामिति [?] संहितायां दीर्घः । सुष्ठु नयतीति सूनरी । णीज् नये । आचेरिति [?] इप्रत्ययः । गतिसमासे कृद्ग्रहणे गतिकारकपूर्वस्यापि ग्रहणं ।

परि. ३ [?] । इति वचनात् कृदिकारादक्तिनः । पा. ४-१-४५ । इति डीष् ।

परादिश्छन्दसि बहुलमित्युत्तरपदाद्युदात्तत्वं । निपातस्य चेति पूर्वपदस्य दीर्घः ।

प्रभुञ्जती । भुज पालनाभ्यवहारयोः । लटः शतृ । रुधादित्वाच्छनम् ।

श्नसोरल्लोप इत्यकारलोपः । उगितश्चेति डीप् । शतुरनुम इति नद्या उदात्तत्वं ।

वृजनं । वृजी वर्जने । वर्ज्यत इति वृजनं प्राणिजातं । कृष्णवृजिमन्दिनाञ्भ्यः क्युः

। उ. २-८१ [?] । इति क्युप्रत्ययः । किच्त्वाल्लघूपधगुणाभावः । योरनादेशे

प्रत्ययस्वरः । पद्वत् । पत् पादः । तदस्यास्तीति मतुप् । झयः इति मतुपो वत्त्वं ।

व्यत्ययेन मतुप उदात्तत्वं । न च स्वरविधौ व्यञ्जनमविद्यमानवत् । परि. ८९ [?] ।

इति व्यञ्जनस्याविद्यमानवत्त्वे सति ह्रस्वनुङ्भ्यां मतुबिति मतुप उदात्तत्वमिति वाच्यं । ह्रस्वादित्येव सिद्धे पुनर्नुङ्ग्रहणसामर्थ्यदिषा परिभाषा नाश्रीयत इति वृत्तावुक्तं ।

का. ६-१-१७६ [?] । इतरथा हि मरुत्वानित्यत्रापि मतुप उदात्तत्वं स्यात् ॥ ५ ॥

uṣā devī prabhuñjati prakarṣeṇa sarvaṃ pālayantyā yāti gha |
pratidinam āgacchati khalu | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | sūnarī suṣṭhu
grhakṛtyasya netrī yoṣeva grhiṇīva | kīdṛśy uṣāḥ | vṛjanam gamanaśīlam jaṅgamaṃ prāñijātaṃ jarayantī jarām prāpayantī | asakṛd uṣasyāvṛttāyām vayohānyā prāñino jirṇā bhavanti | kiṃca
uṣāḥkāle padvat pādayuktaṃ prāñijātaṃ iyate | nidrām parityajya
svasvakṛtyārthaṃ gacchati | kiṃca iyam uṣāḥ pakṣiṇa utpātayati
| pakṣiṇo hy uṣāḥkāle samutthāya tatra tatra vrajanti || ṛci tunughamakṣutaṅkutroruṣyāṇām iti [?] saṃhitāyām dīrghaḥ |
suṣṭhu nayatīti sūnarī | nīṇ naye | ācer iti [?] ipratyayaḥ |
gatisamāse kṛdgrahaṇe gatikārapūrvasyāpi grahaṇam | pari. 3
[?] | iti vacanāt kṛdikārād aktinaḥ | pā. 4-1-45 | iti nīṣ | parādiś
chandasi bahulam ity uttarapadādyudāttatvaṃ | nipātasya ceti

19. The Saṃhitā prints the particle as long ghā, the Pada as short gha; the grammar below explains the lengthening in the mantra.

*pūrvapadasya dīrghaḥ | prabhuñjatī | bhuja
 pālanābhyavahārayoḥ | laṭaḥ śatr | rudhādittvāc chnam | śnasor
 allopa ity akāralopaḥ | ugitaś ceti nīp | śatur anuma iti nadyā udāttatvaṃ | vrjanam | vrjī varjane | varjyata iti vrjanam prāñijātam | kṛṣṇavṛjimandinidhāñbhyaḥ kyuh | u. 2-81 [?] | iti
 kyupratyayaḥ | kittvāl laghūpadhaguñābhāvaḥ | yor anādeśe pratyayasvaraḥ | padvat | pat pādaḥ | tad asyāstīti matup |
 jhayaḥ iti matupo vatvaṃ | vyatyayena matupa udāttatvaṃ | na
 ca svaravidhau vyañjanam avidyamānavat | pari. 89 [?] | iti vyañjanasyāvidyamānavattve sati hrasvanuḍbhyāṃ matub iti matupa udāttatvaṃ iti vācyam | hrasvād ity eva siddhe punar nuḍgrahaṇasāmarthyād eṣā paribhāṣā nāśrīyata iti vṛttāv uktaṃ |
 kā. 6-1-176 [?] | itarathā hi marutvān ity atrāpi matupa
 udāttatvaṃ syāt || 5 || ²⁰*

Translation: "The goddess Uṣas, prabhuñjatī, protecting everything abundantly, yāti gha, comes — she comes every day, indeed. A comparison: sūnarī, a good leader of household work, yoṣeva, like a housewife. What kind of Uṣas? Vrjanam, the moving, animate living beings, jarayantī, bringing to old age: when Uṣas returns again and again, living beings become old by the loss of their years. And furthermore, at the time of dawn padvat, the creatures that have feet, īyate, move: they leave sleep and go about their own tasks. And furthermore, this Uṣas pakṣiṇaḥ utpātayati, makes the birds fly up: for birds at the time of dawn rise and go here and there. In the ṛk, the lengthening in the Samhitā (by the rule beginning tunughamakṣu... [?]). Sūnarī: 'she who leads well'; root ñīñ naye; the suffix i; in a compound with a gati, the word kṛt includes what has a gati or kāraka before it (Paribhāṣā 3 [?]); nīṣ by kṛdikārād aktinaḥ (Pā. 4-1-45); the second member is initial-acute by parādīś chandasi bahulam;

20. The tail is as read from the print; several rule-names and numbers ("tunughamakṣutañkutroruṣyāñām", "ācer", the Paribhāṣā numbers 3 and 89, the Uṇādi number 2-81, the Kāśikā number) are crowded, [?]; the reading "kṛṣṇavṛji..." for the print's "kṛṣyāvṛji..." follows the Kannada author's list in the grammar page below.

the first member is lengthened by nipātasya ca. Prabhuñjatī: root bhuja pālanābhyavahārayoḥ; śatr for laṭ; śnam; the a dropped by śnasor allopaḥ; nīp by ugitaś ca; the acute on the nadī by śatur anumō nadyajādī. Vṛjanam: root vṛjī varjane; 'what is avoided' is vṛjana, living beings; the suffix kyu (Uṇ. 2-81 [?]); being kit, no guṇa of the light penultimate; the suffix-accent when ana is substituted. Padvat: pat is a foot; matup in the sense 'he has it'; v for m by jhayah; matup is acute by exchange; and the Kannada author notes the statement that this follows the statement of the Kāśikā (6-1-176 [?]) that the paribhāṣā 'in an accent rule a consonant counts as non-existent' is not applied here."

Pratipadārtha — "uṣāḥ — the goddess Uṣas; sūnari — an ideal, excellent (in household work); yoṣeva — like a housewife (the mistress of the house); prabhuñjatī — nourishing and protecting everyone well; vṛjanam — the whole group of moving beings; jarayantī — bringing to old age; ā yāti gha — she comes every day, does she not? (at the time of dawn); padvat — the group of beings with feet (that move); iyate — wakes from sleep and goes to its own work (and this Uṣas); pakṣiṇaḥ — the birds; utpātayati — makes fly up."

Bhāvārtha

— "As a housewife, skilled in household work and like an ideal, feeds and nourishes everyone in the house, the goddess Uṣas rises every day and nourishes everything in the world. But when she rises thus again and again she makes the whole group of moving beings old. All the moving beings that have feet rise from sleep at the time of dawn and go to their own work. The birds rise and fly off for their food."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 46)

— "Ushas, nourishing all comes daily like a beautiful young damsel well versed in household duties ; she makes the people old ; at her coming those beings that have feet get up from their sleep and make a stir ; she wakes up the birds."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 46–47 - yoṣeva — "like a young woman, like an excellent woman, that is, like a housewife." - sūnarī — "Although the word sūnarī is read among the sixteen names of Uṣas (Ni. 1-[?]9 as read), here the commentator has explained the word sūnarī as 'suṣṭhu grhakṛtyasya netrī grhiṇī' — a housewife who carries on household duties well. For the word uṣāḥ itself is present in this ṛk." - prabhuñjati — "prakarṣeṇa sarvaṃ pālayanti; bhujā pālanābhyavahārayoḥ: protecting everyone, nourishing." - jarayanti vrjanam — "she who wastes the lifespan of the moving beings, she who makes them old. Since the goddess Uṣas rises every day, the lifespans of beings pass one day at a time and the span of their life diminishes: this is the idea." - padvat — "pādayuktaṃ prāñijātam: the beings that have feet or legs, such as men." - pakṣiṇaḥ utpātayati — "as soon as the time of dawn comes, since it becomes light, birds that are asleep wake up and fly about to gather food. In the night, because it is dark, the birds cannot move and sleep in their nests. At the dawn, as soon as it is light, they rise from sleep and take up their activities. Therefore the ṛṣi has described the time of dawn or the goddess of dawn as making the birds rise and move."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²¹ - gha: used in the sense of "indeed" (khalu); rci tunughamakṣutaṅkutroruṣyāṇām (Pā. 6-3-133 as read [?]) gives lengthening in a mantra; so ghā in the Mantra-pāṭha. - sūnarī: "suṣṭhu nayati"; su is a nipāta, and a nipāta is also named upasarga in some contexts; root ñīṇ prāpaṇe, kryādi; the Uṇādi rule ācer... [as read; the Uṇādi number crowded, [?]] gives the suffix i after a root ending in a vowel; before it guṇa by sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ: nar + i = nari; compounded with the nipāta su: a gati-compound (gati-samāsa); su gets gati-status along with nipāta-status, since it is in connexion with a root; kṛdgrahaṇe gatikārapūrvasyāpi grahaṇam (Paribhāṣā, "3[?]" as read) — what is kṛdanta is also taken as kṛdanta when it has a

21. pp. 47–49 — grammar pages, noted briefly; the long discussion of the accent of padvat is outlined only

gati or kāraka before it; here, being preceded by a gati, sunari is a kṛdanta of a special kind; kṛdikārād aktinaḥ (Pā. 4-1-45 vārttika/ gaṇa, as read) — a kṛdanta prātipadika ending in i, other than ktin, takes ñiṣ optionally in the feminine; as said before, because particular words of the kṛdanta class are named, here sūnari, preceded by a gati, is itself the kṛdanta; ñiṣ: sūnārī. Parādiś chandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-2-199 as read [?]) — in the Chandas, the initial of the following word is variously acute — here, the initial-acute of the second member is the main one; though in the preceding sūtra only the second member uktha was prescribed to be initial-acute, the word bahulam completes the sense; nipātasya ca (Pā. 6-3-136 as read) gives lengthening to the first member, being a nipāta, in the Chandas: sū from su: sūnārī. - prabhuñjatī: pra is a preposition; root bhuja pālanābhyavahārayoḥ, rudhādi; laṭaḥ śatṛśānacau... gives śatṛ for laṭ; ś and r are markers; śnam, the vikaraṇa of the rudhādi class, since śit follows; midaco 'ntyāt paraḥ (Pā. 1-1-47 as read) — being mit, it comes after the last vowel of the root: bhu + na + j + at; śnasor allopaḥ (Pā. 6-4-111 as read) drops the a of śna and of as; the anusvāra and homogeneous nasal give bhuñjat; for the feminine, ugitaś ca (Pā. 4-1-6 as read) gives ñip, since śatṛ is ugit; prabhuñjatī; śatur anumō nadyajādī (Pā. 6-1-173 as read) — after a śatṛ-ending word without num, the nadī (ī or ū) and the vowel-initial endings are acute — here, since there is no num, the ī of the ñip with the nadī-name is acute; so prabhuñjatī is end-acute. - vr̥janam: root vr̥jī varjane, adādi; "varjyate iti vr̥janam" — a group of living beings, those that by nature go; kṛṣṇavṛjimandinidhāñbhyaḥ kyuḥ (Uṇ. 2-8[?] as read [?]) gives the suffix kyu; the k is a marker; yu → ana by yuvor anākau (Pā. 7-1-1 as read); because k is a marker, kn̥iti ca forbids the guṇa of the light penultimate; so vr̥jana; ādyudāttaś ca (Pā. 3-1-3 as read) gives the suffix-accent. - padvat: pat means a foot; "pat asya asti", "this has feet": tadasyāsty asminn iti matup (Pā. 5-2-94 as read) gives matup; jhayo ho 'nyatarasyām ... [as read: jhayah, Pā. 8-2-10 as read [?]] gives v for the m of matup

after a jhay letter; t becomes d by jaśtva: padvat; the matup is acute by vyatyayo bahulam; matup being pīṭ, it should be unaccented; so the exchange must be accepted. The Kannada author gives a long objection, in the form of a prior view (pūrvapakṣa), that the principle svaravidhau vyañjanam avidyamānavat (Paribhāṣā, "89" as read [?]) — "in an accent rule a consonant counts as non-existent" — makes hrasvanuḍbhyāṃ matup (Pā. 6-1-176 as read) apply, since in padvat only a d (consonant) stands between the short a and matup; that nuṭ is mentioned in the sūtra and so there would be no need for the exchange; the examples akṣaṇvantaḥ and the like show the matup after nuṭ acute; that if the nuṭ were not in the sūtra, by the paribhāṣā it would still do so; so why must nuṭ be stated? Therefore, the commentary says, that paribhāṣā is not relied on here (the Kāśikā at 6-1-176 [?] says so); otherwise marutvān and the like would also have an acute matup, where there is no intervening consonant; this is not done anywhere. Therefore, for padvat, the acute on matup must be explained by the exchange.
|| 5 ||

original p. 49

Rik 6

Samhitā-pāṭha

वि या सृजति समनं व्यर्थिनः पदं न वेत्योदती । वयो नकिष्टे पप्तिवांस आसते व्युष्टौ वाजिनीवति ॥ ६ ॥

vi yā sṛjati samanam vy arthinaḥ padaṃ na vety odatī | vayo nakiṣṭe paptivāṃsa āsate vyuṣṭau vājīnīvati || 6 ||

Pada-pāṭha

वि । या । सृजति । समनम् । वि । अर्थिनः । पदम् । न । वेति । ओदती । वयः । नकिः । ते । पप्तिऽवांसः । आसते । विऽउष्टौ । वाजिनीऽवति ॥ ६ ॥

vi | yā | sṛjati | samanam | vi | arthinah | padam | na | veti |
 odatī | vayah | nakiḥ | te | papti-vāṃsah | āsate | vi-uṣṭau |
 vājini-vati || 6 || ²²

Rik 48.6, continued ²³

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

या देवता समनं समीचीनचेष्टावन्तं पुरुषं वि सृजति प्रेरयति ।
 गृहारामादिचेष्टाकुशलान्पुरुषानुषःकालः शयनादुत्थाप्य स्वस्वव्यापारे प्रेरयतीति
 प्रसिद्धं । किंच उषा अर्थिनो याचकान् सृजति । तेऽपि ह्युषःकाले समुत्थाय
 स्वकीयदातृगृहे गच्छन्ति । ओदत्येषोदेवता पदं स्थानं न वेति । न कामयते ।
 उषःकालः शीघ्रं गच्छतीत्यर्थः । हे वाजिनीवत्येषोदेवते ते व्युष्टौ त्वदीये प्रभातकाले
 पप्तिवांसः पतनयुक्ता वयः पक्षिणो नकिरासते । न तिष्ठन्ति । किंतु
 स्वस्वनीडाद्विनिर्गत्य गच्छन्तीत्यर्थः ॥ सृजति । सृज विसर्गे । तुदादित्वाच्छः । कस्य
 [?] डित्वाल्लघूपधगुणाभावः । प्रत्ययस्य पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे विकरणस्वरः ।
 यद्धृत्ययोगादनिघातः । ओदती । उन्दी क्लेदने । उनत्ति सर्वं नीहारेणेत्योदत्युषाः ।
 शतरि व्यत्ययेन शप् । व्यत्ययेनानुनासिकलोपे लघूपधगुणः । उगितश्चेति डीप् ।
 आगमानुशासनस्यानित्यत्वान्मुमभावः । शपः पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वं ।
 शतुरदुपदेशाल्लसार्वधातुकानुदात्तत्वे धातुस्वरेणाद्युदात्तत्वं । न च शतुरनुम इति
 नद्या उदात्तत्वं । अन्तोदात्ताच्छपः [?] ... [crowded, ?] । नकिष्टे ।
 युष्मत्तत्त्वक्षुःष्वन्तःपादमिति [?] षत्वं । पप्तिवांसः । पतलृ गतौ । लिटः क्वसुः ।
 क्रादिनियमात्प्राप्त इट् वस्वेकाजाद्धसामिति नियमान्न प्राप्नोति तत्कृ[...] यते
 सर्वविधीनां छन्दसि विकल्पितत्वात् । कसिपतेग्रहेश्छन्दसि [?] । पा. ६-४-६९ [?]
 । इत्युपधालोपः । द्विर्वचनेचीति स्थानिवद्भावाद्द्विर्भावः । प्रत्ययस्वरः । वाजिनीवति
 । वाजोऽन्नमस्या अस्तीति वाजिनी क्रिया । मत्वर्थीय इनिः । ऋन्नेभ्य इति डीप् । तादृशी क्रिया यस्याः सा । तदस्यास्तीति मतुप् । संज्ञायामिति मतुपो वत्वम् ॥ yā [or yo, ?] devatā samanam samīcīnaceṣṭāvantam puruṣam vi sṛjati prerayati | gr̥hārāmādiceṣṭākuśalān puruṣān uṣaḥkālah

 śayanād utthāpya svasvavyāpāre prerayatīti prasiddham | kimca

uṣā arthino yācakān sṛjati | te 'pi hy uṣaḥkāle samutthāya svakīyadātṛgrhe gacchanti | odaty eṣodevatā padaṃ sthānaṃ na veti | na kāmāyate | uṣaḥkālaḥ śīghraṃ gacchatīty arthaḥ | he vājīnīvaty eṣodevate te vyūṣtau tvadīye prabhātakāle paptivāṃsaḥ patanayuktā vayah pakṣiṇo nakir āsate | na tiṣṭhanti | kiṃtu
svasvanīdād vinirgatya gacchantīty arthaḥ || sṛjati | sṛja visarge
| tudādittvāc chaḥ | kasya [?] nīttvāl laghūpadhaguṇābhāvaḥ |
pratyayasya pittvād anudāttatve vikaraṇasvaraḥ | yadvṛttayogād
anighātaḥ | odatī | undī kledane | unatti sarvaṃ nīhāreṇety odaty
uṣāḥ | śatari vyatyayena śap | vyatyayenānunāsikalope
laghūpadhaguṇaḥ | ugitaś ceti nīp | āgamānuśāsanasanyānityatvān
numabhāvaḥ | śapaḥ pittvād anudāttatvaṃ | śatur adupadeśāl lasārvadhātukānudāttatve dhātusvareṇādyudāttatvaṃ | na ca
śatur anuma iti nadyā udāttatvaṃ | antodāttāc chapāḥ [?] ...
[crowded, ?] | nakiṣṭe | yuṣmattatvakṣuḥśv antaḥpādam iti [?]
ṣatvaṃ | paptivāṃsaḥ | patḥ gatau | liṭaḥ kvasuḥ | krādinīyamāt prāpta iṭ vasvekājāghasām iti nīyamān na prāpnoti tatkr[...]
jyate sarvavidhīnām chandasi vikalpitatvāt | kasipater graheś chandasi
[?] | pā. 6-4-69 [?] | ity upadhālopaḥ | dvirvacane ceti sthānīvadbhāvād dvirbhāvaḥ | pratyayasvaraḥ | vājīnīvati | vājo
'nam asyā astīti vājīnī kriyā | matvarthīya inih | ṛnnebhya iti nīp
| tādrśī kriyā yasyāḥ sā | tad asyāstīti matup | saṃjñāyām iti
matupo vatvaṃ || ²⁴

Translation: "The deity who samanam, the man who is of right activity, vi sṛjati, sends out, sets going — it is well known that the time of dawn raises men skilled in the work of the house and the

22. The Saṃhitā's vyarthinaḥ is read as vi arthinaḥ as in the Pada; "nakiṣṭe" is the reading of the Saṃhitā's नकिष्टे, from the Pada nakiḥ | te.

23. from the foot of p. 49

garden from their beds and sets them to their own tasks. And furthermore Uṣas sends out the arthinaḥ, the beggars; they too, rising at the time of dawn, go to the houses of their own givers. Odatī, this goddess does not wish for a padam, a place; that is, the time of dawn goes quickly. O Uṣas, vājinīvati, in your vyuṣtau, at your time of dawn, paptivāṃsaḥ, flying, vayaḥ, the birds, nakiḥ āsate, do not stay; but, going out of their own nests, they go. Sṛjati: root sṛja visarge, śa because the root is of the tudādi class; no guṇa of the light penultimate (the suffix being marked as ñit [?]); the suffix being pit is unaccented and the accent of the vikaraṇa remains; because of the yad-connexion the all-unaccented does not come. Odatī: root undī kledane; 'she wets everything with mist'; śap by exchange in śatṛ; guṇa of the light penultimate when the nasal is dropped by exchange; ñīp by ugitaś ca; num does not come, since the rule of augments is not invariable; and so on. Nakiṣṭe: ...ṣa by antaḥpāda-type rule [?]. Paptivāṃsaḥ: root patl gatau; kvasu for liṭ; the iṭ that comes by krāḍiniyama is not obtained, because of the restriction vasvekājāghasām; but that restriction is optional, all rules being optional in the Chandas; the penultimate dropped; doubling by the sthānivat rule; the suffix-accent. Vājinīvati: 'she who has vāja, food — vājinī, activity'; ini in the sense of possession; ñīp by ṛnnebhyo ñīp; 'she who has such activity'; matup, v for m by saṃjñāyām."

Pratipadārtha — "yā — which (goddess Uṣas); samanam — the industrious man; visṛjati — sends (to his work); arthinaḥ — the beggars; vi (sṛjati) — (sends) to go to the houses of their respective donors; odati — the goddess Uṣas; padam — a (lasting) place; na vāti — does not wish for (she rises and goes away); vājinīvati — O Uṣas, endowed with food (the giver of food); te vyuṣtau — at your dawning; paptivāṃsaḥ — having the nature of flying; vayaḥ — the birds; nakiḥ āsate — do not remain (in their nests)."

24. This is the longest crowded stretch of the bhāṣya so far: the word kasya after tudādittvāc chaḥ, the clause antodāttāc chapah ..., the rule-names yuṣmattatvakṣuḥṣv antaḥpādam, kaṣipater graheś chandasi, the clause tatkṛ[...].yate, and all the numerals are as read and doubtful, each marked [?]. The first word of the bhāṣya, printed "yo", may be "yā" [?].

Bhāvārtha

— "The goddess Uṣas (the time of dawn) sets the men who have fixed their tasks in the house, the garden and other places, to work at their own tasks, each one's, rousing them from their beds. She sends beggars to the houses of their several givers. When she has risen she does not stay long in the same place, but disappears at once. O goddess Uṣas, endowed with food and a giver of food, as soon as you rise, the birds do not stay in their nests but fly away for their food."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 50)

— "She animates the industrious and sends solicitors to their donors ; she never stays in one place (but moves on). O bestower of food, birds no longer stay but begin to fly at your approach."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 51 - sṛjati — "srja visarge: she sends, makes (them) go." - samanam — "samīcīnaceṣṭāvāntam: the man who works with an effort that is good; the industrious man" ²⁵. - odatī — "undī kledane: 'unatti sarvaṃ nīhāreṇety odatyuṣāḥ'. The word odatī arises from the root undī, which has the sense of 'to wet'. At the time of dawn, before the Sun rises, dew falls on the earth and on the grass and the like and wets everything; so the goddess Uṣas is the one who wets everything. Therefore the goddess Uṣas is to be called odatī, 'the wetter'." - nakiḥ — "all, the whole. Since the word nakiḥ is read among the nine [?] pronoun-names beginning hiraṃ, nukam (Ni. 2-1[?]3 as read), nakiḥ means 'all', 'the whole'." ²⁶

25. the source adds in English: "diligent, busy, industrious"

26. The Kannada author's gloss on nakiḥ reads "all, the whole" where, in Rik 6 itself, the word is the negative "no one/never"; The gloss is given as printed [sic?].

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁷ - sr̥jati: root sr̥ja visarge, tudādi; third person singular; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ (Pā. 3-1-77 as read) gives śa; sārvadhātukam apit (Pā. 1-2-4 as read) makes it ñit [print: "jit", [?]], so no guṇa of the light penultimate; tip is pit and unaccented (anudāttau suppitau), so the accent of the vikaraṇa remains; ādyudāttaś ca (Pā. 3-1-3 as read) makes it acute; the a after j is acute; after an acute, an unaccented tip becomes svarita; because yā occurs before, by the yad-connexion, tiñ atinaḥ gives no all-unaccented (the Kannada author says the prohibition is stated when yat-words are connected). - odati: root undī kledane, rudhādi; "unatti sarvaṃ nīhāreṇa", the Uṣas who wets everything with the moisture of the dew; laṭaḥ śatṛśānacau gives śatṛ; the śnam of the rudhādi class would come; in its place, by vyatyayo bahulam, śap; und + a + at; the nasal's dropping by anudāttopadeśa... is by exchange in the Chandas; pugantalaghūpadhasya ca (Pā. 7-3-86 as read) gives guṇa to the light penultimate u of ud; odat; for the feminine, ugitaś ca gives ñip, śatṛ being ugit; odatī. As śatṛ is ugit, in the nominative singular sarvanāmasthāne ugidacāṃ sarvanāmasthāne 'dhātoḥ (Pā. 7-1-70 as read) would give num; but by āgamaśāstram anityam (Paribhāṣā, "98" as read [?]) the num does not come. Śap being pit is unaccented; śatṛ, if it were end-acute by its suffix-accent, is made unaccented by tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam (Pā. 6-1-186 as read); then the root-accent (end-acute) alone remains, so odatī is initial-acute [as the Kannada says]. A doubt arises: why does the ī with the nadī-name not take the acute by śatur anumo nadyajādī? — the sūtra's sense is that, after a śatṛ-ending word without num, the nadī and the vowel-initial case-endings are acute, and by continuation of "end-acute", the nadī standing after an end-acute śatṛ-ending word; here the śatṛ is not end-acute; the condition is lacking, so there is no acute on the nadī. - nakiṣṭe: nakiḥ te; visarjanīyasya saḥ (Pā. 8-3-34 as read) gives s for the visarga before t; nakis + te;

27. pp. 51–53 — grammar pages, noted briefly

yuṣmattatakṣuḥṣv antaḥpādam (Pā. 8-3-103 as read [?]) — ṣ for s after iṇ/ku in the middle of a pāda before the substitutes of yuṣmad beginning with t: te here comes from yuṣmad by temayāv ekavacanasya (Pā. 8-1-22 as read); ṣṭunā ṣṭuḥ (Pā. 8-4-41 as read) gives ṭ for t: nakiṣṭe. - paptivāṃsaḥ: root patḷ gatau, bhvādi; chandasi liṭ continuing, kvasuś ca (Pā. 3-2-107 as read) gives kvasu in the place of laṭ in the past in the Chandas; only vas remains; it is ārdhadhātuka by being ṭit-like; the iṭ that would come to a vowel-less ārdhadhātuka beginning with a consonant is restricted by kṛṣṛbhṛvṛstudruśruzrubhyaś chandasi (Pā. 7-2-13 as read [?]) and by vasvekājāghasām (Pā. 7-2-67 as read): iṭ for vasu after a one-vowel root that is doubled, a root ending in a, and ghas; by the second restriction, the iṭ would not come, but the Kannada author says that, by chandasi vā (yogavibhāga at Pā. 1-4-9 [as read [?]]) all rules are optional in the Chandas, so iṭ comes; pat + iv + as; tanipatyor... (Pā. 6-4-98 as read) drops the penultimate a before a kit suffix; doubling by dvirvacane 'ci with the sthānivat rule; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ: paptivas; before jas, num (sarvanāmasthāna) by ugidacām...; āt svasambuddhyoḥ ... apadāntasya, the lengthening of the penultimate by sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau (Pā. 6-4-8 as read); the nasal becomes anusvāra by naś chapadāntasya jhali: paptivāṃsaḥ; kvasu is initial-acute by the suffix-accent [as the print says "ādyudātta" of the suffix]; the case-ending is unaccented and becomes svarita; the rest are unaccented. - vājīnīvatī: vāja is food; "vājaḥ annam asyā asti" is vājīnī, meaning "activity"; ato 'nekācaḥ... (ata inīṭhanau, Pā. 5-2-115 as read [?]) gives inī in the sense of possession; the i is for pronunciation, in remains; yasyeti ca (Pā. 6-4-148 as read) drops the a of the stem; vājīn, ending in n, so ṛnnebhyo nīp (Pā. 4-1-5 as read) gives nīp in the feminine: vājīnī; "tādṛśī kriyā yasyāḥ sā"; again matup by tadasyāstyasminn iti matup; vājīnī + mat; saṃjñāyām (Pā. 8-2-11 as read) — v for the m of matup after a stem when a name is intended; vājīnīvat; for the feminine, ugitaś ca gives nīp: vājinīvatī; in the vocative, ambārthanadyor hrasvaḥ shortens it and su drops: vājinīvati. || 6 ||

original pp. 54–56

Rik 7

Samhitā-pāṭha

एषायुक्त परावतः सूर्यस्योदयनादधि । शतं रथेभिः सुभगोषा इयं वि यात्यभि मानुषान् ॥ ७ ॥

*eṣāyukta parāvataḥ sūryasyodayanād adhi | śataṃ rathebhiḥ
subhagoṣā iyaṃ vi yāty abhi mānuṣān || 7 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

एषा । अयुक्त । परावतः । सूर्यस्य । उत्स्रयनात् । अधि । शतम् । रथेभिः । सुभगा । उषाः । इयम् । वि । याति । अभि । मानुषान् ॥ ७ ॥

*eṣā | ayukta | parāvataḥ | sūryasya | ut-ayanāt | adhi | śatam |
rathebhiḥ | su-bhagā | uṣāḥ | iyaṃ | vi | yāti | abhi | mānuṣān | |
7 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

एषोषोदेवी शतमयुक्त । स्वकीयानां रथानां शतं योजितवती । सुभगा
सौभाग्ययुक्तेयमुषाः परावतो दूरस्थात् सूर्यस्योदयनादधि
सूर्योदयस्थानादधिकाद्भूयलोकान्मानुषानभि मनुष्यानुद्दिश्य रथेभिः शतसंख्यैर्युक्तै
रथैर्वि याति । विशेषेण गच्छति ॥ आयुक्त । लुङि झलो झलि । पा. ८-२-२६ ।
इति सिचो लोपः । उदयनात् । उदेत्यत्रेत्युदयनं । इण् गतौ । अधिकरणे ल्युट् ।
कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं । सुभगा । शोभनो भगो यस्याः सा । आद्युदात्तं
द्व्यच्छन्दसीत्युत्तरपदाद्युदात्तत्वं । मानुषान् । मनोः पुत्राः मानुषाः । मनोर्जातावज्यतौ षुक् च । इत्यञ् षुगागमश्च । जित्त्वादाद्युदात्तत्वं ॥

*eṣoṣodevī śatam ayukta | svakīyānām rathānām śatam yojitavatī | subhagā saubhāgyayuktēyam uṣāḥ parāvato dūrasthāt sūryasyodayanād adhi sūryodayasthānād adhikād dyulokān mānuṣān abhi manuṣyān uddīśya rathebhīḥ śatasamkhyair yuktai rathair vi yāti | viśeṣeṇa gacchati | | āyukta | luṇi jhalo jhali | pā.
 8-2-26 | iti sico lopah | udayanāt | udety atrety udayanam | iṇ gatau | adhikaraṇe lyuṭ | kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratvam |
 subhagā | śobhano bhago yasyāḥ sā | ādyudāttam dvyac
 chandasīty uttarapadādyudāttatvam | mānuṣān | manoh putrāḥ mānuṣāḥ | manor jātāv aṇyatau ṣuk ca | ity aṇ ṣugamaś ca |
 ñittvād ādyudāttatvam | | ²⁸*

Translation: "This goddess Uṣas śatam ayukta, has harnessed a hundred — a hundred of her own chariots. Subhagā, fortunate, this Uṣas, parāvataḥ, from afar, sūryasya udayanāt adhi, beyond the place of the Sun's rising, from the heaven, mānuṣān abhi, towards men, rathebhīḥ, with chariots yoked, a hundred in number, vi yāti, goes specially. Āyukta: in the aorist the sic drops by jhalo jhali (Pā. 8-2-26). Udayanāt: 'where one rises' is udayana; root iṇ gatau; lyuṭ in the locative sense; the second member's accent. Subhagā: 'she who has fortune'; the second member is initial-acute after su by ādyudāttam dvyac chandasi. Mānuṣān: 'sons of Manu are mānuṣāḥ'; aṇ with the augment ṣuk by manor jātāv aṇyatau ṣuk ca; initial-acute because the suffix is ñit."

Pratipadārtha — "eṣā — this goddess Uṣas; śatam — a hundred (in her chariots); ayukta — has made ready; subhagā — the auspicious; iyam uṣāḥ — this goddess Uṣas; parāvataḥ — from very far; sūryasya udayanāt adhi — from the heaven that is higher than the place of the Sun's rising; mānuṣān abhi — facing men; rathebhīḥ — with (her hundred chariots); vi yāti — comes in splendour."

Bhāvārtha

28. The print has the unusual "eṣoṣodevī" for "eṣā uṣodevī" [as read]; "ñityādir nityam" is printed "ñitsvara...". The numerals are as read.

— "The auspicious goddess Uṣas, preparing a hundred chariots at the time of her rising, comes in splendour with her hundred chariots, facing men, from the heaven, which is far away and higher than the place of the Sun's rising."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 55)

— "This auspicious Ushas has harnessed (her chariot) from afar, above the rising of the sun ; and she goes gloriously towards men with a hundred chariots."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 55 - parāvataḥ sūryasya

— "of the Sun who is far away; the Sun rises very far off; the idea is that the goddess Uṣas comes from a place farther away than that." - śataṃ rathebhīḥ — "accompanied by a hundred, or many, chariots, sitting in many chariots. Here some hold that 'chariots' means the rays of the Sun." - subhagā — "saubhāgyayuktā: auspicious, who bestows good fortune or the grace of wealth." - abhi mānuṣān — "facing men; the idea is that she comes facing the earth, the world of men, starting from the heavenly world or the atmosphere."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁹ - ayukta: root yujir yoge, rudhādi, both padas, luṇ, third person singular; yuj + ta; in the cli which would be general, sic by cleḥ sic (Pā. 3-1-44 as read); yuj + s + ta; jhalo jhali (Pā. 8-2-26 as read) drops the s when a jhal follows a jhal: the s after j and before t (a jhal); the aṭ augment; coḥ kuḥ (Pā. 8-2-30 as read) gives g for j, khari ca (Pā. 8-4-55 as read) gives k: ayukta; the Kannada author notes that the tiṇ is not made all-unaccented since it begins a pāda. - udayanāt: "udeṣyati atra iti udayanam"; root iṇ gatau; lyuṭ ca (Pā. 3-3-115 as read [?]) gives lyuṭ in the locative sense; yu → ana; guṇa, ay; ut being a prefix, gatikārapapadāt kṛt leaves the natural accent; with lit-accent (liti, Pā. 6-1-193 as read) the syllable before the suffix is acute: in udayanāt, only the a after d is acute. - subhagā: "śobhanam

bhagaḥ yasyāḥ sā", one with greatness such as lordship; ādyudāttaṃ dvyac chandasi (Pā. 6-2-119 as read) — a second member having two vowels and initial-acute, standing after su in a bahuvrīhi, is initial-acute; so the word bhaga stays initial-acute in the compound; subhagā is middle-acute. - mānuṣān: "manoḥ putrāḥ mānuṣāḥ", sons of Manu; manor jātāv aṅyatau śuk ca (Pā. 4-1-161 as read) — after the word manu, in the sense of a jāti (community), the suffixes añ and yat, and the augment śuk; the augment is kit, so it comes at the end; here añ is used; manu + ś + a; since the suffix is ñit, taddhiteṣv acām ādeḥ (Pā. 7-2-117 as read) gives vrddhi to the first vowel; mānuṣa; ñnityādir nityam (Pā. 6-1-197 as read) gives the initial acute; in the accusative plural, mānuṣān: the syllable after n; the unaccented u after the acute becomes svarita, and so on. || 7 ||

original p. 56

Rik 8

Samhitā-pāṭha

विश्वमस्या नानाम चक्षसे जगज्ज्योतिष्कृणोति सूनरी । अप द्वेषो मघोनी दुहिता दिव उषा उच्छदप सिधः ॥ ८ ॥

*viśvam asyā nānāma cakṣase jagaj jyoṭiṣ kṛṇoti sūnarī | apa dveṣo
maghonī duhitā diva uṣā uccha dapa sridhaḥ || 8 ||* ³⁰

Pada-pāṭha

विश्वम् । अस्याः । ननाम । चक्षसे । जगत् । ज्योतिः । कृणोति । सूनरी । अप । द्वेषः ।
मघोनी । दुहिता । दिवः । उषाः । उच्छत् । अप । सिधः ॥ ८ ॥

30. The Samhitā prints nānāma with a long ā and uccha dapa; the Pada has nanāma and uchchhat | apa; The line-end is read as ucchad apa sridhaḥ, from the Pada, [?].

viśvam | asyāḥ | nanāma | cakṣase | jagat | jyotiḥ | kṛṇoti |
 sūnarī | apa | dveṣaḥ | maghonī | duhitā | divaḥ | uṣāḥ | ucchat
 | apa | sridhaḥ | | 8 | | ³¹

Rik 48.8, continued ³²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

विश्वं सर्वं जगत् जङ्गमं प्राणिजातमस्या उषसश्चक्षसे प्रकाशाय ननाम । प्रह्वीभवति
 । रात्रौ तमसि निमग्नाः सर्वे जनास्तन्निवारयित्रीमुषसमुपलभ्य नमस्कुर्वन्तीत्यर्थः ।
 कुतः । यस्मादेषा सूनरी सुष्ठु नेत्री अभिमतफलस्य प्रापयित्र्येषा ज्योतिष्कृणोति सर्वं
 प्रकाशयति । किंच मघोनी मघवती धनवती दिवो दुहिता द्युलोकसकाशादुत्पन्नेषा
 द्वेषो द्वेष्टृनपोच्छत् । अपवर्जयति । तथा सिधः शोषयित्रृनपोच्छत् । अपवर्जयति ।
 तस्मादिष्टप्राप्त्यनिष्टपरिहारहेतुभूतामुषोदेवतां विश्वं जगन्मस्करोतीत्यर्थः ॥ अस्याः
 । इदमोऽन्वादेश इत्येषादेशोऽनुदात्तः । विभक्तिश्च सुप्त्वादेनुदात्तेति सर्वानुदात्तत्वं ।
 ननाम । संहितायामन्येषामपि दृश्यत इत्यभ्यासस्य दीर्घत्वं । तुजादित्वे हि तोतुजान
 इत्यादावि[व] पदकालेऽपि दीर्घः श्रूयते । ज्योतिः । इणः षः इत्यनुवृत्तावि सुसोः
 सामर्थ्ये । पा. ८-३-४४ । इति विसर्जनीयस्य षत्वं । द्वेषः । द्विष अप्रीतौ ।
 अन्येभ्योऽपि दृश्यन्त इति विच् । लघूपधगुणः । मघोनी । मघं वनति सम्भजत इति
 मघोनी । श्वन्नुक्षन्तित्यादिना मघवन्शब्दः कनिन्प्रत्ययान्तो निपातितः ।
 स्त्रियामृन्नेभ्यो डीबिति डीप् । भसंज्ञायां श्रयुवमघोनामतद्धित इति संप्रसारणं ।
 उच्छत् । उच्छी विवासे । विवासो वर्जनं । छन्दसि लुङ्लङ्लिटः इति वर्तमाने लङ् ।
 बहुलं छन्दस्यमाङ्गयोगेऽपीत्यङागमाभावः । सिधः । सिधु शोषणे । क्विप्वेति क्विप्

॥

viśvaṃ sarvaṃ jagat jaṅgamaṃ prāṇijātaṃ asyā uṣasaś cakṣase
 prakāśāya nanāma | prahvībhavati | rātrau tamasi nimagnāḥ sarve janās tannivārayitrīm uṣasam upalabhya namaskurvantīty arthaḥ | kutaḥ | yasmād eṣā sūnarī suṣṭhu netrī abhimataphalasya prāpayitry eṣā jyotiṣ kṛṇoti sarvaṃ prakāśayati
 | kiṃca maghonī maghavatī dhanavatī divo duhitā

31. The bhāṣya of Rik 8 begins at the foot of p. 56 and continues on p.

57; not yet written.

32. from p. 57

dyulokasakāśād utpannaiṣā dveṣo dveṣṭīṇ apocchat | apavarjayati
 | tathā sridhaḥ śoṣayitīṇ apocchat | apavarjayati | tasmād iṣṭaprāptyaniṣṭaparihārahetubhūtām uṣodevatām viśvaṃ jagan namaskarotīty arthaḥ || asyāḥ | idamo 'nvādeśa ity eśādeśo
 'nudāttaḥ | vibhaktiś ca suptvād enudātteti sarvānudāttatvaṃ |
 nanāma | saṃhitāyām anyeṣām api dṛśyata ity abhyāsasya
 dīrghatvaṃ | tujāditve hi totujāna ity ādāv i[va] padakāle 'pi
 dīrghaḥ śrūyate | jyotiḥ | iṇaḥ ṣaḥ ity anuvṛttāv i susoḥ sāmārthyē
 | pā. 8-3-44 | iti visarjanīyasya ṣatvaṃ | dveṣaḥ | diviṣa aprītau |
 anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyanta iti vic | laghūpadhaguṇaḥ | maghonī |
 maghaṃ vanati sambhajata iti maghonī | śvann ukṣann ity ādinā
 maghavanśabdaḥ kaninpratyayānto nipātitaḥ | striyām ṛnnebhyo
 nībiti nīp | bhasaṃjñāyām śvayuvamaghonām ataddhita iti saṃprasāraṇaṃ | ucchat | uchī vivāse | vivāso varjanaṃ |
 chandasi luṇlaṇlītaḥ iti vartamāne laṇ | bahulaṃ chandasy
 amānyoge 'pīty aḍāgamābhāvaḥ | sridhaḥ | sridhu śoṣaṇe | kvip
 ceti kvip || ³³

Translation: "Viśvam, the whole, jagat, the moving beings, asyāḥ, of this Uṣas, cakṣase, for the light, nanāma, bows: becomes humble. Sunk in darkness in the night, all people, finding Uṣas who removes it, bow: this is the meaning. Why? Because this sūnarī, the good leader who brings the desired fruit, jyotiḥ kṛnoti, makes light — illumines everything. Furthermore, maghonī, possessed of wealth, divaḥ duhitā, daughter of heaven, born from the world of heaven, dveṣaḥ apa ucchat, drives away haters; and sridhaḥ, those who dry up (wealth), drives away. Therefore the whole world bows to the goddess Uṣas, the cause of the gaining of the wished and of the removal of the unwished. Asyāḥ: eś is substituted in the anvādeśa, unaccented; the case-ending also unaccented, so all-unaccented. Nanāma: by anyeṣām api dṛśyate,

33. Crowded: "tujāditve ... totujāna ... i[va]", the Pāṇini number after susoḥ sāmārthyē, and the word after aprītau; marked as read, [?]. The print says ucchat; the Saṃhitā's line-end is thus ucchad apa sridhaḥ.

the reduplicative syllable is lengthened in the Saṃhitā. Jyotiḥ: the visarga becomes ṣ (Pā. 8-3-44 [?]). Dveṣaḥ: root dviṣa apṛītau; vic by anyebhyo 'pi ḍṣyante. Maghonī: 'she who partakes of magha'; the word maghavan given by nipātana with kanin by śvann ukṣann...; ñīp by ṛnnebhyo ñīp; saṃprasāraṇa in the bha-name by śvayuvamaghonām ataddhite. Ucchat: root uchī vivāse; 'avoidance'; lañ in the sense of the present by chandasi luñlanliṭaḥ; no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi. Sridhaḥ: root sridhu śoṣaṇe, kvip."

Pratipadārtha — "viśvaṃ jagat — the whole world (the group of living beings); asyāḥ — of this goddess Uṣas; cakṣase — for the light; nanāma — bows; sūnarī — the goddess Uṣas, who accomplishes (the wished fruit); jyotiṣkr̥ṇoti — (makes everything) light; maghonī — endowed with wealth; divaḥ duhitā — born from the heavenly world; uṣāḥ — the goddess Uṣas; dveṣaḥ — those who wish ill; apa ucchat — drives away; sridhaḥ — enemies who injure (our wealth and strength); apa (ucchat) — chases off."

Bhāvārtha

— "The whole world, which has experienced the darkness of night, bows and worships the goddess Uṣas, at the time of her rising, to destroy the darkness and give light. This goddess, who accomplishes everyone's wished-for object, lights up everything in the world. This goddess chases away from us those who wish ill, and the enemies who, before, injured all that we had."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 57)

— "All creation bows to her manifestation ; bringer of good, she lights up the world ; the rich daughter of heaven drives away the haters and disperses the absorbers (of moisture ?)"

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 58 - nanāma — "to bow. For the convenience of metre the first syllable of this word has been lengthened." - jyotiṣkr̥ṇoti — "sarvaṃ prakāśayati: she makes light the whole world. By driving away the darkness of night and giving light she gives joy to all beings. The idea is that everyone bows with gratitude to the goddess Uṣas, who does such a favour." - sūnarī — "though the word sūnarī has the sense 'goddess Uṣas', since in this ṛk the separate word uṣāḥ is present, the commentator has devised a literal sense for sūnarī: 'suṣṭhu netrī, abhimataphalasya prāpayitrī', 'a good leader, one who brings the wished-for fruit'." - dveṣaḥ — "those who hate; enemies." - maghonī — "magha is wealth; one who has wealth or lordship, or one who gives wealth." - duhitā divaḥ — "daughter of heaven. She is called daughter of heaven since she comes from near the Sun, who is in heaven (in the atmosphere)." - sridhaḥ — "sridhu śoṣaṇe: those who dry up, who injure. What they injure is not clear."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁴ - asyāḥ: after idam, in the genitive singular nas: idam + nas; in the anvādeśa, that is, when it takes up something previously present for another purpose, idamo 'nvādeśe śanudāttas tṛtīyādaḥ (Pā. 2-4-32 as read) gives the unaccented substitute aś for idam when a third-case or later ending follows; because aś is śīt, it replaces the whole: a + as; being a pronoun, in the feminine syāt comes to the ending and the stem is shortened; ru, visarga: asyāḥ; the case-ending is unaccented by anudāttau suppitau, and the substitute, being unaccented, makes the whole word all-unaccented. - nanāma: root ṇama prahvatve śabde ca, bhvādi; liṭ, third person singular; anyeṣām api dṛśyate (Pā. 6-3-137 as read) lengthens the reduplicative syllable in the Saṃhitā. The Kannada author raises a doubt: since the lengthening of the reduplicative syllable could be read in the tujādi list (tujādīnāṃ dīrgho 'bhyāsasya, Pā. 6-1-7 as read), and nam may be added to that list, then the lengthening, being constant, would also be heard in the pada-text; but here it is heard only in the Saṃhitā; so, as said before, it must be stated by

34. pp. 58–60 — grammar pages, noted briefly

anyeṣām api drśyate and only in the Saṃhitā. - jyotiḥ: jyotis + kṛṇoti; s becomes ru, visarga; īṇaḥ ṣaḥ continues and i-susoḥ sāmārthye (Pā. 8-3-44 as read) makes the visarga optionally ṣ before a ku- or *pu-*letter in the same sense; the "capacity" (sāmārthya) of Sanskrit is twofold; here the vyapekṣā-type is to be accepted, in which the words show mutual expectation; here jyotis and the verb are related, so there is capacity: jyotiṣ kṛṇoti. - dveṣaḥ: root dviṣa aprītau, adādi; anyebhyo 'pi drśyante (Pā. 3-2-75 as read) gives vic even where no cause is stated; the c of vic is a marker, i is for pronunciation, v drops by vero 'prktasya (Pā. 6-1-67 as read); so only the root remains; pugantalaḥpādhasya ca gives guṇa: dveṣ; śas: dveṣaḥ. - maghoni: "maghaṃ vanati sambhajate", "he who has lordship"; śvannukṣan... (Uṇ. 1-15[?]⁶ as read [?]) gives maghavan by nipātana, ending in kanin; root maha pūjāyām; with kanin, the augment a and gh for h; magh + av + an = maghavan; for the feminine, ṛnnebhyo nīp (Pā. 4-1-5 as read) gives nīp to a stem in n; maghavan + ī, with the bha-name since a vowel-initial suffix follows; śvayuvamaghonām ataddhite (Pā. 6-4-133 as read) gives saṃprasāraṇa (v → u) in the bha-name when a non-taddhita suffix follows; pūrvarūpa: magha + u + n + ī; guṇa: maghonī. - ucchat: root uchī vivāse, tudādi; chandasi luṅlaṅliṭaḥ (Pā. 3-4-6 as read) gives laṅ in the sense of the present; śa for the tudādi; uchcha + a + ti; itaś ca (Pā. 3-4-100 as read) drops the i of laṅ; bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi (Pā. 6-4-75 as read) — aṭ does not come, so the aṭ that should come before laṅ does not come: ucchat. - sridhaḥ: root sridhu śoṣaṇe; kvip ca (Pā. 3-2-76 as read) gives kvip after roots generally, as after vij and the rest; as in vic, all drops; since sridh is a kṛdanta, it is a prātipadika; accusative plural: sridhaḥ. || 8 ||

original pp. 60–62

Rik 9

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

उष आ भाहि भानुना चन्द्रेण दुहितर्दिवः । आवहन्ती भूर्यस्मभ्यं सौभगं व्युच्छन्ती दिविष्टिषु ॥ ९ ॥

*uṣa ā bhāhi bhānunā candreṇa duhitar divaḥ | āvahantī bhūry
asmabhyam saubhagam vyucchantī diviṣṭiṣu || 9 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

उषः । आ । भाहि । भानुना । चन्द्रेण । दुहितः । दिवः । आऽवहन्ती । भूरि । अस्मभ्यम् । सौभगम् । विऽउच्छन्ती । दिविष्टिषु ॥ ९ ॥

*uṣaḥ | ā | bhāhi | bhānunā | candreṇa | duhitaḥ | divaḥ | ā-vahantī | bhūri | asmabhyam | saubhagam | vi-ucchantī |
diviṣṭiṣu || 9 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे दिवो दुहितर्द्युलोकस्य पुत्रि उष उषोदेवते चन्द्रेण सर्वेषामाह्लादकेन भानुना
प्रकाशेन आ समन्तादा भाहि । प्रकाशस्व । किं कुर्वती । दिविष्टिषु दिवसेषु भूरि
प्रभूतं सौभगं सौभाग्यमस्मभ्यमावहन्ती संपादयन्ती । तथा व्युच्छन्ती तमांसि
वर्जयन्ती ॥ उषः । षाष्टिकमामन्त्रिताद्युदात्तत्वं । दुहितर्दिवः । परमपि छन्दसेति दिव

इत्यस्य परस्य षष्ठ्यन्तस्य पूर्वामन्त्रिताङ्गवद्भावे सति

षष्ठ्यामन्त्रितसमुदायस्याष्टमिकं सर्वानुदात्तत्वं । आवहन्ती । जीप्सपौ
पित्त्वादनुदात्तौ । शतुश्चामुपदेशाल्लसार्वधातुकस्वरेणानुदात्तत्वं । आतो धातुस्वरः
शिष्यते । समासे कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं । भूरि । प्रभवति न विनश्यतीति भूरि ।
आदिशदिभूशुभिभ्यः क्रिन् । उ. ४-६३ [?] । इति क्रिन् । नित्त्वाद्यु[...]दात्तत्वं ।
सुभगस्य भावः सौभगं । सुभगा[न्त्र] इत्यादिना । इत्यद्वा[...] । ह्रस्वगसिन्ध्वन्ते
पूर्वपदस्य चेत्युभयपदवृद्धौ प्राप्तायां सर्वे विधयश्छन्दसि विकल्प्यन्त इति
वचनादुत्तरपदवृद्धिर्न भवतीति वृत्तावुक्तं । का. ७-३-१९ [?] । व्युच्छन्ती । उछी
विवासे । विवासो वर्जनं । तौदादिकः । अदुपदेशाल्लसार्वधातुकानुदात्तत्वे
विकरणस्वरः । दिविष्टिषु । दिव्शब्देन दिविष्ट आदित्यो लक्ष्यते । तस्येष्टयः एषणानि गमनानि येषु दिवसेषु ते दिविष्टयः । बहुव्रीहौ पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं ॥

*he divo duhitar dyulokasya putri uṣa uṣodevate candreṇa sarveṣāṃ āhlādakena bhānunā prakāśena ā samantād ā bhāhi |
 prakāśasva | kiṃ kurvatī | diviṣṭiṣu divaseṣu bhūri prabhūtaṃ
 saubhagaṃ saubhāgyam asmabhyam āvahantī saṃpādayantī |
 tathā vyucchantī tamāṃsi varjayantī || uṣaḥ | śaṣṭhikam
 āmantritādyudāttatvaṃ | duhitar divaḥ | param api chandaseti diva ity asya parasya śaṣṭhyantasya pūrvāmantritāṅgavadbhāve
 sati śaṣṭhyāmantritasamudāyasyāṣṭamikaṃ sarvānudāttatvaṃ |
 āvahantī | nīpsapau pittvād anudāttau | śatus cāmupadeśāl
 lasārvadhātukasvareṇānudāttatvaṃ | āto dhātusvaraḥ śiṣyate |
 samāse kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ | bhūri | prabhavati na vinasyatīti bhūri | ādiśadibhūsubhibhyaḥ krin | u. 4-63 [?] | iti
 krin | nittvād yu[...].dāttatvaṃ | subhagasya bhāvaḥ saubhagaṃ |
 subhagā[ntra] ity ādinā | ity advā[...] | hṛdbhagasindhvante pūrvapadasya cety ubhayapadavṛddhau prāptāyāṃ sarve vidhayaś chandasi vikalpyanta iti vacanād uttarapadavṛddhir na bhavatīti vṛttāv uktaṃ | kā. 7-3-19 [?] | vyucchantī | uchī vivāse | vivāso
 varjanaṃ | taudādikaḥ | adupadeśāl lasārvadhātukānudāttatve
 vikaraṇasvaraḥ | diviṣṭiṣu | div-śabdena diviṣṭa ādityo lakṣyate | tasyeṣṭayaḥ eṣaṇāni gamanāni yeṣu divaseṣu te diviṣṭayaḥ |
 bahuvrīhau pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ || ³⁵*

Translation: "O divo duhitar, daughter of the heavenly world, O Uṣas, candreṇa, with delight-giving to all, bhānunā, with light, ā bhāhi, shine all around. Doing what? Diviṣṭiṣu, on the days, bhūri, abundantly, saubhagam, good fortune, asmabhyam, for us, āvahantī, bringing, accomplishing; and vyucchantī, driving away darknesses. Uṣaḥ: the vocative's initial acute by the genitive-ending rule. Āvahantī: nīp and śap are unaccented, being pit; śatṛ, from the list, is unaccented by lasārvadhātuka; the root-accent remains. Bhūri: 'what prevails and does not perish'; krin (Uṇ. 4-63

35. Crowded stretches in the print, marked [...] and [?]: the words after "nittvād", the sentence "subhagā[ntra] ityādinā | ityadvā[...]", the Uṇādi and Kāśikā numbers. The print has "diviṣṭa" for the Sun, where "div-" with "iṣṭa" is read, [?].

[?]). Saubhagam: 'the state of subhaga'; vṛddhi of both members is obtained by hṛdbhagasindhvante pūrvapadasya ca, but since all rules are optional in the Chandas, the vṛddhi of the second member does not come (Kāśikā 7-3-19 [?]). Vyucchantī: root uchī vivāse, of the tudādi class; the vikaraṇa-accent. Diviṣṭiṣu: by the word div the Sun, 'the desired one' (iṣṭa), is indicated [?]; 'the days in which there are his goings'; in the bahuvrīhi, the first member keeps its natural accent."

Pratipadārtha — "divaḥ duhitaḥ — O daughter of the heavenly world; uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; diviṣṭiṣu — every day; bhūri — very much; saubhagam — happiness; asmabhyam — to us; āvahantī — bringing about; vṛcchantī — dispelling (the night); candreṇa — delighting; bhānunā — with light; ā bhāhi — shine all around."

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, born of the heavenly world, bring us abundant happiness every day. Drive away the night, which obstructs our works. Shine everywhere with your light, which gives joy to all."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 61)

— "Ushas, shine around with delightful brightness, bringing us every day much happiness and dispersing darkness."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 61 - bhānunā — "prakāśena: with light. Although in the Nirukta (Ni. 1-[?]1 as read) the word bhānu is explained as ahaḥ, 'day', the commentator, since there is the light of the Sun in the day, has taken the word bhānu in the sense of light. Or there is room for the doubt: since at the time of dawn the Moon is still visible and the Sun is beginning to rise, the ṛṣi might have prayed, 'O goddess of dawn, shine together with the Sun and the Moon.' Since the word candra is explained in the Nirukta (Ni. 1-[?]0 as read) as hiranya, 'gold', and in the same place (Ni. 1[?]-[?]) 'candraś candateḥ kāntikarmaṇaḥ (Ni. as read, crowded [?]) — "candra from the root candati, with the sense of 'shining'" — the word candra can also denote brightness. Taking the chief idea, the commentator has explained the word candra as 'delightful like the Moon' and the word bhānu as 'bright like the Sun'; this is acceptable." — Nirukta citation (untranslated in the source), given in three layers:

चन्द्रश्चन्दतेः कान्तिकर्मणः । (Ni. [?]-[?] as read [?])

candraś candateḥ kāntikarmaṇaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "candra (is) from candati, which has the sense of shining/being lovely." ³⁶

Rik 48.9, continued ³⁷

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), continued, p. 62 - diviṣṭiṣu — "for this word the commentator gives divaseṣu, 'in the days'. In the Nirukta of the great sage Yāska (Ni. 6-2[?]₃ as read) it is said 'diviṣṭiṣu diva eṣaṇeṣu' [?], that is, 'yābhiḥ kriyābhir divam icchanti gantum tā diviṣṭayaḥ' — the acts by which people wish to go to heaven are called diviṣṭayaḥ. So diviṣṭiṣu would mean 'in acts done with heaven in view'. But this sense does not suit the present context." — untranslated in the source:

याभिः क्रियाभिर्दिवमिच्छन्ति गन्तुं ता दिविष्टयः ॥ (Ni. 6-[?] as read [?])

yābhiḥ kriyābhir divam icchanti gantum tā diviṣṭayaḥ || — editorial and tentative: "the acts by which (people) wish to go to heaven are diviṣṭayaḥ."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁸ - uṣaḥ: the vocative singular of uṣas, which has the name āmantrita; the all-unaccented of the vocative is enjoined by a sūtra of the eighth chapter; here āmantritasya ca (Pā. 6-1-198 as read [?]) gives the initial acute to the vocative, by a 36. The Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā of Rik 9 begins on p. 62, not yet written.

37. from p. 62

38. pp. 62–63 — grammar pages, noted briefly

sūtra of the sixth chapter. - duhitar divaḥ: subāmantrite parāṅgavat svare (Pā. 2-1-2 as read [?]); as in Rik 1, param api chandasi (a pāṭhāntara reads pūrvāṅgavac cheti vaktavyam, "it is to be said 'a preceding part too'") makes divaḥ, standing after, act as part of the preceding vocative duhitaḥ; hence āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19 as read) gives the all-unaccented to the vocative standing within the pāda and so to the whole duhitar divaḥ. - āvahantī: ā is a prefix; root vaha prāpaṇe; śatṛ in the present sense; as ṛ is a marker, in the feminine ugitaś ca (Pā. 4-1-6 as read) gives ñīp; vah + at + ī; since ṛ is a marker, ugidacām sarvanāmasthāne 'dhātoḥ (Pā. 7-1-70 as read) would give num; in the middle śap comes and has pararūpa; the nasal of num becomes anusvāra and homogeneous nasal: vahantī. Here ñīp and śap being pit are unaccented; śatṛ, being a lasārvadhātuka, is unaccented by tāsyānudātenñīdadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam (Pā. 6-1-186 as read); then the root-accent given by dhātoḥ (end-acute) alone remains; ā + the compound: in the compound, against the compound-accent, gatikāraḥkopapadāt kṛt (Pā. 6-2-139 as read) gives the natural accent of the second member that ends in a kṛt; so only the vowel after v in āvahantī is acute and the rest unaccented. - bhūri: "prabhavati, na vinaśyati", abundant; ādiśadibhūśubhibhyaḥ krin (Uṇ. 4-[?]3 as read [?]) gives the suffix krin, only ri remaining; being kit, no guṇa; being nit, initial acute by ñnityādir nityam (Pā. 6-1-197 as read); since the acute is followed by r, the i after r is unaccented and svarita: bhūri is initial-acute. - saubhagam: for the words of the udgātrādi list the suffix añ is enjoined; there, since subhagān mantre [as read, the gaṇa-note] is stated with the special sense "in a mantra", the añ after subhaga comes only in the Chandas; subhaga + a; the suffix, being ñit, would set aside the first-vowel ṛddhi; by hṛdbhagasindhvante pūrvapadasya ca (Pā. 7-3-19 as read) ṛddhi of both members would come, as bhaga ends the word; but on the yogavibhāga vā chandasi, "all rules are optional in the Chandas", the second member's ṛddhi does not come (as the ṛtti says, Kāśikā 7-3-19 as read [?]); then the general taddhiteṣv acām ādeḥ gives vṛddhi to the first vowel: saubhagam. - vyucchantī: root uchī vivāse, tudādi; used generally with the prefix vi; vivāsa is "abandoning"; with śatṛ, the tudādi vikaraṇa śa; uchch + a + at; ato guṇe (Pā. 6-1-97 as read) gives pararūpa; since śatṛ has r as a marker, num comes; ugitaś ca gives nīp for the feminine; the i of vi by yaṇ (v + y); chec ca gives tuk before ch after the short vowel, and ścutva gives c: vyucchantī. Here śatṛ is lasārvadhātuka and unaccented; the accent of the vikaraṇa śa then remains; ādyudāttaś ca gives the acute; the rest unaccented; in vyucchantī the a after ch is acute; because num has come, the nadī gets no acute. - diviṣṭiṣu: by the word div the Sun in the sky is indicated by lakṣaṇā, a figurative (gauṇa-lākṣaṇika) use; "divaḥ iṣṭayaḥ eṣaṇāni gamanāni yeṣu divaseṣu te diviṣṭayaḥ", the days in which the Sun's goings, revolutions, take place; a bahuvrīhi, so the compound accent is set aside and bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam (Pā. 6-2-1 as read) gives the first member its natural accent; div is acute, so diviṣṭiṣu is initial-acute; the i after v following an acute becomes svarita, and the rest unaccented. || 9 ||

original pp. 64–68

Rik 10

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

विश्वस्य हि प्राणनं जीवनं त्वे वि यदुच्छसि सूनरि । सा नो रथेन बृहता विभावरी श्रुधि चित्रामघे हवम् ॥ १० ॥

*viśvasya hi prāṇanam jīvanam tve vi yad ucchasi sūnari | sā no
rathena bṛhatā vibhāvari śrudhi citrāmaghe havam || 10 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

विश्वस्य । हि । प्राणनम् । जीवनम् । त्वे इति । वि । यत् । उच्छसि । सूनरि । सा । नः । रथेन
। बृहता । विभावरी । श्रुधि । चित्रामघे । हवम् ॥ १० ॥

viśvasya | hi | prāṇanam | jīvanam | tve iti | vi | yat | ucchasi |
 sūnari | sā | naḥ | rathena | brhatā | vibhāvari | śrudhi |
 citrāmaghe | havam | | 10 | | 39

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे सूनरी उषोदेवि विश्वस्य सर्वस्य प्राणिजातस्य प्राणनं चेष्टनं जीवनं प्राणधारणं च
 त्वे हि त्वय्येव वर्तते । यद्यस्मात्त्वं वि उच्छसि तमो वर्जयसि । हे विभावरी
 विशिष्टप्रकाशयुक्ते सा तादृशी त्वं नोऽस्मान्प्रति बृहता प्रौढेन रथेनायाहीति शेषः ।
 तथा हे चित्रामघे विचित्रधनयुक्ते उषोदेवि नोऽस्मदीयं हवमाह्वानं श्रुधि । शृणु ॥ प्राणनं । अन चेष्टायां । ल्युट् चेति भावे ल्युट् । योरनादेशः । समासेऽनितेः । पा.
 ८-४-१९ [?] । इत्युपसर्गस्थाद्रेफात्परस्य नकारस्य णत्वं । नन्वनितेरीटा
 निर्देशात्कथमन चेष्टायामित्यस्य णत्वं । तर्हि जीवनस्य पृथगुपादानात्प्राणनेनैव
 धातुना चेष्टा लक्ष्यते । समासे कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं ।
 संहितायामेकादेशस्वरेणैकादेशस्योदात्तत्वं । त्वे । सुपां सुलुगिति सप्तम्या
 शेआदेशः । उच्छसि । उच्छी विवासे । तौदादिकः । सिपः पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे
 विकरणस्वरः । निपातैर्यद्यादिहन्तेति निघातप्रतिषेधः । सूनरी । सुष्ठु नयतीति सूनरी
 । नृ नये इत्यस्माद् आचरेति [?] इप्रत्ययः । गतिसमासे कृद्ग्रहणे
 गतिकारकपूर्वस्यापि ग्रहणात् कृदिकारादक्त्तिन इति डीष् । निपातस्य चेति
 पूर्वपदस्य दीर्घत्वं । परादिश्छन्दसि बहुलमित्युत्तरपदाद्युदात्तत्वे प्राप्ते आमन्त्रितस्य चेत्याष्टमिको निघातः । विभावरी । विशिष्टा भा यस्याः सा । छन्दसीवनिपौ । पा.
 ५-२-१०९-१ [?] । इति मत्वर्थीयो वनिप् । वनो र चेति डीप् तत्सन्नियोगेन
 नकारस्य रेफादेशश्च । श्रुधि । श्रुशृणुपृकृवृभ्यश्छन्दसीति हेर्धिरादेशः । बहुलं
 छन्दसीति विकरणस्य लुक् । हेरपित्त्वेव प्रत्ययस्वरेणान्तोदात्तत्वं ।
 पादादित्वान्निघाताभावः । मघमिति धननाम । चित्रं मघं यस्याः सा चित्रामघा ।
 अन्येषामपि दृश्यत इति संहितायां पूर्वपदस्य दीर्घत्वं । हवं । हेञ् स्पर्धायां शब्दे च । भावेऽनुपसर्गस्येत्यप्प्रत्ययः । तत्सन्नियोगेन संप्रसारणं च ॥ १० ॥

he sūnarī uṣodevi viśvasya sarvasya prāṇijātasya prāṇanam ceṣṭanam jīvanam prāṇadhāraṇam ca tve hi tvayy eva vartate |
 yad yasmāt tvaṁ vi ucchasi tamo varjayasi | he vibhāvari viśiṣṭaparakāśayukte sā tādrśī tvaṃ no 'smān prati br̥hatā prauḍhena rathenāyāhīti śeṣaḥ | tathā he citrāmaghe vicitradhanayukte uṣodevi no 'smadīyaṃ havam āhvānaṃ śrudhi |

 śṛṇu || prāṇanaṃ | ana ceṣṭāyāṃ | lyuṭ ceti bhāve lyuṭ | yor anādeśaḥ | samāse 'nitēḥ | pā. 8-4-19 [?] | ity upasargasthād
 rephāt parasya nakārasya ṇatvaṃ | nanv aniter ītā nirdeśāt
 katham ana ceṣṭāyāṃ ity asya ṇatvaṃ | tarhi jīvanasya pṛthagupādānāt prāṇanenaiva dhātunā ceṣṭā lakṣyate | samāse
 kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ | saṃhitāyāṃ ekādeśasvareṇaikādeśasyodāttatvaṃ | tve | supāṃ suluk iti
 saptamyā śeādeśaḥ | ucchasi | uchī vivāse | taudādikaḥ | sipaḥ pittvād anudāttatve vikaraṇasvaraḥ | nipātair yadyādhantā iti nighātapraṭiṣedhaḥ | sūnarī | suṣṭhu nayatīti sūnarī | nṛ naye ity asmād ācer iti [?] ipratyayaḥ | gatisamāse kṛdgrahaṇe gatikārapapūrvasyāpi grahaṇāt kṛdikārād aktina iti nīṣ |
 nipātasya ceti pūrvapadasya dīrghatvaṃ | parādīś chandasi bahulam ity uttarapadādyudāttatve prāpte āmantritasya cety āṣṭamiko nighātaḥ | vibhāvari | viśiṣṭā bhā yasyāḥ sā |
 chandasīvanipau | pā. 5-2-109-1 [?] | iti matvarthīyo vanip | vano ra ceti nīp tatsanniyogena nakārasya rephādeśaś ca | śrudhi | śruśṛṇupṛkṛvṛbhyaś chandasīti her dhirādeśaḥ | bahulam
 chandasīti vikaraṇasya luk | herapitveva
 pratyayasvareṇāntodāttatvaṃ | pādādittvān nighātābhāvaḥ |
 maghamiti dhananāma | citraṃ magham yasyāḥ sā citrāmaghā | anyeṣāṃ api drśyata iti saṃhitāyāṃ pūrvapadasya dīrghatvaṃ |
 havam | hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca | bhāve 'nupasargasyety app
 pratyayaḥ | tatsanniyogena saṃprasāraṇam ca || 10 || ⁴⁰

39. The Pada prints the compound as one word, citrāmaghe, not divided.

40. The print is crowded at several points: the number after samāse 'nitēḥ, the Uṇādi-type rule-name ācer iti, the number 5-2-109-1, and "herapitveva" [as printed "hera-pitveva"], all as read [?]; the word ceṣṭanaṃ in the first sentence is as read, [?].

Translation: "O sūnarī, O goddess Uṣas: viśvasya, of the whole world of beings, prāṇanam, activity, and jīvanam, the holding of life, tve hi, in you indeed, exist; yat, since, you vi ucchasi, drive off the darkness. O vibhāvari, you of special radiance, being such, towards us, brhatā rathena, with a great, ample chariot — come (the verb is to be supplied). And O citrāmaghe, you of wondrous wealth, O goddess Uṣas, naḥ havam, our call, śrudhi, hear. Prāṇanam: root ana ceṣṭāyām; lyuṭ in the abstract sense; ana for yu; ṇ for the n after a repha standing in a prefix, in a compound (Pā. 8-4-19 [?]). — An objection: since the root is stated as anitiḥ in the sūtra with īṭ, how can ṇatva come for ana ceṣṭāyām? — Then, since jīvana is taken separately, the sense of 'activity' is indicated by the root of prāṇana itself. In the compound, the accent of a second member ending in a kṛt; in the Saṃhitā the single substitute takes the acute. Tve: śe in place of the locative. Ucchasi: root uchī vivāse, of the tudādi; since sip is pit and unaccented, the accent of the vikaraṇa; the all-unaccented is blocked by the nipāta group beginning yat. Sūnarī: 'she who leads well'; from the root nṛ naye, the suffix i; in a gati-compound the word kṛt includes what has a gati or kāraka before it, so ñiṣ by kr̥dikārād aktinaḥ; the first member lengthened by nipātasya ca; the initial acute of the second member that would come by parādiś chandasi bahulam is overridden by the all-unaccented of the eighth chapter, āmantritasya ca. Vibhāvari: 'she of special light'; vanip in the possessive sense; ñīp by vano ra ca, with r for n. Śrudhi: dhi for hi by śruśṛṇupṛkṛvṛbhyaś chandasi; luk of the vikaraṇa; as hi is not pit, the end-acute by the suffix-accent; no all-unaccented, because it is at the head of a pāda. Magha is a name of wealth; 'she who has wondrous wealth' is citrāmaghā; the first member lengthened in the Saṃhitā by anyeṣām api dṛśyate. Havam: root hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca; ap in the abstract sense, with saṃprasāraṇa at the same time."

Pratipadārtha — "sūnari — O Uṣas, guide of the way; yat — for which reason; vi ucchasi — (you) dispel the darkness (since you bring light); viśvasya — of the whole body of beings; prāṇanam — breath; jīvanam — and the support of life; tve hi — are in you alone (we depend on you alone); vibhāvāri — O Uṣas, of special radiance; sā — such as you; naḥ — to us; brhatā — high and spacious; rathena — with (your) chariot (graciously come); citrāmaghe — O Uṣas, with various and wondrous wealth; naḥ — our; havam — call; śrudhi — hear."

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, who bring good to the world and guide the way: by dispelling the darkness of night and bringing light to the world, the breath and the support of life of all beings are in you alone. Being so, come to us with your chariot, which is of special radiance, lofty and spacious. O goddess Uṣas, endowed with various and wondrous wealth, hear our call."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 65)

— "O fair Ushas, when you dawn forth, the breath and life of all (creatures) lies in you ; bright goddess, possessor of wondrous wealth, come to us with your spacious car and hear our invocation."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 65–66 - viśvasya — "of the whole universe, of all the groups of living beings" ⁴¹. - prāṇanam — "ana ceṣṭāyām: the breath that is most necessary for beings to live, or the activities, such as movements, said to be natural to beings that have life" ⁴². - jīvanam — "being alive, living, life" ⁴³. - vi ucchasi — "tamo varjayasi: you remove the darkness; you destroy the darkness of night." - citrāmaghe —

⁴¹. the source adds in English: "of all creatures of the Universe etc."

⁴². the source adds in English: "movements"

⁴³. in English: "life"

"endowed with wealth of many kinds; magha is wealth. Citra means of many kinds, that is, wealth, jewels, cattle and the like, of many kinds."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁴ - prāṇanam: root ana ceṣṭāyām [as printed; the grammar notes the root-name an prāṇane], with pra before; lyuṭ ca (Pā. 3-3-115 as read [?]) gives lyuṭ in the abstract sense; the yu of lyuṭ → ana: ananam; in compound with pra, aniteḥ (Pā. 8-4-19 as read [?]) gives ṇatva to the n of the root an when it follows a repha standing in a prefix; the Kannada author discusses at length that the sūtra has the root ana prāṇane (with īṭ in the sūtra's statement) and that the form prāṇana for the sense "activity" is therefore got only if the root of prāṇana is taken in the sense "breathing" and ceṣṭā is read in by indication (lakṣaṇā), since jīvana is mentioned separately; the argument is outlined only. Pra being a gati, and ananam a kṛdanta, gatikārapapadāt kṛt (Pā. 6-2-139 as read) gives the natural accent of the second member; the root's a is acute; with pra the single substitute ā (ekādeśa udāttanodāttaḥ, Pā. 8-2-5 as read) is acute; the ṇa after it is svarita; prāṇanam is initial-acute. - tve: after yuṣmad the locative singular ni, replaced by śe by supām suluk...; the ś is a marker; yuṣmad → tva by tvamāv ekavacane (Pā. 7-2-97 as read); the ad drops by mapar yantasya [as read, Pā. 7-2-90]; tva + e: guṇa: tve. - ucchasi: root uchī vivāse, tudādi; laṭ second person singular sip; uchch + si; the tudādi vikaraṇa śa comes: ucchasi; sip being pit is unaccented; so the vikaraṇa's initial acute is the strong one; nipātair yad yadi hanta... (Pā. 8-1-30 as read) — when yat and the other words are connected, the all-unaccented does not come; so tiṇ atīṇaḥ does not apply; the yat of the earlier part is present; so ucchasi is initial-acute. - sūnari: "suṣṭhu nayati", she who leads well; root nṛ naye; the Uṇādi sūtra ācer iḥ (Uṇ. 4-[?]6 as read [?]) gives the suffix i after a root ending in a vowel; being ārdhadhātuka-named, guṇa; sūnari is a stem ending in i; being a gati-compound, kṛdgrahāṇe gatikārapūrvasyāpi grahaṇam (Paribhāṣā, as said before); kṛdikārād aktinaḥ gives ñiṣ for a kṛdanta ending in i other than ktin, so ñiṣ comes to the word sunari preceded by a gati; nipātasya ca (Pā. 6-3-116 as read [?]) lengthens the nipāta su; in the vocative, ambārthanadyor hrasvaḥ shortens, and the su of the vocative drops after the short; parādiś chandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-2-199 as read [?]) would give the second member an initial acute, but āmantritasya ca of the eighth chapter makes it all-unaccented. - vibhāvāri: "viśiṣṭā bhā yasyāḥ sā", one of special radiance; tadasyāstīti matup would be obtained; chandasīvanipau (Pā. 5-2-109 as read [?]) — in the Chandas, iṭhan-type suffixes vanip and ini in the possessive sense — so vanip comes; vibhāvan, ending in n; in the feminine, vano ra ca (Pā. 4-1-7 as read) gives ñip and r for n: vibhāvarī; in the vocative the short is substituted and su drops; the vocative's all-unaccented comes. - śrudhi: root śru śravaṇe, bhvādi; loṭ, second person singular sip, → hi by serhy apic ca (Pā. 3-4-87 as read); śruśṛnupṛkṛvṛbhyaś chandasi (Pā. 6-4-102 as read) gives dhi for hi in the Chandas; śnu would come by śṛṇoti... (Pā. 3-1-74 as read); and the substitute śṛ for śru; but bahulam chandasi (Pā. 2-4-73 as read) gives luk of the vikaraṇa optionally in the Chandas; so the vikaraṇa drops, and the substitute śṛ, which comes only with it, does not come: śrudhi. As hi is not pīt [the Kannada says the hi's pīt-ness is extended, atideśa, to the substitute, so that the unaccented accent does not come]: ādyudāttaś ca gives the suffix's acute; tiñ atinaḥ would make it unaccented, but apādāda forbids, since it stands at the head of a pāda; śrudhi is end-acute. - citrāmaghe: magha is a name of wealth; "citraṃ maghaṃ yasyāḥ sā" is citrāmaghā, one with many kinds of wealth; anyeṣām api dṛśyate (Pā. 6-3-137 as read) lengthens the first member citra in the Saṃhitā of a mantra; in the vocative, sambuddhau ca (Pā. 7-3-106 as read) gives e for the final ā of a stem; su dropped after the e-ending: citrāmaghe. - havam: root hveñ spardhāyām śabde ca, bhvādi; bhāve 'nupasargasya (Pā. 3-3-70 as read [?]) gives ap in the abstract sense after the root hveñ without a prefix, with saṃprasāraṇa of the root; here, as the root is bare, ap comes; the v of hve becomes u: hu + e + a; saṃprasāraṇāc ca (Pā. 6-1-108 as read) gives pūrvarūpa for the vowel after saṃprasāraṇa: hu + a; guṇa and av: havam. || 10 ||

original p. 68

Rik 11

Samhitā-pāṭha

उषो वाजं हि वंस्व यश्चित्रो मानुषे जने । तेना वह सुकृतो अध्वराँ उप ये त्वा गृणन्ति वह्यः ॥ ११ ॥

*uṣo vājaṃ hi vaṃsva yaś citro mānuṣe jane | tenā vaha sukrto
adhvarāṃ upa ye tvā gṛṇanti vahnayaḥ* || 11 || ⁴⁵

Pada-pāṭha

उषः । वाजम् । हि । वंस्व । यः । चित्रः । मानुषे । जने । तेन । आ । वह । सुकृतः । अध्वरान् । उप । ये । त्वा । गृणन्ति । वह्यः ॥ ११ ॥

*uṣaḥ | vājam | hi | vaṃsva | yaḥ | citraḥ | mānuṣe | jane | tena |
ā | vaha | su-krtaḥ | adhvarān | upa | ye | tvā | gṛṇanti |
vahnayaḥ* || 11 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उषो वाजं हविलक्षणमन्नं हि श्रुतिषु प्रसिद्धं वंस्व । योचस्व । स्वीकुर्वित्यर्थः । यो
वाजश्चित्रश्चायनीयो मानुषे मनुष्ये जने जाते यजमाने वर्तते । तं वाजमिति
पूर्वत्रान्वयः । तेन कारणेन सुकृतः सुष्ठु कृतवतो यजमानानध्वरान् हिंसारहितान्
योगानुपा वह । प्रापय । ये यजमाना वह्यो यज्ञनिर्वाहकास्त्वा त्वां गृणन्ति स्तुवन्ति
। तान् सुकृत इति पूर्वेण सम्बन्धः । एतदुक्तं भवति । यजमानैः प्रत्तं हविः स्वीकृत्य
पुनरपि तेषां यज्ञं संपादयेति ॥ वाजं । वज व्रज गतौ । कर्मणि घञ् । अजिवज्योश्च

45. The print has vanhayaḥ in Kannada spelling: the conjunct hn is written as nh; vahnayaḥ is given.

। पा. २-३-६० । इत्यत्र चशब्दस्यानुक्तसमुच्चयार्थत्वाद्वाजो वाज्यमित्यत्रापि
 कुत्वाभाव इति वृत्ताबुक्तत्वात्कुत्वाभावः । कर्षात्त्व इत्यन्तोदात्तत्वे प्राप्ते
 वृषादित्वादाद्युदात्तत्वं । वंस्व । वनु याचने । अत्र याचनवाचिना धातुना तदुत्तरभावी
 स्वीकारो लक्ष्यते । बहुलं छन्दसीति विकरणस्य लुक् ।
 अनुदात्तेत्वाल्लसार्वधातुकानुदात्तत्वे धातुस्वरः । हि चेति निघातप्रतिषेधः । सुकृतः ।
 सुकर्मपापेत्यादिना करोतेर्भूतार्थे क्विप् । तुगागमः । कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं ।
 अध्वरान् । ध्वरो हिंसा नास्त्यस्मिन्निति बहुव्रीहौ नञ्सुभ्यामित्युत्तरपदान्तोदात्तत्वं ।
 अध्वरानित्यस्येप्सिततमत्वात्कर्तुरीप्सिततमं कर्म । पा. १-४-४९ [?] । इति
 कर्मसंज्ञा । सुकृत इत्यस्य त्वकथितं च । पा. १-४-५१ [?] । इति । नीवहोर्हर्त्रेश्च ।
 म. १-४-५१ [?] । इति द्विकर्मकेषु वहतेः परिगणितत्वात् । अध्वरानित्यत्र
 नकारस्य संहितायां दीर्घाददीति रुत्वं । आतो ऽटि नित्यमिति पूर्वस्याकारस्य
 सानुनासिकता । गृणन्ति । गृ शब्दे । क्र्यादिभ्यः श्ना । प्वादीनां ह्रस्व इति ह्रस्वत्वं । श्नाभ्यस्तयोरात् इत्याकारलोपः । प्रत्ययस्वरः । यद्वृत्तयोगादनिघातः ॥ ११ ॥

he uṣo vājaṃ havirlakṣaṇam annaṃ hi śrutiṣu prasiddham vaṃsva | yācasva | svīkurv ity arthaḥ | yo vājaś citraś cāyanīyo mānuṣe manuṣye jane jāte yajamāne vartate | taṃ vājaṃ iti pūrvatrānvayaḥ | tena kāraṇena sukr̥taḥ suṣṭhu kṛtavato yajamānān adhvarān hiṃsārahitān yogān upā vaha | prāpaya | ye yajamānā vahnayo yajñanirvāhakās tvā tvāṃ gr̥ṇanti stuvanti |
 tān sukr̥ta iti pūrveṇa sambandhaḥ | etad uktaṃ bhavati | yajamānaiḥ prattaṃ haviḥ svīkr̥tya punar api teṣāṃ yajñam saṃpādayeti || vājaṃ | vaja vraja gatau | karmaṇi ghañ |
 ajivajryoś ca | pā. 2-3-60 | ity atra caśabdasyānuktasamuccayārthatvād vājo vājyam ity atrāpi kutvābhāva iti vṛttāv uktatvāt kutvābhāvaḥ | karṣātvata ity antodāttatve prāpte vṛṣāditvād ādyudāttatvaṃ | vaṃsva | vanu
 yācane | atra yācanavācinā dhātunā taduttarabhāvī svīkāro
 lakṣyate | bahulaṃ chandasīti vikaraṇasya luk | anudātettvāl
 lasārvadhātukānudāttatve dhātusvaraḥ | hi ceti
 nighātapratiṣedhaḥ | sukr̥taḥ | sukarmapāpety ādinā karoter bhūtārthe kvip | tugāgamaḥ | kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ |
 adhvarān | dhvaro hiṃsā nāsty asminn iti bahuvrīhau

nañsubhyām ity uttarapadāntodāttatvaṃ | adhvarān ity asyepsitatamatvāt kartur īpsitatamaṃ karma | pā. 1-4-49 [?] | iti
 karmasaṃjñā | sukr̥ta ity asya tv akathitaṃ ca | pā. 1-4-51 [?] | iti
 | nīvahyor hartreś ca | ma. 1-4-51 [?] | iti dvikarmakeṣu vahateḥ parigaṇitatvāt | adhvarān ity atra nakārasya saṃhitāyāṃ dīrghād aṭīti rutvaṃ | āto 'ṭi nityam iti pūrvasyākārasya sānunāsikatā |
 gr̥ṇanti | gr̥ śabde | kryādibhyaḥ śnā | pvādīnāṃ hrasva iti
 hrasvatvaṃ | śnābhyastayor āta ity ākāralopaḥ | pratyayasvaraḥ
 | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ || 11 || ⁴⁶

Translation: "O Uṣas, accept (vaṃsya, yācasva, i.e. receive) vājam, food in the form of the oblation, hi, well known in the Śruti — that vāja which is citraḥ, excellent, worthy of worship, which is in the keeping of mānuṣe jane, the man, the sacrificer: the construction is with that vāja. For that reason, sukṛtaḥ, those who have done well, the sacrificers, bring them adhvarān, to the harmless sacrifices (yogān, rites), upa ā vaha: bring them close. Those sacrificers who, vahnayaḥ, conducting the sacrifice, tvā gr̥ṇanti, praise you — those sukṛtaḥ: so it is joined with what precedes. The sense is: accept the oblation given by the sacrificers and again bring about their sacrifice. Vājam: root vaja vraja gatau, ghaṇ in the passive; the ca in ajivajryoś ca (Pā. 2-3-60) includes what is not stated, so that, as the vṛtti says, there is no kutva in vājah, vājyam too; vṛṣādi gives initial-acute where end-acute by karṣātvataḥ would come. Vaṃsya: root vanu yācane; here, by the root meaning 'ask', the acceptance that follows is indicated; luk of the vikaraṇa; being anudāttet, the lasārvadhātuka is unaccented and the root-accent remains; the all-unaccented is blocked by hi ca. Sukṛtaḥ: kvip of kr̥ in the past sense after su, with tuk. Adhvarān: 'that in which there is no

46. Crowded in the print: the Mahābhāṣya-style number after nīvahyor hartreś ca, and the Pāṇini numbers 1-4-49 and 1-4-51; marked as read [?]. The word "yocasva" in the first sentence is as printed and probably stands for yācasva, "ask"; the Kannada anuvāda does not repeat it. The print gives sukṛtaḥ ... yajamānān, and the note on dvikarmakeṣu vahateḥ is as read.

dhvara (injury)'; end-acute of the second member by nañsubhyām; because adhvarān is the most desired, kartur īpsitatamaṃ karma (Pā. 1-4-49 [?]) gives it the name karman; for sukṛtaḥ, akathitaṃ ca (Pā. 1-4-51 [?]); because vah is listed among the double-object verbs (nīvahyor hartreś ca, [?]). Gṛṇanti: root gṛ śabde; śnā of the kryādi class; shortening by pṛvādīnām hrasvaḥ; the ā drops by śnābhyastayor ātaḥ; the suffix-accent; no all-unaccented, because of the yad-connexion."

Pratipadārtha — "uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; hi — (as) well known in the Śruti; yaḥ — that which; mānuṣe jane — in the man, the sacrificer (who sacrifices); citraḥ — excellent; vājam — the food in the form of oblation; vaṃsva — accept; tena — for that reason; ye — which sacrificers; vahnayaḥ — carrying on the sacrifice; tvā — you; gṛṇanti — praise; sukṛtaḥ — those who do holy acts; adhvarān — to harmless sacrifices; upa vaha — bring (them) along (and make them reach)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, accept the food in the form of the oblation that is well known in the Śruti and is with the sacrificer. Having accepted the oblation of these sacrificers, bring those sacrificers, who carry on the sacrifice, praise you and do holy acts, to the place of harmless sacrifices, so that those sacrifices may again be accomplished."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 70)

— "Ushas, accept true Sacrificial food of best quality which exists among men and thereby bring to true Ceremony (Sacrifice) the pious, who offering oblations praise you"

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḥ), p. 70 - vaṃsva — "vanu yācane: here, by the root that means 'to ask', the commentator holds that the acceptance that comes after it, as the reply to the asking, is meant: 'accept the thing given in reply to the request'. The verb vaṃsva is formed from the root vanu yācane, 'to beg';

though the root means 'make a request', the sense to be taken here is: 'accept the thing given in reply to that request.'" - citraḥ — "cāyanīyaḥ, śreṣṭhaḥ, pūjanīyaḥ: excellent, best, to be honoured" ⁴⁷. - sukṛtaḥ — "suṣṭhu kṛtavataḥ: those who perform the sacrificial acts well (the sacrificers)." - vahnayaḥ — "vodhāraḥ yajñanirvāhakāḥ: carriers; those who carry on the sacrifices." - On the second half of the ṛk the Kannada author compares the commentator's sense with another: he quotes a Sanskrit sentence of the commentator's own bhāṣya on a parallel passage (untranslated in the source, crowded, see the note below), in which the sacrificers pray that the best wealth among the people be given to them, and concludes: "It may be said that the meaning, 'O goddess, bring the deities to the sacrifices that the people who praise you perform', fits properly." ^{48 49}

Rik 48.11, continued ⁵⁰

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵¹ - vājam: root vaja or vraja gatau; ghaṇ in the passive sense; vaj + a, ñit, so ata upadhāyāḥ (Pā. 7-2-116 as read) gives vṛddhi to the penultimate; cajoḥ kuḥ ghiṇṇyatoḥ (Pā. 7-3-52 as read) would give kutva, but ajivrajyoś ca (Pā. 7-3-60 as read) forbids it: though vraj is not included, the letter ca in the sūtra includes the unstated (anuktasamuccayārtha), so vāja, vājya do not take kutva (as the vṛtti says); karṣātvato ghaṇo 'nta udāttaḥ (Pā. 6-1-159 as read) would give end-acute, but vṛṣādīnām ca (Pā. 6-1-203 as read) gives the initial acute to the words of the vṛṣādi list, in which vāja is read; so vājam is initial-acute. - vaṃsva: root

47. the Kannada: "uttamavāda"

48. The long Sanskrit sentence in the Special Topics of Rik 11 (p. 70) is printed in Kannada in a crowded stretch: "ಯೇನೇಷು ಜನೇಷು ಯದ್ವನಮುತ್ತಮಮಿತಿ ಕಥ್ಯತೇ ತತ್ತ್ವಂ ಆಸ್ತಾಭ್ಯಂ ಭಿರ್ಮತ್ಯೈರ್ಲಭ್ಯಮೇನ...". No Devanagari is given for it, to avoid completing garbled text; the sense as given above is the Kannada author's own gloss at the end of the passage.

49. The Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā of Rik 11 begins at the foot of p. 70 with vājam; the rest is on pp. 71 ff., not yet written.

50. from the foot of p. 70

51. pp. 70–72 — grammar pages, noted briefly

vanu yācane, tanādi; here not only "asking" is the sense: the action that follows after the request, acceptance, is meant, by lakṣaṇā; the vikaraṇa u of the tanādi class would come; bahulaṃ chandasi (Pā. 2-4-73 as read) gives its luk; thāsaḥ se (Pā. 3-4-80 as read) gives se for thās of loṭ, second person singular; savābhyāṃ vāmau (Pā. 3-4-91 as read) gives va for the e of se: van + sva; naś chapadāntasya jhali gives the anusvāra: vaṃsva; since the root is anudāttet, by tāsyānudātenñidapadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam (Pā. 6-1-186 as read) the sva is unaccented, and the root-accent (end-acute) remains; by hi ca (Pā. 8-1-34 as read) a hi in connexion prevents the all-unaccented; so tiṅ atīṇaḥ does not apply. - sukṛtaḥ: su a prefix; root ḍukṛñ karaṇe; sukarmapāpamantrapuṇyeṣu kṛñāḥ (Pā. 3-2-89 as read) gives kvip in the past sense when these are upapada; sukṛ + kvip; all the letters of the suffix drop; since kvip is pit, hrasvasya piti kṛti tuk (Pā. 6-1-71 as read) gives tuk to the short ṛ: sukṛt; the word ends in t; with the accusative plural śas: sukṛtaḥ; gatikārapapadāt kṛt (Pā. 6-2-139 as read) gives the natural accent of the second member; the ṛ after k is acute, so sukṛtaḥ is middle-acute; an unaccented after an acute becomes svarita. - adhvarān: "dhvaraḥ (injury) nāsty asmin", that in which there is no injury; a bahuvrīhi; by bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam the first member's accent would be obtained, but nañsubhyām (Pā. 6-2-172 as read) gives end-acute to the second member after nañ or su; so adhvara is end-acute; in the accusative plural, the homogeneous lengthening, and nṛṇ ... ṇatva: adhvarān. Kartur īpsitatamaṃ karma (Pā. 1-4-49 as read) — whatever the agent most wishes to reach by his action is named karman; in taṇḍulaṃ pacati the fruit, the softening of the rice, is wished for in the rice, so it is karman; here, since "adhvarān vaha" is used, the result of the action of vaha is connected with the adhvara in particular, so adhvara is karman by the preceding sūtra, and the accusative comes by karmaṇi dvitīyā; akathitaṃ ca (Pā. 1-4-51 as read) gives the name karman where the apādāna and the rest are not intended and only a relation is intended; if all verbs were so, the commentator has fixed that only the listed verbs are to be taken: nīvahyor hartreś ca (as read, with the note "Pā. Ma. 1-4-51"), and vah is among them, so these are double-object verbs; vah here has adhvarān as direct object, and sukṛtaḥ is also given the name karman by akathitaṃ ca, since the agent-kāraka in sukṛtaḥ is not intended and only a relation: so the accusative. In adhvarān, dirghād aṭi samānapāde (Pā. 8-3-9 as read) gives ru for the n of adhvarān after a long vowel when aṭ follows in the same pāda; here the n stands after a long vowel and u of upa is ac following: ru; the ru gives y and drops (yatva and lopa); ato 'ṭi nityam (Pā. 8-3-3 as read) gives the anunāsika always to the a before ru when aṭ follows; so, as said, the ā standing after r is nasalized — this occurs only in the mantra and not in the pada-text. - gr̥ṇanti: root gr̥ śabde, kryādi; third person plural jhi → anti; kryādibhyaḥ śnā (Pā. 3-1-81 as read) gives śnā; gr̥ + nā + anti; pvādīnām hrasvaḥ (Pā. 7-3-80 as read) shortens, the root being in the pvādi list; śnābhyastayor ātaḥ (Pā. 6-4-112 as read) drops the ā of the vikaraṇa when a non-kit, non-nit ... vowel-initial suffix follows; r-following n gives ṇ: gr̥ṇanti; the suffix-accent is strong: the suffix anti is acute; the a after ṇ is acute; gr̥ṇanti is middle-acute; because of the connexion with ye earlier, yadvṛttān nityam (Pā. 8-1-66 as read) blocks the all-unaccented. || 11 ||

original pp. 73-75

Rik 12

Samhitā-pāṭha

विश्वान्देवा आ वह सोमपीतयेऽन्तरिक्षादुषस्त्वम् । सास्मासु धा गोमदश्चावदुक्थ्य उषो वाजं सुवीर्यम् ॥ १२ ॥

*viśvān devāñ ā vaha somapītaye 'ntarikṣād uṣas tvam | sāsmāsu
dhā gomad aśvāvad ukthya uṣo vājaṃ suvīryam || 12 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

विश्वान् । देवान् । आ । वह । सोमऽपीतये । अन्तरिक्षात् । उषः । त्वम् । सा । अस्मासु । धाः । गोऽमत् । अश्वऽवत् । उक्थ्यम् । उषः । वाजम् । सुऽवीर्यम् ॥ १२ ॥

viśvān | devān | ā | vaha | soma-pītaye | antarikṣāt | uṣaḥ | tvam
| sā | asmāsu | dhāḥ | go-mat | aśva-vat | ukthyam | uṣaḥ |
vājam | su-vīryam || 12 || ⁵²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उषस्त्वं सोमपीतये सोमपानायान्तरिक्षादन्तरिक्षलोकाद्विश्वान्सर्वान्देवानावह ।

अस्मदीयं देवयजनदेशं प्रापय । हे उषः सा तादृशी त्वं गोमत् गोमन्तं

बहुभिर्गोभिर्युक्तमश्वदश्चैरुपेतमुक्थ्यं प्रशस्यं सुवीर्यं शोभनवीर्योपेतं

वाजमन्नमस्मासु धाः । निधेहि । स्थापयेत्यर्थः ॥ धाः । दधातेश्छन्दसि

लुङ्लङ्लिटः इति प्रार्थनायां लुङ् । गातिस्थेति सिचो लुक् । बहुलं

छन्दस्यमाङ्गयोगेऽपीत्यङभावः । गोमत् । आश्ववत् । मन्त्रे सोमाश्वेन्द्रियेति मतुपि

दीर्घत्वं । उभयत्र सुपां सुलुगिति विभक्तेर्लुक् । उक्थ्यं । उक्थं स्तोत्रं । तत्र

भवमुक्थ्यं । भवे छन्दसि इति यत् । सर्वे विधयश्छन्दसि विकल्प्यन्त इति

यतोऽनाव इत्याद्युदात्तत्वाभावे तित्स्वरितमिति स्वरितत्वं । उषः ।

आमन्त्रिताद्युदात्तत्वं । पादादित्वान्निघाताभावः । सुवीर्यं । शोभनं वीर्यं यस्य ।

वीरवीर्यौ चेत्युत्तरपदाद्युदात्तत्वं ॥

he uṣas tvam somapītaye somapānāyāntarikṣād antarikṣalokād
viśvān sarvān devān āvaha | asmadiyaṃ devayajanadeśaṃ
prāpaya | he uṣaḥ sā tādrśī tvam gomat gomantaṃ bahubhir gobhir yuktam aśvāvad aśvair upetaṃ ukthyaṃ praśasyaṃ suvīryaṃ śobhanavīryopetaṃ vājam annam asmāsu dhāḥ |
nidhehi | sthāpayety arthaḥ || dhāḥ | dadhāter chandasi
luṅlaṅliṭaḥ iti prārthanāyāṃ luṅ | gātisthe ti sico luk | bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pīty aḍabhāvaḥ | gomat | āśvāvat | mantrē somāśvendriyeti matupī dīrghatvaṃ | ubhayatra supāṃ suluk iti
vibhakter luk | ukthyaṃ | uktham stotraṃ | tatra bhavam

52. The Pada prints the verb as dhāḥ and, as the grammar below shows, takes uṣaḥ at the head of each half-line as the vocative.

*ukthyam | bhava chandasi iti yat | sarve vidhayaś chandasi vikalpyanta iti yato 'nāva ity ādyudāttatvābhāve titsvaritam iti svaritatvam | uṣaḥ | āmantritādyudāttatvam | pādādittvān
nighātābhāvaḥ | suvīryam | śobhanam vīryam yasya | vīravīryau
ceti uttarapadādyudāttatvam |* | ⁵³

Translation: "O Uṣas, you, somapītaye, for the drinking of Soma, antarikṣāt, from the middle region, viśvān devān ā vaha, bring all the gods — conduct them to our place of divine worship. O Uṣas, being such, asmāsu dhāḥ, place in us gomat, abounding in cows, aśvāvat, furnished with horses, ukthyam, praiseworthy, suvīryam, endowed with fine strength, vājam, food: set it, establish it. Dhāḥ: root dadhāti, with luṅ in the sense of a prayer (chandasi luṅlanṭiṭaḥ); luk of sic by gātisthā...; no aṭ, by bahulam chandasy amānyoge 'pi. Gomat, aśvāvat: lengthening before matup by mantra somāśvendriya...; in both the case-ending drops by supām suluk. Ukthyam: 'what belongs to the uktha, the hymn'; yat by bhava chandasi; since all rules are optional in the Chandas, the initial acute that yato 'nāvaḥ would give is absent, and a svarita comes by tīt svaritam. Uṣaḥ: initial-acute as a vocative; because it is at the head of the pāda, no all-unaccented. Suvīryam: 'that of which the strength is fine'; the second member initial-acute by vīravīryau ca."

Pratipadārtha — "uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; tvam — you; somapītaye — for drinking the Soma juice; antarikṣāt — from the world of the middle region; viśvān devān — all the gods; ā vaha — call and bring (to the place of our sacrifice); uṣaḥ — O goddess; sā — such as you; gomat — abounding in cows; aśvāvat — with horses; ukthyam — in a praiseworthy manner; suvīryam — with excellent strength (that gives nourishment); vājam — food; asmāsu — in us; dhāḥ — place (establish for ever)."

53. The Saṃhitā has aśvāvad; "āśvāvat" is given in the tail as printed ("āśvāvat" for aśvāvat, with the lengthened first member, as in Rik 2, [?]).

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, for the drinking of the Soma juice, call from the middle region all the deities to the place of our sacrifice. O goddess, you, being a benefactor to us, give us for ever food that abounds in cows and horses, is praiseworthy, and is endowed with excellent, nourishing strength."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 74)

— "Ushas, bring from the firmament, all the Gods to drink the Soma juice and bestow upon us excellent and invigorating food, cattle and horses."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 74 - asmāsu dhāḥ — "nidhehi, sthāpaya: set among us; that is, let us obtain." - "The words gomat, aśvāvat, ukthyam, suvīryam are epithets of the word vājam. The chief idea is: give us cows, horses and excellent, nourishing food."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵⁴ - dhāḥ: root ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ, adādi [as printed]; chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭaḥ (Pā. 3-4-6 as read) gives luṇ in the sense of a prayer; second person singular sip; by cleḥ sic a sic for cli: dhā + s + si; gātisthāghupābhūbhyaḥ sicaḥ parasmaipadeṣu (Pā. 2-4-77 as read) gives luk of the sic; itaś ca (Pā. 3-4-100 as read) drops the i of sip; the aṭ that would come to the root is not obtained, by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi (Pā. 6-4-75 as read), even without mā; the s of sip becomes ru and visarga: dhāḥ. - gomat, aśvāvat: matup by tadasyāsty asminn iti matup (Pā. 5-2-94 as read); in aśvāvat, since the stem ends in a, mādupadhāyās ca matoḥ vo 'yavādibhyaḥ (Pā. 8-2-9 as read) gives v for the m; mantra somāśvendriyaviśvadevyasya matau (Pā. 6-3-131 as read) lengthens aśva before matup in a mantra; in both words, the second-case singular am drops by supāṃ suluk..., so gomat, aśvāvat. - ukthyam: uktha is a hymn; "ukthe bhavam" is ukthyam; bhave chandasi (Pā. 4-4-110 as read) gives yat for the

54. pp. 74-75 — grammar pages, noted briefly

sense "being in it"; yasyeti ca drops the a: ukthya; yato 'nāvaḥ (Pā. 6-1-213 as read) would give the initial acute to a yat-ending word of two vowels other than nau; but sarve vidhayaś chandasi vikalpyante makes it optional and it does not come here; then tit svaritam (Pā. 6-1-185 as read) gives the svarita to a tit suffix (the suffix yat has t as marker), and ukthyam is end-svarita. - uṣaḥ: since this vocative stands at the head of the pāda, the all-unaccented of the eighth chapter does not come; āmantritasya ca (Pā. 6-1-198 as read) gives the initial acute. - suvīryam: "śobhanam vīryam yasya tat"; very mighty; a bahuvrīhi; vīravīryau ca (Pā. 6-2-120 as read) gives the initial acute to the word vīrya standing after su in a bahuvrīhi; here, since vīrya stands after su, the ī after v is acute; suvīryam is middle-acute. || 12 ||

original pp. 75-78

Rik 13

Samhitā-pāṭha

यस्या रुशन्तो अर्चयः प्रति भद्रा अदृक्षत । सा नो रयिं विश्ववारं सुपेशसमुषा ददातु सुगम्यम् ॥ १३ ॥

yasyā ruśanto arcayaḥ prati bhadrā adṛkṣata | sā no rayiṃ viśvavāraṃ supeśasam uṣā dadātu sugmyam || 13 ||

Pada-pāṭha

यस्याः । रुशन्तः । अर्चयः । प्रति । भद्राः । अदृक्षत । सा । नः । रयिम् । विश्ववारम् । सुपेशसम् । उषाः । ददातु । सुगम्यम् ॥ १३ ॥

*yasyāḥ | ruśantaḥ | arcayaḥ | prati | bhadrāḥ | adṛkṣata | sā |
naḥ | rayim | viśva-vāram | su-peśasam | uṣāḥ | dadātu |
sugmyam || 13 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

यस्या उषसोऽर्चयः प्रकाशा रुशन्तः शत्रून् हिंसन्तो भद्राः कल्याणाः प्रत्यदृक्षत
 प्रतिदृश्यन्ते सा तथाभूतोषा नोऽस्मभ्यं रयिं ददातु । कीदृशं रयिं । विश्ववारं विश्वस्य
 वारकं । यद्वा । विश्वैर्वरणीयं । सुपेशसं पेश इति रूपनाम । शोभनरूपोपेतं सुगम्यं
 सुष्ठु गन्तव्यं । यद्वा । सुगम्यमिति सुखनाम । तद्धेतुत्वात्तच्छब्दः ॥ रुशन्तः । रुश
 रिश हिंसायां । शतरि तुदादित्वाच्छः । अदुपदेशाल्लसार्वधातुकानुदात्तत्वे सति
 शिष्यत्वाद्विकरणस्वरे प्राप्ते व्यत्ययेनाद्युदात्तत्वं । अदृक्षत । दृशेः कर्मणि लुङि
 झस्यादेशः । च्लेः सिच् । न दृशः । पा. ३-१-४७ । इति क्सप्रतिषेधः । एकाच
 इतीट्प्रतिषेधः । लिङ्सिचावात्मनेपदेषु । पा. १-२-११ । इति सिचः
 कित्त्वाल्लघूपधगुणाभावः । सृजिदृशोर्झल्यमकिति । पा. ६-१-५८ ।
 इत्यकारागमाभावश्च किति त्वेव । षत्वकत्वषत्वानि । अडागम उदात्तः ।
 यद्वृत्तयोगादनिघातः । विश्ववारं । विश्वं वृणोतीति विश्ववारः । वृज् वरणे कर्मण्यण् ।
 यद्वा । विश्वैर्वियत इति विश्ववारः । कर्मणि घञ् । मरुद्वृधादित्वात्पूर्वपदान्तोदात्तत्वं ।
 सुगम्यं सुष्ठु गन्तव्यः सुगमः । गमेर्घञर्थे कविधानमिति कप्रत्ययः ।
 गमहनेत्यादिनोपधालोपः । तत्र भवं सुगम्यं । भवे छन्दसि इति यत् । यतोऽनाव इत्याद्युदात्तत्वं ॥

yasyā uṣaso 'rcayaḥ prakāśā ruśantaḥ śatrūn hiṃsanto bhadraḥ kalyāṇāḥ pratyadr̥kṣata pratidr̥śyante sā tathābhūtoṣā no
 'smabhyaṃ rayiṃ dadātu | kīdr̥śaṃ rayiṃ | viśvavāraṃ viśvasya
 vārakaṃ | yadvā | viśvair varaṇīyaṃ | supeśasaṃ peśa iti rūpanāma | śobhanarūpopetaṃ sugmyaṃ suṣṭhu gantavyaṃ |
 yadvā | sugmyam iti sukhanaṃ | taddhetutvāt tacchabdaḥ |
 ruśantaḥ | ruśa riśa hiṃsāyāṃ | śatari tudādittvāc chaḥ | adupadeśāl lasārvadhātukānudāttatve sati śiṣyatvād vikaraṇasvare prāpte vyatyayenādyudāttatvaṃ | adr̥kṣata | dr̥śeḥ karmaṇi luṇi jhasyādeśaḥ | cleḥ sic | na dr̥śaḥ | pā. 3-1-47 | iti ksapraṭiṣedhaḥ | ekāca itīṭpratiṣedhaḥ | liṅsicāv ātmanepadeṣu |
 pā. 1-2-11 | iti sicaḥ kittvāl laghūpadhaguṇābhāvaḥ | sṛjidr̥śor jhaly akiti | pā. 6-1-58 | ity akārāgamābhāvaś ca kiti tv eva |
 ṣatvakatvaṣatvāni | aḍāgama udātaḥ | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ
 | viśvavāraṃ | viśvaṃ vṛṇotīti viśvavāraḥ | vṛñ varaṇe karmaṇy aṇ | yadvā | viśvair vṛiyata iti viśvavāraḥ | karmaṇi ghañ |
 marudvṛdhādittvāt pūrvapadāntodāttatvaṃ | sugmyaṃ suṣṭhu

*gantavyaḥ sugmaḥ | gamer ghañarthe kavidhānam iti
kapratyayaḥ | gamahanety ādinopadhālopaḥ | tatra bhavaṃ
sugmyam | bhava chandasi iti yat | yato 'nāva ity ādyudāttatvaṃ
||* ⁵⁵

Translation: "Yasyāḥ, of which Uṣas, arcayaḥ, the rays, ruśantaḥ, injuring (destroying) enemies, bhadraḥ, auspicious, prati adṛkṣata, are seen on every side — sā, such an Uṣas, naḥ, to us, rayiṃ dadātu, let her give wealth. What kind of wealth? Viśvavāram, warding off all; or, to be chosen by all; supeśasam, peśa being a name for form: endowed with fine form; sugmyam, easy to attain; or sugmya is a name for happiness, as being its cause. Ruśantaḥ: root ruśa riśa hiṃsāyām; śa because of the tudādi class; the end-acute is overridden by exchange to initial. Adṛkṣata: root dṛśi in the passive aorist; jha replaced; sic for cli; ksa is forbidden by na dṛśaḥ (Pā. 3-1-47); no iṭ; sic is kit (Pā. 1-2-11), so no guṇa of the light penultimate; aṭ acute; because of the yad-connexion no all-unaccented. Viśvavāram: 'what wards off all'; aṇ in the object sense; or 'what is chosen by all', ghañ; the first member end-acute by the marudvṛdh class. Sugmyam: 'easy to go to is sugma'; ka by gamer ghañarthe kavidhānam; the penultimate dropped by gamahana...; 'belonging to that' is sugmya; yat by bhava chandasi; initial-acute by yato 'nāvaḥ."

Pratipadārtha — "yasyāḥ — of which Uṣas; arcayaḥ — rays; ruśantaḥ — injuring enemies; bhadraḥ — taking auspicious forms; prati adṛkṣata — are seen all round; sā uṣāḥ — such an Uṣas; naḥ — to us; viśvavāram — dear to all, to be desired by all; supeśasam — of beautiful form; sugmyam — easily got; rayiṃ — wealth; dadātu — let her give."

Bhāvārtha

55. The print has "sugmyam" in the Saṃhitā and Pada; in the tail "sṛjīdṛśor jhaly akiti" is as printed, the line "ṣatvakatvaṣatvāni" as read [?], and the numbers as read.

— "As soon as the goddess Uṣas rises, her rays injure enemies and, taking auspicious forms, shine all round before our eyes. May such a radiant Uṣas give us wealth that is dear to all, attractive to all, and easy to obtain."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 76) — "May that Ushas whose bright and refreshing rays are visible all round, grant us agreeable and easily attainable riches that all may envy."

⁵⁶

Rik 48.13, continued ⁵⁷

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 77 - ruśantaḥ — "śatrūn hiṃsantaḥ bhadraḥ kalyāṇaḥ: those that injure enemies, or auspicious ones; root ruśa riśa hiṃsāyām" ⁵⁸. - arcayaḥ — "since the word arciḥ is read among the twelve [?] names of flames beginning jamat, kalpalīkinam (Ni. 2-2[?]8 as read), arcayaḥ means shining rays." - viśvavāram — "viśvair varaṇīyam: desired by all, wanted by all" ⁵⁹. "Since this word has been used by many sages on many occasions, it appears to be of special use. We give one or two examples" — eight Ṛgveda citations in the print, untranslated in the source; each is given in three layers, with an editorial and tentative gloss, every reference numeral "as read [?]":

1. | अस्मे रयिं विश्ववारं समिन्वास्मे विश्वानि द्रविणानि धेहि ॥ ⁶⁰

asme rayiṃ viśvavāraṃ sam inva asme viśvāni draviṇāni dhehi || — editorial and tentative: "bring together for us wealth desirable to all; put in us all riches."

2. | आर्वाग्रथं विश्ववारं त उग्रेन्द्र युक्तासो हरयो वहन्तु ॥ ⁶¹

⁵⁶. The Special Topics and grammar of Rik 13 begin on p. 77, not yet written.

⁵⁷. from p. 77

⁵⁸. the source adds in English: "dazzling to the eyes, auspicious, refreshing &c."

⁵⁹. in English: "desirable by all"

⁶⁰. R. Saṃ. 3-4-2 as read [?]

ārvāgratham viśvavāraṃ ta ugrendra yuktāso harayo vahantu || — editorial and tentative: "may your yoked bay horses, O mighty Indra, bring hither your chariot that all desire."

3. | प्र वायुमच्छा बृहती मनीषा बृहद्रयिं विश्ववारं रथप्राम् ॥ ⁶²

pra vāyum acchā bṛhatī manīṣā bṛhad rayiṃ viśvavāraṃ rathaprām || — editorial and tentative: "may great prayer go forth to Vāyu, to the great wealth desired by all, the chariot-filler."

4. | द्यौश्च यं पृथिवी बावृधाते आ यं होता यजति विश्ववारम् ॥ ⁶³

dyauś ca yaṃ pṛthivī bāvṛdhāte ā yaṃ hotā yajati viśvavāraṃ || — editorial and tentative: "whom heaven and earth have caused to grow, whom the hotṛ worships, desired by all."

5. | आदित्येभिरदितिं विश्वजन्यां बृहस्पतिमृक्वभिर्विश्ववारम् ॥ ⁶⁴

ādityebhir aditiṃ viśvajanyāṃ bṛhaspatim ṛkvabhir viśvavāraṃ || — editorial and tentative: "with the Ādityas, Aditi who is kind to all; Bṛhaspati, with the praisers, desired by all."

6. | अस्मे इन्द्रावरुणा विश्ववारं रयिं धत्तं वसुमन्तं पुरुक्षुम् ॥ ⁶⁵

asme indrāvaruṇā viśvavāraṃ rayiṃ dhattaṃ vasumantaṃ purukṣum || — editorial and tentative: "O Indra and Varuṇa, place in us wealth desired by all, rich in good things, abounding in food."

7. | रयिं देहि विश्ववारम् ॥ ⁶⁶

61. R. Saṃ. 6-37-1 as read [?]

62. R. Saṃ. 6-49-4 as read [?]

63. R. Saṃ. 7-7-5 as read [?]

64. R. Saṃ. 7-10-4 as read [?]

65. R. Saṃ. 7-84-4 as read [?]

66. R. Saṃ. 8-71-3 as read [?]

rayiṃ dehi viśvavāram || — editorial and tentative: "give wealth desired by all."

8. | त्वाम् जातवेदसं विश्ववारं गृहे धियो ॥ ⁶⁷

tvām u jātavedasaṃ viśvavāraṃ gr̥he dhiyo || — editorial and tentative: "you, O Jātavedas, desired by all, in the house [we seat?] our prayers" — the sentence is cut off in the print and the sense is doubtful [?].

followed by "ityādi", "and so on". - supeśasam — "peśa is a name for form; śobhanarūpopetam: of fine form, one with a good form." - sugmyam — "suṣṭhu gantavyam: well to be gone to. Or, sugmyam is a name for happiness. Since the word sugmyam is read among the twenty-eight [?] names of happiness beginning śiṃbātā, śakarā [as printed, crowded, [?]] (Ni. 3-1[?]3 as read), sugmyam means happiness. The ṛṣi's idea is that the goddess Uṣas give us the wealth that all desire, and happiness as well."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶⁸ - ruśantaḥ: root ruśa riśa hiṃsāyām, tudādi; śatṛ in the place of laṭ; ruś + at; the tudādi vikaraṇa śa; ato guṇe gives pararūpa for the a of śa and the a of śatṛ; ruśat, a stem ending in t; because śatṛ is ugit, the first-case plural jas, having the name sarvanāmasthāna, gets num by ugidacām sarvanāmasthāne 'dhātoḥ; the nasal becomes anusvāra and homogeneous nasal; the s gets ru and visarga: ruśantaḥ. Here śatṛ, being lasārvadhātuka, is unaccented by tāsyānudātenñīdadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam, and the accent of the vikaraṇa (initial acute) would be the strong one; but by vyatyayo bahulam (Pā. 3-1-85 as read) the root-accent is strong here; it is initial-acute, so the u after r is acute: ruśantaḥ is initial-acute. - adr̥kṣata: root dr̥śir prekṣaṇe, bhvādi; passive luṇ, third person plural jha; dr̥ś + jha; ātmanepadeṣv ana... (ātmanepadeṣv anataḥ, Pā. 7-1-5 as read) gives at for jha after a

67. R. Saṃ. 10-150-3 as read [?]

68. pp. 78-79 — grammar pages, noted briefly

non-a stem; the cli of luṇ → sic (cleḥ sic); kṣa would be the substitute (śalo 'ig upadhād dhaletaḥ kṣaḥ, Pā. 3-1-45 as read), but na dṛśaḥ (Pā. 3-1-47 as read) forbids it; dṛś + s + ata; sic being ārdhadhātuka, iṭ would be obtained, but ekāca upadeśe 'nudāttāt (Pā. 7-2-10 as read) forbids iṭ after a one-vowel, unaccented-in-the-list root; liṅsicāṇ ātmanepadeṣu (Pā. 1-2-11 as read) makes liṅ and sic kit when an ātmanepada follows, when the root ends in a consonant after a vowel ik; here sic is kit (the ś of the root precedes, and the ātmanepada follows), so no guṇa of the light penultimate; kniti ca does the forbidding; likewise srjīdṛśor jhaly akiti (Pā. 6-1-58 as read) — am-augment for these two roots before a jhal-initial non-kit suffix — does not come, since sic is kit; vraścabhraśja... gives ṣ for ś; ṣaḍhoḥ kaḥ si gives k before s; ādeśapratyayayoḥ gives ṣ for the s: the cluster kṣ; the aṭ augment, which is the cause of luṇ, comes to the root; since the augment is acute by the sūtra that enjoins it, the a at the start is acute: adṛkṣata is initial-acute; because yasyāḥ (with yat) is in connexion, tiṅ atīnaḥ gives no all-unaccented. - viśvavāram: "viśvaṃ vṛṇoti", that which covers the world; root vṛṇ varaṇe; karmany aṇ (Pā. 3-2-1 as read) gives aṇ when an object is upapada; vṛ + a, ñit/ṇit, so aco ñṇiti (Pā. 7-2-115 as read) gives vṛddhi in place of the ṛ, with r: vāra; or "viśvair vṛiyate", what is desired by the world, ghaṇ in the passive; as the ghaṇ is ñit, vṛddhi as before. The word is read in the marudvṛdhādi list, where end-acute is enjoined for the first member; so the last a of viśva is acute here; viśvavāram is a word with the acute on the second syllable [as the Kannada says, "dvitīyāc-udātta"]. - sugmyam: "suṣṭhu gantavyaḥ sugmaḥ", well attainable (happiness); root gam gatau, bhṇādi; ghaṇarthe kavidhānam (vārttika on Pā. 3-3-58, as read "3-3-58 vā" [?]) gives the suffix ka in the sense of ghaṇ; su + gam + a; gamahanajanakhanaghasāṃ lopāḥ knity anāṇi (Pā. 6-4-98 as read) drops the penultimate of gam etc. before a kit or ñit suffix other than aṇ; here the suffix is kit and vowel-initial, so the a of gam drops: sugma; "sugme

bhavam", belonging to sugma: bhave chandasi (Pā. 4-4-110 as read) gives yat after a locative; yasyeti ca (Pā. 6-4-148 as read) drops the a of sugma before yat; yato 'nāvaḥ (Pā. 6-1-213 as read) gives the initial acute to a yat-ending word of two vowels (other than nau); sugmyam is initial-acute; the unaccented final after an acute becomes svārīta. || 13 ||

original p. 79

Rik 14

Samhitā-pāṭha

ये चिद्धि त्वामृषयः पूर्व ऊतये जुहूरेऽवसे महि । सा नः स्तोमाँ अभि गृणीहि राधसोषः शुक्रेण शोचिषा ॥ १४ ॥

*ye cid dhi tvām ṛṣayaḥ pūrva ūtaye juhūre 'vase mahi | sā naḥ
stomāṃ abhi grṇīhi rādhasoṣaḥ śukreṇa śociṣā || 14 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

ये । चित् । हि । त्वाम् । ऋषयः । पूर्वे । ऊतये । जुहूरे । अवसे । महि । सा । नः । स्तोमान् । अभि । गृणीहि । राधसा । उषः । शुक्रेण । शोचिषा ॥ १४ ॥

*ye | cit | hi | tvām | ṛṣayaḥ | pūrve | ūtaye | juhūre | avase |
mahi | sā | naḥ | stomān | abhi | grṇīhi | rādhasā | uṣaḥ |
śukreṇa | śociṣā || 14 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे महि महते पूजनीये वोषोदेवते त्वां ये चिद्धि ये खलु प्रसिद्धाः पूर्वे चिरंतना ऋषयो
मन्त्रद्रष्टार ऊतये रक्षणाय । अव इत्यन्ननाम । अवसेऽन्नाय च जुहूरे जुह्विरे
आहूतवन्तः । सूक्तरूपैर्मन्त्रैः स्तुतवन्त इत्यर्थः । हे उषः सा तादृशी त्वं
राधसास्माभिर्दत्तेन हविलक्षणेन धनेन शुक्रेण शोचिषा दीप्तेन तमो निवारयितुं
समर्थेन तेजसा चोपलक्षिता सती तेषामृषीणामिव नोऽस्माकं स्तोमानभि
स्तुतीरभिलक्ष्य गृणीहि । सम्यक् स्तुतमिति शब्दय । अस्मदीयाभिः स्तुतिभिः
संतुष्टा भवेत्यर्थः ॥ ऊतये । अवतेः क्तिनि ज्वरत्वरेत्यादिना वकारस्योपधायाश्च

ऊर् । ऊतियूतीत्यादिना क्तिन उदात्तो निपातितः । जुहूरे । हेञ् स्पर्धायां शब्दे च ।
 लिट्यभ्यस्तस्य चेति द्विर्वचनात्पूर्वमेवाभ्यस्तकारणभूतस्य ह्ययतेः संप्रसारणं ।
 अभ्यस्तस्य यो ह्ययतिः कश्चाभ्यस्तस्य ह्ययतिः यस्तस्य कारणम् । का. ६-१-३३
 [?] । इति व्याख्यातत्वात् । परपूर्वत्वे हल इति दीर्घत्वं । द्विर्वचनादीनि । इरयो र
 इतीरेचो रेआदेशः । चित इत्यन्तोदात्तत्वं । यद्वृत्तयोगादनिघातः । तत्र हि
 पञ्चमीनिर्देशेऽपि व्यवहितेऽपि कार्यं भवतीत्युक्तं । का. ८-१-६६ [?] । मही । मह
 पूजायां । औणादिक इ प्रत्ययः । कृदिकारादक्तिन इति ङीष् । संबुद्धावम्बार्थेति
 ह्रस्वत्वं । पा. ७-३-१०७ [?] । स्तोमान् । संहितायां नकारस्य रुत्वाद्युक्तं ।
 नित्त्वाद्युदात्तत्वं । गृणीहि । गृ शब्दे । क्र्यादिकः । शिति प्वादीनां ह्रस्व इति ह्रस्वत्वं
 । राधसा । राध्नोत्यनेनेति राधः । असुनो नित्त्वाद्युदात्तत्वं । उषः पादादित्वादष्टमिकनिघाताभावे षाष्टिकमामन्त्रिताद्युदात्तत्वं ॥ १४ [?] ॥

he mahi mahate pūjanīye voṣodevate tvāṃ ye cid dhi ye khalu prasiddhāḥ pūrve ciraṃtanā ṛṣayo mantradraṣṭāra ūtaye rakṣaṇāya | ava ity annanāma | avase 'nnāya ca juhūre juhvire āhūtavantah | sūktarūpair mantraiḥ stutavanta ity arthaḥ | he uṣaḥ sā tādṛśī tvāṃ rādhasāsmābhir dattena havirlakṣaṇena dhanena śukreṇa śociṣā dīptena tamo nivārayituṃ samarthena tejasā copalakṣitā satī teṣāṃ ṛṣiṇām iva no 'smākaṃ stomān abhi stutīr abhilakṣya grṇīhi | samyak stutam iti śabdaya | asmadīyābhiḥ stutibhiḥ saṃtuṣṭā bhavety arthaḥ || ūtaye | avateḥ
 ktini jvaratvarety ādinā vakārasypadhāyāś ca ūṭh | ūtiyūti ty
 ādinā ktina udātto nipātitaḥ | juhūre | hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca
 | lity abhyastasya ceti dvirvacanāt pūrvam evābhyastakāraṇabhūtasya hvayateḥ saṃprasāraṇaṃ | abhyastasya yo hvayatiḥ kaś cābhyastasya hvayatiḥ yas tasya kāraṇam | kā. 6-1-33 [?] | iti vyākhyātatvāt | parapūrvatve hala iti dīrghatvaṃ | dvirvacanādīni | irayo ra itireco re ādeśaḥ | cita ity antodāttatvaṃ | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ | tatra hi
 pañcamīnirdeśe 'pi vyavahite 'pi kāryaṃ bhavatīty uktaṃ | kā.
 8-1-66 [?] | mahī | maha pūjāyāṃ | auṇādika i pratyayaḥ |
 kṛdikārād aktina iti ṇiṣ | saṃbuddhāv ambārtheti hrasvatvaṃ |
 pā. 7-3-107 [?] | stomān | saṃhitāyāṃ nakārasya rutvādy uktaṃ |
 nittvād ādyudāttatvaṃ | grṇīhi | gr̥ śabde | kryādikaḥ | śiti

*pvādīnām hrasva iti hrasvatvaṃ | rādhasā | rādhnoty aneneti
rādhaḥ | asuno nittvād ādyudāttatvaṃ | uṣaḥ pādādittvād
aṣṭamikanighātābhāve śāṣṭhikam āmantritādyudāttatvaṃ || 14
[?] ||* ⁶⁹

Translation: "O mahi, O great, venerable goddess Uṣas: ye cid dhi, those well-known ancient sages, seers of mantras, pūrve, of old — ūtaye, for protection; ava is a name for food — avase, and for food, juhūre, called you: they praised you with mantras in the form of hymns. O Uṣas, sā, such as you are, rādhasā, with the wealth in the form of oblations given by us, and with śukreṇa śociṣā, bright light, with splendour able to hold off darkness, being marked, naḥ stomān abhi grṇīhi, as for those sages, so for us, hearing our praises, utter a word of approval: be pleased with our praises. Ūtaye: from ava, with ktin, ūṭh in place of the v and the penultimate by jvaratvara...; the acute of ktin given by nipātana in ūtiyūti.... Juhūre: root hveñ spardhāyām śabde ca; in liṭ, the saṃprasāraṇa of the root hveñ that is the cause of the abhyasta comes before the doubling; ... the lengthening by hala; ire (for irec) by irayo re; the end-acute by citaḥ; because of the yad-connexion no all-unaccented. Mahī: root maha pūjāyām; Uṇādi i; nīṣ by kṛdikārād aktinaḥ; the shortening in the vocative by ambārtha... Stomān: ...; initial-acute because nīt. Grṇīhi: root gṛ śabde kryādi; the shortening by pvādīnām hrasvaḥ when sīt follows. Rādhasā: 'that by which one succeeds' is rādhas; initial-acute because asun is nīt. Uṣaḥ: because it is at the head of the pāda, the eighth-chapter all-unaccented does not come, and the sixth-chapter initial acute of the vocative comes."

Pratipadārtha — "mahi — O venerable goddess Uṣas; tvām — you; ye cid dhi — which well-known; pūrve — ancient; ṛṣayaḥ — sages, seers of mantras; ūtaye — for protection; avase — and for food; juhūre — called (with mantras in the form of hymns); uṣaḥ — O goddess; sā — so praised, you; rādhasā — with the wealth in the form of oblations offered by us; śukreṇa śociṣā — and with bright light able to ward off darkness (as you listened to the praises of those sages); naḥ — to our; stomān abhi — accepting the hymns; gr̥ṇīhi — utter a word (that shows your delight)."

69. The first words of the bhāṣya in the print read "he mahi mahate pūjaniye voṣodevate", where uṣodevate is read; the clause "vakārasypadhāyās ca ūṭh", the numbers after kā., and the closing numeral are crowded, [?].

Bhāvārtha

— "O venerable goddess Uṣas, the ancient and famous sages, with divine vision and knowing the form of mantras, called you with mantras in the form of hymns, both for protection and for food. You, satisfied with their praise, favoured them. In the same way, accepting also our hymns, together with the wealth in the form of oblations that we offer and with your bright light, which is able to ward off darkness, utter a word that shows your delight."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 81)

— "Adorable Ushas, ancient sages invoked you for protection and food; you Ushas who shine with pure light, accept our offerings and commend our praises"

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 81 - cit — "cid ity eṣo 'nekakarmā (Ni. 1-[?] as read) — the word cit has many senses; here the commentator has given the sense 'well-known'." — Nirukta citation, untranslated in the source:

चिदित्येषोऽनेककर्मा । (Ni. 1-[?] as read [?])

cid ity eṣo 'nekakarmā | — editorial and tentative: "this cit has many functions." - mahi — "mahate, pūjanīye: venerable." - stomān — "stotrāṇi: the hymns, in the form of sūktas, that we make." - "The chief idea of the ṛk: O venerable goddess Uṣas, the sages of old called you for protection and for food and prayed; as then, you, who shine with a splendour that drives away darkness, accept the hymns we make."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁷⁰ - ūtaye: root ava rakṣaṇe, bhvādi; ktin in the abstract sense; av + ti; jvaratvarasrivyavimavām upadhāyāś ca (Pā. 6-4-20 as read) — when kvip or a suffix beginning with a jhal or a nasal follows the roots jvar, tvar, sriv, avi, mav, the penultimate and the v are together replaced by ūṭh: here, because of the a as penultimate, ūṭ replaces for all; ktin is kit [the k is a marker], so the form is ūti; in the dative singular, with ñe, ghi has its name, and the guṇa and ay come: ūtaye; ūtiyūtijūṭisātihetikīrtayaś ca (Pā. 3-3-97 as read) gives ktin by nipātana as acute on the end, which overrides the usual suffix-accent, so the a after t is acute: ūtaye is middle-acute. - juhūre: root hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca, bhvādi; liṭ, third person plural jha; liṭas tajhayor eśirec (Pā. 3-4-81 as read) gives irec; liṭi dhātor anabhyāsasya (Pā. 6-1-8 as read) would give doubling to the root, but abhyastasya ca (Pā. 6-1-32 as read) gives saṃprasāraṇa to hve, which is going to form the abhyasta, so the saṃprasāraṇa comes first; after the doubling, the two parts get the name abhyasta; the Kannada author quotes the commentary's own explanation of abhyastasya (Kāśikā 6-1-33 as read [?]): "the hveñ that is the cause of the abhyasta"; hu + e + ire; saṃprasāraṇāc ca gives pūrvarūpa: hu + ire; halaḥ (Pā. 6-4-2 as read) lengthens the saṃprasāraṇa before a consonant: hū + ire; doubling: hū + hū + ire; hrasvaḥ (Pā. 7-4-59 as read) shortens the vowel of the reduplicative syllable: hu; kuhoś cuḥ (Pā. 7-4-62 as read) gives j for h: juhū + ire; irayo re (Pā. 6-4-76 as read) gives re for ire in the Chandas: juhūre; ciṭaḥ (Pā. 6-1-163 as read) gives the end-acute since irec is cit; the yad-connexion (yat, in ye) prevents the all-unaccented (yadvṛttān nityam). The Kannada author explains that, in the sūtra, the fifth case is used, and that by the paribhāṣā tasmād ity uttarasya the relation should arise only with the immediately next word, so that the prohibition would not apply when words intervene; but the vṛtti (Kāśikā 8-1-66 as read [?]) says it applies even with an intervening word. ⁷¹

Rik 48.14, continued ⁷²

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā, continued ⁷³ - mahi: root maha pūjāyām, bhṽādi; the Uṇādi suffix in by sarvadhātubhya in (Uṇ. [?] as read); mah + in; for the feminine kṛdikārād aktinaḥ (Pā. 4-1-45 with the gaṇa number as read [?]) gives nīṣ for a kṛdanta ending in i other than ktin: mah + ī, the i dropped before it: mahī; in the vocative ambārthanadyor hrasvaḥ (Pā. 7-3-107 as read) shortens it, and eṇhrasvāt sambuddheḥ (Pā. 6-1-69 as read) drops su: mahi; the all-unaccented of the vocative comes. - stomān: after stoma, the accusative plural śas; the homogeneous lengthening and natva; in the mantra only (not in the pada-text), dīrghād aṭi samānapāde (Pā. 8-3-9 as read) gives ru as in adhvarān (Rik 11), then yatva, lopa, and ato 'ṭi nityam (Pā. 8-3-3 as read) gives the nasal on the vowel: stomāṅ; being nit, ñnityādir nityam (Pā. 6-1-197 as read) gives the initial acute. - gr̥ṇīhi: root gr̥ śabde, kryādi; loṭ, second person singular sip, replaced by hi; gr̥ + hi; śnā as vikaraṇa, being śit, pvādīnām hrasvaḥ (Pā. 7-3-80 as read) shortens the root; īhalyaghoḥ (Pā. 6-4-113 as read) gives ī for the ā of śnā before a consonant-initial sārvadhātuka that is kit or ñit (here hi is ñit by extension, sārvadhātukam apit): gr̥ṇīhi; because the word follows a non-finite word (stomān), tiṅ atinaḥ gives the all-unaccented. - rādhasā: "rādhnoti anena iti rādhaḥ", that by which (men) succeed, wealth; sarvadhātubhyo 'sun (Uṇ. 4-[?]2 as read [?]) after rādha saṃsiddhau; a stem in s; asun is nit, so initial-acute; instrumental singular. - uṣaḥ: vocative singular; the all-unaccented of the eighth chapter does not come, as apādāda forbids it at the head of a pāda; so the initial acute of the vocative by the sixth chapter: uṣaḥ is initial-acute. || 14 ||

original pp. 83–86

71. The rest of the Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā of Rik 14 (on mahi and the following words) is on pp. 82–83 and is not yet written.

72. from p. 82

73. pp. 82–83 — grammar pages, noted briefly

Rik 15

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

उषो यदद्य भानुना वि द्वारावृणवो दिवः । प्र नो यच्छतादवृकं पृथु चर्दिः प्र देवि गोमतीरिषः ॥ १५ ॥

*uṣo yad adya bhānunā vi dvārāv ṛṇavo divaḥ | pra no yacchatād
avṛkaṃ pṛthu cchardīḥ pra devi gomatīr iṣaḥ || 15 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

उषः । यत् । अद्य । भानुना । वि । द्वारौ । ऋणवः । दिवः । प्र । नः । यच्छतात् । अवृकम् ।
पृथु । चर्दिः । प्र । देवि । गोऽमतीः । इषः ॥ १५ ॥

uṣaḥ | yat | adya | bhānunā | vi | dvārau | ṛṇavaḥ | divaḥ | pra | naḥ | yacchatāt | avṛkaṃ | pṛthu | chardīḥ | pra | devi | go-matīḥ | iṣaḥ || 15 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उषस्त्वमद्यास्मिन्प्रभाते समये यद्यस्माद्भानुना प्रकाशेन दिवोऽन्तरिक्षस्य द्वारौ
द्वारभूतौ पूर्वापरदिग्भागावन्धकारेणाच्छादितौ व्यृणवः विश्लिष्य प्राप्नोषि तस्मात्त्वं
नोऽस्मभ्यं छर्दिस्तेजस्वि गृहं प्र यच्छतात् । देहि । कीदृशं छर्दिः । अवृकं
हिंसकरहितं पृथु विस्तीर्णं । अपि च हे देवि देवनशीले गोमतीर्बहुभिर्गोभिर्युक्ता
इषोऽन्नानि । प्रेत्युपसर्गस्यावृत्तेर्यच्छतादित्यनुषज्यते । प्रयच्छतात् । देहि ।
त्वदागमनस्यास्मद्भक्षणार्थत्वादस्मदभीष्टं गृहादिकं प्रयच्छेत्यर्थः । छर्दिरिति गृहनाम ।
छर्दिश्छदिरिति तन्नामसु पाठात् । ऋणवः । ऋणु गतौ । छान्दसे लङि सिपि
तनादित्वादुप्रत्ययः । ततो व्यत्ययेन शपि गुणावादेशौ । शपः पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे
उप्रत्ययस्वरः शिष्यते । यद्वृत्तयोगादनिघातः । दिवः । ऊडिदमित्यादिना
विभक्तेरुदात्तत्वं । प्र नः । उपसर्गाद्बहुलमिति बहुलवचनान्नसो णत्वाभावः ।
यच्छतात् । दाण् दाने । शपि पाप्नेत्यादिना यच्छादेशः । अवृकं । नास्ति
वृकोऽस्मिन्निति बहुव्रीहौ नञ्सुभ्यामित्युत्तरपदान्तोदात्तत्वं । पृथु । प्रथ प्रख्याने ।

प्रथिग्रदिभ्रस्जं संप्रसारणं सलोपश्च । उ. १-२९ [?] । इति कुप्रत्ययः संप्रसारणं च । छर्दिरिति गृहनाम । उद्धृदिर् दीप्तिदेवनयोः । अर्विशुचिहुसृष्टिछादिछर्दिभ्य इति ।

उ. २-१०८ [?] । इसिप्रत्ययः । लघूपधगुणः । प्रत्ययस्वरः ॥

he uṣas tvam adyāsmīn prabhāte samaye yat yasmād bhānunā prakāśena divo 'ntarikṣasya dvārau dvārabhūtau pūrvāparadiggbhāgāv andhakāreṇācchāditau vy ṛṇavaḥ viśliṣya prāpnoṣi tasmāt tvam no 'smabhyam chardis tejasvi grham pra yacchatāt | dehi | kīdrśam chardiḥ | avṛkam himsakarahitam prṇthu vistīrnam | api ca he devi devanaśīle gomatīr bahubhir gobhir yuktā iṣo 'nnāni | prety upasargasyāvṛtter yacchatād ity anuṣajyate | prayacchatāt | dehi | tvadāgamanasyāsmadrakṣaṇārthatvād asmadabhīṣtam grhādikaṁ prayacchety arthaḥ | chardir iti grhanāma | chardiś chadir iti tannāmasu pāṭhāt | ṛṇavaḥ | ṛṇu gatau | chāndase laṇi sipi tanāditvād upratyayaḥ | tato vyatyayena śapi guṇāvādeśau | śapaḥ pīttvād anudāttatve upratyayasvaraḥ śiṣyate | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ | divaḥ | ūdidam ity ādinā vibhakter udāttatvam | pra naḥ | upasargād bahulam iti bahulavacanān nasonatvābhāvaḥ | yacchatāt | dāṇ dāne | śapi pāghrety ādinā yacchādeśaḥ | avṛkam | nāsti vṛko 'smīn iti bahuvrīhau naṇsubhyām ity uttarapadāntodāttatvam | prṇthu | pratha prakhyāne | prathimradibhrasjām samprasāraṇam salopas ca | u. 1-29 [?] | iti kupratyayaḥ samprasāraṇam ca | chardir iti grhanāma | ucchṛdir dīptidevanayoh | arcīśucihurpichādichardibhya isih | u. 2-108 [?] | isipratyayaḥ | laghūpadhagunaḥ | pratyayasvaraḥ || ⁷⁴

Translation: "O Uṣas, adya, today, at this time of dawn, yat, since, bhānunā, by your light, divaḥ dvārau, the two gates of the atmosphere — the east and west quarters, covered by darkness — vy ṛṇavaḥ, you have opened and reached; therefore, naḥ, to us,

74. The reading "nasonatvābhāvaḥ" and the two Uṇādi numbers are as read, [?]; the words "chardiś chadir iti" in the Nighaṇṭu-reference are as printed and crowded.

pra yacchatāt, give chardiḥ, a shining house. What kind of house? Avṛkam, free of harmers; pr̥thu, spacious. And furthermore, O devi, you who sport, gomatīḥ iṣaḥ, foods joined with many cows — the pra is repeated: pra [yacchatāt], give. Since your coming is for our protection, give our desired house and the like. Chardiḥ is a name for 'house', being read among its names. Ṛṇavaḥ: root ṛṇu gatau; in the Vedic imperfect, sip; the u-suffix because of the tanādi class; then by exchange śap, with guṇa and av; śap is pit and unaccented, the accent of the u-suffix remains; no all-unaccented because of the yad-connexion. Pra naḥ: by upasargād bahulam the ṇatva of nas does not come. Yacchatāt: root dāṇ dāne; yaccha by pāghrā.... Avṛkam: 'in which there is no vṛka'; end-acute by naṅsubhyām. Pr̥thu: root pratha prakhyāne; the ku-suffix with saṃprasāraṇa and loss (Uṇ. 1-29 [?]). Chardiḥ: root ucchṛdir dīptidevanayoḥ; the suffix isi (Uṇ. 2-108 [?]); guṇa of the light penultimate; the suffix-accent."

Pratipadārtha — "uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; adya — now (at this time of dawn); yat — since; bhānunā — by your light; divaḥ — of the atmosphere; dvārau — the two gates (the east and west quarters, covered by darkness); vi ṛṇavaḥ — you have opened and come; naḥ — to us; avṛkam — free of harm (peaceful); pr̥thu — spacious; chardiḥ — a shining dwelling-place; pra yacchatāt — give graciously; devi — O goddess; gomatīḥ — (many) with cattle; iṣaḥ — foods; pra (yacchatāt) — give."

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, at this time of dawn you have come to do us good, with your light that destroys darkness, opening the two gates of the atmosphere, the eastern and the western quarters, covered by the darkness of night. Therefore give us a dwelling-place that is peaceful, spacious and full of light. O goddess, bestow on us also many cows and foods."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 85)

— "Ushas, since you have to-day set open the two gates of heaven with light, grant us spacious and secure shelter ; bestow upon us cattle and food."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 85 - dvārau — "dvārabhūtau pūrvāparadiggbhāgau andhakāreṇācchāditau: the east and the west quarters, which serve as gates [of the atmosphere] and are covered by darkness. Before the time of dawn the east and west quarters are covered with the darkness of night. The goddess Uṣas, by driving away that darkness and so giving heaven (the atmosphere) its gates, the east and west quarters, as it were, filling them with her light so that all may see — the ṛṣi praises her thus: 'you open the closed gates'." - avṛkam — "since the word vṛka has the meanings 'thunderbolt' (Ni. 2-1[?]₁ as read), 'thief' (Ni. 2-[?]₉ as read), 'moon' (Ni. 5-[?]₁ as read) and 'child' (Ni. 6-[?]₁ as read), avṛkam may be said to mean 'without hindrance', 'free from thorns', 'without any fear', and so on." - chardiḥ — "since the word chardiḥ is read among the twenty-two [?] names of 'house' beginning gayah, kṛdaraḥ (Ni. 3-[?] as read), chardiḥ means 'house, dwelling'." - gomatīḥ iṣaḥ — "the word gomatī is an adjective of iṣaḥ. Food joined with cows, that is, cows and food are to be given: this is the idea."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁷⁵ - ṛṇavaḥ: root ṛṇu gatau, tanādi; chandasi luṅlaṅlīṭaḥ (Pā. 3-4-6 as read) gives laṅ in the sense of the present; second person singular sip; the tanādi u; ṛṇ + u + s; again, by vyatyayo bahulam, śap comes; with śap following, guṇa and avādeśa come to the u-suffix: ṛṇav + a + s; ru, visarga: ṛṇavaḥ. Here śap is pit and unaccented by anudāttau suppitau; then the accent of the u-suffix, being the strong one, remains; ṛṇavaḥ is middle-acute. Because of the yat earlier (yad adya), by yadvṛttān nityam (Pā. 8-1-66 as read) the all-unaccented does not come. - divaḥ: the genitive singular of div; ūḍidampadādyap... (Pā. 6-1-171 as read) makes the non-sarvanāmasthāna case-ending after these acute; so the genitive ending is acute; divaḥ is end-acute. - pranaḥ: ekājuttarapade naḥ (Pā. 8-4-12 as read) would give ṇatva since the cause is in the preceding member; but upasargād bahulam (vārttika) says "variously"; so, in some places, though the rule is optional it holds always; in some places, though it comes, it does not; in others, even beyond the sūtra's sense, the effect arises: this is the opinion of the ancients; so here nas takes no ṇatva. - yacchatāt: root dāṇ dāne, bhvādi; loṭ, second person singular sip; śap comes; tuhyos tātañ āśiṣy anyatarasyām (Pā. 7-1-35 as read) gives tātañ for sip and hi: tāt; pāghrādhmāsthāmnādāṇḍṛśyartiśadasadām pibajighradhamatiṣṭhamanayacchapaśyarcchadhausīyasīdāḥ (Pā. 7-3-78 as read) gives yaccha for dā; yacchatāt; since it follows a non-finite word, tiñ atinaḥ makes it all-unaccented. - avṛkam: "nāsti vṛkaḥ asmin", where there is no vṛka; a bahuvrihi; the first member's natural accent would come, but nañsubhyām (Pā. 6-2-172 as read) gives the end-acute to the second member; avṛkam is end-acute. - prṛthu: root prathaḥ prakhyāne, bhvādi (the curādi too); prathimradibhrasjām saṃprasāraṇaṃ salopaś ca (Uṇ. 1-[?]8 as read [?]) gives the suffix ku and saṃprasāraṇa of the root: the r of prath becomes ṛ; the u of ku remains: prṛthu. - chardiḥ: chardis is a name for a house; root ucchṛdir dīptidevanayoḥ, rudhādi; arcisucihusṛpichādichardibhya isiḥ (Uṇ. 2-[?]o8 as read [?]) gives the suffix isi; in the root the u drops by the it-letter name; the root is irit; chṛd + is; pugantalaḥpādhasya ca gives guṇa to the light penultimate; the s becomes ru, visarga; r-following guṇa: chardiḥ; the print says that by the suffix-accent, the word chardi is end-acute [?]. || 15 ||

75. pp. 85-86 — grammar pages, noted briefly

original p. 87

Rik 16

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

सं नो राया बृहता विश्वपेशसा मिमिक्ष्वा समिळाभिरा । सं द्युम्नेन विश्वतुरोषो महि सं वाजैर्वाजिनीवति ॥ १६ ॥

*saṃ no rāyā bṛhatā viśvapeśasā mimikṣvā sam iḷābhir ā | saṃ
dyumnena viśvaturōṣo mahi saṃ vājair vājiniṇvati || 16 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

सम् । नः । राया । बृहता । विश्वपेशसा । मिमिक्ष्व । सम् । इळाभिः । आ । सम् । द्युम्नेन ।
विश्वऽतुरा । उषः । महि । सम् । वाजैः । वाजिनीऽवति ॥ १६ ॥

*saṃ | naḥ | rāyā | bṛhatā | viśva-peśasā | mimikṣva | saṃ |
iḷābhiḥ | ā | saṃ | dyumnena | viśva-turā | uṣaḥ | mahi | saṃ |
vājaiḥ | vājiniṇvati || 16 ||* ⁷⁶

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उषो नोऽस्मान्नायया धनेन सं मिमिक्ष्व । संसिञ्च । संयोजयेत्यर्थः । कीदृशेन
धनेन । बृहता प्रभूतेन विश्वपेशसा । पेश इति रूपनाम । बहुविधरूपयुक्तेन ।
तथेळाभिरा गोभिश्चास्मान्सं मिमिक्ष्व । इळेति गोनाम । इळा जगतीति तन्नामसु
पाठात् । आकारः समुच्चयार्थः पदान्ते वर्तमानत्वात् । उक्तं च । एतस्मिन्नेवार्थे
देवेभ्यश्च पितृभ्य इत्याकारः । नि. १-४ [?] इति । किञ्च हे महि महनीये उषोदेवते
द्युम्नेन यशसा सं मिमिक्ष्व । द्युम्नं द्योततेर्यशो वाऽन्नं वेति यास्कः । नि. ५-५ [?] ।
कीदृशेन द्युम्नेन । विश्वतुरा सर्वेषां शत्रूणां हिंसकेन । तथा हे वाजिनीवति अन्नसाधनभूतक्रियायुक्ते वाजैरन्नैरस्मान्सं मिमिक्ष्व । अन्नं वै वाजः । शत. ब्रा.
९-३-४-१ [?] इति श्रुत्यन्तरात् ॥ रायया । ऊडिदमित्यादिना विभक्तेरुदात्तत्वं ।
बृहता । बृहन्महतोरुपसंख्यानमिति विभक्तिरुदात्ता । विश्वपेशसा । विश्वानि पेशांसि
यस्यासौ विश्वपेशाः । बहुव्रीहौ विश्वं संज्ञायामिति व्यत्ययेनासंज्ञायामपि
पूर्वपदान्तोदात्तत्वं । यद्वा मरुद्वृधादिर्द्रष्टव्यः । मिमिक्ष्व । मिह सेचने ।
व्यत्ययेनात्मनेपदं । लोटि बहुलं छन्दसीति शपः श्लुः । द्विर्भावहलादिशेषौ ।
ढत्वकत्वषत्वानि प्रत्ययस्वरस्य सतिशिष्टत्वात्स एव शिष्यते ।

76. The Saṃhitā prints mimikṣvā, with a long ā, and viśvaturōṣo, which the Pada divides mimikṣva | saṃ ... ā and viśvaturā | uṣaḥ.

पूर्वपदस्यासमानवाक्यस्थत्वात्तिङ्ङितिङ इति निघातो न भवति । समानवाक्ये
 निघातयुष्मदस्मदादेशा वक्तव्या इति वचनात् । विश्वतुरा । तूर्वतीति तूः । तुर्वी
 हिंसार्थः । क्विप्छेति क्विप् । रात्ल्लोप इति वलोपः । विश्वेषां तूर्विश्वतूः ।
 समासस्येत्यन्तोदात्तत्वं । वाजिनीवति । वाजोऽन्नमस्या अस्तीति वाजिनी क्रिया । तादृशी क्रिया यस्याः सा तथोक्ता ॥ १६ [?] ॥

he uṣo no 'smān rāyayā dhanena saṃ mimikṣva | saṃsiñca |
 saṃyojayety arthaḥ | kīḍṛśena dhanena | bṛhatā prabhūtena
 viśvapeśasā | peśa iti rūpanāma | bahavidharūpayuktena |
 tathelābhir ā gobhiś cāsmān saṃ mimikṣva | ileti gonāma | ilā
 jagatīti tannāmasu pāṭhāt | ākārāḥ samuccayārthaḥ padānte
 vartamānatvāt | uktaṃ ca | etasminn evārthe devebhyaś ca pitrbhya ity ākārāḥ | nī. 1-4 [?] iti | kiṃca he mahi mahanīye
 uṣodevate dyumnena yaśasā saṃ mimikṣva | dyumnaṃ dyotater
 yaśo vānnaṃ veti yāśkaḥ | nī. 5-5 [?] | kīḍṛśena dyumnena |
 viśvaturā sarveśāṃ śatrūṇāṃ hiṃsakena | tathā he vājinīvati annasāadhanabhūtakriyāyukte vājair annair asmān saṃ mimikṣva
 | annaṃ vai vājāḥ | śata. brā. 9-3-4-1 [?] iti śrutyantarāt | | rāyayā
 | ūḍidam ity ādinā vibhakter udāttatvaṃ | bṛhatā | bṛhanmahator upasaṃkhyānam iti vibhaktir udāttā | viśvapeśasā | viśvāni
 peśāṃsi yasyāsau viśvapeśāḥ | bahuvrīḥau viśvaṃ saṃjñāyām iti vyatyayenāsaṃjñāyām api pūrvapadāntodāttatvaṃ | yadvā
 marudvṛdhādir draṣṭavyaḥ | mimikṣva | miha secane |
 vyatyayenātmanepadaṃ | loṭi bahulaṃ chandasīti śapaḥ śluḥ |
 dvirbhāvahalādiśeṣau | ḍhatvakatvaśatvāni pratyayasvarasya
 satsiṣṭatvāt sa eva śiṣyate | pūrvapadasyāsamānavākyaasthatvāt
 tiṅ atīṅa iti nighāto na bhavati | samānavākya nighātayuṣmadasmadādeśā vaktavyā iti vacanāt | viśvaturā |
 tūrvatīti tūḥ | turvī hiṃsārthaḥ | kvip ceti kvip | rāllopa iti
 valopaḥ | viśveśāṃ tūr viśvatūḥ | samāsasyety antodāttatvaṃ |
 vājinīvati | vājo 'nnam asyā astīti vājinī kriyā | tāḍṛśī kriyā yasyāḥ
 sā tathoktā | | 16 [?] | | 77

Translation: "O Uṣas, naḥ, us, rāyā, with wealth, saṃ mimikṣva, sprinkle, join. What kind of wealth? Br̥hatā, abundant, viśvapeśasā, peśa being a name for form: of many kinds of form. And likewise ilābhiḥ ā, with cows, saṃ mimikṣva, join us. Ilā is a name for cow, being read among its names (ilā jagatī). The ā has the sense 'and', since it stands at the end of a word; and it is said so in the Nirukta: 'in the same sense, devebhyaś ca pitrbhyaḥ, the ā' (Ni. 1-4 [?]). Furthermore, O mahi, O worshipful goddess Uṣas, dyumnena, with fame, saṃ mimikṣva — 'dyumna is from dyotate "to shine": fame or food', says Yāska (Ni. 5-5 [?]). What kind of fame? Viśvaturā, which injures all enemies. And O vājinīvati, you who are endowed with activity that is the means of food, vājaiḥ, with foods, saṃ mimikṣva, join us: 'food is vāja', by another Śruti (Śat. Brā. 9-3-4-1 [?]). Mimikṣva: root miha secane; the ātmanepada by exchange; ślu for śap by loṭi bahulaṃ chandasi; the doubling and the remaining consonant; ḍhatva, kutva, ṣatva; the suffix-accent alone remains; because the first member is not in the same sentence, tiñ atināḥ does not make it all-unaccented, by the statement that, in the same sentence, the all-unaccented and the substitutes for yuṣmad/asmad are to be said. Viśvaturā: 'tūḥ', one who crushes (tūrvatī), root turvī hiṃsārthaḥ; kvip; v dropped by rāllopaḥ; 'the crusher of all' is viśvatūḥ; end-acute of a compound. Vājinīvati: 'she who has vāja, food, is vājinī, activity; she who has such activity is so called'."

Pratipadārtha — "uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; naḥ — us; br̥hatā — exceedingly abundant; viśvapeśasā — of many forms; rāyā — with wealth; saṃ mimikṣva — join (so also); ilābhiḥ ā — with many cows; saṃ (mimikṣva) — join; mahi — O venerable goddess Uṣas; viśvaturā — with fame that crushes all enemies

77. Crowded: the print's ilābhir ā, the Nirukta and Śatapatha numerals, the Nirukta citation in the middle, and the closing numeral, which is printed so that it reads like "5" [?]; all as read.

(gained by conquering them); saṃ mimikṣva — join; vājinīvati — O goddess endowed with activity that is the means of food; vājaiḥ — with foods; (saṃ mimikṣva) — unite (us)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O venerable goddess Uṣas, giver of food, favour us with abundant wealth of many forms, with many cows, with fame that comes of conquering all enemies, and with foods."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 88) — "Adorable Ushas, associate us with (grant us) different kinds of wealth liberally ; O giver of food, grant us abundant cattle and fame which can be got by conquering our enemies." ⁷⁸

Rik 48.16, continued ⁷⁹

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 88-89 - mukhyābhiprāya — "O goddess Uṣas, give us much and various wealth, cows, food, and abundantly the fame that is gained by conquering enemies." - saṃ mimikṣva — "miha secane; saṃsiñca; saṃyojayety arthaḥ: 'sprinkle, that is, join'. The meaning is: as one is satisfied with water, so satisfy us with the wealth and the like that we need. In the Vedas the word 'sprinkle' is used in many places in the sense 'give abundantly'. For example, the Taittirīya Saṃhitā has the sentence" (untranslated in the source; reference "Tai. Saṃ. 1-6-1" as read [?]):

सं त्वा सिञ्चामि यजुषा प्रजामायुर्धनं च । (Tai. Saṃ. 1-6-1 as read [?])

saṃ tvā siñcāmi yajuṣā prajāṃ āyur dhanam ca | — editorial and tentative: "I sprinkle you together with the sacrificial formula — offspring, long life and wealth." - ilābhiḥ — "the word ilā has many meanings: earth (Ni. 1-[?]3 as read), speech (Ni. 1-[?]1 as ⁷⁸. The Special Topics of Rik 16 begin at the foot of p. 88 and run on to p. 89; its grammar and the close of Sūkta 48 follow; not yet written.

⁷⁹. from the foot of p. 88

read), food (Ni. 2-[?] as read), cow (Ni. 2-[?] as read). Of these, the meaning food or cow may be accepted here." - dyumnena — (untranslated in the source; reference "Ni. 5-5" as read [?])

द्युम्नं द्योततेर्यशो वान्नं वा । (Ni. 5-5 as read [?])

dyumnaṃ dyotater yaśo vānnaṃ vā | — editorial and tentative: "dyumna (is from) dyotate, 'it shines': fame or food." "The word dyumna has the meanings 'fame' and 'food'. If the meaning 'food' is accepted for the word īlā in this ṛk, the meaning 'fame' is to be given to dyumna." - viśvaturā — "tūrvatīti tūḥ; turvī hiṃsārthaḥ; viśveṣāṃ tūḥ viśvatūḥ; sarveṣāṃ śatrūṇāṃ hiṃsakena: the fame that comes of conquering and crushing all enemies; the word is an epithet of dyumnena." - vājīnīvatī — "annavati: one who has food. Vāja means food (Ni. 2-[?] as read). There is also the sentence of the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (Śat. Brā. 9-3-4-1 as read [?]) 'annaṃ vai vājah'; so vājīnīvatī means one who has food, that is, one who has the power to give food." — untranslated in the source:

अन्नं वै वाजः । (Śat. Brā. 9-3-4-1 as read [?])

annaṃ vai vājah | — editorial and tentative: "food, indeed, is vāja."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁸⁰ - rāyā: rai is a word for wealth, ending in ai; in the instrumental singular ṭā, āy in place of ai: rāyā; ūḍidampadādyap... (Pā. 6-1-171 as read) makes the non-sarvanāmasthāna case-ending acute; so ṭā is acute; rāyā is end-acute. - br̥hatā: after br̥hat the instrumental singular; the case-ending would be unaccented by anudāttau suppitau; but by the vārttika br̥hanmahator upasaṃkhyānam the case-endings after these two words are acute; so br̥hatā is end-acute. - viśvapeśasā: "viśvāni peśāṃsi yasya saḥ", he who has all kinds of forms; a bahuvrīhi; bahuvrīthau viśvaṃ saṃjñāyām (Pā. 6-2-106 as read [?])

80. pp. 89–90 — grammar pages, noted briefly

gives the end-acute to the first member viśva only when a name is intended; here viśva is the first member but no name is intended; yet, since an end-acute is found, it must be accepted, by vyatyayo bahulam, that the end-acute of viśva comes by the preceding sūtra even where no name is intended; or one may accept that the marudvṛdhādi list, being an ākṛtigāṇa, has this word viśvapeśas included in it, with end-acute enjoined; so the end-acute of the first member comes (and becomes svarita). - mimikṣva: root miha secane, bhvādi, which is a parasmaipadin; here, the ātmanepada suffix comes by vyatyayo bahulam; loṭ, second person singular thās, replaced by se; savābhyām vāmau (Pā. 3-4-91 as read) gives va for the e after the s; mih + sva; being a bhvādi, śap would come, but by bahulaṃ chandasi (Pā. 2-4-73 as read) śap is replaced by ślu; then ślau (Pā. 6-1-10 as read) gives doubling; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ: mimih + sva; hoḍhaḥ (Pā. 8-2-31 as read) gives ḍh for h; ṣaḍhoḥ kaḥ si (Pā. 8-2-41 as read) gives k for that ḍh before s; ṣ for the s after k; k + ṣ make kṣ: mimikṣva; the suffix-accent's initial acute is the strong one; mimikṣva is end-acute. As the vārttika says, "samānavākye nighātayuṣmadasmadādeśā vaktavyāḥ" (Pā. 8-1-18 vārttika as read), the preceding word being in a different sentence, the verb mimikṣva is not subject to the all-unaccented by tiṅ atinaḥ. - viśvaturā: "tūrvati iti tūḥ", one who injures; root turvī himsāyām (read with other roots in the sense of injury); kvip ca (Pā. 3-2-76 as read) gives kvip; all of kvip drops; tūrv + kvip; rāllopaḥ (Pā. 6-4-21 as read) drops the v after a repha when kvip or a nasal-initial suffix, or a jhal-initial suffix, follows: so the v drops; tur, a stem ending in r; vor upadhāyā dīrgha ikaḥ [as read, rvor upadhāyā dīrgha ikaḥ, Pā. 8-2-76 as read] gives lengthening to the ik penultimate when a consonant follows: tūr; su drops after a consonant-ending stem; r becomes visarga: tūḥ; "viśveṣām tūḥ viśvatūḥ"; samāsasya (Pā. 6-1-223 as read) gives end-acute to the compound; in the instrumental singular, viśvaturā. - vājīnīvati: "vājaḥ annam asyāḥ asti", the activity that accomplishes food; ini in the possessive sense; since the stem

ends in n, ñīp; "vājinī kriyā yasyāḥ sā vājinīvatī", the one who has activity that accomplishes food; matup comes, and ugitaś ca gives ñīp; saṃjñāyām (Pā. 8-2-11 as read) gives v for the m of matup; in the vocative the shortening and the dropping of su: vājinīvati; by āmantritasya ca of the eighth chapter the all-unaccented comes; vājinīvati is all-unaccented. || 16 ||

Close of Sūkta 48. After the grammar of Rik 16, at the foot of printed p. 90, no closing sentence ("illige ... sūktavu mugidudu") and no ornament is printed — only the end of the paragraph, "|| 16 ||". The sūkta (saha vāmena, sixteen Riks to Uṣas) therefore occupies printed pp. 30–90 (PDF 46–106). The next leaf, p. 91 = PDF 107, begins with the large title "nalavattombhattaneya sūktavu" ("the forty-ninth sūkta"), again a clean boundary, but the contents table's page for Sūkta 49 (p. 91) is confirmed.

Summary of Sūkta 48. Sixteen Riks to Uṣas, the dawn, all written in full. Rik 1 prays that she dawn upon us with wealth, food and cattle; Rik 2 says the many dawns, rich in horses and cows, have arrived, and asks for kind words and the wealth of the wealthy; Rik 3 says Uṣas dwelt before and dawns now, the impeller of chariots, as seekers of wealth launch ships; Rik 4 says the wise turn their minds to giving at her comings, and Kaṇva proclaims their fame; Rik 5 compares her to a housewife who nourishes all, makes the people old, wakes the footed beings and the birds; Rik 6 says she sets the diligent to work and sends beggars to their donors, and the birds do not stay at her coming; Rik 7 says she harnesses a hundred chariots and comes to men from beyond the Sun's rising; Rik 8 says the whole world bows to her light and she drives away haters and moisture-absorbers; Rik 9 asks her to shine, bringing fortune each day and dispelling darkness; Rik 10 says the breath and life of all lie in her and asks her to hear the call; Rik 11 asks her to accept the oblation and bring the pious sacrificers to harmless rites; Rik 12 asks her to bring all the gods from the atmosphere to the Soma and to give cattle, horses and strong food; Rik 13 asks for wealth that all desire; Rik 14 says the ancient seers called her for protection and food and asks her to accept our praises; Rik 15 says she has opened the two gates of the atmosphere and asks for a safe, spacious house and cows and food; Rik 16 asks for wealth, cows, fame and food. All sixteen Riks are written in full. The doubtful parts are the many reference numerals (all "as read [?]"). the crowded stretches of the bhāṣya tails (marked in the text), the Nirukta and Ṛgveda citations whose glosses are editorial and tentative, and the outlined (not transcribed) grammar discussions (padvat, karman, adhvarān sandhi, hveñ/abhyasta).⁸¹

81. Sixth sūkta of the Ninth Anuvāka.

Sūkta 49 — "uṣo bhadrebhiḥ"

original p. 91

Forty-ninth Sūkta ¹

Pages 91–92 (PDF 107–108) — Sāyaṇa's introduction, the Kannada anuvāda, and the heading

Sāyaṇa's introduction ²

उषो भद्रेभिरिति चतुर्ऋचं षष्ठं सूक्तं । अत्रानुक्रम्यते । उषश्चतुष्कमानुष्टुभं त्विति [?] ।
कण्वपुत्रः प्रस्कण्व ऋषिः । तुह्यादिपरिभाषयेदमुत्तरं चानुष्टुभं । पूर्वत्रोषस्यं
त्वित्युक्तत्वादिदमपि सूक्तमुषस्यं । प्रातरनुवाक उषस्ये क्रतावानुष्टुभे छन्दस्येतत्सूक्तं ।
सूत्र्यते हि । उषो भद्रेभिरित्यानुष्टुभं । आ. ४-१४ [?] । इति ॥ आश्विनशस्त्रेऽप्येतत्सूक्तं प्रातरनुवाकन्यायेन । आ. ६-५ [?] । इत्यतिदेशात् ॥

uṣo bhadrebhir iti caturṛcam ṣaṣṭhaṃ sūktaṃ | atrānukramyate |
uṣaś catuṣkam ānuṣṭubhaṃ tv iti [?] | kaṇvaputraḥ praskaṇva ṛṣiḥ
| tuhyādiparibhāṣayedam uttaraṃ cānuṣṭubhaṃ |
pūrvatroṣasyaṃ tv ity uktatvād idam api sūktaṃ uṣasyaṃ |
prātaranuvāka uṣasye kratāv ānuṣṭubhe chandasy etat sūktaṃ |

1. large Kannada title line at the head of p. 91: "nalavattombhattaneyā sūktavū"

2. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; words marked [?] are crowded

*sūtryate hi | uṣo bhadrebhir ity ānuṣṭubhaṃ | ā. 4-14 [?] | iti | | āśvinaśastre 'py etat sūktaṃ prātaranuvākanyāyena | ā. 6-5 [?] |
 ity atideśāt | |*

Translation ³: "'Uṣo bhadrebhiḥ' is the sixth sūkta, of four ṛks. The Anukramaṇikā here: 'uṣaś catuṣkam ānuṣṭubham' [?]. The ṛṣi is Praskaṇva, son of Kaṇva. By the convention beginning tuhyādi this sūkta and the next are in Anuṣṭubh; and since the preceding was said to be of Uṣas, this sūkta too is of Uṣas. In the Prātaranuvāka, at the Uṣasya rite, this sūkta is [used] in the Anuṣṭubh metre; it is prescribed: 'uṣo bhadrebhir, the Anuṣṭubh' (Āśv. 4-14 [?]). In the Āśvina-śastra, too, this sūkta is [used] by the rule of the Prātaranuvāka, as it is extended (Āśv. 6-5 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada), p. 91 — "Uṣo bhadrebhiḥ is the sixth sūkta in the ninth anuvāka. It has four ṛks. In the Anukramaṇikā it is said that this sūkta of four ṛks is in the Anuṣṭubh metre. The ṛṣi of this sūkta is Praskaṇva, son of the sage Kaṇva. The metre is Anuṣṭubh; the deity is Uṣas. This sūkta is used at the time of reciting the Prātaranuvāka, for reciting the ṛks in Anuṣṭubh metre among the mantras of the Uṣasya rite. This is stated in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta-sūtra by the sūtra 'uṣo bhadrebhir ity ānuṣṭubham' (Ā. 4-14 [?]); and in the same place, by the sūtra 'prātaranuvākanyāyena' (Ā. 6-5), it is said that this sūkta is also to be used for reciting the Āśvina-śastra mantras."

॥ ॐ ॥

सूक्त — ४९

॥ मण्डल — १ ॥ अनुवाक — ९ ॥ सूक्त — ४९ ॥ ॥ अष्टक — १ ॥ अध्याय — ४ ॥

वर्ग — ६ ॥ ॥ सूक्तदल्लिरुव ऋक्संख्यै — ४ ॥ ॥ ऋषिः — प्रस्कण्वः काण्वः ॥ ॥ देवता

— उषाः ॥ ॥ छन्दः — अनुष्टुप् ॥

3. editorial and tentative; the Anukramaṇikā clause and the Āśvalāyana numerals are read with doubt

sūkta 49 | maṇḍala 1 | anuvāka 9 | aṣṭaka 1 | adhyāya 4 | varga
6 | ṛks 4 | ṛṣi: Praskaṇva Kāṇva | devatā: Uṣas | chandas:
Anuṣṭubh.

original pp. 91–94

Rik 1

Samhitā-pāṭha ⁴

उषो भद्रेभिरा गहि दिवश्चिद्रोचनादधि । वहन्त्वरुणप्सव उप त्वा सोमिनो गृहम् ॥ १ ॥

uṣo bhadrebhir ā gahi divaś cid rocanād adhi | vahantv
aruṇapsava upa tvā somino gr̥ham || 1 ||

Pada-pāṭha

उषः । भद्रेभिः । आ । गहि । दिवः । चित् । रोचनात् । अधि । वहन्तु । अरुणऽप्सवः । उप । त्वा । सोमिनः । गृहम् ॥ १ ॥

uṣaḥ | bhadrebhiḥ | ā | gahi | divaḥ | cit | rocanāt | adhi |
vahantu | aruṇa-psavaḥ | upa | tvā | sominaḥ | gr̥ham || 1 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उष उषोदेवते भद्रेभिर्भन्दनीयैः शोभनैर्मार्गिर्दिवोऽन्तरिक्षलोकात्
रोचनाद्रोचमानाद्दीप्यमानात् । अधिरुपर्यर्थः । उपरि वर्तमानात् । चिदिति पूजितार्थः
। पूजितादेवंविधादन्तरिक्षलोकादा गहि । आ गच्छ । हे उषः अरुणप्सवोऽरुणवर्णा
गावः सोमिनः सोमयुक्तस्य यजमानस्य गृहं देवयजनरूपं यज्ञगृहं त्वा त्वामुपवहन्तु
। प्रापयन्तु ॥ गहि । गमेलोति बहुलं छन्दसेति शपो लुक् । हेरपित्वेन
डित्वेऽनुदात्तोपदेशेत्यादिनानुनासिकलोपः । आतो हेरिति लुग्न भवति ।
असिद्धवदत्राभादित्यनुनासिकलोपस्यासिद्धत्वात् । रोचनात् । रुच दीप्तौ ।
अनुदात्तेतश्च हलादेरिति युच् । योरनादेशे चित इत्यन्तोदात्तत्वं । अरुणप्सवः । प्सा
भक्षणे । प्सान्ति भक्षयन्ति स्तनं पिबन्तीति प्सवो वत्साः । औणादिकः कुप्रत्ययः ।
आतो लोप इति चेत्याकारलोपः । अरुणाः प्सवो यासां तास्तथोक्ताः । अत्र
वत्सानामारुण्यप्रतिपादनात्तज्जनन्यादीनामपि तथात्वं गम्यते । पैतृकमश्वा अनुहरन्ते

मातृकं गावोऽनुहरन्ते । म. १-२-२१-५ [?] इति गोनर्दीयः । तासां चोषोवाहनत्वं
 निघण्टावुक्तं । अरुण्यो गाव उषसामिति । अरुणशब्दोऽर्तेश्च । उ. ३-६३ [?]
 इत्युन्नप्रत्ययान्तः । तृणाख्यायां चित् । उ. ३-६४ [?] इत्यत्र चिदित्यनुवृत्तेरन्तोदात्तः । स एव बहुव्रीहौ पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वेन शिष्यते ॥

he uṣa uṣodevate bhadrebhir bhandanīyaiḥ śobhanair mārḡair divo
'ntarikṣalokāt rocanād rocamānād dīpyamānāt | adhir
uparyarthah | upari vartamānāt | cid iti pūjitārthah | pūjitād evamvidhād antarikṣalokād ā gahi | ā gaccha | he uṣah aruṇapsavo 'ruṇavarṇā gāvah sominah somayuktasya yajamānasya grhaṃ devayajanarūpaṃ yajñagrhaṃ tvā tvām upavahantu | prāpayantu || gahi | gamer loṭi bahulaṃ chandaseti
śapo luk | herapittvena nittve 'nudāttopadeśety
ādinānunāsikalopaḥ | āto her iti lug na bhavati | asiddhavad
atrābhād ity anunāsikalopasyāsiddhatvāt | rocanāt | ruca dīptau
| anudāttetaś ca halāder iti yuc | yor anādeśe cita ity antodāttatvaṃ | aruṇapsavaḥ | psā bhakṣaṇe | psānti
bhakṣayanti stanam pibantīti psavo vatsāḥ | auṇādikaḥ
kupratyayah | āto lopa iṭi cety ākārālopaḥ | aruṇāḥ psavo yāsām
tās tathoktāḥ | atra vatsānām āruṇyapratipādanāt
tajjananyādīnām api tathātvam gamyate | paitṛkam aśvā
anuharante mātṛkam gāvo 'nuharante | ma. 1-2-21-5 [?] iti
gonardīyah | tāsām coṣovāhanatvaṃ nighaṇṭāv uktaṃ | aruṇyo
gāva uṣasām iti | aruṇaśabdo 'rteś ca | u. 3-63 [?] ity unnapratyayāntaḥ | tṛṇākhyāyām cit | u. 3-64 [?] ity atra cid ity anuvṛtter antodāttaḥ | sa eva bahuvrīhau
pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvena śiṣyate || ⁵

Translation: "O Uṣas, goddess of the dawn, bhadrebhiḥ, by lovely, auspicious paths, divaḥ, from the middle region, rocanāt, from the shining, glowing one — adhi has the sense of 'above', being above; cit has the sense 'honoured' — from such a honoured

5. Crowded: the Mahābhāṣya-style number after gonardīyah, the two Uṇādi numbers, and the clause "tṛṇākhyāyām cit ... cid ity anuvṛtter"; all as read, [?].

middle region ā gahi, come. O Uṣas, aruṇapsavaḥ, the red-coloured cows, sominaḥ gr̥ham, the house of the sacrificer with Soma, that is, the sacrifice-house that serves as the place of divine worship, upa vahantu, let them bring you. Gahi: loṭ of gam, the śap dropped by bahulaṃ chandasi; since hi is ñit by non-pit-ness, the nasal drops by anudāttopadeśa...; the luk of hi does not come (āto heḥ) because of asiddhavat. Rocanāt: root ruca dīptau; yuc; ana for yu; end-acute by citaḥ. Aruṇapsavaḥ: root psā bhakṣaṇe; psavaḥ are the calves that drink the udder; the Uṇādi ku-suffix; the ā drops; 'those whose calves are red'; by showing the redness of the calves, the redness of their mothers is also understood: 'horses take after the father, cows after the mother' (Mahābhāṣya, as read [?]). In the Nighaṇṭu it is said that the cows are the vehicles of Uṣas: 'aruṇyo gāva uṣasām'. The word aruṇa ends with the suffix una after r (Uṇ. 3-63 [?]); it is end-acute; this alone remains in the bahuvrīhi by the first member's natural accent."

Pratipadārtha — "uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; adhi cit — in the place above, held in honour; rocanāt — from the shining; divaḥ — from the middle region; bhadrebhiḥ — by auspicious paths; ā gahi — be gracious and come; (O goddess,) aruṇapsavaḥ — red-coloured cows; sominaḥ — of the sacrificer who has prepared the Soma juice; gr̥ham — to the sacrificial house (made for the deities); tvā — you; upa vahantu — let them bring near."

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, come to this place, by auspicious paths, from the middle region, which shines in the place above and is honoured. May the red-coloured cows bring you to the sacrificial house of the sacrificer who holds the Soma juice."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 93)

— "Ushas, come by auspicious ways from above the bright region of the firmament ; let the ruddy coloured cows bring you to the dwelling of the offerer of the soma juice."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 93 - bhadrebhiḥ — "śobhanair mār̥gaiḥ: by excellent paths. Some, such as Vedārthayatna and the like, have explained the word bhadrebhiḥ as 'bhadrebhir aśvaiḥ', with excellent horses. Since in the ṛk neither mār̥gaiḥ nor aśvaiḥ is present but only the word bhadrebhiḥ, it is not clear what the ṛṣi's intention is in using the word." - aruṇapsavaḥ — "aruṇa is red; psu is form (Ni. 3-[?]3 as read); so aruṇapsavaḥ means 'those having red forms'. The commentator explains the word as 'aruṇavarṇā gāvaḥ', red-coloured cows. He says that the sense that the cows bring Uṣas to the sacrificer's house is stated in the Nighaṇṭu section. Since there are red horses among horses, one may explain it as red horses. Or, since at sunrise the Sun's rays are made visible by their red colour, one may also say here 'by red-coloured rays'. In the Nirukta it is said that red cows are the vehicles of the goddess Uṣas (Ni. 1-[?]3 as read)." — untranslated in the source:

अरुण्यो गाव उषसाम् । (Ni. 1-[?]3 as read [?])

aruṇyo gāva uṣasām | — editorial and tentative: "the red cows (are) of the Uṣases [i.e. their vehicles]." - sominaḥ — "somayuktasya yajamānasya: of the sacrificer who has made ready the Soma juice in order to offer it to the deity."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶ - gahi: root *gam*ḷ gatau, bhvādi; loṭ, second person singular sip; serhy apicca (Pā. 3-4-87 as read) gives hi in place of sip, which is non-pī; gam + hi, śap would come but bahulaṃ chandasi (Pā. 2-4-73 as read) gives its luk; sārvadhātukam apit (Pā. 1-2-4 as read) makes hi ñit; then anudāttopadeśavanatitanotyādīnām anunāsikalopo jhali kñiti (Pā. 6-4-37 as read) drops the nasal m: ga + hi; here hi after an a-ending stem would be dropped by ato heḥ (Pā. 6-4-105 as read), but the dropping of the nasal is asiddhavat by bhāt (Pā. 6-4-22 as read) in the bha-section, so it does not count as having happened;

6. pp. 93-94 — grammar pages, noted briefly

as if the m were still there, hi is not dropped; so gahi. - rocanāt: root ruca dīptau; anudāttetaś ca halādeḥ (Pā. 3-2-149 as read) gives yuc after an intransitive root with an unaccented it-marker and a consonant-initial; yo 'nākau gives ana; pugantalahūpadhasya ca gives guṇa to the penultimate: rocana; ablative singular: rocanāt; citaḥ (Pā. 6-1-163 as read) makes it end-acute, so rocana is end-acute; the single substitute with the case-ending is acute. - aruṇapsavaḥ: root psā bhakṣaṇe, adādi; "psānti bhakṣayanti, stanam pibanti iti psavaḥ vatsāḥ"; the Uṇādi-formed ku-suffix; the ā of the root drops by āto lopa iṭi ca: psu; "aruṇāḥ psavaḥ yāsām tāḥ", cows whose calves are red; in general it is known that calves have the qualities of their mothers; the Kannada author quotes the Mahābhāṣya (Pā. Ma. 1-2-[?]) that Patañjali too says "horses take on the father's qualities, cows the mother's": paitṛkam aśvā anuḥarante mātṛkam gāvo 'nuharante; and "that they are the vehicles of Uṣas has been told in the Nighaṇṭu". The word aruṇa ends with the suffix una given by ārter ca (Uṇ. 3-[?]3 as read [?]), where cit is carried over from the trṇākhyā rule; so it is end-acute; the bahuvrīhi leaves it the first member's natural accent, so the end-acute of aruṇa stays; aruṇapsavaḥ is middle-acute; the unaccented a after ṇ becomes svarita. || 1 ||

original pp. 95–98

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

सुपेशसं सुखं रथं यमध्यस्था उषस्त्वम् । तेना सुश्रवसं जनं प्रावाद्य दुहितर्दिवः ॥ २ ॥

*supeśasaṃ sukhaṃ rathaṃ yam adhyasthā uṣas tvam | tenā
suśravasaṃ janaṃ prāvādya duhitar divaḥ* || 2 ||

Pada-pāṭha

सुऽपेशसम् । सुऽखम् । रथम् । यम् । अधिऽअस्थाः । उषः । त्वम् । तेन । सुऽश्रवसम् । जनम् । प्र । अव । अद्य । दुहितः । दिवः ॥ २ ॥

su-peśasam | su-kham | ratham | yam | adhi-asthāḥ | uṣaḥ |
tvam | tena | su-śravasam | janam | pra | ava | adya | duhitaḥ |
divaḥ || 2 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उषस्त्वं यं रथमध्यस्थाः अधितिष्ठसि । कीदृशं रथं । सुपेशसं शोभनावयवं
शोभनरूपयुक्तं वा । पेश इति रूपनामेति यास्कः । नि. ३-१० [?] । यद्वा ।
शोभनहिरण्ययुक्तं । पेशः कृशनमिति तन्नामसु पाठात् । सुखं शोभनेन खेनाकाशेन
युक्तं । विस्तृतमित्यर्थः । यद्वा । सुखहेतुभूतं । अथवा सुखमिति क्रियाविशेषणं ।
सुखं यथा भवति तथैत्यर्थः । हे दिवो दुहितर्घुलोकसकाशादुत्पन्न उषोदेवते तेन
रथेनाद्यास्मिन्काले सुश्रवसं शोभनहवियुक्तं जनं यजमानं प्राव । प्रकर्षेण गच्छ ॥
सुपेशसं । पिश अवयवे । अस्मादसुन्प्रत्ययः । निस्त्वाद्याद्युदात्तः पेशश्शब्दः ।
शोभनं पेशो यस्यासौ सुपेशाः । आद्युदात्तं द्व्यच्छन्दसीत्युत्तरपदाद्युदात्तत्वं ।
अध्यस्थाः । तिष्ठतेश्छन्दसि लुङ्लङ्लिट इति वर्तमाने लुङ् गातिस्थेति सिचो लुक् ।
अडागम उदात्तः । यद्वृत्तयोगादनिघातः । तिङि चोदात्तवतीति गतेरनुदात्तत्वं । तेन ।
अन्येषामपि दृश्यत इति संहितायां दीर्घः । सुश्रवसं । श्रव इत्यन्ननाम । श्रूयते इति
सतः [?] । नि. १०-३ [?] इति यास्कः । सुपेशसमितिवदुत्तरपदाद्युदात्तत्वं । अव ।
अव रक्षणगतिप्रीतितृप्तीत्युक्तत्वादत्रावतिर्गत्यर्थः । दुहितर्दिवः । परमपि छन्दसेति षष्ठ्यन्तस्य पूर्वामन्त्रिताङ्गवद्भावे सति पदद्वयसमुदायस्याष्टमिकं सर्वानुदात्तत्वं ॥

he uṣas tvam yam ratham adhyasthāḥ adhitiṣṭhasi | kīdṛśam
ratham | supeśasam śobhanāvayavam śobhanarūpayuktaṃ vā |
peśa iti rūpanāmeti yāśkaḥ | ni. 3-10 [?] | yadvā |
śobhanahiraṇyayuktaṃ | peśaḥ kṛśanam iti tannāmasu pāṭhāt |
sukhaṃ śobhanena khenākāśena yuktaṃ | viśṭṛtam ity arthaḥ |
yadvā | sukhahetubhūtaṃ | athavā sukham iti kriyāviśeṣaṇam |
sukhaṃ yathā bhavati tathety arthaḥ | he divo duhitar dyulokasakāśād utpanna uṣodevate tena rathenādyāsmin kāle suśravasam śobhanahaviyuktaṃ janam yajamānam prāva |
prakarṣeṇa gaccha || supeśasam | piśa avayave | asmād

*asunpratyayaḥ | nittvād ādyudāttaḥ peśasśabdaḥ | śobhanaṃ
 peśo yasyāsau supeśāḥ | ādyudāttaṃ dvyac chandasīty
 uttarapadādyudāttatvaṃ | adhyasthāḥ | tiṣṭhater chandasi
 luṇlaṇḍita iti vartamāne luṇ gātisthe ti sico luk | aḍāgama udāttaḥ
 | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ | tiṇi codāttavatīti gater anudāttatvaṃ
 | tena | anyeṣām api dṛśyata iti saṃhitāyām dīrghaḥ |
 suśravasaṃ | śrava ity annanāma | śrūyata iti sataḥ [?] | nī. 10-3
 [?] iti yāskaḥ | supeśasaṃ itivād uttarapadādyudāttatvaṃ | ava |
 ava rakṣaṇagatiprītiṛptīty uktatvād atrāvatir gatyārthaḥ |
 duhitar divaḥ | param api chandaseti ṣaṣṭhyantasya pūrvāmantritāṅgavadbhāve sati
 padadvayasamudāyasyāṣṭamikaṃ sarvānudāttatvaṃ || 7*

Translation: "O Uṣas, yam ratham adhyasthāḥ, the chariot you mount — what kind of chariot? Supeśasaṃ, with fine parts or of fine form (Yāska: 'peśa is a name for form', Nī. 3-10 [?]); or with fine gold, peśaḥ being read among the names of gold; sukham, joined with a fine kha, space, that is, spacious; or, the cause of ease; or sukham is an adverb: as it may be easy. O duhitar divaḥ, daughter of heaven, O Uṣas, tena rathena, with that chariot, adya, now, suśravasaṃ janam, to the sacrificer who has a fine oblation, pra ava, go forth. Supeśasaṃ: root piśa avayave, with asun; peśas is initial-acute because asun is nī; 'she who has fine peśas'; the second member is initial-acute by ādyudāttaṃ dvyac chandasi. Adhyasthāḥ: luṇ in the present sense by chandasi luṇlaṇḍitaḥ; sic dropped by gātisthā...; the aṭ is acute; no all-unaccented, by the yad-connexion; the gati is unaccented by tiṇi codāttavati. Tena: the lengthening in the Saṃhitā by anyeṣām api dṛśyate. Suśravasaṃ: śravas is a name for food — 'śrūyate...' (Nī. 10-3 [?]); the second member initial-acute as in supeśasaṃ. Ava: since ava is stated in the senses of protection, going, pleasure and satisfaction, here the root has the sense of going."

7. The phrase "śrūyate iti sataḥ" and the numerals after the Nirukta references are crowded, [?]; "tiṣṭhater chandasi" is as read.

Pratipadārtha — "uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; tvam — you; supeśasam — furnished with beautiful parts, or of beautiful form, or made of excellent gold; sukham — joined with a great expanse (wide), or giving comfort; yaṃ ratham — which chariot; adhyasthāḥ — you sit in; tena rathena — with that chariot; divaḥ duhitāḥ — O goddess born of the world of heaven; adya — now; suśravasam — one who has excellent oblations; janam — the sacrificer; prāva — go with eagerness."

Bhāvārtha

— "O goddess Uṣas, the chariot you sit in is furnished with fine parts, is of lovely form, and made of excellent gold; it is spacious like the great sky and gives comfort. O goddess, born of the world of heaven, seated in that chariot go with eagerness to the sacrificer who holds excellent oblations."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 96)

— "Ushas, daughter of heaven, sitting in the beautiful and easy-moving chariot, come to the pious offerer of the oblation."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 96 - supeśasam — "peśa means form (Ni. 3-[?]1 as read); so supeśasam means 'of excellent form', beautiful, pleasing to look at. Or, since peśa also means gold (hiranya, Ni. 1-[?]0 as read), supeśasam may be said to mean 'made of fine gold'." - sukham — "kham means sky. Since it moves in the sky, the commentator explains sukham as 'spacious'. This sense is not quite fitting. He also gives the sense of the adverb: sukhaṃ yathā bhavati tathā, 'comfortably'. This sense is the proper one here. Sukham may also be said to mean 'got ready with soft seats so that one may sit comfortably', or 'moving easily so as not to tire those sitting in it'." - suśravasam — "śrava is a name for food (Ni. 1[?]0-[?] as read); śobhanahaviyuktam: joined with a fine oblation; one who has prepared an excellent oblation (food) and set it ready." - prāva — "rakṣaṇārthaṃ prakarṣeṇa gaccha: go for protection; protect, guard."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁸ - supeśasam: root piśa avayave; sarvadhātubhyo 'sun (Uṇ. 4-[?]8 as read [?]) gives asun; ñnityādir nityam (Pā. 6-1-197 as read) — because the suffix asun is nit, peśas is initial-acute; "śobhanam peśaḥ yasyāḥ saḥ", a bahuvrīhi: ādyudāttaṃ dvyac chandasi (Pā. 6-2-119 as read) — a two-vowel initial-acute word standing after su is initial-acute also in a bahuvrīhi; so peśas stays initial-acute and overrides the compound-accent, as a second member; the e after p is acute; accusative singular am: supeśasam. - adhyasthāḥ: adhi a prefix; root ṣṭhā gatinivṛttau, bhvādi; chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭaḥ (Pā. 3-4-6 as read) gives luṇ in the present; second person singular sip, sthā + si; itaś ca drops the i of sip; cli → sic; gātisthāghupābhūbhyah sicaḥ parasmaipadeṣu (Pā. 2-4-77 as read) drops the sic after sthā; the aṭ augment comes to the root, since luṇ is its cause; the s of sip → ru, visarga: adhi + asthāḥ; āgamā udāttāḥ makes the aṭ acute; yadvṛttān nityam (Pā. 8-1-66 as read) — because of yam (with yat) earlier, no all-unaccented; tiṇi codāttavati (Pā. 8-1-71 as read) — a gati before a verb with acute is unaccented, so adhi is unaccented. - tena: tad + ṭā, tena; anyeṣām api drśyate (Pā. 6-3-137 as read) gives the lengthening in the mantra text only: tenā in the Samhitā. - suśravasam: "śrava is a name for food; śrūyate", with asun; the second member initial-acute as before by ādyudāttaṃ dvyac chandasi; the Kannada author notes that Yāska says the traditionalists use śrava as a name of food (Nī. 10-3 [?]). - ava: the root ava is read, with many senses (rakṣaṇa, gati, kānti, prīti, trpti, avagama, praveśa, śravaṇa, svāmi, artha, yācana, kriyā, icchā, dīpti, avāpti, ālīṅgana, himsā, ādāna, bhāga, vṛddhi), and here means going; loṭ, second person singular, śap; hi replaced; the hi drops after an a-ending stem: ava. - duhitar divaḥ: subāmantrite parāṅgavat svare (Pā. 2-1-2 as read) says a subanta standing before a vocative acts as a part of the following word; the vārttika param api chandasi says a subanta standing after a vocative acts as part of the preceding vocative; so, here, divaḥ, standing after the vocative duhitāḥ, acts as its part; āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19 as read) gives the whole two-word group the all-unaccented. || 2 ||

original p. 98

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

वयश्चित्ते पतत्रिणो द्विपच्चतुष्पदर्जुनि । उषः प्रारन्नृतूर्नु दिवो अन्तेभ्यस्परि ॥ ३ ॥ *vayaś cit te patatriṇo dvipac catuṣpad arjuni | uṣaḥ prārann ṛtūṃr

anu divo antebhyas pari || 3 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

वयः । चित् । ते । पतत्रिणः । द्विऽपत् । चतुऽपत् । अर्जुनि । उषः । प्र । आरन् । ऋतून् । अनु । दिवः । अन्तेभ्यः । परि ॥ ३ ॥

*vayaḥ | cit | te | patatriṇaḥ | dvi-pat | catuḥ-pat | arjuni | uṣaḥ |
pra | āran | ṛtūn | anu | divaḥ | antebhyaḥ | pari || 3 ||*⁹

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे अर्जुनि शुभ्रवर्णे उष उषोदेवते ते तव ऋतून् गमनान्यनुलक्ष्य द्विपत् द्विपादं
मनुष्यादिकं चतुष्पत् गवादिकं तथा पतत्रिणः पतत्रवन्तः पक्षोपेता वयश्चित्
पक्षिणश्च दिवोऽन्तेभ्य आकाशप्रान्तेभ्यः पर्युपरि प्रारन् । प्रकर्षेण गच्छन्ति ।
रात्र्यन्धकारेणाभिभूताः सर्वे प्राणिनस्त्वदागमानन्तरं चेष्टावन्तो भवन्तीत्यर्थः ॥
पतत्रिणः । पत्लृ गतौ । पतत्यनेनेति पतत्रं । अमिनक्षीत्यादिना । उ. ३-१०२ [?] ।
अत्रप्रत्ययः । अतो मत्वर्थीये इनिः । द्विपत् । द्वौ पादावस्येति संख्यासुपूर्वस्य । पा.
५-४-१४० [?] । इति पादशब्दस्यान्त्यलोपः समासान्तः । आयस्यादित्वेन भत्वात् पादः पत् । पा. ६-४-१३० । इति पद्मावः । द्विचतुर्भ्यां पादन्नृथेषु बहुव्रीहौ [?] । पा.
६-२-१९८ [?] । इत्युत्तरपदान्तोदात्तत्वं । चतुष्पत् । चत्वारः पादा अस्य ।

9. The print's Pada shows the verb as "ār" with a cluster read as āran, [?]; the Saṃhitā's prārann and the grammar below show āran.

स्वरव्यतिरिक्तं पूर्ववत् । बहुव्रीहौ पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं । इणः ष इत्यनुवृत्तावि
दुदुपधस्य चाप्रत्ययस्य । पा. ८-३-४१ । इति विसर्जनीयस्य षत्वं । न च
परत्वेनास्य विद्धत्वात् कुप्वोः क पौ च । पा. ८-३-३७ । इत्युपध्मानीयादेशः
शङ्कनीयः । येन नाप्राप्तिन्यायेन तस्यापवादत्वात् । अपवादेशु परमपि पूर्वं बाधक
एवेति वृत्तावुक्तं । आरन् । ऋ गतौ । छन्दसि लुङ्लङ्लिट इति वर्तमाने लुङि
सर्तिशास्त्यर्तिभ्यश्चेति च्लेरडादेशः । ऋदृशोऽङि गुण इति गुणः । अडागमः । ऋतून् । ऋ गतौ । अस्मादौणादिको भावे कुप्रत्ययः । अनु । अनुर्लक्षणे । पा.
१-४-८४ । इत्यनोः कर्मप्रवचनीयत्वं । कर्मप्रवचनीययुक्ते । पा. २-३-८ । इति
द्वितीया । संहितायां दीर्घादटि समानपाद इति नकारस्य रुत्वं । अत्रानुनासिकः
पूर्वस्य तु वेति रोः पूर्वस्य वर्णस्य सानुनासिकत्वं । दिवः । ऊडिदमिति विभक्तिरुदात्ता । अन्तेभ्यः । पञ्चम्याः परावध्यर्थ इति विसर्जनीयस्य सत्वं ॥

*he arjuni śubhravarṇe uṣa uṣodevate te tava ṛtūnu gamanāny anulakṣya dvipat dvipādaṃ manuṣyādikaṃ catuṣpat gavādikaṃ tathā patatṛiṇaḥ patatravantaḥ pakṣopetā vayaś cit pakṣiṇaś ca divo 'ntebhya ākāśaprāntebhyaḥ pary upari prāran | prakarṣeṇa
gacchanti | rātryandhakāreṇābhībhitāḥ sarve prāṇinaś
tvadāgamānantaraṃ ceṣṭāvanto bhavanti arthaḥ || patatṛiṇaḥ |
patḥ gatau | patatyanena iti patatram | aminakṣity ādinā | u.
3-102 [?] | atrapratyayaḥ | ato matvarthīye inih | dvipat | dvau
pādāv asyeti saṃkhyāsupūrvasya | pā. 5-4-140 [?] | iti
pādaśabdasyāntyalopaḥ samāsāntaḥ | āyasyāditvena bhatvāt
pādaḥ pat | pā. 6-4-130 | iti padbhāvaḥ | dvicaturbhyāṃ pādannṛtheṣu bahuvrīhau [?] | pā. 6-2-198 [?] | ity uttarapadāntodāttatvaṃ | catuṣpat | catvāraḥ pādā asya |
svaravyatiriktaṃ pūrvavat | bahuvrīhau
pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ | iṇaḥ ṣa ity anuvṛttāv i duduṣpadhasya cāpratyayasya | pā. 8-3-41 | iti visarjanīyasya ṣatvaṃ | na ca paratvenāśya viddhatvāt kupvoḥ ka pau ca | pā.
8-3-37 | ity upadhmānīyādeśaḥ śaṅkanīyaḥ | yena nāprāptinyāyena tasyāpavādatvāt | apavādeṣu param api pūrvam bādhaka eveti vṛttāv uktaṃ | ārann | ṛ gatau | chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭa
iti vartamāne luṇi sartiśāstyartibhyaś ceti cler aṇādeśaḥ | ṛdṛśo 'ṇi*

*guṇa iti guṇaḥ | aḍāgamaḥ | ṛtūn | ṛ gatau | asmād auṇādiko
bhāve kupratyayaḥ | anu | anur lakṣaṇe | pā. 1-4-84 | ity anoh
karmapravacanīyatvaṃ | karmapravacanīyayukte | pā. 2-3-8 | iti
dvitīyā | saṃhitāyāṃ dīrghād aṭi samānapāda iti nakārasya rutvaṃ | atrānunāsikaḥ pūrvasya tu veti roḥ pūrvasya varṇasya
sānunāsikatvaṃ | divaḥ | ūḍidam iti vibhaktir udāttā | antebhyaḥ
| pañcamyāḥ parāvadhyartha iti visarjanīyasya satvaṃ ||* ¹⁰

Translation: "O arjuni, O bright-hued one, O Uṣas: te, your ṛtūn anu, following your goings — dvipat, the two-footed, men and the like, catuspat, the four-footed, cows and the like, and likewise patatṛiṇaḥ, the winged, vayaś cit, the birds, divaḥ antebhyaḥ pari, from the ends of the sky, above, pra āran, set forth: all beings, overcome by the darkness of the night, become active after your coming. Patatṛiṇaḥ: root patḥ gatau; 'that by which one flies' is patatra; itra by the Uṇādi list (Uṇ. 3-102 [?]); ini in the possessive sense. Dvipat: 'having two feet'; the final of pāda drops as a compound-ending; pat for pād by pādaḥ pat (Pā. 6-4-130); the second member end-acute by dvicaturbhyām... [?]. Catuspat: 'having four feet'. Āran: root ṛ gatau; in the present sense luṇ; aṇ in place of cli; the guṇa of the ṛ; the aṭ. Ṛtūn: from ṛ gatau, the Uṇādi ku-suffix in the abstract sense. Anu: anu is a karmapravacanīya in the sense of 'following'; the accusative where a karmapravacanīya is joined; in the Saṃhitā the n becomes ru by dīrghād aṭi samānapāde, with the nasalization of the preceding vowel by atrānunāsikaḥ pūrvasya tu vā."

Pratipadārtha — "arjuni — O Uṣas of bright colour; te — your; ṛtūn anu — following your goings (as soon as you rise); dvipat — the beings that have two feet, such as men; catuspat — and the four-footed, such as cows; patatṛiṇaḥ — the winged; vayaś cit —

10. Crowded in the print: "ṛtūnu" for "ṛtūn" at the start, the Pāṇini numbers 5-4-140, 6-2-198, 8-3-41, 8-3-37 and the clause on duduspadhasya, and the Uṇādi number; all as read, [?].

the birds too; divaḥ — of the atmosphere; antebhyaḥ — from the boundaries (from many corners); pari — above; prāran — (flocking together) move with eagerness."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Uṣas of bright colour, as soon as you rise the two-footed beings such as men, and the four-footed beings such as cows, begin to move, following your goings. Birds with wings too, flocking together from the many corners of the atmosphere, go about with eagerness."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 99)

— "O bright Ushas, at your coming in the morning the bipeds (men) and quadrupeds (animals with four legs) begin to move and even the winged birds flock around from the boundaries of the sky."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 99 — "mukhyābhiprāya — As soon as it is light at the time of dawn, two-footed men, and four-footed cows and other beings, begin to move about. The birds with wings begin to fly about in flocks in the sky. In the night, because it is dark, there is no room for beings to move. As soon as it is light, all living beings, men, animals, birds and so on, take up their own movements and tasks. Therefore the idea is that all beings welcome your (the time of dawn's) coming."¹¹

Rik 49.3, continued¹²

Special Topics, continued (p. 100) - patatṛiṇaḥ — "patḷ gatau; patatyanena iti patatram: because (the bird) moves in the sky, or because it has wings, patatṛiṇaḥ means birds." - dvipat — "dvau pādāv asyeti: those with two feet, men." - catuṣpat — "catvāraḥ pādā asya: beings with four feet, cows and the like." - arjuni — "since the word arjunī is read among the sixteen names of Uṣas

11. The grammar of Rik 3 begins on p. 100, not yet written.

12. from p. 100

beginning vibhāvarī, sūnarī (Ni. 1-[?]⁹ as read), arjuni means the goddess Uṣas. Since the word uṣaḥ is also in this ṛk, the commentator has given arjuni the sense 'of bright colour'." - ṛtūn — "since there is a Nirukta statement 'rter vā ṛtikarmaṇaḥ' (Ni. 2-[?]-[?] as read), ṛtūn means 'goings'; that is, the dawns of every day of the goddess Uṣas. The plural is used to show 'at the times of dawn of each day'." — untranslated in the source:

ऋतेरर्तेर्गतिकर्मणः । (Ni. 2-[?]-[?] as read [?]; the print reads "rterarteḥ ..." [?])

rter arter gatikarmaṇaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "from r, 'to go', a verb of motion." (The citation is as printed and crowded; no firmer reading is given.)

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹³ - patatṛiṇaḥ: root patḥ gatau; "patati anena iti patatram", the means of flying (the wings); the Uṇādi rule aminakṣi... (Uṇ. 3-[?]⁰² as read [?]) gives the suffix atran: patatra; "patatram asya asti", one who has wings: ata iniṭhanau (Pā. 5-2-115 as read [?]) gives ini in the possessive sense; yasyeti ca drops the a of patatra, so the stem ends in n: patatrin. - dvipāt: "dvau pādau asya", one with two feet; saṃkhyāsupūrvasya (Pā. 5-4-140 as read [?]) drops the last of pāda when a number or su stands before it; samāsāntāḥ (Pā. 5-4-68 as read [?]) governs this, so the dropping is a compound-ending; the final a drops: dvipād; ayasmayādīni chandasi (Pā. 1-4-20 as read) gives bha-name to words of this list even without a cause; since dvipād is read in this list, it gets bha-name; pādaḥ pat (Pā. 6-4-130 as read) then gives pat for pād when it has the bha-name: dvipāt; dvitribhyāṃ pādannūrdhasu bahuvrīhau (Pā. 6-2-197 as read [?]) gives the end-acute optionally to pād, dat, mūrdhan after dvi or tri in a bahuvrīhi; so here the second member is end-acute. - catuṣpat: "catvāraḥ pādāḥ asya"; as with dvipāt, apart from the accent, all the processes are alike: the compound-ending and pat by listing ayasmayādi; the compound accent would be obtained, but bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam (Pā. 6-2-1 as read) gives the first member's natural accent; catuṣpat is initial-acute. Catuḥ + pat: iduduṣpadhasya cāpratyayasya (Pā. 8-3-41 as read [?]) gives ṣatva: īṇaḥ ṣaḥ of the preceding sūtra continues; a visarga that is not a suffix and whose preceding letter is i or u becomes ṣ before ku- or *pu-*letters in the same word: so catuṣpat. Pūrvatrāsiddham (Pā. 8-2-1 as read) makes what follows in the tripādī unseen by what precedes; the Kannada author raises a prior objection (pūrvapakṣa) that the earlier sūtra kupvoḥ ka pau ca (Pā. 8-3-37 as read), which gives upadhmānīya and jihvāmūlīya, would apply since the sūtra iduduṣpadhasya ca is later and so "unseen" by it; it is answered by the maxim paranīyāntaraṅgāpavādānām uttarottaram balīyaḥ and by yena nāprāptau yo vidhir ārabhyate sa tasyāpavādaḥ: since iduduṣpadhasya ca is specially begun when the general rule would otherwise apply, it is an exception (apavāda), and an exception, even if later and "unseen", sets aside the earlier general rule, as the vṛtti says; so ṣatva comes and not upadhmānīya. (This argument is outlined only.) - āran: root ṛ gatau; chandasi luṇlaṇḍīṭaḥ (Pā. 3-4-6 as read) gives luṇ in the present sense; third person plural jhi; ṛ + jhi; jho 'ntaḥ (Pā. 7-1-3 as read) gives ant for jhi; itaś ca drops the i; the t drops by saṃyogāntalopa: an; the cli obtainable in luṇ is replaced by aṇ by sartīśāstyartibhyaś ca (Pā. 3-1-56 as read [?]); ṛ + a + an; ṛdṛśo 'ṇi guṇaḥ (Pā. 7-4-16 as read) gives guṇa to the root; the aṭ augment comes, since the root begins with a vowel; pararūpa of the a of aṇ and of an; guṇa with r: āran. - ṛtūn: root ṛ gatau; the Uṇādi *ku-*suffix in the abstract sense; being kit, no guṇa; accusative plural: ṛtūn. - anu: anur lakṣaṇe (Pā. 1-4-84 as read) gives the name karmapravacanīya to anu when it points to another (jñāpya-jñāpakabhāva) — here "birds and others fly, making known the going of Uṣas" — and the accusative by karmapravacanīyayukte dvitīyā (Pā. 2-3-8 as read) on the word ṛtu denoting the thing making known. In ṛtūn, in the Mantra-text, dīrghād aṭi samānapāde (Pā. 8-3-9 as read) gives ru for n, and atrānunāsikaḥ pūrvasya tu vā (Pā. 8-3-2 as read) gives optional nasalization of the preceding vowel before the ru; no further substitutes come to the r, there being no cause. - divaḥ: genitive singular of div; the case-ending would be unaccented, but ūḍidampadādyap... (Pā. 6-1-171 as read) makes it acute; divaḥ is end-acute. - antebhyaḥ: in the Mantra-text antebhyaḥ pari: pañcamyāḥ parāvadhyartha (Pā. 8-3-51 as read) gives s for the visarga of the ablative case-ending when pari in the sense of "above" follows: antebhyas pari.

|| 3 ||

original pp. 102–105

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

व्युच्छन्ती हि रश्मिभिर्विश्वमाभासि रोचनम् । तां त्वामुष्वसूयवो गीर्भिः कण्वा अहूषत ॥ ४ ॥

*viucchantī hi raśmibhir viśvam ābhāsi rocanam | tāṃ tvām uṣaḥ
vasūyavo gīrbhiḥ kaṇvā ahūṣata || 4 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

वि-उच्छन्ती । हि । रश्मिभिः । विश्वम् । आऽभासि । रोचनम् । ताम् । त्वाम् । उषः । वसुऽयवः । गीऽभिः । कण्वाः । अहूषत ॥ ४ ॥

*vi-ucchantī | hi | raśmi-bhiḥ | viśvam | ā-bhāsi | rocanam | tāṃ |
tvām | uṣaḥ | vasu-yavaḥ | gīḥ-bhiḥ | kaṇvāḥ | ahūṣata || 4 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उषो व्युच्छन्ती तमो वर्जयन्ती त्वं रश्मिभिः स्वकीयैस्तेजोभिर्विश्वं सर्वं भूतजातं
रोचनं रोचमानं प्रकाशयुक्तं यथा भवति तथाभासि । आ समन्तात्प्रकाशसे । हि यस्मादेवं तस्मात्तां तादृशीं त्वां वसूयवो वसुकामाः कण्वा मेधाविन ऋद्विजः
कण्वगोत्रोत्पन्ना वा महर्षयो गीर्भिः स्तुतिलक्षणैर्वचोभिरहूषत । स्तुतवन्त इत्यर्थः ।
कण्व इति मेधाविनाम् । कण्व ऋभुरिति तन्नामसु पाठात् ॥ आभासि । आङ्

उपसर्गः । भा दीप्तौ । अदादित्वाच्छपो लुक् । सिपः पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे धातुस्वरः ।
 हि चेति निघातप्रतिषेधः । तिडि चोदात्तवतीति गतेरनुदात्तत्वं । रोचनं । रुच दीप्तौ ।
 अनुदात्तेतश्च हलादेरिति युच् । चित इत्यन्तोदात्तत्वं । वसूयवः । वसु धनमात्मन
 इच्छन्तः वसूयवः । सुप आत्मनः क्यच् । अकृत्सार्वधातुकयोर्दीर्घ इति दीर्घः ।
 क्याच्छन्दसीत्युप्रत्ययः । गीर्भिः । सावेकाच इति तृतीयादिर्विभक्तिरुदात्ता । कण्वाः
 । कण शब्दार्थः । आशिप्रुषिलटिकणिखटिविशिभ्यः क्वन् । उ. १-१५४ [?] ।
 नित्त्वादाद्युदात्तत्वं । अहूषत । हेञ् स्पर्धायां शब्दे च । लुङि । हः
 संप्रसारणमित्यनुवृत्तौ बहुलं छन्दसीति संप्रसारणं । परपूर्वत्वे हल इति दीर्घत्वं ।
 च्लेः सिच् । एकाच इतीट्प्रतिषेधः । संज्ञापूर्वकस्य विधेरनित्यत्वाद्गुणाभावः ॥ ४
 [?] ॥

he uṣo vyucchantī tamo varjayantī tvaṃ raśmibhiḥ svakīyais tejobhir viśvaṃ sarvaṃ bhūtajātaṃ rocanaṃ rocamānaṃ
 prakāśayuktaṃ yathā bhavati tathābhāsi | ā samantāt prakāśase
 | hi yasmād evaṃ tasmāt tāṃ tādrśiṃ tvāṃ vasūyavo vasukāmāḥ kaṇvā medhāvina ṛtvijaḥ kaṇvagotrotpannā vā maharṣayo gīrbhiḥ stutilakṣaṇair vacobhir ahūṣata | stutavanta ity arthaḥ | kaṇva iti medhāvināma | kaṇva ṛbhur iti tannāmasu pāṭhāt | | ābhāsi | āñ upasargaḥ | bhā dīptau | adāditvāc chapo luk | sipaḥ pittvād anudāttatve dhātusvaraḥ | hi ceti nighātapraṭiṣedhaḥ | tiṇi codāttavatīti gater anudāttatvaṃ | rocanaṃ | ruca dīptau |
 anudāttetaś ca halāder iti yuc | cita ity antodāttatvaṃ |
 vasūyavaḥ | vasu dhanam ātmana icchantāḥ vasūyavaḥ | supa
 ātmanaḥ kyac | akṛtsārvadhātukayor dīrgha iti dīrghaḥ | kyāc chandasīty upratyayaḥ | gīrbhiḥ | sāvekāca iti tṛtīyādir vibhaktir udāttā | kaṇvāḥ | kaṇa śabdārthaḥ |
 āsipruṣilaṭikaṇikhaṭiviśibhyaḥ kvan | u. 1-154 [?] | nittvād
 ādyudāttatvaṃ | ahūṣata | hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca | luṇi | hvaḥ saṃprasāraṇam ity anuvṛttau bahulaṃ chandasīti saṃprasāraṇam | parapūrvatve hala iti dīrghatvaṃ | cleḥ sic |
 ekāca itīṭpratiṣedhaḥ | saṃjñāpūrvakasya vidher anityatvād
 guṇābhāvaḥ | | 4 [?] | | ¹⁴

Translation: "O Uṣas, vyucchantī, driving off darkness, you, raśmibhiḥ, with your own splendours, viśvam, the whole creation, rocanam, shining, full of light, ābhāsi, shine upon, shine all around. Hī, since it is so, tām tvām, you who are such, vasūyavaḥ, those desiring wealth, kaṇvāḥ, the Kaṇvas — wise priests or great sages born in the line of Kaṇva — gīrbhiḥ, with words of praise, ahūṣata, have called, have praised. Kaṇva is a name for the wise, being read among such names: 'Kaṇva, Ṛbhu'. Ābhāsi: root bhā dīptau, with āñ; śap drops, the root being of the adādi class; since sip is pit and unaccented, the root-accent; no all-unaccented, by hi ca. Rocanam: root ruca dīptau; yuc; end-acute by citaḥ. Vasūyavaḥ: 'those who wish wealth for themselves'; kyac after a sup in the sense 'for oneself'; the lengthening by akṛtsārvadhātukayor dīrghaḥ; the u-suffix after kya in the Chandas. Gīrbhiḥ: the case-ending is acute by sāvekāca.... Kaṇvāḥ: root kaṇa śabdārthaḥ; kvan (Uṇ. 1-154 [?]); initial-acute because nī. Ahūṣata: root hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca, in luñ; the saṃprasāraṇa by bahulaṃ chandasi; the lengthening by halah; sic for clī; no iṭ; no guṇa, since a rule that makes mention of a name is not invariable."

Pratipadārtha — "uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; vyucchantī — driving off the darkness; raśmibhiḥ — with your splendours; viśvam — the whole world; rocanam — as shining; ā bhāsi — you light up all round; hī — for that reason; tām tvām — you, so splendid; vasūyavaḥ — those who desire wealth; kaṇvāḥ — wise priests or sages born in the line of Kaṇva; gīrbhiḥ — with words in the form of praise; ahūṣata — have praised, have called."

Bhāvārtha

14. Crowded: the list of roots in the Uṇādi rule āśipruṣi..., its number, and the closing numeral of the bhāṣya; the first two verbs of the Uṇādi list are as read, [?]. The print's gīrbhiḥ Pada division reads "gīḥ-bhiḥ".

— "O goddess Uṣas, driving away the darkness, you light up the whole world with your splendours. You are so splendid, and so the wise priests who desire wealth, or the sages born in the line of Kaṇva, praise you with words in the form of praise."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 104)

— "O Ushas, dispersing the darkness you illumine the whole universe with your bright rays; therefore, O Ushas, the sons of Kanwas, desirous of wealth, praise you with their hymns."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḥ), p. 104 - vyucchantī — "tamo varjyantī: one who drives out the darkness; the one who dispels the night." - vasūyavaḥ — "vasukāmāḥ, dhanakāmāḥ: those who desire wealth." - gīrbhiḥ — "stutīlakṣaṇair vacobhiḥ: with words in the form of praise." - kaṇvāḥ — "sons of the sage Kaṇva, or descendants of the sage Kaṇva."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁵ - ābhāsi: ā a prefix; root bhā dīptau, adādi; loṭ? — the print says laṭ, second person singular sip; śap before it, whose luk is by adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ (Pā. 2-4-72 as read); sip is pit and unaccented, so the root-accent (end-acute) remains by dhātoḥ; ābhāsi is middle-acute; hi ca (Pā. 8-1-34 as read) prevents the all-unaccented because of the word hi; tiṇi codāttavati (Pā. 8-1-71 as read) makes the gati (ā) before the acute verb unaccented. - rocanaṃ: root ruca dīptau, bhvādi, with an unaccented it-marker (anudāttet); anudāttetaś ca halādeḥ (Pā. 3-2-149 as read) gives yuc; yo 'nākau gives ana; guṇa of the penultimate: rocana; yuc is cit, so citaḥ (Pā. 6-1-163 as read) makes it end-acute. - vasūyavaḥ: "vasu dhanam ātmana icchanti", those who wish for wealth for themselves; supa ātmanaḥ kyac (Pā. 3-1-8 as read) gives kyac after the subanta vasu; since kyac is in the sanādi list, a kyac-ending form is a root; vasu + ya; akṛtsārvadhātukayor dīrghaḥ (Pā. 7-4-25 as read) lengthens the final a-less stem-vowel before a yaṇ-initial non-kṛt non-

sārvadhātuka suffix: vasū + ya; then kyāc chandasi (Pā. 3-2-170 as read) gives u after a kyac-ending root in the Chandas; vasūya + u; ato lopah drops the a of kya: vasūyu; in the plural, jasi ca (Pā. 7-3-109 as read) gives guṇa, then av: vasūyavaḥ. - gīrbhiḥ: gīr + bhiḥ; rvor upadhāyā dīrgha ikah (Pā. 8-2-76 as read) lengthens the i before a following consonant: gīrbhiḥ; sāvekācas tṛtīyādir vibhaktiḥ (Pā. 6-1-168 as read) — a one-vowel word before a seventh-case singular or a third-case ending beginning the case-endings, the ending is acute; so gīrbhiḥ is end-acute. - kaṇvāḥ: root kaṇa śabdārthaḥ (the Kannada adds that this root is used with many roots in the sense of 'sounding'); āśipruṣīlaṭikaṇikhaṭivīśibhyaḥ kvan (Uṇ. 1-[?]54 as read [?]) gives kvan; only va remains: kaṇva; being nīṭ, ñnityādir nityam gives initial acute; plural jas: kaṇvāḥ. - ahūṣata: root hveñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca, bhvādi; luṇ, third person plural; hve + ata; bahulaṃ chandasi (Pā. 6-1-34 as read) gives saṃprasāraṇa of hveñ: v → u: hu + e + ata; saṃprasāraṇāc ca gives pūrvarūpa: hu + ata; halah (Pā. 6-4-2 as read) lengthens the saṃprasāraṇa before a consonant: hū + ata; the cli of luṇ gives sic; ekāca upadeśe 'nudāttāt (Pā. 7-2-10 as read) forbids iṭ to the ārdhadhātuka sic; saṃjñāpūrvako vidhir anityaḥ (Paribhāṣā, "93" as read [?]) — a rule that mentions a technical name is not invariable — so the guṇa that would come with the ārdhadhātuka as cause does not come; after the ik [ū], the s of sic → ṣ by ādeśapratyayayoḥ (Pā. 8-3-59 as read); the aṭ augment: ahūṣata; because it comes after a non-verb (kaṇvāḥ), it is all-unaccented by tiṇ atinaḥ. || 4 ||

Close of Sūkta 49. After the grammar of Rik 4 (printed p. 105 ends with the paragraph on ahūṣata, and p. 105 bears the Kannada page-note "14" at its foot, a sheet signature), no closing sentence ("illige ... sūktavu mugidudu") and no ornament is printed. The sūkta (uṣo bhadrebhiḥ, four Riks to Uṣas) therefore occupies printed pp. 91–105 (PDF 107–121). The next leaf, p. 106 =

PDF 122, begins with the large title "aivattaneya sūktavu" ("the fiftieth sūkta"), a clean boundary; the contents table's page for Sūkta 50 (p. 106) is confirmed.

Summary of Sūkta 49. Four Riks to Uṣas, all written in full. Rik 1 asks her to come by auspicious paths from the shining region above and have red cows bring her to the Soma-sacrificer's house; Rik 2 asks her to go, in her fine, spacious, comfortable chariot, to the sacrificer with a fine oblation; Rik 3 says that at her coming the two-footed, the four-footed and the winged beings stir and the birds flock from the ends of the sky; Rik 4 says that driving off darkness she illumines the whole world with her rays and so the Kaṇvas, desiring wealth, praise her with songs. All four Riks are written in full. The doubtful parts are the Anukramaṇikā clause and the Āśvalāyana numerals in the introduction, the many reference numerals (all "as read [?]"), the crowded Nirukta citation on ṛtūn, the Pada's printing of āran in Rik 3, and the outlined (not transcribed) ṣatva/apavāda argument on catuṣpat.¹⁶

16. Seventh and last sūkta of the Ninth Anuvāka.

Sūkta 50 — "ud u tyam"

original p. 106

Fiftieth Sūkta ¹

Pages 106–107 (PDF 122–123) — Sāyaṇa's introduction, the Kannada anuvāda, and the heading

Sāyaṇa's introduction ²

उदु त्यमिति त्रयोदशर्चं सप्तमं सूक्तं प्रस्कण्वस्यार्षं सौर्यदेवत्यं । आदौ नव गायत्र्यः
शिष्टाश्चतस्रोऽनुष्टुभ इत्युक्तं । तथा चानुक्रान्तं । उदु त्यं सप्त्रोना [?] सौर्यं नवाद्या गायत्र्य
इति ॥ आश्विनशस्त्रे सौर्ये क्रतावुदु त्यमित्यादयो नवर्चः शंसनीयाः । संस्थितेष्वश्विनायेति खण्डे सूत्रितं । सूर्यो नो दिव उदु त्यं जातवेदसमिति नव । आ. ६-५ । इति ॥

*udu tyam iti trayodaśarcaṃ sapṭamaṃ sūktaṃ praskaṇvasyārṣaṃ sauryadevatyaṃ | ādau nava gāyatryaḥ śiṣṭāś catasro 'nuṣṭubha
ity uktaṃ | tathā cānukrāntaṃ | udu tyam sapṭronā [?] sauryaṃ navādyā gāyatrya iti || āśvinaśastre saurye kratāv udu tyam ityādayo navarcaḥ śaṃsanīyāḥ | saṃsthiteṣv āśvināyeti khaṇḍe sūtritaṃ | sūryo no diva udu tyam jātavedasam iti nava | ā. 6-5 |
iti ||*

1. large Kannada title line at the head of p. 106: "aivattaneya sūktavu"

2. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; words marked
[?] are crowded

Translation ³: "'Udu tyam' is the seventh sūkta, of thirteen ṛks, the revelation of Praskaṇva, with Sūrya as deity. It is said that the first nine are Gāyatrī and the remaining four Anuṣṭubh. So the Anukramaṇikā: 'udu tyam ... sauryam, the first nine Gāyatrī' [?]. In the Āśvina-śāstra, at the Saurya rite, the nine ṛks beginning 'udu tyam' are to be recited; it is prescribed in the section 'saṃsthiteṣv āśvināya': 'sūryo no diva, udu tyam jātavedasam, nine' (Āśv. 6-5)."

Anuvāda (Kannada), p. 106 — "Udu tyam is the seventh sūkta in the ninth anuvāka. It has thirteen ṛks. The first nine ṛks are in the Gāyatrī metre and the remaining four in the Anuṣṭubh metre. The Anukramaṇikā says that the sūkta udu tyam is the seventh sūkta of the ninth anuvāka and has Sūrya as deity, and that its first nine ṛks are Gāyatrī. In reciting the Āśvina-śāstra mantras, the nine ṛks beginning udu tyam are to be used for the mantras of the Saurya rite. This matter is explained in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta-sūtra, in the section 'saṃsthiteṣv āśvināya', by the sūtra 'sūryo no diva (Ṛ. Saṃ. 10-158), udu tyam jātavedasam (Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-50-1, nine ṛks from it)'."

॥ ॐ ॥

सूक्त — ५०

॥ मण्डल — १ ॥ अनुवाक — ९ ॥ सूक्त — ५० ॥ ॥ अष्टक — १ ॥ अध्याय — ४ ॥
वर्ग — ७, ८ ॥ ॥ सूक्तदल्लिरुव ऋक्संख्यै — १-१३ ॥ ॥ ऋषिः — प्रस्कण्वः काण्वः ॥
॥ देवता — सूर्यः ॥ ॥ छन्दः — १-९ गायत्री । १०-१३ अनुष्टुप् ॥

sūkta 50 | maṇḍala 1 | anuvāka 9 | aṣṭaka 1 | adhyāya 4 | varga 7, 8 | ṛks 1-13 | ṛṣi: Praskaṇva Kāṇva | devatā: Sūrya | chandas: Riks 1-9 Gāyatrī, Riks 10-13 Anuṣṭubh. ⁴

original pp. 106-109

3. editorial and tentative; the Anukramaṇikā word "saptronā" is crowded

4. The varga numerals are small and read with doubt.

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ⁵

उदु त्पं जातवेदसं देवं वहन्ति केतवः । दृशे विश्वाय सूर्यम् ॥ १ ॥

ud u tyam jātavedasam devam vahanti ketavaḥ | dṛśe viśvāya
sūryam || 1 ||

Pada-pāṭha

उत् । ऊं इति । त्यम् । जातऽवेदसम् । देवम् । वहन्ति । केतवः । दृशे । विश्वाय । सूर्यम् ॥ १
॥

ut | ūm iti | tyam | jāta-vedasam | devam | vahanti | ketavaḥ |
dṛśe | viśvāya | sūryam || 1 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

केतवः प्रज्ञापकाः सूर्याश्च यद्वा सूर्यरश्मयः सूर्यं सर्वस्य प्रेरकमादित्यमुदु वहन्ति ।
ऊर्ध्वं वहन्ति । उ इति पादपूरणः । उक्तं च । मिताक्षरेष्वनर्थकाः कमीमिद्धीति ।
नि. १-९ [?] । किमर्थं विश्वाय विश्वस्मै भुवनाय दृशे द्रष्टुं । यथा सर्वे जनाः सूर्यं
पश्यन्ति तथोर्ध्वं वहन्तीत्यर्थः । कीदृशं सूर्यं । त्वं प्रसिद्धं जातवेदसं जातानां
प्राणिनां वेदितारं जातप्रज्ञं जातधनं वा देवं द्योतमानं । अत्र निरुक्तं । उद्वहन्ति तं
जातवेदसं देवमश्वाः केतवो रश्मयो वा सर्वेषां भूतानां सन्दर्शनाय सूर्यम् । नि.
१२-१३ [?] । इति ॥ जातवेदसं । जातानि वेत्तीति जातवेदाः । गतिकारकोपपदयोः
पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं च । उ. ४-६६६ [?] । इत्यसुन् पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं च । दृशे ।
दृशे विख्ये च । पा. ३-४-११ । इति तुमर्थे निपातितः । सूर्यं । राजसूयसूर्येत्यादिना
षू प्रेरण इत्यस्मात् क्यपि रुडागमसहितो निपातितः । आतः प्रत्ययस्य पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे धातुस्वरेणाद्युदात्तत्वं ॥ ketavaḥ prajñāpakāḥ sūryāśvā yadvā sūryaraśmayāḥ sūryam

sarvasya prerakam ādityam ud u vahanti | ūrdhvaḥ vahanti | u iti pādapūraṇaḥ | uktaḥ ca | mitākṣareṣv anarthakāḥ kam im id
dhīti | ni. 1-9 [?] | kimarthaḥ viśvāya viśvasmai bhuvanāya dṛśe

draṣṭuṃ | yathā sarve janāḥ sūryaṃ paśyanti tathordhvaṃ
 vahantīty arthaḥ | kīdṛśaṃ sūryaṃ | tyam prasiddhaṃ jātavedasaṃ jātānāṃ prāṇināṃ veditāraṃ jātaprajñāṃ jātadhanam vā devaṃ dyotamānaṃ | atra niruktaṃ | udvahanti taṃ jātavedasaṃ devam aśvāḥ ketavo raśmayo vā sarveṣāṃ bhūtānāṃ sandarśanāya sūryam | ni. 12-13 [?] | iti ||
 jātavedasaṃ | jātāni vettīti jātavedāḥ | gatikārapapadayoḥ pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ ca | u. 4-666 [?] | ity asun pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ ca | dṛśe | dṛśe vikhye ca | pā. 3-4-11
 | iti tumarthe nipātitaḥ | sūryaṃ | rājasūyasūryety ādinā ṣū prerāṇa ity asmāt kyapi ruḍāgamasahito nipātitaḥ | ātaḥ
 pratyayasya pittvād anudāttatve dhātusvareṇādyudāttatvaṃ || ⁶

Translation: "Ketavaḥ, the knowers (or: bringers of knowledge) — the Sun's horses, or the Sun's rays — sūryam, the Sun, the impeller of all, the Āditya, ud u vahanti, bear aloft. U is a mere filler of the pāda; as it is said: 'the particles kam, im, it, hi in short-syllabled [places] have no meaning' (Ni. 1-9 [?]). For what? Viśvāya dṛśe, to be seen by the whole world: the sense is that they bear him up so that all people see the Sun. What Sun? Tyam, that well-known one; jātavedasaṃ, the knower of all born beings, or one with born knowledge or born wealth; devam, shining. The Nirukta here: 'the horses, the ketus or the rays bear up that Jātavedas, the god, the Sun, that all beings may see him' (Ni. 12-13 [?]). Jātavedasaṃ: 'he who knows the born'; asun, with the first member's natural accent (Uṇ. [?]). Dṛśe: given by nipātana in the sense of the infinitive (Pā. 3-4-11). Sūryam: from ṣū prerāṇe, with kyap and the augment ruṭ by rājasūyasūrya...; the suffix being pit is unaccented, so the root's initial acute."

Pratipadārtha — "ketavaḥ — (announcing his coming) the horses or rays of the Sun; tyam — that well-known one; jātavedasaṃ — who knows all that is born, or who has wealth that is born; devam — the shining; sūryam — the Sun (who impels all in their work); viśvāya — of the whole world; ḍṛśe — for the sake of sight; ud u vahanti — raise up, carry up."

6. Crowded: the Nirukta numbers, the Uṇādi number "4-666" as printed [?], and the clause gatikārapapadayoḥ ...; as read.

Bhāvārtha

— "The god Sūrya is known in the world as the impeller of all in their business. He knows all that is born; he has the wealth that is born; and he shines. The horses, or the rays, that announce the coming of such a god of divine qualities, raise him up for the sight of the whole world."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 108)

— "His horses (or rays) carry on high all-knowing and divine Sun that he may be seen by all."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayaḥ), pp. 108–109 - "This sūkta has Sūrya as its deity. In the Ṛgveda there are in all about sixty [?] ṛks whose deity is Sūrya; put together they are called the Saura-sūkta. This Saura-sūkta is recited at the time of Sūryopasthāna and at rites of worship such as Sūryanamaskāra. Although the deities named Sūrya, Āditya and Savitṛ indicate one and the same person, the Sun, there are, as said before, not many ṛks of the Ṛgveda that speak of Sūrya alone. There are many sūktas whose deity is Āditya or Savitṛ." - On the word sūrya Yāska says (untranslated in the source; reference "Ni. 12-14" as read [?]):

सूर्यः सतेर्वा । सुवतेर्वा । स्वीर्यतेर्वा ॥ (Ni. 12-14 as read [?])

sūryaḥ sarter vā | suvater vā | svīryater vā || — editorial and tentative: "sūrya (is) from sr, 'to go'; or from su, 'to impel'; or from svīryate." The Kannada author: "that is, he is called sūrya because he moves, or because he gives birth to all, or because he impels the whole group of living beings: these are the derivations of the word sūrya"; and he cites Yāska's own explanation of this ṛk (untranslated in the source; "Ni. 12-13" as read [?]):

उद्धन्ति तं जातवेदसं देवमश्वाः केतवो रश्मयो वा सर्वेषां भूतानां सन्दर्शनाय सूर्यमिति ।
कमन्यमादित्यादेवमवक्ष्यत् ॥ (Ni. 12-13 as read [?])

udvahanti taṃ jātavedasam devam aśvāḥ ketavo raśmayo vā sarveṣāṃ bhūtānāṃ sandarśanāya sūryam iti | kam anyam ādityād devam avakṣyat || — editorial and tentative: "They bear up that Jātavedas, the god — the horses, the ketus, or the rays — for the beholding of all beings, the Sun. Whom else, other than Āditya, would one call god?" "Since this explanation is just as the commentator has said, no further explanation of it is needed." - tyam — "this word indicates the sense of tad, 'that'." - jātavedasam — "jātāni vettīti jātavedāḥ: one who knows everything born in the world." - devam — "the shining one, who shines in heaven." - ud vahanti — "bear up, or hold. The Sun's horses or his rays hold the Sun up in the upper part of the atmosphere so that all may see him, that is, carry him along the high path." - ketavaḥ — "since the word ketu has the sense 'knowledge' (Ni. 3-[?]3 as read) and also 'ray', the commentator, and also Skandasvāmin, explain ketavaḥ here as 'the Sun's horses endowed with knowledge' or 'rays of the Sun'. Yāska alone explains ketavaḥ as the Sun's rays." - dr̥śe — "draṣṭum: in order to be seen, for all to see." - viśvāya — "viśvasmai bhuvanāya: for the whole universe, or for the seeing of all people (beings)."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁷ - jātavedasam: "jātāni vetti", he who knows the born; gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt (Uṇ. 4-[?]66 as read [?]) — when a gati or kāra is upapada, asun after the root and the first member's natural accent: jāta, a kāra, is upapada, so asun after the root vid; pugantalaghūpadhasya ca gives guṇa: jātaveda + s; accusative: jātavedasam; the accent: jāta being end-acute by its suffix, the ta-vowel after j [the ā] is acute in jātavedasam. - dr̥śe: "draṣṭum"; dr̥śe viḥkhye ca (Pā. 3-4-11 as read) — these two forms are given by nipātana in the infinitive sense; dr̥śe thus means "to see". - sūryam: root ṣū preraṇe, tudādi;

rājasūyasūryamṛṣodyarucyakupyakṛṣṭapacyāvyathyāḥ (Pā. 3-1-114 as read) — seven words ending in kyap given by nipātana, among which sūrya. Or one might derive sūrya from sarati ākāśe ("he who goes in the sky"), in which case kyap and the change to ū and lengthening are by nipātana; or kyap comes after the first-given root, so that one must say 'suvati karmaṇi lokam prerayati sūryaḥ', "the one who impels the world to its work"; with kyap the augment ruṭ comes: sū + ruṭ + ya; ruṭ is cit, so the end-acute of the member; kyap being pit, unaccented by anudāttau suppitau, the end-acute of the root by dhātoḥ prevails; sūryam is initial-acute; the unaccented after an acute becomes svarita. || 1 ||

original pp. 110–113

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

अप त्ये तायवो यथा नक्षत्रा यन्त्यक्तुभिः । सूराय विश्वचक्षसे ॥ २ ॥

apa tye tāyavo yathā nakṣatrā yanty aktubhiḥ | sūrāya viśvacakṣase || 2 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अप । त्ये । तायवः । यथा । नक्षत्रा । यन्ति । अक्तुभिः । सूराय । विश्वचक्षसे ॥ २ ॥

apa | tye | tāyavaḥ | yathā | nakṣatrā | yanti | aktu-bhiḥ | sūrāya | viśva-cakṣase || 2 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

त्ये तायवो यथा प्रसिद्धास्तस्करा इव नक्षत्रा नक्षत्राणि देवगृहरूपाणि । देवगृहा वै नक्षत्राणि । तै. ब्रा. १-५-२-६ [?] । इति श्रुत्यन्तरात् । यद्वा । इह लोके कर्मानुष्ठाय ये स्वर्गं प्राप्नुवन्ति ते नक्षत्ररूपेण दृश्यन्ते । तथा च श्रूयते । यो वा इह यजते ऽमुं स लोकं नक्षते तन्नक्षत्राणां नक्षत्रत्वं । तै. ब्रा. १-५-२-३ [?] । इति । यद्वा । तेषां सुकृतिनां ज्योतींषि नक्षत्राण्युच्यन्ते । सुकृतां वा एतानि ज्योतींषि यन्नक्षत्राणि । तै. सं. ५-४-१-३ [?] । इत्याम्नानात् । यास्कस्त्वाह । नक्षत्राणि नक्षतेर्गतिकर्मणो

नेमानि क्षत्राणीति च ब्राह्मणं । नि. ३-२० [?] । इति । तथाविधानि
 नक्षत्राण्यक्तुभी रात्रिभिः सहापयन्ति । अपगच्छन्ति । विश्वचक्षसे विश्वस्य सर्वस्य
 प्रकाशकस्य सूराय सूर्यस्यागमनं दृष्ट्वेति शेषः । तस्करा नक्षत्राणि च रात्रिभिः सह
 सूर्य आगमिष्यतीति भीत्या पलायन्त इत्यर्थः । तायुरिति स्तेननाम । तायुस्तस्कर
 इति तन्नामसु पाठात् । आक्तुरिति रात्रिनाम । शर्वयक्तुरिति तत्र पाठात् । यथा ।
 यथेति पादान्त इति सर्वानुदात्तत्वं । नक्षत्रा । नक्ष गतौ ।

अमिनक्षियजिबन्धिपतिभ्योऽत्रन् । उ. ३-१०२ [?] । इत्यत्रन्प्रत्ययः ।
 नित्त्वादाद्युदात्तत्वं । नभ्राणनपादित्यत्र वृत्तौ त्वेवमुक्तं । न क्षरति न क्षीयते इति वा
 नक्षत्रम् । क्षीयतेः क्षरतेर्वा नक्षत्रमिति निपात्यत इति । शेषछन्दसि बहुलमिति
 शेलोपः । यन्ति । इण् गतौ । इणो यणिति यणादेशः । सूराय विश्वचक्षसे । विश्वं
 चष्टे प्रकाशयतीति विश्वचक्षाः । चक्षेर्बहुलं शिच्च । उ. ४-२१३ [?] । इत्यसुन्प्रत्ययः
 । शित्त्वेन सार्वधातुकत्वात्ख्याजादेशाभावः । उभयत्र षष्ठ्यर्थे चतुर्थी वक्तव्या । म.
 २-३-६२-१ [?] । इति चतुर्थी ॥ tye tāyavo yathā prasiddhās taskarā iva nakṣatrā nakṣatrāṇi devagrharūpāṇi | devagrhā vai nakṣatrāṇi | tai. brā. 1-5-2-6 [?] |

 iti śrutyantarat | yadvā | iha loke karmānuṣṭhāya ye svargaṃ
 prāpnuvanti te nakṣatrarūpeṇa drśyante | tathā ca śrūyate | yo vā iha yajate 'muṃ sa lokaṃ nakṣate tan nakṣatrāṇāṃ nakṣatratvaṃ | tai. brā. 1-5-2-3 [?] | iti | yadvā | teṣāṃ sukṛtināṃ jyotīmṣi nakṣatrāṇy ucyante | sukṛtāṃ vā etāni jyotīmṣi yan nakṣatrāṇi |
 tai. saṃ. 5-4-1-3 [?] | ity āmnānāt | yāskas tv āha | nakṣatrāṇi
 nakṣater gatikarmaṇo nemāni kṣatrāṇīti ca brāhmaṇaṃ | ni. 3-20
 [?] | iti | tathāvidhāni nakṣatrāṇy aktubhī rātribhiḥ sahāpayanti |
 apagacchanti | viśvacakṣase viśvasya sarvasya prakāśakasya
 sūrāya sūryasyāgamaṇaṃ dr̥ṣṭveti śeṣaḥ | taskarā nakṣatrāṇi ca rātribhiḥ saha sūrya āgamiṣyatīti bhītyā palāyanta ity arthaḥ | tāyur iti stenanaṃ | tāyus taskara iti tannāmasu pāṭhāt | āktur
 iti rātrināma | śarvayaktur iti tatra pāṭhāt | yathā | yatheti pādānta iti sarvānudāttatvaṃ | nakṣatrā | nakṣa gatau | aminakṣiyajibandhipatibhyo 'tran | u. 3-102 [?] | ity atranpratyayaḥ | nittvād ādyudāttatvaṃ | nabhrāṇnapād ity atra
 vṛttau tv evaṃ uktaṃ | na kṣarati na kṣīyate iti vā nakṣatram |

*kṣīyateḥ kṣarater vā nakṣatram iti nipātyata iti | śeś chandasi bahulam iti śer lopah | yanti | iṇ gatau | iṇo yaṇ iti yaṇādeśaḥ | sūrāya viśvacakṣase | viśvaṃ caṣṭe prakāśayatīti viśvacakṣāḥ | cakṣer bahulaṃ śic ca | u. 4-213 [?] | ity asunpratyayaḥ | śittvena sārva dhātukatvāt khyāñādeśābhāvaḥ | ubhayatra ṣaṣṭhyarthe caturthī vaktavyā | ma. 2-3-62-1 [?] | iti caturthī ||*⁸

Translation: "Tye tāyavaḥ yathā, like those well-known thieves, nakṣatrā, the stars — the houses of the gods in form (for 'the stars are the houses of the gods', from another Śruti, Tai. Brā. 1-5-2-6 [?]); or, those who have gone to heaven after doing rites in this world are seen in the form of stars: and so one hears, 'whoever sacrifices here reaches (nakṣate) that world; hence the starhood of the stars' (Tai. Brā. 1-5-2-3 [?]); or, the lights of those of good deeds are called stars — 'these lights, the stars, are of those of good deeds' (Tai. Saṃ. 5-4-1-3 [?]). Yāska, however, says: 'nakṣatrāṇi from nakṣati, a verb of motion; and the Brāhmaṇa says "these are the kṣatras"' (Ni. 3-20 [?]). Such stars apa yanti, go away, with the nights (aktubhiḥ), having seen the coming of sūrāya viśvacakṣase, of the Sun, who gives light to all; the thieves and the stars flee in fear with the nights, thinking 'the Sun will come'. Tāyuh is a name for thief, being read among its names; aktuh is a name for night, being read there ('śarvarī aktuh'). Yathā: the all-unaccented at the end of a pāda. Nakṣatrā: root nakṣa gatau; atran by aminakṣiyaji... (Uṇ. 3-102 [?]); because nit, initial-acute. In the vṛtti under nabhrāṇnapāt... it is said: 'what does not flow (na kṣarati) or does not decay (na kṣīyate) is nakṣatra; nakṣatra is given by nipātana from kṣī or kṣar'. Śi drops by śeś chandasi bahulam. Yanti: root iṇ gatau; yaṇ by iṇo yaṇ. Sūrāya viśvacakṣase: 'he who illumines (caṣṭe) all'; asun with śit by cakṣer bahulaṃ śic ca (Uṇ. 4-213 [?]); since it is śit and so sārvadhātuka, khyāñ does not come. In both, the dative is to be said in the sense of the genitive (Ma. 2-3-62 [?])."

8. Crowded: the Taittirīya references and their numerals, the Nirukta number; the Uṇādi numbers (3-102, 4-213), and the Mahābhāṣya number; all as read, [?]; "āktur" for aktuh is as printed in the tail, the lexicon-name being aktuh.

Pratipadārtha — "tye — those; tāyavaḥ yathā — like thieves; nakṣatrā — the stars (which have the form of houses of the gods), or the lights of those of good deeds, in the form of stars; aktubhiḥ — together with the nights; viśvacakṣase — (seeing the coming) of the Sun who gives light to all; apa yanti — slip away, go (and vanish)."

Bhāvārtha

— "As well-known thieves run away at sunrise, so the stars, houses of the gods in form, or the lights of the good deeds of those who have done rites in this world, as the stars, go away together with the nights, as soon as they see the coming of the Sun who gives light to all: they fade (as if they were not to be seen)."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 111)

— "At the approach [sic] of the illuminating sun, the stars depart with the night like thieves."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), pp. 111–112 - tye — "'those', that is, those well known, known to all. The idea is that it is well known that thieves commit theft at night." - tāyavaḥ — "since the word tāyuh is read among the fourteen names of thief beginning tṛpuḥ, takvā (Ni. 3-[?]o as read), tāyavaḥ means thieves." - upa yanti — "they run away, in such a way as not to be seen, or slip away." - nakṣatrā — "stars or houses of the gods: it is said in the Taittiriya Brāhmaṇa (Tai. Brā. 1-5-2-6 [?]) that the dwellings in which the deities live are stars, 'devagr̥hā vai nakṣatrāṇi'; and (Tai. Brā. 1-5-2-3 [?]) 'yo vā iha yajate 'muṃ lokam nakṣate tan nakṣatrāṇām nakṣatratvam': he who performs sacrifice here dwells in a shining house in the other world; therefore the stars have this name, it is said there itself. Or, 'sukṛtām vā etāni jyotiṃṣi yan nakṣatrāṇi' (Tai. Saṃ. 5-4-1-3 [?]): those who have performed good works shine in the other world in the form of stars; the Taittiriya Saṃhitā says that they are the ones who appear to us in the form of stars. Yāska says in his Nirukta: 'nakṣatrāṇi nakṣater gatikarmaṇaḥ; nemāni kṣatrāṇīti ca brāhmaṇam' (Ni. 3-20 [?]): that is, the root nakṣati has the sense of motion; kṣatra means wealth; being bright like gold, they are called nakṣatrāṇi. There is a belief that those who have done good works dwell in the best place in the world of heaven and shine in the form of stars." — three Sanskrit sentences, untranslated in the source:

1. | देवग्रहा वै नक्षत्राणि । ⁹

devagrḥā vai nakṣatrāṇi | — editorial and tentative: "the stars are, indeed, the houses of the gods."

2. | यो वा इह यजतेऽमुं स लोकं नक्षते तन्नक्षत्राणां नक्षत्रत्वम् । ¹⁰

yo vā iha yajate 'muṃ sa lokam nakṣate tan nakṣatrāṇām nakṣatratvam | — editorial and tentative: "whoever sacrifices here attains that world; that is the starhood of the stars."

3. | सुकृतां वा एतानि ज्योतींषि यन्नक्षत्राणि । ¹¹

sukṛtām vā etāni jyotīṃṣi yan nakṣatrāṇi | — editorial and tentative: "these lights that are the stars are, indeed, those of the doers of good."

4. | नक्षत्राणि नक्षतेर्गतिकर्मणः । नेमानि क्षत्राणीति च ब्राह्मणम् ॥ ¹²

9. Tai. Brā. 1-5-2-6 as read [?]

10. Tai. Brā. 1-5-2-3 as read [?]

11. Tai. Saṃ. 5-4-1-3 as read [?]

12. Ni. 3-20 as read [?]

nakṣatrāṇi nakṣater gatikarmaṇaḥ | nemāni kṣatrāṇīti ca brāhmaṇam || — editorial and tentative: "nakṣatrāṇi from nakṣati, a verb of motion; and the Brāhmaṇa [says] 'these are the kṣatras'."

- aktubhiḥ — "with the nights; there is the Nirukta statement 'aktubhī rātribhiḥ' (Nī. 1[?]-[?]₃ as read)." — untranslated in the source:

अक्तुभी रात्रिभिः । (Nī. as read [?])

aktubhī rātribhiḥ | — editorial and tentative: "aktubhiḥ (means) by the nights."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹³ - yathā: a nipāta; cādayo 'nudāttāḥ (Phiṭ-sūtra 4-[?]₁ as read [?]) makes ca and the rest unaccented in general; yatheti pādānte (Phiṭ-sūtra 4-[?]₃ as read [?]) says that yathā, a member of the cādi list, is all-unaccented only at the end of a pāda; here, since it stands at the end of a pāda, it is all-unaccented. - nakṣatrā: root nakṣa gatau, bhvādi; aminakṣiyajibandhipatibhyo 'tran (Uṇ. 3-[?]₀₂ as read [?]) gives atran; at the time of the root-list the root has the form nakṣ; noṇaḥ (Phiṭ/the ṇopadeśa rule) gives n for ṇ; nakṣ + atran, the last of the suffix drops: nakṣatra; the suffix being nit, ñnityādir nityam gives the initial acute. The vṛtti on nabhrāṇnapāt... (Pā. 6-3-75 as read) derives it thus: "na kṣarati na kṣīyate iti vā nakṣatram | kṣīyateḥ kṣarater vā nakṣatram iti nipātyate" (Kāśikā 6-3-75 as read [?]) — "not moving, or not decaying"; the root kṣar sañcalane is read here and kṣatra given by nipātana; the compound nakṣatra does not lose the n of nañ and keeps its natural form (prakṛtibhāva) by nipātana; or the word is nipātana from kṣī kṣaye. In the nominative plural, jas: jaśśasoḥ śīḥ (Pā. 7-1-20 as read) gives śi; śeś chandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-1-70 as read) drops śi variously in the Chandas; śi sarvanāmasthānam gives the sarvanāmasthāna name; napuṃsakasya jhalacaḥ (Pā. 7-1-72 as read) gives num to a neuter ending in a; the lengthening of the penultimate and nalopaḥ: nakṣatrā. - yanti: root iṇ gatau, adādi; third person plural; i + anti; ācchinnudhātubhruvām... (Pā. 6-4-88 as read [?]) would give iyañ but iṇo yaṇ (Pā. 6-4-81 as read) gives yaṇ for the root iṇ when a vowel-initial suffix follows, as an exception to iyañ: yanti; as it comes after a non-verb, tiñ atinaḥ gives the all-unaccented. - sūrāya: dative singular of sūra; ñe → ya (ñer yaḥ); supi ca (Pā. 7-3-102 as read) lengthens the final a before yañ-initial endings: sūrāya; and the dative stands in the sense of the genitive (ṣaṣṭhyarthe caturthī vaktavyā, Mahābhāṣya 2-3-62-1 as read [?]): "of the Sun's coming". - viśvacakṣase: "viśvaṃ caṣṭe prakāśayati", one who illumines the world; root caḥṣiṇ vyaktāyām vāci, adādi; by dhātūnām anekārthatvam here the sense of light is taken; cakṣer bahulaṃ śic ca (Uṇ. 4-[?]¹³ as read [?]) gives asun, śit; cakṣas; since śit gives the name sārvadhātuka, khyāñ — a substitute for an ārdhadhātuka — does not come; dative singular viśvacakṣase; again the dative stands in the sense of the genitive.

|| 2 ||

original p. 113

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

अदृश्रमस्य केतवो वि रश्मयो जनाँ अनु । भ्राजन्तो अग्नयो यथा ॥ ३ ॥

adṛśram asya ketavo vi raśmayo janāṃ anu | bhrājanto agnayo yathā || 3 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अदृश्रम् । अस्य । केतवः । वि । रश्मयः । जनान् । अनु । भ्राजन्तः । अग्नयः । यथा ॥ ३ ॥

adṛśram | asya | ketavaḥ | vi | raśmayaḥ | janān | anu | bhrājantaḥ | agnayaḥ | yathā || 3 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्य सूर्यस्य केतवः प्रज्ञापका रश्मयो दीप्तयो जनाननु व्यदृश्रं ।
जातान्सर्वाननुक्रमेण प्रेक्षन्ते । सर्वं जगत्प्रकाशयन्तीत्यर्थः । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । भ्राजन्तो
दीप्यमाना अग्नयो यथा अग्नय इव ॥ अदृश्रं । दृशिर् प्रेक्षणे । वर्तमाने लुङ् । इरितो वा । पा. ३-१-५७ । इति च्लेरडादेशः । रुडित्यनुवृत्तौ बहुलं छन्दसि । पा.
२-१-८ [?] । इति रुडागमः । अत एव बहुलवचनाद्दृशोऽङि गुण इति गुणाभाव
इत्युक्तं । तिङां तिङो भवन्तीति प्रथमपुरुषबहुवचनस्योत्तमपुरुषैकवचनादेशः ।
प्रथमपुरुषान्त एव शाखान्तरे श्रूयते । अदृश्रन्नस्य केतवः । अथ. १३-१-१८ [?] ।
इति । जनानित्यस्य नकारस्य संहितायां रुत्वयत्वादि पूर्ववत् । भ्राजन्तः । शपः पित्वादनुदात्तत्वं । शतुश्च लसार्वधातुकस्वरेण धातुस्वर एव शिष्यते ॥ *asya sūryasya ketavaḥ prajñāpakā raśmayo dīptayo janān anu vy adṛśraṃ | jātān sarvān anukrameṇa prekṣante | sarvaṃ jagat prakāśayantīty arthaḥ | tatra dr̥ṣṭāntaḥ | bhrājanto dīpyamānā

agnayo yathā agnaya iva || adṛśraṃ | dr̥śir prekṣaṇe | vartamāne
luṅ | irito vā | pā. 3-1-57 | iti cler añādeśaḥ | ruḍ ity anuvṛttau bahulaṃ chandasi | pā. 2-1-8 [?] | iti ruḍāgamaḥ | ata eva bahulavacanād dr̥śo 'ni guṇa iti guṇābhāva ity uktam | tiṅāṃ tiṅo bhavantīti*

*prathamapuruṣabahuvacanasyottamapuruṣaikavacanādeśaḥ |
prathamapuruṣānta eva śākhāntare śrūyate | adṛśrann asya
ketavaḥ | atha. 13-1-18 [?] | iti | janān ity asya nakārasya saṃhitāyāṃ rutvayatvādi pūrvavat | bhrājantaḥ | śapaḥ pittvād anudāttatvaṃ | śatus ca lasārvadhātukasvareṇa dhātusvara eva
śiṣyate || ¹⁴*

Translation: "Asya, of this Sun, ketavaḥ, the announcers, raśmayah, the rays, janān anu, following (looking upon) the people, vi adṛśram, are seen — they look upon all beings in order; the sense is that they light up the whole world. A comparison: bhrājantaḥ agnayaḥ yathā, like blazing fires. Adṛśram: root dr̥śir

14. The print has "ṛtūna" style crowded readings: the numbers 3-1-57, 2-1-8 and the Atharvaveda reference "13-1-18" are as read [?]. The print's first word adṛśram is "adṛśraṃ" in the bhāṣya and is the first-person-singular-looking form said to stand for the third-person plural.

prekṣaṇe, luṇ in the present sense; aṇ for cli by irito vā (Pā. 3-1-57); the augment ruṭ by bahulaṃ chandasi; because of 'variously', the guṇa that ḍrśo 'ṇi guṇaḥ would give does not come; by 'tiṇāṃ tiṇo bhavanti' the first-person singular ending replaces the third-person plural; in another recension the third-person form is heard: 'adṛśrann asya ketavaḥ' (Atharvaveda 13-1-18 [?]). The n of janān, in the Saṃhitā: ru, y and the rest as before. Bhrājantaḥ: śap is pit and unaccented, and the śatṛ, being lasārvadhātuka, is unaccented; the root-accent alone remains."

Pratipadārtha — "asya — of this god Sūrya; ketavaḥ — (announcing his coming) the rays; bhrājantaḥ — blazing; agnayo yathā — like fires; janān — (born) all things; anu — in order; vi adṛśram — look at well, (and light up the whole world)."

Bhāvārtha

— "The rays of the Sun, which spread out before the Sun himself and announce his coming to the world, light up all that is born, in order, as blazing fires do."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 114) — "High illuminating rays are seen among men like blazing fires." ^{15 16}

Rik 50.3, continued ¹⁷

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 114 - ketavaḥ prajñāpakāḥ — "the word ketu has the sense of 'knowledge' (Ni. 3-[?]3 as read); here, since ketavaḥ is an adjective of raśmayāḥ, ketavaḥ may be said to mean 'those that make knowledge arise, that impel the understanding', and so on. Because, with the help of the rays of the Sun or the Sun's light, there arises knowledge of outer things, the commentator gives ketavaḥ the sense 'giving

15. sic: the printed word is "high"; the Kannada and bhāṣya sense is "the rays of the Sun" — the line is as printed, and "like" is printed "llke" [sic].

16. The Special Topics and grammar of Rik 3 begin on p. 114 and run on; not yet written.

17. from p. 114

knowledge'." - adṛśram raśmayah janān anu — "the rays of the Sun look at men: that is, the rays of the Sun shine among the people (in the world), and with the help of that light the people become able to look at the things of the universe." - bhrājanto agnayo yathā — "as fire, burning well and blazing, lights up the world, so the rays of the Sun too light up the whole universe."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁸ - adṛśram: root ḍṛśir prekṣaṇe, bhvādi; chandasi luṇlaṇiṭaḥ (Pā. 3-4-6 as read) gives luṇ in the present sense; third person plural jhi would be obtained, but by vyatyayo bahulam and tiṇām tiṇo bhavanti a first-person singular ending (mip) comes in its place; ḍṛś + mi; itaś ca (Pā. 3-4-100 as read) drops the i; cli → aṇ by irito vā (Pā. 3-1-57 as read), since ḍṛśir has the marker ir; ḍṛś + a + am; bahulaṃ chandasi (Pā. 2-1-8 [? as read]) gives the augment ruṭ — in this sūtra the ruṭ is carried over from śṛjjoḥ ruṭ — to a suffix standing after a root; the aṭ, being what luṇ causes, comes to the root: a-ḍṛś-ruṭ-a-m: adṛśram; ṛḍṛśo 'ni guṇaḥ (Pā. 7-4-16 as read) would give guṇa to the ṛ, but because of bahulam (stated just before) no guṇa comes here. The Kannada author adds that in other recensions the third-person plural itself is heard, "adṛśrann asya ketavaḥ" (Atharva Saṃhitā 13-1-18 as read [?]). - janān: dīrghād aṭi samānapāde (Pā. 8-3-9 as read) gives ru for the n in the Saṃhitā, then y-substitution and loss; atrānunāsikaḥ pūrvasya tu vā (Pā. 8-3-2 as read) gives nasalization before the ru; in the pada-text, janān. - bhrājantaḥ: root bhrāja dīptau, bhvādi; lṛṭ?— the print says laṭaḥ śatṛśānacau (Pā. 3-2-124 as read), śatṛ; śap as vikaraṇa because śit follows; bhrājat, a stem in t; in the nominative plural jas, with the sarvanāmasthāna name, the stem being ugit gets num by ugidacām sarvanāmasthāne 'dhātoḥ; anusvāra and homogeneous nasal: bhrājantaḥ; śap is pit and unaccented; śatṛ, lasārvadhātuka, is unaccented by tāsyānudātenñīdadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam (Pā. 6-1-186 as read), being after the śap; the root-accent alone remains; bhrājantaḥ is initial-acute. || 3 ||

original pp. 116-120

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

तरणिर्विश्वदर्शतो ज्योतिष्कृदसि सूर्य । विश्वमा भासि रोचनम् ॥ ४ ॥

taraṇir viśvadarśato jyotiṣkṛd asi sūrya | viśvam ā bhāsi rocanam
|| 4 ||

Pada-pāṭha

तरणिः । विश्वऽदर्शतः । ज्योतिःऽकृत् । असि । सूर्य । विश्वम् । आ । भासि । रोचनम् ॥ ४ ॥

taraṇiḥ | viśva-darśataḥ | jyotiḥ-kṛt | asi | sūrya | viśvam | ā |
bhāsi | rocanam || 4 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

चातुर्मास्येषु शुनासीर्ये पर्वणि सौर्य एककपालः । तस्य तरणिरित्येषानुवाक्या ।
तथा च सूत्रितं । तरणिर्विश्वदर्शतश्चित्रं देवानामुदगादनीकमिति याज्यानुवाक्याः ।
आ. २-२० [?] । इति । तथातिमूर्तिनाम्येकाहे कृष्णपक्षे सौर्येष्टिः कर्तव्या ।
तस्यामस्येषानुवाक्या । अतिमूर्तिनेति खण्डे सूत्रितं । नवो नवो भवति
जायमानस्तरणिर्विश्वदर्शतः । आ. ९-८ [?] । इति ॥

हे सूर्य त्वं तरणिस्तरिता । अन्येन गन्तुमशक्यस्य महतोऽध्वनो गन्तासि । तथा च
स्मर्यते । योजनानां सहस्रे द्वे द्वे शते द्वे च योजने । एकेन निमिषार्धेन क्रममाण
नमोऽस्तु ते ॥ इति । यद्वा । उपासकानां रोगान्तरयितासि । आरोग्यं
भास्करादिच्छेदिति स्मरणात् । तथा विश्वदर्शतो विश्वैः सर्वैः प्राणिभिर्दर्शनीयः ।
आदित्यदर्शनस्य चण्डालादिदर्शनजनितपापनिर्हरणहेतुत्वात् । तथा चापस्तम्बः ।
दर्शने ज्योतिषां दर्शनमिति । यद्वा । विश्वं सकलं भूतजातं दर्शतं द्रष्टव्यं प्रकाश्यं येन
स तथोक्तः । तथा ज्योतिष्कृत् ज्योतिषः प्रकाशस्य कर्ता । सर्वस्य वस्तुनः

he sūrya tvam tarāṇis taritā | anyena gantum aśakyasya mahato
'dhvano gantāsi | tathā ca smaryate | yojanānām sahasre dve dve
śate dve ca yojane | ekena nimiṣārdhena kramamāṇa namo 'stu te
|| iti | yadvā | upāsakānām rogāt tārayitāsi | ārogyam bhāskarād icchet iti smaraṇāt | tathā viśvadarśato viśvaiḥ sarvaiḥ prāṇibhir darśanīyaḥ | ādityadarśanasya
caṇḍālādidarśanajanitapāpanirharaṇahetutvāt | tathā
cāpastambah | darśane jyotiṣām darśanam iti | yadvā | viśvam sakalam bhūtajātam darśataṁ draṣṭavyam prakāśyam yena sa tathoktaḥ | tathā jyotiṣkṛt jyotiṣaḥ prakāśasya kartā | sarvasya vastunaḥ prakāśayiteti arthaḥ | yadvā | candrādīnām rātrau prakāśayitā | rātrau hi bimbīyeṣu candrādibimbeṣu sūryakiraṇāḥ pratiphalitāḥ santo 'ndhakāram nivārayanti yathā dvārasthadarpaṇopari nipatitāḥ sūryaraśmayo grhāntargataṁ tamo nivārayanti tadvad ity arthaḥ | yasmād evam tasmād viśvam vyāptaṁ rocanaṁ rocamānam antarikṣam ā samantād bhāsi |
prakāśayasi | | 19

The bhāṣya continues with a second, Vedāntic reading (p. 116 foot – p. 117):

19. Crowded: the Āśvalāyana numerals "2-20" and "9-8" [?]; the verse "yojanānām sahasre dve..." as printed.

यद्वा । हे सूर्य अन्तर्यामितया सर्वस्य प्रेरक परमात्मन् तरणिः संसाराब्धेस्तारकोऽसि । यस्मात्त्वं विश्वदर्शतो विश्वैः सर्वैर्मुमुक्षुभिर्दर्शतो द्रष्टव्यः । साक्षात्कर्तव्य इत्यर्थः । अधिष्ठानसाक्षात्कारे ह्यारोपितं निवर्तते । ज्योतिष्कृत् ज्योतिषः सूर्यदिः कर्ता । तथा चाम्नायते । चन्द्रमा मनसो जातश्चक्षोः सूर्यो अजायत । तै. आ. ३-१२-६ [?] । इति । ईदृशस्त्वं चिद्रूपतया विश्वं सर्वं दृश्यजातं रोचनं रोचमानं दीप्यमानं यथा भवति तथा भासि । प्रकाशयसि । चैतन्यस्फुरणे हि सर्वं जगद्दृश्यते । तथा चाम्नायते । तमेव भान्तमनुभाति सर्वं तस्य भासा सर्वमिदं विभाति । क. उ. ३-१५ [?] । इति ॥ तरणिः । तृ प्लवनतरणयोः । अस्मादन्तर्भावितण्यर्थादितिसृभृधृधम्यश्यविभ्रिभ्योऽनिः । उ. २-१०१ [?] । इत्यनिप्रत्ययः । प्रत्ययाद्युदात्तत्वं । ज्योतिष्कृत् । ज्योतिः करोतीति । क्विप् च । नित्यं समासेऽनुत्तरपदस्थस्येति विसर्जनीयस्य षत्वं । भासि । भा दीप्तौ । अन्तर्भावितण्यर्थाल्लट् । अदादित्वाच्छपो लुक् ॥

yadvā | he sūrya antaryāmitayā sarvasya preraka paramātman
taraṇiḥ saṁsārābdhes tārako 'si | yasmāt tvam viśvadarśato viśvaiḥ sarvair mumukṣubhir darśato draṣṭavyaḥ |
sākṣātkartavya ity arthaḥ | adhiṣṭhānasākṣātkāre hy āropitaṁ
nīvartate | jyotiṣkṛt jyotiṣaḥ sūryādeḥ kartā | tathā cāmnāyate |
candramā manaso jātaś cakṣoḥ sūryo ajāyata | tai. ā. 3-12-6 [?] |
iti | īdṛśas tvam cidrūpatayā viśvaṁ sarvaṁ dṛśyajātaṁ rocanaṁ
rocamānaṁ dīpyamānaṁ yathā bhavati tathā bhāsi | prakāśayasi
| caitanyasphuraṇe hi sarvaṁ jagad dṛśyate | tathā cāmnāyate | tam eva bhāntam anubhāti sarvaṁ tasya bhāsā sarvaṁ idaṁ vibhāti | ka. u. 3-15 [?] | iti || taraṇiḥ | tṛ plavanataraṇayoḥ | asmād antarbhāvitanyarthād artisṛbhṛdhṛdhamyaśyavibhribhyo
'niḥ | u. 2-101 [?] | ity anipratyayaḥ | pratyayādyudāttatvaṁ |
jyotiṣkṛt | jyotiḥ karotīti | kvip ca | nityaṁ samāse
'nuttarapadaṣṭhasyeti visarjanīyasya ṣatvaṁ | bhāsi | bhā dīptau
| antarbhāvitanyarthāl laṭ | adāditvāc chapo luk | |²⁰

20. Crowded: the Taittirīya Āraṇyaka and Kāṭha Upaniṣad references, the Uṇādi number, and the root-list of the Uṇādi rule; as read, [?]. The print's rule-name reads "artisṛbhṛdhṛdhamyaśyavibhribhyo" [?].

Translation (first sense): "In the Cāturmāsya (four-monthly) rites, at the Śunāsīrya parvan, there is a saurya offering on a single potsherd; for it this ṛk 'taraṇi' is the anuvākyā; so it is prescribed: 'taraṇir viśvadarśataḥ, citraṃ devānām udagād anīkam, the yājyā and anuvākyā' (Āśv. 2-20 [?]). Likewise, in the one-day rite named Atimūrṭi, in the dark fortnight, a Saurya iṣṭi is to be done, and for it this ṛk is the anuvākyā: prescribed in the section 'atimūrṭinā': 'navo navo bhavati jāyamānas taraṇir viśvadarśataḥ' (Āśv. 9-8 [?]). O Sūrya, you are taraṇiḥ, the crosser, the one who travels the great road that none other can travel; and thus it is remembered: 'Homage to you, who, in half a twinkling, cross two thousand two hundred and two yojanas'. Or: you ferry the worshippers out of disease: 'one should wish for health from the Sun', so runs the Smṛti. And viśvadarśataḥ, to be seen by all beings: since the seeing of the Āditya removes the sin that arises from seeing a Caṇḍāla and the like; so Āpastamba: 'on seeing, the sight of the lights'. Or viśvadarśataḥ: he by whom the whole creation is made visible. Jyotiṣkṛt: the maker of light, the illuminer of everything; or the illuminer, at night, of the Moon and the rest: at night the Sun's rays, reflected in the disks of the Moon and the rest, dispel the darkness, as the Sun's rays that fall on a mirror at a door dispel the darkness inside the house. Since it is so, viśvam rocanam, the whole, pervading, shining middle region, ā bhāsi, you light up on every side."

Translation (second, Vedāntic sense): "Or: O Sūrya — O Supreme Self, who from within impel all — you are taraṇiḥ, the one who takes across the ocean of saṃsāra; since you are viśvadarśataḥ, to be seen, that is, realized, by all who seek liberation; for when the ground is directly known, what was superimposed on it ceases. Jyotiṣkṛt: the maker of the lights, the Sun and the rest: as it is said, 'the Moon was born of the mind, the Sun was born of the eye' (Tai. Ā. 3-12-6 [?]). Being such, you, in the form of consciousness, bhāsi, shine so that the whole visible universe is rocanam, shining: for, when consciousness flashes forth, the whole world is seen; as it is said, 'after him, as he shines, everything shines; by his light all this shines' (Kaṭha Up. 3-15 [?])." ²¹

Pratipadārtha — "sūrya — O god Sūrya; taraṇiḥ — (you) who travel along the great path that others cannot, or who take (your worshippers) across from disease; asi — you are; viśvadarśataḥ — who are seen by all beings, or who make all beings shine; jyotiṣkṛt — who make light, or make the Moon and the rest of the nature of light (therefore); viśvam — pervading everywhere; rocanam — the atmosphere; ā bhāsi — you light up all round."

Bhāvārtha

— "O god Sūrya, you travel along the great path that cannot be travelled by others, or you carry across those who worship you from disease. You are visible to all beings, or you make all beings visible. You create light; or you place your rays in the Moon, full of dew, and make it of the nature of light. You light up the whole of the all-pervading atmosphere."

(Alternative sense, Pratipadārtha, p. 117) — "sūrya — O Supreme Self, impelling all as the inner controller; taraṇiḥ — you are the one who ferries across the ocean of saṃsāra; viśvadarśataḥ — to be realized directly by all who desire liberation; jyotiṣkṛt — you make the Sun and the rest, which are of the nature of lights; viśvam — the whole world; rocanam — so that it shines; ā bhāsi — you shine all round."

(Alternative sense, Bhāvārtha, pp. 117–118) — "O Supreme Self, impelling all while remaining within all as the inner controller: you take everyone across the ocean of saṃsāra; therefore all who taraṇiḥ: root tṛ plavanatarāṇayoḥ with the causative sense included; the Uṇādi ani-suffix (Uṇ. 2-101 [?]); initial acute of the suffix; jyotiṣkṛt: kvip; ṣatva of the visarga in a compound by nityaṃ samāse 'nuttarapadaśthasya; bhāsi: root bhā diptau, ṣap dropped, being of the adādi class.

21. The grammatical tail is as given in the Sanskrit above:

desire liberation wish to realize you directly. You create the Sun and the other lights. Being of the nature of consciousness, you shine all round so that the whole world shines."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 118)

— "O Surya, you overtake all in speed ; you are visible to all ; you are the source of light ; you shine throughout the whole firmament [sic]."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 118–119 - "The special use (vinīyoga) of this ṛk is stated in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta-sūtra: in the Cāturmāsya sacrifice, when the saurya ekakapāla cake-offering is made to the Sun, this ṛk 'taraṇir viśvadarśataḥ' is to be used as yājyā-mantra, by the sūtra 'taraṇir viśvadarśataś citraṃ devānām udagād anīkam iti yājyānuvākyaḥ' (Ā. 2-20 [?]); and the Saurya iṣṭi that is done in a single day called Atimūrti is to be done in the dark fortnight; there this ṛk is to be recited as the puro 'nuvākya mantra; in the section atimūrtinā the sūtra 'navo navo bhavati jāyamānas taraṇir viśvadarśataḥ' explains it." - "The commentator has given two senses to this ṛk: one in respect of the Sun seen directly; the other in respect of the Supreme Self who impels all." - taraṇiḥ — "one who travels the path of the atmosphere, which is difficult for others to go along. The commentator has quoted a verse that the Sun has the power to cross, in the blink of an eye (in the time of half a twinkling), a distance of 2202 yojanas. Skandasvāmin explains the word taraṇi as 'kṣipra', 'swiftly'; or one may say 'the remover of diseases'. According to those skilled in medical science, the Sun's light is necessary not only for the existence of many diseases (through his heat) but for the health and the growth of all living beings (and of plant life); our experience in the world is the same; so to say that the Sun removes diseases is quite fitting. There is the saying 'ārogyaṃ bhāskarād icchet'. In the sense that refers to the Supreme Self, one may say that he takes living beings across the ocean of saṃsāra." — untranslated in the source:

आरोग्यं भास्करादिच्छेत् । (Smṛti, source not given in the print)

ārogyaṃ bhāskarād icchet | — editorial and tentative: "one should seek health from the Sun." - viśvadarśataḥ — "one who is looked at by all beings, that is, all look at the Sun; or the Sun looks at the whole world. And it is well known that looking at the Sun as an expiation (prāyaścitta) removes faults, to remove ordinary sins; in the recitation of the mantra 'jyok ca sūryaṃ dṛśe' at times of doing rites, to remove the faults of the world that arise by not seeing (the Sun), there is a custom. Or it may be said, 'he who lights up the whole world with his light'. In respect of the Supreme Self: he is looked at by all knowing ones who desire liberation; that is, those who desire liberation seek the direct realization of the Supreme Self." - jyotiṣkṛt — "jyotiṣaḥ prakāśasya kartā: the cause of light. It is from the Sun that light comes to us; the Sun is the cause of all kinds of light; without the Sun I get no light of any kind. Or, since the Sun's rays, besides giving light to us directly, fall on the Moon's disk and the like and, reflected, reach us indirectly, the Sun is the source of every light. In respect of the Supreme Self: the creator of the bodies of the Sun and other lights. There is a Śruti sentence on this: 'candramā manaso jāto, cakṣoḥ sūryo ajāyata' (Tai. Ā. 3-12-6 [?])." — untranslated in the source:

चन्द्रमा मनसो जातश्चक्षोः सूर्यो अजायत । (Tai. Ā. 3-12-6 as read [?]; cf. the Puruṣa-sūkta)

candramā manaso jātaś cakṣoḥ sūryo ajāyata | — editorial and tentative: "the Moon was born of the mind; the Sun was born of the eye." - viśvam ā bhāsi rocanam — "here rocanam means the atmosphere; the Sun lights up the whole wide atmosphere. In respect of the Supreme Self: he lights, by his consciousness, the whole universe of the moving and the unmoving (he impels it)" — untranslated in the source, the Kaṭha-Upaniṣad verse:

तमेव भान्तमनुभाति सर्वं तस्य भासा सर्वमिदं विभाति । (Kāṭha Up. 3-15 as read [?]; the print attributes it to the Kāṭhopaniṣad)

tam eva bhāntam anubhāti sarvaṃ tasya bhāsā sarvaṃ idaṃ vibhāti | — editorial and tentative: "after him, as he shines, all shines; by his light all this shines."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²² - taraṇiḥ: root tṛ plavanatarāṇayoḥ, bhvādi; here the causative sense must be taken as included (antarbhāvitanyartha; the sense "he who makes cross" is intended, even though no ṇic appears); artiṣṛbhṛdhṛdhamyaśyavibhribhyo 'niḥ (Uṇ. 2-[?]o1 as read [?]) gives the suffix ani; tṛ + ani, guṇa since an ārdhadhātuka-named suffix follows; r standing as a cause, aṭ ... ṇatva even with an intervening vowel: taraṇi; by the suffix-accent, the i's a? [as printed: "the a in ani is acute"]; taraṇiḥ is middle-acute. - jyotiṣkṛt: "jyotiḥ karoti", he who makes light; kvip ca (Pā. 3-2-76 as read) gives kvip after ḍukṛñ [whether or not an upapada is present, in the Veda and in the world]; all of kvip drops; being pī, hrasvasya pīti kṛti tuk (Pā. 6-1-71 as read) gives tuk to the short r; being kit, the final of the compound-member comes; jyotiḥ kṛt; nityaṃ samāse 'nuttarapadasthasya (Pā. 8-3-45 as read) gives ṣatva of a visarga after iṣ or uṣ (here the s of jyotis) that does not stand in the second member, before a ku- or pu-letter, always in a compound: jyotiṣkṛt. - bhāsi: root bhā dīptau, adādi; here too the causative sense is to be taken inside the root-sense, "he makes shine"; laṭ, second person singular sip; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ (Pā. 2-4-72 as read) gives luk of śap because the root is of the adādi class; since a tiñ stands in the middle of the pāda, tiñ atīnaḥ gives the all-unaccented. || 4 ||

original pp. 120–122

Rik 5

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

प्रत्यङ् देवानां विशः प्रत्यङ्ङुदेषि मानुषान् । प्रत्यङ् विश्वं स्वर्दृशे ॥ ५ ॥ *pratyañ devānām viśaḥ pratyañ udeṣi mānuṣān | pratyañ viśvaṃ

svar dṛśe || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

प्रत्यङ् । देवानाम् । विशः । प्रत्यङ् । उत् । एषि । मानुषान् । प्रत्यङ् । विश्वम् । स्वः । दृशे ॥ ५ ॥

*pratyañ | devānām | viśaḥ | pratyañ | ut | eṣi | mānuṣān |
pratyañ | viśvam | svaḥ | dṛśe || 5 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे सूर्य त्वं देवानां विशो मरुन्नामकान्देवान् । मरुतो वै देवानां विशः । तै. सं.
२-२-५-२ [?] । इति श्रुत्यन्तरात् । तान्मरुत्संज्ञकान्देवान्प्रत्यङ् उदेषि ।
तानभिगच्छन्नुदयं प्राप्नोषि । तेषामभिमुखं यथा भवति तथेत्यर्थः । तथा
मानुषान्मनुष्यान्प्रत्यङ् उदेषि । तेऽपि यथास्मदभिमुख इव सूर्य उदेतीति मन्यन्ते ।
तथा विश्वं व्याप्तं स्वः स्वर्लोके दृशे द्रष्टुं प्रत्यङ् उदेषि । यथा स्वर्लोकवासिनो जनाः
स्वस्वाभिमुख्येन पश्यन्ति तथोद्देशीत्यर्थः । एतदुक्तं भवति । लोकत्रयवर्तिनो जनाः
सर्वेऽपि स्वस्वाभिमुख्येन सूर्यं पश्यन्तीति । तथा चाम्नायते । तस्मात्सर्व एव मन्यते
मां प्रत्यदगादिति ॥ प्रत्यङ् । प्रत्यञ्चतीति प्रत्यङ् । अञ्चु गतिपूजनयोः ।
ऋत्विग्दधृगित्यादिना क्विन् । अनिदितामिति नलोपः । उगिदचामिति नुम् ।
हल्ङ्यादिसंयोगान्तलोपौ । संयोगान्तलोपस्यासिद्धत्वादुपधादीर्घनलोपयोरभावः ।
क्विन्प्रत्ययस्य कुः । पा. ८-२-६२ । इति कुत्वं । अनिगन्तोऽञ्चतौ । पा. ६-२-५२ ।
इत्यनिगन्ते इति पर्युदासात्पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वराभावे कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं । एषि ।
इण् गतौ । सिप्यदादित्वाच्छपो लुक् । आदेशप्रत्यययोरिति षत्वं । स्वः ।
सुपूर्वादर्थेर्विच् । गुणे यणादेशः । नैज्स्वरा स्वरितौ चेति स्वरितत्वं । दृशे । दृशिर् प्रेक्षण इत्यस्माद्दृशे विख्ये चेति तुमर्थे निपातितः ॥ ५ ॥

he sūrya tvaṃ devānām viśaḥ marunnāmakān devān | maruto vai devānām viśaḥ | tai. saṃ. 2-2-5-2 [?] | iti śrutyantarāt | tāt marutsaṃjñakān devān pratyāṇ udeṣi | tāt abhigacchann udayaṃ prāpnoṣi | teṣāṃ abhimukhaṃ yathā bhavati tathety arthaḥ | tathā mānuṣān manuṣyān pratyāṇ udeṣi | te 'pi yathāsmadabhimukha iva sūrya udetīti manyante | tathā viśvaṃ vyāptaṃ svaḥ svarlokaṃ dṛśe draṣṭuṃ pratyāṇ udeṣi | yathā svarlokavāsino janāḥ svasvābhimukhyena paśyanti tathodeṣīty arthaḥ | etad uktaṃ bhavati | lokatrayavartino janāḥ sarve 'pi svasvābhimukhyena sūryaṃ paśyantīti | tathā cāmnāyate | tasmāt sarva eva manyate mām pratyadagād iti || pratyāṇ | pratyāñcatīti pratyāṇ | āñcu gatipūjanayoḥ | ṛtvigdadhṛg ity ādinā kvin | anidītām iti nalopaḥ | ugidacām iti num | halñyādisaṃyogāntalopau | saṃyogāntalopasyāsiddhatvād upadhādīrghanalopayor abhāvaḥ | kvinpratyayasya kuḥ | pā. 8-2-62 | iti kutvaṃ | anigantoñcatau | pā. 6-2-52 | ity anigante iti paryudāsāt pūrvapadaprakṛtisvarābhāve kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ | eṣi | iṇ gatau | sipy adāditvāc chapo luk | ādeśapratyayayor iti ṣatvaṃ | svaḥ | supūrvād arter vic | guṇe yañādeśaḥ | naijsvarā svaritau ceti svaritatvaṃ | dṛśe | dṛśir prekṣaṇa ity asmād dṛśe vikhye ceti tumarthe nipātitaḥ || 5 || ²³

Translation: "O Sūrya, you, devānām viśaḥ, the gods called Maruts — 'the Maruts are, indeed, the people of the gods' (Tai. Saṃ. 2-2-5-2 [?], another Śruti) — pratyāṇ udeṣi, rise facing those gods called Maruts: going towards them, you reach the rising, so as to face them. Likewise, mānuṣān, men, you rise facing (pratyāṇ); they too think 'the Sun rises as if facing us'. Likewise viśvaṃ svaḥ dṛśe, the all-pervading heaven, for it to see, you rise facing it: you rise so that the people who dwell in heaven see you

23. Crowded: the Taittirīya Saṃhitā number, the rule-name "anigantoñcatau" and its number, and the clause "naijsvarā svaritau ca"; as read, [?]. "Pā. 8-2-62" for the kutva rule is as printed.

each as facing them. The sense is that all people in the three worlds see the Sun each as facing themselves; as it is declared, 'therefore everyone thinks "he has risen facing me"'. Pratyañ: 'he who goes towards (pratyañcati)'; root añcu gatipūjanayoḥ; kvin by ṛtvigdadhṛk...; the nasal-dropping by anidītām; num by ugidacām; the loss of the final of the conjunct by hal-ñyādi; because that loss is asiddha, the lengthening of the penultimate and the loss of the nasal do not come; kutva of the kvin-suffix (Pā. 8-2-62); by anigantoñcatau (Pā. 6-2-52 [?]) the first member's natural accent does not hold and the second member's, as a kṛdanta, remains. Eṣi: root iñ gatau; śap drops in sip, the root being adādi; ṣatva by ādeśapratyayayoḥ. Svaḥ: vic after ṛ with su; guṇa, yañ; the svarita. Dṛśe: from dṛśir prekṣaṇe; dṛśe vikhye ca gives it by nipātana in the infinitive sense."

Pratipadārtha — "devānām viśaḥ — (O Sūrya, you) the Maruts, the subjects of the world of the gods; pratyañ — facing; udeṣi — you rise; mānuṣān pratyañ — facing men (you rise); viśvam — the all-pervading; svaḥ — the world of heaven; dṛśe — to be seen; pratyañ — you rise facing it."

Bhāvārtha

— "O god Sūrya, you rise facing the Marut gods, who are the subjects of the world of the gods; facing all men; and facing the all-pervading world of heaven, so that all may see you."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 121)

— "You rise opposite to Maruts (or divine beings) opposite to the men and opposite to all the heaven that they may see."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 121 (first part) - pratyañ — "facing, opposite." - devānām viśaḥ — "the commentator has explained these words as 'the Marut deities', and for this has quoted the Taittirīya Saṃhitā sentence 'maruto vai devānām viśaḥ' (Tai. Saṃ. 2-2-5-2 [?])." — untranslated in the source:

मरुतो वै देवानां विशः । (Tai. Saṃ. 2-2-5-2 as read [?])

maruto vai devānām viśaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "the Maruts are, indeed, the people (clan) of the gods." ²⁴

Rik 50.5, continued ²⁵

Special Topics, continued (p. 122) - svaḥ — "O Āditya, O Sūrya: svar ādityo bhavati — there is the Nirukta statement (Ni. 2-[?]₄ as read)." — untranslated in the source:

स्वरादित्यो भवति । (Ni. 2-[?]₄ as read [?])

svar ādityo bhavati | — editorial and tentative: "svar is the Āditya (the Sun)." - mukhyābhiprāya — "when the Sun rises, the people of the world of the earth and the world of heaven all look at the Sun; the Sun, rising, lights up the earth, the atmosphere and the world of heaven." - "Yāska's Nirukta has the following on this ṛk" (untranslated in the source; "Ni. 12-24" as read [?]):

प्रत्यङ्ङिदं सर्वमुदेषि प्रत्यङ्ङिदं ज्योतिरुच्यते । प्रत्यङ्ङिदं सर्वमभिविपश्यसीति ॥

(Ni. 12-24 as read [?])

pratyañṇ idaṃ sarvam udeṣi pratyañṇ idaṃ jyotir ucyate | pratyañṇ idaṃ sarvam abhivipaśyasīti || — editorial and tentative: "You rise facing all this; 'facing' is said of this light; you look upon all this facing it." The Kannada author gives Yāska's gloss: "Pratyañ devānām viśaḥ: having made them (the Maruts) face you, you rise before them; and having made men too face you in the same way, you rise before them. In short, O svaḥ, O Āditya, having made this whole world face yourself, you look upon all from the front." "The meaning is the same as the commentator's explanation; so it need not be expanded."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁶ - pratyañ: "prati añcati", one who goes facing; root añcu gatipūjanayoḥ, bhvādi; ṛtvigdadhṛksragdigus-ñihyuṣṇigañcuyujikrucāṃ ca (Pā. 3-2-59 as

24. The rest of the Special Topics of Rik 5 begins at the foot of p. 121 and continues on p. 122; then the grammar; not yet written.

25. from the foot of p. 121

26. pp. 122–123 — grammar pages, noted briefly

read) gives kvin for these words, some forms of which are given by nipātana; so, after añc with a subanta as upapada, kvin; prati is a subanta; avyayād āp supaḥ (Pā. 2-4-82 as read) makes the sup after it luk; all of kvin drops; kṛttaddhitasamāsās ca gives the name prātipadika to what is left (pratyañc); anidītām hala upadhāyāḥ kñiti (Pā. 6-4-24 as read) drops the penultimate nasal of the root before a kit; but añcu being ugit, ugidacām sarvanāmasthāne 'dhātoḥ gives num in the first-case su with the sarvanāmasthāna name; the su drops by halñyābbhyo dīrghāt... (Pā. 6-1-68 as read) and the final conjunct consonant drops by saṃyogāntasya lopah (Pā. 8-2-23 as read); since the dropping of the conjunct-final consonant is asiddha (as the Kannada says), the lengthening of the penultimate by sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau and the n-loss by nalopah prātipadikāntasya do not come; kvin's k gives kutva (kvinpratyayasya kuḥ, Pā. 8-2-62 as read): the c of the root becomes k, and the n before it becomes ñ: pratyañ; the accent: anigantoñcatau vapratyaye (Pā. 6-2-52 as read) says that a gati before an añc that ends in vap-suffix (kvin) keeps its natural accent unless it ends in ik; prati ends in i (ik), so prati does not keep it; the kṛdanta second member's natural accent holds (gatikārapapadāt kṛt, Pā. 6-2-139 as read); pratyañ is end-acute. - eṣi: root iñ gatau, adādi; second person singular sip; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ (Pā. 2-4-72 as read) drops śap; i + si; guṇa of the final ik by sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ; the s of the suffix becomes ṣ by ādeśapratyayayoḥ (Pā. 8-3-59 as read); eṣi; at the end of a pronounced pāda, the all-unaccented by tiñ atinaḥ. - svaḥ: su is a prefix with gati name; root ṛ gatau, bhvādi; anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyante (Pā. 3-2-75 as read) gives vic in the same way as manin, kvanip, vanip after roots; guṇa before vic; for the ṛ an r comes: su + ar + vic, all of the suffix drops; yañ for the u: svar; with the visarga, the end: svaḥ; nyañ svarau svaritau ca (Phīṭ-sūtra 4-[?]4 as read) gives svarita. - dṛṣe: root dṛśir prekṣaṇe, bhvādi; dṛśe viḥkhye ca (Pā. 3-4-11 as read) makes this root take, by nipātana, the form dṛśe in the sense of the infinitive; so dṛśe means "to see". || 5 ||

original pp. 123-126

Rik 6

Samhitā-pāṭha

येना पावक चक्षसा भुरण्यन्तं जनाँ अनु । त्वं वरुण पश्यसि ॥ ६ ॥

yenā pāvaka cakṣasā bhuraṇyantam janāṃ anu | tvam varuṇa paśyasi || 6 ||

Pada-pāṭha

येन । पावक । चक्षसा । भुरण्यन्तम् । जनान् । अनु । त्वम् । वरुण । पश्यसि ॥ ६ ॥

yenā | pāvaka | cakṣasā | bhuraṇyantam | janān | anu | tvam | varuṇa | paśyasi || 6 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे पावक सर्वस्य शोधक वरुणानिष्टनिवारक सूर्य त्वं जनान्जातान्प्राणिनो भुरण्यन्तं धारयन्तं पोषयन्तं वेमं लोकं येन चक्षसा प्रकाशेनानु पश्यसि । अनुक्रमेण प्रकाशयसि । तं प्रकाशं स्तुम इति शेषः । यद्वा । उत्तरस्यामृचि सम्बन्धः । तेन चक्षसा व्येषीति । तथा च यास्केनोक्तं । तत्ते वयं स्तुम इति वाक्यशेषोऽपि वोत्तरस्या मन्त्रयस्तेन व्येषि । नि. १२-२१ [?] । इति ॥ भुरण्यन्तं । भुरण धारणपोषणयोः । कण्ड्वादित्वाद्यक् । ततः शतरि कर्तरि शप् । अदुपदेशाल्लसार्वधातुकानुदात्तत्वे यक् एव स्वरः शिष्यते । वरुण । वृङ् वरणे । अस्मादन्तर्भावितण्यर्थात्क्यावृत्यादारिभ्य उनन् । उ. ३-५३ [?] । इत्युनन्प्रत्ययः । अत्र वरुणशब्देनादित्य एवोच्यते । तथा चान्यत्राम्नातं । तस्मै मित्रश्च वरुणश्चाजायेताम् । मित्रश्च वरुणश्च धाता चार्यमा च । तै. आ. १-१३-३ [?] । इति च ॥

he pāvaka sarvasya śodhaka varuṇāniṣṭanivāraka sūrya tvam janān jātān prāṇino bhuranyantam dhārayantam poṣayantam vemaṃ lokam yena cakṣasā prakāśenānu paśyasi | anukrameṇa prakāśyasi | tam prakāśam stuma iti śeṣaḥ | yadvā | uttarasyām
 ṛci sambandhaḥ | tena cakṣasā vyeṣīti | tathā ca yāskenoktam | tat te vyaṃ stuma iti vākyaśeṣo 'pi vottarasyā mantrayas tena vyeṣi | ni. 12-21 [?] | iti || bhuranyantam | bhuraṇa
 dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ | kaṇḍvādittvād yak | tataḥ śatari kartari śap
 | adupadeśāl lasārvadhātukānudāttatve yaka eva svaraḥ śiṣyate |
 varuṇa | vṛṇ varāṇe | asmād antarbhāvitaṇyarthāt
 kyāvrtyādāribhya unan | u. 3-53 [?] | ity unanpratyayaḥ | atra
 varuṇaśabdenāditya evocyate | tathā cānyaatrāmnātam | tasmāi
 mitraś ca varuṇaś cājāyetām | mitraś ca varuṇaś ca dhātā
 cāryamā ca | tai. ā. 1-13-3 [?] | iti ca || ²⁷

Translation: "O pāvaka, purifier of all; O varuṇa, warder-off of the unwished; O Sūrya: janān, the born beings — bhuranyantam, upholding and nourishing this world — yena cakṣasā, with which light, anu paśyasi, you look after them in order, you illumine — that light we praise: this is the part understood. Or the connexion is with the next ṛk: 'with that light you move through (the sky)'. And as Yaska says: 'We praise that of yours: or the rest of the sentence is joined with the next ṛk, with which you go through' (Ni. 12-21 [?]). Bhuranyantam: root bhuraṇa dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ, yak because it is of the kaṇḍvādi class; then śatr, śap; since the lasārvadhātuka is unaccented, the accent of yak alone remains. Varuṇa: root vṛṇ varāṇe, with the causative sense included; unan by kyāvrtyādāribhya... (Uṇ. 3-53 [?]); by the word varuṇa the Āditya alone is meant: as it is said elsewhere, 'for him Mitra and Varuṇa were born'; 'Mitra and Varuṇa, Dhātṛ and Aryaman' (Tai. Ā. 1-13-3 [?])."

27. Crowded: the Nirukta number; the sentence "tat te vyaṃ stuma iti vākyaśeṣo 'pi vottarasyā mantrayas tena vyeṣi" is as read, [?]; the Uṇādi number and the Taittiriya Āraṇyaka number.

Pratipadārtha — "pāvaka — O Sūrya, purifier of all; varuṇa — and ward-off of the unwished; tvam — you; janān — all beings born; bhuraṇyantam — upholding or nourishing this world; yena cakṣasā — with what light; anu paśyasi — you look upon in order (making it shine); (that light we praise)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O god Sūrya, you purify all. You ward off, so that all may be well, the things that are unwished. We praise the light with which you make shine this world that upholds, or nourishes, all beings."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 124)

— "With that light with which you, the purifier and defender from evil, look upon this world full of living beings."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 124–125 - bhuraṇyantam — "bhuraṇa dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; dhārayantam, poṣayantam vā: the world that nourishes people or that supports (protects) them." - varuṇa — "vṛṇ varuṇe; aniṣṭānivāraka: one who wards off the unwished things of men (that is, their sins). The commentator says that the word varuṇa indicates the Āditya, and for this he gives two Śruti sentences" — untranslated in the source:

1. तस्मै मित्रश्च वरुणश्चाजायेताम् ।²⁸

tasmai mitraś ca varuṇaś cājāyetām | — editorial and tentative: "for him Mitra and Varuṇa were born."

2. मित्रश्च वरुणश्च धाता चार्यमा च ।²⁹

mitraś ca varuṇaś ca dhātā cāryamā ca | — editorial and tentative: "Mitra and Varuṇa, Dhātṛ and Aryaman."

- "Yāska has given the following explanation of this ṛk" (

28. Tai. Brā. 1-6-9-2 as read [?]; the print gives "1-r-9-2"

29. Tai. Ā. 1-13-3 as read [?]

untranslated in the source

; "Ni. 12-22" as read [?], the Sanskrit as printed and crowded in places):

भुरण्युरिति क्षिप्रनाम । भुरण्यः शकुनिभूरिमध्वानं नयेत्स्वर्गस्य लोकस्यापि
वोढा तत्सम्पाती भुरण्युरनेन पावकख्यातेन । भुरण्यन्तं जनाननु । त्वं वरुण पश्यसि । तत्ते वयं स्तुम इति वाक्यशेषः ॥ (Ni. 12-22 as read [?])

*bhuraṇyur iti kṣiprānāma | bhuranyaḥ śakunir bhūrim adhvānaṃ nayet svargasya lokasyāpi voḥhā tatsampātī bhuraṇyur anena pāvakakhyātena | bhuranyantaṃ janān
anu | tvaṃ varuṇa paśyasi | tat te vayaṃ stuma iti vākyaśeṣaḥ ||* — editorial and tentative, doubtful:
"Bhuraṇyu is a name for 'swift'. The bhuraṇya (bird) might carry (one) over a long road; or the carrier of the world of heaven, he who flies together with it, is bhuraṇyu, by this [verse] called pāvaka. 'You, Varuṇa, look upon the nourishing (world) in order': 'that of you we praise' is the remainder of the sentence."

- The Kannada author explains: "The word bhuraṇyu means swiftly: the one who moves swiftly along the path of the atmosphere, or the one who holds up heaven, or the one who guards heaven — this is the meaning of the word bhuraṇyantam: O Sūrya, such as you are, you look upon people, that is, people look at you: 'we praise you who are such'; or one may, if one wishes, connect it with the verb vi eṣi of the next ṛk, that is, state the connexion with the next ṛk thus: 'you who go forth with the light with which you...'"

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁰ - caḥśasā: root caḥśin vyaktāyāṃ vāci; caḥśer bahulaṃ śic ca (Uṇ. 4-[?]23 as read [?]) gives asun (with the śit-marker); caḥśas, a stem in s; since it is śit, no ārdhadhātuka- name, hence no khyāñ by caḥśinaḥ khyāñ; the instrumental singular caḥsasā. - bhuraṇyantam: root bhuraṇa dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ, kaṇḍvādi; laṭ, with the sense of agent; bhuraṇ + at; kaṇḍvādibhyo yak (Pā. 3-1-27 as read) gives yak; as the yak of the kaṇḍvādi is sārvadhātuka with an agentive sense standing after, śap as vikaraṇa follows; since yak is in the sanādi list, a yak-ending form is a root (sanādyantā dhātavaḥ); bhuraṇya + a + at; ato guṇe gives pararūpa in view of the two things taken together; bhuraṇyat, a stem in t; the accusative singular, ugit-ness gives num: bhuraṇyantam. Here śap is unaccented; since śatṛ as a lasārvadhātuka after a root that has an upadeśa ending in a is unaccented by tāsyānudāttenñidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam (Pā. 6-1-186 as read), the accent of yak alone remains, and the a after y is acute. - varuṇa: root vṛṇ varuṇe, svādi; here the causative sense is to be taken as included; kyāvṛtyādāribhya unan (Uṇ. 3-[?]3 as read [?]) gives unan; sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ gives guṇa before unan, the r becoming ar; varuṇa; aṭkuvāñnumvyavāye 'pi (Pā. 8-4-2 as read) gives ṇatva because the n follows a repha; in the vocative the su drops after a short stem (eñhrasvāt sambuddheḥ); being a vocative, āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19 as read) gives the all-unaccented. By the word varuṇa the Sun alone is said (the Kannada author cites the two Śruti sentences given above, from the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa and Āraṇyaka). || 6 ||

original pp. 126–129

Rik 7

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

वि द्यामेषि रजस्पृथ्वहा मिमानो अक्तुभिः । पश्यञ्जन्मानि सूर्य ॥ ७ ॥

vi dyām eṣi rajas prthv ahā mimāno aktubhiḥ | paśyañ janmāni sūrya || 7 ||

Pada-pāṭha

वि । द्याम् । एषि । रजः । पृथु । अहा । मिमानः । अक्तुऽभिः । पश्यन् । जन्मानि । सूर्य ॥ ७
॥

vi | dyām | eṣi | rajah | pr̥thu | ahā | mimānaḥ | aktu-bhiḥ |
paśyan | janmāni | sūrya || 7 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे सूर्य त्वं पृथु विस्तीर्णं रजो लोकं । लोका रजांस्युच्यन्त इति यास्कः । नि. ४-१९

[?] । कं लोकं । द्यामन्तरिक्षलोकं । व्येषि । विशेषेण गच्छसि । किं कुर्वन् ।

अहाहान्यक्तुभी रात्रिभिः सह मिमान उत्पादयन् ।

आदित्यगत्यधीनत्वादहोरात्रविभागस्य । तथा जन्मानि जननवन्ति भूतजातानि
पश्यन् प्रकाशयन् ॥ रजस्पृथ्विति [crowded, ?] । छन्दसि वाप्रवेऽदितयोः [?]

। पा. ८-३-३९ [?] । इति विसर्जनीयस्य सत्त्वं । अहा । शेषछन्दसि बहुलमिति

शेलोपः । मिमानः । माङ् माने । जौहोत्यादिकः । शानचि श्लौ द्विभवे

भृजामित्यभ्यासस्येत्त्वं । श्नाभ्यस्तयोरात इत्याकारलोपः ।

अभ्यस्तानामादिरित्याद्युदात्तत्वं । जन्मानि । जनी प्रादुर्भावे । अन्येभ्योऽपि दृश्यन्त

इति मनिन् । नित्वादाद्युदात्तत्वम् ॥

he sūrya tvam pr̥thu vistīrṇaṃ rajo lokaṃ | lokā rajāṃsy ucyanta
iti yāśkaḥ | nī. 4-19 [?] | kaṃ lokaṃ | dyām antarikṣalokaṃ |
vyeṣi | viśeṣeṇa gacchasi | kiṃ kurvan | ahāhāny aktubhī
rātribhiḥ saha mimāna utpādayan | ādityagatyadhīnatvād
ahorātravibhāgasya | tathā janmāni janānavanti bhūtajātāni
paśyan prakāśayan || rajaspr̥thv iti [crowded, ?] | chandasi vāprave 'ḍitayoḥ [?] | pā. 8-3-39 [?] | iti visarjanīyasya satvaṃ |
ahā | śeś chandasi bahulam iti śer lopaḥ | mimānaḥ | mān māne |
jauhotyādikaḥ | śānaci ślau dvirbhāve bhṛñām ity abhyāsasyetvaṃ
| śnābhyastayor āta ity ākāralopaḥ | abhyastānām ādir ity ādyudāttatvaṃ | janmāni | janī prādurbhāve | anyebhyo 'pi
dṛśyanta iti manin | nittvād ādyudāttatvam || ³¹

31. The clause on rajaspr̥thu's sandhi — "rajaspr̥thv iti ... chandasi vāprave 'ḍitayoḥ" — is crowded in the print and given as read
[?].

Translation: "O Sūrya, you prthu rajah, the wide expanse — rajas is the world: 'the worlds are called rajāṃsi' says Yāska (Ni. 4-19 [?]) — which world? dyām, the middle region — vi eṣi, you go through specially. Doing what? Aktubhiḥ ahā mimānaḥ, producing the days together with the nights, because the division of day and night depends on the Āditya's movement; and janmāni paśyan, looking at (illuminating) the born beings. Ahā: śi dropped by śeś chandasi bahulam. Mimānaḥ: root māñ māne, of the juhotyādi class; with sānac, ślu, doubling, the i in the reduplicative syllable by bhrñām it; the ā drops by śnābhyastayor ātaḥ; the initial acute by abhyastānām ādiḥ. Janmāni: root janī prādurbhāve; manin by anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyante; initial-acute because nīt."

Pratipadārtha — "sūrya — O god Sūrya; tvam — you; ahā — the days; aktubhiḥ — with the nights; mimānaḥ — producing; (so also) janmāni — all beings that have been born; paśyan — lighting up; prthu — wide; dyām rajah — in the world of the atmosphere; vi eṣi — you move about specially."

Bhāvārtha

— "O god Sūrya, the day and the nights are all dependent on your movements. By your movements, creating them in order, and so lighting up all the beings that are born, you move for ever in the wide world of the atmosphere."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 127)

— "You travel through the vast space of the firmament, measuring days and nights and observing all creatures."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 127 - dyām rajah — "rajas means the wide world of the atmosphere, that is, the world; there is the Nirukta statement 'lokā rajāṃsy ucyante' (Ni. 4-19 [?])." — untranslated in the source:

लोका रजांस्युच्यन्ते । (Ni. 4-19 as read [?])

lokā rajāṃsy ucyante | — editorial and tentative: "the worlds are called rajāṃsi." - mimāṇaḥ — "māṇ māne: measuring, that is, dividing day and night evenly. Since the measure of day and night is equal, the root māṇ is used here." - ahā aktubhiḥ — "making the days equal with the nights; the idea is that the time-measure of day and night is made one and equal." - janmāni — "jananavanti bhūtajātāni: all beings that are born or will be born; there are no beings that are not under the sight of the Sun; therefore it is a custom to say that the Sun, who sees all, is the karmasākṣī, the witness of acts." ³²

Rik 50.7, continued ³³

Special Topics, continued (p. 128) — "Yāska's Nirukta on this ṛk" (untranslated in the source; reference not given in the print at this place):

व्येषि द्यां रजश्च पृथु महान्तं लोकमहानि च विमानोऽक्तुभी रात्रिभिः सह पश्यज्जन्मानि जातानि सूर्य ॥ (Ni. [reference not legible] [?])

vyeṣi dyām rajas ca pṛthu mahāntaṃ lokam ahāni ca vimāno 'ktubhī rātribhiḥ saha paśyañ janmāni jātāni sūrya || — editorial and tentative: "You go through the heaven and the wide, great expanse, the world, and the days, measuring them out with the nights, seeing the born beings, O Sūrya." "There is no difference between the commentator's explanation and Yāska's explanation."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁴ - rajaspr̥thu: rajaḥ pṛthu; chandasi vāprāpremyāḍitayoḥ [? as read: chandasi vāprapremāḍitayoḥ] (Pā. 8-3-49 as read [?]) — except for pra and a word in āmreḍita, in the Chandas the visarga optionally becomes s before a ku- or pu- letter; so, since a p follows, the upadhmānīya is set aside and the visarga becomes s: rajaspr̥thu. - ahā: after ahan, the accusative

32. The grammar of Rik 7 begins on p. 128, not yet written.

33. from p. 128

34. pp. 128 — grammar page, noted briefly

plural śas; for a neuter, śas → śi by jaśśasoḥ śiḥ; śi has the sarvanāmasthāna name, so the penultimate of the n-ending aṅga is lengthened before it; ahān + i; śeś chandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-1-70 as read) drops śi variously; the n-loss by nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya does not come; so ahā. - mimānaḥ: root mān māne, juhotyādi, with an ñit-marker, so ātmanepada; laṭaḥ śatṛśānacau gives śānac; ślu for the vikaraṇa; doubling by ślau; mā + mā + āna; bhṛñām it (Pā. 7-4-76 as read) gives i for the reduplicative syllable of bhṛñ, māñ, ohāñ before ślu: mimā + āna; śnābhyastayor ātaḥ (Pā. 6-4-112 as read) drops the ā of the root: mimāna; abhyastānām ādiḥ (Pā. 6-1-189 as read) gives the initial acute of the abhyasta when a vowel-initial lasārvadhātuka that is not iṭ follows; so here, śānac being lasārvadhātuka, the root's accent is overridden and the initial is acute; mimānaḥ is initial-acute. - janmāni: root janī prādurbhāve, divādi; anyebhyo 'pi ḍṛśyante (Pā. 3-2-75 as read) gives manin; janman; accusative plural śas → śi in the neuter; the penultimate lengthened by sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau: janmāni; manin is ñit, so initial-acute by ñnityādir nityam: janmāni is initial-acute. || 7 ||

original pp. 129–130

Rik 8

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

सप्त त्वा हरितो रथे वहन्ति देव सूर्य । शोचिष्केशं विचक्षण ॥ ८ ॥

sapta tvā harito rathe vahanti deva sūrya | śociṣkeśaṃ vicakṣaṇa
|| 8 ||

Pada-pāṭha

सप्त । त्वा । हरितः । रथे । वहन्ति । देव । सूर्य । शोचिःऽकेशम् । विऽचक्षण ॥ ८ ॥ sapta | tvā | haritaḥ | rathe | vahanti | deva | sūrya | śociḥ-keśam | vi-cakṣaṇa || 8 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे सूर्य देव द्योतमान विचक्षण सर्वस्य प्रकाशयितः सप्त सप्तसंख्याका हरितोऽश्वा
 रसहरणशीला रश्मयो वा त्वा त्वां बहन्ति । प्रापयन्ति । कीदृशं । रथेऽवस्थितमिति
 शेषः । तथा शोचिष्केशं । शोचींषि तेजांस्येव यस्मिन्केशा इव दृश्यन्ते स तथोक्तः ।
 तं । हरित इत्यादित्याश्वानां संज्ञा । हरित आदित्यस्येति निघण्टावुक्तत्वात् ॥
 शोचिष्केशं । शुच दीप्तौ । अर्चिशुचिहृसृपिछादिछर्दिभ्य इतिः । उ. २-१०८ [?] ।
 इसिप्रत्ययान्तोऽन्तोदात्तः । स एव बहुव्रीहौ पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वेन शिष्यते । नित्यं समासेऽनुत्तरपदस्थस्येति विसर्जनीयस्य षत्वम् ॥

*he sūrya deva dyotamāna vicakṣaṇa sarvasya prakāśayitaḥ sapta saptasamkhyākā harito 'śvā rasaharaṇaśīlā raśmayo vā tvā tvām vahanti | prāpayanti | kīdṛśam | rathe 'vasthitam iti śeṣaḥ | tathā śociṣkeśam | śociṃṣi tejāmsy eva yasmin keśā iva dṛśyante sa tathoktaḥ | tam | harita ity ādityāśvānām samjñā | harita ādityasyeti nighaṇṭāv uktatvāt || śociṣkeśam | śuca dīptau |
 arcīśuciḥṛspichādichardibhya isih | u. 2-108 [?] | isipratyayānto
 'ntodāttaḥ | sa eva bahuvrīhau pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvena
 śiṣyate | nityam samāse 'nuttarapadasthasyeti visarjanīyasya
 ṣatvam | |* ³⁵

Translation: "O Sūrya, O shining god, O vicakṣaṇa, illuminer of all: sapta, seven, haritaḥ, the horses, or the rays that draw up the sap, tvā vahanti, bear you — as you stand in the chariot (the words understood). And śociṣkeśam, he in whom the flames, the splendours, are seen as it were as hair. Harit is a name of the Sun's horses, as the Nighaṇṭu says: 'harita is the Āditya's'. Śociṣkeśam: root śuca dīptau; the Uṇādi isi suffix (Uṇ. 2-108 [?]), end-acute; this alone remains in the bahuvrīhi by the first member's natural accent; ṣatva of the visarga in a compound by nityam samāse 'nuttarapadasthasya."

35. Crowded: "rasaharaṇaśīlā" and the Uṇādi number; as read, [?].

Pratipadārtha — "deva — O shining one; vicakṣaṇa — who make all shine; sūrya — O god Sūrya; rathe — seated in the chariot; śociṣkeśam — whose hair is of flames, endowed with locks of splendour; tvā — you; sapta haritaḥ — seven horses called harit, or the rays that draw up water; vahanti — bear."

Bhāvārtha — "O god Sūrya, you shine by yourself and make everything shine. Your splendours are like locks of hair for you. Seven horses named harit, or the rays that draw up the sap, bear you as you sit in your chariot."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 130)

— "Divine and light-spreading Surya, your seven horses (mares) bear you bright-haired in your car."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 130 - sapta haritaḥ — "the Sun's chariot has seven horses. These horses are well known as of green-tawny colour. As Yāska says 'harita ādityasya' (Ni. 1-1-7 as read), the horses of the Sun are called haritaḥ. Since haritaḥ also means rays, the rays of the Sun are themselves spoken of as the horses of the Sun. Some say that the seven days of the week are the seven horses." — untranslated in the source:

हरित आदित्यस्य । (Ni. 1-1-7 as read [?])

harita ādityasya | — editorial and tentative: "the haritas (tawny ones) are the Āditya's." - śociṣkeśam — "śuca dīptau; śociṃṣi tejāṃsy eva yasmin keśā iva dṛśyante sa śociṣkeśaḥ: since the bright rays of the Sun are seen like hair, the poet describes the Sun as śociṣkeśa, 'having locks of shining splendour', in order to say that he has shining rays."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁶ - vahanti: root vaha prāpaṇe, bhvādi; third person plural: vahanti; the tiṅ is unaccented by tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam; śap being pit is unaccented; the end-acute of the root remains. -

śociṣkeśam: root śuca dīptau, bhvādi; arcisucihr̥spichādichardibhya isih (Uṇ. 2-[?]o8 as read [?]) gives isi; guṇa of the root's penultimate; śociṣ → śocih with ru and visarga; end-acute by the suffix-accent. "Śociṃṣi keśāḥ yasya saḥ": a bahuvrīhi; nityaṃ samāse 'nuttarapadaasthasya (Pā. 8-3-45 as read) gives ṣatva to the visarga of the first member's is before a ku-letter, always in a compound; accusative singular: śociṣkeśam; since it is a bahuvrīhi, bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam (Pā. 6-2-1 as read) gives the first member's natural accent, overriding the compound-accent; the i after c is acute, and the unaccented after it becomes svarita. || 8 || ³⁷

original pp. 131–134

Rik 9

Samhitā-pāṭha

अयुक्त सप्त शुन्ध्युवः सूरौ रथस्य नप्त्यः । ताभिर्याति स्वयुक्तिभिः ॥ ९ ॥

ayukta sapta śundhyuvaḥ sūro rathasya nptyaḥ | tābhir yāti svayuktibhiḥ || 9 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अयुक्त । सप्त । शुन्ध्युवः । सूरः । रथस्य । नप्त्यः । ताभिः । याति । स्वयुक्तिभिः ॥ ९ ॥

ayukta | sapta | śundhyuvaḥ | sūraḥ | rathasya | nptyaḥ | tābhiḥ | yāti | svayukti-bhiḥ || 9 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

सूरः सर्वस्य प्रेरकः सूर्यः शुन्ध्युवः शोधिका अश्वस्त्रियः तादृशीः सप्त सप्तसंख्याका आयुक्त स्वरथे योजितवान् । कीदृश्यः । रथस्य नप्त्यः न पातयिष्यः । याभिर्युक्ताभी रथो याति न पतति तादृशीभिरित्यर्थः । एवंभूताभिस्ताभिरश्वस्त्रीभिः स्वयुक्तिभिः स्वकीययोजनेन रथे संबद्धाभिर्याति । यज्ञगृहं प्रत्यागच्छति ।

37. A printer's ornament at the foot of p. 130 closes the page; no varga-end note is printed there.

अतस्तस्मै हविर्दातव्यमिति वाक्यशेषः ॥ आयुक्त । युजिर् योगे ।
 स्वरितेत्वात्कर्त्रभिप्राय आत्मनेपदं । लुङि च्लेः सिच् । एकाच इतीट्प्रतिषेधः ।
 लिङ्सिचावात्मनेपदेषु । पा. १-२-११ । इति सिचः कित्त्वाल्लघूपधगुणाभावः । झलो
 झलीति सिचः सकारलोपः । चोः कुरिति कुत्वं । शुन्ध्युवः । शुन्ध विशुद्धौ ।
 यजिमनिशुन्धिदसिजनिभ्यो युः । उ. ३-२० [?] । इति युप्रत्ययः । शसि तन्नादीनां
 छन्दसि बहुलमुपसंख्यानं । पा. ६-४-८८-१ [?] । इत्युवजादेशः । सूरः । षू प्रेरणे ।
 सुसूधागृधिभ्यः क्रन् । उ. २-२४ [?] । इति क्रन्प्रत्ययः । निच्वादाद्युदात्तत्वं । नप्त्यः
 । न पातयतीत्यर्थे नप्तृनेष्टृ... । उ. २-९६ [?] । इत्यादिनोणादिषु
 नप्तृशब्दस्त्यजन्तो निपातितः । यन्नेभ्यो डीबिति डीप् । यणादेश उदात्तयणो
 हल्पूर्वादिति डीप उदात्तत्वं । सुपां सुपो भवन्तीति शसो जसादेशः । ततो यणादेश
 उदात्तस्वरितयोर्यणः इति स्वरितत्वं । रेफलोपश्छान्दसः । उक्तं च । द्वौ चापरा
 वर्णविकारनाशौ । का. ६-३-१०९ [?] । इति । शाखान्तरे तु नप्ठ्यै इत्येव पठ्यते ।
 स्वयुक्तिभिः । स्वकीयाः सूर्यसंबन्धिन्यो युक्तयो योजनानि यासां । बहुव्रीहौ पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं ॥

sūrah sarvasya prerakah sūryah śundhyuvaḥ śodhikā aśvastrīyaḥ tādrśīḥ sapta saptasamkhyākā āyukta svarathe yojitavān |
 kīdrśyaḥ | rathasya naptyaḥ na pātayitryaḥ | yābhir yuktābhī ratho yāti na patati tādrśībhir ity arthaḥ | evambhūtābhis tābhir aśvastrībhiḥ svayuktibhiḥ svakīyayojanena rathe sambaddhābhir yāti | yajñagrhaṃ pratyāgacchati | atas tasmai havir dātavyam iti vākyaśeṣaḥ || āyukta | yujir yoge | svaritettvāt kartrabhiprāya ātmanepadam | luṇi cleḥ sic | ekāca itīṭṭpratiṣedhaḥ | liṅsicāv ātmanepadeṣu | pā. 1-2-11 | iti sicaḥ kittvāl
 laghūpadhaguṇābhāvaḥ | jhalo jhalīti sicaḥ sakāralopaḥ | coḥ kur
 iti kutvaṃ | śundhyuvaḥ | śundha viśuddhau |
 yajimaniśundhidasijanibhyo yuḥ | u. 3-20 [?] | iti yupratyayaḥ |
 śasi tannādīnām chandasi bahulam upasamkhyānam | pā.
 6-4-88-1 [?] | ity uvajādeśaḥ | sūrah | śū prerane |
 susūdhāgrdhibhyaḥ kran | u. 2-24 [?] | iti kranpratyayaḥ | nittvād
 ādyudāttatvaṃ | naptyaḥ | na pātayatīty arthe napṭrñeṣṭr... | u.
 2-96 [?] | ity ādinonādiṣu napṭrśabdā tyajanto nipātitaḥ |
 yanebhyo nīb iti nīp | yaṇādeśa udāttayaṇo halpūrvād iti nīpa

udāttatvaṃ | supāṃ supo bhavantīti śaso jasādeśaḥ | tato yaṇādeśa udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ iti svaritatvaṃ | rephalopaś chāndasaḥ | uktaṃ ca | dvau cāparā varṇavikāranāśau | kā.
 6-3-109 [?] | iti | śākhāntare tu naptryai ity eva paṭhyate |
 svayuktibhiḥ | svakīyāḥ sūryasaṃbandhinyo yuktayo yojanāni
 yāsāṃ | bahuvrīhau pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ || ³⁸

Translation: "Sūraḥ, the Sun, the impeller of all, ayukta, has yoked to his own chariot sapta śundhyuvaḥ, seven purifying mares. Of what kind? Rathasya naptyaḥ, those that do not let the chariot fall: with those yoked, the chariot goes and does not fall. Tābhiḥ svayuktibhiḥ, by those mares attached to the chariot by their own yoking, he goes — he comes to the sacrificial house. Therefore the oblation is to be offered to him (the remainder of the sentence). Āyukta: root yujir yoge; the ātmanepada because the agent has the fruit in view; sic for clī; no iṭ; since sic is kit by liṅsicāv ātmanepadeṣu, no guṇa; the s of sic drops by jhalo jhali; kutva by coḥ kuḥ. Śundhyuvaḥ: root śundha viśuddhau; the Uṇādi suffix yu (Uṇ. 3-20 [?]); in the accusative plural, uv is substituted, the tannādi words being in the Chandas varied. Sūraḥ: root ṣū prerane; kran (Uṇ. 2-24 [?]); initial-acute because nī. Naptyaḥ: 'those who do not cause to fall'; the word naptr is given by nīpātana among the Uṇādi words; nīp; the yaṇ; the acute of nīp by udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt; jas for śas; the r is dropped in the Chandas; as it is said, 'two other things, change and loss of a letter' (Kāśikā 6-3-109 [?]); in another recension the reading is naptryai. Svayuktibhiḥ: 'those whose yokings are their own, connected with the Sun'; bahuvrīhi, so the first member's natural accent."

38. Crowded stretch: the root-list of the Uṇādi rule naptrneṣṭr... (the print gives it only as "naptrneṣṭr...", an unfinished list), the Uṇādi and Kāśikā numbers, and the clause on naptyaḥ's nīp and loss of r; as read, [?]. The word nīte in the print's "ṇ-ādi" is as read. Note: the print reads "uṇādiṣu naptrśabdas tyajanto" for "naptr-śabda ṛdantaḥ" [?]; given as printed.

Pratipadārtha — "sūrah — the Sun who impels all; rathasya nptyah — (while travelling) that do not let the chariot fall; sapta śundhyuvaḥ — seven pure mares; ayukta — has yoked (to the chariot); svayuktibhiḥ — the ones that have themselves come to be yoked to the chariot; tābhiḥ — with the help of those mares; yāti — he comes to the sacrificial house (therefore the oblation is to be offered to him)."

Bhāvārtha

— "The god Sūrya, the impeller of all, has yoked seven mares to his chariot. However fast they carry the chariot, they do not let it fall, but carry it safely. These pure mares have, of themselves, come to be yoked to the chariot. With the help of these mares the Sun comes to the sacrificial house; therefore the oblation is to be offered to him."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 132)

— "The sun has yoked the seven horses that safely draw his chariot [sic] and comes with those self-harnessed horses."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 132 - śundhyuvaḥ — "śundha viśuddhau; śundhyur ādityo bhavati śodhanāt, (Ni. 4-[?]¹ as read): since he purifies all, the Āditya is called śundhyu. The horses connected with that śundhyu are called śundhyuvaḥ. Or śundhyuvaḥ are the rays that purify all." — untranslated in the source:

शुच्युरादित्यो भवति शोधनात् । तस्य स्वभूताः ॥ (Ni. 4-[?]¹ as read [?]; the print's text is partly crowded)

śundhyur ādityo bhavati śodhanāt | tasya svabhūtāḥ || — editorial and tentative: "the Āditya is śundhyu from 'purifying'; [they are] his own." - sūrah — "sarvasya prerakaḥ sūryaḥ: the Sun who impels all." - nptyah — "na pātayitryaḥ: those who do not let [the chariot] fall; since, with these mares yoked, the chariot goes smoothly without falling, these mares are nptyah, those that do not let the chariot go to ruin." - svayuktibhiḥ —

"svakīyayojanena rathe sambaddhābhiḥ; svayam eva ye rathe yujyante tāḥ svayuktayaḥ: those that of themselves yoke themselves, without another's help, to the Sun's chariot. The same idea is indicated in the case of Indra's horses called hari." - ayukta — "has yoked (to the chariot)"; tābhiḥ — "with the help of those mares"; yāti — "he comes to the sacrificial house (therefore the oblation is to be given to him)".

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁹ - āyukta: root yujir yoge, rudhādi, with svarita-marker ir and ñīt-nature; svaritañītaḥ kartrabhiprāye kriyāphale (Pā. 1-3-72 as read) gives the ātmanepada when the fruit of the action goes to the agent — here the fruit of the activity, shown by the sense of the root, goes to the agent, the Sun; luṅ, third person singular ta; yuj + ta; cli, cleḥ sic; ekāca upadeśe 'nudāttāt (Pā. 7-2-10 as read) forbids iṭ before the ārdhadhātuka sic, a val-initial; pugantalaghūpadhasya ca would give guṇa; but liṅsicāv ātmanepadeṣu (Pā. 1-2-11 as read) makes a liṅ and a sic standing after the ātmanepada suffix kit when what precedes ends in a consonant after a vowel; here the consonant is j after u, and sic is followed by the ātmanepada ta, so sic is kit; kñiti ca forbids guṇa; jhalo jhali (Pā. 8-2-26 as read) drops the s of sic when a jhal follows; coḥ kuḥ (Pā. 8-2-30 as read) gives g for j, khari ca (Pā. 8-4-55 as read) gives k; the aṭ augment, which luṅ causes, comes to the aṅga: āyukta (with the prefix ā? — the print's form is ayukta); because the word ayukta has no yad (relative) in its sentence, there is no all-unaccented prohibition; the accent is the root-accent: initial-acute. - śundhyuvaḥ: root śundha viśuddhau, bhvādi; yajimaniśundhidasijanibhyo yuḥ (Uṇ. 3-[?]00 as read [?]) gives yu; then śundhyu, a stem in u; in the accusative plural śas, the homogeneous lengthening would be obtained, but tenādīnām chandasi bahulam upasaṃkhyānam (Pā. 6-4-88 vārttika, as read "6-4-88 vā. 1" [?]) gives uvaṅ in its place: śundhyu + uv + as; ru, visarga: śundhyuvaḥ. - sūrah: root ṣū prerāṇe, tudādi; dhātvādeḥ saḥ saḥ (Pā. 6-1-64 as read) makes the ṣ of the root s; susūdhāgr̥dhibhyaḥ kran (Uṇ. 2-[?]³⁴ as read [?]) gives the suffix kran; only ra remains: sūra; since kran is nī, ñnityādir nityam (Pā. 6-1-197 as read) gives the initial acute: sūraḥ is initial-acute. - naptyaḥ: "na pātayati", one who does not cause to fall; naptr̥neṣṭr̥tvaṣṭrkṣatṭr̥hotṭr̥potṭr̥prāsāstr̥ (Uṇ. 2-[?]⁹⁵ as read [?]) — the word naptr̥ is given by nipātana among the Uṇādi words, as ending in tr̥c; for the feminine, ṛnnebhyaḥ nīp (Pā. 4-1-5 as read) gives nīp; naptr̥ + ī; yaṇ: naptr̥ + ī; udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt (Pā. 6-1-174 as read) is the rule on the acute... ⁴⁰. ⁴¹

Rik 50.9, continued ⁴²

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā, continued ⁴³ - naptyaḥ ⁴⁴: in naptr̥ + ī the yaṇ comes, and by udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt (Pā. 6-1-174 as read) the nadī-named ī after a yaṇ that has stood in place of an acute vowel, and a consonant before it, and also the case-ending after it, are acute — so here, since a tr̥'s r̥ was acute in the earlier word, the ī is acute and the ending is made svarita; vyatyayo bahulam gives jas in place of śas (supām supo bhavanti); naptr̥ + as with dīrghāj jasi ca forbids the homogeneous lengthening and yaṇ comes again; udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svarito 'nudāttasya (Pā. 8-2-4 as read) makes the unaccented after a yaṇ standing for an acute or a svarita a svarita; here the nīp's ī has yaṇ, so the following unaccented ending is svarita. When yaṇ has come, the r is heard: naptryaḥ; the dropping of it must be said to be Vedic (chāndasa): hence in the Mantra it is read without the r, naptyaḥ; this is what is meant by "dvau cāparau varṇavikāranāśau" (Kāśikā 6-3-109 as

40. the Kannada author's treatment of the loss of the r and of the case-ending continues on p. 133–134, to be written with the next batch

41. The rest of the grammar of Rik 9 — the end of naptyaḥ and svayuktibhiḥ — is on p. 134 and is not yet written; the sūkta continues with Rik 10 on p. 134.

42. from p. 133 foot, p. 134

43. p. 134 — grammar page, noted briefly

44. end

read [?]): in the Chandas change and loss of letters occur even without a cause. In another recension the reading is naptryaḥ with the r intact. - svayuktibhiḥ: "svakīyāḥ sūryasambandhinyo yuktayo yojanāni yāsām tāḥ svayuktayaḥ"; by sva the Sun is to be taken; yukti is "joining"; so "those [mares] whose joinings are connected with the Sun", an other-member-chief bahuvrīhi; bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam (Pā. 6-2-1 as read) gives the first member's natural accent. || 9 || ⁴⁵

original pp. 134–137

Rik 10

Samhitā-pāṭha

उद्वयं तमसस्परि ज्योतिः पश्यन्त उत्तरम् । देवं देवत्रा सूर्यमगन्म ज्योतिरुत्तमम् ॥ १० ॥

ud vayaṁ tamasas pari jyotiḥ paśyanta uttaram | devaṁ devatrā sūryam aganma jyotir uttamam || 10 ||

Pada-pāṭha

उत् । वयम् । तमसः । परि । ज्योतिः । पश्यन्तः । उत्तरम् । देवम् । देवत्रा । सूर्यम् । अगन्म । ज्योतिः । उत्तमम् ॥ १० ॥

*ut | vayaṁ | tamasaḥ | pari | jyotiḥ | paśyantaḥ | ut-taram |
devam | deva-trā | sūryam | aganma | jyotiḥ | ut-tamam || 10 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अवभृथेष्टौ होत्रकाः जलान्निष्क्रम्योद्वयं तमसस्परीति मन्त्रं ब्रूयुः । तथा च
पत्नीसंयाजैश्चरित्वेति खण्डे सूत्रितं । उद्वयं तमसस्परीत्युदेत्य । आ. ६-१३ [?] ।
इति ॥

वयमनुष्ठातारस्तमसस्परि तमस उपरि रात्रेरुर्ध्वं वर्तमानं तमसः पापात्यर्युपरि
वर्तमानं वा । पापरहितमित्यर्थः । तथा चाम्नायते । उद्वयं तमसस्परीत्याहु पाप्मा वै
तमः पाप्मानमेवास्मादप हन्ति । तै. सं. ३-१-८-६ [?] । इति ।

45. From Rik 10 the metre is Anuṣṭubh, as the heading states.

ज्योतिस्तेजस्विनमुत्तरमुद्रततरमुत्कृष्टतरं वा देवत्रा देवेषु मध्ये देवं दानादिगुणयुक्तं
सूर्यं पश्यन्तः स्तुतिभिर्हविर्भिश्चोपासीनाः सन्त उत्तमं उत्कृष्टतमं ज्योतिः

सूर्यरूपमगन्म । प्राप्नुमः । तथा च श्रूयते । अगन्म ज्योतिरुत्तममित्याहासौ वा
आदित्यो ज्योतिरुत्तममादित्यस्यैव सायुज्यं गच्छतीति । युक्तं चैतत् । तं यथा
यथोपासते तदेव भवन्तीति श्रुत्यन्तरात् ॥ तमसस्परि । पञ्चम्याः परावध्यर्थ इति
विसर्जनीयस्य सत्त्वं । ज्योतिष्पश्यन्तः । इसुसोः सामर्थ्ये । पा. ८-३-४४ । इति
विसर्जनीयस्य षत्त्वं । व्यपेक्षालक्षणं सामर्थ्यं तत्रांगीक्रियते । देवत्रा ।

देवमनुष्यपुरुषपुरुमर्त्येभ्यो द्वितीयासप्तम्योर्बहुलं । पा. ५-४-५६ । इति सप्तम्यर्थे
त्राप्रत्ययः । प्रत्ययस्वरः । अगन्म । छन्दसि लुङ्लङ्लिट इति प्रार्थनायां लङि बहुलं
छन्दसीति शपो लुक् । म्वोश्च । पा. ८-२-६५ । इति धातोर्मकारस्य नकारः ।

आडुदात्तः । पादादित्वान्निघाताभावः । उत्तमं । तमसः पित्त्वादनुदात्तत्वे प्राप्त उत्तमशश्वत्तमौ सर्वत्रेत्युंभादिषु पाठादन्तोदात्तत्वं ॥ avabhṛtheṣṭau hotrakāḥ jalān niṣkramyod vayaṃ tamasas parīti mantram brūyuh | tathā ca patnīsaṃyājais caritveti khaṇḍe sūtritam | ud vayaṃ tamasas parīty udetya | ā. 6-13 [?] | iti |

*vayaṃ anuṣṭhātāras tamasas pari tamasa upari rātrēr ūrdhvam vartamānaṃ tamasaḥ pāpāt pary upari vartamānaṃ vā |
pāparahitam ity arthaḥ | tathā cāmnāyate | ud vayaṃ tamasas parīty āhu pāpmā vai tamaḥ pāpmānam evāsmād apa hanti | tai.
saṃ. 3-1-8-6 [?] | iti | jyotis tejasvinam uttaram udgatatarām utkr̥ṣṭatarām vā devatrā deveṣu madhye devaṃ dānādiguṇayuktaṃ sūryaṃ paśyantaḥ stutibhir havirbhiś copāsīnāḥ santa uttamaṃ utkr̥ṣṭatamaṃ jyotiḥ sūryarūpam aganma | prāpnumaḥ | tathā ca śrūyate | aganma jyotir uttamam ity āhāsau vā ādityo jyotir uttamam ādityasyaiva sāyujyaṃ gacchatīti | yuktaṃ caitat | taṃ yathā yathopāsate tad eva bhavantīti śrutyantarāt || tamasaspari | pañcamyāḥ
parāvadhyartha iti visarjanīyasya satvaṃ | jyotiṣpaśyantaḥ |
isusoḥ sāmārthye | pā. 8-3-44 | iti visarjanīyasya ṣatvaṃ |
vyapekṣālakṣaṇaṃ sāmārthyaṃ tatrāṅgīkriyate | devatrā |
devamanuṣyapuruṣapurumartyebhyo dvitīyāsaptamyor bahulaṃ |
pā. 5-4-56 | iti saptamyarthe trāpratyayaḥ | pratyayasvaraḥ |*

*aganma | chandasi luṇlaṇḷiṭa iti prārthanāyāṃ laṇi bahulaṃ chandasiṭi śapo luk | mvoś ca | pā. 8-2-65 | iti dhātor makārasya
nakāraḥ | āḍudāttaḥ | pādādittvān nighātābhāvaḥ | uttamam | tamasasḥ pīttvād anudāttatve prāpta uttamaśaśvattamau
sarvatrety uṃbhādiṣu pāṭhād antodāttatvaṃ | |*⁴⁶

Translation: "At the avabhṛtha ending-rite, the hotṛ's priests, coming out of the water, should recite the mantra 'ud vyaṃ tamasas pari'; it is prescribed in the section 'patnīsaṃyājaiś caritvā': 'ud vyaṃ tamasas pari, having risen' (Āśv. 6-13 [?]). Vyaṃ, we, the performers, tamasas pari, above the darkness — above night, standing higher; or above the darkness of sin, that is, free of sin; as it is declared: 'they recite "ud vyaṃ tamasas pari"; darkness, indeed, is sin: by it one strikes away sin from himself' (Tai. Saṃ. 3-1-8-6 [?]). Jyotiḥ, the radiant, uttamam, risen higher, or most excellent; devatrā, among the gods; devam, the god endowed with qualities such as generosity; sūryam paśyantaḥ, seeing the Sun, worshipping with hymns and oblations; jyotir uttamam aganma, we have reached the highest light, in the form of the Sun. As the Śruti says: 'he says "aganma jyotir uttamam": the Āditya is the highest light; he attains union with the Āditya himself'; and this is fitting, from another Śruti: 'as one worships him, so one becomes'. Tamasaspari: the visarga becomes s before pari in the sense of 'above'. Jyotiṣpaśyantaḥ: śatva of the visarga by isusoḥ sāmārthye, with the capacity of mutual expectation accepted here. Devatrā: the suffix trā in the locative sense after deva, manuṣya, puruṣa, puru, martya (Pā. 5-4-56); suffix-accent. Aganma: in a prayer, laṇi in the Chandas; śap dropped; n for the m of the root by mvoś ca; the āt-augment acute; no all-unaccented, it being at the head of a pāda. Uttamam: the tamaḥ being pit, unaccented, but because uttama is listed among the uṃbhādi words, end-acute."

46. The print's Pāṇini numerals "6-13" (Āśvalāyana), "3-1-8-6" (Tai. Saṃ.), "8-3-44", "5-4-56", "8-2-65" are as read, [?]; the clause "avabhṛtheṣṭau hotrakāḥ" is as read.

Pratipadārtha — "vayam — we (who perform the rites); tamasah pari — (after the night, full of darkness,) above it, or free from sin; jyotiḥ — radiant; uttaram — the one who rises upwards, or the greatly excellent; devatrā — among the gods; devam — the one endowed with qualities such as giving; sūryam — the god Sūrya; paśyantaḥ — worshipping with hymns and oblations; uttamam — the most excellent; jyotiḥ — the light (in the form of the Sun); ud aganma — we reach."

Bhāvārtha

— "After the night, which is of the form of darkness, has passed, the Sun, free from sin, radiant and most excellent, rises and comes up. Worshipping with hymns and oblations this god Sūrya, who among the gods is endowed with qualities such as generosity, we reach the light that is of this form."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 136)

— "Beholding the up-rising light above the darkness, we approach the divine Sun among the gods, the excellent light."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 136 - "At the avabhṛtha ending-rite the priests of the hotṛ group bathe, and as they come out of the water they use the ṛk 'ud vayam tamasas pari'; this matter is explained in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta-sūtra, in the section 'patnīsaṃyājaiś caritvā', by the sūtra 'ud vayam tamasas parīty udetya' (Ā. 6-13 [?])." - "For this ṛk too the commentator has given two senses." - tamasaspari — "tamasa upari rātrēr ūrdhvam: after the darkness has gone and it has become light, after the night has passed and morning has come; or tamasah pāpāt pary upari vartamānam pāparahitam: after the darkness of ignorance has been removed, or after sin has been destroyed, free of sin. In this matter there is the Taittirīya Śruti sentence 'ud vayam tamasas parīty āha pāpmā vai tamaḥ pāpmānam evāsmād apa hanti' (Tai. Saṃ. 3-1-8-6 [?])." — untranslated in the source:

उद्धयं तमसस्परीत्याह पाप्मा वै तमः पाप्मानमेवास्मादप हन्ति । (Tai. Saṃ. 3-1-8-6 as read [?])

ud vayaṃ tamasas parīty āha pāpmā vai tamaḥ pāpmānam evāsmād apa hanti | — editorial and tentative: "he says 'ud vayaṃ tamasas pari'; darkness is, indeed, sin: he strikes sin away from him." - devatrā — "among the gods. This is a word ending in the accusative that has been used in the sense of the locative. In this connexion there is Pāṇini's sūtra devamanuṣyapurūṣapurumartyebhyo dvitīyāsaptamyor bahulam (Pā. 5-4-56 as read [?])." - aganma jyotir uttamam — "we reach the light that is excellent, in the form of the Sun (the world of the Sun, or union with him). In this connexion the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa sentence 'svargo vai lokaḥ | sūryo jyotir uttamaḥ | svarga eva loka 'ntataḥ pratitiṣṭhati' (Śat. Brā. 1-9-3-[?] as read), and the Taittirīya Śruti sentence 'aganma jyotir uttamam ity āhāsau vā ādityo jyotir uttamam ādityasyaiva sāyujyaṃ gacchati', both support this idea." — untranslated in the source:

1. स्वर्गो वै लोकः । सूर्यो ज्योतिरुत्तमः । स्वर्ग एव लोकेऽन्ततः प्रतितिष्ठति । ⁴⁷

svargo vai lokaḥ | sūryo jyotir uttamaḥ | svarga eva loka 'ntataḥ pratitiṣṭhati | — editorial and tentative: "heaven is, indeed, the world; the Sun is the highest light; he is established, in the end, in the world of heaven."

2. अगन्म ज्योतिरुत्तममित्याहासौ वा आदित्यो ज्योतिरुत्तममादित्यस्यैव सायुज्यं गच्छति । ⁴⁸

aganma jyotir uttamam ity āhāsau vā ādityo jyotir uttamam ādityasyaiva sāyujyaṃ gacchati | — editorial and tentative: "he says 'aganma jyotir uttamam'; the Āditya is, indeed, the highest light: he attains union with the Āditya himself."

47. Śat. Brā. 1-9-3-[?] as read [?]

48. Tai. Saṃ. [number not legible] as read [?]

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁹ - tamasaspari: tamasah pari; pañcamyāḥ parāvadyartha (Pā. 8-3-51 as read [?]) gives s for the visarga when pari in the sense of "above" follows: tamasas pari. - jyotiṣpaśyantaḥ: jyotiḥ paśyantaḥ; isusoḥ sāmārthye (Pā. 8-3-44 as read [?]) gives ṣ for the visarga of an is or us before a ku- or pu- letter when there is sāmārthya; the Kannada notes that sāmārthya in the sense of vyapekṣā (mutual expectation) is what is accepted here, since the verb and the "light" (object) are connected by the sense of object (karmatā): jyotiṣ paśyantaḥ. - devatrā: devamanuṣyapurusaṣapurumartyebhyo dvitīyāsaptamyor bahulam (Pā. 5-4-56 as read [?]) gives trā after these words in the sense of the accusative and locative; here, after deva in the sense "among the gods": devatrā; the suffix is initial-acute (ādyudāttaś ca)? — the print says by the suffix-accent devatrā is end-acute. - aganma: root gam gatau, bhvādi; chandasi luṇlaṇḍitaḥ (Pā. 3-4-6 as read) gives laṇ in the sense of a prayer; first person plural mas; nityam ṇitaḥ (Pā. 3-4-99 as read) drops the s of mas; bahulam chandasi (Pā. 2-4-73 as read) drops the śap; the aṭ comes: agam + ma; mvoś ca (Pā. 8-2-65 as read) gives n for the m of a root ending in m before m or v: aganma; āḍudāttaḥ gives the initial acute; because it stands at the head of the pāda, apādāḍau forbids the all-unaccented. - uttamam: "atiśayena ut"; tamap in the sense of excess; being pit, unaccented by anudāttau suppitau; uṃbhādīnām ca (Pā. 6-1-160 as read) — in the uṃbhādi list (in which uttama and śaśvattama are read "everywhere" [sarvatra]) gives the end-acute; so uttamam is end-acute. || 10 ||

original p. 137

Rik 11

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

उद्यन्व मित्रमह आरोहन्नुत्तरां दिवम् । हृद्रोगं मम सूर्य हरिमाणं च नाशय ॥ ११ ॥

49. pp. 136–137 — grammar pages, noted briefly

udyann adya mitramaha ārohann uttarām divam | hṛdrogaṃ mama sūrya harimāṇaṃ ca nāsaya || 11 ||

Pada-pāṭha

उत्स्यन् । अद्य । मित्रऽमहः । आऽरोहन् । उत्तराम् । दिवम् । हृद्रोगम् । मम । सूर्य । हरिमाणम् । च । नाशय ॥ ११ ॥

ut-yan | adya | mitra-mahaḥ | ā-rohan | ut-tarām | divam | hṛtrogam | mama | sūrya | harimāṇam | ca | nāsaya || 11 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya ⁵⁰

उद्यन्तित्ययं तृचो रोगशान्त्यर्थः । तथा चानुक्रमण्यामुक्तं । अन्त्यस्तृचो रोगघ्नः ।
उपनिषदि च । युक्तं चैतत् । यस्मादेनेन तृचेन त्वग्दोषशान्तये प्रस्कण्वः
सूर्यमस्तौत्तेन तृचेन स्तुतः सूर्यस्तमृषिं रोगान्निर्गमयेत्तस्मादिदानीमपि
रोगशान्तयेऽनेन तृचेन सूर्य उपासनीयः । तदुक्तं शौनकेन । उद्यन्नद्येति मन्त्रोऽयं
सौरः पापप्रणाशनः । रोगघ्नश्च विषघ्नश्च भुक्तिमुक्तिफलप्रद इति ॥

*udyann ity ayaṃ tṛco rogaśāntyarthah | tathā cānukramaṇyām
uktaṃ | antyas tṛco rogaghnaḥ | upaniṣadi ca | yuktaṃ caitat | yasmād anena tṛcena tvagdoṣaśāntaye praskaṇvaḥ sūryam astauttena tṛcena stutaḥ sūryas tam ṛṣiṃ rogān niragamayet tasmād idānīm api rogaśāntaye 'nena tṛcena sūrya upāsanīyaḥ |
tad uktaṃ śaunakena | udyann adyeti mantrō 'yaṃ sauraḥ
pāpaprāṇāśanaḥ | rogaghnaś ca viṣaghnaś ca
bhuktimuktiphalaprada iti || ⁵¹*

Translation of this first part: "Udyann [this Rik and the two that follow] is a triad for the cessation of disease: so it is said in the Anukramaṇī, 'the last triad is disease-destroying', and in the Upaniṣad (i.e. the Upaniṣad-brāhmaṇa [?]). And this is fitting: since Praskaṇva praised the Sun with this triad for the stilling of a

50. p. 138, first part

51. The bhāṣya of Rik 11 continues from here to p. 139, with the explanation of the words; it is not yet written. The print's "astauttena" is as read, crowded [?].

skin-ailment, the Sun, so praised, led the sage out of his diseases; therefore, even now, the Sun should be worshipped with this triad for the stilling of disease. So Śaunaka says: 'this Saura mantra udyann adya destroys sin, is a destroyer of disease and of poison, and gives the fruit of enjoyment and liberation'."

Rik 50.11, continued ⁵²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, continued

हे सूर्य सर्वस्य प्रेरक मित्रमहः सर्वेषामनुकूलदीप्तियुक्त अद्यास्मिन्काले उद्यन् उदयं
गच्छन् उत्तरामुद्गततरां दिवमन्तरिक्षमारोहन् अभिमुख्येन प्राप्नुवन् । यद्वा ।
दिवमन्तरिक्षमुत्तरामारोहन् उत्कर्षेण प्राप्नुवन् । एवंविधस्त्वं मम हृद्गोमं
हृदयगतमान्तरं रोगं हरिमाणं शरीरगतकान्तिहरणशीलं बाह्यं रोगं । यद्वा । शरीरगतं
हरिद्वर्णं रोगप्राप्तं वैवर्ण्यमित्यर्थः । तदुभयमपि नाशय । मां
स्तोतारमुभयविधाद्रोगान्मोचयेत्यर्थः ॥ मित्रमहः । मित्रमनुकूलं महस्तेजो यस्यासौ
। आमन्त्रितनिघातः । उत्तरां । उदित्यनेनोपसर्गेण स्वसंस्पृष्टधात्वर्थो लक्ष्यते ।
तस्मादातिशायनिकस्तरप्रत्ययः । प्रथमपक्षेऽन्तरिक्षविशेषणत्वेन
द्रव्यप्रकर्षप्रतीतेरामू न भवति । द्वितीये त्वारोहणक्रियायाः प्रकर्षो गम्यत इति
किमेत्तिङव्ययघादाम्बुद्रव्यप्रकर्षे । पा. ८-२-१७ [?] । इति आमुः । प्रथमपक्षे
टाप्स्वरपोः पित्वादनुदात्तत्व उपसर्गस्वर एव शिष्यते । द्वितीये त्वामुत्प्रत्ययस्य सति
शिष्टत्वात्तस्यैव स्वरे प्राप्ते व्यत्ययेनाद्युदात्तत्वं । वृषादिर्वा द्रष्टव्यः । स ह्याकृतिगणः
। हृद्गोमं । वा शोकष्यत्रोगेषु । पा. ६-३-५१ । इति हृदयशब्दस्य हृदादेशः । मम । युष्मदस्मदोर्दसीत्याद्युदात्तत्वं । हरिमाणं । हृज् हरणे । जनिहृभ्यामिमनिन् । उ.
४-१५३ [?] । इत्याणादिक इमनिन्प्रत्ययः । व्यत्ययेनान्तोदात्तत्वं । यद्वा ।
हरिच्छब्दस्य वर्णवाचित्वाद्गर्णदृढादिभ्यः ष्यञ् च । पा. ५-१-१२३ । इति चकारादिमनिन्प्रत्ययः । इष्टेमेयःसु ... ॥ *he sūrya sarvasya preraka mitramahaḥ sarveṣāṃ anukūladīptiyukta adyāsmiṇ kālē udyan udayaṃ gacchan uttarāṃ udgatatarāṃ divam antarikṣam ārohan abhimukhyena prāpnuvan

| yadvā | divam antarikṣam uttarāṃ ārohan utkarṣeṇa prāpnuvan*

52. from p. 138, second paragraph of the bhāṣya

| evaṃvidhas tvaṃ mama hṛdrogaṃ hṛdayagatam āntaraṃ rogaṃ harimāṇaṃ śarīragatakāntiharaṇaśīlaṃ bāhyaṃ rogaṃ | yadvā |
 śarīragataṃ haridvarṇaṃ rogaprāptaṃ vaivarṇyam ity arthaḥ |
 tad ubhayam api nāśaya | māṃ stotāram ubhayavidhād rogān
 mocayety arthaḥ || mitramahaḥ | mitram anukūlaṃ mahas tejo yasyāsau | āmantritanighātaḥ | uttarāṃ | ud ity anenopasargeṇa
 svasaṃsprṣṭadhātvartho lakṣyate | tasmād ātiśāyanikas
 tarapratyayaḥ | prathamapakṣe 'ntarikṣaviśeṣaṇatvena
 dravyaprakarṣapratīter āmū na bhavati | dvitīye tv ārohaṇakriyāyāḥ prakarṣo gamyata iti kimettiṇavyayaghād āmvaḍṛavyaprakarṣe | pā. 8-2-17 [?] | ity āmuḥ | prathamapakṣe ṭāpsvarapoḥ pīttvād anudāttatva upasargasvara eva śīṣyate | dvitīye tv āmutpratyayasya sati śīṣṭatvāt tasyaiva svare prāpte vyatyayenādyudāttatvaṃ | vṛṣādir vā draṣṭavyaḥ | sa hy
 ākṛtigaṇaḥ | hṛdrogaṃ | vā śokaśyañrogeṣu | pā. 6-3-51 | iti
 hṛdayaśabdasya hṛdādeśaḥ | mama | yuṣmadasmador ṇasīty
 ādyudāttatvaṃ | harimāṇaṃ | hṛñ haraṇe | janihrbhyām imanin
 | u. 4-153 [?] | ity āṇādika imaninpratyayaḥ |
 vyatyayenāntodāttatvaṃ | yadvā | hariṇ śabdasya varṇavācitvād
 varṇadṛḍhādibhyaḥ śyañ ca | pā. 5-1-123 | iti cakārād imanicpratyayaḥ | iṣṭhemeyaḥsu ...⁵³

Translation: "O Sūrya, impeller of all, O mitramahaḥ, endowed with a light favourable to all: adya, now, udyan, rising, uttarāṃ divam ārohan, climbing the higher sky — or, climbing the sky ever higher, reaching it by excellence: such as you are, mama hṛdrogaṃ, my disease of the heart, an inward disease, and harimāṇaṃ, the outward disease that robs the body of its lustre — or, the yellow colour of the body, that is, the discolouration got from disease — nāśaya, destroy both: free me, the praiser, from both kinds of disease. Mitramahaḥ: 'he whose mahas, splendour, is mitram, favourable'. Uttarām: the prefix ut indicates the meaning of the root it touches; from it the superlative-type suffix tarap; in the first view, since the greatness of a thing is understood as an adjective of antarikṣa, āmu does not come; in the second, since the excellence of the act of climbing is understood, āmu (kimettiṇavyayaghād āmu advyaprakarṣe, Pā. 8-2-17 [?]) comes; and so on. Hṛdrogam: hṛd for hṛdaya by vā śokaṣyañrogeṣu (Pā. 6-3-51). Mama: initial-acute by yuṣmadasmador ṇasi. Harimāṇam: root hṛñ harāṇe; the imanin of the Uṇādi list (Uṇ. 4-153 [?]); by exchange end-acute; or, since harit denotes a colour, imanic by the ca of varṇadṛḍhādibhyaḥ śyañ ca (Pā. 5-1-123)."

53. The bhāṣya is printed in a long crowded stretch at the foot of p. 138 and, as it appears, runs over the page; in the print it ends with "iṣṭhemeyaḥsu ...ṭer iti ṭilopaḥ"; the numbers 8-2-17 and 4-153 [?], the rule-name "kimettiṇavyayaghādāmvaḍṛavyaprakarṣe", and the reading "ṭāpsvarapoḥ" are crowded. The grammar page below on uttarāṃ explains the same points at length, and it is relied on for the rule.

Pratipadārtha — "mitramahaḥ — O Sūrya, possessed of a splendour favourable to all the world; sūrya — O Sūrya, impeller of all; adya — now; udyan — rising; uttarām divam ārohan — climbing into the highest sky (the atmosphere), or climbing the atmosphere very high; mama — my; hṛdrogam — the disease in the heart (within the body); harimāṇam — the disease outside that takes away the body's beauty (lustre); or the yellow disease, which gives a ruinous colour; nāśaya — destroy."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Sūrya, with your light that is favourable to all the world, you are the impeller of all. Now, rising and climbing to the highest sky, destroy both the disease within my heart and the outward diseases of the body, which make the body yellow, such as jaundice and leprosy."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 139)

— "O Sun, rising to-day and mounting into the highest heaven you look radiant with benevolent light; remove the sickness of my heart and the yellowness (of my body)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 139–141 - udyann adya

— "it is well known that this ṛk, udyann adya, together with the next two ṛks, is used for the cure of disease. In the Anukramaṇikā too it is said 'antyas tṛco rogaghna upaniṣadi ca' (as printed), that is, that these last three ṛks of the sūkta udu tyam destroy disease. And this is fitting: since Praskaṇva, the ṛṣi of this sūkta, prayed to the Sun in these three ṛks that he remove a disease of the skin, the Sun destroyed the sage's disease. Therefore, if the Sun is prayed to even now with these three ṛks, the disease will be removed. On this matter the great sage Śaunaka says" — untranslated in the source:

उद्यन्नद्येति मन्त्रोऽयं सौरः पापप्रणाशनः । रोगघ्नश्च विषघ्नश्च भुक्तिमुक्तिफलप्रदः ॥

(Śaunaka, as the print gives it)

udyann adyeti mantra 'yaṃ sauraḥ pāpapaṇāśanaḥ | rogaghnaś ca viṣaghnaś ca bhuktimuktiphalapradaḥ || — editorial and tentative: "this Saura mantra, udyann adya, destroys sin, destroys disease and poison, and gives the fruit of enjoyment and of liberation." The Kannada author adds: "this is to say that these three ṛks, with the Sun as deity, destroy not only the sins of the one who recites them but all diseases and poisons, and give the pleasures and liberation of this world and the next. In the work called Bṛhaddevatā it is also said 'rogaghnaś tṛco 'ntyaḥ' (Bṛ. De. 5-1[?]3 as read)." — untranslated in the source:

रोगघ्नस्तु च श्रोतमः । (Bṛhaddevatā 5-1[?]3 as read [?])

rogaghnaś tṛcaś cottamaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "and the last triad is the destroyer of disease." - udyann adya — "the Sun who has now risen; rising in the lower part of the eastern quarter and climbing in order; uttarāṃ divam ārohan: going to the upper part of the heaven (the atmosphere)." - mitramahaḥ — "mitram anukūlaṃ mahas tejo yasyāsau; sarveṣāṃ anukūladiptiyuktaḥ: one who is joined with a light favourable to all, or most necessary to all." - uttarāṃ divam ārohan — "udgatatarāṃ divam ārohan:

after the rising, going higher and higher in order in the atmosphere. The idea is that the Sun, rising in the morning in the lower part of the atmosphere, comes in order to the upper part at midday." - hṛdrogam — "the disease connected with the heart." - harimāṇam — "a kind of skin disease accompanied by a yellow colour in the body; some give this word the sense of leprosy (tonṇu, 'Leprosy' [as printed in English]). The sage Praskaṇva prays to the Sun to remove such a skin disease."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵⁴ - mitramahaḥ: "mitram anukūlaṃ mahas tejo yasya sa", one whose splendour is favourable to all; in the vocative singular after mitramahas, su; asambuddhau... (the rule prohibiting lengthening) forbids the lengthening; halñyābbhyo... drops the su; s → ru, visarga: mitramahaḥ; āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19 as read) gives the all-unaccented. - uttarām: ut is an upasarga; by upasargāḥ kriyāyoge (Pā. 1-4-59 as read) the name upasarga applies only in connexion with a verb; here, there being only the prefix and no verb, we must take a root-sense connected with the prefix; the root-sense is signalled by lakṣaṇā through ut; when the excess in that signalled root-sense is wanted, tarap. The Kannada author shows that there are two ways of explaining uttarām: in the first, uttarām is an adjective of antarikṣa ("higher sky"), and then, since an excess of a thing (substance) is understood, āmu does not come after tarap, by kimettiṇavyayaghād āmu advyaprakarṣe (Pā. 8-2-17? as read [?] — as printed "5-4-11"), which prescribes āmu only where the excess does not belong to a substance; in the second, the excess is that of the action of climbing (ārohaṇa), and so āmu does come on tarap by that rule. In the first, since āmu does not come, tarap after a feminine stem ending in a takes ṭāp: uttarā; in the second case: uttarām. Both ṭāp and tarap being pit, unaccented, so the prefix's own acute alone remains: uttarām is initial-acute; in the second view, where tarap is pit and unaccented, the end-acute that the

54. pp. 140–142 — grammar pages, noted briefly

kṛt-like rule would give is by exchange initial-acute (or the word is accepted into the vṛṣādi list, an ākṛtigāṇa, where the initial acute is enjoined). - hṛdrogam: "hṛdayasya rogaḥ"; vā śokaṣyañrogeṣu (Pā. 6-3-51 as read) gives hṛd for hṛdaya before śoka, ṣyañ and roga optionally; hṛdrogam. - mama: the genitive singular ñas of asmad; tavamamau ñasi [as printed: tava mama ñasi, kevalamāmakaikakṛtraka ... (Pā. 7-2-96 as read [?])] gives mama for asmad and the ad-loss by śeṣe lopah; yuṣmadasmadbhyām ñaso 'śa (Pā. 7-1-27 as read) gives aś for ñas; ato guṇe gives pararūpa; ekādeśa udāttēnodāttaḥ would give an acute to the case-ending; but yuṣmadasmador ñasi (Pā. 6-1-211 as read [?]) gives the initial acute: mama is initial-acute. - harimāṇam: root hṛñ haraṇe, bhvādi; janiḥrbhyām imanin (Uṇ. 4-[?]53 as read [?]) gives imanin; hṛ + imanin; the in drops; guṇa since an ārdhadhātuka-named suffix; har + iman: hariman; the accusative am: harimāṇam, with ṇatva by aṭkuvāṇnumvyavāye 'pi; since imanin is nīṭ, the initial acute; by exchange, end-acute. Or, harit is a word for colour; varṇadr̥dhādibhyaḥ ṣyañ ca (Pā. 5-1-123 as read) — the ca includes imanic: harit + iman; ṭeḥ (Pā. 6-4-143 as read) drops the ṭi of the bha-named aṅga before iṣṭhan, imanic, īyasun: the it drops; hariman; accusative: harimāṇam as before. || 11 ||

original pp. 142–144

Rik 12

Samhitā-pāṭha

शुकेषु मे हरिमाणं रोपणाकासु दध्मसि । अथो हारिद्रवेषु मे हरिमाणं नि दध्मसि ॥ १२

॥

śukeṣu me harimāṇaṃ ropāṇākāsu dadhmasi | atho hāridraveṣu me harimāṇaṃ ni dadhmasi || 12 ||

Pada-pāṭha

शुकेषु । मे । हरिमाणम् । रोपणाकासु । दध्मसि । अथो इति । हरिद्रवेषु । मे । हरिमाणम् । नि । दध्मसि ॥ १२ ॥

śukeṣu | me | harimāṇam | ropañākāsu | dadhmasi | atho iti |
hāridraveṣu | me | harimāṇam | ni | dadhmasi || 12 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

मे मदीयं हरिमाणं शरीरगतं हरिद्वर्णस्य भावं शुकेषु तादृशं वर्णं कामयमानेषु पक्षिषु
तथा रोपणाकासु शारिकासु पक्षिविशेषेषु दध्मसि । स्थापयामः । अथो अपि च
हरिद्रवेषु हरितालद्रुमेषु तादृग्वर्णेषु वत्स्वपि मे मदीयं हरिमाणं नि दध्मसि ।
निदधीमहि । स च हरिमा तत्रैव सुखेनास्तामस्मान्मा बाधिष्वेत्यर्थः ॥ दध्मसि । इदन्तो मसिरिति मस इकारागमः ॥ me madīyaṃ harimāṇam śārīragataṃ haridvarṇasya bhāvaṃ śukeṣu tādrśaṃ varṇaṃ kāmaya māneṣu pakṣiṣu tathā ropañākāsu śārikāsu pakṣivīśeṣeṣu dadhmasi | sthāpayāmaḥ | atho api ca hāridraveṣu haritāladrumeṣu tādr̥gvarṇeṣu vatsv api me madīyaṃ harimāṇam ni dadhmasi | nidadhīmahi | sa ca harimā tatraiva sukhenāstām asmān mā bādhiṣveti arthaḥ || dadhmasi | idanto

masir iti masa ikārāgamaḥ || ⁵⁵

Translation: "Me, my, harimāṇam, the yellow colour (the state of the body that is yellow), śukeṣu, in parrots — birds that love such a colour — and ropañākāsu, in the śārikā birds, a kind of bird, dadhmasi, we place. Atho, and also, hāridraveṣu, in the haritāla trees, which are of such a colour, me harimāṇam ni dadhmasi, we deposit my yellowness; may it stay there in comfort, and not trouble us. Dadhmasi: idanto masiḥ, the mas takes the augment i."

Pratipadārtha — "me — my (body's); harimāṇam — the yellow colour; śukeṣu — in parrots (which love that colour); ropañākāsu — and in starlings; dadhmasi — we place (in exchange for that of my body); atho — and; hāridraveṣu — in the haritāla trees; me — my (body's); harimāṇam — yellow colour; ni dadhmasi — we deposit."

55. The print's "vatsv api" is as read; "bādhiṣva" also read, [?].

Bhāvārtha — "We place the yellow colour of my body, which is unfavourable to me, in parrots and starlings, which love that colour, and in haritāla trees."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 143)

— "Let us transfer the yellowness (of my body) to the parrots, to the starlings or to the Haridala tree."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 143 - "In the previous ṛk the sage Praskaṇva prayed to the Sun to remove the disease of his skin. In this mantra he explains in detail the method of removing the disease." - śukeṣu — "in parrots: the colour of parrots is both green and yellow. That colour, which belongs to my skin disease, is natural to parrots and the like. Therefore the sage prays to the Sun, indicating the way: that if this yellow colour caused by the disease is placed in birds like parrots, the disease of mine will be easily destroyed." - harimāṇam — "haridvarṇasya bhāvam: this skin disease of mine, with yellow colour; the yellow colour." - ropañākāsu — "in the birds called śārikā. [Printed in English:] 'Starlings'." - hāridraveṣu — "in the trees called haritāla; here it is not clear which tree haritāla is; perhaps the leaves of that tree are yellow in colour. Haritāla may also be said to be the arasina [turmeric]."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵⁶ - dadhmasi: root ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ, juhotyādi; laṭ, first person plural mas; juhotyādibhyaḥ śluḥ (Pā. 2-4-75 as read) gives ślu as the vikaraṇa; ślau (Pā. 6-1-10 as read) gives doubling: dhā + dhā + mas; hrasvaḥ (Pā. 7-4-59 as read) shortens the reduplicative syllable; abhyāse carca (Pā. 8-4-54 as read) gives the jaś: dadhā + mas; śnābhyastayor ātaḥ (Pā. 6-4-112 as read) drops the ā of the root when the abhyasta name applies: dadh + mas; s → ru and visarga are obtained; idanto masi (Pā. 7-1-46 as read) — the mas takes an i-augment... ⁵⁷

Rik 50.12, continued ⁵⁸

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā, continued ⁵⁹ - dadhmasi : idanto masiḥ (Pā. 7-1-46 as read) — the i in this sūtra's wording stands for pronunciation: mas takes an i-augment as being of the form of an i-ending (antyāvayava); hence the ru, visarga that would come are set aside and masi becomes the suffix: dadhmasi; because the tiṅ comes after a non-verb, tiṅ atīṇaḥ gives the all-unaccented: dadhmasi is all-unaccented. || 12 ||

original pp. 144–147

Rik 13

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

उदगादयमादित्यो विश्वेन सहसा सह । द्विषन्तं मह्यं रन्ध्यन्मो अहं द्विषते रधम् ॥ १३ ॥

*ud agād ayam ādityo viśvena sahasā saha | dviṣantaṃ mahyaṃ
randhayan mo ahaṃ dviṣate radham || 13 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

उत् । अगात् । अयम् । आदित्यः । विश्वेन । सहसा । सह । द्विषन्तम् । मह्यम् । रन्ध्यन् । मो इति । अहम् । द्विषते । रधम् ॥ १३ ॥

*ut | agāt | ayam | ādityaḥ | viśvena | sahasā | saha | dviṣantaṃ |
mahyam | randhayan | mo iti | ahaṃ | dviṣate | radham || 13 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

57. The rest of this grammar page, and the whole of Rik 13 with the close of Sūkta 50, are on pp. 143–146; not yet written.

58. from p. 143 foot, p. 144

59. p. 144 — grammar page, noted briefly

आयं पुरोवर्त्यादित्योऽदितेः पुत्रः सूर्यो विश्वेन सहसा सर्वेण बलेन सहोदगात् । उदयं
 प्राप्तवान् । किं कुर्वन् । मह्यं द्विषन्तं रन्धयन् । मम ओपद्रवकारिणं हिंसन् । अपि
 चाहं द्विषतेऽनिष्टकारिणे रोगायु नो रधं । नैव हिंसां करोमि । सूर्य एव
 अस्मदनिष्टकारिणं रोगं विनाशयेदित्यर्थः ॥ अगात् । एतेर्लुङ्ङिणो गा लुङीति
 गादेशः । गातिस्थेति सिचो लुक् । आदित्यः । दित्यदित्यादित्यपत्युत्तरपदाण्यः ।
 पा. ४-१-८५ । इति ण्यप्रत्ययः । रन्धयन् । रध हिंसासंराद्धयोः । ण्यन्ताल्लटः शतृ
 । रधिजभोरचि । पा. ७-१-६१ । इति णौ धातोरनुमागमः । नो । मा उ
 निपातद्वयसमुदायो न्यैवेत्यस्यार्थः । ओत् । पा. १-१-१५ । इति प्रगृह्यत्वे प्लुतप्रगृह्या
 अचीति प्रकृतिभावः । द्विषते । शतुरनुम इति विभक्तेरुदात्तत्वं । रधं । रधेर्लुङि
 पुषादित्वात् च्लेरडादेशः । रधिजभोरचीति धातोरनुम् । अनिदितामित्यनुषङ्गलोपः । न माङ्योगे इत्यडभावः ॥

āyaṃ purovartyādityo 'diteḥ putraḥ sūryo viśvena sahasā sarveṇa
 balena sahodagāt | udayaṃ prāptavān | kiṃ kurvan | mahyaṃ dviṣantaṃ randhayan | mama opadravakāriṇaṃ himsan | api
 cāhaṃ dviṣate 'niṣṭakāriṇe rogāyu no radhaṃ | naiva himsāṃ karomi | sūrya eva asmadaniṣṭakāriṇaṃ rogaṃ vināśayed ity arthaḥ || agāt | eter luṅ iṇo gā luṅīti gādeśaḥ | gātisthe ti sico luk
 | ādityaḥ | dityadityādityapatyuttarapadān ṇyaḥ | pā. 4-1-85 | iti ṇyapratyayaḥ | randhayan | radha himsāsamarāddhyoḥ | ṇyantāl
 laṭaḥ śatr | radhijabhor aci | pā. 7-1-61 | iti ṇau dhātor num āgamaḥ | no | mā u nipātadvayasamudāyo naiveti asyārthe | oṭ |
 pā. 1-1-15 | iti pragṛhyatve plutapragṛhyā aceti prakṛtibhāvaḥ |
 dviṣate | śatur anuma iti vibhakter udāttatvaṃ | radhaṃ | radher
 luṅi puṣāditvāt cler aṇādeśaḥ | radhijabhor aceti dhātor num |
 anidītām ity anuṣaṅgalopaḥ | na mānyoge ity aḍābhāvaḥ || ⁶⁰

Translation: "This Āditya before us, the son of Aditi, Sūrya, viśvena sahasā saha, with all his might, ud agāt, has risen. Doing what? Mahyam dviṣantaṃ randhayan, injuring my hater, the one who makes trouble for me. And also aham dviṣate, I, to the hater,

60. The printed first word is "āyaṃ" for "ayaṃ" in the Sanskrit gloss and the reading "rogāyu no radhaṃ" [print: "rogā yu no ratham"] is crowded: It is given as read, [?]. The Pāṇini numbers, as read.

the doer of ill, to the disease, no radham, do not do harm: let the Sun himself destroy the disease that does us ill — this is the sense. Agāt: luṇ of i, gā by iṇo gā luṇi; luk of sic by gātisthā.... Ādityaḥ: ṇya after aditi, by dityadityādityapatyuttarapadāṇ ṇyaḥ. Randhayan: root radha hiṃsāsaṃrāddhyoḥ; śatr after laṭ with ṇic; num by radhijabhor aci. No: the combination of the two nipātas mā and u, in the sense of na eva; pragr̥hya by oṭ, so the prakṛtibhāva by plutapragr̥hyā aci. Dviṣate: the case-ending is acute by śatur anumah.... Radham: aorist of radh, with aṇ because the root is in the puṣādi list; num by radhijabhor aci; the nasal dropped; no aṭ by na mānyoge."

Pratipadārtha — "ayam ādityaḥ — this son of Aditi, Sūrya, who is before us; viśvena sahasā saha — together with all his strength; mahyam — for me; dviṣantam — the enemy in the form of disease; randhayan — destroying; ud agāt — has risen; aham — I; dviṣate — to the enemy who does me harm in the form of disease; no radham — do no harm. (Let the Sun himself destroy the enemy for my sake.)"

Bhāvārtha

— "This Sun, the son of Aditi, who is before us, has risen with all his strength, destroying the enemy in the form of disease that is in me. I have no power to destroy that enemy. Let the Sun himself destroy it."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 145)

— "This Aditya has risen with all his might (glory) destroying my adversary, for I am unable to resist my enemy."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 145 - ayam ādityaḥ — "this Sun, that is, the Sun who is visible before me; the Sun who has now risen." - viśvena sahasā saha — "with all strength, that is, with all rays, with abundant radiance: 'with all his glory' [printed in English]. The word sahas is read among the names of strength (Ni. 2-[?]9 as read)." - mahyam dviṣantam randhayan — "causing the enemies who do me harm to be injured; Skandasvāmin explains the word randhayan as 'radhyatir vaśagamane', 'to make subject', and 'mama vaśaṃ nayann ity arthaḥ', that is, 'bringing my enemies under my control'." — untranslated in the source:

रथ्यतिर्वशगमने । मम वशं नयन्नित्यर्थः । (Skandasvāmin, as the print gives it)

radhyatir vaśagamane | mama vaśaṃ nayann ity arthaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "radhyati is in the sense of 'bringing under control'; the sense is 'leading (them) under my control'." - mo aham dviṣate radham — "asya bhagavataḥ prasādān nāhaṃ śatror vaśaṃ gaccheyam": 'by the grace of this blessed one may I not come under the power of my enemy' — the meaning, "that I may not be made subject to enemies", is also fitting. The commentator explains these words as 'I would not injure my enemies in the form of diseases; let the Sun himself destroy them'." — untranslated in the source:

अस्य भगवतः प्रसादान्नाहं शत्रोर्वशं गच्छेयम् । (Skandasvāmin, as the print gives it)

asya bhagavataḥ prasādān nāhaṃ śatror vaśaṃ gaccheyam | — editorial and tentative: "by the grace of this blessed one, may I not go under the power of an enemy."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶¹ - agāt: root in gatau, adādi; luṇ, third person singular tip; itaś ca drops the i; ino gā luṇi (Pā. 2-4-45 as read) gives gā for in when luṇ follows; cleḥ sic; the aṭ augment; a + gā + s + t; gātisthāghupābhūbhyaḥ sicaḥ parasmaipadeṣu (Pā. 2-4-77 as read) drops the sic: agāt. - ādityaḥ: "aditeḥ apatyam pumān", a son of Aditi; dityadityādityapatyuttarapadāṇ ṇyaḥ (Pā. 4-1-85 as read) gives ṇya after diti, aditi, āditya and words ending in pati in the sense of "offspring", as an exception to aṇ; aditi + ya,

61. pp. 145–147 — grammar pages, noted briefly

being ṇit, taddhiteṣv acām ādeḥ gives vṛddhi to the first vowel; yasyeti ca drops the final i before ya: āditya; end-acute by the suffix-accent. - randhayan: root radha hiṃsāsaṃrāddhyoḥ, divādi; hetumati ca (Pā. 3-1-26 as read) gives ṇic when the sense is "causing"; rādhi is the root, ṇic being in the sanādi list (sanādyantā dhātavaḥ); laṭaḥ śatṛśānacau gives śatṛ; radh + i + at; radhijabhor aci (Pā. 7-1-61 as read) gives num to radh and jabh before an ac-initial suffix; being mit, num comes after the last vowel: randh; since a is not the penultimate of randh (the nasal intervenes), no vṛddhi; guṇa, ay: randhayat, a stem in t; num for the śatṛ (ugit) in the nominative singular; halīyābbhyo... drops the su; the final conjunct drops (saṃyogāntasya lopah), and since that is asiddha, nalopah prātipadikāntasya does not apply the second time: randhayan. - mo: the union of the two nipātas mā and u, in the sense of eva ("indeed not"); mo + aham: avādeśa is obtained, but oṭ (Pā. 1-1-15 as read) gives the pragr̥hya name to an o-ending nipāta; plutapragr̥hyā aci nityam (Pā. 6-1-125 as read) makes the pragr̥hya keep its form before a vowel: mo aham. - dviṣate: root dviṣa aprītau, adādi; śatṛ, stem dviṣat; dative singular dviṣate; śatur anumo nadyajādī (Pā. 6-1-173 as read): a vowel-initial case-ending after a śatṛ stem without num is acute; so the e of dviṣate is acute; dviṣate is end-acute. - radham: root radha hiṃsāsaṃrāddhyoḥ, divādi; luṇ; sic, then for cli the substitute aṇ (puṣādidyutādīlṛditaḥ parasmaipadeṣu, Pā. 3-1-55 as read) since the root is in the puṣādi list; radhijabhor aci gives num to the root before the ac-initial aṇ: randh + a; anidītām hala upadhāyāḥ kṛiti drops the nasal because of ṇit-ness; na mānyoge (Pā. 6-4-74 as read) forbids aṭ where māṇ is connected: here mo (= mā + u) is connected, so no aṭ; radh + a + am: radham; being after a non-verb, the all-unaccented by tiṇ atīṇaḥ does not apply since this is aṇ — the print says that the aṇ-form is end-acute. || 13 ||

Close of Sūkta 50. After the grammar of Rik 13, at the foot of printed p. 147, a short printed rule closes the sūkta; no closing sentence is printed. The sūkta (ud u tyam jātavedasam, thirteen Riks to Sūrya) therefore occupies printed pp. 106–147 (PDF 122–163). Below the rule, on the same leaf (p. 147 = PDF 163), stands the large title "aivattomdaneya sūktavu" ("the fifty-first sūkta"), so the contents table's page for Sūkta 51 (p. 147) is confirmed.

Summary of Sūkta 50. Thirteen Riks to Sūrya, all written in full. Rik 1 says the Sun's horses or rays carry him aloft for all to see; Rik 2 says the stars flee with the nights like thieves at his coming; Rik 3 compares his rays to blazing fires seen among men; Rik 4 praises him as the swift crosser of the sky, visible to all, the maker of light (and in a second sense, as the Supreme Self who ferries men across saṃsāra); Rik 5 says he rises facing the Maruts, men and heaven, that all may see him; Rik 6 asks to praise the light by which he looks on the world; Rik 7 says he travels the middle region, measuring days and nights; Rik 8 describes his seven harit horses and his flame-hair; Rik 9, his seven self-yoked mares; Rik 10 (the first Anuṣṭubh) says that, seeing the highest light, we have reached the Sun; Riks 11–13 (the triad for the cure of disease) pray that he rising to the highest sky destroy the sickness of the heart and the yellowness of the body, transfer the yellowness to parrots, starlings and the haritāla tree, and destroy the enemy-disease that the poet cannot resist. All thirteen Riks are written in full. The doubtful parts are the Anukramaṇikā word in the introduction, the many reference numerals (all "as read [?]"). the Nirukta, Taittirīya and Śatapatha citations (glosses editorial and tentative), the unnumbered Yāska passage in Rik 7, the crowded bhāṣya tails of Riks 9 and 11, and the outlined (not transcribed) grammar discussions (uttarām's āmu, naptyaḥ, pratyāñ).⁶²

62. First sūkta of the Tenth Anuvāka.

Sūkta 51 — "abhi tyaṃ meṣam"

original p. 147

Fifty-first Sūkta ¹

Pages 147–148 (PDF 163–164) — Sāyaṇa's introduction, the Kannada anuvāda, and the heading

Sāyaṇa's introduction ²

दशमेऽनुवाके सप्त सूक्तानि । तत्राभि त्यमिति पञ्चदशर्चं प्रथमं सूक्तं । आश्रेहिसमाचक्षसे
[?] अङ्गिरा इन्द्रसदृशं पुत्रमात्मनः कामयमानो देवता उपासां चक्रे । तस्य सव्याख्येन
पुत्ररूपेणेन्द्र एव स्वयं जज्ञे जगति मत्स्याल्यः [?] कश्चिन्नाभूदिति । स सव्य आङ्गिरसोऽस्य
सूक्तस्य ऋषिः । चतुर्दशीपञ्चदशयौ त्रिष्टुभौ । त्रिष्टुब्बन्तस्य सूक्तस्य शिष्टा जगत्य इति
परिभाषयोवशिष्टास्त्रयोदशर्चो जगत्यः । इन्द्रो देवता । तदेतत्सर्वमनुक्रमण्यामुक्तं । अभि त्यं
पञ्चोना सव्यो द्वित्रिष्टुब्बन्तमङ्गिरा इन्द्रतुल्यं पुत्रमिच्छन्भ्यध्यायेत्सव्य इतीन्द्र एवास्य
पुत्रोऽजायतेति ॥ अतिरात्रे प्रथमे रात्रिपर्याये होतुः शस्त्र इदं सूक्तं शंसनीयं । अतिरात्रे
पर्यायाणामिति खण्डे सूत्रितं । अभि त्यं मेषमध्वर्यवो भरतेन्द्राय सोममिति याज्या । आ. ६-४
[?] । इति । गवामयनस्य मध्यभूते विषुवत्संज्ञके ऽहन्यपि निष्केवल्ये इदं सूक्तं शंसनीयं ।
तथा च सूत्रितं । यस्तिग्मभृङ्गो ऽभि त्वं मेषमिन्द्रस्य नु वीर्याणीत्येतस्मिन्नैन्द्रो निविदं शस्त्वा । आ. ८-६ [?] । इति ॥

1. large Kannada title line on p. 147: "aivattomdaneya sūktavu"

2. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; words marked [?] are crowded

daśame 'nuvāke sapta sūktāni | tatrābhi tyam iti pañcadaśarcaṃ prathamam sūktam | āśrehisamācakṣase [?] aṅgirā indrasadṛśam
 putram ātmanaḥ kāmaya māno devatā upāsām cakre | tasya savyākhyena putrarūpeṇendra eva svayam jajñe jagati matsyālyah [?] kaścin nābhūd iti | sa savya aṅgirasō 'sya sūktasya ṛṣiḥ |
 caturdaśīpañcadaśyau triṣṭubhau | triṣṭubbantasya sūktasya śiṣṭā
 jagatya iti paribhāṣayovaśiṣṭās trayodaśarco jagatyaḥ | indro
 devatā | tad etat sarvam anukramaṇyām uktam | abhi tyam pañconā savyo dvitriṣṭubbantam aṅgirā indratulyam putram icchann abhyadhyāyet savya itīndra evāsya putro jāyate || atirātre prathame rātriparyāye hotuḥ śāstra idaṃ sūktam śaṃsanīyam | atirātre paryāyāṇām iti khaṇḍe sūtritam | abhi
 tyam meṣam adhvaryavo bharatendrāya somam iti yājyā | ā. 6-4
 [?] | iti | gavāmayanasya madhyabhūte viṣuvatsamjñake 'hany api
 niṣkevalye idaṃ sūktam śaṃsanīyam | tathā ca sūtritam | yas tigmaśṛṅgo 'bhi tvam meṣam indrasya nu vīryāṇīty etasmin naindrīm nividaṃ śastvā | ā. 8-6 [?] | iti || ³

Translation ⁴: "In the tenth anuvāka there are seven sūktas. Of these abhi tyam is the first, of fifteen ṛks. [The legend, crowded:] the sage Aṅgiras, desiring a son like Indra, worshipped the gods; thereupon Indra himself was born as a son called Savya, since there was no one like him in the world. That Savya Aṅgiras is the ṛṣi of this sūkta. The fourteenth and fifteenth are Triṣṭubh; by the convention 'the rest of a sūkta that ends in Triṣṭubh is Jagatī' the other thirteen are Jagatī. The deity is Indra. All this is said in the Anukramaṇī: 'abhi tyam pañconā savyo dvitriṣṭubbantam — Aṅgiras, desiring a son like Indra, meditated; Indra himself was born his son, Savya'. In the Atirātra, in the first night-session, this sūkta is to be recited in the hotṛ's śāstra; it is prescribed in the section 'atirātre paryāyāṇām': 'abhi tyam meṣam adhvaryavo

3. Crowded words in the print: "āśrehisamācakṣase" and "matsyālyah" in the legend, which cannot be made into sense; the Āśvalāyana numerals. They are given as read, [?]; the sense of the legend is from the Kannada anuvāda below.

4. editorial and tentative

bharendrāya somam, the yājyā' (Āśv. 6-4 [?]). On the Viṣuvat day, the midday of the Gavāmayana, this sūkta is to be recited in the niṣkevalya śāstra; so it is prescribed: 'yas tigmaśṛṅgo, abhi tvaṃ meṣam, indrasya nu vīryāṇi: in this, having recited the Aindra nivid' (Āśv. 8-6 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada), pp. 147–148 — "From this sūkta the tenth anuvāka of the first maṇḍala begins. In this anuvāka there are seven sūktas (51–57). Of them the first, abhi tyaṃ meṣam, has fifteen ṛks. Here a legend (itihāsa) is told. Once the sage named Aṅgiras, wishing to have a son equal to Indra, worshipped the gods. Then Indra, thinking 'there must be no one in the world equal to me', himself arose for that sage in the form of a son named Savya. This Savya, the son of Aṅgiras, is the ṛṣi of this sūkta. The fourteenth and fifteenth ṛks of this sūkta are in the Triṣṭubh metre; the remaining ṛks are in Jagatī; Indra is the deity. All this is said in the Anukramaṇikā thus: 'abhi tyaṃ pañconā savyo dvitriṣṭubbantam aṅgirā indratulyaṃ putram icchann abhyadhyāyet savya itīndra evāsya putro 'jāyata'. This sūkta is used for the śāstra mantras that the hotṛ priest must recite in the first night-course of the sacrifice called Atirātra; this is explained in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta-sūtra in the section 'atirātre paryāyāṇām' by the sūtra 'abhi tyaṃ meṣam adhvaryavo bharendrāya somam iti yājyā' (Ā. 6-4). And in the sacrifice called Gavāmayana, on the midday day called Viṣuvat, this sūkta is used for the niṣkevalya śāstra mantras, as explained by the sūtra 'yas tigmaśṛṅgo 'bhi tvaṃ meṣam indrasya nu vīryāṇīty etasmin naindrīṃ nividam śastvā' (Ā. 8-6)."

॥ ॐ ॥

सूक्त — ५१

॥ मण्डल — १ ॥ अनुवाक — १० ॥ सूक्त — ५१ ॥ ॥ अष्टक — १ ॥ अध्याय — ४ ॥
वर्ग — ९, १०, ११ ॥ ॥ सूक्तदल्लिरुव ऋक्संख्यै — १५ ॥ ॥ ऋषिः — सव्य आङ्गिरसः
॥ ॥ देवता — इन्द्रः ॥ ॥ छन्दः — १-१३ जगती । १४-१५ त्रिष्टुप् ॥

sūkta 51 | maṇḍala 1 | anuvāka 10 | aṣṭaka 1 | adhyāya 4 | varga 9, 10, 11 | ṛks 15 | ṛṣi: Savya Āṅgīrasa | devatā: Indra | chandas: Riks 1–13 Jagatī, Riks 14–15 Triṣṭubh. ⁵

original pp. 148–153

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ⁶

अभि त्यं मेषं पुरुहूतमृग्मियमिन्द्रं गीर्भिर्मदता वस्वो अर्णवम् । यस्य द्यावो न विचरन्ति मानुषा भुजे मंहिष्ठमभि विप्रमर्चत ॥ १ ॥ abhi tyam meṣam puruhūtam ṛgmiyam indram gīrbhir madatā

vasvo arṇavam | yasya dyāvo na vicaranti mānuṣā bhuje maṃhiṣṭham abhi vipram arcata || 1 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अभि । त्यम् । मेषम् । पुरुहूतम् । ऋग्मियम् । इन्द्रम् । गीःऽभिः । मदत । वस्वः । अर्णवम्
। यस्य । द्यावः । न । विऽचरन्ति । मानुषा । भुजे । मंहिष्ठम् । अभि । विप्रम् । अर्चत ॥ १ ॥

abhi | tyam | meṣam | puru-hūtam | ṛgmiyam | indram | gīh-bhiḥ
| madata | vasvaḥ | arṇavam | yasya | dyāvaḥ | na | vi-caranti |
mānuṣā | bhuje | maṃhiṣṭham | abhi | vipram | arcata || 1 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

त्यं प्रसिद्धं मेषं शत्रुभिः स्पर्धमानं । यद्वा । कण्वपुत्रं मेधातिथिं यजमानमिन्द्रो
मेषरूपेणागत्य तदीयं सोमं पपौ । स ऋषिस्तं मेष इत्यवोचत् । अत इदानीमपि मेष
इतीन्द्रोऽभिधीयते । मेधातिथेर्मेषोऽपेति सुब्रह्मण्यामन्त्रैकदेशस्य व्याख्यानरूपं
ब्राह्मणमेवमाप्नायते । मेधातिथिं हि कण्वायनिं मेषो भूत्वाजहारेति । आगत्य
सोममपहृतवानित्यर्थः । पुरुहूतं पुरुभिर्यजमानैराहूतं ऋग्मियमृग्भिर्वीर्यक्रियमाणं
स्तूयमानमित्यर्थः । स्तुत्या हि देवता विक्रीयते । यद्वा । ऋग्भिर्मयीयते शब्दत इति

5. The ṛṣi is thus Savya Āṅgīrasa, in the heading and in the Anukramaṇī; the "Nodhas" of the preface and of the earlier flag does not occur on these pages. The varga numerals are small and read with doubt.

6. accents not reproduced

ऋग्मीः । तं । वस्वो अर्णवं धनानामावासभूमिं समुद्रमिवेन्द्रं हे स्तोतारो गीर्भिः
 स्तुतिभिरभि मदत । अभिमुख्येन हर्षं प्रापयत । यस्येन्द्रस्य कर्माणि मानुषा
 मनुष्याणां हितानि विचरन्ति विशेषेण वर्तन्ते । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । द्यावो न । यथा
 सूर्यरश्मयः सर्वेषां हितकराः । भुजे भोगाय मंहिष्ठमतिशयेन प्रवृद्धं विप्रं मेधाविनं
 तथाविधमिन्द्रमभ्यर्चत । अभिपूजयत ॥ मेषं मिषं स्पर्धायां । इगुपधलक्षणे के प्राप्ते
 देवसेनमेषादयः पचादिषु द्रष्टव्या इति वचनादच्यप्रत्ययः । ऋग्मियं । तस्य विकार
 इत्यर्थं एकाचो नित्यं मयेटमिच्छन्ति । का. ४-३-१५४ [?] । इति मयट्प्रत्ययः ।
 अकारस्यैकारश्छान्दसः । प्रत्ययस्वरः । यद्वा । माङ् माने शब्दे च । ऋग्भिर्मीयत
 इति ऋग्मीः । क्विपि वलि लोपात्पूर्वमेव परत्वात् घुमास्थेतीत्त्वं । अचि श्नुधात्विति
 इयडादेशः । कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं । मदत । मदी हर्षे । हेतुमतीति णिच् । मदी
 हर्षग्लपनयोरिति घटादिषु पाठाद्धर्षार्थे वर्तमानस्य घटादयो मितः । धा. १-१-१ [?]
 । इति मित्त्वे सति मितां ह्रस्वः । पा. ६-४-१२ । इति ह्रस्वत्वं ।
 लोणमध्यमपुरुषबहुवचने शपि छन्दस्युभयथेत्यार्धधातुकत्वात्गेरनिटीति णिलोपः ।
 तशब्दस्य सार्वधातुकमपिदिति डित्त्वे ऋचि तुनुधमक्षुतङ्कुत्रोरुष्याणामिति दीर्घः । वस्वः । जस्यागमानुशासनस्यानित्यत्वान्नुमभावः । जसादिषु छन्दसि वावचनं । पा.
 २-३-१०९-१ [?] । इति वचनाद्धेर्ङिति । पा. २-३-१११ [?] । इति गुणाभावे यणादेशः । अर्णवं । अर्णः उदकमस्मिन्नस्तीत्यर्णवः समुद्रः । अर्णसो लोपश्च । का.
 ५-२-१०९-३ [?] । इति मत्वर्थीयो वप्रत्ययः सलोपश्च । तेन शब्देन
 जलाश्रयवाचिनाश्रयमात्रं लक्ष्यते । प्रत्ययस्वरः । विचरन्ति । चर गत्यर्थः ।
 अदुपदेशाल्लसार्वधातुकानुदात्तत्वे धातुस्वरः । तिङि चोदात्तवतीति गतिरनुदात्ता ।
 यद्धृत्ययोगादनिघातः । मानुषा । शेश्छन्दसि बहुलमिति शेलोपः । भुजे । भुज
 पालनाभ्यवहारयोः । संपदादिलक्षणो भावे क्विप् । सावेकाच इति विभक्तेरुदात्तत्वं
 । मंहिष्ठं । महि वहि वृद्धौ । अतिशयेन मंहिता मंहिष्ठः । तुश्छन्दसीतीष्ठन्प्रत्ययः ।
 तुरिष्ठेमेयःस्विति तृलोपः । निश्त्वाद्दुदात्तत्वं । अर्चत । अर्च पूजायां । भौवादिकः ॥

tyaṃ prasiddhaṃ meṣam śatrubhiḥ spardhamānaṃ | yadvā | kaṇvaputraṃ medhātithiṃ yajamānaṃ indro meṣarūpeṇāgatya
 tadīyaṃ somaṃ papau | sa ṛṣis taṃ meṣa ity avocat | ata idānīm
 api meṣa itīndro 'bhidhīyate | medhātither meṣo 'peti subrahmanyāmantraikadeśasya vyākhyānarūpaṃ brāhmaṇam
 evam āmnāyate | medhātithiṃ hi kaṇvāyaniṃ meṣo bhūtvājahāreti | āgatya somaṃ apahr̥tavān ity arthaḥ |

puruhūtaṃ purubhir yajamānair āhūtaṃ ṛgmiyam ṛgbhir vīryakriyamāṇaṃ stūyamānam ity arthaḥ | stutyā hi devatā vikrīyate | yadvā | ṛgbhir mīyate śabdyata iti ṛgmīḥ | taṃ | vasvo arṇavaṃ dhanānām āvāsabhūmiṃ samudram ivendraṃ he stotāro gīrbhiḥ stutibhir abhi madata | ābhimukhyena harṣaṃ prāpayata
 | yasyendrasya karmāṇi mānuṣā manuṣyāṇāṃ hitāni vicaranti viśeṣeṇa vartante | tatra dr̥ṣṭāntaḥ | dyāvo na | yathā sūryaraśmayah sarveṣāṃ hitakarāḥ | bhuje bhogāya maṃhiṣṭham atīṣayena pravṛddhaṃ vipraṃ medhāvinam tathāvidham indram abhyarcata | abhipūjayata || meṣaṃ miṣa spardhāyāṃ | igupadhalakṣaṇe ke prāpte devasenameṣādayaḥ pacādiṣu draṣṭavyā iti vacanād ac pratyayaḥ | ṛgmiyam | tasya vikāra ity arthe ekāco nityaṃ mayeṭam icchanti | kā. 4-3-154 [?] | iti
 mayatpratyayaḥ | akārasyaikāraś chāndasaḥ | pratyayasvaraḥ |
 yadvā | māñ māne śabde ca | ṛgbhir mīyata ity ṛgmīḥ | kvīpi vali
 lopāt pūrvam eva paratvāt ghumāstheti ittvam | aci śnudhātv iti iyañādeśaḥ | kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratvam | madata | madī
 harṣe | hetumati ṇic | madī harṣaglapanayor iti ghaṭādiṣu pāṭhād harṣārthe vartamānasya ghaṭādayo mitaḥ | dhā. 1-9-1 [?] | iti mittve sati mitāṃ hrasvaḥ | pā. 6-4-92 | iti hrasvatvam | loṇmadhyamapurūṣabahuvacane śapi chandasy ubhayatherty ārdhadhātukatvāt ṇer aniṭīti ṇilopaḥ | taśabdasya sārva dhātukam apid iti nittve ṛci tunughamakṣutaṅkutroruṣyāṇām iti dīrghaḥ |
 vasvaḥ | jasy āgamānuśāsanasyānityatvān numabhāvaḥ |
 jasādiṣu chandasi vāvacanaṃ | pā. 2-3-109-1 [?] | iti vacanād gher
 ṇiti | pā. 2-3-111 [?] | iti guṇābhāve yañādeśaḥ | arṇavaṃ | arṇaḥ udakam asminn astīty arṇavaḥ samudraḥ | arṇaso lopaś ca | kā.
 5-2-109-3 [?] | iti matvarthīyo vapratyayaḥ salopaś ca | tena
 śabdena jalāśrayavācināśrayamātraṃ lakṣyate | pratyayasvaraḥ |
 vicaranti | cara gatyarthaḥ | adupadeśāl
 lasārva dhātukānudāttatve dhātusvaraḥ | tiṇi codāttavatīti gatir
 anudāttā | yadvṛttayogād anighātaḥ | mānuṣā | śeś chandasi bahulam iti śer lopaḥ | bhuje | bhuja pālanābhyavahārayoḥ |
 sampadādīlakṣaṇo bhāve kvīp | sāvekāca iti vibhakter udāttatvam

| maṁhiṣṭham | mahi vahi vṛddhau | atiśayena maṁhitā
maṁhiṣṭhaḥ | tuś chandasīti iṣṭhanpratyayaḥ | turiṣṭhemeyaḥsv
iti tṛlopaḥ | nitvād ādyudāttatvaṁ | arcata | arca pūjāyām |
bhauvādikaḥ || ⁷

Translation: "Tyam, that well-known, meṣam, ram, one that contends (spardhamānam) with enemies; or: Indra, coming in the form of a ram to the sacrificer Medhātithi, son of Kaṇva, drank his Soma; the sage called him 'ram'; hence even now Indra is called Meṣa; so the Brāhmaṇa runs, explaining a part of the Subrahmaṇyā mantra: 'for as a ram he carried off Medhātithi, the Kāṇvāyana' — meaning he came and took away the Soma. Puruhūtam, called by many sacrificers; ṛgmiyam, praised, celebrated, by ṛks — for a deity is, as it were, bought by praise; or ṛgmī, 'he who is measured (spoken of) by ṛks'. O praisers, vasvaḥ arṇavam, the ocean of wealth, the dwelling-place of riches like the sea — indram, Indra, gīrbhiḥ abhi madata, gladden with hymns, make glad, facing him. Yasya, of which Indra, karmāṇi, the deeds, mānuṣā, beneficial to men, vicaranti, range abroad; the comparison dyāvo na, as the Sun's rays are beneficial to all. Bhujē, for enjoyment, maṁhiṣṭham, exceedingly grown great, vipram, wise: such an Indra abhi arcata, worship. Meṣam: root miṣa spardhāyām; ac by the note that devasena, meṣa and the like are to be seen among the pacādi words. Ṛgmiyam: 'a modification of it': mayat after a one-vowel word (Kāś. 4-3-154 [?]); e for a is Vedic. Or: root mān māne śabde ca, 'ṛgbhir mīyate'. Madata: root madī harṣe, with ṇic in the causative; it is in the ghaṭādi list and so mit; shortening by mitām hrasvaḥ (Pā. 6-4-92); in the imperative second plural the ṇi drops; the lengthening in the ṛk by ṛci tunugha.... Vasvaḥ: num does not come in jas; in the Chandas jasādi options (Pā. 2-3-109 vārttika [?]). Arṇavam: 'in which there is arṇas, water'; va in the possessive sense, with loss of s; by the word, which means the receptacle of water, mere 'support' is indicated. Vicaranti: root cara, the sense 'go'; gati unaccented by tiṇi codāttavati; no all-unaccented, by the yad-connexion. Bhuje: root bhuja pālanābhyavahārayoḥ; kvip in the abstract; case-ending acute by sāvekāca. Maṃhiṣṭham: root mahi vahi vrddhau; iṣṭhan by tuś chandasi; the ṭṛ drops by turiṣṭhemeyaḥsu; initial-acute because nit. Arcata: root arca pūjāyām."

7. Crowded in the print: the Kāśikā numbers 4-3-154 and 5-2-109-3, the Dhātupāṭha number, "nitvād", and the line "ṛgmiyam ... ṛgmīḥ" which gives two derivations; as read, [?]. The Pada prints ṛgmiyam as one word.

Pratipadārtha — "yasya — of which Indra; dyāvo na — like the rays of the Sun; mānuṣā — (the deeds), beneficial to men; vicaranti — spread everywhere; tyam — that well-known; meṣam — fighter with enemies, or one who is in the form of a ram; puruhūtam — called by many sacrificers; ṛgmiyam — praised or called by ṛks; vasvaḥ arṇavam — like an ocean for riches, a support; indram — Indra; gīrbhiḥ — with words of praise; abhi madata — gladden, facing him; bhuje — to enjoy (prosperity); maṃhiṣṭham — exceedingly grown; vipram — the wise Indra; abhi arcata — worship on every side."

Bhāvārtha — "The deeds of Indra spread everywhere, like the rays of the Sun, for the good of men. So known, he is a fighter with enemies, or one who took the form of a ram; he is called by many sacrificers, praised by ṛks, and a support of riches like an ocean. Gladden that Indra with words of praise. Worship that exceedingly grown, wise Indra on every side, in order to enjoy prosperity."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 150)

— "Animate with praises that ram (Indra) who is adored by many, who is gratified by hymns and is an ocean of wealth ; whose good deeds spread abroad for the benefit of mankind ; Worship the wise and powerful Indra for the enjoyment of prosperity."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 150–151 - tyam — "this word has the sense of tad, 'that'; 'that well-known'." - meṣam — "miṣa spardhāyām: contending with enemies; or the commentator gives a former legend: Medhātithi, son of Kaṇva, was performing a sacrifice when Indra came in the form of a ram, drank the Soma prepared there; so the sage, ṛṣi of this sūkta, Medhātithi, praised Indra as 'ram'. The Brāhmaṇa sentence supports this, the commentator says" — untranslated in the source:

मेधातिथिं हि कण्वायनिं मेषो भूत्वाजहार । (Brāhmaṇa, the print gives no reference)

medhātithiṃ hi kaṇvāyaniṃ meṣo bhūtvājahāra | — editorial and tentative: "for, becoming a ram, he carried off Medhātithi, the Kāṇvāyana." - puruhūtam — "purubhir bahubhir yajamānair āhūtam: called by many sacrificers." - ṛgmiyam — "ṛgbhir vikriyamāṇaṃ stūyamānam: praised by ṛks or mantras. Here 'vikriyate' of the deity means 'is praised'; or ṛgbhir mīyate śabdyata iti ṛgmīḥ, one who is made to sound with ṛks: hence ṛgmī." - vasvo arṇavam — "dhanānām āvāsabhūmim, the dwelling-place of riches; the idea is that the possessor of much wealth is, as the sea is the chief resort of water, the chief resort of riches and powers." - dyāvo na — "beneficial like the Sun's rays." - maṃhiṣṭham — "atīśayena pravṛddham: exceedingly grown, of great greatness." vipram — "medhāvinam: intelligent, discerning." - mānuṣā — "of men; here the nominative case-ending is used in the sense of the genitive; hitāni, 'beneficial', is to be supplied." vicaranti — "move about specially." abhi arcata — "worship, praise."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁸ - meṣam: root miṣa spardhāyām, tudādi; though ka by igupadhajñāprīkīraḥ kaḥ would be expected, ac comes by the statement that devasenaṣādayaḥ are among the pacādi words (nandigrahipacādibhyo lyuṇinyacaḥ, Pā. 3-1-134 as

8. pp. 151–153 — grammar pages, noted briefly

read [?]); guṇa of the penultimate: meṣa. - ṛgmiyam: mayaṭ in the sense of a modification, after a one-vowel stem (ekāco nityaṃ mayeṭam icchanti, Kāśikā as read [?]); ṛc + maya, kutva: ṛg; the a of maya becomes i by Vedic exchange; the suffix-accent (the middle). Or from mān māne śabde ca with kvip (ṛgbhir mīyate), ghumāsthā... giving ī, īyañ before am; the second member's accent as a kṛdanta. - madata: root madī harṣe, bhvādi, in the ghaṭādi list (so mit); hetumati ca gives ñic; loṭ second person plural tha → ta (taṃ...tām tam); ata upadhāyāḥ would give vṛddhi but mitām hrasvaḥ shortens; ñi drops by ñer aniṭi; śap; the ta is made nit (sārvadhātukam apit) and the lengthening madatā in the Saṃhitā by ṛci tunughamakṣutañkutroruṣyāñām; all-unaccented, with the earlier word not a verb. - vasvaḥ: genitive (or accusative) singular of vasu; jas/ñas + the Vedic options (jasādiṣu chandasi vāvacanam; ghergiti), guṇa not coming, yañ: vasvaḥ. - arṇavam: "arṇaḥ udakam asminn asti", the sea; arṇaso lopaś ca (Kāśikā 5-2-109 [?]) gives va in the possessive sense, with loss of the s; the sense is 'support of water', then 'support'; end-acute by the suffix-accent. - vicaranti: vi a gati; root cara gatibhakṣaṇayoḥ; tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāl... unaccented anti, the root-accent; vi unaccented by tini codāttavati; yadvṛttān nityam prevents the all-unaccented. - mānuṣā: mānuṣāḥ's nominative or genitive; śe drops (śeś chandasi bahulam). - bhuje: root bhuja pālanābhyavahārayoḥ, rudhādi; kvip (saṃpadādibhyaḥ kvip, vārttika [?]); dative singular; end-acute (sāvekāca...). - maṃhiṣṭham: root mahi vahi vṛddhau with ṛc: maṃhitṛ; tuś chandasi (Pā. 5-3-59 as read [?]) gives iṣṭhan; turiṣṭhemeyaḥsu (Pā. 6-4-154 as read [?]) drops ṛ; initial-acute by nit. - arcata: root arca pūjāyām; loṭ second plural; all-unaccented. || 1 ||

original p. 154

Rik 2

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

अभीमवन्स्वभिष्टिमूतयोऽन्तरिक्षां तविषीभिरावृतम् । इन्द्रं दक्षास ऋभवो मदच्युतं शतक्रतुं जवनी सूनृतारुहत् ॥ २ ॥

abhīm avan svabhiṣṭim ūtayo 'ntarikṣaprāṃ taviṣībhir āvṛtam | indram dakṣāsa ṛbhavo madacyutaṃ śatakratum javanī sūnṛtāruhat || 2 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अभि । ईम् । अवन्वन् । सुऽअभिष्टिम् । ऊतयः । अन्तरिक्षऽग्राम् । तविषीभिः । आऽवृतम् ।
इन्द्रम् । दक्षासः । ऋभवः । मदऽच्युतम् । शतऽक्रतुम् । जवनी । सूनृता । आ । अरुहत् ॥ २
॥

abhi | īm | avanvan | su-abhiṣṭim | ūtayaḥ | antarikṣa-prām | taviṣībhiḥ | ā-vṛtam | indram | dakṣāsaḥ | ṛbhavaḥ | madacyutam | śata-kratum | javanī | sūnṛtā | ā | aruhat || 2 || 9

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

ऊतयो रक्षितारो दक्षासो दक्षयितारः प्रवर्धयितार ऋभवः । उरु भान्तीति
नैरुक्तव्युत्पत्त्या ऋभवोऽत्र मरुत उच्यन्ते । एवंभूता मरुत इन्द्रमभीमवन्वन् ।
आभिमुख्येन खल्वभजन्त । वृत्रेण सह युध्यमानमिन्द्रं सर्वे देवाः पर्यत्यजन् ।
मरुतस्तु तथा न पर्यत्यक्षुः । तथा चाम्नायते । विश्वे देवा अजहुर्ये सखायः ।
मरुद्भिरिन्द्रं सख्यं ते अस्तु । ऋ. सं. ८-९६-७ [?] । इति । ब्राह्मणेऽप्याम्नातं ।
मरुतो ह्येनं नाजहुः । ऐ. ब्रा. ३-२० [?] । इति । कीदृशमिन्द्रं । स्वभिष्टिं
शोभनाभ्येषणवन्तं । शोभनाभिगमनमित्यर्थः । अन्तरिक्षां । अन्तरिक्षं द्यूलोकं
स्वतेजसा प्राति पूरयतीत्यन्तरिक्षप्राः । द्वादशस्वादित्येषु इन्द्रस्य विद्यमानत्वात् ।
शाखान्तरेऽपि श्रूयते । तस्या इन्द्रश्च विवस्वाञ्श्चाजायेताम् । तै. ब्रा. १-१-९-३ [?]
। इति । इन्द्रश्च विवस्वांश्चेत्येते इति च । तविषीभिरावृतं । तविषीति बलनाम ।
तविषी शुष्मं इति तन्नामसु पाठात् । बलैरावृतं । अति बलिनमित्यर्थः । अत एव
मदच्युतं शत्रूणां मदस्य गर्वस्य च्यावयितारं । किंच शतक्रतुं शतसंख्यानां

9. The Saṃhitā prints the first verb with a conjunct: avan +
sv... is read as the Pada's avanvan | su-abhiṣṭim; the printed line-break is at "svabhiṣṭim". Doubtful, [?].

क्रतूनामाहर्तारं बहुविधकर्माणं वा । पूर्वोक्तं । तमिन्द्रं जवनी वृत्रवधं प्रति प्रेरयित्री
 सूनृता प्रियसत्यरूपा वाक् । आरुहत् । आरूढवती । वृत्रवधं प्रति सापि वागिन्द्रस्योत्साहकारिण्यभूदित्यर्थः ॥

*ūtayo rakṣitāro dakṣāso dakṣayitāraḥ pravardhayitāra ṛbhavaḥ |
 uru bhānti iti nairuktavyutpattyā ṛbhavo 'tra maruta ucyante |
 evaṃbhūtā maruta indram abhīm avanvan | ābhimukhyena khalv
 abhajanta | vṛtreṇa saha yudhyamānam indram sarve devāḥ paryatyajan | marutas tu tathā na paryatyakṣuḥ | tathā cāmnāyate | viśve devā ajahur ye sakhāyaḥ | marudbhir indra
 sakhyam te astu | ṛ. saṃ. 8-96-7 [?] | iti | brāhmaṇe 'py āmnātam
 | maruto hy enam nājahuḥ | ai. brā. 3-20 [?] | iti | kīdrśam indram
 | svabhiṣṭim śobhanābhyeṣaṇavantam | śobhanābhigamanam ity arthaḥ | antarikṣaprām | antarikṣam dyūlokaṃ svatejasā prāti
 pūrayatīty antarikṣaprāḥ | dvādaśasv ādityeṣu indrasya
 vidyamānatvāt | śākhāntare 'pi śrūyate | tasyā indraś ca vivasvāñś cājāyetām | tai. brā. 1-1-9-3 [?] | iti | indraś ca
 vivasvāmś cety ete iti ca | taviṣṭibhir āvṛtam | taviṣṭi balanāma |
 taviṣṭi śuṣmaṃ iti tannāmasu pāṭhāt | balair āvṛtam | ati balinam
 ity arthaḥ | ata eva madacyutam śatrūṇām madasya garvasya
 cyāvayitāram | kiṃca śatakratum śatasamkhyānām kratūnām
 āhartāram bahuvidhakarmāṇam vā | pūrvoktam | tam indram
 javanī vṛtravadham prati prerayitrī sūnṛtā priyasatyarūpā vāk | āruhat | ārūḍhvatī | vṛtravadham prati sāpi vāg indrasyotsāhakāriṇy abhūd ity arthaḥ || ¹⁰*

Translation: "Ūtayaḥ, the protectors; dakṣāsaḥ, the strengtheners, increasers; ṛbhavaḥ — by the Nirukta etymology 'uru bhānti, they shine widely' the ṛbhus are here the Maruts. Such Maruts īm indram abhi avanvan, served Indra, facing him; for when Indra was fighting with Vṛtra all the gods forsook him, but the Maruts did not forsake him; so it is declared: 'all the gods who were his friends forsook him; with the Maruts, O Indra, let your friendship be' (R. Saṃ. 8-96-7 [?]); and in the Brāhmaṇa: 'the Maruts, indeed, did not forsake him' (Ai. Brā. 3-20 [?]). What Indra? Svabhiṣṭim, of good approach; antarikṣaprām, 'he who fills the heavenly world with his own splendour' (among the twelve Ādityas Indra is included; as in another recension, 'Indra and Vivasvān were born of her', Tai. Brā. 1-1-9-3 [?]); taviṣibhir āvṛtam, surrounded by powers (taviṣī is a name for strength, read among the names of strength); exceedingly strong; therefore madacyutam, one who makes the pride of enemies fall; and śatakratum, who has performed a hundred sacrifices, or who does many deeds. To that Indra javanī sūṇṛtā, the impelling word, pleasing and true, āruhat, mounted: that voice too, in the killing of Vṛtra, became an encourager of Indra."

¹⁰. The grammatical tail of the bhāṣya, which follows this on pp. 155 in the print — on avanvan, svabhiṣṭim, ūtayaḥ, antarikṣaprām, āvṛtam, dakṣāsaḥ, madacyutam, śatakratum, javanī, aruhat — is characterized, not transcribed (see the grammar notes below). The Ṛgveda and Brāhmaṇa numerals are as read, [?].

Pratipadārtha — "ūtayaḥ — those who protect; dakṣāsaḥ — those who nourish and increase; ṛbhavaḥ — the Maruts, who shine exceedingly; svabhiṣṭim — of deep, profound going; antarikṣaprām — who fills the atmosphere (with his splendour); taviṣibhir āvṛtam — surrounded by strengths (exceedingly strong); madacyutam — who makes (thereby) the pride of enemies fall; śatakratum — doer of a hundred sacrifices, or of many pure deeds; indram — Indra; abhi im avan — approached and served; javanī — (impelling Indra to kill Vṛtra) the word; sūṇṛtā — pleasant and true (uttered by the Maruts); āruhat — went and reached (making Indra eager)."

Bhāvārtha

— "The Maruts, protectors and nourishers of the world and exceedingly shining, approached and served Indra, who is of deep going, who fills the atmosphere with his splendour, is strong, makes the pride of enemies fall, and does a hundred pure sacrifices. The pleasing, true words they uttered to urge him to kill Vṛtra made Indra eager."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 156)

— "It was this Indra, the great granter of wishes, the pervader of heaven, surrounded by powers that his allies, Maruts, loved ; it was brave Indra that the mighty and wise Maruts loved ; it was Indra of hundred wisdoms that their encouraging voice reached [sic: "voice", and the sentence is printed without final stop]."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 156 - ṛbhavaḥ — "uru bhānti iti: by the etymology of the Nirukta (the Nirukta-authors' derivation) the word ṛbhu here refers to the Maruts, the deities who shine greatly. Also in the Nirukta, in two other ways, 'ṛtena bhānti vā' and 'ṛtena bhavantīti vā' (Ni. [?] as read), the derivation is shown, so that ṛbhu means 'those who shine by truth' or 'who exist by truth'. That they are truthful has an illustration: when Indra fought Vṛtra, all the deities fled in fear of Vṛtra, but the Maruts alone did not abandon Indra's side. For that reason the Maruts have the fame of being Indra's friends: the Śrutis 'viśve devā ajahur ye sakhāyaḥ | marudbhīr indra sakhyam te astu' (R. Saṃ. 8-96-7 [?]) and 'maruto hy enaṃ nājahuh' (Ai. Brā. 3-20 [?]) show the same meaning." — untranslated in the source:

1. | ऋतेन भान्तीति वा । ऋतेन भवन्तीति वा । ¹¹

ṛtena bhāntīti vā | ṛtena bhavantīti vā | — editorial and tentative: "or, 'they shine by truth'; or, 'they exist by truth'."

2. | विश्वे देवा अजहुर्ये सखायः । मरुद्भिरिन्द्र सख्यं ते अस्तु । ¹²

11. Ni. as read [?]

12. R. Saṃ. 8-96-7 as read [?]

viśve devā ajahur ye sakhāyaḥ | marudbhir indra sakhyam te astu | — editorial and tentative: "the gods who were friends abandoned (you); let your friendship, O Indra, be with the Maruts."

3. | मरुतो ह्येनं नाजहुः ।¹³

maruto hy enam nājahuḥ | — editorial and tentative: "for the Maruts did not abandon him."

- antarikṣaprām — "antarikṣam dyulokaṁ svatejasā prāti pūrayatīti: he who fills the atmosphere (the world of heaven) with his own splendour. Since Indra is among the twelve Ādityas, the twelve Ādityas light the world of the gods and all other worlds with their splendour; but, being subject to Indra, this word, signifying the twelve Ādityas, is also an epithet of indra. The Śrutis 'tasyā indraś ca vivasvāṁś cājāyetām' (Tai. Brā. 1-1-9-3 [?]) and 'indraś ca vivasvāṁś cety ete' (Tai. Ā. 1-13-3 [?]) are illustrations of it." — untranslated in the source:

| तस्या इन्द्रश्च विवस्वांश्चाजायेताम् । (Tai. Brā. 1-1-9-3 as read [?])

tasyā indraś ca vivasvāṁś cājāyetām | — editorial and tentative: "of her were born Indra and Vivasvān."

- taviṣī — "taviṣī taviṣīti balanāma; 'taviṣī śuṣmam' (Ni. 2-9 as read [?]): since it is said to mean strength, taviṣī means strength, power."

- śatakṛatum

— "one who has performed a hundred sacrifices, or who does many deeds."

- javanī — "the word that urged the killing of Vṛtra. Ju is a root of the sūtra-list; lyuṭ in the instrumental sense."

13. Ai. Brā. 3-20 as read [?]

- sūnṛtā — "the pleasant and true words that the Maruts utter, praising Indra, such as 'pra hara bhagavo jahi vīrayasva' (Ai. Brā. 3-20 as read [?]), spoken in the Brāhmaṇa." — untranslated in the source:

प्रहर भगवो जहि वीर्यस्व । (Ai. Brā. 3-20 as read [?]) prahara bhagavo jahi vīrayasva | — editorial and tentative:

"strike, O lord; slay; show your valour."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁴ - avanvan: root vana saṃbhaktau, lañ, third plural jhi → ant; vyatyayo bahulam gives the u-suffix (tanādi-like) in place of śap; yañ; the aṭ: avanvan. - svabhiṣṭim: īṣa gatau, striyām ktin; titutra... forbids iṭ; śatva; with abhi, the single substitute (pararūpa) by the Vedic list annādīnām upasaṅkhyānam; a bahuvrīhi "of good approach": nañsubhyām gives the end-acute. - ūtayaḥ: root ava rakṣaṇe; ktin or ktic in the agent sense by kṛtyalyuṭo bahulam / ktichau ca saṃjñāyām; ūṭh by jvaratvarasrivyavimavām...; end-acute by citaḥ; middle-acute as a word. - antarikṣaprām: root prā pūraṇe, adādi, vic by ato manin... with an upapada; all of vic drops; end-acute. - āvṛtam: root vṛñ varaṇe, kryādi; kta in the passive (tayor eva kṛtyaktakhalarthāḥ); no guṇa; gatiṛ anantaraḥ gives ā its natural accent; initial-acute. - dakṣāsaḥ: root dakṣa vṛddhau; ghañ in the instrument sense: dakṣa; jas takes asuk by ājjaser asuk; ru, visarga. - madacyutam: madaṃ cyāvayati; root cyuñ gatau with the causative sense inside; kvip; tuk by hrasvasya piti kṛti tuk; accusative. - śatakratum: bahuvrīhi, the first member's natural accent. - javanī: ju a sautra root; lyuṭ in the instrument sense; yu → ana; ñip by ṭiḍḍhāṇaṇ...; acute before ñip. - aruhat: root ruha bijajanmani prādurbhāve ca; luñ; cli → añ by kṛmṛdṛruhibhyaś chandasi; aṭ: aruhat. || 2 ||

original p. 159

Rik 3

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

त्वं गोत्रमङ्गिरोभ्योऽवृणोरपोतात्रये शतदुरेषु गातुवित् । ससेन चिद्विमदायावहो वस्वाजावद्रिं वावसानस्य नर्तयन् ॥ ३ ॥

tvam gotram aṅgirobhyo 'vṛṇor apotātraye śatadureṣu gātuvit | sasena cid vimadāyāvaho vasv ājāv adriṃ vāvasānasya nartayan
|| 3 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । गोत्रम् । अङ्गिरःऽभ्यः । अवृणोः । अप । उत । अत्रये । शतऽदुरेषु । गातुऽवित् । ससेन । चित् । विऽमदाय । अवहः । वसु । आजौ । अद्रिम् । ववसानस्य । नर्तयन् ॥ ३ ॥

tvam | gotram | aṅgiraḥ-bhyaḥ | avṛṇoḥ | apa | uta | atraye |
śata-dureṣu | gātu-vit | sasena | cit | vi-madāya | avahaḥ | vasu |
*ājau | adrim | vavasānasya | nartayan | | 3 | |*¹⁵

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya¹⁶

हे इन्द्र त्वं गोत्रमव्यक्तशब्दवंतं वृष्ट्यादेस्स्यावरकं
मेघमङ्गिरोभ्योऽङ्गिरसामृषीणामर्थायापावृणोः । अपवरणं कृतवानसि । वृष्टेरावरकं
मेघं वज्रेणोद्धात्य वर्षणं कृतवानसीत्यर्थः । यद्वा । गोत्रं गोसमूहं पणिभिरपहतं
गुहासु निहितमङ्गिरोभ्य ऋषिभ्योऽपावृणोः । गुहाद्वारोद्धाटनेन प्राकाशयः । उतापि
चात्रये महर्षये । कीदृशाय । शतदुरेषु शतद्वारेषु यंत्रेष्वसुरैः पीडार्थं प्रक्षिप्ताय ।
गातुवित् मार्गस्य लंभयिताभूः । तथा विमदाय चित् विमदनाम्ने महर्षयेऽपि
ससेनान्नेन । युक्तं वसु धनमवहः । प्रापितवानसि । तथाजौ संग्रामे जयार्थं
वावसानस्य निवसकस्य वर्तमानस्यान्यस्यापि स्तोतुरद्रिं वज्रं नर्तयन् रक्षणं
कृतवानसीति शेषः । अतस्तव महिमा केन वर्णयितुं शक्येत इति भावः ॥

15. The Pada prints the words as above; the Saṃhitā has the doubled ājau adrim as one word "vasvājāvadrim", which is divided with the Pada; the verb at the end of the first line is divided "avṛṇoḥ | apa", the print's reading, [?].

16. p. 159, first part

he indra tvaṃ gotram avyaktaśabdavaṃtaṃ vṛṣṭyādes syāvarakam megham aṅgirobhyo 'ṅgirasām ṛṣiṇām arthāyāpāvṛṇoḥ | apavaraṇam kṛtavān asi | vṛṣṭer āvarakam megham vajreṇodghātya varṣaṇam kṛtavān asīty arthaḥ | yadvā | gotram gosamūham paṇibhir apahr̥taṃ guhāsu nihitam
 aṅgirobhya ṛṣibhyo 'pāvṛṇoḥ | guhādvārodghātanena prākāśayaḥ
 | utāpi cātraye maharṣaye | kīdr̥śāya | śatadureṣu śatadvāreṣu yaṃtreṣv asuraiḥ pīḍārtham prakṣiptāya | gātuvit mār̥gasya laṃbhayitābhūḥ | tathā vimadāya cit vimadanāmne maharṣaye 'pi sasenānnena | yuktaṃ vasu dhanam avahaḥ | prāpitavān asi | tathājau saṃgrāme jayārtham vāvasānasya nivasakasya vartamānasyānyasyāpi stotur adriṃ vajraṃ nartayan rakṣaṇam kṛtavān asīti śeṣaḥ | atas tava mahimā kena varṇayituṃ śakyeta
 iti bhāvaḥ || ¹⁷

Translation of this part: "O Indra, you gotram, the cloud, which makes an indistinct sound and covers the rain and the like, aṅgirobhyaḥ, for the sake of the Aṅgirasa sages, apāvṛṇoḥ, uncovered: you opened the cloud that was covering the rain with the thunderbolt and made it rain; or: gotram, the herd of cows carried off by the Paṇis and hidden in caves, you uncovered for the Aṅgiras seers, by opening the doors of the caves you made it known. Uta, and atraye, for the great sage Atri — thrown by the Asuras into machines of a hundred doors to torment him — gātuvit, you became the finder of a way. And for vimadāya, the great sage named Vimada, sasena, with food, with wealth that goes with it, avahaḥ, you brought; and in battle, for victory, vavasānasya, of any other praiser who lives in need, adriṃ nartayan, brandishing the thunderbolt, you gave protection — this is the part understood. Therefore who can describe your greatness? — this is the sense."

17. The print's first words are broken: "gotram avyaktaśabdavantaṃ vṛṣṭyāder...āvarakam" — "syāvarakam" is read as the print's crowded "āvarakam"; the line after "vimadāya" and "ṇ" is as read, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya continues to p. 160, not yet written.

Rik 51.3, continued ¹⁸

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, grammatical tail ¹⁹ — the print continues with the grammar of the words of the Rik, in the order: śatadureṣu (explained as "śataṃ durā dvārāṇy eṣām", the doors being dvṛ- derived, with a Vedic saṃprasāraṇa and pararūpa, and with uraṇ raparaḥ — Pā. 1-1-51 as read [?]); gātuvit (gāñ gatau, a tu-suffix by an Uṇādi sūtra, 1-71 or 1-73 as read [?]; vid "to obtain" with kvip; the accent by kṛduttarapadaprakṛtisvaratva); sasena (sasam is a name of food — the Naighaṇṭuka reads sasaṃ namaḥ āyuh, as the print says "since it is read among those names"); ājau (ājiḥ is a name of battle, ahava ājau, Ni. 2-... [?]); adriṃ (atti bhakṣayati vairiṇam iti adrir vajraḥ — "the thunderbolt, which eats the enemy"; the suffix krin by ādiśadibhūsubhibhyaḥ krin, Uṇ. 4-... [?]; Yāska's own explanation "adrir ādṛṇāty anenāpi vā attes syāt", Ni. 4-4 as read [?]); vavasānasya (vasa nivāse, śānac in the agent sense; śap elided by bahulaṃ chandasi, reduplication, final-acute by the cit rule). The Pada of the bhāṣya's own words is as in the Pratipadārtha and Special Topics below; a grammar page, noted briefly. (Kannada-script numerals as read, [?].)

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; tvam — you; gotram — (stopping the rain, the cloud) that makes a sound; aṅgirobhyaḥ — for the Aṅgirasas (who are sages); apa āvṛṇoh — (with the thunderbolt) you uncovered (you released the rain). [Or: gotram — the herd of cows hidden in caves, carried off by the Paṇis; aṅgirobhyaḥ — for the Aṅgirasa sages; apa āvṛṇoh — you opened the doors of the caves and let them out.] uta — and; śatadureṣu — (for the destruction of enemies) in a hundred doors; atraye — for the great sage Atri; gātuvit — you were the finder of the way; vimadāya cit — also for the great sage named Vimada; sasena — together with food; vasu — wealth; āvahaḥ — you brought it (likewise); ājau — in battle; vavasānasya — (who is eager for self-protection) to the praiser who exerts himself (for his help); adrim — the thunderbolt; nartayan — wielding (you protected him also)."

18. from p. 160, PDF 176

19. pp. 160 — characterized, not transcribed

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you, for the Aṅgīrasa sages, broke the cloud and made it rain. For the great sage Atri, who was tormented in machines of a hundred doors, you became the guide of the way. To the great sage named Vimada you granted wealth together with food. In battle you also protect the praiser who is exerting himself for his own protection, wielding the thunderbolt in his help."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 161) — "You have opened the cloud for the Angirasas, you have shown the way to Atri who vexes his adversaries by a hundred devices ; you have granted wealth with food to Vimada; you are wielding your thunderbolt in defence of a worshipper engaged in battle." ²⁰

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), pp. 161–162 - aṅgirobhyaḥ — "For a detailed account of the Aṅgīrasa sages see what we have written in Ṛ. Saṃ. Part 3, pp. 520–522." - atraye — "For the great sage Atri. The sage Atri is the original ancestor of the well-known Atri line. This Atri sage and his descendants are the ṛṣis of the hymns of the fifth Maṇḍala of the Ṛgveda. It is seen that among the people of the Atri line, Priyamedha, Kaṇva, Gotama and Kakṣīvat were closely connected with them. In Ṛ. Saṃ. Maṇḍala 5 and 1-... [?] (as read) the rivers Paruṣṇī and Yamunā are mentioned; from this it may be guessed that the Atri people were settled in those regions." - gotram — "avyaktaśabdavantam vṛṣṭyudakasyāvarakam megham | yadvā gotram gosamūham paṇibhir apahr̥tam": "the cloud that makes an indistinct sound and covers the water of the rain. Or the herd of cows carried off by the Paṇis." "The word gotra is formed from the root guj

20. Printed "Vimada" as small capitals; "Angirasas" without diacritics — reproduced as printed.

avyakte śabde (to sound indistinctly) of the Uṇādi group, and gives the sense 'the cloud, which sounds indistinctly and is the support of rain'. Or, with the word go and the sūtra inatrakatyāś ca (Pā. 4-2-39 as read [?]), the suffix tra in the sense of 'collection' gives 'a herd of cows'." - śatadureṣu — untranslated in the source:

शतद्वारेषु यंत्रेष्वसुरैः पीडार्थं प्रक्षिप्ताय । शतं दुरा द्वाराण्येषाम् ॥

śatadvāreṣu yaṃtreṣv asuraiḥ pīḍārthaṃ prakṣiptāya | śataṃ durā dvārāṇy eṣām || — the source adds, in Kannada: "a special machine (yantra) with doors (holes) of many kinds; a weapon used for torturing Rākṣasas." (Mine and tentative gloss of the Sanskrit: "to one thrown, in order to torment him, by the Asuras into machines with a hundred doors; 'a hundred doors are theirs'.") - sasena — "annena yuktaṃ: joined with food. 'sasaṃ namaḥ āyuh' (Ni. 3-... [?]): in the sense of food the word sasa is read." - adrim — "vajraṃ — atti bhakṣayati vairiṇam iti adrir vajraḥ; the word adri is here explained as pertaining to the thunderbolt, in the sense of 'the destroyer of enemies'. Yāska gives this explanation of the word adri in the Nirukta: 'adrir ādṛṇāty anenāpi vā attes syāt | te somād iti ha vijñāyate' — that is, the thunderbolt eats the very essence of the mountain (adri). Or it is the abhiṣavaṇagrāvā, the pressing-stone of the soma-pressing: 'one that has an adri' is adrivān; the stone that crushes or grinds the soma is also called adri." (Ni. 4-4 as read [?])

अद्विरादृणात्येनेनापि वात्तेः स्यात् । ते सोमादित इति ह विज्ञायते ॥

adrir ādṛṇāty anenāpi vā attes syāt | te somād iti ha vijñāyate || — editorial and tentative: "adri may be from ā-dr 'to split' (the mountain, with it), or from ad 'to eat'; 'it is known that they (are eaten) by soma' [?]." ²¹ - vavasānasya — "To the root vasa nivāse the suffix cānaś in the agent-habitual sense (the 'dwelling in', i.e.

21. The second sentence is a crowded print; reading uncertain, [?].

'who is dwelling') is attached; the meaning 'one who is making an abode' is obtained here." ²² - vimadāya — "Vimada is a ṛṣi. This ṛṣi is the seer of ... Riks in Sūktas 10-20 to 26 (as read [?]) of the eighth [sic: "ಹತ್ತನೆಯ", read 'tenth'? print reads 'ಹತ್ತನೆಯ'] Maṇḍala of the Ṛgveda. The ṛṣi Vimada and his line are referred to in Ṛ. Saṃ. 10-20-10 (as read [?]); 10-35-2 [?]; Atharvaveda 4-29-4 [?]; and the name of Vimada is also found in the mantras of the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa 5-35-1 [?]." ²³

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁴ - gotram: guj avyakte śabde, bhvādi; Uṇādi suffix tra, guṇa: gotra; or, from go (continued from khalagorathāt) with inatrakatyās ca (Pā. 4-2-39 as read [?]) the suffix tra in the sense "collection" (tasya samūhaḥ). - śatadureṣu: dvṛ saṃvaraṇe; ka by ghañarthe kavidhānam; Vedic saṃprasāraṇa, saṃprasāraṇāc ca, antādivac ca (Pā. 6-1-85 as read [?]) and uraṇ raparaḥ (Pā. 1-1-51) give dur; locative plural śatadureṣu; or saṃprasāraṇa of dvāra itself. - gātuvit: two roots — gāñ gatau with kamimanijanigābhāpāyāhibhyaś ca (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]) the suffix tu: gātu; vid lābhe (the causative sense implied), kvip with a subanta upapada; gatikārakopapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the final member. - sasena: sasa is a name of food (sasaṃ namaḥ āyuh, Ni. as read [?]); instrumental singular. - ājau: ājih, battle; ahave ājau (Ni. [?]); locative singular. - adrim: ad bhakṣaṇe with ādiśadibhūśubhibhyaḥ kṛin (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]); the r of kṛin alone remains; accusative; initial acute because the suffix has a mute n (ñnityādir nityam, Pā. 6-1-197 as read [?]). Yāska's explanation as above. - vavasānasya: vasa nivāse, bhvādi; tācchīlyavayovacanaśaktiṣu cānaś (Pā. 3-2-129 as read [?]); śap with vikaraṇa (śit), elided as śluḥ by bahulaṃ chandasi; reduplication by ślau; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; genitive singular; final-acute because cānaś has a mute c (citaḥ). || 3 ||

22. The print has the word "ವಾಸಮಾಡುತ್ತಿರುವ" "living".

23. All numerals in this item are small Kannada digits, uncertain; the 'eighth/tenth' reading is not certain.

24. pp. 162–163 — grammar pages, noted briefly

Rik 4

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ²⁵

त्वमपामपिधानावृणोरपाधारयः पर्वते दानुमद्वसु । वृत्रं यदिन्द्र शवसावधीरहिमादित्सूर्य दिव्यारोहयो दृशे ॥ ४ ॥

tvam apām apidhānāvṛṇor apādhārayaḥ parvate dānumad vasu | vṛtram yad indra śavasāvadhīr ahim ād it sūryaṃ divy ārohayo dṛśe || 4 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । अपाम् । अपिऽधाना । अवृणोः । अप । अधारयः । पर्वते । दानुऽमत् । वसु । वृत्रम् ।
यत् । इन्द्र । शवसा । अवधीः । अहिम् । आत् । इत् । सूर्यम् । दिवि । आ । अरोहयः । दृशे ॥ ४ ॥

*tvam | apām | api-dhānā | avṛṇoḥ | apa | adhārayaḥ | parvate |
dānu-mat | vasu | vṛtram | yat | indra | śavasā | avadhīḥ | ahim
| āt | it | sūryam | divi | ā | arohayāḥ | dṛśe || 4 ||*

Rik 51.4, continued ²⁶

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वमपामुदकानामपिधानानि आच्छादकान् मेघानपावृणोः । आसावरिष्ठाः [?] ।
। तथा पर्वते पर्वति पूरयितव्यप्रदेशयुक्ते स्वकीयनिवासस्थाने दानुमत् दानुमतो
हिंसायुक्तस्य । यद्वा । दनुरसुरमाता तस्यैव दानुः । तद्वतः तादृशस्य वृत्रादेर्वसु
धनमधारयः । शत्रोर्जित्वा तदीयं धनमुपहृत्य स्वगृहे न्यचिक्षिपः इत्यर्थः । यद्वा ।
दानुमदिति वसुविशेषणम् । शोभनदानयुक्तमित्यर्थः । हे इन्द्र त्वं यद्यदा शवसा
बलेन वृत्रं त्रयाणां लोकानामावरीतारम् । तथा च शाखान्तरे सामानातम् । यदिमान्
लोकानवृणोत् तद्वृत्रस्य वृत्रत्वम् (तै. सं. [?]) इति । अहिमा समन्ताद्धन्तारम् ।
तथा च वाजसनेयिनः समामनन्ति । सोऽग्नीषोमावभिसंबभूव सर्वा विद्यां सर्वं यशः

25. accents are printed in this Rik, not reproduced

26. pp. 164–166, PDF 180–182

सर्वमन्नाद्यं सर्वा श्रियं स यत्सर्वमेतत्समभवत्तस्मादहिरिति । एवंभूतमसुरमवधीर्वधं
प्रापितः । आदित् अनन्तरमेव दिवि द्युलोके दृशे द्रष्टुं सूर्यमारोहयः । वृत्रेणावृतं सूर्यं तस्माद्वृत्रादमूचः इत्यर्थः ।

*he indra tvam apām udakānām apidhānāni ācchādakān meghān apāvṛṇoḥ | āsāvariṣṭāḥ [?] | tathā parvate parvati pūrayitavyapradeśayukte svakīyanivāsasthāne dānumat dānumato himsāyuktasya | yadvā | danur asuramātā tasyaiva dānuḥ |
tadvataḥ tādrśasya vṛtrāder vasu dhanam adhārayaḥ | śatror jītvā
tadīyaṃ dhanam upahr̥tya svagr̥he nyacikṣipaḥ ity arthaḥ | yadvā
| dānumat iti vasuviśeṣaṇam | śobhanadānayuktam ity arthaḥ | he indra tvam yad yadā śavasā balena vṛtraṃ trayāṇāṃ lokānām āvarītāram | tathā ca śākhāntare samāmnātam | yad imān lokān
avṛṇot tad vṛtrasya vṛtratvam (tai. saṃ. [?]) iti | ahim ā samantād dhantāram | tathā ca vājasaneyinaḥ samāmananti | so 'gnīṣomāv abhisam̐babhūva sarvāṃ vidyāṃ sarvaṃ yaśaḥ sarvaṃ annādyam sarvāṃ śriyaṃ sa yat sarvaṃ etat samabhavat tasmād ahir iti |
evam̐bhūtam asuram avadhīr vadhaṃ prāpitaḥ [?] | ād it anantaram eva divi dyuloke dr̥śe draṣṭuṃ sūryam ārohaḥ |
vṛtreṇāvṛtaṃ sūryaṃ tasmād vṛtrād amūmucaḥ ity arthaḥ |* ²⁷

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you uncovered the apidhānāni of the waters — the clouds that covered them. And parvate, in the mountain, i.e. in the place of his own dwelling, full of regions that need filling (parvan); dānumat, of the violent one (dānumat); or: danu is the mother of the Asuras, dānu is her very son, one who belongs to her — of such a Vṛtra and the like you held (adhārayaḥ) the wealth: having conquered the enemy you took his wealth and placed it in your own house, is the sense. Or:

27. Reading notes: the word printed āsāvariṣṭāḥ after apāvṛṇoḥ cannot be resolved — the line is crowded — and is left [?]; "dānuḥ ... danur asuramātā" and "avadhīr vadhaṃ prāpitaḥ" are as read, doubtful; the Taittirīya numeral is unclear. The tail of the bhāṣya, on apām [the accent by ūḍidam], apidhānā, adhārayaḥ, parvate, dānumat, is characterized in the grammar notes below.

dānumat is an epithet of vasu: 'wealth that is full of good giving'. O Indra, yat, when, by your strength, you killed Vṛtra, the encompasser of the three worlds — and so it is handed down in another śākhā: 'because he enclosed (avr̥ṇot) these worlds, that is Vṛtra's vṛtra-ness' (Tai. Saṃ. [?]); ahim, the one who strikes on all sides, for so the Vājasaneyins teach: 'He (the Asura) overcame Agni and Soma, and took all knowledge, all fame, all food, all fortune; because he took in all this, he is ahi' — such an Asura you slew. Ād it, immediately afterwards, divi, in the sky, dṛśe, to be seen, you made the sun rise: the sun was covered by Vṛtra, and you released it from him, is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; tvam — you; apām — of the waters; apidhānā — the covering ones, the veils; apa āvṛṇoh — you have released (and caused the rain); parvate — in the mountain region (your dwelling-place); dānumat — of the violent one, or of Vṛtra the Asura together with Dānu; vasu — the wealth [or: dānumat vasu, the excellent, giving-rich wealth]; adhārayaḥ — you have laid up (collected); yat — when; śavasā — by strength; ahim — the all-round destroyer, and; vṛtram — Vṛtra the Asura who covered the three worlds; avadhiḥ — you killed; āt it — at once; divi — in the sky; dṛśe — for the sight (of all); sūryam — the sun (covered by Vṛtra); ārohayāḥ — you released and made to shine."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you filled the waters and released the clouds that covered them, and made it rain. Having conquered the harmful Rākṣasa, you put all his wealth in the mountain regions that are your dwelling. When, by your strength, you killed the Asura Vṛtra who covered the three worlds, at once you released the sun from his grip and made him visible to all three worlds."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 165)

— "You have opened the receptacle of the waters ; you have detained in the mountain the treasure of the malignant; when you had slain Vritra, the destroyer, you made the sun visible in the sky."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 165 - parvate — "parvati pūrayitavyapradeśayukte svakīyanivāsasthāne; parvavān parvataḥ, parva punaḥ prṇāteḥ prīṇāter vā (Ni. 1-20 as read [?])": Yāska explains the word parvata as "what is filled with stones, peaks and the like"; by adding "prīṇāter vā" he shows we need not take it as only 'filled with rocks' — it can also mean 'the thing that pleases the gods with stone and other things'."

पर्व पुनः पृणातेः प्रीणातेर्वा । (Ni. 1-20 as read [?])

parva punaḥ prṇāteḥ prīṇāter vā | — editorial and tentative: "and parvan [a joint, a hill-ridge] (is) from pr 'to fill' or from prī 'to please'." - ahim — "ā samantād dhantāram: the complete destroyer of everything. This is explained in the Vājasaneyi śruti, 'so 'gnīṣomāv abhisamḥbabhūva sarvāṃ vidyāṃ sarvaṃ yaśaḥ sarvaṃ annādyaṃ sarvāṃ śriyaṃ sa yat sarvaṃ etat samabhavat tasmād ahiḥ' — he, having conquered the deities Agni and Soma, took away all their knowledge, fame, food and the like, and prosperity; hence the Rākṣasa." - vṛtram — "trayāṇāṃ lokānām āvarītāram: he who pervades (covers) the three worlds. The śruti 'yad imān lokān avṛṇot tad vṛtrasya vṛtratvam' (Tai. Saṃ. numeral as read [?]) supports this."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁸ - apām: ap, genitive plural apām; the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidaṃ padādy... (Pā. 6-1-171 as read [?]) overrides the anudātta. - apidhānā: apidhīyate ācchādyate ebhir iti apidhānāni; lyuṭ in the instrument sense on dhāñ; yu → ana by yuvor anākau; accusative plural śas, pūrvasavarṇadīrgha by supām sulug...; the accent on the preceding vowel by lity...; the single-substitute (ekādeśa udātenodāttaḥ, Pā. 8-2-5) and the accent of the final member by gatikārapapadāt kṛt. - adhārayaḥ: dhr̥ñ avasthāne, tudādi with ñic, lañ second person singular; āpādādaḥ forbids the nighāta; the āt-augment is acute: initial-acute word. - parvate: parvān parvataḥ — suffix tap by tap parvamarudbhyām (vārttika, as read [?]) in the sense "having"; Yāska's derivation (above). - dānumat: do avakhaṇḍane or dān dāne; dābhābhyām nuḥ (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]) gives nu; matup by tad asyāsty asmin; for the genitive singular nas the sulug ... dānumat; matup has a mute p, so the word is anudātta-ending.

original pp. 166–171

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha ²⁹

त्वं मायाभिरप मायिनोऽधमः स्वधाभिर्ये अधि शुप्तावजुह्वत । त्वं पिप्रोर्नृमणः प्रारुजः पुरः प्र ऋजिश्चानं दस्युहत्येष्वाविथ ॥ ५ ॥ *tvam māyābhir apa māyino 'dhamah svadhābhir ye adhi śuptāv

ajuhvata | tvam piprorṇmaṇaḥ prārujaḥ puraḥ pra ṛjīśvānaṃ
dasyuhatyēṣv āvitha || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । मायाभिः । अप । मायिनः । अधमः । स्वधाभिः । ये । अधि । शुप्तौ । अजुह्वत । त्वम् । पिप्रोः । नृमणः । प्र । अरुजः । पुरः । प्र । ऋजिश्चानम् । दस्युहत्येषु । आविथ ॥ ५ ॥

*tvam | māyābhiḥ | apa | māyinaḥ | adhamah | svadhābhiḥ | ye |
adhi | śuptau | ajuhvata | tvam | pipro | ṇmaṇaḥ | pra | arujaḥ
| puraḥ | pra | ṛjīśvānaṃ | dasyu-hatyēṣu | āvitha || 5 ||* ³⁰

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

29. accents printed, not reproduced

30. The Pada prints "नृमणः" for the Samhitā's "ṇmaṇaḥ" — the cerebral ṇ comes by the avagraha rule cited on p. 170; The Pada is given as printed.

हे इन्द्र त्वं मायाभिर्जयोपायज्ञानैः । माया इति ज्ञाननाम । शची माया इति तन्नामसु
 पाठात् । यद्वा मायाभिलोकप्रसिद्धैः कपटैः । मायिन उक्तलक्षणमायोपेतान्
 स्वत्रादीनसुरानपाधमः [?] । अधमः (धमतिर्गतिकर्मेति यास्कः । नि. [?])
 जितवानसि । ये ऽसुराः स्वधाभिर्निर्वृष्टैरन्नैः [?] शुप्तावधि शोभमाने स्वकीये मुख
 एवाजुह्वत आहौषुः नाग्नौ । तानसुरानिति पूर्वेण संबन्धः । तथा च
 कौषीतकिभिराम्नायते । असुरा वा आत्मन्नेव जुहुवुः ...ते पराभवन् इति [?] ।
 वाजसनेयिभिरप्यास्नातम् । देवाश्च ह वा असुराश्चास्पर्धन्त ततो हासुरा अभिमानेन
 कस्मै च न जुहुम इति स्वेस्वेवास्येषु जुह्वतश्चेरुस्ते पराबभूवुरिति । तथा हे नृमणः
 नृषु यजमानेषु रक्षितव्येष्वनुग्रहबुद्धियुक्त त्वं पिप्रोः पूरयितुरेतन्नाम्नोऽसुरस्य पुरः
 पुराणि निवासस्थानानि प्रारुजः प्राभांक्षीः । एवं कृत्वा
 तेनासुरेणोपद्रुतमृजिश्चानमृजुगमनमेतत्संज्ञकं स्तोतारं दस्युहृत्येषु
 दस्यूनामुपक्षपयितृणां हननेन युक्तेषु संग्रामेषु । यद्वा । दस्यूनां हननेन निमित्तभूतेषु । प्राविथ प्रकर्षेण ररक्षिथ ।

*he indra tvam māyābhir jayopāyajñānaiḥ | māyā iti jñānanāma |
 śacī māyā iti tannāmasu pāṭhāt | yadvā māyābhir lokaprasiddhaiḥ
 kapaṭaiḥ | māyina uktalakṣaṇamāyopetān svatrādīn asurān
 apādhamah [?] | adhamah (dhamatir gatikarmeti yāskah | ni. [?])
 jitavān asi | ye 'surāḥ svadhābhir nirvṛṣṭair annaiḥ [?] śūptāv adhi śobhamāne svakīye mukha evājuhvata āhausuḥ nāgnau | tām
 asurān iti pūrveṇa saṃbandhaḥ | tathā ca kauṣītakibhir āmnāyate
 | asurā vā ātmann eva juhuvuḥ ... te parābhavan iti [?] | vājasaneyibhir apy āsnātam | devās ca ha vā asurās cāspardhanta tato hāsura abhimānena kasmai ca na juhuma iti sveṣv evāsyēṣu juhvataś cerus te parābabhūvur iti | tathā he nṛmaṇaḥ nṛṣu yajamāneṣu rakṣitavyeṣv anugrahabuddhiyukta tvam piproh pūrayitur etannāmno 'surasya puraḥ purāṇi nivāsasthānāni prārujaḥ prābhāṅkṣiḥ | evaṃ kṛtvā tenāsūreṇopadrutam rjīśvānam rjugamanam etasamjñakam stotāram dasyuhatyēṣu dasyūnām upakṣapayitṛṇām hananena yukteṣu saṃgrāmeṣu |
 yadvā | dasyūnām hananena nimittabhūteṣu | prāvitha
 prakarṣeṇa rarakṣitha |* ³¹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, with māyābhiḥ — with the knowledges that are means to victory (māyā is a name for knowledge: "śacī māyā" is read among the names; or with the well-known deceits) — māyinaḥ, the Asuras possessing such craft, you apādhamah [?], conquered (dhamati is a verb of motion, says Yāska). Those Asuras who, svadhābhiḥ, with the foods (the offerings), adhi śuptau, in their own shining mouths — ajuhvata, offered: they offered in their mouths, not in the fire. So the Kauṣītakins teach, and so the Vājasaneyins have it: 'The gods and the Asuras competed; then the Asuras, out of pride, saying "we will offer to no one", went about offering into their own mouths, and were defeated.' And, O nṛmaṇaḥ, you who are full of kindly mind towards the men, the sacrificers who must be protected, you broke the पुराḥ, the cities, the dwellings, of the Asura named Pipru — the 'filler'. Having done so, ṛjīśvānam, the praiser of that name ('going straight'), who had been harassed by that Asura, dasyuhatyēṣu, in battles that attend the killing of the Dasyus (destroyers) — or: that have the killing of Dasyus as their cause — prāvitha, you fully protected."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) tvam — you; māyābhiḥ — by knowledges (means of victory) or by tricks; ye — which Rākṣasas; svadhābhiḥ — with oblations in the form of food; śuptau adhi — in their own shining mouths; ajuhvata — offered; māyinaḥ — those deceitful Rākṣasas; apa adhamah — you trampled down and conquered; nṛmaṇaḥ — you who are kindly-minded to men; tvam — you; piproḥ — of the Rākṣasa named Pipru; पुराḥ — the cities; pra arujaḥ — broke; ṛjīśvānam — the devotee Ṛjīśvan

31. Readings doubtful, [?]: apādhamah, the clause "svadhābhīr nirvṛṣṭair" (the print seems to have nirvṛṣṭair), and the Kauṣītaki quotation, where the print reads "asurā vā ātmann eva juhuvur udgātre 'gnau te parābhavann iti" — the middle could not be settled. The bhāṣya's tail — on māyinaḥ, śuptau, ajuhvata, piproḥ, nṛmaṇaḥ, arujaḥ, ṛjīśvānam, dasyuhatyēṣu, āvitha, with sūtras such as hanas ta ca — is characterized below.

(harassed by that Rākṣasa); dasyuhatyeṣu — in battles fought to destroy the thieving Rākṣasas; pra āvitha — protected completely."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you conquered, by means of victory-giving devices, the deceitful Rākṣasas who, without pouring the oblations into the fire, put them in their own mouths. O Indra, kindly to men, you destroyed the cities of the Rākṣasa Pipru. In the battles fought to destroy the thieving Rākṣasas you wholly protected the devotee Ṛjīśvan."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 168) — "O Indra, by your devices you have humbled the deceivers who presented oblations to their own mouths; propitions [sic: "propitious"] to men, you have destroyed the cities of Pipru and have well defended Rijiswan [as read] in robber-destroying contests." ³²

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 168–169 - pipro — "Pipru is a Rākṣasa, an enemy of Indra. In order to protect one called Ṛjīśvan, Indra overcame this man; in many Riks of the Ṛgveda — namely Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-101-2 [?]; 4-16-13 [?]; 5-29-11 [?]; 6-20-7 [?]; 8-64-10 [?]; 10-99-11 [?]; 10-138-3 [?] ... (the list as printed in small numerals; all [?]) — the matter of the cities of this Pipru is mentioned. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 8-... [?] and 10-138-3 [?] he is called dāsa and asura. From Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-101-1 [?] and 4-16-13 [?] the impression arises that he had some connection with the Kṛṣṇa (dark) people, the former inhabitants of this land." - māyobhiḥ [sic: māyābhiḥ] — "Here the word māyā means 'a means of gaining victory'. Generally the word māyā is known in the sense of deceit; yet in the Nirukta sūtra 'śacī māyā' (Ni. 3-9 as read [?]) the word māyā is stated in the sense of knowledge." - māyinaḥ — "The word māyā here denotes the worldly well-known deceit. Māyinaḥ means Vṛtra and the others, who are adept in the means of deceit." - adhamah — "dhamatir gatikarmā (Ni. 6-... as read [?]): Yāska; since the root dham is said to mean 'to go', this is the imperative second singular, 'you conquer'." - adhi śuptau ajuhvata — "Here it is said that the Rākṣasas put the offerings into their own mouths, without offering them in the fire. The same sense is in the Kauṣītaki śruti 'asurā vā ātmann eva juhuvur udgātre 'gnau te parābhavann' [?], and the Vājasaneyi śruti 'devāś ca ha vā asurāś cāspardhanta tato hāsurā abhimānena kasmai ca na juhumaḥ iti sveṣv evāsyēṣu juhvataś cerus te parābabhūvuḥ': when the gods and the Asuras competed, the Asuras, from pride, saying 'we will not offer to anyone', put the oblations into their own mouths and were therefore conquered."

32. The print has "Iudra"? — the first word reads "O Indra" in the print.

देवाश्च ह वा असुराश्चास्पर्धन्त । ततो हासुरा अभिमानेन कस्मै च न जुहुम इति स्वेष्ट्वेवास्येषु जुह्वतश्चेरुस्ते पराबभूवुः । (Vājasaneyi, as quoted in the bhāṣya)

devāś ca ha vā asurāś cāspardhanta | tato hāsurā abhimānena kasmai ca na juhuma iti sveṣv evāsyēṣu juhvataś cerus te parābabhūvuḥ | — editorial and tentative: "The gods and the Asuras competed. Then the Asuras, from pride, 'we will offer to nobody', went about offering into their own mouths, and were defeated." - nṛmaṇaḥ — "nṛṣu mano yasya saḥ nṛmaṇaḥ: when so analysed, it means 'one who protects men with an attentive mind'. But here 'men' means the sacrificers who have been consecrated in the sacrificial act; and he is explained as the protector of those." - dasyuhatyēṣu — "The word may also mean 'in the battles that kill the robbers who steal the means of sacrifice'. Or, from the above (dasyūnām hananena nimittabhūteṣu), one may suppose the sense 'occasioned by the killing of the Dasyus'. In both senses the word is suitable here." - ṛjīśvānam — "The name of Ṛjīśvan is found in the Ṛgveda, in R. Saṃ. 1-53-8 [?]; 1-101-1 [?]; 4-... [?]; 6-20-7 [?]; 8-64-10 [?]; 10-99-11 [?]; 10-138-3 [?] and others; but nothing more is known of him. While Indra was fighting with Pipru, this man's helping Indra is indicated. Among Western scholars, Ludwig, the German, on the basis of R. Saṃ. 10-99-11 [?] has expressed the opinion that this Ṛjīśvan was a son of Uśij. In R. Saṃ. 4-16-13 [?]; 6-20-11 [?] he is clearly called Vaidathina, son of Vidathin." ³³

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁴ - māyinaḥ: māyā asyāsti iti māyī; vrīhyādibhyaś ca (Pā. 5-2-116 as read [?]) gives ini also after these (and māyā is read in the list); accusative plural māyinaḥ. - śūptau: śubha dīptau, bhvādi, ktin in the sense of karman; iṭ forbidden by titutratatheṣu...; by jhaśas tathor dho 'dhaḥ (Pā. 8-2-40 as read [?]) ti's t would become dh but this does not come in the Veda by vyatyayo bahulam; khari ca (Pā. 8-4-55) replaces bh by p; śūpti, a stem in i; locative singular śūptau. - ajuhvata: hu dānādanayoḥ, juhotyādi; parasmaipadin, but the ātmanepada endings by vyatyaya; laṇ 3rd plural jhi → jh; ślu reduplication; kuhoś cuḥ (Pā. 7-4-62 as read [?]) gives j; adabhyastāt (Pā. 7-1-4) at for jh; huśnuvoḥ sāravadhātuke (Pā. 6-4-87 as read [?]) gives yaṇ (v); aṭ augment: ajuhvata. - piproḥ: pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ, suffix ku by pyābhidivvyadhigr̥dhr̥ṣibhyaḥ (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]); udoṣṭhyapūrvasya (Pā. 7-1-102) is not applied in the Veda (bahulam chandasi); reduplication; urat; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; artipartyoś ca (Pā. 7-4-77 as read [?]) not applying for want of śap, but bahulam chandasi (Pā. 7-4-78) the i; r → yaṇ: pipru; genitive singular. - nṛmaṇaḥ: nṛṣu mano yasya saḥ; chandasy... (avagraha rule, Pā. 8-4-26 as read [?]): na → ṇa after the avagraha-y...; nṛmaṇaḥ. - arujah: rujo bhaṅge, tudādi, laṇ, second singular sip; śa; sāravadhātukam apit; kn̥iti ca forbids laghūpadhaguna; the i of sip elided by iteś ca; aṭ. - ṛjīśvānam: ṛju aśnute prāpnotīti ṛjīśvā; aśū vyāptau, svādi; irregular formation by pr̥ṣodarādīni yathopadiṣṭam (Pā. 6-3-109): u of ṛju lost and i for the a of aś; accusative singular. - dasyuhatyeṣu: dasyūnām hatyā yeṣu; the battle is meant by the other-member sense; hana with kyap by

33. All numerals here are small Kannada digits, uncertain; No attempt has been made to reconcile the two lists.

34. pp. 169–171 — grammar pages, noted briefly

hanas ta ca (Pā. 3-1-108 as read [?]); parādiś chandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-2-199 as read [?]) gives the initial-acute; with a tatpuruṣa, the accent of the final member by gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt. - āvitha: ava rakṣaṇe, bhvādi, liṭ second singular; reduplication, halādiḥ śeṣaḥ, lengthening, iṭ: āvitha. || 5 ||

original p. 171

Rik 6

Samhitā-pāṭha

त्वं कुत्सं शुष्णहत्येष्वविथारन्धयोऽतिथिग्वाय शम्बरम् । महान्तं चिदर्बुदं नि क्रमीः पदा सनादेव दस्युहत्याय जज्ञिषे ॥ ६ ॥

tvaṃ kutsaṃ śuṣṇahatyēṣv āvithārandhaya 'tithigvāya śambaram | mahāntaṃ cid arbudaṃ ni kramīḥ padā sanād eva dasyuhatyāya jajñiṣe || 6 ||

Rik 51.6, continued ³⁵

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । कुत्सम् । शुष्णाहत्येषु । आविथ । अरन्धयः । अतिथिऽग्वाय । शम्बरम् । महान्तम् । चित् । अर्बुदम् । नि । क्रमीः । पदा । सनात् । एव । दस्युऽहत्याय । जज्ञिषे ॥ ६ ॥ tvaṃ | kutsam | śuṣṇa-hatyēṣu | āvitha | arandhayaḥ | atithi-

gvāya | śambaram | mahāntam | cit | arbudam | ni | kramīḥ |
padā | sanāt | eva | dasyu-hatyāya | jajñiṣe || 6 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वं कुत्सं कुत्ससंज्ञकमृषिं शुष्णहत्येषु । शुष्णः शोषयिता ।
एतन्नाम्नोऽसुरस्य हननयुक्तेषु संग्रामेष्वविथ । ररक्षिथ ।
तथातिथिग्वायतिथिभिर्गन्तव्याय दिवोदासाय शम्बरनामानमसुरमरन्धयः । हिंसां

प्रापितः । तथा महान्तं चित् अतिप्रवृद्धमप्यर्बुदमेतत्संज्ञकमसुरं पदा पादेन नि क्रमीः
 । नितरामाक्रमिताभूः । यस्मादेवं तस्मात्सनादेव चिरकालादेवारभ्य दस्युहत्याय उपक्षपयितृणां हननाय जज्ञिषे । सर्वदा त्वं दस्युहननशीलो भवसीत्यर्थः ॥

*he indra tvaṃ kutsaṃ kutsasaṃjñakam ṛṣiṃ śuṣṇahatyēṣu |
 śuṣṇaḥ śoṣayitā | etannāmno 'surasya hananayuktesu
 saṃgrāmeṣv āvitha | rarakṣitha | tathā atithigvāya atithibhir
 gantavyāya divodāsāya śambarānāmānam asuram arandhayaḥ |
 hiṃsāṃ prāpitaḥ [?] | tathā mahāntaṃ cit atipravṛddham apy
 arbudam etatsaṃjñakam asuraṃ padā pādena ni kramiḥ | nitarām ākramitā abhūḥ | yasmād evaṃ tasmāt sanāt eva cirakālād evārabhya dasyuhatyāya upakṣapayitṛṇāṃ hananāya
 jajñiṣe | sarvadā tvaṃ dasyuhananaśīlo bhavasīty arthaḥ | |*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you kutsaṃ, the sage named Kutsa, śuṣṇahatyēṣu — śuṣṇa is 'the one who dries up'; in battles involving the killing of an Asura of that name — āvitha, protected. And for atithigvāya, for Divodāsa, to whom guests go, you brought the Asura named Śambara to destruction (arandhayaḥ). And mahāntaṃ cit, though very great, the Asura named Arbuda — padā, with the foot, ni kramiḥ, you trampled down. Since this is so, sanāt eva, from ancient times, dasyuhatyāya, for the killing of the destroyers, you were born: at all times you are one whose nature is to kill the Dasyus."

Grammatical tail of the bhāṣya ³⁶: arandhayaḥ (radh hiṃsāsaṃrādhyoḥ; the num augment by radhijabhor aci, Pā. 7-1-61 as read [?]); atithigvāya (gam with an Uṇādi ḍu/ḍva suffix); kramiḥ (kramu pādavikṣepe; no vṛddhi by hyantakṣaṇaśvasa..., Pā. 7-2-5 as read [?]; aṭ dropped by bahulaṃ chandasy amāñyoge 'pī); padā (the vibhakti-accent by sāvekācas tṛtīyādiḥ or ūḍidaṃ padādi...); jajñiṣe (janī prādurbhāve, liṭ, with gamahanajana... the loss of the penultimate).

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) tvam — you; kutsam — the sage named Kutsa; śuṣṇahatyēṣu — in the battles fought for the destruction of the Rākṣasa named Śuṣṇa; āvitha — protected; atithigvāya — for the devotee Divodāsa, who goes in the company of guests; śambaram — the Rākṣasa named Śambara; arandhayaḥ — you caused to be destroyed; mahāntam cit — though very powerful; arbudam — the Rākṣasa named Arbuda; padā — with the foot; ni kramiḥ — trampled down (you destroyed him, and therefore); sanāt eva — from very long ago; dasyuhatyāya — for the destruction of the thieving Rākṣasas; jajñiṣe — you were born."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, in the battles fought to destroy the Rākṣasa named Śuṣṇa you protected the sage named Kutsa. You tormented and killed the Rākṣasa named Śambara for Divodāsa, who went about devoted to the honour of guests. Although the Rākṣasa named Arbuda was exceedingly powerful, you trampled him down with your foot. Therefore you have been born from long ago just for the destruction of the thieving Rākṣasas."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 173)

— "You have defended Kutsa in fatal fights with Sushna ; You have destroyed Sambara in defence of Atithigwa ; you have trodden with your foot upon the great Arbuda ; from remote times you were born for the destruction [sic: printed "destructlon"] of oppressors."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 173-175 ³⁷ - kutsam — "Kutsa is a warrior; his name occurs in many places in the Ṛgveda. Since his name was very ancient, not many matters about him are known in the Ṛgveda. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 4-16-... [?]; 6-... [?];

37. all Ṛgveda, Brāhmaṇa and other numerals in the long lists are small Kannada digits; They are given as read, every one marked [?]; No attempt has been made to reconcile them against outside lists

8-1-11 [?] he is called Ārjuneya, 'the son of Arjuna', and his name is hinted at in various places when Indra fought with the Asura Śuṣṇa. This is hinted in Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-6-3 [?]; 1-121-9 [?]; ... and others (a list of about ten Riks). The matter of his being compared with Smadibha, Tugra and Vetasu is told in Ṛ. Saṃ. 10-49-4 [?]. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-53-10 [?]; 5-... [?]; 8-53-2 [?] his name occurs with Atithigva and Āyu. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-53-10 [?] it is said that he was defeated by Turvayāṇa. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-... [?]; 6-... [?] he is counted as a friend of Indra. Besides this his name occurs in Ṛ. Saṃ. 10-... [?]; the Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa 9-... [?]; the Jaiminīya Brāhmaṇa 1-... [?]." - śuṣṇahatyēṣu — "In the battle that kills the Rākṣasa named Śuṣṇa." - atithigvāya — "Śambara, the Asura, harassed greatly Divodāsa, who went anywhere for the sake of guests. Indra killed such a Śambara to protect Divodāsa. See p. 174." - cit — "This word means 'even though greatly grown'." - sanāt — "Its meaning 'from a long time' may be known as obtained from sanātana by the dropping of a part of the word (padaikadeśa)."

- atithigvāya (continued, p. 174) — "The name Atithigva is found in many places in the Ṛgveda. Because he is generally mentioned in all those places along with a king named Divodāsa, there are strong reasons for supposing that they are one and the same person. Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-53-8 [?]; 1-103-8 [?]; 1-130-7 [?]; 4-26-3 [?]; 6-18-13 [?] support this. In these places the matter of his fighting with Śambara is hinted. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-53-8 [?]; 10-48-8 [?] it is said that he was Indra's helper when Indra destroyed Parṇaya and Karañja. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 2-19-6 [?] he is said to be an enemy of Turvaśa and Yadu. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-53-10 [?]; 3-... [?]; 6-... [?]; 8-53-2 [?] it is stated that Atithigva, with Āyu and Kutsa, compared Turvayāṇa. In the Dānastuti of Ṛ. Saṃ. 8-68-15-16 [?], the Atithigva met with may be a different person; his son's name there is Indrota. Some Western scholars hold that there were three persons named Atithigva: one an enemy of Parṇaya and Karañja; the second, Atithigva Divodāsa; the third, an enemy of Turvayāṇa. But since his name was used especially in that ancient time, he is regarded as an ancient hero, and so appears in many Riks." - śambaram — "Śambara is an enemy of Indra. His name and his story are told in R. Saṃ. 1-51-6 [sic, this Rik]; 1-54-4 [?]; 1-59-6 [?]; 1-101-3 [?]; 1-103-8 [?]; 1-112-14 [?]; 1-130-7 [?]; 2-12-11 [?]; 2-14-6 [?]; 2-19-6 [?]; 4-26-3 [?]; 4-30-14 [?]; 6-18-8 [?]; 6-26-5 [?]; 6-31-4 [?]; 6-43-1 [?]; 6-47-2 [?]; 6-47-21 [?]; 7-18-20 [?]; 7-99-5 [?] (list as read, many doubtful). In R. Saṃ. 4-30-14 [?] he is said to be a dāsa, son of Kulitara. In general his name occurs together with Śuṣṇa, Pipru and Varcin. It is said in R. Saṃ. 1-130-7 [?]; 2-19-6 [?]; 2-14-6 [?] that he had 90, 99 and 100 forts. In R. Saṃ. 2-24-2 [?] the word śambarāṇi has been used to indicate his forts. He was Divodāsa Atithigva's chief enemy, and it is described in R. Saṃ. 6-... [?]; 1-130-7 [?]; 2-19-6 [?]; 4-26-3 [?] and others that Atithigva defeated him with Indra's help." "Some Western scholars have expressed different views about this Śambara — one doubts whether he was a really living person or only famous by name. Hillebrandt takes him to be a real person, the chief enemy of Divodāsa (p. 175;) and he thinks that he was a chief of the earlier inhabitants of this country, who, dwelling in hill-fortresses, gave trouble to the Āryas." - arbudam — "He is a Rākṣasa. In the Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa 25-13 [?] (as read) one named Arbuda is said to be a priest (ṛtvij) who performs the grāvastuti at the sarpa-sacrifice. Probably he may be the ṛṣi Arbudaḥ Kādraveyaḥ seen in the mantras of Aitareya Brāhmaṇa 6-1 [?]; Kauṣītaki Brāhmaṇa 29-1 [?]; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa 13-... [?]. Not many matters about him are known."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁸ - arandhayaḥ: radha hiṃsāsaṃrādhyoḥ, curādi, lañ second singular sip; ñic in the own sense; num by radhijabhor aci; śap, guṇa, ayādeśa: arandhayaḥ. - atithigvāya: atithibhir gantavyaḥ atithigvaḥ; gam with the Uṇādi suffix ḍvu ([?] as read "ḍva"); ṭi lost (ṭeḥ) though the bha-designation is absent; m lost; dative singular. - kramiḥ: kramu pādavikṣepe, bhvādi, luñ

38. pp. 175–176 — grammar pages, noted briefly

second singular sip; cli replaced by sic; iṭ; īṭ by asticisipo 'prkte; iṭ before īṭ lost; vṛddhi barred by hyantakṣaṇasvasajāgrṇiśvyeditām (Pā. 7-2-5 as read [?]) since the root ends in m; aṭ not applied by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi; ru, visarga. - padā: from pād in the instrumental singular, pad by padannomāsa... (Pā. 6-1-63 as read [?]); the vibhakti-accent by sāvekācas tṛtīyādiḥ (the vibhakti after a mono-syllable stem is acute) overriding the anudātta; or by ūḍidaṃ padādi... (Pā. 6-1-171 as read [?]). - jajñiṣe: janī prādurbhāve, divādi, liṭ second singular thās, se by thāsaḥ se; iṭ because the ending is ardhadhātuka; reduplication, halādiḥ śeṣaḥ, jajan + ise; gamahanajana... (Pā. 6-4-98 as read [?]) removes the a; n → ñ by the conjunct with the i; ṣatva of s after iṇ. || 6 ||

original p. 176

Rik 7

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

त्वे विश्वा तविषी सध्यग्धिता तव राधः सोमपीथाय हर्षते । तव वज्रश्चिकिते बाहोर्हितो वृश्वा शत्रोरव विश्वानि वृष्ण्या ॥ ७ ॥

tve viśvā taviṣī sadhryag ghitā tava rādhaḥ somapīthāya harṣate |
tava vajraś cikite bāhvor hito vṛścā śatror ava viśvāni vṛṣṇyā || 7
||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वे इति । विश्वा । तविषी । सध्यक् । हिता । तव । राधः । सोमपीथाय । हर्षते । तव । वज्रः । चिकिते । बाहोः । हितः । वृश्च । शत्रोः । अव । विश्वानि । वृष्ण्या ॥ ७ ॥ tve iti | viśvā | taviṣī | sadhryak | hitā | tava | rādhaḥ | somapīthāya | harṣate | tava | vajraḥ | cikite | bāhvoḥ | hitaḥ | vṛśca

| śatroḥ | ava | viśvāni | vṛṣṇyā || 7 || ³⁹

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

39. The Pada's "vṛśca" for the Saṃhitā's "vṛścā" is as printed.

हे इन्द्र त्वे त्वयि विश्वा तविषी सर्वं बलं सध्यक् [सम्यगञ्जनं?] यथा भवति तथा
हिता निहिता । तथा तव राधो मनः सोमपीथाय सोमपानाय हर्षते । हृष्यति । किञ्च
तव बाह्वोर्हस्तयोर्हितोऽवस्थितो वज्रश्चिकिते । अस्माभिर्ज्ञायते । अतः शत्रोः
शातयितुर्वृत्रस्य विश्वानि सर्वाणि वृष्ण्या वृष्ण्यानि वीर्याण्यववृश्च । भेदनं कुरु ॥

he indra tve tvayi viśvā taviṣī sarvaṃ balaṃ sadhryak [samyagajñanam?] yathā bhavati tathā hitā nihitā | tathā tava rādho manaḥ somapīthāya somapānāya harṣate | hr̥ṣyati | kiñca tava bāhvor hastayor hito 'vasthito vajras cikite | asmābhir jñāyate | ataḥ śatroḥ śātayituh vṛtrasya viśvāni sarvāṇi vṛṣṇyā vṛṣṇyāni vīryāṇy ava vṛśca | bhedanam kuru |

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, in you (tve) all strength (viśvā taviṣī) is sadhryak — placed together, concentrated — hitā, laid. And your rādhaḥ, mind, rejoices (harṣate) for drinking soma (somapīthāya). Moreover, the thunderbolt, hitaḥ, placed, in your two arms, is known (cikite) to us. Therefore, of the enemy, the harassing Vṛtra, cut off (ava vṛśca) all (viśvāni) the manly powers (vṛṣṇyā) — split them."

Grammatical tail of the bhāṣya ⁴⁰: sadhryak (saha añcatīti, the suffix kvin, the sahasya sadhriḥ substitution in the compound; accent); rādhaḥ (rādhnoti samṛddho bhavaty anena, "here rādhaḥ means mind"; asun suffix, initial acute because n-marked); somapīthāya (pā pāne, the suffix thak by pāṭṛtudivacidhūsūsūtisūyatibhyas... [?] — as read the list is crowded — with ghumāsthā... the ī); harṣate (hr̥ṣa tuṣṭau; śap by vyatyaya; ātmanepada); cikite (kita jñāne; the liṭ in the present-passive sense, by chandasi luñlañliṭaḥ); bāhvoḥ (the vibhakti-accent udāttena); vṛśca (oś vraścū chedane, tudādi; saṃprasāraṇa by grahijyā...; the vikaraṇa-accent; lengthening in saṃhitā by dyubhyo 'ṇ...); vṛṣṇyā (vṛṣa secane, Uñādi nak; tatra bhavāni vṛṣṇyāni, bhave chandasi yat; initial-acute by yato 'nāvaḥ; śeś chandasi — the ś-substitute dropped).

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) tve — in you; viśvā taviṣī — all strength; sadhryak hitā — has been together concentrated; tava — your; rādhaḥ — mind; somapīthāya — for the drinking of the soma juice; harṣate — becomes glad; tava bāhvoḥ — in your hands; hitaḥ — placed; vajraḥ — the thunderbolt; cikite — has come to be known (to us; therefore); śatroḥ — of the destroying enemy; viśvāni vṛṣṇyā — all prowess; ava vṛśca — split off."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, all strength is concentrated together in you. Your mind rejoices for the drinking of the soma juice. We know that you keep the thunderbolt in your hands. Therefore split off all the prowess of the destroying enemy."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 177)

— "O Indra, all vigour is fully concentrated in you ; your will delight to [sic: "your will" for "your mind" — printed so] drink the soma juice ; it is known by us that the thunderbolt is deposited in your hands ; cut off all prowess from the enemy."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayaḥ), p. 177 ff. - tve — "tvayi: according to Vedic procedure, in the locative case the form tve is obtained in place of tvayi." ⁴¹

Rik 51.7, continued ^{42 43}

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayaḥ), p. 178 (continued) - sadhryak — "sadhrīcīnam ... yathā bhavati tathā: this word, joined with the word hitā, gives the sense of an army-strength

41. The special topics of this Rik continue on p. 178; they are given in the next batch.

42. pp. 178–179, PDF 194–195

43. Correction to the bhāṣya reading above, from the first Special Topic on p. 178: the Kannada note on sadhryak begins "sadhrīcīnam ... yathā bhavati tathā", so the doubtful phrase after sadhryak in the bhāṣya is probably sadhrīcīnam, "going together", not samyag añcanam, the earlier reading [?]; the line is crowded, still [?].

that is mighty and trustworthy and cannot be opposed for any reason. It is a word that conveys, in a simple phrase, all the special qualities of the strength of Devendra." - somapīthāya — "Here the word pītha is used in the sense of drinking." - vṛṣṇyā — "vṛṣṇyāni vīryāṇi: the word vṛṣṇya, formed from the root vṛṣa secane, 'to sprinkle', gives the sense of vīrya, prowess." - vṛśca — "Its meaning is 'cut'. In the Saṃhitā alone it is pronounced long by the sūtra dvyaco 'tas tiṇaḥ (Pā. 6-3-135)."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁴ - sadhryak: saha aṅcatīti; aṅcu gatipūjanayoḥ; kvin after the root when a subanta stands as the upapada (ṛtvikdadhrk..., Pā. 3-2-59); the nasal of aṅc lost by aniditām...; with saha in the compound, sahasya sadhriḥ (Pā. 6-3-95) gives sadhri; su elided by halṇyābbhyo...; co kuḥ (Pā. 8-2-30) turns c into k; the accent of the final member by gatikārapapadāt kṛt is overridden by the rule that adrisadhryor antodāttatvaṃ nipātanam (as read [?]); the semi-vowel by udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ (Pā. 8-2-4) gives a svarita-ending word. - rādhah: rādha saṃsiddhau, "rādhnoti saṃṛddho bhavaty anena"; the Uṇādi asun by sarvadhātubhyo 'sun (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]); rādhas; initial-acute by ñityādir nityam. - somapīthāya: somasya pīthaḥ; pā pāne, bhvādi; thak by pāṭṛtudivaci... (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]); ghumāsthāgāpā... (Pā. 6-4-66) gives ī; dative. - harṣate: hrṣa tuṣṭau, divādi; laṭ third singular; śyan replaced by śap by vyatyayo bahulam; guṇa; nighāta. - cikite: kita jñāne; by chandasi luṇlaṇṭiṭaḥ a liṭ in the present passive sense; reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; cutva. - bāhvoḥ: genitive dual; the vibhakti-accent by udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt (Pā. 6-1-174 as read [?]). - vṛśca: ovraścū chedane, tudādi, loṭ second singular sip; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ; because sip is apit, the śa is ñit; saṃprasāraṇa by grahijyā... (Pā. 6-1-16); hi for sip, elided by ato heḥ; accent from the vikaraṇa, end-acute; in the Saṃhitā lengthened by dvyaco 'tas tiṇaḥ. - vṛṣṇyā: vṛṣa secane; the Uṇādi suffix nak: vṛṣṇa; vṛṣṇe bhavāni vṛṣṇyāni; bhave

chandasi (Pā. 4-4-110 as read [?]) gives yat; yasyeti ca drops the a; accusative plural śas → śi, which is lost by śeś chandasi; the initial acute by yato 'nāvaḥ (Pā. 6-1-213) as the yat-ending word. || 7 ||

original p. 180

Rik 8

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

वि जानीह्यार्यान् ये च दस्यवो बर्हिष्मते रन्धया शासदव्रतान् । शाकी भव यजमानस्य चोदिता विश्वेता ते सधमादेषु चाकन ॥ ८ ॥

vi jānīhy āryān ye ca dasyavo barhiṣmate randhayā śāsad avratān
| śākī bhava yajamānasya coditā viśvet tā te sadhamādeṣu cākana
|| 8 ||

Pada-pāṭha

वि । जानीहि । आर्यान् । ये । च । दस्यवः । बर्हिष्मते । रन्धय । शासत् । अव्रतान् । शाकी । भव । यजमानस्य । चोदिता । विश्वा । इत् । ता । ते । सधऽमादेषु । चाकन ॥ ८ ॥

vi | jānīhi | āryān | ye | ca | dasyavaḥ | barhiṣmate | randhaya |
śāsāt | avratān | śākī | bhava | yajamānasya | coditā | viśvā | it
| tā | te | sadha-mādeṣu | cākana || 8 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वमार्यान् कर्मण्यनुष्ठातृस्तान् [?] वि जानीहि । विशेषेण बुध्यस्व । ये च
दस्यवस्तेषामनुष्ठातृणामुपक्षपयितारः शत्रवस्तानपि वि जानीहीति शेषः । ज्ञात्वा च
बर्हिष्मते बर्हिषा यज्ञेन युक्ताय यजमानायाव्रतान् । व्रतमिति कर्मनाम ।
कर्मविरोधिनस्तान् रन्धय । हिंसां प्रापय । यद्वा । यजमानस्य वशं गमय ।
रध्यतिर्वशगमने (नि. ६-३२ [?]) इति यास्कः । किं कुर्वन् । शासत्
दुष्टानामनुशासनं निग्रहं कुर्वन् [?] । अतः शाकी शक्तियुक्तस्त्वं यजमानस्य
चोदिता प्रेरको भव । यज्ञविघातकानसुरांस्तिरस्कृत्य यज्ञान्यजमानैः
सम्यगनुष्ठापयेति भावः । अहमपि स्तोता ते तव ता तानि पूर्वोक्तानि कर्माणि विश्वेत् सर्वाण्येव सधमादेषु सहमदनयुक्तेषु यज्ञेषु स्तोतुं चाकन । कामये ।

he indra tvam āryān karmaṇy anuṣṭhātṛṃs tān [?] vi jānīhi |
 viśeṣeṇa budhyasva | ye ca dasyavas teṣām anuṣṭhātṛṇām
 upakṣapayitāraḥ śatravas tān api vi jānīhīti śeṣaḥ | jñātvā ca
 barhiṣmate barhiṣā yajñena yuktāya yajamānāyāvratān | vratam
 iti karmanāma | karmavirodhinas tān randhaya | hiṃsāṃ
 prāpaya | yadvā | yajamānasya vaśaṃ gamaya | radhyatir
 vaśagamane (ni. 6-32 [?]) iti yāskaḥ | kiṃ kurvan | śāsat
 duṣṭānām anuśāsanam nigrahaṃ kurvan [?] | ataḥ śākī śaktiyuktas tvaṃ yajamānasya coditā prerako bhava | yajñavighātakān asurāṃs tiraskṛtya yajñān yajamānaiḥ samyag anuṣṭhāpayeti bhāvaḥ | aham api stotā te tava tā tāni pūrvoktāni karmāṇi viśvet sarvāṇy eva sadhamādeṣu sahamadanayukteṣu
 yajñeṣu stotuṃ cākana | kāmaya | ⁴⁵

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, vi jānīhi, discern especially, the āryān — those who perform the rites — and also those dasyavaḥ, who destroy these performers, the enemies; discern them too (this is understood). Having discerned, barhiṣmate, for the sacrificer who is joined with the barhis, the sacrifice, randhaya, bring to destruction avratān the 'vow-less' (vrata is a name for ritual action; so, the ones opposed to the rites); or, bring them under the sacrificer's control — 'the root radh means "to come under control"' says Yāska — doing what? śāsat, doing chastisement, restraint, of the wicked. Therefore, śākī, you who are powerful, yajamānasya coditā bhava, be the impeller of the sacrificer: having set aside the Asuras who obstruct the sacrifice, let the sacrificers duly perform the sacrifices — such is the sense.

45. Reading notes: "karmaṇy anuṣṭhātṛṇ" and "duṣṭānām" are crowded in the print — [?]; the Nirukta numeral is as read, [?]. The grammatical tail on p. 180–181 — jānīhi with the sūtra jñājanor jā, barhiṣmate, randhaya, śāsat, śākī, viśvā, sadhamādeṣu, cākana — is characterized, not transcribed: it argues, as the Kannada grammar notes on p. 183 also do, about the shortening of the root vowel under the rule prādinām hrasvaḥ.

And I too, the praiser, te tā viśvet, all those deeds of yours, spoken of above, sadhamādeṣu, in sacrifices attended by joint delight, to praise them cākana, I desire."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra, you) āryān — the Āryas (who are wise and perform the rites); vi jānihi — discern by discrimination; ye ca dasyavaḥ — and those enemies who are thieves (who harass such Āryas) — (discern them also by discrimination, afterwards); barhiṣmate — to the sacrificer who is joined with the sacrifice; avratān — the Dasyus who oppose the rites; śāsāt — punishing (restraining); randhaya — make them subject (or: harm them and destroy them); śākī — you who are mighty; yajamānasya — of the sacrificer; coditā bhava — be the impeller (and I, your devotee, also); te — your; tā viśvet — all those deeds described before; sadhamādeṣu — in sacrifices that give you satisfaction; cākana — I wish to celebrate (them)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, discern by discrimination who are the Āryas — the wise and the performers of sacrifice — and who are the Dasyus who, without performing sacrifice, harass these Āryas. Chastise the Dasyus who oppose the rites, and bring them under the control of the sacrificer. And, being powerful, impel the sacrificer to carry the sacrifice through. I too wish to celebrate, in sacrifices that give you satisfaction, all your deeds described before."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 182)

— "Discriminate between the Aryas, and they who are Dasyus; restraining those who perform no religious rites, compel them to submit to the performer of sacrifices; you are powerful, be the encourage [sic: "encourager"] of the sacrificer; I am desirous of celebrating all your deeds in ceremonies that give you satisfaction."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 182 - āryān — "By Āryas are meant the good people who are attached to the acts prescribed in the Veda — sacrifice and the like — and who practise them; by dasyus, those who, in contrast to the acts of the Āryas, behave otherwise and do not perform sacrifice and the like — this becomes clear. Further, these Dasyus were the Kṛṣṇa people [?] (kappu janaru, 'black people') who were the former inhabitants of this country and were hostile to the Āryas; not mixing with them, they gave them troubles of many kinds; hence the sages have described them as thieves and as enemies of the gods in various places. Āryān: this word, meaning 'worthy of honour', gives the sense of persons who are both learned and performers of sacrifice and ritual." - dasyavaḥ — "These are lowly people who inflict violence, in various ways, on believers (āstikas) who are attached to Vedic acts such as sacrifice. Indra is prayed to be the helper of the people before him, both to protect the believers and to punish the unbelievers." - avratān — "Those who are without vrata, that is, those hostile to all Vedic acts." - randhaya — "This word may be said to mean either 'do violence' or 'subdue'. The Nirukta sūtra 'radhyatir vaśagamane' (Ni. 6-32 as read [?]) indicates the latter sense."

रथ्यतिर्वशगमने । (Ni. 6-32 as read [?])

radhyatir vaśagamane | — editorial and tentative: "the root radh is in the sense of 'coming under control'." - śākī — "'Possessed of power, all-capable': in this sense the word is an epithet of the name Indra." - viśvā it — viśvet — "Here the word it is used in the sense of 'only' (evakāra)." - sadhamādeṣu — "sahamadanayukteṣu yajñeṣu stotum: 'for praising in sacrifices that are joined with common delight'. By the derivation saha mādyanti eṣu, 'where they rejoice together', the word sadhamāda gives the sense of sacrifice. Because the act the sacrificer does, bound by the consecration (dīkṣā), along with the hotṛ and the udgātṛ, is a sacrifice, the word sadhamāda is established in the sense of sacrifice." - cākana — (p. 183) "Formed from the root kan, with the senses 'brightness, desire, motion', this word conveys the sense of desire ('I know' [sic: the print has "ತಿಳಿಯುತ್ತೇನೆ" 'I come to know'? — read 'I wish'])." ⁴⁶

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁷ - jānihi: jñā avabodhane, kryādi, loṭ second singular; hi by sip's substitute, which being apit is ñit, so śnā gives nī by īhal...; jñājanor jā (Pā. 7-3-79 as read [?]) substitutes jā; the long ā. The Kannada notes record at length the discussion of whether prādinām hrasvaḥ (shortening for the kryādi group "pra...") applies: on one view the vṛt-karaṇa in plī gatau ended the group; on another it holds only for lvādi; the conclusion is that, because the sūtra jñājanor jā itself carries the long vowel's mention (dīrghoccāraṇa), no shortening comes here. Jānihi. - barhiṣmate: barhir asyāsti iti barhiṣmān, dative singular; with matup the pada-designation would apply before it (sāv... svaraḥ); here, by tasau matvarthe, the word takes the bha-designation, so rutva and jaśtva do not occur; ṣatva: barhiṣmate. - randhaya: radha hiṃsāsamrādhyaḥ, as explained under āñ in an earlier mantra. - śāsata: śāsu anuśiṣṭau, adādi; śatṛ by laṭaḥ śatṛśānacau...; śap elided by adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ; jakṣityādayaḥ śaṭ (Pā. 6-1-6) — the seven roots jakṣ... are called abhyasta even when not reduplicated; so num is barred by nābhyastācchatuḥ (Pā. 7-1-78 as read [?]); the initial acute by abhyastānām ādiḥ (Pā. 6-1-189 as read [?]). ⁴⁸

Rik 51.8, continued ⁴⁹ - śākī: śak śaktau, svādi; ghañ in the sense of the action; the ñit gives vṛddhi of the penultimate a (ata upadhāyāḥ): śāka; "śākam asyāstīti śākī": the suffix ini in the sense "having" by ata inīṭhanau; the accent that comes from the

46. The Kannada word after the parenthesis is a crowded small print; The sense is taken from the Pratipadārtha, "I wish".

47. pp. 181, 183–184 — grammar pages, noted briefly

48. The continuation of this grammar — on śākī, viśvā, sadhamādeṣu, cākana — is on p. 184, given with the next batch.

49. p. 184, PDF 200 — grammar page, noted briefly

suffix would be end-acute, but by vyatyaya in the Veda it is initial-acute; or, since the word is read in the vṛṣādi list, the initial-acute comes by vṛṣādīnām ca (Pā. 6-1-203 as read [?]). - viśvā tā: for viśvāni tāni; the neuter plural substitute śi is dropped by śeś chandasi bahulam; the two words are viśvā, tā. - sadhamādeṣu: "saha mādyanti eṣu" — sadamādāḥ — the sacrifices in which all rejoice; from the root mad harṣe, the suffix ghaṇ in the locative sense; the a lengthened gives māda. Here an objection arises: when a non-preposition is the upapada, mado 'nupasarge (Pā. 3-3-67 as read [?]) gives ap in place of ghaṇ; how then does the form come from ghaṇ? Answer given in the Dhātuvṛtti: the Nyāsakāra explains that the sūtra vyadhajapor anupasarge (Pā. 3-3-61 as read [?]), which stands just before and also gives ap, could have taken mad into it; that mad has been kept separate as mado 'nupasarge shows that ghaṇ is also optionally obtained for this root; so the desired form comes from the optional ghaṇ. Sadhamādestha-yoś chandasi (Pā. 6-3-96 as read [?]) gives sadha for saha; locative plural sadhamādeṣu. - cākana: kana dīptikāntigatiṣu, here in the sense of desire (kānti); liṭ in the present sense by chandasi luṇlaṇṇiṭaḥ; the first-person ṇal; reduplication, halādiḥ śeṣaḥ, cutva; the ṇ is optional by ṇal uttamo vā (Pā. 7-1-91 as read [?]), so no vṛddhi here; the reduplicative vowel is lengthened because the root is read in the tujādi list (tujādīnām dīrgho 'bhyāsasya): cākana. || 8 ||

original pp. 185–188

Rik 9

Samhitā-pāṭha

अनुव्रताय रन्धयन्नपव्रतानाभूभिरिन्द्रः शनथयन्ननाभुवः । वृद्धस्य चिद्वर्धतो द्यामिनक्षतः स्तवानो वम्रो वि जघान संदिहः ॥ ९ ॥

anuvratāya randhayann apavratān ābhūbhir indraḥ śnathayann anābhuvah | vṛddhasya cid vardhato dyām inakṣataḥ stavāno vamro vi jaghāna saṃdihah || 9 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अनुऽव्रताय । रन्धयन् । अपऽव्रतान् । आऽभूभिः । इन्द्रः । शनथयन् । अनाऽभुवः । वृद्धस्य । चित् । वर्धतः । द्याम् । इनक्षतः । स्तवानः । वम्रः । वि । जघान । सम्ऽदिहः ॥ ९ ॥

anu-vratāya | randhayan | apa-vratān | ābhūbhiḥ | indrah |
śnathayan | anābhuvah | vṛddhasya | cit | vardhataḥ | dyām |
inakṣataḥ | stavānaḥ | vamraḥ | vi | jaghāna | saṃ-dihah || 9 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

य इन्द्रोऽनुव्रतायानुकूलकर्मणे यजमानायापव्रतानपगतकर्मणो यजमानान् रन्धयन्
हिंसयन् स्वीकुर्वन्वा । तथाभूभिः आभिमुख्येन भवन्तीत्याभुवः स्तोतारः ।
तैरनाभुवस्तद्विपरीतान् शनथयन् हिंसयन् वर्तते । वृद्धस्य चिद्वर्धतः पूर्वं वृद्धस्यापि
पुनर्वर्धमानस्य द्यामिनक्षतः स्वर्गं व्याप्नुवतस्तस्येन्द्रस्य स्तवानः स्तुतिं कुर्वाणो वम्रः
स्तुत्यृद्धिरणशील [?] एतत्संज्ञक ऋषिः संदिहः सम्यगुपचिता [?] वल्मीकवपा
[print perhaps वसा, [?]] वि जघान । इन्द्रेण परिहृतान्तरायः सन्
पृथिव्याः सारभूतं वल्मीकवपालक्षणं यज्ञसंभारमाहर्षीदित्यर्थः । तथा च शाखान्तरे
सामान्नातम् । यद्वल्मीकवपासंभारो भवति ऊर्जमेव रसं पृथिव्या अवरुन्धे । तै. ब्रा.
[?] इति ॥

ya indro 'nuvratāyānukūlakarmaṇe yajamānāyāpavratān
apagatakarmaṇo yajamānān randhayan hiṃsayan svīkurvan vā |
tathā ābhūbhiḥ ābhimukhyena bhavantīty ābhuvah stotārah | tair anābhuvah tadviparītān śnathayan hiṃsayan vartate | vṛddhasya cid vardhataḥ pūrvam vṛddhasyāpi punar vardhamānasya dyām inakṣataḥ svargam vyāpnuvatas tasyendrasya stavānaḥ stutiṃ kurvāṇo vamraḥ stutyṛddhiraṇaśīla [?] etatsaṃjña ṛṣiḥ saṃdihah samyag upacitā [?] valmīkavapā [print perhaps vasā, [?]] vi jaghāna | indreṇa parihṛtāntarāyaḥ san pṛthivyāḥ sārabhūtaṃ
valmīkavapālakṣaṇam yajñasaṃbhāram āhārṣīd ity arthaḥ | tathā
ca śākhāntare samāmnātam | yad valmīkavapāsaṃbhāro bhavati
ūrjam eva rasaṃ pṛthivyā avarundhe | tai. brā. [?] iti || 50

Translation of the bhāṣya: "That Indra who, for anuvratāya, the sacrificer who performs favourable rites, randhayan, harming — or bringing under his control — apavratān, the sacrificers who have turned away from the rites, and with the ābhūbhiḥ, those who stand facing him — the praisers — śnathayan, striking down anābhuvah, the opposite kind — thus he abides. Vṛddhasya cit vardhataḥ, though grown earlier, growing again, dyām inakṣataḥ, pervading the sky, of that Indra stavānaḥ, offering praise, vamraḥ, the ṛṣi of that name (who is eager for the success of his praise [?]), saṃdihah, the well-gathered (materials), the ant-hill vapā, [?] vi jaghāna — took away: freed by Indra from obstacles, he fetched the sacrificial material — described as the ant-hill fat, the very essence of the earth — is the sense. So it is declared in another śākhā: 'because there is a collection of ant-hill fat, he wins the very sap, the essence of the earth' (Tai. Brā., numeral [?])."

Pratipadārtha — "indrah — Indra; anuvratāya — for the sacrificer who performs rites that are favourable; apavratān — those who have left the rites, the lapsed ones; randhayan — subduing and bringing them under his control, and; ābhūbhiḥ — with those who face (the deities) and praise; anābhuvah — those who do not worship; śnathayan — he strikes down (and stays firm); vṛddhasya cit vardhataḥ — though grown earlier, again growing; dyām inakṣataḥ — who pervades all heaven; stavānaḥ — the praising; vamraḥ — the sage named Vamra; saṃdihah — the sacrificial materials that are well-gathered; vi jaghāna — carried off."

Bhāvārtha

50. Reading notes: the line "vamraḥ stutyṛddhiraṇaśīla" and "saṃdihah samyag upacitā" are crowded and doubtful, [?]; "svargaṃ" is read for the sky-going sense from the anuvāda; the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa reference numeral is unreadable. The grammatical tail — on anuvratāya, śnathayan, vardhataḥ, inakṣataḥ, stavānaḥ, jaghāna, saṃdihah — is characterized below.

— "Indra, for the sake of the sacrificer who performs sacrificial rites, subduing and bringing under his own control the lapsed sacrificers who have left the rites, stands firm, striking down all those who do not worship, by means of the devotees who stand facing him and praise him. The sage named Vamra, who praises this Indra — who, though earlier grown, is again growing and pervades all heaven — carried off the well-gathered sacrificial materials for Indra."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 186)

— "Indra abides, humbling the neglecters of holy acts in favour of those who observe them, and punishing those who turn away from his worship in favour of those who are present with their praise ; Vamra, while praising him though old still growing, and spreading through heaven, carried off the accumulated (materials of the sacrifice)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 186–187 - anuvratāya

— "This is an epithet of the sacrificer who performs yāga and the like according to the rule laid down in the śruti — by the derivation 'anukūlaṃ vrataṃ yasya saḥ', 'one whose rite is favourable'." - ābhūbhiḥ — "ābhimukhyena bhavantīti ābhuvāḥ stotāraḥ: the praisers who, standing in front of the deities, recite praise." - vṛddhasya cit — "vardhataḥ: it makes clear the sense of Indra 'who, though already grown (even if of small strength), is growing again by other powers'." - cit — "The word cit is here used in the sense of 'again'." - dyām inakṣataḥ — "dyām — inakṣataḥ: one who moves, or abides, in the sky. In inakṣataḥ, formed from the root nakṣ gatau, the first-standing i is Vedic (chāndasa) and does not come within the grammatical rules; or one must say that there is a separate stem inakṣati, with the sense 'to go'." - vamraḥ — "The name of a sage who repeatedly wishes to recite praise of the deities. He praised Indra much, removed all the obstacles, and procured the sacrificial material called valmīkavapā, the essence of the earth. That valmīkavapā is the essence of the earth the śruti 'yad valmīkavapāsaṃbhāro bhavati ūrjam eva rasaṃ pṛthivyā avarundhe' (Tai. Brā. numeral as read [?]) is the proof."

यद्वल्मीकवपासंभारो भवति । ऊर्जमेव रसं पृथिव्या अवरुन्दे । (Tai. Brā. numeral [?])

yad valmīkavapāsaṃbhāro bhavati | ūrjam eva rasaṃ pṛthivyā avarundhe | — editorial and tentative: "when there is a collection of ant-hill fat, he wins the very sap (ūrj), the essence, of the earth."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵¹ - anuvratāya: anukūlaṃ vrataṃ yasya saḥ anuvrataḥ, a bahuvrīhi; the accent of the first member by bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam; dative. - śnathayan: śnatha hiṃsāyām, bhvādi; śatṛ after ṇic; vṛddhi of the penultimate (ata upadhāyāḥ): śnāthayat; the root being in the ghaṭādi group within the bhvādi, it has the mit designation (ghaṭādayo mitaḥ), and so mitām hrasvaḥ (Pā. 6-4-92 as read [?]) shortens it before ṇic; nominative singular, num, sulopa, talopa: śnathayan. - vardhataḥ: vṛdhu vṛddhau, bhvādi, anudāttet; by vyatyayo bahulam the parasmaipada suffix (śatṛ) appears in place of sānac; genitive singular vardhataḥ. - inakṣataḥ: nakṣ gatau; śatṛ in the present sense; a Vedic i comes as upapada [?]; genitive singular; or a separate root inakṣati, "to go", which is not in the Dhātupāṭha and has to be known from usage (anuvāda); the roots of bhvādi and curādi are ākṛtigaṇa, so such roots must be taken into them. - stavānaḥ: ṣṭuñ stutau, adādi; sam ānac stuvaḥ (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]) — ānac after this root when sam is the upapada; by the word bahulam, ānac also comes without an upapada; with ānac alone the root takes guṇa and avādeśa; stavāna; initial-acute by vyatyaya instead of the suffix-accent. - jaghāna: han hiṃsāgatyoḥ, adādi, liṭ third singular, ṇal; reduplication, halādiḥ śeṣaḥ, cutva; abhyāsāc ca (Pā. 7-3-55) — the h of han after a reduplicative

51. pp. 187–188 — grammar pages, noted briefly

syllable becomes a k-class letter, gha by nearness: jaghāna. - saṃdihah: diha upacaye, adādi; kṛtyalyuṭo bahulam (Pā. 3-3-113), by bahulam kvip in the object sense; sarvalopa; accusative plural saṃdihah; gaticārapapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the final member. || 9 ||

original p. 188

Rik 10

Samhitā-pāṭha

तक्षत्त उशना सहसा सहो वि रोदसी मज्मना बाधते शवः । आ त्वा वातस्य नृमणो मनोयुज आ पूर्यमाणमवहन्मभि श्रवः ॥ १० ॥

takṣad yat ta uśanā sahasā saho vi rodasī majmanā bādgate śavaḥ
| ā tvā vātasya nṛmaṇo manoyuja ā pūryamāṇam avahann abhi śravaḥ || 10 ||

Pada-pāṭha

तक्षत् । यत् । ते । उशना । सहसा । सहः । वि । रोदसी इति । मज्मना । बाधते । शवः । आ । त्वा । वातस्य । नृमनः । मनःऽयुजः । आ । पूर्यमाणम् । अवहन् । अभि । श्रवः ॥ १० ॥

takṣat | yat | te | uśanā | sahasā | sahaḥ | vi | rodasī iti |
majmanā | bādgate | śavaḥ | ā | tvā | vātasya | nṛ-manah |
manah-yujah | ā | pūryamāṇam | avahan | abhi | śravaḥ || 10 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र यद्यदोशना काव्यः सहसात्मीयेन बलेन ते सहस्त्वदीयं बलं तक्षत् तनूकृतवान्
। सम्यक् तीक्ष्णमकार्षीदित्यर्थः । तदा शवस्त्वदीयं बलं मज्मना सर्वस्य शोधकेन
स्वतैक्ष्ण्येन रोदसी द्यावापृथिव्यौ वि बाधते । ते बिभीत इत्यर्थः । तथा
चान्यत्राम्नातम् । यस्य शुष्माद्रोदसी अभ्यसेताम् (ऋग्वे. २-१२-१ [?]) इति । यद्वा
। रोदसी यस्माद्भृत्रादेर्बिभीतस्तं बाधत इत्यर्थः । हे नृमणः नृषु रक्षितव्येषु
यजमानेष्वनुग्रहबुद्धियुक्तेन्द्र आ पूर्यमाणं पूर्वोक्तेन बलेनैका [?] समन्तात्पूर्यमाणं

त्वा त्वां मनोयुजो मनोव्यापारमात्रेण युक्ता वातस्य वायोः संबन्धिनः तद्वेगेन गच्छन्त
इत्यर्थः । एवंभूता अश्वाः श्रवोऽभि हविर्लक्षणमन्नमभिलक्ष्यावहन् । अभिमुख्येन प्राप्यन्तु [?] ॥

*he indra yad yadośanā kāvyaḥ sahasātmīyena balena te sahas tvadīyaṃ balaṃ takṣat tanūkṛtavān | samyak tīkṣṇam akārṣīd ity arthaḥ | tadā śavas tvadīyaṃ balaṃ majmanā sarvasya śodhakena svataikṣṇyena rodasī dyāvāpṛthivyau vi bād̥hate | te bibhīta ity arthaḥ | tathā cānyatrāmnātam | yasya śuśmād rodasī abhyasetām (ṛgve. 2-12-1 [?]) iti | yadvā | rodasī yasmād vṛtrād er bibhītas taṃ bād̥hata ity arthaḥ | he nṛmaṇaḥ nṛṣu rakṣitaveṣu yajamāneṣv anugrahabuddhiyuktendra ā pūryamāṇaṃ pūrvoktena balenaikā [?] samantāt pūryamāṇaṃ tvā tvāṃ manoyujo manovyāpāramātreṇa yuktā vātasya vāyoḥ saṃbandhinaḥ tadvegena gacchanta ity arthaḥ | evaṃbhūtā aśvāḥ śravo 'bhi havirlakṣaṇam annam abhilakṣyāvahan | abhimukhyena
prāpyantu [?] | | ⁵²*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, when Uśanas Kāvya, with his own strength, takṣat, made keen — te sahaḥ, your strength — made it well sharpened, then your śavaḥ, strength, with majmanā, with its keenness that purifies everything, rodasī, heaven and earth, vi bād̥hate, afflicts: they are afraid, is the sense;

52. Reading notes: "pūrvoktena balenaikā" is crowded, [?]; the final verb is read as an imperative from the Pratipadārtha's "may bring"; the R̥gveda numeral in the quotation is as read, [?]. The grammatical tail — takṣat, uśanā, majmanā, nṛmaṇaḥ, avahan — is characterized: root takṣū tvakṣū tanūkaraṇe, a lañ without the aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pi; the accent of the root retained after the śap is mute-p; uśanā from vaś kāntau with an Uṇādi kanas [Uṇ. as read, [?]] and saṃprasāraṇa, with the sūtras kṣudhīśanasprudaṃśo... [?] and sarvanāmasthāne ca (Pā. 6-4-8) for the lengthening, and a loss of the final a of the stem; majmanā from masj with an Uṇādi manin; nṛmaṇaḥ the ṇatva after the avagraha by chandasy...; avahan a lañ in the prayer sense by chandasi luḥlañliṭaḥ [?].

and so it is said elsewhere: 'from whose might heaven and earth tremble' (Ṛg. 2-12-1 [?]). Or: it afflicts that Vṛtra and the like of whom heaven and earth are afraid. O nṛmaṇaḥ, Indra, kindly-minded towards the sacrificers who are to be protected: you, ā pūryamāṇam, filled all round with the strength spoken of before, — manoyujaḥ, yoked by a mere act of thought, belonging to the Wind (vātasya), going with its speed — such horses avahan, may bring [you], śravo 'bhi, towards the oblation, the food."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) yat — when; uśanā — Uśanas; sahasā — by his strength; te — your; sahaḥ — strength; takṣat — made very keen; śavaḥ — your strength; majmanā — with the keenness that purifies all; rodasī — both heaven and earth; vi bādgate — frightens (or: afflicts also Vṛtra, who tears them apart); nṛmaṇaḥ — O Indra, who are kindly-minded to the (sacrificing) men; ā pūryamāṇam — filled, by such strength, fully; tvā — you; manoyujaḥ — those that attach themselves to the chariot by thought alone; vātasya — of the Wind (those that can run with speed — the horses); śravaḥ abhi — towards the food in the form of the oblation; ā avahan — may they bring (you) facing it."

Rik 51.10, continued ⁵³

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, when Uśanas makes your strength keen with his own strength, then your strength, with the keenness that purifies everything, makes both earth and atmosphere tremble (it has the power to frighten even Vṛtra). O Indra, most kindly-minded among men, may the horses — which attach themselves to the chariot by mere thought, and run at the speed of the wind — bring you, who are of such power, facing the food in the form of the oblation."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 190)

— "If Usanas should sharpen your vigour by his own, then your might would terrify by its intensity both heaven and earth. Friend of man, let the will-harnessed horses, with the velocity of the wind convey you, replete with vigour to partake of the sacrificial food."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 190 - uśanā — "Uśanas is the son of Kavi; therefore the name Uśanā Kāvyaḥ has become established (Ṛ. Saṃ. 4-16-2 as read [?]). This Uśanas is a very ancient sage. His name occurs, generally together with Kutsa and Indra, in many Riks of the Ṛgveda — in about a dozen places given in small numerals (beginning with 1-51-10, this Rik), of which I do not trust the rest, [?] — and also in the Atharvaveda (4-29-6 as read [?]). It is said, in the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (numeral [?]), the Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa (numeral [?]), the Sāṅkhyāyana Śrauta Sūtra (numeral [?]) and other places, that when the Asuras fought with the deities, he was the purohita (family priest) of the Asuras." - majmanā — "A sharp nature that finds out everything; this is the power that Śukrācārya employed for destroying the army of the gods." - rodasī — "The earth and the atmosphere. Here is the occasion of praying to Indra to protect the earth and atmosphere, oppressed by the Asura Vṛtra. The śruti 'yasya śuṣmād rodasī abhyasetām' (Ṛ. Saṃ. 2-12-1 as read [?]) supports this sense."

यस्य शुष्माद्रोदसी अभ्यसेताम् । (Ṛ. Saṃ. numeral as read [?])

yasya śuṣmād rodasī abhyasetām | — editorial and tentative: "from whose might heaven and earth both trembled." - śavaḥ — "This word is here suitable in the sense of strength, or of army." - nṛmaṇaḥ — "One who protects, with kindly mind, the consecrated sacrificers who are to be protected (Indra)." - śravo 'bhi — "havirlakṣaṇam annam abhilakṣya: Here the sense is that your (Indra's) horses, running with the speed of the wind, may come, awaiting the oblation given by the sacrificers (the consecrated) at the time of the destruction of the enemies."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵⁴ - takṣat: takṣū tvakṣū tanūkarāṇe, bhvādi, lañ third singular; śap as the characteristic; the i of tip lost; the aṭ-augment does not come by bahulaṃ chandasy amāñyoge 'pi; śap being pit is anudātta, and so the accent of the root alone remains (dhātoḥ, end-acute). - uśanā: vaś kāntau, adādi; the suffix kanasi by vaśeḥ kanasiḥ (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]); being kit, saṃprasāraṇa by grahijyā...; v → u: u+aś+anas; the single substitute after saṃprasāraṇa is the earlier form: uśanas; in the nominative singular when the su follows, ṛduśanaspurudamaṣoneho 'nehasāṃ ca (Pā. 7-1-94) gives anañ for words ending in ṛ, uśanas and the like when it is not a vocative; the ñit... in the final place (anañ has mute ṛ, so substituted for the final); uśanan; sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau (Pā. 6-4-8) lengthens the penultimate of a stem in n when su follows; su dropped by halñyābbhyo...; nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya drops the n: uśanā. - majmanā: ṭumasjo śuddhau, tudādi; Uṇādi manin; masj + man: sko saṃyogādyor drops the s [of sj]; instrumental singular majmanā. - nṛmaṇaḥ: explained under an earlier mantra [as read, [?]]. - avahan: vaha prāpaṇe, bhvādi; chandasi luṅlaṅliṭaḥ gives lañ in the sense of prayer; third plural: avahan; the nighāta accent.

original pp. 191–194

Rik 11

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

मन्दिष्ट यदुशने काव्ये सचा इन्द्रो वङ्कू वङ्कुतराधि तिष्ठति । उग्रो ययिं निरपः स्रोतसासृजद्वि शुष्णस्य दृहिता ऐरयत्पुरः ॥ ११ ॥

mandiṣṭa yad uśane kāvyē sacā indro vaṅkū vaṅkutarādhi tiṣṭhati | ugro yayiṃ nir apaḥ srotasāsṛjad vi śuṣṇasya ḍṛṃhitā airayat puraḥ || 11 ||

Pada-pāṭha

मन्दिष्ट । यत् । उशने । काव्ये । सचा । इन्द्रः । वङ्कू इति । वङ्कुऽतरा । अधि । तिष्ठति ।
 उग्रः । ययिम् । निः । अपः । स्रोतसा । असृजत् । वि । शुष्णस्य । दृहिताः । ऐरयत् । पुरः ॥ ११ ॥

*mandiṣṭa | yat | uśane | kāvye | sacā | indraḥ | vaṅkū iti | vaṅku-tarā | adhi | tiṣṭhati | ugraḥ | yayim | niḥ | apaḥ | srotasā |
 asrjat | vi | śuṣṇasya | dr̥ṃhitāḥ | airayat | puraḥ || 11 ||* ⁵⁵

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

यद्यदेन्द्र उशने कामयमाने काव्ये सचा सह मन्दिष्ट स्तुतोऽभूत् तदानीं वङ्कू
 वङ्कुतरातिशयेन कुटिलं गच्छन्तावश्चावधितिष्ठति । रथे संयोजितमारोहतीत्यर्थः ।
 यद्वा वङ्कुतरातिशयेन वक्रं गच्छति रथे वङ्कू वक्रगमनशीलावश्चौ संयोज्येति
 योजनीयम् । उग्र उद्गूर्णस्तादृश इन्द्रो ययिं गमनयुक्तान्मेघात् स्रोतसा प्रवाहरूपेणापो
 निरसृजत् । जलानि निरगमयत् । तथा शुष्णस्य सर्वस्य शोषयितुरसुरस्य दृहिताः प्रवृद्धाः पुरो नगराणि निवासस्थानानि व्यैरयत् । विविधं प्रेरितवान् ॥ *yad yadendra uśane kāmayaṃāne kāvye sacā saha mandiṣṭa stuto

 'bhūt tadānīm vaṅkū vaṅkutarātiśayena kuṭilaṃ gacchantāv aśvāv adhitiṣṭhati | rathe saṃyojitam ārohatīty arthaḥ | yadvā vaṅkutarātiśayena vakraṃ gacchati rathe vaṅkū vakragamanaśīlāv aśvau saṃyojyeti yojanīyam | ugra udgūrṇas tādṛśa indro yayim gamanayuktān meghāt srotasā pravāharūpeṇāpo nirasrjat | jalāni niragamayat | tathā śuṣṇasya sarvasya śoṣayitur asurasya dr̥ṃhitāḥ pravṛddhāḥ puro nagarāṇi
 nivāsasthānāni vy airayat | vividhaṃ preritavān ||* ⁵⁶

Translation of the bhāṣya: "When Indra, kāvye uśane, together with Uśanas, son of Kavi, who wished (him), sacā mandiṣṭa, was pleased — was praised — then he mounts (adhitiṣṭhati) the two

55. The Saṃhitā's "tiṣṭhati ... asrjad ... airayat": as printed; the Pada's vaṅkū iti marks the dual.

horses vaṅkū vaṅkutarā, going in an extremely crooked way, i.e. he ascends the chariot to which they are yoked; or, one should construe, 'harnessing to the chariot the two horses whose habit is to go crookedly'. Ugraḥ, the fierce, the uplifted, such Indra srotasā, in streams, apaḥ nir asrjat, let out the waters from the moving cloud (yayim), and vy airayat, variously impelled — broke — dr̥ṃhitāḥ puraḥ, the strongly grown cities, the dwellings, of the Asura Śuṣṇa, the all-parching."

Pratipadārtha — "yat — when; indraḥ — Indra; uśane kāvyē sacā — together with Uśanas, son of Kavi, being praised; mandiṣṭa — he was delighted (he became pleased); vaṅkū vaṅkutarā — the (horses) of extremely crooked going (drawing the chariot) — or: vaṅkutarā vaṅkū — the (horses) of extremely crooked motion; adhi tiṣṭhati — he mounts and sits (in the chariot); ugraḥ — (such) the fearsome Indra; yayim — from the moving cloud; srotasā — in the form of a stream; apaḥ — the waters; niḥ asrjat — poured out and released; śuṣṇasya — of the Rākṣasa named Śuṣṇa, the all-parching; dr̥ṃhitāḥ — widely grown; puraḥ — the cities; vi airayat — broke in many ways (destroyed)."

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra, delighted by the praise he desires, mounts the chariot drawn by horses of an extremely crooked gait. The fearsome Indra poured out the waters, in the form of streams, from the moving cloud. He smote in many ways and destroyed the cities of the Rākṣasa named Śuṣṇa, the all-parching, which had grown wide."

56. Reading notes: "kāmāyamāne" is as read — the print is crowded here; the tail of the bhāṣya — on mandiṣṭa, uśane, sacā, vaṅkū, vaṅkutarā, yayim, dr̥ṃhitāḥ, airayat, with a quoted Mīmāṃsā-style sūtra "ājyājayor ca copasaṃkhyānam" [as read, [?]] — is characterized, not transcribed.

English Translation (the source's own, p. 193)

— "When Indra is delighted with acceptable hymns, he ascends (his car) drawn by more and more obliquely-curveting horses ; fierce, he extracts the water from the passing cloud in a torrent, and has overwhelmed the extensive cities of Sushna."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 193 - sacā — "This word is used in the sense of saha, 'with'." - vañkū vañkutarādhi tiṣṭhati — "Indra mounts the chariot, having yoked horses that go in an exceedingly crooked fashion, and sets out for battle; or: he turns to face the battle, having yoked to his own chariot, which goes by a winding path, strong horses. These two meanings are seen from the above sentence. From the root vañku gatau, the purpose of using the word vañku, which in general conveys a sense of motion, together with the suffix tarap, is to tell the special sense of a particular kind of motion." - śuṣṇasya — "'Of the one who dries up everything, i.e. who makes things dry': a Rākṣasa."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵⁷ - mandiṣṭa: madi stutimodamadasvapnakāntigatiṣu; luñ third singular ta; cli → sic; the root has an i-marker (idit), so num is added; iṭ before sic; ṣatva of the substitute: mandiṣṭa; aṭ not added by bahulam chandasy amānyoge 'pi. - uśane: vaś kāntau, an Uṇādi suffix kyu; yuvor anākau gives ana for the remaining yu; grahijyā... the saṃprasāraṇa of the root; the earlier form (pūrvarūpa) for the a + a: uśana; locative singular. - sacā: saca samavāye, bhvādi; since the word is in the saṃpadādi group, kvip by saṃpadādibhyaḥ kvip (Pā. 3-3-108 as read [?]); dhātvādeḥ ṣaḥ saḥ makes the initial ṣ an s; instrumental singular ṭā; āñ-yājayoś ca [as read, [?]] substitutes ā (ācaḥ... upasañkhyānam); in the Samhitā the nasalization by āñ 'nunāsikaś chandasi' (Pā. 6-1-126 as read [?]). - vañkū: vañku gatau; an Uṇādi u; by bahulam in the Veda kutva comes even without a ground for it; dual accusative: pūrvasavarṇadīrgha:

vaṅkū. - vaṅkutarā: atiśayena vaṅkū vaṅkutarā; in the dual, tarap by dvivacanavibhajya... (Pā. 5-3-57 as read [?]); the dual ending au replaced by ā by supām suluk: vaṅkutarā; here, through the word that conveys the general sense of motion, a particular kind of motion — crooked going — is understood. - yayim: yā prāpaṇe, adādi; ki by āḍṛgamahanajana... (Pā. 3-2-171 as read [?]); liḍvadbhāva gives reduplication and shortening; yayā + i: the ā lost by āto lopa iṭi ca; end-acute by the suffix; supām suluk with the ablative (pañcamī) given am: yayim. - ḍṛṃhitāḥ: ḍṛhi vṛddhau, bhvādi; num since idit; kta with iṭ: ḍṛṃhita; accusative plural ḍṛṃhitāḥ. - airayat: īra prerāṇe, curādi; lañ third singular tip; ṇic in the own sense; śap; since it begins with a vowel, āt; ā + īr + at → āṭas ca (Pā. 6-1-90) gives vṛddhi: airayat. || 11 ||

original p. 195

Rik 12

Samhitā-pāṭha

आ स्मा रथं वृषपाणेषु तिष्ठसि शार्यातस्य प्रभृता येषु मन्दसे । इन्द्र यथा सुतसोमेषु चाकनोऽनर्वाणं श्लोकमा रोहसे दिवि ॥ १२ ॥

ā smā ratham vṛṣapāṇeṣu tiṣṭhasi śāryātasya prabhṛtā yeṣu mandase | indra yathā sutasomeṣu cākano 'narvāṇaṃ ślokaṃ ā rohase divi || 12 ||

Pada-pāṭha

आ । स्म । रथम् । वृषपाणेषु । तिष्ठसि । शार्यातस्य । प्रभृताः । येषु । मन्दसे । इन्द्र । यथा । सुतसोमेषु । चाकनः । अनर्वाणम् । श्लोकम् । आ । रोहसे । दिवि ॥ १२ ॥

ā | sma | ratham | vṛṣa-pāṇeṣu | tiṣṭhasi | śāryātasya | prabhṛtāḥ | yeṣu | mandase | indra | yathā | suta-someṣu | cākanah | anarvāṇam | ślokaṃ | ā | rohase | divi || 12 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अत्र कौषीतकिन इतिहासमाचक्षते । शार्यातनाम्नो राजर्षेर्यज्ञे भृगुगोत्रोत्पन्नश्च्यवनो
महर्षिरश्विनौ ग्रहमगृह्णात् । इन्द्रस्तं दृष्ट्वा क्रुद्धोऽभूत् । तमिन्द्रमनुनीय पुनः सोमं
तस्मै प्रादादिति । अयमर्थोऽस्यां प्रतिपाद्यत इति ॥ हे इन्द्र त्वं वृषपाणेषु । वृषः
सेचनसमर्थस्य सोमस्य पानानि वृषपानानि । तेषु निमित्तभूतेषु रथमातिष्ठसि स्म ।
स्वयमेव रथमारुह्य गच्छसि । न त्वन्यः कश्चित्प्रवर्तयितेति भावः । एवं च सति येषु
सोमेषु त्वं मन्दसे हर्षं प्राप्नोषि तादृशाः सोमाः शार्यातस्यैतन्नाम्नो राजर्षेः संबन्धिनः
प्रभृताः । प्रकर्षेण संपादिताः । अभिषवादिसंस्कार्यैः संस्कृता इत्यर्थः । अतः
सुतसोमेषु अभिषुतसोमयुक्तेष्वस्मदीयेषु यज्ञेषु यथा चाकनः यथा कामयसे
एवमस्मासि [?] शार्यातस्य सोमान्कामयस्व । तथा सति दिवि द्युलोकेऽनर्वाणं
गमनरहितं स्थिरं श्लोकं स्तोत्रलक्षणं वचो यशो वा आ रोहसे । प्राप्नोषि । यद्वा ।
इमं यजमानं दिवि द्युलोक उक्तलक्षणं यशः प्रापयसि ॥ स्म । निपातस्य चेति दीर्घत्वम् ।

atra kauṣītakina itihāsam ācakṣate | śāryātanāmno rājarṣer yajñe
bhṛgugotrotpannaś cyavano maharṣir aśvinau graham agrhṇāt |
indras taṃ dr̥ṣtvā kruddho 'bhūt | tam indram anuniya punaḥ somaṃ tasmai prādād iti | ayam artho 'syāṃ pratipādyata iti || he indra tvaṃ vṛṣapāṇeṣu | vṛṣaḥ secanasamarthasya somasya pānāni vṛṣapānāni | teṣu nimittabhūteṣu ratham ātiṣṭhasi sma |
svayam eva ratham āruhya gacchasi | na tv anyāḥ kaścit
pravartayiteti bhāvaḥ | evaṃ ca sati yeṣu someṣu tvaṃ mandase harṣaṃ prāpnoṣi tādr̥śāḥ somāḥ śāryātasya itannāmno rājarṣeḥ saṃbandhinaḥ prabhṛtāḥ | prakarṣeṇa saṃpāditāḥ |
abhiṣavādisaṃskāryaiḥ saṃskṛtā ity arthaḥ | ataḥ sutasomeṣu abhiṣutasomayukteṣv asmadiyeṣu yajñeṣu yathā cākanāḥ yathā kāmayase evaṃ asmāsi [?] śāryātasya somān kāmayasva | tathā sati divi dyuloke 'narvāṇaṃ gamanarahitaṃ sthiraṃ ślokaṃ stotalakṣaṇaṃ vaco yaśo vā ā rohase | prāpnoṣi | yadvā | imaṃ yajamānaṃ divi dyuloka uktalakṣaṇaṃ yaśaḥ prāpayasi || sma |
nipātasya ceti dīrghatvam |

Translation of the first part of the bhāṣya: "Here the followers of the Kauṣītaki (school) tell this legend: 'At the sacrifice of the royal sage named Śāryāta, the great sage Cyavana, born in the line of Bhṛgu, took up the cup (graha) for the Áśvins. Indra, seeing him, became angry. Having appeased that Indra, he gave him Soma again.' This sense is set out in this Rik. O Indra, you vṛṣapāṇeṣu — vṛṣa means 'capable of showering'; drinks of the soma that is so — in those, as the occasion, ratham ātiṣṭhasi sma: you mount the chariot yourself and go; no one else drives you, is the sense. And that being so, those Somas in which you rejoice, that is, delight — such Somas, belonging to the royal sage named Śāryāta, were prabhṛtāḥ, were well provided, made ready by the pressing and other acts. Therefore, in our sacrifices, sutasomeṣu, where the Soma has been pressed, as you desire (cākanah), so desire Śāryāta's Somas [and ours]; and then, in heaven (divi), you obtain (ā rohase) the anarvāṇam, the unmoving, firm ślokaṃ — a word of praise, or fame; or: you cause this sacrificer to obtain, in heaven, the said fame."

Rik 51.12, continued ⁵⁸

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, grammatical tail ⁵⁹: vṛṣapāṇeṣu (pā pāne, lyuṭ in the sense of the action, and the ṇatva by vā bhāvakaraṇayoḥ, Pā. 8-4-10 as read [?]); prabhṛtāḥ (bhṛñ bharaṇe, kta in the passive sense; gatir anantaraḥ keeps the accent of the prefix); mandase (madi stutimodamadasvapnakāntigatiṣu; the accent of the root retained); cākanah (kana dīptikāntigatiṣu; here in the sense of kānti, "desire"; leṭ second singular sip with the augment aṭ by leṭo 'ṭāṭau; śap elided by bahulaṃ chandasi; reduplication lengthened since the root is in the tujādi list); anarvāṇam (r gatau with vanip by anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyante, taken from the word dṛśi; arvan; with naña a bahuvrīhi; lengthening of the penultimate by sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau; ṇatva by the rule on the intervening aṭ-ku-pv-āñ-num; the final-acute by nañsubhyām);

58. pp. 196–198, PDF 212–214

59. p. 196 — characterized, not transcribed

ślokaṃ (śloka saṅghāte, ghaṇ in the passive sense; ñit, so initial-acute); rohase (ruh, with ātmanepada by vyatyaya). (Sūtra numerals unread; none supplied.)

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra (you); vṛṣapāṇeṣu — on the occasions of drinking the soma juice; ratham — the chariot; ā tiṣṭhasi sma — you yourself, without anyone else's urging, mount and go; (therefore) yeṣu — in which soma juices; mandase — you take pleasure (such soma juices); śāryātasya — (at the sacrifice) of the royal sage named Śāryāta; prabhṛtāḥ — well prepared (by the pressing and other rites; therefore); sutasomeṣu — (as at sacrifices offered by others) with the soma juices that have been poured out beforehand; yathā — in whatever way; cākanah — you desire (so also desire the soma juice offered by Śāryāta, drink, and be satisfied); divi — in the world of heaven; anarvāṇam — firm; ślokaṃ — fame (or praise-bearing speech); ā rohase — you attain (or you bring this fame to the sacrificer)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, at the times of the soma-drinking in the sacrifice you mount the chariot yourself, with no one else impelling you, and go. The soma juices that give you satisfaction have been prepared at the sacrifice of the royal sage Śāryāta. As you desire, for drinking, the soma juices at the sacrifices offered earlier by others, so desire the soma juices offered by Śāryāta, drink them and be satisfied. Therefore you attain firm fame in the world of heaven, or you bring that fame to the sacrificer Śāryāta."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 197)

— "O Indra, you mount your chariot willingly for the sake of drinking the libations; at the sacrifice of Saryata such libations in which you delight have been prepared ; be pleased with them, as you are gratified by the effused soma [sic: "soma"] juices at the sacrifices of others, so you obtain imperishable fame in heaven."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 197 - śāryātasya — "Śāryāta is a sage born in the line of Bhṛgu. In the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa he is said to be a king of the line of Manu. The name Śāryāta indicates 'the son of Śaryāti'; he is the fourth son of Vaivasvata Manu. When the sage named Cyavana married this man's daughter, Indra and the Ásvin deities came to the sacrifice that was held. Then Cyavana himself ate the oblation that had been set apart for the Ásvins. Indra was angry at this. To pacify Indra, another oblation was prepared. It is just this matter that is told here, which is why the bhāṣyakāra has quoted the passage of the Kauṣītaki Brāhmaṇa. This matter is told in the Bhāgavata and the Padma Purāṇas." - vṛṣapāṇeṣu — "Here the word vṛṣa has the sense of soma juice, which is 'capable of showering': that is, it can raise the strength of all the deities, who are engaged in all acts of the sacrifice such as the prāśana, by making them manly. At the act of drinking such soma, Devendra mounts the chariot and sets out himself, with speed." - śāryātasya prabhṛtāḥ — "The word śāryāta conveys the name of a royal sage of that very name. Formerly, when the royal sage Śāryāta was performing a sacrifice, the great sage Cyavana, born in the line of Bhṛgu, first gave the oblation-shares to the Ásvin deities. Indra was then especially angry. Śāryāta, understanding this, praised Indra in many ways, won him over, and offered to Indra soma juice purified by the rites that purify, such as the pressing. This legend is conveyed here by the word śāryāta. The name of this Śāryāta is indicated in Ṛ. Saṃ. 3-51-7 [?], Aitareya Brāhmaṇa 4-32 [?], Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa 4-1-5-1 [?], and Jaiminīya Brāhmaṇa 3-120 [?] (numerals as read, all [?])." - anarvāṇam — "This is an epithet of ślokaśabda, expressing fame. 'Without motion' means 'unwavering — steady': that is its sense."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶⁰ - sma: a nipāta in the ca list; nipātasya ca (Pā. 6-3-116 as read [?]) lengthens it in the Veda: smā. - vṛṣapāṇeṣu: pā pāne, bhvādi; lyuṭ in the sense of the action; ana

— pāna; vṛṣṇaḥ pānāni vṛṣapānāni; by vā bhāvakaraṇayoḥ, the second member, in the sense of action or instrument, with pāna after a causal first member, takes ṇatva; here, because it is in the sense of action, the ṇ: locative plural vṛṣapāṇeṣu. - prabhṛtāḥ: bhṛñ bharaṇe; kta in the passive; being kit, no guṇa; with pra, gatiṛ anantaraḥ (Pā. 6-2-49 as read [?]) keeps the accent of the prefix; prabhṛtāḥ is initial-acute. - mandase: maḍi...; idito num dhātoḥ; thāsaḥ se; kartari śap; śap is pit, so anudātta; tāsyānudātenṇidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam...; the end-acute of the root makes mandase initial-acute (as the root mand is accented on the first); because of the relative yat, no nighāta. - cākanaḥ [sic: Saṃhitā cākano]: kana dīptikāntigatiṣu, in the sense of desire (kānti, "wish"); leṭ second singular sip; itaś ca drops the i; leṭo 'ṭāṭau gives aṭ; bahulaṃ chandasi replaces śap by ślu; reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; cutva; ru, visarga: cakanaḥ; being in tujādi, tujādīnām dīrgho 'bhyāsasya (Pā. 6-1-7) lengthens: cākanaḥ; the accent abhyastānām ādiḥ (Pā. 6-1-189) would be initial-acute, but "all rules are optional in the Veda", so the end-acute of the root (dhātoḥ) comes: cākanaḥ has the middle acute. - anarvāṇam: r gatau; vanip by anyebhyo 'pi drśyante (Pā. 3-2-75), since the sūtra uses drśi; vanip is ṇit-like and guṇa: arvan; with naña in a bahuvrīhi: anarvan; before am, arvaṇas tasāv anañāḥ (Pā. 6-4-127) — since "anañāḥ" is expressly excepted, the tṛ substitute does not come; sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau lengthens the penultimate; ṇatva by the rule with aṭkuvāṇnumvyavāye, ra preceding: anarvāṇam; nañsubhyām (Pā. 6-2-172) gives the final-acute of the last member. || 12 ||

Rik 51.12, last two grammar notes ⁶¹ - ślokaḥ: śloka saṅghāte; "ślokyate iti ślokaḥ"; ghañ in the passive sense gives śloka; since it ends in a ñit suffix, by ñnityādir nityam the initial syllable is acute. - rohase: ruha bījajanmani prādurbhāve ca, bhvādi;

60. pp. 197–198 — grammar pages, noted briefly

61. p. 199, PDF 215 — grammar page, noted briefly; to be read with the notes above

vyatyayo bahulam gives the ātmanepada endings; laṭ second singular; being a tiñ standing after a word that is not a tiñ, it takes the nighāta accent.

original p. 199

Rik 13

Samhitā-pāṭha

अददा अर्भा महते वचस्यवे कक्षीवते वृचयामिन्द्र सुन्वते । मेनाभवो वृषणश्चस्य सुक्रतो
विश्वेता ते सवनेषु प्रवाच्या ॥ १३ ॥

⁶² adadā arbhām mahate vacasyave kakṣivate vṛcayām indra sunvate | menābhavo vṛṣaṇaśvasya sukrato viśvet tā te savaneṣu pravācyā || 13 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अददाः । अर्भाम् । महते । वचस्यवे । कक्षीवते । वृचयाम् । इन्द्र । सुन्वते । मेना । अभवः । वृषणश्चस्य । सुक्रतो इति सुऽक्रतो । विश्वा । इत् । ता । ते । सवनेषु । प्रवाच्या ॥ १३ ॥

*adadāḥ | arbhām | mahate | vacasyave | kakṣivate | vṛcayām |
indra | sunvate | menā | abhavaḥ | vṛṣaṇaśvasya | sukrato iti sukrato | viśvā | it | tā | te | savaneṣu | pra-vācyā || 13 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya ⁶³

अत्रैतिह्यमाख्यायिका । अङ्गराजः कस्मिंश्चिद्विवसे स्वकीयाभिर्योषिद्भिः सह
गङ्गायां जलक्रीडां चक्रे । तस्मिन्समये दीर्घतमा नाम ऋषिः स्वभार्ययोः [?]
पुत्रभृत्यादिभिश्च दुर्बलत्वात्किमपि कुर्वन्न शक्नोतीति द्वेषेण गङ्गामध्ये प्रचिक्षिपे ।
स च ऋषिः केनचित्प्लवेनाङ्गराजस्य क्रीडादेशं प्रति समाजगाम । स च राजा
सर्वज्ञं तमृषिमुपगम्य प्लवादवतार्यैनमनुवोचत् । हे भगवन् मम पुत्रो नास्ति । एषा

62. The print's first word reads "अददा" — it is read as the Pada's adadāḥ with the following arbhām; the Samhitā as printed:

63. pp. 199–200 — the legend, read through; some syllables crowded, [?]

महिषी । अस्यां कंचित्पुत्रमुत्पादयेति । स च तथेत्यब्रवीत् । सा महिषी तु राजानं
 प्रति कथेत्युक्त्वायं वृद्धतरो जुगुप्सितो मम योग्यो न भवतीति बुद्ध्वा
 स्वकीयामुशिक्षंज्ञां दासीं प्राहैषीत् । तेन च सर्वज्ञेन ऋषिणा मन्त्रपूतेन
 वारिणाभ्युक्षिता सा तस्यैव ऋषिपत्नी बभूव । तस्यामुत्पन्नः कक्षीवान्नाम ऋषिः स
 एव राज्ञः पुत्रोऽभूत् । स च बहुविधेन राजसूयादिनेजे । तस्मै राज्ञे तत्कृत्यैर्यज्ञैः
 परितुष्ट इन्द्रो वृचयाख्यां तरुणां योषितं प्रादात् । अयमर्थः पूर्वार्धे प्रतिपाद्यते ॥ हे
 इन्द्र त्वं महते प्रवृद्धाय वचस्यवे त्वदीयस्तोत्रलक्षणं वच आत्मन इच्छते सुन्वते
 त्वद्देवताकेषु यज्ञेषु सोमाभिषवं कुर्वते कक्षीवत एतन्नाम्ने राज्ञे वृचयां
 वृचयाख्यामभामल्पां युवतिमित्यर्थः । एवंभूतां स्त्रियमददाः । तथा सुक्रतो
 शोभनकर्मन् शोभनप्रज्ञ वा हे इन्द्र त्वं वृषणश्चस्यैतदाख्यस्य राज्ञो मेना नाम
 कन्याभूः । तथा च शाट्यायनिभिः सुब्रह्मण्यामन्त्रैकदेशव्याख्यानरूपं
 ब्राह्मणमेवमाम्नायते । वृषणश्चस्य मेनेति वृषणश्चस्य मेना भूत्वा मघवा कुल
 उवासेति । तां च प्राप्तयौवनां स्वयमेवेन्द्रश्चक्रमे । तथा च ताण्ड्यभिराम्नातम् ।
 वृषणश्चस्य मेना नाम दुहितासीत् तामिन्द्रश्चक्रमे इति । अतः [?] उत्तररूपाणि यानि
 कर्माणि त्वया कृतानि ते ता त्वदीयानि तानि विश्वेत् सर्वाण्येव सवनेषु यज्ञेषु प्रवाच्या । प्रकर्षेण वक्तव्यानि । स्तुतिभिः स्तोतव्यानीत्यर्थः ॥ *atraitihyam ākhyāyikā | aṅgarājaḥ kasmimścīd divase svakīyābhir

 yoṣidbhiḥ saha gaṅgāyāṃ jalakrīḍāṃ cakre | tasmīn samaye dīrghatamā nāma ṛṣiḥ svabhāryayoḥ [?] putrabhr̥tyādibhiḥ ca durbalatvāt kim api kurvan na śaknotīti dveṣeṇa gaṅgāmadhye pracikṣipe | sa ca ṛṣiḥ kenacit plavenāṅgarājasya krīḍādeśaṃ prati samājagāma | sa ca rājā sarvajñaṃ tam ṛṣim upagamya plavād avatāryainam anuvocat | he bhagavan mama putro nāsti | eṣā mahiṣī | asyāṃ kaṃcit putram utpādayeti | sa ca tathety abravīt | sā mahiṣī tu rājānaṃ prati kathety uktvāyaṃ vṛddhataro jugupsito mama yogyo na bhavatīti buddhvā svakīyāṃ uśikṣaṃjñāṃ dāsīm prāhaiṣīt | tena ca sarvajñena ṛṣiṇā mantrapūtena
 vāriṇābhyukṣitā sā tasyaiva ṛṣipatnī babhūva | tasyāṃ utpannaḥ
 kakṣivān nāma ṛṣiḥ sa eva rājñāḥ putro 'bhūt | sa ca bahuvidhena rājasūyādineḥ | tasmai rājñe tatkr̥tair yajñaiḥ parituṣṭa indro vṛcayākhyāṃ taruṇāṃ yoṣitaṃ prādāt | ayam arthaḥ pūrvārdhe*

*pratipādyate || he indra tvaṃ mahate pravṛddhāya vacasyave tvadīyastotalakṣaṇaṃ vaca ātmana icchate sunvate tvaddevatākeṣu yajñeṣu somābhiṣavaṃ kurvate kakṣīvata etannāmne rājñe vṛcayāṃ vṛcayākhyāṃ arbhām alpāṃ yuvatim
ity arthaḥ | evaṃbhūtāṃ striyam adadāḥ | tathā sukrato śobhanakarman śobhanaprajña vā he indra tvaṃ vṛṣaṇaśvasyaitadākhyasya rājño menā nāma kanyābhūḥ | tathā ca śātyāyanibhiḥ subrahmaṇyāmantraikadeśavyākhyānarūpaṃ
brāhmaṇaṃ evaṃ āmnāyate | vṛṣaṇaśvasya meneti vṛṣaṇaśvasya
menā bhūtvā maghavā kula uvāseti | tāṃ ca prāptayauvanāṃ svayam evendraś cakame | tathā ca tāṇḍyibhir āmnātām |
vṛṣaṇaśvasya menā nāma duhitāsīt tām indraś cakama iti | ataḥ [?] uttararūpāṇi yāni karmāṇi tvayā kṛtāni te tā tvadīyāni tāni viśvet sarvāṇy eva savaneṣu yajñeṣu pravācyā | prakarṣeṇa
vaktavyāni | stutibhiḥ stotavyānīty arthaḥ ||* ⁶⁴

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Here is an aitihya, a legend. The king of Aṅga, on a certain day, was playing in the water of the Gaṅgā together with his own women. At that time the sage named Dīrghatamas — whose wife [and sons], sons, servants and the rest, because he was weak and could do nothing at all, in anger had cast him into the middle of the Gaṅgā — came on a raft to the king's playground. The king, approaching the omniscient sage, took him down from the raft and said: 'Blessed one, I have no son; this is my queen; beget some son on her.' He said, 'So be it.' But the queen, saying to the king [?] 'He is very old and disgusting, he is not fit for me,' sent in her own place a maidservant named Uśik. Sprinkled by the omniscient sage with water sanctified by a mantra, she became that very sage's wife. Of her was born the sage named Kakṣivān, who became the king's son. He performed in many ways the Rājasūya and the other sacrifices. Indra, gratified by his sacrifices, gave that king a young woman named Vṛcayā. This is the sense set out in the first half.

64. Reading notes: the print is crowded in several places of this long passage; doubtful: "svabhāryayoḥ" (read from the garbled "svabhāryayoḥ putrabhrtyādibhiś ca"); "kathety uktvāyam"; the "ataḥ" before "uttararūpāṇi"; the Taittirīya-type ending "kula uvāsa" as the print breaks the line there; "tāṇḍyibhir" and "śātyāyanibhiḥ" as read. The Kannada gives this legend again in the Special Topics, which confirms the sense. The grammatical tail — on mahate, vacasyave, kakṣīvate, menā, savaneṣu, pravācyā, with the Nirukta citations "kakṣivān kakṣyāvān" and "menā mānayanīnā" — is characterized, not transcribed.

"O Indra, you gave vṛcayām arbhām, the young maiden named Vṛcayā, to kakṣivate, the king of that name — grown mahate, who wished (vacasyave) the praise that is your word, and suvate, who presses Soma in sacrifices dedicated to you. And O sukrato, you of good works (or good wisdom), you menā abhavaḥ, became Menā, the daughter of the king Vṛṣaṇaśva. So the Śāṭyāyanins teach, in a Brāhmaṇa that is an explanation of one part of the Subrahmaṇyā mantra: 'vṛṣaṇaśvasya menā — having become Menā of Vṛṣaṇaśva, the generous one lived in the family'; and when she reached youth, Indra himself fell in love with her. And so the Tāṇḍins teach: 'Vṛṣaṇaśva had a daughter named Menā; Indra loved her.' So all those deeds of yours, spoken of in the latter half, viśvet tā te, are to be proclaimed, pravācyā, in the savanas, the sacrifices — to be extolled with praises, is the sense."

Rik 51.13, continued ⁶⁵

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, grammatical tail ⁶⁶: mahate (the vibhakti-accent by br̥hanmahator upasaṅkhyānam); vacasyave (supa ātmanaḥ kyac; the Vedic u by kyāc chandasī); kakṣivate ("aśvabandhanahetavo rajjavaḥ kakṣyāḥ", the ropes by which horses are tied; the Nirukta "kakṣivān kakṣyāvān", Ni. 6-10 as read [?]; āsandīvadaṣṭhīvac cakrīvāt kakṣivat..., Pā. 8-2-12 as read [?], the saṃprasāraṇa and the change of matup's m to v as a proper name); menā (a woman's name, menā gnāḥ; man jñāne, "manyate gr̥hakṛtyaṃ jānātīti menā", pacādi ac; nabhimanyor ality

65. pp. 200–204, PDF 216–220

66. p. 200 — characterized, not transcribed

aitvaṃ vaktavyam, Pā. 6-4-120 vārttika as read [?]; vṛṣādi, so initial-acute; Yāska "menā mānayanti enāḥ", Ni. 3-21 as read [?]; savaneṣu ("savanam iti yajñanāma"; sūyate 'bhiṣūyata eṣu, lyuṭ in the locative sense); pravācyā (vaca paribhāṣaṇe, nyat by ṛhaloṇyat with yajayācaruca...pravacarcaś ca Pā. 7-3-66 forbidding kutva; the tit-accent set aside by vyatyaya so it is initial-acute; or vāc + yat, yato 'nāvaḥ; the prefix keeps its accent by gatikārapapadāt kṛt). Numerals of sūtras not supplied except where read.

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra (you); mahate — to the grown-up (aged) one; vacasyave — who wishes (your praise — who recites your praises); sunvate — who offered the pressing of soma (in sacrifices dedicated to you); kakṣivate — to the king Kakṣivat; vṛcayām — the one named Vṛcayā; arbhām — the young woman; adadāḥ — you gave; sukrato — O Indra, of excellent works (or: of excellent wisdom); vṛṣaṇasvasya — of the king Vṛṣaṇasva; menā abhavaḥ — you were born as the maiden named Menā; te tā — those, of such (greatness) of yours; viśvet — all the deeds; savaneṣu — in the sacrifices; pravācyā — are to be praised with excellent words."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you gave the young woman named Vṛcayā in marriage to the king named Kakṣivat, who had grown great, who wished to praise you, and who pressed the soma for you in his sacrifices. O Indra, of excellent works, you were born as Menā, the daughter of the king named Vṛṣaṇasva. All your deeds of such greatness are to be extolled with excellent praises in the sacrifices."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 201) — "Indra, you have given the youthful Vrichaya, to the aged Kakshivat, praising you and offering libations; O Satakratu [sic: the Rik has sukrato], you were born as Mena, the daughter of Vrishanaswa; all these your deeds are to be recited at your worships."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 201–203⁶⁷ - vṛcayām —

"The name of a woman, Vṛcayā, is found in the Ṛgveda only in this Rik. It is said that the Aśvin deities gave her in marriage to the sage Kakṣivat. It may be that the woman Sūryā, daughter of Sūrya, told of in R. Saṃ. 1-116-17 [?] is this very Vṛcayā. We have not learned much about this woman." - vṛṣaṇaśvasya menābhavaḥ — "The matter that Indra was born as a daughter named Menā to a (king) named Vṛṣaṇaśva is in the Rik under discussion. The same matter is hinted in Jaiminīya Brāhmaṇa 3... [?]; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa 3-3-4-18 [?]; Ṣaḍviṃśa Brāhmaṇa 1-1-14 [?]; and Taittirīya Saṃhitā 1... [?]. But one cannot say firmly that what is told there pertains to the matter told in this Rik. The man named Vṛṣaṇaśva was a king. Indra, pleased with the sacrifices and other rites done by him, favoured him with a daughter named Menā; and, 'having himself descended as the daughter of that name' — so the Śātyāyanins say in the śruti 'vṛṣaṇaśvasya menā bhūtvā maghavā kula uvāsa'. Seeing her, young, Indra himself was enamoured; so the Tāṇḍya śruti informs: 'vṛṣaṇaśvasya menā nāma duhitāsīt tām indraś cakame'. The word menā, being a feminine word, is explained in the Nirukta sūtra 'menā gnāḥ' (Ni. 3-21 as read [?]). The derivation of it is 'manyate grhakṛtyaṃ jñātīti menā' — 'she who knows household duties'."

वृषणश्चस्य मेना भूत्वा मघवा कुल उवास । (Śātyāyani-śruti, as quoted)

vṛṣaṇaśvasya menā bhūtvā maghavā kula uvāsa | — editorial and tentative: "having become Menā of Vṛṣaṇaśva, the bounteous one dwelt in the family [?]."

वृषणश्चस्य मेना नाम दुहितासीत्तामिन्द्रश्चकमे । (Tāṇḍya-śruti, as quoted) vṛṣaṇaśvasya menā nāma duhitāsīt tām indraś cakame | — editorial and tentative: "Vṛṣaṇaśva had a daughter named Menā; Indra desired her." - kakṣivate — "Kakṣivān was a king. The tradition of his birth is this. Formerly the king of Aṅga went once

67. numerals in small Kannada digits; each marked [?]

to the river Gaṅgā with his wives and maids for water-sport. At just that time the sage Dīrghatamas was coming floating in a boat (doṇi). Because that sage was extremely weak, his wife, sons and others, thinking 'such a weak one is not wanted by us', had put him in a boat and cast him on the Gaṅgā. The king of Aṅga, seeing the sage Dīrghatamas, who had come in the boat to the very place where he was by chance, with great joy bowed, took him down from the boat, worshipped him, and prayed: 'Master, for a long time I have had no children. Here is my wife; beget a son on her.' Then the queen, seeing this very old sage, was unwilling to join him and sent in her stead a maid of hers named Uśik. The omniscient great sage sprinkled her with mantra-purified water, and the maid, as the wife of a sage, was filled with joy. The son born of her was the sage Kakṣivān. He performed many sacrifices, the Rājasūya and others. Indra, satisfied by those sacrifices, favoured Kakṣivāt with a young woman named Vṛcayā. The word kakṣyā also means 'the rope for tying a horse': kakṣivān kakṣyāvān (Ni. 6-10 as read [?]). Arbhām: this has the sense 'small' and also 'woman'." - Kakṣivān in the Ṛgveda — "The name of this Kakṣivān is found in the Ṛgveda, in Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-18-1 [?]; 1-51-13 [this Rik]; 1-112-11 [?]; 1-116-7 [?]; 1-117-6 [?]; 1-126-3 [?]; 4-26-1 [?]; 8-9-10 [?]; 9-74-8 [?]; 10-25-10 [?]; 10-61-16 [?] (all uncertain), and also in the Atharvaveda 4-29-... [?]. The name of his line must be Pajra, because in Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-116-... [?]; 1-117-... [?] he is called pajriya, and in Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-... [?] his descendants are called pajrāḥ. In the 126th sūkta of Ṛ. Saṃ. Maṇḍala 1 this sage praises the gifts given to him by a king named Svanaya Bhāvayavya; and in the Sāṅkhyāyana Śrauta Sūtra 16-... [?], among the group of mantras praising the heroes called Nārāśaṃsa-sūktas, the mantras praising the gift of the king Svanaya Bhāvayavya by Kakṣivān, son of Uśij, are included. The matter of his marrying the maiden Vṛcayā in old age is told in this Rik (Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-51-13). It is known from Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-116-... [?] that he lived for a hundred years. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 4-26-1 [?] his name is hinted along with Kutsa and the poet Uśanas. (p. 203:) In no mantra other than one Rik, Ṛ. Saṃ. 9... [?]-10, is a relation between Kakṣivān and the sage Dīrghatamas found; but in the Bṛhaddevatā, a work of Śaunaka, it is said that this Kakṣivān was the son of the sage Dīrghatamas, born of the maid called Uśij." "Weber, a Western scholar, on the basis of the mantras Tai. Saṃ. 3-... [?]; Kāṭhaka Saṃhitā 13-... [?]; Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa 12-12-... [?], thinks that this Kakṣivān was at first a Kṣatriya, and that therefore his name occurs in the mantras mentioned above along with the kings Para Āṭṇāra, Vītahavya, Śrāyasa and Trasadasyu Paurukutsa." - vacasyave — "For the word that conveys Indra's praise, the usage here is vacah. One who wishes always to say such praise of Indra himself is vacasya. This word is an epithet of the word kakṣivān."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶⁸ - mahate: maha pūjāyām; śatr — the word mahat; dative singular; the vibhakti-accent by bṛhanmahator upasaṅkhyānam (a vārttika). - vacasyave: "vacah ātmana icchati": supa ātmanaḥ kyac (Pā. 3-1-8) gives kyac; vacasya gets the root-designation as a sanādyanta; kyac chandasi (Pā. 3-2-170 as read [?]) gives the suffix u after vacasya; ato lopah drops the earlier a: vacasyu, a stem in u; dative singular. - kakṣivate: as above; dative singular. - menā: as above; menā gnāḥ; "menā mānayanaty enāḥ" (Ni. 3-21 as read [?]). - savaneṣu: sūyate bhiṣūyate eṣu iti savanam (the soma is pressed); lyuṭ in the locative sense; yuvor anākau replaces the yu; locative plural. - pravācyā: vaca paribhāṣaṇe; ṇyat by ṛhaloṇyat; ata upadhāyāḥ gives vṛddhi; co kuḥ would give kutva to the c, but yajayācaruca... pravacarcaś ca (Pā. 7-3-66) forbids kutva; being tit, tit svaritam would give svarita, but vyatyayo bahulam gives the initial-acute; or: vac + ṇic, then yat: vācyā; then yato 'nāvaḥ (Pā. 6-1-213) gives the initial-acute by the suffix; with pra, gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt: accent of the final member. || 13 ||

original p. 204

68. pp. 203–204 — grammar pages, noted briefly

Rik 14

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ⁶⁹

इन्द्रो अश्रायि सुध्यो निरेके पज्रेषु स्तोमो दुर्यो न यूपः । अश्वयुर्गव्यू रथयुर्वसूयुरिन्द्र इद्रायः क्षयति प्रयन्ता ॥ १४ ॥

indro aśrāyi sudhyo nireke pajreṣu stomo duryo na yūpaḥ | aśvayur gavyū rathayur vasūyur indra id rāyaḥ kṣayati prayantā
|| 14 ||

Pada-pāṭha

इन्द्रः । अश्रायि । सुऽध्यः । निरेके । पज्रेषु । स्तोमः । दुर्यः । न । यूपः । अश्वऽयुः । गव्युः । रथऽयुः । वसुऽयुः । इन्द्रः । इत् । रायः । क्षयति । प्रऽयन्ता ॥ १४ ॥

indraḥ | aśrāyi | su-dhyaḥ | nireke | pajreṣu | stomaḥ | duryaḥ |
na | yūpaḥ | aśva-yuḥ | gavyuḥ | ratha-yuḥ | vasu-yuḥ | indraḥ |
it | rāyaḥ | kṣayati | pra-yantā || 14 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

इन्द्रो देवः सुध्यः शोभनकर्मणो यजमानान् शोभनप्रज्ञान्वा निरेके नैर्धन्ये निमित्तभूते
सति तान् रक्षितुमश्रायि । असेविष्ट । पज्रेषु । पज्रा इत्यङ्गिरसामाख्या । तथा च
शाट्यायनिभिराम्नातम् । पज्रा वा अङ्गिरसः पशुकामास्तप्योतप्यन्त इति । येषु
यजमानेष्वङ्गिरःसु स्तोमः स्तोत्रं निश्चलं तिष्ठति दुर्यो न यूपो द्वारि निखाता स्थूणेव
। तान् [?] इति पूर्वेणान्वयः । तस्मादिदानीमपि रायः प्रयन्ता धनस्य प्रदाता इन्द्र
इत् इन्द्र एव यजमानानां दातुमश्वयुः अश्वानिच्छन् तथा गव्युर्गा इच्छन् रथयू
रथानिच्छन् वसूयुः वसु धनमिच्छन् एवमन्यदपि यद्धनमस्ति तदपीच्छन् क्षयति वर्तते

॥

indro devaḥ sudhyaḥ śobhanakarmanō yajamānān śobhanaprajñān vā nireke nairdhanye nimittabhūte sati tān rakṣitum aśrāyi | aseviṣṭa | pajreṣu | pajrā ity aṅgirasām ākhyā |
tathā ca śātyāyanibhir āmnātam | pajrā vā aṅgirasaḥ paśukāmās
tapyotapyanta iti | yeṣu yajamāneṣv aṅgiraḥsu stomaḥ stotraṃ

*nīścalaṃ tiṣṭhati duryo na yūpo dvāri nikhātā sthūṇeva | tān [?] iti pūrveṇānvayaḥ | tasmād idānīm api rāyaḥ prayantā dhanasya pradātā indra id indra eva yajamānānām dātum aśvayuh aśvān icchan tathā gavyur gā icchan rathayū rathān icchan vasūyuh vasu dhanam icchan evam anyad api yad dhanam asti tad apīcchan
kṣayati vartate | |*

Note — Reading notes: the clause after "sthūṇeva" is crowded; "tān [?]" is read and connected, as in the print, with the preceding part. The accompanying quotation from the Śātyāyanins, "pajrā vā aṅgirasah paśukāmās tapyotapyanta", is as read, [?]. The grammatical tail — on aśrāyi, sudhyaḥ, nireke, duryaḥ, yūpaḥ, aśvayuh, gavyuh, kṣayati, prayantā — is characterized: for aśrāyi (root śriñ sevāyām) a ciṇ in the place of the ātmanepada by vyatyaya; for sudhyaḥ the root dhi "a name of action" (dhiḥ karmanāma), with the final-acute by nañsubhyām and the yaṇ by śasi chandasy ubhayathā [Pā. numeral as read, [?]]; for nireke "nitarām recanaṃ nirekaḥ", from ric virecane, ghañ in the sense of the action; for duryaḥ "dure bhavaḥ", the Vedic yat in the sense "who exists in" by bhave chandasi; for yūpaḥ the root yu miśraṇe with the Uṇādi pa by kuyubhyām ca [Uṇ. 3-... as read, [?]], lengthened; aśvayuh a kyac by chandasi pareicchāyām [?], u then; gavyuh similarly with the substitute av; prayantā from yam uparame with ṛc.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "The god Indra aśrāyi, was resorted to — attended — in order to protect those sacrificers, sudhyaḥ, those of good works (or good wisdom), when nireke, destitution, arose. Pajreṣu: pajrā is a name of the Aṅgirasas; thus the Śātyāyanins say: 'The Pajras, the Aṅgirasas, wishing for cattle, practised austerities.' Yeṣu, among those sacrificers, the Aṅgirasas, the stoma, the praise, stands unshaken, duryo na yūpaḥ, like a post fixed at the door. [Therefore, as before,] tasmāt, therefore even now, rāyaḥ prayantā, the giver of wealth, indra it, Indra himself, aśvayuh, wishing horses (to give) to the sacrificers; so gavyuh, wishing cows; rathayuh, wishing chariots; vasūyuh, wishing wealth — and thus wishing whatever other wealth there is — kṣayati, abides."

Pratipadārtha — "sudhyaḥ — the sacrificers and other people who perform excellent sacrificial rites; nireke — even though bereft (poor, without wealth); indrah — Indra; aśrāyi — was resorted to (was served); pajreṣu — among the sage Aṅgirasas though poor; stomaḥ — the praises that they make in respect of Indra; duryo na yūpaḥ — are established like the sacrificial post at the door; aśvayuḥ — who wishes to give horses to those who praise him; rathayuḥ — who wishes to give chariots; vasūyuḥ — who wishes to give wealth; indra it — that very Indra; rāyaḥ — of wealth; prayantā — as the giver (giving); kṣayati — dwells."

Rik 51.14, continued ⁷⁰

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra accepts the praises of his worshippers even though they are poor. Because the praises that the Aṅgirasa sages made, though they were poor, stand firm like the sacrificial post that stands at the door, Indra accepted those praises; and Indra desires horses, cows, chariots, wealth and the like in order to give them to his devotees. To those who praise him, Indra alone is the giver of wealth and the rest."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 206)

— "Indra repairs to the house of the pious even in poverty ; with the Pajras the praise of Indra is firm as the doorpost. Desirous of (winning in battle) horses, cows, chariots and riches for his worshippers, Indra the giver of riches is alone the lord of riches."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 206–208 - etad uktaṃ bhavati ⁷¹:

एतदुक्तं भवति । इन्द्रो न केवलं सति धने स्तोपासकानां गृहे सोमपानाय गच्छति ते वा तमुपासते अपि तु प्राप्तेऽपि नैर्धन्ये स तेषां गृहे गच्छति ते तमुपासते । अत एव पञ्चेषु सति वा न वा सति धने इन्द्रस्य स्तोत्रं द्वारि स्थिता स्थूणेव निश्चलम् । सततमिति यावत् । गीयते । अपि च यजमानेभ्योऽश्वादीन् संपादयन्निन्द्र एव धनस्य प्रभुरस्तीत्यर्थः ॥

⁷⁰. pp. 206–208, PDF 222–224

⁷¹. the Sanskrit note in the print

etad uktam bhavati | indro na kevalam sati dhane stopāsakānām gr̥he somapānāya gacchati te vā tam upāsate api tu prāpte 'pi nairdhanye sa teṣām gr̥he gacchati te tam upāsate | ata eva pajreṣu sati vā na vā sati dhane indrasya stotram dvāri sthitā sthūṇeva niścalam | satatam iti yāvat | gīyate | api ca yajamānebhya 'śvādīn sampādayann indra eva dhanasya prabhur astīty arthaḥ || — "This is what is said: Indra does not go to the house of his praisers for the drinking of soma only when there is wealth, nor do they worship him only then; but even when destitution has come he goes to their house, and they worship him. Therefore, among the Pajras, whether there is wealth or not, the praise of Indra is sung firm, like a post standing at the door — that is, constantly. And further, providing horses and the rest to the sacrificers, Indra alone is the lord of wealth: this is the sense."
 72 - sudhyaḥ — "Those whose work is praiseworthy, or sacrificers whose wisdom is spotless." - nireke — "This indicates that, when afflicted by poverty and the like, sacrificers perform sacrifices and so on in order to please Indra." - pajreṣu — "Pajrā is a name of the sages called Aṅgirasas": the śruti 'pajrā vā aṅgirasasḥ paśukāmās tapyotapyanta' tells this.

पज्रा वा अङ्गिरसः पशुकामास्तप्योतप्यन्त । (Śāṭyāyani-śruti, as quoted; reading [?])

pajrā vā aṅgirasasḥ paśukāmās tapyotapyanta | — editorial and tentative: "the Pajras, the Aṅgirasas, desiring cattle, practised austerity." - stomaḥ — "Unshaken praise." - duryo na yūpaḥ — "dure bhavaḥ duryaḥ: 'that which is at the door'; here the word na means 'like': like a sacrificial post set up at the door. This takes its construction with the preceding word sudhya, which means the sacrificers." - aśvayuh, gavyuh, rathayuh, vasūyuh — "Here, after the words aśva and the like, following the sūtra chandasi

72. The Kannada print here gives this Sanskrit passage in the line

"ಪತದುಕ್ತಂ ಭವತಿ" — the first word is crowded; etad uktam

bhavati is read, [?].

parecchāyām (Kā. 3-1-8... as read [?]), the suffix kyac in the sense of desiring another's ... comes; and Yāska explains differently: 'idaṃyuh — idaṃ kāmāyamānaḥ', and likewise it is explained 'in the sense of that': 'vasūyur indro vasumān ity arthaḥ, aśvayur gavyū rathayur vasūyur ity api nigamo bhavati' (Ni. 6-31 as read [?]). According to that sūtra, the meaning 'one who wishes for horses and the like' may be given."⁷³

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā⁷⁴ - aśrāyi: śrīñ sevāyām; luñ third singular in the agent sense; before the third-person ending, ciṇ by ciṇ... replaces cli's sic-type formation (cli luñi, Pā. 3-1-43 as read [?]) — the ciṇ substituted by vyatyayo bahulam; being ñit, vṛddhi of the root vowel (ato halādeḥ [?] / ac-rule as read); āyādeśa; ciṇo luk (Pā. 6-4-104) drops the following ta; with aṭ: aśrāyi. - sudhyaḥ: dhīḥ is a name of action; "śobhanā dhīr yeṣāṃ te sudhyaḥ"; sudhī with śas: yañ would be forbidden by nabhūsudhiyoḥ, but chandasy ubhayathā gives yañādeśa: sudhyaḥ; end-acute by nañsubhyām in the bahuvrīhi; since the acute i is replaced by y, the following anudātta becomes svarita by udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svaritaḥ. - nireke: "nitarām recanaṃ nirekaḥ"; ric virecane; ghañ in the sense of the action; laghūpadhagūṇa before ghañ; ci-jor ku ghiṇnyatoḥ (Pā. 7-3-52) gives kutva: vi upasarga + rek; end-acute of the final member by thāthaghañktājabitrāṇām. - duryaḥ: dure bhavaḥ duryaḥ; bhave chandasi (Pā. 4-4-110) gives yat; yasyeti ca drops the earlier a; yato 'nāvaḥ, initial-acute. - yūpaḥ: yu miśraṇe; "yūyate yuiyate 'smin"; pa by kuyubhyām ca (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]); lengthening (sruvo dīrghaś ca [?]) continued as a rule): no guṇa, since kniti ca continues, or since the dīrgha itself was

73. p. 208 adds: the formation aśvayuh is made, in the sense of "one who wishes the horse for sacrificers", with the kyac from the Vedic rule; Yāska's other explanation takes the suffix u added to the kyac-ending stem in the sense "who has"; for example vasūyuh = "Indra, who has wealth"; so words like aśvayuh are also valid in the sense of possession — this is the sense.

74. pp. 207–208 — grammar pages, noted briefly

prescribed (if guṇa came, the dīrgha would be useless). - aśvayuḥ: yajamānebhyo 'śvān icchan aśvayuḥ; chandasi parecchāyām gives kyac after aśva; kyaci ca would give īt, but na chandasy aputrasya (Pā. 7-4-35) forbids the ī and the lengthening; the ā that aśvāghasyāt would require does not come, being Vedic; the stem in kyac is a root; kyāc chandasi gives u after the kyac ending; ato lopaḥ drops the a of kyac: aśvayuḥ. In the same way, in gavyuḥ (wishing the cow for the sacrificer) kyac after go, and vānto yi pratyaye (Pā. 6-1-79) gives av for o; all other operations as before. Yāska, however, explains otherwise (above). - kṣayati: kṣi kṣaye, bhvādi; kartari śap; sārvadhātukanimitta guṇa, ayādeśa: kṣayati; nighāta since it follows an atiṇ. - prayantā: yama uparame; tṛc in the agent sense; eka ca upadeśe 'nudāttāt forbids iṭ; the m of the root becomes anusvāra by naś cāpadāntasya jhali; before y... anusvārasya yayi parasavarṇaḥ gives n as the homorganic: yantr; nominative singular; the end-acute by ciṭaḥ [?]; with pra, gatisamāsa, so gatikārakopapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the final member. || 14 ||

original pp. 209–211

Rik 15

Samhitā-pāṭha

इदं नमो वृषभाय स्वराजे सत्यशुष्माय तवसेऽवाचि । अस्मिन्निन्द्र वृजने सर्ववीराः स्मत्सूरिभिस्तव शर्मन्त्स्याम ॥ १५ ॥

*idaṃ namo vṛṣabhāya svarāje satyaśuṣmāya tavase 'vāci | asminn
indra vṛjane sarvavīrāḥ smat sūribhis tava śarman syāma || 15 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

इदम् । नमः । वृषभाय । स्वराजे । सत्यशुष्माय । तवसे । अवाचि । अस्मिन् । इन्द्र । वृजने । सर्ववीराः । स्मत् । सूरिभिः । तव । शर्मन् । स्याम ॥ १५ ॥

idam | namaḥ | vṛṣabhāya | sva-rāje | satya-śuṣmāya | tavase |
 avāci | asmin | indra | vṛjane | sarva-vīrāḥ | smat | sūri-bhiḥ |
 tava | śarman | syāma || 15 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

इदं पुरोवर्ति नमः स्तुतिलक्षणं वचो हे इन्द्र तुभ्यमवाचि । अस्माभिः प्रायोजि ।
 कीदृशाय । वृषभाय । वर्षणशीलाय । स्वराजे । स्वकीयेन तेजसा राजमानाय ।
 सत्यशुष्माय । शुष्ममिति बलनाम शत्रूणां शोषकत्वात् । अवितथबलयुक्ताय ।
 तवसे । अत्यन्तं प्रवृद्धाय । यस्मादेवं तस्मादस्मिन्वृजने वर्जनवति संग्रामे सर्ववीराः ।
 विशेषेणेरयन्त्यमित्रानिति वीरा भटाः । तादृशैः सर्वैर्भटैरुपेता वयम् । स्मदिति
 निपातः सुशब्दार्थः । तव स्मत् शर्मन् त्वया दत्ते शोभने गृहे सूरिभिर्विद्वद्भिः
 पुत्रादिभिः सह स्याम । भवेम । निवसेमेत्यर्थः । यद्वा त्वत्संबन्धिनि शोभने यज्ञगृहे सूरिभिर्विद्वद्भिर्ऋत्विग्भिः सह स्याम । शर्मेति गृहनाम । शर्म वर्मेति पठितत्वात् ॥

idam purovarti namaḥ stutilakṣaṇam vaco he indra tubhyam avāci | asmābhiḥ prāyoji | kīdrśāya | vṛṣabhāya | varṣaṇaśilāya |
 svarāje | svakīyena tejasā rājamānāya | satyaśuṣmāya | śuṣmam
 iti balanāma śatrūṇāṃ śośakatvāt | avitathabalayuktāya | tavase
 | atyantam pravṛddhāya | yasmād evaṃ tasmād asmin vṛjane varjanavati saṃgrāme sarvavīrāḥ | viśeṣeṇerayanty amitrān iti
 vīrā bhaṭāḥ | tādrśaiḥ sarvair bhaṭair upetā vayam | smad iti nipātaḥ suśabdārthaḥ | tava smat śarman tvayā datte śobhane
 gr̥he sūribhir vidvadbhiḥ putrādibhiḥ saha syāma | bhavema | nivasemety arthaḥ | yadvā tvatsaṃbandhini śobhane yajñagr̥he sūribhir vidvadbhir ṛtvigbhiḥ saha syāma | śarmeti gr̥hanāma |
 śarma varmeti paṭhitatvāt | | 75

75. The grammatical tail of the bhāṣya, on svarāje, satyaśuṣmāya, tavase, vṛjane, śarman, syāma, is characterized: the Uṇādi asi for tavase, "tavatiḥ sautro dhātuḥ", kṛip by satsūdviṣa... for svarāje, the dropping of the locative by supām suluk with the exclusion of nalopa in śarman, the dhuḍ-āgama after nāntaḥ in the Saṃhitā — "naś ca" — and the discussion khari ca, jhayo dvitīyāḥ..., Pauṣkarasādi.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "This namaḥ, this word of the nature of praise, set before (you), O Indra, avāci, has been uttered for you — has been applied by us. For one of what sort? Vṛṣabhāya, for the showerer; svarāje, for the one who shines by his own splendour; satyaśuṣmāya — śuṣma is a name of strength, because it dries up the enemies — for him who possesses unfailing strength; tavase, for the exceedingly grown. Since it is so, asmin vṛjane, in this vṛjana — a battle in which men are 'turned aside' — sarvavīrāḥ: those who impel the enemies variously are vīrās, warriors; being furnished with all such warriors, we — smat is a particle with the meaning of su, 'well' — tava śarman, in the fair house given by you, sūribhiḥ, with the learned, with sons and others, syāma, may we be, dwell. Or: in your fair sacrificial house, together with the learned priests (ṛtvijaḥ), may we be. Śarma is a name for house, since it is read 'śarma varma'."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; vṛṣabhāya — to him who sends rain; svarāje — who shines by his own splendour; satyaśuṣmāya — who has real strength (that is effective in destroying enemies); tavase — who is mighty (therefore, for you); idaṃ namaḥ — this word in the form of praise; avāci — has been uttered (by us; therefore); asmin vṛjane — in this battle; sarvavīrāḥ — accompanied by all the warriors, we (helped by them); tava smat śarman — in the fair house given by you; sūribhiḥ — together with learned sons; syāma — may we be (may we dwell). [Or: tava smat śarman — in your fair sacrificial house; sūribhiḥ — with learned ṛtvijis; syāma — may we be.]"

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you are the sender of rain; you shine by your own splendour; you are possessed of true, effective strength; you are exceedingly mighty. This word of praise, in the form of salutation, has been offered to you who have such qualities. In this battle, with the help of all the warriors, may we dwell together with learned sons and others in the fair house given by you. Or: may we be with the ṛtvijs in the sacrificial house."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 210)

— "This adoration is offered to the shedder of rain, the self-resplendent, the possessor of true vigour, the mighty ; Indra, may we be aided in this conflict by many heroes and abide in a prosperous dwelling [sic: "dwelling"] bestowed by you."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 210-211 - namaḥ — "A word that conveys praise." - vṛṣabhāya — "One whose nature is to send rain: Indra." - satyaśuṣmāya — "Satyam — śuṣmam: one whose strength is real, destroying enemies; that is, one who has strength that is truly destructive of enemies and not in vain." - sarvavīrāḥ — "viśeṣeṇa īrayanti amitrān iti vīrāḥ: warriors of such prowess as to destroy all enemies in a moment." - smat — "A particle with the meaning of the word su ('excellent')." - śarman — "By the Nirukta sūtra 'śarma varma' (Nī. 3-4 as read [?]) the word śarma means house. Śarman is used in the sense of the locative śarmaṇi. The sense is: 'In the excellent house provided by you, may we dwell happily together with many learned men and priests.'"

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁷⁶ - svarāje: rāja dīptau, bhvādi; kvip by satsūdviṣadruhaduhayujavidabhidachidajinīrājām upasarge... (Pā. 3-2-61 as read [?]); sarvalopa in kvip; being ending in a kṛt, it has the prātipadika designation; dative singular. - satyaśuṣmāya: "satyam śuṣmam balaṃ yasya saḥ", a bahuvrīhi; the accent of the first member by bahuvrīthau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam. - tavase: tava is a sautra root; the Uṇādi suffix asi gives tavas; dative singular. - vṛjane: vṛjī varjane; kyu by kyāṣyavṛjimandinidhānbhyaḥ kyuh (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]); yuvor anākau; being kit, no guṇa of the penultimate; vṛjana; locative singular; middle-acute by the suffix-

76. pp. 211 — grammar page, noted briefly

accent. - śarman: śarman in the locative singular: supām suluk drops the locative ending; nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya would drop the n, but na nisambuddhyoḥ (Pā. 8-2-8) forbids it, since the ni follows. - syāma: as bhuvi, adādi; vidhiliṅ first person plural mas; nityam nītaḥ (Pā. 3-4-99) drops the s of mas; yāsuḥ by yāsuḥ parasmaipadeṣūdāttaḥ...; śnasoral lopaḥ drops the a of as: syāma. - śarman + syāma: in the Saṃhitā, naś ca (Pā. 8-3-30 as read [?]) makes the s after a word ending in n take dhuḥ; dhuḥ being tit, it stands as the first member of the s; khari ca (Pā. 8-4-55) turns the dh into t before a hard letter; so śarmant syāma; and by jhayo dvitīyāḥ śari pauṣkarasāder iti vācyam (Pā. 8-4-... vārttika, as read [?]), an optional th for the t; one need not suspect that khari ca would again make th into t, since, in the opinion of the teacher Pauṣkarasādi, the prescription of the second letter would be pointless if the carva came again. || 15 || ⁷⁷

Close of Sūkta 51

Sūkta 51 (Maṇḍala 1, Tenth Anuvāka, 15 Riks; ṛṣi Savya Āṅgīrasa; deity Indra; Jagatī, with Riks 14–15 as the Sāyaṇa-introduction states Triṣṭubh) — printed pp. 147–211, PDF 163–227.

Its Riks recall Indra's deeds: breaking the cloud and releasing the waters for the Āṅgīrasas, the guiding of Atri and the gifts to Vimada (3); the opening of the water-receptacles and the exposure of the sun after the slaying of Vṛtra (4); the humbling of the Asuras who offered the oblation to their own mouths, the cities of Pipru and the protection of Ṛjīśvan (5); the defence of Kutsa and Atithigva, Śambara and Arbuda (6); the chastisement of the Dasyus for the sake of the Āryas and the sacrificer (7–8);

77. The print gives no closing sentence for Sūkta 51: the last grammar paragraph — on syāma and the dhuḥ-āgama in śarmant syāma — ends at the foot of p. 211 with a small ornament, and the next sūkta begins at the head of p. 212 (PDF 228). My own summary, not the source's:

Vamra and the sacrificial store (9); the strength sharpened by Uśanas and the wind-swift horses (10–11); the legend of Śāryāta and the Aśvins' share, as told in the Kauṣītaki Brāhmaṇa (12); the gift of Vṛcayā to Kakṣīvat and Indra's birth as Menā, the legend of Dīrghatamas and the maid Uśik (13); the unshaken praise of the Pajras (14); and the closing prayer for dwelling in Indra's fair house with learned sons, or in the sacrificial house with the priests (15). In the Special Topics the source gathers its longest accounts of Pipru, Ṛjīśvan, Kutsa, Atithigva, Śambara, Arbuda, Śāryāta and Kakṣīvān, with their Ṛgveda references in small numerals — all of which marked [?] and not reconciled.

Sūkta 52 — "tvaṃ sumeṣam [?]"

original p. 212

Title and Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 212)

ಐವತ್ತೆರಡನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — ¹

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya (introduction)

त्वं सु मेषमिति पञ्चदशर्चं द्वितीयं सूक्तं सव्यस्यार्षमैन्द्रम् । त्रयोदशीपञ्चदशयौ
त्रिष्टुभौ शिष्टा जगत्यः । तथा चानुक्रान्तम् । त्वं सु त्रयोदश त्र्यां[?] त्रिष्टुभाविति ॥
गवामयनस्य मध्यमेऽहनि विषुवत्संज्ञके मरुत्वतीयशस्त्र इदं सूक्तं
विषुवान्दिवाकीर्त्य इति खण्डे सूत्रितम् । त्वं सु मेषं कयोशुभेति च मरुत्वतीयम् । आश्व. ८-६ [?] इति ॥

*tvaṃ su meṣam iti pañcadaśarcaṃ dvitīyaṃ sūktaṃ savyasyārṣam aindraṃ | trayodaśīpañcadaśyau triṣṭubhau śiṣṭā jagatyaḥ | tathā cānukrāntam | tvaṃ su trayodaśa tvaṃ[?] triṣṭubhāv iti || gavāmayanasya madhyame 'hani viṣuvatsamjñake marutvatīyaśastra idaṃ sūktaṃ viṣuvān divākīrtya iti khaṇḍe sūtritam | tvaṃ su meṣam kayośubheti ca marutvatīyam | āśva.
8-6 [?] iti ||* ²

Translation: "'Tvaṃ su meṣam': a sūkta of fifteen Riks, the second [of the Tenth Anuvāka]; the seer is Savya, the deity Indra; the thirteenth and fifteenth are Triṣṭubh, the rest Jagatī — so the Anukramaṇī: 'Tvam su: thirteen ... two Triṣṭubhs' [?]. On the middle day of the Gavāmayana, called the Viṣuvat, this sūkta is prescribed for the Marutvatīya-śāstra — in the section beginning 'viṣuvān divākīrtyaḥ' it is laid down: 'tvam su meṣam' and 'kayā śubhā' are the Marutvatīya (Āśv. [Śrauta Sūtra] 8-6 as read [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 212) — "'Tvam su meṣam' is the second sūkta in the tenth anuvāka. It has fifteen Riks. The seer of this sūkta is Savya; the deity is Indra. The thirteenth and fifteenth Riks are in the Triṣṭubh metre; the remaining Riks are in Jagatī. In the Anukramaṇikā it is said 'tvam su trayodaśe triṣṭubhāv iti' [?]. In the Gavāmayana sacrifice, on the middle day called Viṣuvat, this sūkta must be used for reciting the Marutvatīya-śāstra mantras; this is explained in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra, in the section 'viṣuvān divākīrtyaḥ', by the sūtra 'tvam su meṣam kayā śubhā ca marutvatīyam' (Āśv. 8-6 as read [?])."

Heading block - Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 10 · Sūkta 52 - Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 12, 13, 14 [as read, small numerals, [?]] - Number of Riks in the sūkta: 15 - Ṛṣi: Savya Āṅgīrasa - Deity: Indra - Metre: Riks 1–12 and 14 Jagatī; Riks 13 and 15 Triṣṭubh ³

original p. 212

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ⁴

त्वं सु मेषं महया स्वविदं शतं यस्य सुभ्वः साकमीरते । अत्यं न वाजं हवनस्यदं रथमेन्द्रं
ववृत्यामवसे सुवृत्तिभिः ॥ १ ॥

2. Reading note: "trayodaśīpañcadaśyau triṣṭubhau" — the print shows trayodaśī pañcadaśī triṣṭubhā crowded; It is read with the anuvāda below, which says that Riks 13 and 15 are Triṣṭubh. The Anukramaṇī half-line "tvam su trayodaśa tryam..." is crowded, [?]; the Āśvalāyana numerals "8-6" as read, [?].

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-second sūkta"

3. read "೧-೦೨, ೦೪ ಜಗತೀ | ೦೩, ೦೫ ತ್ರಿಷ್ಠುಭಃ"

4. accents printed, not reproduced

*tvam su meṣam mahayā svarvidam śatam yasya subhvaḥ sākam īrate | atyam na vājam havanasyadam ratham endram vavṛtyām
avase suvṛktibhiḥ || 1 ||*

Rik 52.1, continued ⁵

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । सु । मेषम् । महय । स्वःऽविदम् । शतम् । यस्य । सुऽभवः । साकम् । ईरते । अत्यम्
। न । वाजम् । हवनऽस्यदम् । रथम् । आ । इन्द्रम् । ववृत्याम् । अवसे । सुवृक्तिऽभिः ॥ १
॥

*tvam | su | meṣam | mahaya | svaḥ-vidam | śatam | yasya | su-
bhvaḥ | sākam | īrate | atyam | na | vājam | havana-syadam |
ratham | ā | indram | vavṛtyām | avase | suvṛkti-bhiḥ || 1 ||* ⁶

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

त्वं तं प्रसिद्धं मेषं शत्रुभिः सह स्पर्धमानं स्वविदम् । स्वरादित्यो द्यौर्वा । तस्य
वेदितारं लब्धारं वा । यद्वा । स्वः सुष्ठु अरणीयं धनम् । तस्य लम्भयितारम् ।
एवंगुणविशिष्टमिन्द्रं हे अध्वर्यो सु महय । सम्यक् पूजय । यस्येन्द्रस्य शतं
शतसंख्याकाः सुभवः स्तोतारः साकं सहैव युगपत् [?] ईरते स्तुतौ प्रवर्तन्ते । यद्वा
यस्येन्द्रस्य रथं शतं सुभवः शतसंख्याका अश्वाः साकं सहेरते । गमयन्ति ।
तमिन्द्रमवसेऽस्मद्रक्षणाय सुवृक्तिभिः सुष्ठु दोषवर्जकैः [?] स्तोत्रैः रथमाववृत्याम् ।
रथं प्रत्यावर्तयामि । कीदृशं रथम् । हवनस्यदम् । हवनमाह्वानं यागं वा प्रति वेगेन
गच्छन्तम् । वेगगमने दृष्टान्तः । अत्यं न वाजम् । गमनसाधनमश्वमिव ।

*tvam tam prasiddham meṣam śatrubhiḥ saha spardhamānam
svarvidam | svar ādityo dyaur vā | tasya veditāram labdhāram vā
| yadvā | svaḥ suṣṭhu araṇīyam dhanam | tasya lambhayitāram | evamguṇaviśiṣṭam indram he adhvaryo su mahaya | samyak
pūjaya | yasyendrasya śatam śatasamkhyākāḥ subhvaḥ stotārah*

5. pp. 213–215, PDF 229–231

6. The Pada shows the verb-form as mahaya (imperative) and ā ... vavṛtyām as a split verb with ā standing before indram; so the Saṃhitā's "ratham endram" is ratham | ā | indram, as had been read.

*sākaṃ sahaiva yugapat [?] īrate stutau pravartante | yadvā yasyendrasya rathaṃ śataṃ subhvaḥ śatasamkhyākā aśvāḥ sākaṃ saheirate | gamayanti | tam indram avase 'smadrakṣaṇāya
 suvṛktibhiḥ suṣṭhu doṣavarjakaiḥ [?] stotraiḥ ratham āvavṛtyām |
 rathaṃ pratyāvartayāmi | kīdṛśaṃ ratham | havanasyadam |
 havanam āhvānaṃ yāgaṃ vā prati vegena gacchantam |
 vegagamane drṣṭāntaḥ | atyaṃ na vājam | gamanasādhanam
 aśvam iva | ⁷*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "You, O Adhvaryu, worship well that well-known Indra — meṣam, who vies with enemies, svarvidam: sva is the sun, or heaven; the knower or obtainer of that; or: sva = excellent wealth that is to be sought, one who makes it obtained — Indra possessed of such qualities, su mahaya, worship properly. Of that Indra, yasya, a hundred subhvaḥ, praisers, sākaṃ īrate, together proceed into praise; or: the chariot of that Indra a hundred subhvaḥ, horses, draw together. That Indra, for our protection, with suvṛktibhiḥ, with praises [that remove faults well, [?]], I shall turn to the chariot (ratham ā vavṛtyām) — I shall bring him back to the chariot. What sort of chariot? Havanasyadam, running swiftly towards the invocation or the sacrifice. As an example of swift going, atyaṃ na vājam, like a horse, the means of going."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Adhvaryu) tvam — you; meṣam — who vies with the enemies, the well-known; svarvidam — who makes heaven known (or the sun-world) or who gains wealth; indram

— Indra; su mahaya — worship well; yasya — whose (Indra's); śatam — hundred in number; subhvaḥ — the praisers; sākam — gathered together; irate — praise; [or: yasya — of which Indra (his chariot); śatam — a hundred in number; subhvaḥ — horses; sākam — together; irate — draw (him) swiftly;] indram — that Indra; avase — for our protection; atyam na vājam — like a horse running with speed; havanasyadam — running quickly towards the invocation or the sacrifice; ratham — the chariot; svṛktibhiḥ — with praises worthy of worship; ā vavṛtyām — I shall cause (him) to mount."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Adhvaryu, worship well the well-known Indra, who contends with the enemies and makes heaven known. A hundred praisers together praise that Indra. Praying to him with praises worthy of worship, I shall cause him to mount the chariot that runs swiftly like a horse, and to come, for our protection, towards our sacrifice."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 214)

— "Worship well that ram (Indra) who makes heaven known, whom a hundred worshippers at once are praising. I implore Indra with many prayers to ascend the car which hastens like a fleet horse to the Sacrifice for my protection."

7. Reading notes: "yugapat" after "sahaiva" and "suṣṭhu doṣavarjakaiḥ" are crowded, [?]; the sense is confirmed by the Pratipadārtha below. The long grammatical tail — on mahaya, subhvaḥ, irate, atyam, vājam, havanasyadam, vavṛtyām — is characterized, not transcribed: it argues, for example, that the Vedic lengthening in the Saṃhitā of mahayā comes by anyeṣām api dṛśyate, that the nighāta accent is blocked by the ñit of yāsuṭ, and that in havanasyadam the root syand ("to flow") takes vic ... with the loss of the nasal and the vṛddhi-prohibition, the accent being that of the last member; the Kannada grammar pages (pp. 215–216) repeat these.

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 214–215 - tvam — "This is the second-person singular of the word tyad, which means 'well-known'. 'Well-known' is its sense." ⁸ - meṣam — "Indra who contends with enemies. (The explanation of this word is given in detail at R. Saṃ. 1-51-1 [i.e., Rik 51.1 above].)" - svarvidam — "svar is the sun, or heaven; its knower or obtainer; or, 'who makes the excellent wealth to be obtained'. As one who has gained heaven and the sun-world and who knows all matters there, or as one who makes the sacrificers obtain excellent wealth, this word is an epithet of Indra." - śatam subhvaḥ sākam irate — "Here the word subhū has two senses: 'praisers' and 'horses'. A hundred praisers, singing praise of Indra together in one voice; or, a hundred horses draw the chariot of Indra together, swiftly — thus the meaning may be taken." - atyam — "It means a horse. 'atyaḥ hayaḥ' (Ni. 1-14 as read [?]) — in the Nirukta it is read in the sense of horse."

अत्यो हयः । (Ni., numeral as read [?])

atyo hayaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "atya [means] horse." - vājam — "vājyate gamyate anena: the word vāja, with this derivation, gives the sense 'going swiftly'. The sentence atyaṃ na vājam has the sense 'like a horse that is an instrument of going'." - suvṛktibhiḥ — "Suvṛkti is the name of praiseworthy hymns that draw the mind wherever one may be."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁹ - mahaya: maha pūjāyām, curādi, a root in ā; loṭ second singular sip, for which hi; ñic in the own sense by satyāpapāśarūpavīṇātūlaślokaśenāloamatvacavarmavarnācūrṇacurādibhyo

8. The print has tyaṃ, the second-case singular of tyad; It is given as the Kannada states, "the accusative singular of tyad", the word tyaṃ glossing the Saṃhitā's tvam [?] — the Saṃhitā text itself reads tvam su meṣam and the bhāṣya tvam taṃ prasiddhaṃ meṣam, so the Kannada note's "tvam" is the print's own heading, and the note is as read.

9. p. 215 and following — grammar pages, noted briefly; continued on p. 216

ṇic (Pā. 3-1-25); ato lopaḥ drops the a before ṇic; śap; ato heḥ drops hi; śap being the cause, guṇa and ayādeśa: mahaya; in the Saṃhitā the lengthening anyeṣām api dṛśyate (Pā. 6-3-137 as read [?]) gives mahayā; being a verb standing after a non-verb, nighāta. - subhvaḥ: "su bhavanti iti subhvaḥ, praisers"; bhū sattāyām with kvip ca (Pā. 3-2-76 as read [?]) gives kvip: subhū; compound with the prefix su; gatikārapapadāt kṛt gives the final-member accent; before jas the yaṇ of oḥ supi would be forbidden by nabhūsudhiyoḥ (Pā. 6-4-85), but chandasy ubhayathā ("both ways in the Veda") — the prohibition not applying — the general rule gives yaṇ: subhvaḥ; since the ū becomes v, the ending's udātta by udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svaritaḥ... is svarita. - īrate: īra gatau kampane ca, adādi; śap elided by adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ; since the root ends in a, the jh of the ātmanepada is replaced by at by ātmanepadeṣv anataḥ (Pā. 7-1-5); ṭita ātmanepadānām ṭer e (Pā. 3-4-79) gives e: īrate.¹⁰

Rik 52.1, grammar (end)¹¹ - the accent of īrate: since the root ends in the anudātta-marked suffix, only the end-acute of the root is left. Because yasya was just before, connected with the yat-word, the nighāta is forbidden by yadvṛttān nityam (Pā. 8-1-66 as read [?]); though the sūtra names the first case (the yat-word immediately following), the Kannada notes that the rule vyavahite 'pi kāryam iṣyate applies, so the action holds here too, though something intervenes. - atyam: atya is a name for the horse; "atyaḥ hayaḥ" (Ni. numeral as read, [?]) is read as a synonym. - vājam: "vājyate gamyate 'neneti vājaḥ"; vaja vraja gatau; ghañ in the instrumental sense; ata upadhāyāḥ gives vṛddhi of the penultimate; by ajiv rajyoś ca (Pā. 7-3-60 as read [?]), since the word ca there brings in what is not stated, no kutva of vaj in vājaḥ, vājyam; ñnityādir nityam, initial-acute. -

10. The remaining notes — on atyam, vājam, havanasyadam, vavṛtyām — are on p. 216, given with the next batch.

11. p. 216, PDF 232 — grammar page, noted briefly

havanasyadam: syandū prasravaṇe; the sūtra syado jave (Pā. 6-4-28 as read [?]) has laid down the speed sense, so ghaṇ is laid down as an nipāta of this root, so the loss of the nasal and the non-vṛddhi are established; the Kannada discusses an objection (why not take na dhātulopa ārdhadhātuke for the vṛddhi-prohibition?) and answers that this sūtra forbids only vṛddhi that is ik-marked, whereas here the vṛddhi is by ata upadhāyāḥ, not ik-marked; hence the nipāta must be accepted; since ghaṇ is ñit, the last member is initial-acute; in the compound, gatikārapapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the final member. - vavṛtyām: vṛtu vartane, bhvādi, ātmanepada; vyatyayo bahulam gives parasmaipada liṇ; bahulaṃ chandasi replaces śap by ślu; ślau gives reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; uratva; tasthasthamipāṃ tām tam tāmaḥ (Pā. 3-4-101) replaces mip by am; yāsuṭ by yāsuṭ parasmaipadeṣūdātto ṇicca; vavṛtyām; because the yāsuṭ is treated as ñit, the penultimate takes no guṇa (pugantalaḥūpadhasya ca); being a verb after a non-verb, nighāta by tiṇ atinaḥ. || 1 ||

original p. 217

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

स पर्वतो न धरुणेष्वच्युतः सहस्रमूतिस्तविषीषु वावृधे । इन्द्रो यद्वृत्रमवधीन्नदीवृतमुब्जन्नर्णासि जर्हृषाणो अन्धसा ॥ २ ॥

sa parvato na dharuṇeṣv acyutaḥ sahasramūtis taviṣīṣu vāvṛdhe | indro yad vṛtram avadhīn nadīvṛtam ubjann arṇāṃsi jarhṛṣāṇo andhasā || 2 ||

Pada-pāṭha

सः । पर्वतः । न । धरुणेषु । अच्युतः । सहस्रमूतिः [सहस्रऽकृतिः] । तविषीषु । वावृधे । इन्द्रः । यत् । वृत्रम् । अवधीत् । नदीऽवृतम् । उब्जन् । अर्णासि । जर्हृषाणः । अन्धसा ॥ २ ॥

sah | parvataḥ | na | dharuṇeṣu | acyutaḥ | sahasra-ūtiḥ |
 taviṣṭu | vavṛdhe | indraḥ | yat | vṛtram | avadhīt | nadī-vṛtam |
 ubjan | arṇāṃsi | jarhṛṣāṇaḥ | andhasā || 2 || ¹²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अन्धसा सोमलक्षणेनान्नेन जर्हृषाणोऽत्यर्थं हृष्यन्निन्द्रो यद्यदा वृत्रं त्रयाणां
 लोकानामावरीतारमसुरमवधीत् । हतवान् । कीदृशं वृत्रम् । नदीवृतम् । नदनान्ध
 आपः । तासामावरीतारम् । किं कुर्वन्निन्द्रः । अर्णासि जलान्युब्जन् । अधःपातयन्
 । तदानीं स इन्द्रः पर्वतो न पर्वत इव शिलोच्चय इव धरुणेषु सर्वस्य धारकेषूदकेषु
 मध्येऽच्युतश्चलनराहित्येन स्थितः सहस्रमूर्तिर्बहुविधरक्षणवान् तविषीषु बलेषु वावृधे । प्रवृद्धो बभूव ॥

*andhasā somalakṣaṇenānnena jarhṛṣāṇo 'tyartham hr̥syann indro yad yadā vṛtram trayāṇāṃ lokānām āvaritāram asuram avadhīt |
 hatavān | kīdr̥śam vṛtram | nadīvṛtam | nadanān nadya āpaḥ |
 tāsām āvaritāram | kiṃ kurvann indraḥ | arṇāṃsi jalāny ubjan | adhaḥpātayan | tadānīm sa indraḥ parvato na parvata iva śiloccaya iva dharuṇeṣu sarvasya dhārakeṣūdakeṣu madhye 'cyutaś calanarāhityena sthitaḥ sahasramūtir bahuvidharakṣaṇavān
 taviṣṭu baleṣu vāvṛdhe | pravṛddo babhūva ||* ¹³

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Andhasā, with the food in the form of soma, jarhṛṣāṇaḥ, exceedingly delighted, Indra, yat, when he killed Vṛtra, the Asura who covers the three worlds — what sort

12. The Pada's vavṛdhe against the Saṃhitā's vāvṛdhe: the Saṃhitā lengthens the reduplicative vowel — see the bhāṣya's tail.

13. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 217–218, is characterized: on dharuṇeṣu (dhārayateḥ... luk ca, with the unaprakṛti suffix); sahasramūtīḥ (the ūtayaḥ "protections"; the lengthening; the lug-bhāva ...); vāvṛdhe (the lengthened reduplication in the Saṃhitā by abhyāsasyānyeṣām api dṛśyate); nadīvṛtam; ubjan (ubja ārjave, a śatr); arṇāṃsi (the Uṇādi asun after r, with nuṭ and the nuḍāgama); jarhṛṣāṇaḥ (hr̥ṣa tuṣtau, reduplicated frequentative with śānac); andhasā (adyata iti andhaḥ, Uṇ. 4-... [?] asun).

of Vṛtra? nadivṛtam: nadya are the 'sounding' waters; he who covers them. What was Indra doing? Arṇāṃsi ubjan: pouring the waters downward. Then that Indra, parvato na, like a mountain, like a mass of rock, dharuṇeṣu, in the midst of the waters that support all, acyutaḥ, stood unmoving, without any wavering, sahasramūtiḥ, having protection of many kinds, taviṣīṣu, in strengths, vāvṛdhe: grew exceedingly."

Pratipadārtha — "andhasā — with the food in the form of soma; jarhṛṣāṇaḥ — taking delight; indrah — Indra; arṇāṃsi — the waters; ubjan — pouring downward; nadivṛtam — obstructing the waters; vṛtram — Vṛtra (who covered the three worlds); yat — when; avadhīt — he killed; saḥ — that Indra; parvato na — like a mountain (a mass of rocks); dharuṇeṣu — in the midst of the waters, which support all; acyutaḥ — without movement (firm), standing; sahasramūtiḥ — with thousands of means of protection; taviṣīṣu — in strengths; vāvṛdhe — grew (became exceedingly strong)."

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra, taking delight in the sacrificial food, when he had killed Vṛtra, who obstructs the waters, pouring the waters downward, stood unmoving like a mountain amid the waters that support all, and grew exceedingly powerful, with thousands of means of protection for his devotees."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 218)

— "When Indra, who delights in the sacrificial food had slain the stream-obstructing Vṛtra, and was pouring down the waters, he stood firm amid the torrents like mountain, and endowed with a thousand means of protecting, increased in vigour."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 218 - parvato na — "The sense 'like a mountain' is obtained from the co-occurrence of the na of comparison." - dharuṇeṣu — "sarvasya dhārakeṣūḍakeṣu madhye: in the midst of the waters, supporters of all. It is described that Indra, at the time of confronting the Asura Vṛtra, stood firm, unafraid, in the midst of the water, like a mountain." - sahasramūtiḥ — "By the derivation 'sahasram ūtayaḥ yasya saḥ', 'one who has a thousand protections' — one who has protection of many kinds."

Rik 52.2, Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁴ - nadivṛtam — (first the Special Topic, p. 219:) "nadanān nadyaḥ — tāsām āvarītāram: he who was in the middle of the mass of waters, the Asura Vṛtra; Indra destroyed such a Vṛtra." - dharuṇeṣu: dhṛñ avasthāne; the Uṇādi suffix una by dhārayater nir lug ca [as read, [?]]; guṇa of the root; ṇatva of the n after r by aṭkupvānnumvyavāye 'pi; dharuṇa; locative plural; the initial acute of the suffix gives the u after r an acute. - sahasramūtiḥ: "sahasram ūtayo yasya asau"; in the compound, the dropping of the case ending that supo dhātuprātīpadikayoḥ would give is not applied in the Veda. - vavṛdhe: vṛdhu vṛddhau, bhvādi; liṭ third singular ta, replaced by e by liṭas tajhayor eṣirec; being ṇit-like (liṇ), the root is reduplicated; urat; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; asaṃyogāl liṭ kit gives it the kit nature, so no guṇa: vavṛdhe; tiṇ atīnaḥ: nighāta; in the Saṃhitā the reduplicative vowel is lengthened by anyeṣām api drśyate: vāvṛdhe. - nadivṛtam: "nadīm vṛnotīti nadivṛt"; vṛñ varaṇe; kvip ca; hrasvasya piti kṛti tuk gives tuk after the root's short vowel; since the suffix is kit, no guṇa; accusative singular. - ubjan: ubja ārjave, tudādi, śatṛ in the present sense; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ; ubjat; nominative singular; ugit, so num; halīyādi drops su, then the saṃyogāntalopa: ubjan; the vikaraṇa-accent makes the a after j acute. - arṇāṃsi: r gatau; udake nuṭ ca (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]) — when the sense is "water", the Uṇādi asun and the nuṭ-augment; ṇatva by raśābhyām no ṇaḥ samānapade: arṇas; accusative plural arṇāṃsi; because asun is nit, initial-acute by ñnityādir nityam. - jarhṛṣāṇaḥ: hṛṣa tuṣṭau in the intensive sense: yañ, elided here by yaño 'ci ca; sanādyantā dhātavaḥ, so the root-designation;

reduplication; abhyāsasya halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; cutva gives j; rugrikau ca luki (Pā. 7-4-91) the ruk-augment: jarhr̥ṣ; though suited to śatṛ, vyatyayo bahulam gives śānac; ṇatva by aṭkupvāṇnumvyavāye; abhyastānām ādiḥ, initial-acute; or, after yaj ending, śānac, and by bahulaṃ chandasi elision of śap, with chandasy ubhayathā, ārdhadhātuka nature for śānac, and ato lopo yasya hala, the form is as before. - andhasā: "adyate iti andhaḥ"; ad bhakṣaṇe; the Uṇādi nuṭ (num) ādeḥ nuṭ dhaś ca (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]) — num to the root and asun, with dh for the final d: andhas; instrumental singular; asun is nit, so ñnityādir nityam gives the initial acute. || 2 ||

original pp. 220–224

Rik 3

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

स हि द्वरो द्वरिषु वव्र ऊधनि चन्द्रबुध्नो मदवृद्धो मनीषिभिः । इन्द्रं तमहे स्वपस्यया धिया मंहिष्ठरतिं स हि पप्रिरन्धसः ॥ ३ ॥ sa hi dvaro dvariṣu vavra ūdhani candrabudhno madavṛddho manīṣibhiḥ | indram tam ahve svapasyayā dhiyā maṃhiṣṭharātiṃ

sa hi paprir andhasaḥ || 3 ||

Pada-pāṭha

सः । हि । द्वरः । द्वरिषु । वव्रः । ऊधनि । चन्द्रबुध्नः । मदवृद्धः । मनीषिभिः । इन्द्रम् । तम्
। अहे । सुऽअपस्यया । धिया । मंहिष्ठरतिम् [print: "रतिः", [?]] । सः । हि । पप्रिः । अन्धसः ॥ ३ ॥

saḥ | hi | dvaraḥ | dvariṣu | vavraḥ | ūdhani | candra-budhnaḥ |
mada-vṛddhaḥ | manīṣi-bhiḥ | indram | tam | ahve | su-apasyayā
| dhiyā | maṃhiṣṭha-rātiṃ [the print reads "-rātiḥ", doubtful, [?]] |
saḥ | hi | papriḥ | andhasaḥ || 3 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

स पूर्वोक्तगुणविशिष्ट इन्द्रो द्वरिष्वावरीतृषु शत्रुषु द्वरो हि अतिशयेनावरीता खलु ।
 शत्रुजयशील इत्यर्थः । यस्मादूधन्यद्भुतजलवत्यन्तरिक्षे [?] वव्रः संभक्तो व्याप्य
 वर्तते । अत एव चन्द्रबुध्नः । सर्वासां प्रजानामाह्लादकमूलः । अन्तरिक्षस्य
 सर्वाह्लादकत्वात् । मदवृद्धः । माद्यन्त्येभिरिति मदाः सोमाः । तैर्वर्धितः । एवंभूतो य
 इन्द्रो मंहिष्ठरातिं प्रवृद्धधनं प्रवृद्धदानं वा तमिन्द्रं मनीषिभिर्मनस ईशित्रभिः
 प्राज्ञैर्ऋत्विग्भिः सह स्वपस्यया धिया शोभनकर्मयोग्यया बुद्ध्याहे । आह्वयामि । हि यस्मात्स इन्द्रोऽन्धसोऽन्नस्यास्मदपेक्षितस्य पप्रिः पूरयिता ॥ sa pūrvoktaguṇaviśiṣṭa indro dvariṣv āvaritṛṣu śatruṣu dvaro hi atiśayenāvaritā khalu | śatrujayasīla ity arthaḥ | yasmād ūdhany adbhutajalavaty antarikṣe [?] vavraḥ saṁbhakto vyāpya vartate |

 ata eva candrabudhnaḥ | sarvāsāṁ prajānām āhlādakamūlaḥ |
 antarikṣasya sarvāhlādakatvāt | madavṛddhaḥ | mādyanty ebhir
 iti madāḥ somāḥ | tair vardhitaḥ | evaṁbhūto ya indro maṁhiṣṭharātiṁ pravṛddhadhanaṁ pravṛddadānaṁ vā tam indraṁ manīṣibhir manasa īśitṛbhiḥ prājñair ṛtvigbhiḥ saha svapasyayā dhiyā śobhanakarmayogyayā buddhyāhve | āhvayāmi
 | hi yasmāt sa indro 'ndhaso 'nnasyāsmadapekṣitasya papriḥ pūrayitā | |

Note — Reading notes: "ūdhan y adbhutajalavaty antarikṣe" is crowded at the edge of the line, [?]; "adbhuta" may be "abhrājala-" (water of clouds) — the Pratipadārtha has "in the sky full of water-laden clouds", which is followed in the translation. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 221–222, is characterized: dvaraḥ (dvr, "dvarati āvr̥ṇotīti", pacādi ac, accent by the cit); dvariṣu (the suffix ṭi... as the agent suffix); vavraḥ (vr̥ñ saṁbhakta, ka by "ghaṇarthe kavīdhānaṁ sthāsnāpāvyadhīhanīyudhyartham", the doubling of the root); ūdhani (ūrdhvaṁ dhriyate 'smin jalam, the substitute anaṁ for ūdhas by dṛśīgrahana, or in a compound by ūdhasoṇ... [Pā. 5-4-131 as read, [?]]); candrabudhnaḥ (cadi āhlādane dīptau ca, Uṇādi rak; bahuvrīhi); madavṛddhaḥ (madī harṣe, ap by mado 'nupasarge with the third-case compound); ahve (hve ñ spardhāyām śabde ca, the Vedic luṇ in the present sense with cleraṇ); svapasyayā, maṁhiṣṭharātiṁ, papriḥ as in the grammar notes below.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "That Indra, possessed of the qualities just told, dvaraḥ hi dvariṣu: among the enemies who cover (the world), he is indeed an exceeding coverer [or:

overwhelmer] — victorious over enemies, is the sense — vavraḥ ūdhani: because he pervades and is well-established in the sky, [full of water-laden clouds, [?]]. Hence candrabudhnaḥ: the root of delight for all creatures, since the sky delights all. Madavṛddhaḥ: madāḥ are the Somas by which men are intoxicated; he is increased by them. That Indra, maṃhiṣṭharātim, the one of exceeding wealth, or exceeding gifts — taṃ indram, that Indra ahve, I invoke, together with maṇiṣibhiḥ, the wise priests, the masters of mind, svapasyayā dhiyā, with an intellect fitted for good works; because he, saḥ hi, is paprih, the fulfiller, andhasaḥ, of the food we desire."

Pratipadārtha — "saḥ — that Indra; dvariṣu — among the obstructing enemies; dvaraḥ hi — (exceedingly mighty, therefore) victorious indeed; ūdhani — in the sky filled with clouds that carry water; vavraḥ — pervading; candrabudhnaḥ — the cause of delight for all; madavṛddhaḥ — increased by the soma juice — (he who is of such qualities); maṃhiṣṭharātim — one of exceeding wealth or exceeding gifts; taṃ indram — that Indra; maṇiṣibhiḥ — with the learned ṛtvijs; svapasyayā dhiyā — with the intellect that is fit for sacred acts; ahve — I invoke; hi — the reason: saḥ — that Indra; andhasaḥ — of the food desired by us; paprih — the fulfiller (who bestows abundant food on us)."

Bhāvārtha

— "That Indra conquers enemies who are exceedingly powerful. Because he pervades the sky filled with water-laden clouds, he is a cause of delight. Such a Indra, full of qualities, increased by the soma juice, and generous with gifts, I invoke together with the wise ṛtvijs, with a pure mind fitted for sacred acts; for he bestows abundant food on us."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 222)

— "He who is victorious over his enemies, who is spread through the dewy firmament, the root of happiness, who is exhilarated by the soma-juice ; him I invoke, the most bountiful Indra along with learned priests with a mind disposed to pious adoration, for he is the bestower of abundant food."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 222–223 - dvaraḥ — "dvarati āvṛṇotīti dvaraḥ: an enemy who attacks in an exceeding manner. In the sentence dvariṣu dvaraḥ hi, which refers to Indra, it means one who, attacking even the very strong enemies together, destroys them." - ūdhanī — "Its derivation is 'ut ūrdhvaṃ dhriyate 'smin jalam' — 'in which the water is held up above'. By this, the sense of this word is the mass of clouds, which is the support of water in the upper region." - candrabudhnaḥ — "One who gladdens like the moon. The word candra, formed from the root cadi āhlādane dīptau ca, is used here in the senses both of gladdening and of brightness." - madavṛddhaḥ — "Indra, who is specially increased by the drinking of the soma juice, which gives delight." - maṃhiṣṭharātim — "By the derivation 'maṃhiṣṭhā rātir yasya saḥ', Indra is shown to be one of exceeding wealth, or one who especially gives. The word rāti has two senses, lordship and gift." - papriḥ — "From the root pyā, 'to protect and to fill', in the sense of filling: this word has the sense 'one who fills (makes full)'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁵ - dvaraḥ: the root is established by a variant reading, dvr, "to cover" (dvr ity eke); "dvarati āvṛṇotīti dvaraḥ"; being in the pacādi group, ac by nandigrahipacādibhyo lyuṇinyacaḥ; end-acute by citaḥ; guṇa of the root: dvaraḥ. - dvariṣu: for the root as above, the suffix i by ācer iḥ [Uṇ. 4-... as read, [?]]; guṇa: dvari; locative plural. - vavraḥ: vṛñ saṃbhaktaḥ; "vriyate saṃbhajyate iti vavraḥ"; the ka-suffix by ghaṇarthe kavidhānaṃ sthāsnāpāvyadhīhanīyudhyartham (Pā. 3-3-58 vārttika, as read [?]) — the list of roots in this vārttika is only

15. pp. 223–224 — grammar pages, noted briefly

indicative of others, so ka comes also after this root in the sense of the action; reduplication by the Vedic rule; being kit, no guṇa: vavraḥ. - ūdhani: "ut ūrdhvaṃ dhriyate 'smin jalam": ūdhaḥ, a word ending in s; in the locative singular, when the ending follows, asthidadhisakthyakṣṇām anaṇudāttaḥ (Pā. 7-1-75) — by the word drśi (chandasy api drśyate) anaṇ comes also to the word ūdhas; or, by ūdhaso 'naṇ (Pā. 5-4-131 as read [?]) the anaṇ that is laid down in a compound, being Vedic, comes to the bare ūdhas; since it has a mute ṇ it comes at the end; vibhāṣā ṇiśyoh does not give the loss of a here. - candrabudhnaḥ: cadi āhlādane dīptau ca; idit, so num by idito num dhātoḥ; the suffix rak by sphāyitañcivañcy... (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]): candra; end-acute by the suffix; then a bahuvrīhi; by bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam the accent stays in the compound. - madavṛddhaḥ: madī harṣe; "mādyanty ebhir iti madāḥ"; mado 'nupasarge (Pā. 3-3-67) gives ap in the instrument sense; being pit, anudātta by anudāttau supitau; so the root's end-acute remains; vṛddhaḥ madavṛddhaḥ: trṭīyā karmaṇi (Pā. 6-2-48) gives the accent of the first member. - ahve: hve ṇ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca; by chandasi luṇlaṇliṭaḥ luṇ in the present sense; first singular iṭ; ātmanepadeṣv anyatarasyām (Pā. 3-1-54) gives aṇ in place of cli; since the root ends in ṇ [i.e. the e], ādeca upadeṣe 'ṣiti (Pā. 6-1-45) gives ā; before aṇ, ato lopa iṭi ca (Pā. 6-4-... as read [?]) drops the root's ā; aṭ augment; guṇa of a with i: ahve; the tiṇanta's nighāta. - svapasyayā: apaḥ is the name of action; "śobhanam apaḥ svapaḥ"; "tad arhatīti svapasyā": yat by chandasi ca in the sense "fit for"; in the feminine, ṭāp by ajādyataṣṭāp; instrumental singular. - maṃhiṣṭharātim: mahi vṛddhau; idit, so num; ṭṛc in the agent sense; the feminine by ugitaś ca... (ñīp): maṃhitṛī; "atīṣayena maṃhitṛī maṃhiṣṭhā" with the suffix iṣṭhan by tuś chandasi; before iṣṭhan the ṭṛ drops by turiṣṭhemeyaḥsu (Pā. 6-4-154); since iṣṭhan is nīṭ, initial-acute; "maṃhiṣṭhā rātir yasya" a bahuvrīhi; striyāḥ puṃvat (Pā. 6-3-34) gives the masculine form, maṃhiṣṭha with a short a; accent of the first member. - papriḥ: pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ, juhotyādi; kin by āḍṛgamahanajana... (Pā. 3-2-171); since it takes liṭ-like doubling, reduplication, urat, halādiśeṣa; with pipṛ + i (here pap + i) udoṣṭhyapūrvasya would give u, but bahulam chandasi prevents it, so yaṇ for r: papri; though yaṇ first, dvirvacane 'ci applies as though the substituted form remained; since kin is nī, ñnityādir nityam gives the initial acute. || 3 ||

original p. 225

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

आ यं पृणन्ति दिवि सद्बर्हिषः समुद्रं न सुभ्वः स्वा अभिष्टयः । तं वृत्रहत्ये अनु तस्थुरुतयः शुष्मा इन्द्रमवाता अहुतप्सवः ॥ ४ ॥

*ā yaṃ pṛṇanti divi sadmabarhiṣaḥ samudraṃ na subhvaḥ svā abhiṣṭayaḥ | taṃ vṛtrahatyē anu tasthur ūtayaḥ śuṣmā indram
avātā ahrutapsavaḥ || 4 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

आ । यम् । पृणन्ति । दिवि । सद्बर्हिषः । समुद्रम् । न । सुभ्वः । स्वाः । अभिष्टयः । तम् । वृत्रहत्ये । अनु । तस्थुः । ऊतयः । शुष्माः । इन्द्रम् । अवाताः । अहुतप्सवः ॥ ४ ॥

*ā | yaṃ | pṛṇanti | divi | sadma-barhiṣaḥ | samudram | na | su-
bhvaḥ | svāḥ | abhiṣṭayaḥ | taṃ | vṛtra-hatyē | anu | tasthuḥ |
ūtayaḥ | śuṣmāḥ | indram | avātāḥ | ahruta-psavaḥ || 4 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

सद्बर्हिषः सदनं स्थानं बर्हिः शब्दोपलक्षितो यज्ञो येषां सोमानां ते सोमा दिवि
स्वर्गलोकेऽवस्थितं यमिन्द्रमापृणन्ति । आ समन्तात्पूरयन्ति । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । सुभ्वः
सुष्ठु भवन्तीति सुभवो नद्यः समुद्रं न । यथा नद्यः समुद्रं पूरयन्ति तद्वदित्यर्थः ।
कीदृश्यो नद्यः । स्वाः । समुद्रस्य स्वभूताः । तथा चाम्नायते । समुद्राय वयुनाय
सिन्धूनां पतये नमः । तै. सं. ४-६-२-६ [?] इति । अभिष्टयः । अभिमुख्येन
गमनवत्यः । ऊतयोऽवितारो मरुतो वृत्रहत्ये वृत्रहननेन निमित्तभूते सति

तमिन्द्रमनुतस्थुः । अनुलक्ष्य स्थिता बभूवुः । कीदृशा मरुतः । शुष्माः । शत्रूणां
 शोषयितारः । अवाताः । वान्ति प्रातिकूल्येन गच्छन्तीति वाताः शत्रवः । तद्रहिताः । अहुतप्सवः । अकुटिलरूपाः । शोभनावयवा इत्यर्थः ॥ *sadma sadanam sthānam barhiḥ śabdopalakṣito yajño yeṣāṃ somānāṃ te somā divi svargaloke 'vasthitam yam indram āpr̥ṇanti | ā samantāt pūrayanti | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | subhvaḥ suṣṭhu bhavantīti subhvo nadyaḥ samudraṃ na | yathā nadyaḥ samudraṃ pūrayanti tadvad ity arthaḥ | kīdṛśyo nadyaḥ | svāḥ |

 samudrasya svabhūtāḥ | tathā cāmnāyate | samudrāya vayunāya sindhūnāṃ pataye namaḥ | tai. saṃ. 4-6-2-6 [?] iti | abhiṣṭayaḥ |
 abhimukhyena gamanavatyāḥ | ūtayo 'vitāro maruto vṛtrahatyē
 vṛtrahananena nimittabhūte sati tam indram anutasthuḥ |
 anulakṣya sthitā babhūvuḥ | kīdṛśā marutaḥ | śuṣmāḥ | śatrūṇāṃ
 śoṣayitāraḥ | avātāḥ | vānti prātikūlyena gacchantīti vātāḥ śatravaḥ | tadrāhitāḥ | ahrutapsavaḥ | akuṭilarūpāḥ |
 śobhanāvayavā ity arthaḥ ||* ¹⁶

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Sadma is a seat, a place; barhiḥ is the word that stands for the sacrifice; the Somas that have these — they, divi, in the heavenly world, yam, whom, Indra who abides (there), ā pr̥ṇanti, fill all round. An example: subhvaḥ, the 'well-being' (excellently flowing) rivers, samudraṃ na, as rivers fill the ocean — so it is meant. What rivers? Svāḥ: those that belong to the ocean; so it is declared: 'Homage to the ocean, to the wise one,

16. Reading notes: the punctuation of abhiṣṭayaḥ ... ūtayaḥ is editorial — the Kannada Special Topics takes abhiṣṭayaḥ as an epithet of the rivers (svāḥ), "facing the sea in their course"; the bhāṣya's own phrasing is crowded. The Taittirīya numeral is as read, [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 226–, is characterized: pr̥ṇanti (pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ, kryādi), sadmabarhiṣaḥ, subhvaḥ, abhiṣṭayaḥ (iṣa icchāyām? "iṣṭayaḥ eṣāṇāni", [?]), vṛtrahatyē (hana with kyap, the substitute t), ahrutapsavaḥ (hvā kauṭilye, asmānniṣṭhāyām hru hvareś chandasi, Pā. 7-2-31 as read [?], with psā bhakṣaṇe and the Uṇādi du; "not hruta + psu", a negative compound).

to the lord of rivers' (Tai. Saṃ. 4-6-2-6 [?]). Abhiṣṭayaḥ: moving in front (facing the sea). The ūtayaḥ, the protectors, the Maruts, vṛtrahatyē, on the occasion of the slaying of Vṛtra, anu tasthuḥ, stood by him, keeping him in view. What sort of Maruts? Śuṣmāḥ: those who dry up the enemies; avātāḥ: vātāḥ are the enemies who move in opposition — those without such (unobstructed, free from them); ahrutapsavaḥ: of straight, unbent form, with fair limbs is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "svāḥ — their own, i.e. belonging to the ocean; subhvaḥ — the rivers; samudraṃ na — as they fill the ocean (with water); sadmabarhiṣaḥ — the soma juices, whose place of origin is the sacrificial house with its sacred grass; yam — which Indra; ā prṇanti — fill all round (do they satisfy?); tam — that Indra; abhiṣṭayaḥ — those who go facing him; śuṣmāḥ — destroyers of enemies (or: those who frighten the timid); avātāḥ — whose course is unobstructed; ahrutapsavaḥ — with unbent, excellent limbs; ūtayaḥ — the protecting Maruts; vṛtrahatyē — on the occasion of the slaying of Vṛtra; anutasthuḥ — followed (giving strength)."

Bhāvārtha

— "As rivers fill the ocean, their lord, with water, so the soma juices born in the sacrificial house fill Indra and satisfy him. The Maruts — those who are the destroyers of enemies, who are unobstructed, free-going, with fair unbent limbs, and protectors — followed that Indra at the time of Vṛtra's slaying and attentively gave him strength."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 226)

— "That Indra, whom in heaven the libations sprinkled on the sacred grass replenish, as the kindred rivers hastening to it fill the ocean ; that Indra whom the Maruts, the driers up of moisture, who are unobstructed, and of undistorted forms attended as helpers at the slaying of Vritra."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 227 - ā prṇanti — "They fill in every way. Since the root pyā has the two senses of protecting and filling, it can be taken also as 'they protect in every way'." - sadmabarhiṣaḥ — "sadma is seat, place; barhis [stands for] the sacrifice; yeṣāṃ te sadmabarhiṣaḥ: the meaning of this word is the Soma, which has obtained the principal place in the sacrifice." - subhvaḥ samudraṃ na — "As rivers fill the ocean, so the soma juices increase Indra. The śruti 'samudrāya vayunāya sindhūnāṃ pataye namaḥ' (Tai. Saṃ. 4-6-2-6 as read [?]) also shows that the rivers belong to the ocean."

समुद्राय वयुनाय सिन्धूनां पतये नमः । (Tai. Saṃ. 4-6-2-6 as read [?])

samudrāya vayunāya sindhūnāṃ pataye namaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "Homage to the ocean, to the knowing one, to the lord of the rivers." - abhiṣṭayaḥ — "abhimukhyena gamanavatyah: giving the sense 'rivers of the nature of coming facing the ocean', this word is an epithet of the word svāḥ." - anutasthuḥ — "At the time of Vṛtra's slaying the Marut deities followed Indra without leaving him, and stood and fought." - ahrutapsavaḥ — "akuṭilarūpāḥ śobhanāvayavāḥ: of unbent form, with beautiful limbs — i.e., endowed both with beautiful form and with limbs that suit it."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁷ - prṇanti: pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ, kryādi; the jhi ending replaced by ant by jher antaḥ; kryādibhyaḥ śnā; śnābhyastayor ātaḥ (Pā. 6-4-112) drops the ā of śnā; prādīnāṃ hrasvaḥ shortens the root's vowel; before ṛ, the n of śnā takes ṇatva: prṇanti; because the relative yam occurs earlier, the nighāta accent is forbidden by yadvṛttān nityam (Pā. 8-1-66 as read [?]); by the initial-acute of the suffix, the ā after ṇ is acute. - sadmabarhiṣaḥ: ṣadl̥ viśaraṇagatyavasādaneṣu; "sīdanty asminn iti sadma"; adhikaraṇa; the Uṇādi manin by ... ; ṣa → sa by dhātvādeḥ ṣaḥ saḥ: sadman; being nī, the initial-acute; "sadma barhir yeṣāṃ te" a bahuvrīhi; bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam keeps the previous accent. - subhvaḥ: bhū sattāyām; kvip ca (Pā. 3-2-76 as read [?]) after the su prefix; gatikārapapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the last member; the u is acute; before jas, oḥ supi would give yaṇ, but the prohibition nabhūsudhiyoḥ is overridden in the Veda by chandasy ubhayathā... (continued on p. 228).

17. p. 227 and following — grammar pages, noted briefly; continued on p.

Rik 52.4, grammar (end) ¹⁸ - subhvaḥ (continued): yaṇ being forbidden before jas by nabhūsudhiyoḥ, chandasy ubhayathā (Pā. 6-4-86 as read [?]) gives yaṇādeśa again; because the yaṇ has taken the place of an acute vowel, the following anudātta of the ending takes svarita by udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svarito 'nudāttasya. - abhiṣṭayaḥ: "iṣṭayaḥ eṣaṇāni"; iṣa icchāyām, with ktin by striyām ktin; by upasargād abhivarjam (Phit-sūtra, numeral as read [?]) abhi being taken separately (excluded), the abhi keeps its end-acute; as a bahuvrīhi with abhi, the accent of the first member stays; abhi + iṣṭi: by eṇi pararūpam the a of abhi ... single substitute with the following vowel [as read]. - vṛtrahatyē: hana himsāgatyoḥ; hanas ta ca (Pā. 3-1-108 as read [?]) gives kyap in the sense of the action, and t for the n of han: hatya; the end-acute of the root is retained; "vṛtrasya hatyā vṛtrahatyā", locative tasmin; in the compound the kāraka is the first member, so gatikārapapadāt kṛt keeps the accent of the last member. - ahrutapsavaḥ: hvr kauṭilye; hru by hvarsé chandasi (Pā. 7-2-31 as read [?]) before a niṣṭhā suffix: hruta; psā bhakṣaṇe with the Uṇādi ḍu; since ḍit, the ṭi of the root is lost: psu; "na hrutapsavaḥ ahrutapsavaḥ", a nañ-tatpuruṣa; the first member, a particle, keeps its accent by tatpuruṣe tulyārthatṛtīyāsaptamyupamānāvvyayadvitīyākṛtyāḥ (Pā. 6-2-2); nominative plural. || 4 ||

original pp. 228–232

Rik 5

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

अभि स्ववृष्टिं मदे अस्य युध्यतो रघ्वीरिव प्रवणे ससुरुतयः । इन्द्रो यद्वज्री धृषमाणो अन्धसा भिनद्वलस्य परिधीरिव त्रितः ॥ ५ ॥ *abhi svavṛṣṭim made asya yudhyato raghvīr iva pravane sasruṭ

ūtaṃ | indro yad vajrī dhṛṣamāṇo andhasā bhinad valasya
paridhīr iva tritaḥ || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अभि । स्वऽवृष्टिम् । मदे । अस्य । युध्यतः । रघ्वीःऽइव । प्रऽवणे । ससुः । ऊतयः । इन्द्रः । यत् । वज्री । धृषमाणः । अन्धसा । भिनत् । वलस्य । परिऽधीन्ऽइव । त्रितः ॥ ५ ॥ *abhi | sva-vṛṣṭim | made | asya | yudhyataḥ | raghvīḥ-iva | pra-vane | sasruḥ | ūtaṃ | indraḥ | yat | vajrī | dhṛṣamāṇaḥ |

andhasā | bhinat | valasya | pari-dhīn-iva | tritaḥ || 5 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

ऊतयो मरुतो मदे सोमपानेन हर्षे सत्यस्येन्द्रस्य युध्यतो वृत्रेण सह युध्यमानस्य
पुरतः स्ववृष्टिं स्वभूतवृष्टिमन्तं वृत्रमभि आभिमुख्येन ससुः जग्मुः । रघ्वीरिव प्रवणे ।
यथा गमनस्वभावा आपो निम्ने देशे गच्छन्ति । यद्यदा अन्धसा सोमलक्षणेनान्नेन
पीतेन धृषमाणः प्रगल्भः सन् वज्री वज्रवानिन्द्रो वलस्य संवरणात्मक
एतत्संज्ञकमसुरं भिनत् । व्यदारयत् । अवधीदित्यर्थः । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । त्रितः
परिधीनिव । देवानां हविलेपनिर्घर्षणाद्ययोग्ये [?] अग्नेः सकाशादपः स्वीकर्तुमेकतो
द्वितस्त्रित इति त्रयः पुरुषा जज्ञिरे । तथा च तैत्तिरीयैः समाम्नातम् ।
सोऽङ्गारेणापोऽभ्यपातयत् । तत एकतोऽजायत । स द्वितीयमभ्यपातयत् । ततो
द्वितोऽजायत । स तृतीयमभ्यपातयत् । ततस्त्रितोऽजायत । (तै. ब्रा. ३-२-८-१० [?]) इति । तेषां मध्ये त्रित उदकपानार्थं प्रवृत्तस्य कूपे पतितस्य प्रतिरोधायसुरैः परिधयः परिधायकाः कूपसमावृतिकाः स्थापिताः । तान्यथा [?] अभिनत् तद्वत् ॥ ūtayo maruto made somapānena harṣe satyasyendrasya yudhyato vṛtreṇa saha yudhyamānasya purataḥ svavṛṣṭim svabhūtavṛṣṭimantaṃ vṛtram abhi ābhimukhyena sasruḥ jagmuḥ |

*raghvīr iva pravaṇe | yathā gamanasvabhāvā āpo nimne deśe
 gacchanti | yad yadā andhasā somalakṣaṇenānnena pītena dhṛṣamāṇaḥ pragalbhaḥ san vajrī vajravān indro valasya saṃvaranātmaka etatsaṃjñakam asuraṃ bhinat | vyadārayat |
 avadhīd ity arthaḥ | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | tritaḥ paridhīn iva | devānām havirlepanirgharṣaṇādyayogye [?] agneḥ sakāśād apāḥ svīkartum ekato dvitas trita iti trayāḥ puruṣā jajñire | tathā ca
 taittirīyaiḥ samāmnātam | so 'ṅgāreṇāpo 'bhyapātayat | tata
 ekato 'jāyata | sa dvitīyam abhyapātayat | tato dvito 'jāyata | sa tṛtīyam abhyapātayat | tatas trito 'jāyata | (tai. brā. 3-2-8-10 [?])
 iti | teṣāṃ madhye trita udakapānārthaṃ pravṛttasya kūpe patitasya pratirodhāyāsuraiḥ paridhayaḥ paridhāyakāḥ
 kūpasamāvṛtikāḥ sthāpitāḥ | tān yathā [?] abhinat tadvat || ¹⁹*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "The ūtayaḥ, the Maruts, made, in the intoxication of the soma-drinking, ran (sasruḥ) abhi, towards, svavṛṣṭim, the Vṛtra who owned his own rain, in front of the true Indra who was fighting with Vṛtra — raghvīr iva pravaṇe: as waters, whose nature is to go, flow to a low place. Yat, when, Indra, having drunk the food of Soma, dhṛṣamāṇaḥ, bold, vajrī, armed with the thunderbolt, valasya bhinat, split (tore) the Asura named Vala, 'the enclosing one' — killed him: and here, an example, tritaḥ paridhīn iva, as Trita [broke] the paridhis. For the gods, to take water from Agni [for the cleansing of the oil-stained

19. Reading notes: the first clause of the Trita-legend, "devānām havirlepanirgharṣaṇādyayogye", and "tān yathā" at the end are crowded in the print, [?]; the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa numerals are as read, [?]; "so 'ṅgāreṇāpo 'bhyapātayat" is as read — its sense, "he threw the waters upon the ember(s)", is that of the Special Topics. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 229 foot –, is characterized: svavṛṣṭim (bahuvrīhi), yudhyataḥ (yudha saṃprahāre; a śatṛ in the place of śānac), raghvīḥ (raghi gatau), sasruḥ, dhṛṣamāṇaḥ (ñidhṛṣā prāgalbhye), bhinat (a laṇ without aṭ), valasya, paridhīn (dhā with kvip or ki by upasarge ghoḥ kih Pā. 3-3-92 as read [?], and the ākāra dropped by ato lopa iṭi ca).

ladles? — crowded, [?]], three men, Ekata, Dvita and Trita, were born; so the Taittirīyas teach: 'He caused the waters to fall upon the ember; from it Ekata was born; he caused the second to fall — from it Dvita was born; he caused the third to fall — from it Trita was born.' Among them, Trita, who had gone to drink water and had fallen into a well, was blocked by the Asuras, who set round it covers, paridhis, that shut the well; as he broke them, so (Indra broke Vala)."

Pratipadārtha — "ūtayaḥ — the friends, the Maruts; made — in the joy (of the soma-drinking); yudhyataḥ — who was fighting (with Vṛtra); asya — of this Indra (in front); svavṛṣṭim abhi — towards Vṛtra who had stopped the rain that was his; pravane — in a sloping place; raghvīr iva — as rivers unhindered flow; sasruḥ — they went (fighting); yat — when; andhasā — with food in the form of soma (by taking it); dhṛṣamāṇaḥ — filled with zeal (he being so); vajrī — armed with the thunderbolt; indrah — Indra; tritaḥ — Trita; paridhīn iva — as [when he fell into the well] he destroyed the Rākṣasas who had covered the well with lids; valasya — the Rākṣasa named Vala, who had shut [the cows?] in (bhinat — he split)."

Bhāvārtha

— "When the Maruts, his friends, were delighted by the soma-drinking, they left Indra, who was fighting Vṛtra, behind and went in front of him, fighting against Vṛtra, who had stopped the rain, with such unfailing intensity as rivers flow without obstruction through a sloping place. As Trita, fallen into a well, destroyed the Rākṣasas who had covered it, so Indra, filled with zeal by the food of soma, split the Rākṣasa named Vala who had enclosed him [the cows]."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 230)

— "His allies, exhilarated by libations preceded him, warring against the withholder of the rain, as rivers rush down declivities. Indra animated by the sacrificial food, broke through the defences of Vala as did Trita through the coverings of the well."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 230–232 - svavṛṣṭim — "svabhūtavrṣṭimantaṃ vṛtram: the Vṛtra who was pushing his own army forward in the form of rain: the Asura Vṛtra." - raghvīr iva pravane — "The word raghvī, formed from the root raghi in the sense of motion, is a name of rivers. The word pravane gives the sense of a low place (a hollow). The sense is that the Marut deities rushed in front of Vṛtra with speed, as water runs into a hollow." - trite paridhīn iva — "Here an illustration is shown for the matter at hand. Long ago, in order to purify the oblation-share that was to be given to the deities, with rubbing and the like, three water-pits (wells) were established near Agni. In them three men were born in succession. The śruti on this is thus: 'so 'ṅgāreṇāpo 'bhyapātayat | tata ekato 'jāyata | sa dvitīyam abhyapātayat | tato dvito 'jāyata | sa tṛtīyam abhyapātayat | tatas trito 'jāyata' (Tai. Brā. 3-2-8-10 as read [?]). To obstruct those who entered the well to drink water, the Rākṣasas made three coverings for the three wells. Indra broke those coverings in an instant; just so he destroyed, in rows, the forward army of the Asura Vṛtra." ²⁰

सोऽङ्गारेणापोऽभ्यपातयत् । तत एकतोऽजायत । स द्वितीयमभ्यपातयत् । ततो
द्वितोऽजायत । स तृतीयमभ्यपातयत् । ततस्त्रितोऽजायत । (Tai. Brā. 3-2-8-10 as read [?])

so 'ṅgāreṇāpo 'bhyapātayat | tata ekato 'jāyata | sa dvitīyam abhyapātayat | tato dvito 'jāyata | sa tṛtīyam abhyapātayat | tatas trito 'jāyata | — editorial and tentative: "He caused the waters to fall upon the ember; from that Ekata was born; he caused a second to fall — from that Dvita was born; he caused a third to fall — from that Trita was born." - Wilson's note (printed in English, pp. 230–232) — the print reproduces here, in English, a long note of Wilson's, in which the words Ekata, Dvita, Trita appear in Kannada letters; its substance is given, not word by word: "The text has only paridhīn iva tritaḥ, and tritaḥ may mean 'triple or threefold', making the phrase 'as through triple coverings' or defences; whence Rosen has custodes veluti tribus partibus constitutos; M. Langlois is more correct in considering Trita as a proper name; but it may be doubted if he has authority for rendering it by Soma — 'libations qui porte le nom de Trita'. The legend told by the scholiast and confirmed by other passages of the text, as well as by the version of the story found in the Nītimañjarī, is wholly different: Ekata, Dvita and Trita were three men produced in water by Agni for the purpose of removing or rubbing off the relics of an oblation of clarified butter, the proper function of the sacred grass, to the three blades of which placed on the altar the legend may owe its origin; but this does not appear from the narrative. The Scholiast, following the Taittirīyas, says that Agni threw the cinders of the burnt offerings into water; whence successively arose Ekata, Dvita and Trita, who, it elsewhere appears, were therefore called Aptyas, or sons of water (R. Saṃ. [numeral, [?]]). Trita, having on a subsequent occasion gone to draw water from a well, fell into it, and the Asuras heaped coverings over the mouth of it to prevent his getting out; but he broke through them with ease. It is to this exploit that Indra's breaking through the defences of the Asura Vala is compared. The story is somewhat differently related in the Nītimañjarī: three brothers, Ekata, Dvita and Trita, were travelling in a desert and, being distressed by thirst, came to a well, from which the youngest, Trita, drew water and gave it to his brothers; in requital they threw him into the well, in order to appropriate his property, and having covered the top with a cart-wheel left him in the well; in this extremity he prayed to all the gods to extricate him, and by their favour he made his escape.

20. Quoted from the Kannada p. 230.

Paridhi, the term of the text, means a circumference, a circular covering or lid. Mr. Colebrooke has briefly, but with his usual accuracy, cited his story in his account of the Ṛgveda (As. Researches viii, p. 388) [numerals as read]. Dr. Roth conceives Trita to be the same as Traitana, a name that occurs in a text of the Ṛik, and converting the latter into a deification, he imagines him to be the original of Thraetona, the Zend form of Feridun, one of the heroes of the Shah-nama, and of ancient Persian tradition — Zeitschrift der D. Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, vol. ii, p. 216. Professor Lassen seems disposed to adopt this identification — Indische Alterthumskunde, Additions. The identity of Trita and Traitana, however, remains to be established, and the very stanza quoted by Dr. Roth as authority for the latter name is explained in the Nītimañjarī in a very different sense from that which he has given. It is said that the slaves of Dīrghatamas, when he was old and blind, became insubordinate and attempted to destroy him, first by throwing him into the fire, whence he was saved by the Aśvins, then into water, whence he was extricated by the same divinities; upon which Traitana, one of the slaves, wounded him on the head, breast and arms, and then inflicted like injuries on himself, of which he perished. After these events the sage recited in praise of the Aśvins the hymn in which the verse occurs —"

The verse follows in Kannada script (R. Saṃ. 1-158-5, as printed, numerals read [?]); it is transcribed as printed, with three layers, and no syllable that could not be read is completed:

न मा गरन्धो मातृतामा दासा यदीं सुसमुब्धमवाधुः । शिरो यदस्य त्रैतनो वितक्षत्स्वयं दास उरो अंसावपि ग्ध ॥ (R. Saṃ. 1-158-5 as read [?]; the last syllables of the print are crowded, [?]) na mā garan nadyo mātṛtamā dāsā yad īṃ susamubdham avādhuḥ

| śīro yad asya traitano vitakṣat svayaṃ dāsa uro aṃsāv api gḍha | — Wilson's own English, as the print gives it: "Let not the maternal waters swallow me, since the slaves assailed this decrepit old man: in like manner as the slave Traitana wounded his head, so has he struck it of himself and likewise his breast and shoulders." (p. 231). The note concludes (p. 232): "If this interpretation be correct there can be little relation between Trita and Traitana and between the latter and Feridun. The former term has, however, found admission as a numeral, and apparently also as a proper name into the Zend books." - andhasā — "Food joined with soma. This is given in the sacrifice as a special oblation to Indra. By this Indra becomes especially strong." - valasya — "In respect of Vala the bhāṣyakāra has told a legend: an Asura named Vala stole the cows of the gods and shut them in a cave; then Indra, with his army's help, broke open that cave and released the cows there. This matter is told in this way in the Taittirīya Saṃhitā of the Yajurveda (2-1-1-1 as read [?]):"

इन्द्रो वलस्य बिलमपौर्णोत् । स य उत्तमः पशुरासीत्तं पृष्ठं प्रति संगृह्योदक्षिदत्तम् [?] ।
सहस्रं पशवोऽनूदायन्स्त उन्नेतोऽभवत् । यः पशुकामः स्यात्स एतमैन्द्रमुन्नेतवा [?]
लभेत । इन्द्रमेव स्वेन भागधेयेनोपधावति । स एवास्मै पशून्प्रयच्छति । पशुमानेव भवत्युन्नेतो भवति ॥ (Tai. Saṃ. 2-1-1-1 as read [?]; several words crowded, [?])

*indro valasya bilam apaurṇot | sa ya uttamaḥ paśur āsīt taṃ
prṣṭhaṃ prati saṃgrhyodakṣidattagm [?] | sahasraṃ paśavo
'nūdāyan ta unneto 'bhavat | yaḥ paśukāmaḥ syāt sa etam
aindram unnetavā [?] labheta | indram eva svena bhāgadheyenopadhāvati | sa evāsmāi paśūn prayacchati |
paśumān eva bhavaty unneto bhavati |* — editorial and tentative, and incomplete where the print is doubtful: "Indra uncovered the cave of Vala; the best animal that was there he [seized] by the back...; a thousand animals followed; that became the unnetā. He who desires cattle should take this Indra-offering [for the unnetā?]; he runs to Indra with his own share, and Indra gives him cattle; he becomes possessed of cattle, he becomes an unnetā." ²¹ "This matter has been described elsewhere in other mantras of the Ṛgveda, and in other Vedas. In the Ṛgveda, the matter of this Vala is touched in the Riks Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-11-5 [?]; 2-11-20 [?]; 2-14-3 [?]; ... and some twenty more (numerals in small print, all [?], not transcribed in full). The name Vala is a conventional term for the soldier-class called Paṇis; it is told in many places that these robbed cows and hid them in caves. On this matter we have written before in Ṛ. Saṃ. Part 3, p. 228."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²² - svavṛṣṭim: "svīyā vṛṣṭir yasya saḥ taṃ", a bahuvrīhi; the accent of the first member by bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam. - yudhyataḥ: yudha saṃprahāre, divādi; vyatyayo bahulam gives a parasmaipada śatṛ; divādibhyaḥ śyan; yudhyat; genitive singular; being laśakvataddhite... sārvaadhātuka śatṛ is anudātta; since śyan is śit... (nit), the initial-acute. - raghvīḥ: raghi gatau; since idit, num; the Uṇādi u by raṅghibaṃhyor nlopaś ca (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]); the n is not dropped, since "by its combination with that"; raghu... (continued on p. 233).

Rik 52.5, grammar (end) ²³ - raghvīḥ (continued): in the feminine, vāto guṇavacanāt [Pā. 4-1-44 as read, [?]] gives nīṣ; the u becomes v by yaṇ; the plural ending jas after raghvī: vā chandasi (Pā. 6-1-106) gives the lengthening by the same-sound rule; ru, visarga: raghvīḥ. - dhṛṣamāṇaḥ: ñidhṛṣā prāgalbhye; vyatyayo bahulam gives the ātmanepada śānac; śnā would be the characteristic (kryādi), but vyatyaya gives śa even there; āne muk (Pā. 7-2-82) the muk-augment at the end of the characteristic; aṭkuvāṇnumvyavāye 'pi gives ṇatva of the n: dhṛṣamāṇa; the suffix, being after the root accented on the last syllable, is anudātta by tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam...; the accent of the characteristic gives the vowel after ṣ its acute. - bhinat: bhidir vidāraṇe, rudhādi; lañ third singular tip; the i of tip

21. The middle of this passage cannot be made out; the gloss is only the rough sense.

22. pp. 232-233 — grammar pages, noted briefly; continued on p. 233

23. p. 233, PDF 249 — grammar page, noted briefly

dropped by itaś ca; rudhādibhyaḥ śnam; being mit, the na goes after the last vowel of the root; bhinad-t: halīyābbhyo... drops the t; vāvasāne (Pā. 8-4-56) gives carva: d → t; the aṭ-augment is absent by bahulaṃ chandasy amāñyoge 'pi; the accent comes from the characteristic; because of the earlier yat, the nighāta is forbidden by yadvṛttān nityam. - valasya: vala saṃvarāṇe; "valati saṃvr̥ṇoti sarvam iti valaḥ", the root being in the open pacādi list, ac by nandigrahipacādibhyo lyuṇinyacaḥ: vala; "the mention of the action must be added", so the object takes the designation sampradāna and the genitive stands in the sense of the dative; end-acute by citaḥ. - paridhīn: "pari dhīyante iti paridhayaḥ"; ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; upasarge ghoḥ kiḥ (Pā. 3-3-92 as read [?]) gives ki in the passive sense when the prefix is the upapada; ato lopa iṭi ca drops the ā; paridhi; with the prefix pari, gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the last member; before śas, the lengthening by the same-sound rule; tasmāc chaso naḥ puṃsi turns the s of śas into n: paridhīn. || 5 ||

original p. 233

Rik 6

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

परीं घृणा चरति तित्विषे शवोऽपो वृत्वी रजसो बुध्नमाशयत् । वृत्रस्य यत्प्रवणे
दुर्गृभिश्चनो निजघन्थ हन्वोरिन्द्र तन्यतुम् ॥ ६ ॥

parīm ghr̥ṇā carati titviṣe śavo 'po vṛtvī rajaso budhnam āśayat | vṛtrasya yat pravāṇe durgr̥bhiśvano nijaghantha hanvor indra tanyatum || 6 ||

Pada-pāṭha

परि । ईम् । घृणा । चरति । तित्विषे । शवः । अपः । वृत्वी । रजसः । बुध्नम् । आ । अशयत्
। वृत्रस्य । यत् । प्रवणे । दुःऽगृभिश्चनः । निऽजघन्थ । हन्वोः । इन्द्र । तन्यतुम् ॥ ६ ॥

pari | īm | ghrṇā | carati | titviṣe | śavaḥ | apah | vṛtvī | rajasaḥ
 | budhnam | ā | āśayat | vṛtrasya | yat | pravaṇe | duḥgrbhiśvanaḥ | ni-jaghantha | hanvoḥ | indra | tanyatum || 6 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

यो वृत्रोऽपो वृत्वी । उदकान्यावृत्य रजसो बुध्नमन्तरिक्षस्योपरिप्रदेशमाशयत् ।
 आश्रित्यास्त । तस्य वृत्रस्य प्रवणे प्रकर्षेण वननीयेऽन्तरिक्षे वर्तमानस्य दुर्गृभिश्चनो
 दुर्ग्रहव्यापनस्य । तस्य हि व्यापनं न केनापि ग्रहीतुं शक्यते । स
 इमाल्लोकानावृणोदिति श्रुतेः । एवंभूतस्य वृत्रस्य हन्वोर्मुखपार्श्वयोः । हे इन्द्र यद्यदा
 तन्यतुं प्रहारं विस्तारयन्तं यद्वा शब्दकारिणं वज्रं [print: तृतीयार्थे द्वितीया] ।
 तन्यतुना वज्रेण निजघन्थ । नितरां प्राजहर्था । तदानीमिमेनं त्वामिन्द्रं घृणा
 शत्रुजयलक्षणा दीप्तिः परिचरति । परितो व्याप्नोति । त्वदीयं शवो बलं च तित्विषे । प्रदिदीपे ॥

yo vṛtro 'po vṛtvī | udakāny āvṛtya rajaso budhnam
 antarikṣasyoparipradeśam āśayat | āśrityāsta | tasya vṛtrasya pravaṇe prakarṣeṇa vananīye 'ntarikṣe vartamānasya durgrbhiśvano durgrahavyāpanasya | tasya hi vyāpanam na
 kenāpi grahītum śakyate | sa imāṃl lokān āvṛṇod iti śruteḥ |
 evambhūtasya vṛtrasya hanvor mukhapārśvayoḥ | he indra yad yadā tanyatum prahāraṃ vīstārayantaṃ yadvā śabdakāriṇaṃ vajraṃ [tṛtīyārthe dvitīyā] | tanyatunā vajreṇa nijaghantha |
 nitarāṃ prājaharthā | tadānīm imenaṃ tvām indraṃ ghrṇā
 śatrujayalakṣaṇā dīptiḥ paricarati | parito vyāpnoti | tvadīyaṃ
 śavo balaṃ ca titviṣe | pradidīpe ||

Note — Reading notes: "mukhapārśvayoḥ" for the jaws, and the bracketed grammatical remark "tṛtīyārthe dvitīyā" — "the second case in the sense of the third", which is the Kannada Special Topics' remark — read from the print, which is crowded in this line, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 234 foot —: on vṛtvī (vṛṇ varāṇe, kvanip with the Uṇādi list "snātvyādayaś ca", Pā. 3-2-... as read [?]), rajasaḥ (ranja rāge, "rajanty asmin gandharvādayaḥ", the loss of na by "rajakaraja..."), āśayat (śīṇ svapne, with a Vedic parasmaipada and the non-elision of śap), durgrbhiśvanaḥ (graha upādāne, "kūpusam..." and the Vedic substitute śvan in "durgrbhi... prṣodarādi"), nijaghantha (han himsāgatyoḥ, liṭ with thal, no iṭ by the kṛdādi-rule, abhyāsāc ca for ku), tanyatum (tanu vistāre, the Uṇādi atu, "yadvā stana śabde" with the loss of s) — is characterized.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "The Vṛtra who, vṛtvī, having covered the waters, āśayat, lay on the rajasah budhnam, the summit of the atmosphere, resting on it: of that Vṛtra, who dwelt pravane, in the atmosphere that is excellently to be resorted to, durgrbhiśvanah, whose spreading could not be checked — his pervasion cannot be seized by anyone, according to the śruti 'he covered these worlds' — of such a Vṛtra, hanvoḥ, on the two jaws (the sides of the mouth): O Indra, when you struck, nijaghantha, hard, with the tanyatu, the spreading blow — or the sounding thunderbolt — then, īm, this you, Indra, ghṛṇā, the radiance that signifies victory over the enemy, pari carati, goes round, pervades on every side; and your strength, power, titviṣe, blazed."

Pratipadārtha — "(yaḥ — which Vṛtra) apaḥ — the waters; vṛtvī — having covered (obstructed); rajasah budhnam — the upper part of the atmosphere; āśayat — he rested, having taken refuge there; pravane — in the beautiful atmosphere; durgrbhiśvanah — (whose course) pervades so that it cannot be checked; vṛtrasya — of this Vṛtra; hanvoḥ — on the jaws; indra — O Indra; yat — when; tanyatum — the thunderbolt that spreads (or sounds), (with it); nijaghantha — you struck well; īm — this you; ghṛṇā — (the radiance, indicating victory over enemies); pari carati — spreads on all sides; śavaḥ — (your) strength; titviṣe — it was caused to blaze."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, when Vṛtra, having obstructed the waters, took refuge in the beautiful atmosphere and lay pervading all of it so that none could check him, you struck him strongly on the jaws with your thunderbolt. Then your radiance, indicative of victory over the enemy, spread on all sides, caused your strength to blaze, and spread your fame."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 235)

— "O Indra, when you had smitten with your thunderbolt the cheeks of the wide-extended Vritra, who, having obstructed the waters, reposed in the region above the firmament, your fame spread afar, your prowess was renowned."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayaḥ), p. 235 - īm — "This is a word with the sense of etat ('this'); enam, 'him', is its meaning. Here it qualifies Indra." - vṛtvī — "This word, formed from the root vṛñ varaṇe, gives the sense of 'covering'." - rajasah budhnam — "rajanti asmin gandharvādayaḥ iti rajaḥ antarikṣam: here, the atmosphere, which is the support of the going about and the sport of the Gandharvas and others; Vṛtra, having taken refuge both in it as a whole and in its upper part, pervaded it." - pravane durgrbhiśvanah — "No one could check the Asura Vṛtra who thus stood pervading the atmosphere. Here the word durgrbhiśva has been explained by the sense 'one whose pervasion is hard to seize'. The śruti 'sa imān lokān avṛnot' supports this." - tanyatum — "The word tanyatu means all-pervading, or the thunderbolt that makes a sound. Here the word, though in the second case, gives the sense of the third case."

Rik 52.6, Special Topic and grammar notes ²⁴ - ghṛṇā (Special Topic, p. 236): "In common usage this word means 'compassion'; but here it must be taken as the radiance — or the lustre — that indicates victory over enemies." - titviṣe: tviṣa dīptau; liṭ with ta, replaced by e by liṭas tajhayor eśirec; being kit-like, reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ: titviṣe; initial-acute by the suffix-accent on the root's last...: the middle acute; since carati (a verb) follows, the nighāta does not come. - vṛtvī: vṛñ varaṇe; ktvā; for vṛtvā, snātvyādayaś ca (Pā. 3-4-49 [?]) — by the word ādi in it, ktvā is replaced by ī-ending: vṛtvī; end-acute by the suffix. - rajasah: ranja rāge; "rajanty asmin gandharvādayaḥ iti rajaḥ antarikṣam"; asun after all roots; rajakarajanarajaḥsūpasamkhyānam (a vārttika, as read [?]) drops the n: rajas. - āśayat: śīṇ svapne; vyatyayo bahulam gives the parasmaipada; laṇ third singular tip, whose i is lost by itaś ca; by bahulaṃ chandasi śap is not elided; guṇa since śap is the cause; ayādeśa; aṭ as the augment; tiṇ atiṇaḥ, nighāta. - durgr̥bhiśvanah: graha upādāne and aśū vyāptau; with dus as the first member, these two roots follow pr̥sodarādīni yathopadiṣṭam, being in that group, so the desired form is obtained by letter-change and the like. - nijaghantha: han hiṃsāgatyoḥ; liṭ second singular sip, replaced by thal by parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus...; though the root is anit by kryādiniyama, an iṭ would come to thal, but upadeśe 'tvataḥ (Pā. 7-2-62) forbids it again, because the root has a [as read]; reduplication; halādiśeṣaḥ; kuhoś cuḥ; abhyāsac ca gives gh for the h of the root after the reduplicative syllable; n becomes anusvāra and the homorganic: jaghantha; thal being lit, the acute is on the part before the suffix (liti, Pā. 6-1-193); because of the earlier yat, the nighāta is forbidden by yadvṛttān nityam. - tanyatum: tanu vistāre; atu by ṛtanyañjiyam... (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]) — yatuc in the Kannada notes: yatuc; or from stana śabde with yatuc by the bahulam of uṇādayo bahulam; the loss of s is Vedic: tanyatu; end-acute by citaḥ. || 6 ||

original pp. 237–239

Rik 7

Samhitā-pāṭha

हृदं न हि त्वा नृषन्त्यूर्मयो ब्रह्माणीन्द्र तव यानि वर्धना । त्वष्टा चित्ते युज्यं वावृधे शवस्ततक्ष वज्रमभिभूत्योजसम् ॥ ७ ॥ *hradaṃ na hi tvā nṛṣanty ūrmayo brahmāṇīndra tava yāni vardhanā | tvaṣṭā cit te yujyaṃ vāvṛdhe śavas tataksa vajram

abhibhūtyojasam || 7 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

हृदम् । न । हि । त्वा । निऽऋषन्ति । ऊर्मयः । ब्रह्माणि । इन्द्र । तव । यानि । वर्धना । त्वष्टा । चित् । ते । युज्यम् । ववृधे । शवः । ततक्ष । वज्रम् । अभिभूतिऽओजसम् ॥ ७ ॥

hradam | na | hi | tvā | ni-ṛṣanti | ūrmayaḥ | brahmāṇi | indra |
tava | yāni | vardhanā | tvaṣṭā | cit | te | yujyam | vavṛdhe |
śavaḥ | tatakṣa | vajram | abhibhūti-ojasam || 7 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र यानि ब्रह्माणि स्तोत्रशस्त्ररूपाणि मन्त्रजातानि तव वर्धना वर्धयित्रीणि तानि
त्वा त्वां न्यृषन्ति हि । नितरां प्राप्नुवन्त्येव । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । ऊर्मयो जलप्रवाहा हृदं न
। यथा जलाशयं प्राप्नुवन्ति तद्वत् । त्वष्टा चित् स त्वष्टा च देवस्ते तव युज्यं योग्यं
शवो बलं ववृधे प्रावर्धयत् । अपि चाभिभूत्योजसं शत्रूणामभिभवित्रीणामोजसा बलेन युक्तं वज्रं ततक्ष । तीक्ष्णीचकार ॥

he indra yāni brahmāṇi stotraśastrarūpāṇi mantrajātāni tava vardhanā vardhayitrīṇi tāni tvā tvāṃ nyṛṣanti hi | nitarāṃ
prāpnuvanty eva | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | ūrmayo jalapravāhā hradam
na | yathā jalāśayaṃ prāpnuvanti tadvat | tvaṣṭā cit sa tvaṣṭā ca
devas te tava yujyam yogyaṃ śavo balaṃ vāvṛdhe prāvardhayat | api cābhibhūtyojasaṃ śatrūṇām abhibhavitrīṇām ojasā balena
yuktaṃ vajraṃ tatakṣa | tīkṣṇīcakāra || ²⁵

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, those brahmāṇi, the groups of mantras in the form of hymns and recitations, that are your vardhanā, 'increasers' — they attain you indeed, enter you

25. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 237–238, is characterized:

nyṛṣanti (ṛṣī gatau, tudādi; jher antaḥ; śa; the single substitute ato guṇe; the nighāta is forbidden by hi ca, Pā. 8-1-34 as read [?]); ūrmayaḥ (ṛ gatau, Uṇādi mi, ārter ūc ca, Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]; ūrmi); vardhanā (vṛdhu vṛddhau, lyuṭ in the instrument sense, yu → ana, the Vedic śeś chandasi bahulam); tatakṣa (takṣū tvakṣū tanūkarāṇe, liṭ third singular; ṇal, the acute before ṇal by liti); abhibhūtyojasaṃ (abhibhūyate 'neneti abhibhūti, ktin... kti with tāḍau ca, the prefix keeps its own accent).

completely: as ūrmayah, waves, streams of water, enter a lake (hradam na). And the god Tvaṣṭṛ himself increased your suitable strength; and sharpened your thunderbolt, which is joined with abhibhūtyojas, the strength that overcomes the enemies."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; yāni brahmāṇi — which mantras in the form of hymns (or recitations); tava vardhanā — those that glorify you and make you grow; hradam na — as streams of water enter the ocean; tvā — you; nyṛṣanti hi — enter you completely; tvaṣṭā cit — even Tvaṣṭṛ, (the deity); te — your; yuyyam — suitable; śavaḥ — strength; vavṛdhe — made to grow; abhibhūtyojasam — the thunderbolt, joined with the strength that overcomes the enemies; tataksa — made very keen."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, the mantras in the form of hymns, which praise your greatness and cause you to grow, enter you completely as streams of water enter the ocean. Tvaṣṭṛ, the deity, made your fitting strength grow, and made your thunderbolt, the strength that overcomes all enemies, exceedingly keen."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 238)

— "O Indra, the hymns, that glorify you, attain you as rivulets flow into a lake. Twashtri has augmented your appropriate vigour ; he has sharpened your bolt with overpowering might."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 238–239 - hradam na — "The particle na, which has the sense of comparison, in this context gives the sense 'as streams flow into a pool'." ²⁶ - nyṛṣanti — "This word, formed from the root rṣi gatau of the sense of motion, gives the meaning 'they enter completely, without obstruction'." - tvaṣṭā cit — "sa tvaṣṭā deva eva: here the word cit has the sense of eva, 'indeed'. Is that Tvaṣṭṛ the deity? is the sense." ²⁷ - abhibhūtyojasam — "abhibhūti + ojasam: abhibhūti

26. The Kannada word is "ಕೊಳ", a pool.

27. i.e., the very deity Tvaṣṭṛ.

ojo yasya tat; 'that which has the capacity to overpower or humble the enemies' — this qualifies the thunderbolt. Abhibhūyate 'neneti abhibhūti: that by which one is overcome."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁸ - nyṛṣanti: ni + ṛṣanti; ṛṣi gatau, tudādi; the jhi replaced by ant by jher antaḥ; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ; ato guṇe (Pā. 6-1-97) gives the pararūpa: ṛṣanti; being after a non-tiñ, the nighāta would come by tiñ atīnaḥ, which is blocked by hi ca (Pā. 8-1-34 as read [?]); the characteristic's accent remains. - ūrmayaḥ: ṛ gatau; "ṛcchanti gacchantīti ūrmayaḥ"; mi by ārter ūc ca (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]); guṇa before mi; the a of ar becomes ū: ūrmi; end-acute by the suffix-accent. - vardhanā: vṛdhu vṛddhau; "vardhate ebhir iti vardhanā"; lyuṭ in the instrumental sense; yuvor anākau gives ana; in the nominative plural, num and the lengthening; śeś chandasi bahulam drops the śi: vardhanā. - tatakṣa: takṣū tvakṣū tanūkarāṇe; liṭ third singular tip, ṇal by parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus...; reduplication by the liñ-nimitta; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; ṇal is lit, so the vowel before the suffix is acute by liti; since it is the beginning of the pāda, āpādātau prohibits the nighāta... no nighāta comes. - abhibhūtyojasam: abhibhūyate 'neneti abhibhūti; bhū with ktin in the instrumental sense; tāḍau ca (Pā. 6-2-50 as read [?]) the prefix abhi keeps its natural accent; "abhibhūti ojo yasya tat", a bahuvrīhi; the accent of the first member by bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam. || 7 ||

original p. 239

Rik 8

Samhitā-pāṭha

जघन्वाँ उ हरिभिः संभृतक्रतविन्द्र वृत्रं मनुषे गातुयन्नपः । अयच्छथा बाहोर्वज्रमायसमधारयो दिवि सूर्य दृशे ॥ ८ ॥ *jaghanvāṃ u haribhiḥ saṃbhṛtakratav indra vṛtram manuṣe gātuyann apaḥ | ayacchathā bāhvora vajram āyasam adhārayo divy

ā sūryam dṛśe || 8 ||* ²⁹

Pada-pāṭha

जघन्वान् । ऊं इति । हरिऽभिः । संभृतक्रतो इति संभृतऽक्रतो । इन्द्र । वृत्रम् । मनुषे ।
गातुऽयन् । अपः । अयच्छथाः । बाह्वोः । वज्रम् । आयसम् । अधारयः । दिवि । आ । सूर्यम् । दृशे ॥ ८ ॥

*jaghanvān | ūṃ iti | hari-bhiḥ | saṃbhṛtakrato iti saṃbhṛta-krato
| indra | vṛtram | manuṣe | gātu-yan | apaḥ | ayacchathāḥ |
bāhvoḥ | vajram | āyasam | adhārayaḥ | divi | ā | sūryam | dṛśe
|| 8 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे संभृतक्रतो संपादितकर्मन् संपादितप्रज्ञ वेन्द्र मनुषे जनाय गातुयन् गातुं
मार्गमिच्छन् वृत्रं लोकानामावरकमसुरं हरिभिरश्वैर्युक्तस्त्वं जघन्वान् उ । हतवान्
खलु । तदनन्तरमपो वृष्ट्युदकानि प्रावर्तयः इत्यध्याहारः ।
बाह्वोस्त्वदीययोर्हस्तयोरायसमयोमयं वज्रमयच्छथाः । आग्रहीः । आकारः
समुच्चयार्थः । सूर्यं च दिवि द्युलोके दृशे द्रष्टुं सर्वेषामस्माकं दर्शनायाधारयः । स्थापयाम् चकृषे ॥

*he saṃbhṛtakrato saṃpāditakarman saṃpāditaprajña vendra manuṣe janāya gātuyan gātuṃ mārgam icchan vṛtram lokānām āvarakam asuraṃ haribhir aśvair yuktas tvam jaghanvān u | hataavān khalu | tadanantaram apo vṛṣṭyudakāni prāvartayaḥ ity adhyāhāraḥ | bāhvos tvadīyayor hastayor āyasam ayomayaṃ
vajram ayacchathāḥ | āgrahīḥ | ākāraḥ samuccayārthaḥ | sūryam*

29. The print joins saṃbhṛtakratav indra; the Pada below shows the vocative saṃbhṛtakrato iti, i.e. the Saṃhitā sandhi is -o + i- → -av i-, as printed. The Saṃhitā's divy ā is as printed; the Pada divi | ā — so the print's "ā" before sūryam belongs to adhārayaḥ by the Pada.

ca divi dyuloke dṛśe draṣṭuṃ sarveṣām asmākaṃ darśanāyādhārayaḥ | sthāpayām cakṛṣe [sic — print reads
crowded, [?]] || * 30

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O saṃbhṛtakrato, O Indra of accomplished works or accomplished wisdom, manuṣe, for the man, for the people, gātuyan, wishing a way — you, yoked with haribhiḥ, the horses, jaghanvān u, killed Vṛtra, the Asura who encloses the worlds; and after that you set the waters, the rain-waters, flowing (this is understood). Bāhvoḥ, in your two hands you ayacchathāḥ, held, the iron thunderbolt; and divi, in the sky, you adhārayaḥ, set the sun, dṛśe, to be seen — so that we all may see."

Pratipadārtha — "saṃbhṛtakrato — O Indra, who have accomplished sacred rites, or have accomplished wisdom; mānuṣe — for man; gātuyan — wishing to give (him) a way; vṛtram — Vṛtra, who covered the whole world; haribhiḥ — with horses; jaghanvān u — you have killed, haven't you? (and then); apaḥ — the waters (you released and made to flow); bāhvoḥ — in your two arms; āyasam — made of iron; vajram — the thunderbolt; ayacchathāḥ — you took up; and; sūryam — also the sun; divi — in the sky; dṛśe — to be visible (to us); adhārayaḥ — you set."

Rik 52.8, continued ³¹

30. Reading notes: the print's last clause is crowded; "sthāpayām cakṛṣe" is read doubtfully, [?]; sense is clear from the Pratipadārtha. The grammatical tail — on jaghanvān, gātuyan, ayacchathāḥ, bāhvoḥ — is characterized: for jaghanvān the kvasu after han with the Vedic loss of the optional it (vibhāṣā gamahanavidaviśām, Pā. 2-... as read [?]); for gātuyan the kyac by chandasi parecchāyām, with the lengthening forbidden by na chandasy aputrasya; for bāhvoḥ the vibhakti-accent by udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt.

31. pp. 241–242, PDF 257–258

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, who have accomplished sacred rites: when you wished to go to men, you, joined with your horses, killed the Asura Vṛtra who had covered the way. After that you released the waters from Vṛtra and made them flow. You took in both your hands your thunderbolt, made of iron. And you set the sun in the sky, so that all of us may see."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 241)

— "Indra, performer of holy acts, desirous of going to man, you, with your horses has [sic] slain Vritra (has set free) the waters, have taken in your hands your thunderbolt of iron and have made the sun visible in the sky."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśaya-gaḷu), p. 241 - saṃbhr̥takrato —

"Here the word kratu has been given two senses, 'sacrifice' or 'wisdom'. This word gives Indra the special sense: 'one who has all rites such as sacrifice' or 'one who is full of complete wisdom'."

- manuṣe — "The word manuṣya, ending in s, gives here the sense 'for the community of people'." - gātuyan — "Gātum mārgam icchan: wishing for a way. Here the special sense is: 'in order to make a way by which rain may be obtained, a happy way for the people, who were perishing without rain'." - dr̥ṣe — "Draṣṭum sarveṣām asmākaṃ darśanāya: 'so that all of us may see' — Indra is praised here with the thought that the sun was set in the atmosphere in order that even ordinary people might obtain the capacity to see."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³² - jaghanvān: han hiṃsāgatyoḥ; chandasi liṭ; kvasuś ca (Pā. 3-2-107 as read [?]) gives kvasu for the liṭ; han + vas; being liṇ-nimitta, reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; kuhoś cuḥ, cutva, jaśtva; abhyāsac ca gives kutva to the root's h after the reduplicative syllable; vibhāṣā gamahanavidaviśām (Pā. 1-2-... as read [?]) — the iṭ that is optionally prescribed before the valādi

32. pp. 241–242 — grammar pages, noted briefly

ārdhadhātuka suffix does not come here; jaghanvas; in the nominative singular, ugit, so num by ugidacām sarvanāmasthāne 'dhātoḥ; āsaṃsaṃsaṃ ca gives lengthening; halīyābbhyo... drops su; saṃyogāntasya lopah drops the s; since that is asiddha, nalopah does not apply; jaghanvān; by the suffix-accent the ā is acute. - gātuyan: gātum icchati; chandasi pareccāyām api (Kā. 3-1-... as read [?]): kyac comes even when the desire is not the speaker's own; gātuya a verbal root; na chandasy aputrasya (Pā. 7-4-35) — no lengthening of the first member; śatr after the kyac-ending root; in the nominative singular, su, ugit, so num; saṃyogāntalopa drops the t: gātuyan; being a verb-form after a non-verb, lasārvadhātukam anudāttam... gives anudātta; since the kyac suffix-accent is the śatr's, the vowel after y is acute. - ayacchathāḥ: dāṇ dāne; lañ second singular; pāghrādhmā... (Pā. 7-3-78) gives yaccha; since it begins a pāda, the nighāta is forbidden, so the initial acute of aṭ remains. - āyasam: "ayasa idam": aṇ in the sense of "made of"; ādivṛddhi by kiti ca... (taddhiteṣv acām ādeḥ); end-acute by the suffix-accent. - adhārayaḥ: begins a pāda, so no nighāta; since āṭ is udātta, the word is initial-acute. - bāhvoḥ: genitive dual of bāhu; by udāttayaṇo halpūrvāt the u, which stands in the place of the acute and after a consonant, is followed by the ending with an acute. - dr̥śe: in the sense "to see", by dr̥śe vikhye ca (Pā. 3-4-11) it is irregularly formed in the sense of tumun (infinitive). || 8 ||

original pp. 242–246

Rik 9

Samhitā-pāṭha

बृहत्स्वश्चन्द्रममवद्यदुक्थ्यमकृण्वत भियसा रोहणं दिवः । यन्मानुषप्रधना इन्द्रमूतयः स्वर्नृषाचो मरुतोऽमदन्ननु ॥ ९ ॥

bṛhat svaścandram amavad yad ukthyam akṛṇvata bhiyasā rohaṇaṃ divaḥ | yan mānuṣapradhanā indram ūtayaḥ svar nṛṣāco maruto 'madann anu || 9 ||

Pada-pāṭha

बृहत् । स्वःऽचन्द्रम् । अमऽवत् । यत् । उक्थ्यम् । अकृण्वत् । भियसा । रोहणम् । दिवः । यत् । मानुषऽप्रधनाः । इन्द्रम् । ऊतयः । स्वः । नृऽसाचः । मरुतः । अमदन् । अनु ॥ ९ ॥

br̥hat | svaḥ-candram | amavat | yat | ukthyam | akṛṇvata |
bhiyasā | rohaṇam | divaḥ | yat | mānuṣa-pradhanāḥ | indram |
ūtayaḥ | svaḥ | nṛ-sācaḥ | marutaḥ | amadan | anu || 9 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

बृहत् बृहत्साम स्तोतारो यजमाना भियसा वृत्रभयेन यद्यदोक्थ्यमुक्त्वाहं
स्तोत्रयोग्यमकृण्वत् । आकुर्वन् । कीदृशं बृहत्साम । स्वश्चन्द्रम् । स्वकीयेन
चन्द्रेणाह्लादकेन तेजसा युक्तम् । अमवत् । अमति शत्रून् रुजतीत्यम इत्यमो बलम्
। तद्युक्तम् । दिवः स्वर्गस्य रोहणमारोहणहेतुभूतम् । एवंविधेन स्तोत्रेण वृत्राद्भीता
इन्द्र इन्द्रमस्तोषतेत्यर्थः । यद्यदा मानुषप्रधनाः । प्रकीर्णान्यस्मिन् धनानि भवन्तीति
नैरुक्तव्युत्पत्त्या प्रधानमिति संग्रामनाम । नि. ९-२४ [?] । मनुष्यहितसंग्रामा ऊतयः
स्वर्गलोकस्य रक्षितारो मरुतो नृषाचः प्राणरूपेण स्वस्वेवमानाः [?] भूत्वेन्द्रमपि
तेनैव रूपेणान्वमदन् । अनुपूर्व्येण हर्षं प्रापयन् [?] । तदानीं स इन्द्रो वृत्रवधं प्रत्युद्युक्तो बभूवेति शेषः ॥ br̥hat br̥hatsāma stotāro yajamānā bhiyasā vṛtrabhayena yad yadokthyam ukthārhaṃ stotrayogyam akṛṇvata | ākurvan |

kīdṛśaṃ br̥hatsāma | svaścandram | svakīyena
candreṇāhlādakena tejasā yuktam | amavat | amati śatrūn
rujatīty ama ity amo balam | tadyuktam | divaḥ svargasya rohaṇam ārohaṇahetubhūtam | evaṃvidhena stotreṇa vṛtrād
bhītā indra indram astoṣatety arthaḥ | yad yadā mānuṣapradhanāḥ | prakīrṇāny asmin dhanāni bhavantīti
nairuktavyutpattiyā pradhanam iti saṃgrāmanāma | ni. 9-24 [?] | manuṣyahitasamgrāmā ūtayaḥ svar dyulokasya rakṣitāro maruto nṛśācaḥ prāṇarūpeṇa svasvevamānāḥ [?] bhūtvendram api tenaiva rūpeṇānvamadan | anupūrvyeṇa harṣaṃ prāpayan [?] | tadānīm
sa indro vṛtravadhaṃ pratyudyukto babhūveti śeṣaḥ || 33

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Bṛhat, the Bṛhatsāman — the praisers, the sacrificers, bhiyasā, from fear of Vṛtra, when they made it, ukthyam, fit for recitation, fit for praise — they made what kind of Bṛhatsāman? Svaścandram: endowed with its own candra, delighting radiance; amavat: possessing ama, the strength that crushes enemies; divaḥ rohaṇam: the cause of ascent to heaven. With such a hymn the Indra who was afraid of Vṛtra [i.e. they] praised Indra. Yat, when, the Maruts — mānuṣapradhanāḥ, whose battle is for the good of men (pradhana is a name for battle, from the Nirukta etymology 'in which wealth is scattered', Ni. 9-24 [?]), ūtayaḥ, the protectors, the guardians of the heavenly world, nṛṣācaḥ, serving men in the form of breath — gladdened Indra also (anu amadan), in the same form, one after another [?]; at that time Indra became ready for the slaying of Vṛtra — this is understood."

Pratipadārtha — "bhiyasā — from fear (of the Asura Vṛtra); yat — when; stotāraḥ — the sacrificers; svaścandram — endowed with its own delightful radiance; amavat — powerful; divaḥ — for heaven; rohaṇam — a cause of ascent; and; bṛhat — the Bṛhatsāman hymn; ukthyam — worthy of recital; akṛṇvata — they made; yat — when; mānuṣapradhanāḥ — those who fight

33. Reading notes: "svasvevamānāḥ" and "anupūrvyeṇa harṣam prāpayan" are crowded, [?]; the Nirukta numeral for pradhanam is as read, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 243 foot –, is characterized: svaścandram (the augment suḥ by hrasvāc chandroṭṭarapade mantre, Pā. 6-1-... as read [?]; the ś for s by stoḥ ścunā ścuḥ; a bahuvrīhi); amavat (matup, with mādūpadhāyās ca matorvo 'yavādibhyaḥ'); akṛṇvata (kṛñ hiṃsāyām, svādi; the num; the ātmanepada by vyatyaya; the nighāta forbidden by yadvṛttānityam); bhiyasā (the asuk augment in the Veda; īkāra → īyañ); divaḥ (the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidam...); nṛṣācaḥ (saca samavāye; Yāska: "ayaṃ sevanārthaḥ", Ni. [?]); amadan (madi harṣe, ñic in the causative sense, mit so mitām hrasvaḥ, chandasy ubhayathā, the ñi dropped).

for men; ūtayaḥ — protectors of the heavenly world; marutaḥ — the Maruts; nr̥ṣācaḥ — those who serve men (in the form of breath); indram — Indra also (in the same form); anu amadan — they gladdened (then Indra became ready for the slaying of Vṛtra)."

Bhāvārtha

— "Seeking the help of Indra, out of fear of the Asura Vṛtra, the sacrificers sang the Bṛhatsāman — which has the delightful radiance of the moon, which is powerful, which is a cause of ascent to heaven, and which is fit for recitation as a hymn. Then the Maruts — who fight for men, guard the heavenly world, and serve men in the form of breath — gladdened Indra also. Then Indra became ready for the slaying of Vṛtra."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 244)

— "Through fear of Vritra, your worshippers composed the suitable hymn of the Bribat Saman which is self-illuminating, strengthening and forming the staircase to heaven; on which his allies the Maruts, fighting for men (guardians) of heaven and protectors of mankind, excited Indra (to destroy Vritra)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 244 - bṛhat — "The word bṛhat alone means only bṛhatsāman; by implication one has to take it as 'the sacrificers who recite the Bṛhatsāman'." - svaścandram amavat — "That Bṛhatsāman has its own delightful lustre, like the moon; and the power to destroy enemies." - divaḥ rohaṇam — "And it has the power to give attainment of heaven. The sacrificers recited such a Bṛhatsāman to escape the fear of Vṛtra." - mānuṣapradhanāḥ — "'Battle that is beneficial to men.' For the word pradhana, the etymologists give the sense 'battle': 'prakīrṇāny asmin dhanāni bhavanti' (Ni. 9-24 as read [?])."

प्रकीर्णान्यस्मिन् धनानि भवन्ति । (Ni. numeral as read [?])

prakīrṇāny asmin dhanāni bhavanti | — editorial and tentative: "wealth is scattered in it [the battle]." - nṛṣācaḥ — "The Marut deities, serving men in the form of breath, protected men by taking the form of the vital airs at the time of the slaying of Vṛtra; therefore the Maruts are called nṛṣāc. This word, from the root saca samavāye, Yāska has explained as having the sense of service: 'ayaṃ sevanārthaḥ'."

| अयं सेवनार्थः । (Nī., as quoted in the print)

ayaṃ sevanārthaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "this [root] has the sense of serving."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁴ - svaścandram: "svakīyaṃ candram yasya tat"; hrasvāc chandroṭtarapade mantre (Pā. 6-1-... as read [?]) gives suṭ; with sva and candra, stoḥ ścunā ścuḥ (Pā. 8-4-40) turns the s into ś before the following c; being a bahuvrīhi, bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam keeps the first member's accent. - amavat: "amo 'syāsti": matup by tad asyāsty asmin; after a stem in a, māduḥ upadhāyāś ca matoḥ (Pā. 8-2-9) turns the m of matup into v. - akṛṇvata: kṛvi hiṃsākaraṇayoś ca, svādi; being idit, num; vyatyayo bahulam gives the ātmanepada ending; the nighāta is forbidden by yadvṛttān nityam, since the yat-word is connected. - bhiyasā: for the instrumental singular of bhī the Vedic asuk augment comes; it is acute; before as the ī is replaced by iy (iyaṇ): bhiyasā. - divaḥ: the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidam padādi.... - nṛṣācaḥ: saca samavāye; this root, in the sense of service, according to Yāska; vahaś ca (Pā. 3-2-64 as read [?]) — since ca in that sūtra gathers what is not stated, ṇvi also after this root; being ṇit, ata upadhāyāḥ gives vṛddhi; vera prktasya drops the v; nominative plural; gatiḥ gives the accent of the last member. - amadan: madī harṣe; the sense of causing is seen, so ṇic by hetumati ca; since in the ghaṭādi list it is read 'madī harṣaglapanaḥ', it is mit, by ghaṭādayo mitaḥ; the vowel is shortened by mitām hrasvaḥ (Pā. 6-4-92) though the penultimate had vṛddhi; for the jhi of lañ, jher antaḥ; the i lost by itaś ca; chandasy ubhayathā gives the ārdhadrhātuka nature to śap, so ñi is dropped by neraniṭi; the t of ant dropped by saṃyogāntalopa: amadan; though intervening, because the yat-word is connected, yadvṛttān nityam forbids the nighāta. || 9 ||

original p. 246

Rik 10

Samhitā-pāṭha

द्यौश्चिदस्यामवाँ अहेः स्वनादयोयवीद्वियसा वज्र इन्द्र ते । वृत्रस्य यद्वद्वधानस्य रोदसी मदे सुतस्य शवसाभिनच्छिरः ॥ १० ॥

dyauś cid asyāmavām aheḥ svanād ayoyavīd bhiyasā vajra indra te | vṛtrasya yad badbadhānasya rodasī made sutasya śavasābhina- chiraḥ || 10 || ³⁵

Pada-pāṭha

द्यौः । चित् । अस्य । अमऽवान् । अहेः । स्वनात् । अयोयवीत् । भियसा । वज्रः । इन्द्र । ते । वृत्रस्य । यत् । बद्धधानस्य । रोदसी इति । मदे । सुतस्य । शवसा । अभिनत् । शिरः ॥ १० ॥

dyauḥ | cit | asya | ama-vān | aheḥ | svanāt | ayoyavīt | bhiyasā
| vajraḥ | indra | te | vṛtrasya | yat | badbadhānasya | rodasī iti
| made | sutasya | śavasā | abhinat | śiraḥ || 10 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

35. The print reads "अयोयवीद्" — it is taken as the verb ayoyavīt of the Pada; aheḥ svanāt as printed.

अमवान्बलवान् द्यौश्चित् द्युलोकोऽप्यस्याहेर्वृत्रस्य स्वनाच्छब्दाद्भियसा भयेनायोयवीत्
 । अत्यर्थं पृथग्भूत आसीत् । अकम्पतेत्यर्थः । हे इन्द्र ते तव सुतस्याभिषवादिभिः
 संस्कृतस्य सोमस्य पानेन मदे हर्षे जाते सति त्वदीयो वज्रो रोदसी द्यावापृथिव्यौ
 बद्धधानस्य बाधनशीलस्य वृत्रस्य शिरो यद्यदा शवसा बलेनाभिनत् । आच्छिनत् । तदानीं द्युलोको भयराहित्येन निश्चलो बभूवेति शेषः ॥ *amavān balavān dyauś cid dyuloko 'py asyāher vṛtrasya svanāc chabādād bhiyasā bhayenāyoyavīt | atyartham prthagbhūta āsīt |

 akampatety arthaḥ | he indra te tava sutasyābhiṣavādibhiḥ saṃskṛtasya somasya pānena made harṣe jāte sati tvadīyo vajro rodasī dyāvāpṛthivyau badbadhānasya bādhanāśīlasya vṛtrasya śiro yad yadā śavasā balenābhinat | ācchinat | tadānīm dyuloko
 bhayarāhityena niścalo babhūveti śeṣaḥ ||* ³⁶

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Amavān, the strong dyauḥ cit, even heaven ayoyavīt, was thoroughly separated — trembled — bhiyasā, from fear, aheḥ svanāt, at the roar of this serpent Vṛtra. O Indra, te, when by drinking your pressed Soma, purified by the pressing and other rites, delight arose, your thunderbolt, yat, when, with strength (śavasā), cut off (abhinat) the head (śiraḥ) of the afflicting Vṛtra, rodasī, [who oppressed] heaven and earth — then heaven became steady, free from fear — this is understood."

Rik 52.10, continued ³⁷

Pratipadārtha — "amavān — the powerful; dyauḥ cit — even heaven; asya aheḥ — of this Vṛtra; svanāt — from the roaring sound; bhiyasā — in fear; ayoyavīt — it was shaken; indra — O

36. Reading note: the clause ending "ācchinat" — "cut off" — is read from the print; for "tadānīm dyuloko bhayarāhityena niścalo babhūveti śeṣaḥ" the sense is "then heaven became steady, free from fear", as the Pratipadārtha below confirms. The grammatical tail on ayoyavīt (yu miśraṇāmiśraṇayoḥ, a frequentative in the Vedic luṅ with ī-augment by aste... yaño luk, Pā. 2-4-74 as read [?]) and badbadhānasya (bādhr vilodane, tācchīlyika śānac, with the reduplication of the intensive and the dhatva) is characterized.

37. pp. 246–248, PDF 262–264

Indra; te — your; sutasya — of the previously poured, prepared soma; made — when delight arose by drinking; vajrah — your thunderbolt; rodasī — both heaven and earth (the two worlds); badbadhānasya — of the one who afflicts by nature; vṛtrasya — of the Asura Vṛtra; śirah — the head; yat — when; śavasā — with strength (the force obtained from you); abhinat — split: then the quaking of heaven stopped."

Bhāvārtha

— "Even strong heaven was shaken with fear at the roaring of this Asura Vṛtra. But, O Indra, when, delighted by drinking the soma juice that had been prepared long before, you split, with your strong thunderbolt, the head of Vṛtra, who afflicts both earth and atmosphere, then the quaking of heaven ceased."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 247)

— "The strong heaven was rent asunder with fear at the clamour of that Ahi (Vritra) when you, Indra, delighted by drinking the effused soma-juice struck with your thunderbolt vigorously the head of Vritra, the obstructor of heaven and earth."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 247–248 - etad uktaṃ bhavati ³⁸:

एतदुक्तं भवति । यदा द्यावापृथिव्योरपि उपद्रवकारिणं वृत्रमिन्द्रोऽवधीत्तदा
परममहिमयुक्तो द्युलोकोऽपि भयेन चकम्पे । तथा महाबलयुक्तमपीन्द्रस्य वज्रं स्वकृताद्वृत्रहननादेनन्तरं द्युलोकवदेव चकम्पे ॥

*etad uktaṃ bhavati | yadā dyāvāpṛthivyor api upadravakāriṇaṃ vṛtram indro 'vadhīt tadā paramamahimayukto dyuloko 'pi bhayena cakampe | tathā mahābalayuktam apīndrasya vajraṃ
svakṛtād vṛtrahanan[ād anan]taraṃ dyulokavad eva cakampe ||*
— "This is what is said: when Indra killed Vṛtra, who troubled even heaven and earth, then even heaven, endowed with

38. a Sanskrit passage in the print, with Kannada comment

supreme majesty, trembled with fear; and likewise, though endowed with great strength, Indra's thunderbolt itself trembled, as heaven did, after the slaying of Vṛtra that it had itself brought about [?]."³⁹ The Kannada adds: "The chief sense is this: when Indra killed Vṛtra, who was causing trouble to the worlds of heaven and earth, even the heaven of great majesty was made to tremble in fear. So too one may take it that the thunderbolt of Indra, though of great strength, trembled as heaven did." - dyauś cit — "The atmosphere also; here the word cit has the sense of api." - ayoyavīt — "For this word, which is the luṅ-ending form of the yañ-ending of the root yu miśraṇāmiśraṇayoḥ, the sense here is 'it trembled', or 'it was separated individually'." - badbadhānasya — "To the root bādhṛ vilodane the suffix cānaś is added; the sense is 'of one who has the nature of afflicting'." - sutasya — "Soma purified by the sacrificial rites such as pressing is called suta. Here too, following the context, one must give the sense 'by drinking soma'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā⁴⁰ - ayoyavīt: yu miśraṇāmiśraṇayoḥ, adādi; with the sense of intensity, yañ; yaño 'ci ca gives luk of yañ [here, yajo 'ci ca as printed; read yaño 'ci ca, [?]]; laṅ/luṅ third singular tip; itaś ca drops the i; sanyañoḥ — guṇa of the root; guṇo yaṅluk... — the reduplication takes guṇa; yajo vā [as read, [?]] the īṭ-augment to the t that has the name aprkta; since śap ... follows, guṇa and ayādeśa on account of the sārvadhātuka; aṭ from luṅ; the word begins a pāda, so no nighāta; since the augment aṭ is acute, the word is initial-acute. - indra: the vocative, āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19), the nighāta accent. - badbadhānasya: bādhṛ vilodane; tācchīlyavayovacanaśaktiṣu cānaś (Pā. 3-2-129) gives cānaś; śap replaced by ślu; reduplication by ślau; the Vedic non-application of halādiḥ śeṣaḥ here; hrasvaḥ shortens the reduplicative syllable's vowel, since it is not the last; jhalām jaś

39. The second half-line is crowded — read "vṛtrahanan... anantaram", [?].

40. p. 248 — grammar page, noted briefly

jhaśi turns the dh of the reduplicative into d: badbadhāna; genitive singular; since cānaś is cit, citaḥ gives end-acute. - abhinat: bhidir vidāraṇe, rudhādi; lañ third singular; itaś ca drops i; rudhādibhyaḥ śnam; being mit, the na goes after the last vowel (mid aco 'ntyāt paraḥ); aṭ [absent]; abhinad-t, saṃyogāntalopa drops t — abhinat; by the connected yat word the nighāta is forbidden by yadvṛttān nityam; since the aṭ is acute, [the word is initial-acute]. || 10 ||

original pp. 249–252

Rik 11

Samhitā-pāṭha

यदिन्विन्द्र पृथिवी दशभुजिरहानि विश्वा ततनन्त कृष्टयः । अत्राह ते मघवन्विश्रुतं सहो द्यामनु शवसा बर्हणा भुवत् ॥ ११ ॥

yad in nv indra pṛthivī daśabhujiṛ ahāni viśvā tatananta kṛṣṭayaḥ | atrāha te maghavan viśrutaṃ saho dyām anu śavasā barhaṇā bhuvat || 11 ||

Pada-pāṭha

यत् । इत् । नु । इन्द्र । पृथिवी । दशभुजिः । अहानि । विश्वा । ततनन्त । कृष्टयः । अत्र । अह । ते । मघवन् । विस्त्रुतम् । सहः । द्याम् । अनु । शवसा । बर्हणा । भुवत् ॥ ११ ॥

yat | it | nu | indra | pṛthivī | daśa-bhujiḥ | ahāni | viśvā |
tatananta | kṛṣṭayaḥ | atra | aha | te | magha-van | vi-śrutam |
sahaḥ | dyām | anu | śavasā | barhaṇā | bhuvat || 11 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

यदिन्नु यदा खलु पृथिवी दशभुजिर्दशगुणिता भवेत् । यदि वा कृष्टयः सर्वे मनुष्या
विश्वा सर्वाण्यहानि ततनन्त । विस्तारयेयुः । हे मघवन् धनवन्निन्द्र अत्राह अत्रैव
पूर्वोक्तेष्वेव देशकालकर्तृकेषु ते त्वदीयं सहो वृत्रवधादिकारणं बलं विश्रुतं विख्यातं
प्रसिद्धम् । शवसा त्वदीयेन बलेन कृता बर्हणा वृत्रादेर्वधरूपा क्रिया द्यामनु भुवत् ।
अनुभवति । यथा द्यौर्महती तथा त्वत्कृतं वृत्रादेर्हिसनमपि महदिति भावः ॥ *yad in nu yadā khalu prthivī daśabhujir daśaguṇitā bhavet | yadi

vā kṛṣṭayaḥ sarve manuṣyā viśvā sarvāṇy ahāni tatananta |
vistārayeyuḥ | he maghavan dhanavann indra atrāha atraiva pūrvokteṣv eva deśakālakartṛkeṣu te tvadīyaṃ saho vṛtravadhādikāraṇaṃ balaṃ viśrutam vikhyātaṃ prasiddham | śavasā tvadīyena balena kṛtā barhaṇā vṛtrāder vadharūpā kriyā dyām anu bhuvat | anubhavati | yathā dyaur mahatī tathā
tvatkṛtaṃ vṛtrāder hiṃsanam api mahad iti bhāvaḥ ||* ⁴¹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Yad in nu: if the earth, daśabhujih, were ten times (as large), or if all men, kṛṣṭayaḥ, viśvā ahāni, day by day, tatananta, were to multiply (spread) — then, O wealthy maghavan Indra, atra aha, even there, in the very places, times and persons aforesaid, te saho, your strength, the cause of the slaying of Vṛtra and the rest, viśrutam, is renowned. Śavasā, by your strength, the deed barhaṇā, the act of killing Vṛtra and the rest, dyām anu bhuvat, comes to equal heaven: as heaven is great, so your slaying of Vṛtra and the rest is great — this is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "yadinnu — if perchance; prthivī — the earth; daśabhujih — ten times as large as it is now; kṛṣṭayaḥ — all men; viśvā ahāni — day by day; tatananta — should increase in number; maghavan — O wealthy; indra — O Indra; atrāha — even in all these increases; te — your; saha — strength, which is the cause of the slaying of Vṛtra and so on; viśrutam — becomes famous; śavasā — by your strength (accomplished); barhaṇā —

41. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 249–250, is characterized: tatananta (tanu vistāre, with the Vedic ātmanepada, luṇ/laṇ/liṇ in the sense of the liṇ, śap in place of u, the substitution ant, the doubling and the ata ādeḥ); viśrutam (śru śravaṇe, kta, the prefix's accent by gatir anantaraḥ); barhaṇā (barha vala hiṃsāchādaneṣu, "nibarhayati", Ni. 6-... [?], with the Uṇādi kyu and the ṭāp; the vabāyor abhedah); bhuvat (leṭ third singular, with aṭ, itaś ca [loss of i], bhūsuvos tiṇi, the uvaṇ substitute by bahulaṃ chandasi).

the accomplishment (of the slaying of Vṛtra and the rest); dyām anu — following the atmosphere (as broadly); bhuvat — enjoys (renown)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, even if the earth should be ten times larger than now, and all men should increase in number day by day, your strength — the cause of the slaying of Vṛtra and the rest — would be equally renowned in all that increase. This accomplishment, brought about by your own strength, in the form of the slaying of Vṛtra and the rest, enjoys a fame as widely spread as the atmosphere."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 250)

— "O Indra, had the earth been tenfold (in its extent) and men multiplied every day, then, Maghavan, your prowess would have been properly renowned; the exploits, achieved by your might are vast like the sky."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 250–251 - mukhyābhiprāya ⁴²:

अत्रेदमुक्तं भवति । इन्द्रस्य वृत्रहननादिक्रियायां प्रकाशितेन पराक्रमेण यद्यपि तस्य
प्रभावः प्रसिद्ध एवास्ति तदपि तस्य प्रसेधयित्वाणां [?]
मनुष्यभावजन्यादल्पायुष्ट्वात्तेषां च स्थानभूतायाः पृथिव्या अल्पत्वात्तस्य महिमा
द्युलोकादाश्रावयितुं न शक्यते । यदि तु पृथिवी दशगुणिता भवेत्सा च
स्तोतृभिर्मनुष्यैः परिपूर्णा स्यात्स्तोतारश्च मरणरहिता भूत्वाहर्निशमिन्द्रस्य तपसो महिमानमेव वर्णयेयुस्तदैव स सर्वमपि द्यां व्याप्नुयान्न प्रागिति ॥

atredam uktaṃ bhavati | indrasya vṛtrahananādikriyāyāṃ prakāśitena parākrameṇa yady api tasya prabhāvaḥ prasiddha evāsti tad api tasya prasedhayitvāṇāṃ [?] manuṣyabhāvajanyād alpāyusṭvāt teṣāṃ ca sthānabhūtāyāḥ pṛthivyā alpatvāt tasya mahimā dyulokād āśrāvayituṃ na śakyate | yadi tu pṛthivī

42. the chief sense; a Sanskrit passage in the print, with Kannada

daśaguṇitā bhavet sā ca stotr̥bhir manuṣyaiḥ paripūrṇā syāt stotāraś ca maraṇarahitā bhūtvāhar-nīśam indrasya tapaso mahimānam eva varṇayeyus tadaiva sa sarvām api dyām vyāpnuyān na prāḡ iti || — "Here this is meant: although Indra's majesty is indeed well known through the valour displayed in the act of slaying Vṛtra and the rest, yet [by the men who tell of it — crowded, [?]], because they are short-lived by being men, and because their place, the earth, is small, his greatness cannot be made to reach the world of heaven. If the earth were ten times as large, and filled with men who praise, and the praisers were free from death and described by day and night only the greatness of Indra's power, then only would it extend over all heaven — not before." The Kannada adds: "Though the daring deeds done by Indra, such as the slaying of Vṛtra, are very well known, it is impossible for the praise made by men — short-lived, and subject to death, inhabitants of the earth — to be heard from the earth up to heaven. If the earth's extent were ten times larger, and the praising men lived long as though free from death, then the description of Indra's daring deeds made by the men of earth could fill the whole of heaven. Otherwise it is impossible. The sense is that Indra's greatness is as extraordinary as that." - yad-it-nu — "yadinnu: the particles yat, it and nu are used here in the sense of 'if indeed'." - barhaṇā — "vṛtrādeḥ vadharūpā kriyā: the word formed from the root barha, in accordance with the worldly rule vabayor abhedah, has become barhaṇā. The Nirukta writers have used this word with the sense of 'killer' in the sūtra barhaṇā (Ni. 6-... as read [?])." - dyām anu bhuvat — "'It becomes as vast as the atmosphere': the sense comes from the connection with anu; and one may see in the śruti the Vedic (leṭ) form of the root bhū."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴³ - tatananta: tanu vistāre; with the sense of the fruit of the action going to the agent, ātmanepada by svaritañītaḥ kartrabhiprāye kriyāphale; chandasi luṇlaṇḍītaḥ gives lañ/liṭ in the sense of liṭ; tanādikṛñbhya uḥ would give u, but vyatyayo bahulam gives śap; the plural jha → anta by jho 'ntaḥ; the Vedic reduplication of the root; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; ato guṇe gives pararūpa with śap's a: tatananta; śap being pit, anudātta by tāsyānudātenñīdadupadeśāl..., so the root's end-acute remains; because of the connected yat, no nighāta; by bahulaṃ chandasy amāñyoge 'pi no aṭ comes. - viśrutam: śru śravaṇe; kta in the sense of the object; being kit, no guṇa; gatir anantaraḥ (Pā. 6-2-49) gives the prefix vi its natural accent. - barhaṇā: barha valha paribhāṣaṇaḥimsāchādaneṣu; the Uṇādi suffix kyu; yuvor anākau gives ana; vabayor abhedaḥ gives b for the v of valha: barhaṇ; in the feminine, since it ends in a, ṭāp; by the suffix-accent, the ā after ṇ is acute; "nibarhayati" (Nī. 6-... as read [?]) is read in the sense of killing. - maghavan: the process was told earlier; the nighāta by āmantritasya ca. - bhuvāt: bhū sattāyām; leṭ third singular tip; leṭo 'ṭātau gives aṭ; itaś ca lopah parasmaipadeṣu drops the i of tip; since bhūsuvoṣ tiṇi (Pā. 7-3-88) forbids guṇa, āciśnudhātubhruvām... (Pā. 6-4-77) gives uvañ: bhuvāt; being after an atiñ, nighāta. || 11 ||

original p. 252

Rik 12

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

त्वमस्य पारे रजसो व्योमनः स्वभूत्योजा अवसे धृषन्मनः । चकृषे भूमिं प्रतिमानमोजसोऽपः स्वः परिभूरेष्या दिवम् ॥ १२ ॥

tvam asya pāre rajaso vyomanah svabhūtyojā avase dhr̥ṣanmanah | cakṛṣe bhūmiṃ pratimānam ojaso 'paḥ svaḥ paribhūr eṣy ā divam || 12 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । अस्य । पारे । रजसः । विऽओमनः । स्वभूतिऽओजाः । अवसे । धृषत्ऽमनः । चकृषे ।
भूमिम् । प्रतिऽमानम् । ओजसः । अपः । स्वः [स्वरिति] । परिऽभूः । एषि । आ । दिवम् ॥ १२ ॥

tvam | asya | pāre | rajasaḥ | vi-omanah | svabhūti-ojāḥ | avase
| dhr̥ṣat-manah | cakṛṣe | bhūmim | prati-mānam | ojaṣaḥ | apaḥ
| svar iti svaḥ | pari-bhūḥ | eṣi | ā | divam || 12 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya ⁴⁴

हे धृषन्मनः शत्रूणां धर्षकमनोयुक्तेन्द्र । अस्यास्माभिः पश्यमानस्य व्योमनो
व्याप्तस्यान्तरिक्षस्य रजसो लोकस्य पार उपरिप्रदेशे वर्तमानः स्वभूत्योजाः
स्वभूतबलस्त्वमवसेऽस्मद्रक्षणार्थं भूमिं भूलोकं चकृषे कृतवानसि । किंच ओजसो बलवतां बलस्य प्रतिमानं प्रतिनिधिरभूः । तथा स्वः सुष्ठु ... (the sentence continues on p. 253, PDF 269)

he dhr̥ṣanmanah śatrūṇām dharṣakamanoyuktendra | asyāsmābhiḥ paśyamānasya vyomano vyāptasyāntarikṣasya rajaso lokasya pāra uparipradeśe vartamānaḥ svabhūtyojāḥ svabhūtabalas tvam avase 'smadrakṣaṇārthaṁ bhūmiṁ bhūlokaṁ cakṛṣe kṛtavān asi | kiṁca ojaso balavatāṁ balasya pratimānam
pratinidhir abhūḥ | tathā svaḥ suṣṭhu ... ⁴⁵

Rik 52.12, continued ⁴⁶

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, the end of the main sense

... तथा स्वः सुष्ठु अरणीयं गन्तव्यम् । अप इत्यन्तरिक्षनाम । अपोऽन्तरिक्षलोकम्
आ दिवं द्युलोकं च परिभूः परिग्रहीता । परिपूर्णा भवति परिग्रहार्थः । एषि प्राप्नोषि

॥

... tathā svaḥ suṣṭhu araṇīyaṁ gantavyam | apa ity antarikṣanāma
| apo 'ntarikṣalokaṁ ā divaṁ dyulokaṁ ca paribhūḥ parigrahītā |
paripūrṇo bhavati parigrahārthaḥ | eṣi prāpnoṣi | | ^{47 48}

44. p. 252 — begins here; continues on p. 253

45. continued on p. 253

46. pp. 253–255, PDF 269–271

Translation of the end of the bhāṣya: "... and svaḥ, that which is well to be gone to; apaḥ is a name of the atmosphere — the atmosphere-world, and up to heaven, ā divam, the heaven-world: you paribhūḥ, encompass (the sense of paribhū here is 'one who encompasses'; it means 'becomes completely full'): eṣi, you reach."

Pratipadārtha — "dhṛṣanmanaḥ — O Indra, of firm mind in the destruction of enemies; asya — of this (which is visible to us); vyomanaḥ — spread everywhere; rajasah — of the atmosphere-world (beyond the atmosphere); pāre — in the upper part; svabhūtyojāḥ — having your strength established in yourself; tvam — you; avase — for (our) protection; bhūmim — the earth-world; cakṛṣe — you have created (and); ojasaḥ — of the strength (of the valiant); pratimānam — you are the model (likewise); svaḥ — easy to go through; apaḥ — the atmosphere; ā divam — and the heaven-world too; paribhūḥ — encompassing; eṣi — you pervade."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, of firm mind in destroying enemies, above this atmosphere-world that spreads everywhere, you, established in your own strength, created the earth-world for our protection.

47. the print reads "svaḥ" with the gloss "that which is well to be gone to"; and "apaḥ" as a name of the atmosphere.

48. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 253, is characterized: asya (the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidam...); vyomanaḥ ("ava rakṣaṇagatikānti...", the root av with the sense of going; "viśeṣeṇa gacchati vyāpnotīti vyoma", or "vṛṣṭipradānena viśeṣeṇa prāṇino 'vatīti vyoma"; manin by anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyante; the ū-substitute by jvarasvarisrivyavimavām upadhāyās ca Pā. 6-4-20 as read [?]; a bahuvrīhi accent); svaḥ (su + ṛ gatau; vic; yaṇ; svarādinipātam avyayam; avyayād āpsupaḥ drops the case-ending, the word being svar with visarga); eṣi (iṇ gatau, adādi, śap elided).

You are the model of the strength of the valiant. And you encompass and pervade the atmosphere, easy to go through, and the heaven-world also."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 253)

— "Indra, bent upon destroying the enemies, living in your strength, above the wide-expanded firmament, you have made the earth for our preservation ; you are the representative of the strong ; you have encompassed the firmament and the sky as far as to the heavens."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḥ), p. 254 - vyomanah — "Viśeṣeṇa gacchati vyāpnotīti vyoma, or vṛṣṭipradānena viśeṣeṇa prāṇino 'vati rakṣatīti vyoma: by these two derivations the sky is all-pervading; or the sense is 'that which can protect living beings by giving rain'. By the derivation 'vividham oma rakṣaṇam yasmin', 'in which there is protection of many kinds', one may say 'protecting all'." - svabhūtyojāḥ — "One who has strength that is his own; that is, one who does not depend on anything else." - svaḥ — "Su + araṇīyam gantavyam: a thing that goes readily — water. But since the word svar denotes the atmosphere (Ni. 2-10 as read [?]), the sense 'atmosphere' may be given here too." - paribhūḥ — "'One who has encompassed': for the root bhū preceded by the prefix pari, the sense of encompassing is here."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁹ - asya: the genitive singular of idam; by ūḍidaṇḍapadādyappumrāibhyaḥ (Pā. 6-1-171) the vibhakti gets an acute accent. - vyomanah: the root av is used here in the sense of going; "av rakṣaṇagatikāntī..." is read in many senses. "Viśeṣeṇa gacchati vyāpnotīti vyoma", or "vṛṣṭipradānena viśeṣeṇa prāṇino 'vati rakṣatīti vyoma": manin by anyebhyo 'pi drśyante (Pā. 3-2-75); by jvaratvarasrivyavimavām copadhāyās ca (Pā. 6-4-20) the penultimate a of av and the final v together take ū; ū + man, the ārdhadhātuka nimitta gives guṇa to the ū; vi + oman: yaṇ:

49. pp. 254–255 — grammar pages, noted briefly

vyoman; being in the dāsibhārādi group, the accent of the first member; or, in the sense of the action, manin, as before oma; "vividham oma rakṣaṇam yasmin": a bahuvrīhi, so bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam; since in vi + oman the acute i is replaced by y, the anudātta o after the yaṇ gets svarita by udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svaritonudāttasya. - cakṛṣe: ḍukṛñ karaṇe; liṭ second singular thās, se; the iṭ is forbidden by ekāca upadeśe 'nudāttāt [as read]; since the word begins a pāda, no nighāta; by the suffix-accent, end-acute. - svalḥ: su before, and the root ṛ gatau; vic by anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyante; when the suffix follows, guṇa of the root; su + ar: yaṇ; svarādinipātam avyayam gives the avyaya name; avyayād āpsupaḥ drops the case-ending; svar — at the end, the visarga: svalḥ; by nyaṇ svarau svaritau (Phiṭ-sūtra 4-... as read [?]) svalḥ is svarita. - eṣi: iṇ gatau, adādi; laṭ second singular sip; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ gives luk; sip being sārvadhātuka, guṇa of the root; ādeśapratyayayoḥ (Pā. 8-3-59) gives ṣatva of the suffix s: eṣi; since it follows an atiṇ, nighāta. || 12 ||

original pp. 255-258

Rik 13 — metre Triṣṭubh

Samhitā-pāṭha

त्वं भुवः प्रतिमानं पृथिव्या ऋष्ववीरस्य बृहतः पतिर्भूः । विश्वमाप्रा अन्तरिक्षं महित्वा सत्यमद्धा नकिरन्यस्त्वावान् ॥ १३ ॥

tvaṃ bhuvāḥ pratimānaṃ pṛthivyā ṛṣvavīrasya bṛhataḥ patir bhūḥ | viśvam āprā antarikṣaṃ mahitvā satyam addhā nakir anyas tvāvān || 13 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । भुवः । प्रतिमानम् । पृथिव्याः । ऋष्ववीरस्य । बृहतः । पतिः । भूः । विश्वम् । आ । अप्राः । अन्तरिक्षम् । महित्वा । सत्यम् । अद्धा । नकिः । अन्यः । त्वावान् ॥ १३ ॥

tvam | bhuvaḥ | prati-mānam | pṛthivyāḥ | ṛṣva-vīrasya |
 bṛhataḥ | patiḥ | bhūḥ | viśvam | ā | aprāḥ | antarikṣam |
 mahitvā | satyam | addhā | nakīḥ | anyāḥ | tvā-vān || 13 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

भूनाम्न एकाहे मरुत्वतीयशस्त्रे निविद्धानीयोत्सूक्तात्पुरा त्वं भुवः प्रतिमानमित्येषा
 शंसनीया । तथैवासूत्रयत् । शस्यमुक्तं बृहस्पतिसवेन त्वं भुवः प्रतिमानं पृथिव्याः ।
 आश्व. ९-५ [?] इति ॥ हे इन्द्र त्वं पृथिव्याः प्रथितायाः विस्तीर्णाया भूमेः प्रतिमानं
 भुवः । प्रतिनिधिर्भवसि । यथा भूलोको महानसंचिन्त्यशक्तिः । एवं त्वमपीत्यर्थः ।
 तथा ऋष्ववीरस्य । वीरयन्ति विक्रान्ता भवन्तीति वीरा देवाः । ऋष्वा दर्शनीया वीरा
 यस्य स तथोक्तः । तस्य बृहतो बृंहितस्य प्रवृद्धस्य स्वर्गलोकस्य पतिर्भूः ।
 पालयितासि । किंचान्तरिक्षमन्तरा क्षान्तं द्यावापृथिव्योर्मध्ये वर्तमानमाकाशं विश्वं
 सर्वमपि महित्वा महत्त्वेन सत्यमाप्राः । निश्चयेन आ समन्तादपूरयः । अतस्त्वावान्
 त्वत्सदृशोऽन्यः कश्चिन्न किरस्ति नास्तीति यदेतत्तद्वा सत्यमेव ॥ *bhūnāmna ekāhe marutvatīyaśastre nividdhānīyotsūktāt purā

 tvaṃ bhuvaḥ pratimānam ity eṣā śaṃsanīyā | tathaivāsūtrayat | śasyam uktam bṛhaspatīsavena tvaṃ bhuvaḥ pratimānam pṛthivyāḥ | āśva. 9-5 [?] iti || he indra tvaṃ pṛthivyāḥ prathitāyāḥ
 vistīrṇāyā bhūmeḥ pratimānam bhuvaḥ | pratinidhir bhavasi |
 yathā bhūrloko mahān asaṃcintyaśaktiḥ | evaṃ tvaṃ apīty
 arthaḥ | tathā ṛṣvavīrasya | vīrayanti vikrāntā bhavantīti vīrā
 devāḥ | ṛṣvā darśanīyā vīrā yasya sa tathoktaḥ | tasya bṛhato bṛṃhitasya pravṛddhasya svargalokasya patir bhūḥ | pālayitāsi | kiṃcāntarikṣam antarā kṣāntaṃ dyāvāpṛthivyor madhye vartamānam ākāśaṃ viśvaṃ sarvam api mahitvā mahattvena satyam āprāḥ | niścayena ā samantād apūrayaḥ | atas tvāvān tvatsadr̥śo 'nyaḥ kaścin nakir asti nāstīti yad etat tad dhā satyam
 eva ||* ⁵⁰

Translation of the bhāṣya: "In the one-day rite called Bhū [?], in the Marutvatīya-recitation, before the nivid-sūkta, the Rik 'tvaṃ bhuvaḥ pratimānam' is to be recited; so the sūtra-writer taught:

'what is to be recited has been said — in the Bṛhaspati-savana, tvam bhuvaḥ pratimānam pṛthivyāḥ' (Āśv. 9-5 as read [?]). — O Indra, you are pratimānam, the counterpart, the equal, of the extensive, wide earth; just as the earth-world is great, of unthinkable power, so are you, is the sense. And ṛṣvavīrasya: vīrāḥ are the gods — they exert themselves, they are valiant; one whose heroes are ṛṣva, beautiful to see: of that great, grown-up heaven-world you are the lord, the protector. Further, the antarikṣam — that which abides between heaven and earth, the sky — viśvam, the whole of it, mahitvā, by your greatness, satyam aprāḥ, you have filled, truly, on all sides. Therefore nakīḥ anyāḥ tvāvān, there is no other like you; what is said is addhā, indeed true."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) tvam — you; pṛthivyāḥ — of the extended earth; pratimānam bhuvaḥ — you are the measure (the counterpart); ṛṣvavīrasya — of him who has heroes (the gods) beautiful to look at; bṛhataḥ — of the great (heaven-world); patir bhūḥ — you are the protector; antarikṣam viśvam — the whole sky that is between heaven and earth; mahitvā — by your greatness; satyam — [filled] without a break; ā aprāḥ — you fill all round; tvāvān — one equal to you; anyāḥ — another; nakīḥ — there is none; addhā — this is true."

50. Reading notes: the first sentence reads "bhūnāmna ekāhe" — in the print "bhūnāmne kkāhe" — crowded, [?]; "nividdhānyotsūktāt purā" — "before the invocation-sūkta" — is read as printed; the Āśvalāyana numeral "9-5" as read, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 256 foot –, is characterized: bhuvaḥ (bhū, leṭ, the loss of i and uvaṇ); pṛthivyāḥ (the vibhakti-accent by udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt); bṛhataḥ (bṛhanmahator upasaṅkhyānam); bhūḥ (Vedic luṇ in the sense of the present; aṭ not coming by bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pi); aprāḥ (prā pūraṇe, adādi, laṇ, aṭ); mahitvā (supāṇi suluk gives ā for the instrumental; ṇit); tvāvān (vatup in the sense of similarity by yuṣmadasmadbhyaṃ chandasi sādṛśya upasaṅkhyānam, Pā. 5-2-39 vārttika, with the substitute tvā, and āsarvanāmasthāne...).

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you are the counterpart of the extensive earth. You are the lord of the great heaven-world, which is filled with beautiful and valiant gods. By your greatness you fill all the sky between heaven and earth, unbroken and all round. That there is no other like you is indeed true."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 256)

— "You are the measure of the extended earth ; you are the protector of the Swarga frequented by the gods ; verily with your greatness, you fill all the firmament ; for, there is none other like you."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 257 - ⁵¹ "In the one-day rite called Bhūnāman [?], the Rik 'tvam bhuvaḥ pratimānam' is to be said, before the nivid-sūkta (the invocation-sūkta), when the Marutvatīya-śāstra mantras are recited — this is set out in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra by the sūtra 'śasyam uktaṁ bṛhaspatisavena tvam bhuvaḥ pratimānam prthivyāḥ' (Āśv. 9-5 as read [?])." - prthivyāḥ — "Here the word prthivī means the exceedingly broad earth." - pratimānam bhuvaḥ — "'You are the counterpart': that is, as the earth has an inconceivable power, so you also have that much power." - ṛṣavīrasya — "By the derivation 'ṛṣvāḥ darśanīyāḥ vīrāḥ devāḥ yasya saḥ ṛṣavīraḥ' it is clear that this means: Indra possesses beautiful and valiant gods." - bṛhataḥ — "The sense is of the heaven-world, grown great, which is increasing." - antarikṣam — "Antarā kṣāntam dyāvāprthivyor madhye vartamānam ākāśam: the space that is between earth and heaven is called antarikṣa." - nakiḥ addhā — "'There is none': this statement is certain. They have explained nakiḥ as: astīti nāstīti yad etat tat." ⁵²

51. first Special Topic

52. i.e. the note in the print glosses nakiḥ by "'is' or 'is not'; that which is said"; the clause is crowded, [?].

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵³ - bhuvaḥ: bhū sattāyām; leḥ second singular sip; itaś ca lopah parasmaipadeṣu drops the i of sip; the uvaṅ substitute (bhūsuvos tiṇi, āciśnudhātubhruvām...); ru, visarga: bhuvaḥ; tiṅ atīnaḥ, nighāta. - pr̥thivyāḥ: pr̥thivī + ṇas; by āṇ nadyāḥ the augment āṭ to the ending; yaṇ for the ī; ru, visarga; udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt gives the ending the acute. - br̥hataḥ: the genitive singular of the nt-stem; br̥hanmahator upasaṅkhyānam gives the ending the acute. - bhūḥ: bhū sattāyām; chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭaḥ gives luṇ in the present sense; second singular sip; itaś ca drops its i; cli luṇi — cleḥ sic replaces the characteristic; gātisthā... (Pā. 2-4-77) drops sic; the suffix's s becomes ru, visarga; no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi; tiṅ atīnaḥ, nighāta. - aprāḥ: prā pūraṇe, adādi; laṅ second singular sip; the i dropped; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ gives luk; aṭ as laṅ-nimitta; nighāta. - mahitvā: supāṃ suluk... (Pā. 7-1-39) gives ḍā for the instrumental ending; since it is ḍit, ṭi is dropped. - tvāvān: vatup in the sense of "like" after yuṣmad by the vārttika yuṣmadasmadbhyaṃ chandasi sādṛśya upasaṅkhyānam (Pā. 5-2-39 vārttika); tvā is the substitute for the yuṣmad up to its last by pratyayottarapadayośca (Pā. 7-2-98); āsarvanāmnaḥ (Pā. 6-3-91) gives the long ā to tva before vatup: tvāvat; in the nominative singular, ugit, so num by ugidacām; āt-saṃyogasya ca [as printed] gives the penultimate lengthening; halṇyābbhyo... drops su; saṃyogāntasya lopah drops the final t; since that is asiddha, nalopa does not apply: tvāvān; since vatup is pīṭ, anudātta by anudāttau supīṭau; so the end-acute of the stem remains. || 13 ||

original p. 258

Rik 14

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ⁵⁴

53. pp. 257–258 — grammar pages, noted briefly

54. accents printed, not reproduced; metre Jagatī

न यस्य द्यावापृथिवी अनु व्यचो न सिन्धवो रजसो अन्तमानशुः । नोत स्ववृष्टिं मदे अस्य युध्यत एको अन्यच्चकृषे विश्वमानुषक् ॥ १४ ॥

na yasya dyāvāpṛthivī anu vyaco na sindhavo rajaso antam ānaśuḥ | not'a svavṛṣṭim made asya yudhyata eko anyac cakṛṣe viśvam ānuṣak || 14 || ⁵⁵

Pada-pāṭha

न । यस्य । द्यावापृथिवी इति । अनु । विऽअचः । न । सिन्धवः । रजसः । अन्तम् । आनशुः ।
न । उत । स्वऽवृष्टिम् । मदे । अस्य । युध्यतः । एकः । अन्यत् । चकृषे । विश्वम् । आनुषक् ॥ १४ ॥

*na | yasya | dyāvāpṛthivī iti | anu | vi-acaḥ | na | sindhavaḥ |
rajasah | antam | ānaśuḥ | na | uta | sva-vṛṣṭim | made | asya |
yudhyataḥ | ekaḥ | anyat | cakṛṣe | viśvam | ānuṣak || 14 ||*

Rik 52.14, continued ⁵⁶

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

यस्येन्द्रस्य व्यचो व्यापनं द्यावापृथिवी द्यावापृथिव्यौ नान्वानशाते । प्राप्तुमसमर्थं
बभूवतुः । तथा रजसोऽन्तरिक्षलोकस्योपरि सिन्धवः स्यन्दनशीला आपो यस्येन्द्रस्य
तेजसोऽन्तमवसानं नानशुः । न प्राप्नुवन् । उतापि च सोमपानेन मदे हर्षे सति
स्ववृष्टिं स्वीकृतवृष्टिं वृत्रादिं युध्यतो युध्यमानस्येन्द्रस्य बलस्यान्तं वृत्रादयो न प्रापुः
। अतो हे इन्द्र एकस्त्वमन्यत्त्वद्व्यतिरिक्तं विश्वं सर्वं भूतजातमानुषक् आनुषक्तं चकृषे । सकलमपि भूतजातं त्वदधीनमभूदिति भावः ॥ *yasyendrasya vyaco vyāpanam dyāvāpṛthivī dyāvāpṛthivyau

nānvānaśāte | prāptum asamarthe babhūvatuḥ | tathā rajaso
'ntarikṣalokasyopari sindhavaḥ syandanaśīlā āpo yasyendrasya tejaso 'ntam avasānam nānaśuḥ | na prāpnuvan | utāpi ca somapānena made harṣe sati svavṛṣṭim svīkṛtavṛṣṭim vṛtrādiṃ yudhyato yudhyamānasyendrasya balasyāntam vṛtrādayo na*

55. The print's "नोत" is read as na uta, the Pada's na | uta; the Saṃhitā writes nota.

56. pp. 259–261, PDF 275–277

*prāpuḥ | ato he indra ekas tvam anyat tvadvyatiriktaṃ viśvaṃ
sarvaṃ bhūtajātaṃ ānuṣak ānuṣaktaṃ cakṛṣe | sakalam api
bhūtajātaṃ tvadadhīnam abhūd iti bhāvaḥ ||* ⁵⁷

Translation of the bhāṣya: "That Indra whose vyacaḥ, pervasion, dyāvāpr̥thivī, heaven and earth, nānvānaśāte, did not reach — the two were unable to attain it. And of that Indra, rajasah, above the atmosphere-world, the sindhavaḥ, the streaming waters, did not attain antam, the end, the limit of his brilliance. And further, made, when delighted by the drinking of soma, svavṛṣtim, with Vṛtra and the like, who had taken the rain to themselves, yudhyataḥ, of Indra fighting — Vṛtra and the rest did not attain antam, the limit of his strength. Therefore, O Indra, you alone, anyat viśvaṃ, everything other than you, all that is born, ānuṣak, in succession, cakṛṣe, you have made [dependent]: the whole host of beings has become subject to you — this is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "yasya — of which Indra; vyacaḥ — the power that pervades; dyāvāpr̥thivī — both heaven and earth; na anu — were not capable of attaining; (likewise) rajasah — streams of water flowing above the atmosphere; sindhavaḥ — currents of water; antam — (of which Indra's greatness) the limit; na ānaśuḥ — did not reach; uta — and; made — excited by drinking soma; svavṛṣtim — with Vṛtra, who had stopped his own rain; yudhyataḥ — to the one who fought; asya — of such an Indra;

57. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 259–261, is characterized:
dyāvāpr̥thivī (dyaus ca pr̥thivī ca, the substitute dyāvā for div by divo dyāvā, Pā. 6-3-29 as read [?]; pr̥thivī with the ñiṣ of ṣid gaurādibhyaś ca; devatādvandve ca so that both members keep their accent; the quoted Vedic āpr̥thivī rudrapūṣamanthiṣu (Ṛ./Kāth.
 [?]) about the prohibition); vyacaḥ (vyaca vyājīkaraṇe, tudādi, Uṇādi asun, "vyaceḥ kuṭāditvam anasi" Kā. 1-2-1 as read, [?]); ānaśuḥ (aśū vyāptau, the Vedic parasmaipada, the uṣ for jhi by parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus..., reduplication, lengthening of the reduplicative vowel and the augment nuṭ by aśnotes ca, yadvṛttānnityam barring the nighāta); yudhyataḥ; cakṛṣe.

(strength) — his enemies na prāpuḥ — could not attain; (therefore, O Indra) ekaḥ — you alone; anyat viśvam — all beings other than you; ānuṣak — in succession; cakṛṣe — you have made (subject to you)."

Bhāvārtha

— "Both heaven and earth are unable to reach the extent of Indra's pervasive power, which is exceedingly wide. The currents of water that flow above the atmosphere could not reach the limit of Indra's majesty. At the time of the fight with Vṛtra, who had stopped the rain, when Indra was excited by drinking soma, his enemies could not attain his power. Therefore, O Indra, apart from you alone, you have made all other beings subject to you."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 260)

— "You, Indra, of whom heaven and earth have not attained the amplitude [sic: "amplitude"]; of whose energy the waters flowing above the heavens have not reached the limit; of whom, when fighting with animation, created by the Soma against the withholder of the rains, his adversaries have not equalled the prowess; you alone have made everything else dependent on you."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 260 - mukhyābhiprāya :

यो भूलोकान्तरिक्षलोकद्युलोकान् व्याप्यावशेषस्थितिं तिष्ठति यस्य च बलं
वृत्रहननप्रसङ्गे केनापि परिमितत्वेन न ज्ञातं स इन्द्र एव विश्वस्यैतस्य वस्तुमात्रस्य निर्माता भवतीति भावः ॥ yo bhūlokāntarikṣalokadyulokān vyāpyāvaśeṣasthitim tiṣṭhati yasya ca balaṁ vṛtrahananaprasaṅge kenāpi parimitatvena na jñātaṁ sa indra eva viśvasyaitasya vastumātrasya nirmātā bhavatīti bhāvaḥ || — "He who, having pervaded the earth-world, the atmosphere-world and the heaven-world, still stands with something left over, and whose strength at the time of slaying Vṛtra was not known by anyone as limited — that Indra alone is the maker of this whole world, of every single thing: this is the sense." The Kannada adds: "Though the strength and valour of Indra pervade the earth, atmosphere and heaven worlds, there is still some of it left over. No man can truly know how great the glory of such deeds of Indra as the slaying of Vṛtra is. It is this Indra who has created all the things that are in this world." - vyacaḥ — "Vyāpanam vyacaḥ: by the sūtra 'vyaceḥ kuṭādittvam anasi' (Kā. 1-2-1-1 as read [?]) the root vyac takes the form vyacaḥ and gives the sense 'pervasion'." - sindhavaḥ — "Syandanaśīlāḥ āpaḥ: it gives the sense of water, whose nature it is to flow always." - svavṛṣṭim — "Vṛtra and the like, who have the capacity to stop the rain and hold it back." - ānuṣak — "'Closely connected, attached': the sense 'dependent, being in close connection' is shown."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵⁸ - dyāvāprthivī: "dyauś ca prthivī ca"; divo dyāvā (Pā. 6-3-29 as read [?]) gives the substitute dyāvā when the second member follows, and it is made initial-acute by nipātana; the word prthivī, as one of the ṣid gaurādi words, takes ñiṣ and is end-acute; devatādvandve ca (Pā. 6-2-141 as read [?]) keeps the original accent of both members; though nottarapade 'nudāttādau (Pā. 6-2-... as read [?]) would forbid the first member's natural accent when the second member, prthivī, begins with a non-acute, the prohibition does not apply when prthivī is the second member, since it is explicitly stated in "āprthivī rudrapūṣamanthiṣu" [as read, [?]]. - vyacaḥ: vyaca vyājīkaraṇe; tudādi; the Uṇādi asun; "vyaceḥ kuṭādittvam anasi" (Kā. 1-2-1-1 as read [?]), because it is said "paryudāsa" for asun, ñittva does not come; hence grahijyā... saṃprasāraṇa also does not come; since asun is nit, initial-acute. - ānaśuḥ: asū vyāptau; vyatyayo bahulam gives the parasmaipada; liṭ third plural jhi, replaced by us by parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus...; being liṇ-nimitta, reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; for the guṇa's barrier, ata ādeḥ lengthens the reduplicative a; aśnotes ca (Pā. 7-4-... as read [?]) gives the augment nuṭ after the long vowel of the reduplicative syllable: ānaśuḥ; since the word yasya is connected, yadvṛttānnityam forbids the nighāta, and the accent comes by the suffix, end-acute. - yudhyataḥ: yudha saṃprahāre; śatṛ in the sense of laṭ; divādibhyaḥ śyan: yudhyat; genitive singular; the śatṛ is anudātta by tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam...; śyan being śit, the initial acute. - cakṛṣe: after a word that is not a tiñ... tiñ atīnaḥ gives all-anudātta accent; liṭ second singular. || 14 ||

original pp. 261–264

Rik 15 — metre Triṣṭubh

Samhitā-pāṭha

आर्चन्नत्र मरुतः सस्मिन्नाजौ विश्वे देवासो अमदन्ननु त्वा । वृत्रस्य यद्भृष्टिमता वधेन नि त्वमिन्द्र प्रत्यानं जघन्थ ॥ १५ ॥

ārcann atra marutaḥ sasminn ājau viśve devāso amadann anu tvā | vṛtrasya yad bhr̥ṣṭimatā vadhena ni tvam indra pratyānam jaghantha || 15 ||

Pada-pāṭha

आर्चन् । अत्र । मरुतः । सस्मिन् । आजौ । विश्वे । देवासः । अमदन् । अनु । त्वा । वृत्रस्य । यत् । भृष्टिमता । वधेन । नि । त्वम् । इन्द्र । प्रति । आनम् । जघन्थ ॥ १५ ॥

ārcan | atra | marutaḥ | sasmin | ājau | viśve | devāsaḥ |
amadan | anu | tvā | vṛtrasya | yat | bhr̥ṣṭi-matā | vadhena | ni |
tvam | indra | prati | ānam | jaghantha || 15 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वां मरुतोऽत्र सस्मिन्नाजौ संग्रामे आर्चन् । प्रहर भगवो जहि वीरयस्वेत्यनेन
वचनेनापूजयन् । सस्मिन् तस्मिन् । यद्वा सर्वस्मिन्नाजौ संग्रामे विश्वे देवासस्ते सर्वे
दानादिगुणयुक्ता मरुतस्त्वा त्वामन्वमदन् । अनुक्रमेण हर्षं प्रापयन् । यद्वा ।

त्वदीयमदानन्तरं तेऽपि मदं प्राप्ताः । हे इन्द्र त्वं यद्यदा भृष्टिमता । भ्रंशयति
 शत्रूनिति भृष्टिरश्रिः । तद्वता वधेन हननसाधनेन वज्रेण । अश्रिमत्त्वं च वज्रस्य ब्राह्मणे समाम्नातम् । वज्रो वा एष यद्यूपः सोऽष्टाश्रिः कर्तव्योऽष्टाश्रिवै वज्रः । ऐ. ब्रा.
 २-१ [?] इति । तेन वज्रेण वृत्रस्यानं प्रति आननं मुखं प्रति यद्वा श्वासहेतुं घ्राणं प्रति नि जघन्थ । नितरां प्राहार्षीः ॥

he indra tvām maruto 'tra sasminn ājau saṃgrāme ārcan |
prahara bhagavo jahi vīrayasvety anena vacanenāpūjayan |
sasmin tasmin | yadvā sarvasminn ājau saṃgrāme viśve devāsas
te sarve dānādiguṇayuktā marutas tvā tvām anvamadan | anukrameṇa harsaṃ prāpayan | yadvā | tvadīyamadānantaram te
'pi madam prāptāḥ | he indra tvam yad yadā bhr̥ṣṭimatā |
bhramśayati śatrūn iti bhr̥ṣṭir aśriḥ | tadvatā vadhena
hananasāadhanena vajreṇa | aśrimattvam ca vajrasya brāhmaṇe
samāmnātam | vajro vā eṣa yad yūpaḥ so 'ṣṭāśriḥ kartavyo 'ṣṭāśrir
vai vajraḥ | ai. brā. 2-1 [?] iti | tena vajreṇa vṛtrasyānam prati ānanam mukham prati yadvā śvāsahetum ghrāṇam prati ni
jaghantha | nitarām prāhārṣiḥ | | 59

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, atra, here, sasmin ājau, in this battle, the Maruts ārcan, worshipped you with the words 'strike, O lord, slay, show valour' [Ai. Brā., numeral as in the Special Topics, [?]]. Sasmin is tasmin, 'in that'; or: in all the battle all the gods, all those Maruts, endowed with the virtues of giving and the rest, anvamadan, rejoiced after you, successively; or: after your own delight, they too attained delight. O Indra, yat, when you, with bhr̥ṣṭimatā vadhena, with the weapon, the thunderbolt that has bhr̥ṣṭi — bhr̥ṣṭi is a corner or edge that makes enemies

59. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 262: on ārcan (arca pūjāyam, bhvādi, aṭ with the Vedic āṭ), sasmin (sasminn iti tasmin, with the Vedic loss of the letter), devāsaḥ (ājjaserasuk), ānam (ana prāṇane, ghañ — "ānanam", with the loss of the letter), śloka-less; jaghantha (han, thal with no iṭ, abhyāsac ca for the h) — is characterized.

fall (bhraṃśayati) — and that the thunderbolt has edges is declared in the Brāhmaṇa: 'The sacrificial post is the thunderbolt; it must be made eight-edged, for the thunderbolt is eight-edged' (Ai. Brā. 2-1 [?]) — with that thunderbolt nijaghantha, you struck down, vṛtrasya ānam prati, Vṛtra on his face, his mouth, or, on the nose, the cause of breathing."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra, you) marutaḥ — the Maruts; atra — in this (battle); ārcan — worshipped; sasmin ājau — in that (or all) battle; indra — O Indra; tvam — you; yat — when; bhr̥ṣṭimatā — sharp; vadhena — with the thunderbolt that is a weapon of killing; vṛtrasya — of Vṛtra; ānam prati — towards the face, or on the nose that causes breath; nijaghantha — you struck well; viśve devāsaḥ — all those Marut deities; tvā — you; anu amadan — rejoiced in succession, or rejoiced after you."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, in this battle the Maruts worshipped you. When you struck Vṛtra on the mouth with your thunderbolt — sharp, and a killer — all the Marut deities rejoiced just as you did."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 263)

— "The Marutś worshipped you in this battle; all the gods in this engagement imitated you in exultation, when you had struck the face of Vritra with your sharp and fatal bolt."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 263 - ārcan — "The Marut deities worshipped Indra with praise-words such as 'prahara bhagavo jahi vīrayasva' (Ai. Brā. 3-20 as read [?])." - anu amadan — "The Maruts gave Indra gladness one after another. Or: after Indra was glad, they too were glad — the sense can be told in these two ways." - bhr̥ṣṭimatā — "bhraṃśayati śatrūn iti bhr̥ṣṭiḥ: 'that which destroys enemies' — the sharp edge, called bhr̥ṣṭi or aśri. The thunderbolt is one that has such edges; this the śruti 'vajro vā eṣa yad yūpaḥ so 'ṣṭāśiḥ kartavyo 'ṣṭāśrī vai vajrah' (Ai. Brā. 2-1 as read [?]) tells."

वज्रो वा एष ययूपः सोऽष्टाश्रिः कर्तव्योऽष्टाश्रिर्वै वज्रः । (Ai. Brā. 2-1 as read [?])

vajro vā eṣa yad yūpaḥ so 'ṣtāśiḥ kartavyo 'ṣtāśrir vai vajraḥ | — editorial and tentative: "this sacrificial post is the thunderbolt; it is to be made eight-cornered, for the thunderbolt is eight-cornered." ⁶⁰ - ānam prati — "The word āna has two senses: anana (face, mouth) or the nose that serves for breathing. Indra struck Vṛtra's face or nose. If anana, with loss of a letter, is pronounced in the Veda, it means 'mouth'; and if derived as 'anyate 'nena' ('that by which one breathes') it means 'nose'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶¹ - ārcan: arca pūjāyām, bhvādi; lañ third plural jhi; jher jhoḥ... ant-substitute; itaś ca drops the i of the ending there; kartari śap; ato guṇe — single substitute; because the root begins with a vowel, ādajādīnām gives āt; ātaś ca gives vṛddhi; since it begins a pāda, no nighāta, so the acute āt is acute: initial-acute. - sasmin: for tasmin; tado doḥ saḥ sāvanantyayoh (Pā. 7-2-106) — the sa substitute laid down for the t is by vyatyaya found in the locative too; or, by the Vedic loss of a letter in sarvasmin, sasmin. - devāsaḥ: deva + jas; ājjaserasuk (Pā. 7-1-50) gives asuk; devāsas: ru, visarga: devāsaḥ. - amadan: madī harṣe; lañ third plural: amadan; nighāta by tiñ atīnaḥ. - ānam: ananam: by the Vedic loss of a letter, ānam; or from ana prāṇane, "anyate 'nena" in the instrumental sense ghañ; being ñit, ata upadhāyāḥ gives vṛddhi: āna; end-acute by kṛṣṭāpadi... [Pā. 6-1-... as read, [?]]. - jaghantha: han hiṃsāgatyoh, adādi; liṭ second singular sip; thal by parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus...; thal being the next suffix, reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; kuhoś cuḥ; abhyāsāc ca gives the h of the root after the reduplicative the kutva and gh by jhaṣ...; upadeśe 'tvataḥ (Pā. 7-2-62) forbids iṭ; naś cāpadāntasya jhali gives the anusvāra for the n, and anusvārasya yayi parasavarṇaḥ

60. The print reads aṣṭāśiḥ in one place and aṣṭāśriḥ in another; aṣṭāśri is given as in the bhāṣya.

61. pp. 263–264 — grammar pages, noted briefly

the homorganic nasal: jaghantha; since thal is lit, liti gives the acute to the vowel before the suffix; the a after gh is acute. || 15
|| ⁶²

Close of Sūkta 52

Sūkta 52 (Maṇḍala 1, Tenth Anuvāka, 15 Riks; ṛṣi Savya Āngirasa; deity Indra; Jagatī, with Riks 13 and 15 Triṣṭubh) — printed pp. 212–264, PDF 228–280.

The Riks praise Indra as the foe of enemies who makes heaven known (1), who stands like a mountain among the waters and grows in strength when he has slain the river-obstructing Vṛtra (2), the one with a straight, delight-giving brilliance whom the sages invoke with a good mind (3), whom the Somas fill as rivers fill the ocean and whom the Maruts attend (4–5), whose thunderbolt strikes the jaws of the pervading Vṛtra (6), to whom the hymns come as streams to a lake while Tvaṣṭṛ sharpens the bolt (7); who slays Vṛtra and sets the sun in the sky (8); for whom the Bṛhatsāman is sung in fear of Vṛtra (9), whose strike makes heaven tremble (10); whose strength would be renowned though the earth were tenfold (11); the measure of the earth, the lord of heaven, who fills the sky (12–13); whose pervasion neither heaven and earth nor the rivers above the atmosphere reach, and who makes all else dependent on himself (14); and, lastly, whom the Maruts worship in the battle when he strikes Vṛtra's face with the eight-edged bolt (15). Long Special Topics are the Trita-legend with Wilson's note (Rik 5), the legend of Vala from the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (Rik 5), and the rule for the Bṛhatsāman (Rik 9). Many numerals are marked [?] in the Riks.

62. The print gives no closing sentence for Sūkta 52: the last grammar paragraph, on jaghantha, ends the Rik at p. 264, and a small ornament separates it from the title of the next sūkta. My own summary, not the source's:

Sūkta 53 — "nyū ṣu vācam"

original p. 264

Title and Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 264)

ಐವತ್ತಮೂರನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — ¹

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya (introduction)

ನ್ಯೂ ಷು ವಾಚಮಿತ್ಯೇಕಾದಶರ್ದಂ ತೃತೀಯಂ ಸೂಕ್ತಮ್ । ದಶಮ್ಯೇಕಾದಶಯೌ ತ್ರಿಛೃಭೌ । ಶಿಷ್ಠಾ ನವ
ಜಗತ್ಯಃ । ಸವ್ಯ ಋಷಿಃ । ಇಂದ್ರೋ ದೇವತಾ । ತಥಾ ಚಾನುಕ್ರಾಂತಮ್ । ನ್ಯೂ ಷ್ವೇಕಾದಶಾಂತ್ಯೇ
ತ್ರಿಛೃಭಾವಿತಿ । ಅತಿರಾತ್ರೇ ಪ್ರಥಮೇ ಪರ್ಯಾಯೇ ಬ್ರಾಹ್ಮಣಾಚ್ಛಂಸಿನಃ ಶಸ್ತ್ರ ಏತತ್ಸೂಕ್ತಮ್ । ತಥಾ
ಚಾಸುತ್ರಯದಾಚಾರ್ಯಃ । ನ್ಯೂ ಷು ವಾಚಮುಪ್ರ ಧೃತಸ್ಯ ಹರಿವಃ ಪಿಬೇಹೇತಿ ಯಾಜ್ಞಾ । ಆಶ್ವ. ೬-೪ [?]
ಇತಿ ॥

nyū ṣu vācam ity ekādaśarcaṃ tṛtīyaṃ sūktam | daśamy
ekādaśyau triṣṭubhau | śiṣṭā nava jagatyaḥ | savya ṛṣiḥ | indro devatā | tathā cānukrāntam | nyū ṣv ekādaśāntye triṣṭubhāv iti | atirātre prathamē paryāye brāhmaṇācchamsinaḥ śastra etat sūktam | tathā cāsūtrayad ācāryaḥ | nyū ṣu vācam upra dhūtasya
harivaḥ pibeheti yājñā | āśva. 6-4 [?] iti | ²

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-third sūkta"

2. Reading note: "upra" is as printed in the quotation, probably a misprint or crowded for pra — the quoted words are the opening of the sūkta and of Rik 53.1's nyū ṣu vācam pra mahe bharāmahe? It is not completed; the Āśvalāyana numeral "6-4" is as read, [?].

Translation: "'Nyū ṣu vācam': a sūkta of eleven Riks, the third [of the Tenth Anuvāka]. The tenth and eleventh are Triṣṭubh; the remaining nine are Jagatī. The seer is Savya, the deity Indra; so the Anukramaṇī: 'nyū ṣv ekādaśa, the last two Triṣṭubh'. In the Atirātra rite, in the first paryāya, this sūkta belongs to the recitation of the Brāhmaṇācchaṃsin; so the teacher has aphorized: 'nyū ṣu vācam...' [and dhūtasya harivaḥ pibeha as the yājyā (offering-verse)] (Āśv. 6-4 as read [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 264) — "'Nyū ṣu' is the third sūkta in the tenth anuvāka. It has eleven Riks. The seer of this sūkta is Savya, and Indra is the deity. The tenth and eleventh Riks are in the Triṣṭubh metre; the rest are in the Jagatī metre. In the Anukramaṇikā it is said 'nyū ṣv ekādaśānte triṣṭubhāv iti'. In the sacrifice called Atirātra, in the first paryāya (round), this sūkta is to be used by the priest Brāhmaṇācchaṃsin for the śastra mantras; the sūtra 'nyū ṣu vācam...' in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra shows this (Āś. 6-4 as read [?])." ³

Heading block of Sūkta 53 (p. 265, PDF 281)

- Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 10 · Sūkta 53
- Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 13, 14 [as read, small numerals, [?]]
- Number of Riks in the sūkta: 11
- Ṛṣi: Savya Āṅgīrasa
- Deity: Indra
- Metre: Riks 1–9 Jagatī; Riks 10 and 11 Triṣṭubh ⁴

original pp. 265–269

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ⁵

3. The heading block and Rik 53.1 begin on p. 265 (PDF 281).

4. read "೧-೯ ಜಗತೀ | ೧೦, ೧೧ ತ್ರಿಷ್ಟುಪ್"

न्यू षु वाचं प्र महे भरामहे गिर इन्द्राय सदने विवस्वतः । नू चिद्धि रत्नं ससतामिवाविदन् दुष्टुतिर्द्रविणोदेषु शस्यते ॥ १ ॥ *nyū ṣu vācam pra mahe bharāmahe gira indrāya sadane vivasvataḥ | nū cid dhi ratnaṁ sasatām ivāvidan na duṣṭutir

draviṇodeṣu śasyate || 1 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

नि । ऊं इति । सु । वाचम् । प्र । महे । भरामहे । गिरः । इन्द्राय । सदने । विवस्वतः । नु ।
चित् । हि । रत्नम् । ससताम्ऽइव । अविदत् । न । दुःऽस्तुतिः । द्रविणःऽदेषु । शस्यते ॥ १ ॥ *ni | ūm iti | su | vācam | pra | mahe | bharāmahe | giraḥ | indrāya | sadane | vivasvataḥ | nu | cit | hi | ratnam | sasatām-

iva | avidat | na | duḥ-stutiḥ | draviṇaḥ-deṣu | śasyate || 1 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

महे महत इन्द्राय सु वाचं शोभनां स्तुतिं नि प्र भरामहे । नितरां प्रयुज्ज्महे [?] । उ
इति पादपूरणः । यतो विवस्वतः परिचरतो यजमानस्य सदने यज्ञगृह इन्द्राय गिरः
स्तुतयः क्रियन्ते । हि यस्मात्स इन्द्रो नू चित् क्षिप्रमेव रत्नं रमणीयमसुराणां
धनमविदत् विन्दति । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । ससतामिव । यथा स्वपतां पुरुषाणां धनं चोरः
क्षिप्रं लभते तद्वत् । अतोऽस्मभ्यं धनं दातुं शक्त इति भावः । द्रविणोदेषु धनस्य
दातृषु पुरुषेषु दुष्टुतिरसमीचीना स्तुतिर्न शस्यते नाभिधीयते । अतः सुवाचं प्र भरामह इति पूर्वेण संबन्धः ॥

*mahe mahata indrāya su vācam śobhanāṁ stutiṁ ni pra bharāmahe | nitarāṁ prayuñjmahe [?] | u iti pādapūraṇaḥ | yato vivasvataḥ paricarato yajamānasya sadane yajñagrha indrāya giraḥ stutayaḥ kriyante | hi yasmāt sa indro nū cit kṣipram eva ratnaṁ ramaṇīyam asurāṇāṁ dhanam avidat vindati | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | sasatām iva | yathā svapatām puruṣāṇāṁ dhanam
coraḥ kṣipram labhate tadvat | ato 'smabhyaṁ dhanam dātum*

*śakta iti bhāvaḥ | draviṇodeṣu dhanasya dātrṣu puruṣeṣu duṣṭutir asamīcīnā stutir na śasyate nābhidhīyate | ataḥ suvācam pra
bharāmahe iti pūrveṇa saṃbandhaḥ | |*

Note — Reading note: "prayuñjmahe" is as read in the print, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 266 foot –, is characterized: nyū ṣu (the acute-svarita sandhi; the lengthening of u by ikaḥ suñi, Pā. 6-3-134 as read [?]); the ṣatva of the s of su by sūñi... Pā. 8-3-107 as read [?]); mahe (maha pūjāyām, kvip ca, mah, the dative); nū cit (lengthening in the Saṃhitā by ṛcitunughamakṣutaru..., Pā. 6-3-133 as read [?]); sasatām iva (sasa svapne, śatr, śatur anumō nadyajādī; the compound with iva where the case-ending is not dropped, ivena vibhaktyalopaḥ pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ ca, Pā. 2-1-4 as read [?]); avidat (vid lābhe, luṇ in the present sense, clerañ, nighāta forbidden by hi ca); draviṇodeṣu (dru gatau, Uñādi inan; dravina; dā with ka by ātaś copasarge / supi sthaḥ, ātolopa iṭi ca, the su-augment in the Veda, hoṣi ca gives o, gatikārako...); śasyate (śaṃsu stutau, passive laṭ, yak, the loss of the penultimate nasal).

Translation of the bhāṣya: "To mahe, the great Indra, we ni pra bharāmahe, we offer su vācam, a fair speech, praise; u is a mere filler. Because in the house of the sacrificer — the vivasvat, the one who serves — in the sacrificial house, praises are made for Indra; and because that Indra, nū cit, quickly gets ratnam, the delightful wealth of the Asuras — an example: sasatām iva, as a thief quickly gets the property of men who are asleep — so he is able to give wealth to us, is the sense. Among draviṇodeṣu, the persons who give wealth, a duṣṭuti, an unsuitable praise, is not praised, is not accepted. Therefore 'suvācam pra bharāmahe' connects with the first line."

Pratipadārtha — "mahe — to the one of wonderful majesty; indrāya — to Indra; su vācam — fair praise; ni pra bharāmahe — we offer completely; vivasvataḥ — of the worshipping (sacrificer); sadane — in the sacrificial house; giraḥ — [to Indra] the praise-words [are offered]; hi — because; indraḥ — Indra; nū cit — quickly, with alertness; ratnam — the delightful wealth (of the Rākṣasas); sasatām iva — as one gains wealth from the rich who sleep (as thieves gain it when they are alert); avidat — gets

(he seizes, and is able to give it to us); draviṇodeṣu — among those who give wealth; duṣṭutiḥ — unsuitable praise; na śasyate — is not honoured."

Bhāvārtha

— "The majesty of Indra is exceedingly wonderful. We offer fair praise to please him. In the sacrificial house of the sacrificer, praises are offered to him. Being excited by these praises, he quickly takes the delightful wealth of the Rākṣasas, as thieves take the wealth of a rich man while he sleeps, and distributes it to us. Among givers of wealth, praises offered in an unsuitable way have no value."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 267)

— "We offer laudatory words to the mighty Indra; we offer filling praise to Indra in the house of the sacrificer engaged in the service. He (Indra) has quickly acquired riches, as a thief hastily carries off the property of the sleeping; Ill-expressed words are not praised among the givers of wealth."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 267–268 ⁶ - mukhyābhiprāya ⁷:

अत्रेदमुक्तं भवति । निद्रिताः पुरुषा इव यदा मनुष्या धनं नोपेक्षन्ते तदपि तेभ्य
इन्द्रः क्षिप्रं धनं ददाति । विशादेषु धनदेषु विषयेषु च समीचीना स्तुतिः शंस्या भवति
। अतः कारणात्सर्वाचीनानि स्तोत्राणि रचयित्वास्य नो यजमानस्य यज्ञशालायां महत इन्द्रायोर्पयामेति ॥

*atredam uktaṃ bhavati | nidritāḥ puruṣā iva yadā manuṣyā dhanam nopekṣante tadāpi tebhya indraḥ kṣipram dhanam dadāti | viśādeṣu [?] dhanadeṣu viṣayeṣu ca samīcīnā stutiḥ śaṃsyā bhavati | ataḥ kāraṇāt sarvācīnāni stotrāṇi racayitvāsyā no
yajamānasya yajñāśālāyāṃ mahata indrāyārpayāmeti |* — "Here

6. the first two Special Topics are on p. 267; the rest on p. 268

7. the chief sense; a Sanskrit passage in the print, with Kannada

this is meant: when men, like sleeping persons, take no care of wealth, even then Indra quickly gives wealth to them. For givers of wealth and in matters of this kind, a fitting praise is to be recited. For this reason, having composed hymns suited to the occasion, let us offer them to the great Indra in the sacrificial hall of our sacrificer." ⁸ - ni + ū + su = nyū ṣu — "Here ni is a preposition. The ū serves only to fill the foot; it has no meaning. The word su means 'fine, beautiful'; the word su qualifies the word vāc." - ratnam — "In this context the meaning that arises from the connection is 'the delightful wealth of the Rākṣasas'." - sasatām iva — "This word, formed from the root sasa svapne, gives the sense 'of those who sleep'. The sense is given as an illustration of the matter above: Indra takes away the wealth of the Rākṣasas and gives it to the sacrificer and the like, the good people." - duṣṭutiḥ — "Asamīcīnā stutiḥ: praise that is not good for the mind." - draviṇodeṣu — "From the root dru gatau the word draviṇa is formed. Such persons who give draviṇa (movable wealth) are draviṇodāḥ. It is well known that a praise that is not suitable cannot be effective among the givers of wealth."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁹ - nyū ṣu: ni + ū: yaṇ for the i; udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svaritonudāttasya gives svarita to the ū, because the yaṇ has come in the place of an acute vowel; since the following su is acute, the svarita is trembled (kampa) in the Saṃhitā; ikaḥ suṇi (Pā. 6-3-134 as read [?]) lengthens the u; sūñ [as read, Pā. 8-3-107 as read, [?]] gives ṣatva to the s of su, which stands after the nimitta in an earlier word and is a nipāta. - mahe: maha pūjāyām; kvip ca gives kvip: mah; dative singular: mahe; by sāvekācas tr̥tīyādīḥ (Pā. 6-1-168 as read [?]) the ending is acute; or,

8. The print's viśādeṣu is crowded, [?]; the Kannada adds: "As to men asleep there is no concern about property; in just that way, Indra, hurrying, gives wealth quickly even to praisers who are not hurrying after wealth. Therefore the intention here is clear: having composed the best hymns to Indra, who is worthy of hymns, in the sacrificial hall of the sacrificer, let us offer them to Indra."

9. pp. 267–269 — grammar pages, noted briefly

the mahat word with the Vedic loss of the end, in which case the accent is as before. - nū cit: nu cit: the lengthening in the Saṃhitā by ṛcitunughamakṣutaruṣu... (Pā. 6-3-133 as read [?]). - sasatām iva: sasa svapne, śatṛ in the present sense; genitive plural sasatām; by śaturanumo nadyajādī the ending is acute; then the compound with iva; ivena vibhaktyalopaḥ pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ ca (Pā. 2-1-... as read [?]): the ending is not dropped, though in a compound. - avidat: vid lābhe, tudādī; chandasi luṇlanṛiṭaḥ gives luṇ in the sense of the present; since the third-person-plural-like ending..., itaś ca drops the i; saṃyogāntalopa drops the t; puṣādidyutādī... (Pā. 3-1-55) gives aṇ in place of cli in luṇ; aṭ as the luṇ-nimitta; because hi is before, hi ca (Pā. 8-1-34) forbids the nighāta, so aṭ is acute. - draviṇodeṣu: "draviṇāni dhanāni dadāti iti draviṇodāḥ"; dru gatau; the Uṇādi inan by drudakṣibhyām inan (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]); guṇa of the root before the suffix; the n after r, so ṇatva by aṭkuvāṇnumvyavāye 'pi; draviṇa; with draviṇa as the upapada, ātaś copasarge kaḥ (Pā. 3-2-3) gives ka after dā; being kit, ātolopa iṭi ca drops the ā; for the first member draviṇa the su-augment comes in the Veda, and since it is final, ruḥ; hośi ca gives u and guṇa; so draviṇodaḥ; since the first member is a kāraka word, gatikārapapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the last member; locative plural. - śasyate: śaṃsu stutau; laṭ in the passive; sārvadhātuke yak gives yak; kit, so anidita...halantānām drops the penultimate nasal; ṭita ātmanepadānām ṭer e gives e: śasyate; tiṅ atiṇaḥ, nighāta. || 1 ||

original p. 269

Rik 2

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

दुरो अश्वस्य दुर इन्द्र गोरसि दुरो यवस्य वसुन इनस्पतिः । शिक्षानरः प्रदिवो अकामकर्शनः सखा सखिभ्यस्तमिदं गृणीमसि ॥ २ ॥ duro aśvasya dura indra gor asi duro yavasya vasuna inas patiḥ | śikṣānaraḥ pradivo akāmakarśanaḥ sakhā sakhibhyas tam idam grṇīmasi || 2 ||

Pada-pāṭha

दुरः । अश्वस्य । दुरः । इन्द्र । गोः । असि । दुरः । यवस्य । वसुनः । इनः । पतिः । शिक्षानरः । प्रदिवः । अकामऽकर्शनः । सखा । सखिऽभ्यः । तम् । इदम् । गृणीमसि ॥ २ ॥

duraḥ | aśvasya | duraḥ | indra | goḥ | asi | duraḥ | yavasya | vasunaḥ | inas | patiḥ | śikṣānaraḥ | pra-divaḥ | akāmakarśanaḥ | sakhā | sakhi-bhyaḥ | tam | idam | grṇīmasi || 2 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वमश्वस्य दुरो दाताऽसि । तथा गोः पश्चादेर्दुरो दाताऽसि । तथा यवस्य
यवादेर्धान्यजातस्य दुरो दाताऽसि । वसुनो निवासहेतोर्धनस्येनः स्वामी पतिः सर्वेषां
पालयिता शिक्षानरः । शिक्षतिर्दानकर्मा । शिक्षायां दानस्य नेताऽसि । प्रदिवः
पुराणः । प्रगता दिवो दिवसा यस्मिन्स तथोक्तः । अकामकर्शनः । कामान्कर्शयति
नाशयतीति कामकर्शनः । न कामकर्शनोऽकामकर्शनः ।
अव्ययपूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वम् । हविर्दत्त्वतां यजमानानां कामानभिमतफलप्रदानेन
पूरयितेत्यर्थः । सखिभ्यः समानख्यानेभ्य ऋत्विग्भ्यः सखा सखिवदत्यन्तं प्रियः । एवंभूतो य इन्द्रस्तं प्रतीदं स्तोत्रलक्षणं वचो गृणीमसि ब्रूमहे ॥

*he indra tvam aśvasya duro dātāsi | tathā goḥ paśvāder duro
 dātāsi | tathā yavasya yavāder dhānyajātasya duro dātāsi | vasuno nivāsahetor dhanasyenaḥ svāmī patiḥ sarveṣāṃ pālayitā śikṣānaraḥ | śikṣatir dānakarmā | śikṣāyāṃ dānasya netāsi |
 pradivāḥ purāṇaḥ | pragatā divo divasā yasmin sa tathoktaḥ |
 akāmakarśanaḥ | kāmān karśayati nāśayatīti kāmakarśanaḥ | na
 kāmakarśano 'kāmakarśanaḥ |
 avyayapūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvam | havirdattvatām
 yajamānānām kāmān abhimataphalapradānena pūrayitety arthaḥ | sakhibhyaḥ samānakhyānebhya ṛtviḡbhyaḥ sakhā sakhivad atyantam priyaḥ | evaṃbhūto ya indras tam pratīdam
 stotalakṣaṇam vaco gr̥ṇīmasi brūmahe ||* ¹⁰

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you are the duraḥ, the giver, of horses; likewise of cows, cattle and the like; likewise of yavasya, barley and the rest, of the kinds of grain — vasunaḥ inah patiḥ, the lord, the master, of wealth which is the cause of dwelling, the protector of all; śikṣānaraḥ — śikṣati is a verb of giving: you are the leader of giving in the bestowing; pradivāḥ, old: he of whom the days of the sky have gone forth, so called; akāmakarśanaḥ: kāmakarśana is one who thins out, destroys desires; akāmakarśana, not a destroyer of desires — one who fulfils, by granting the desired fruit, the desires of sacrificers who have given the offering; sakhā sakhibhyaḥ, a friend to the *sakhi*s, the priests who are named sakhi: exceedingly dear, like a friend. Such an Indra — to him we gr̥ṇīmasi, we speak, this praise-speech."

10. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 270 head: on duraḥ (ḍudāñ dāne, with the Uṇādi uraca by mandivāśimathicaticañkyañkibhya uraca, Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]; the loss of a before eva... [crowded]); śikṣānaraḥ (śikṣa vidyopādāne, guroś ca halaḥ gives a-suffix; śaṣṭhīsamāsaḥ, the accent of the last member); gr̥ṇīmasi (gṛ śabde, kryādi, prādīnām hrasvaḥ, "īdantaḥ... maserīḥ": the mas → masi) — is characterized.

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra (you); aśvasya — of horses; duraḥ — also the giver; goḥ — of cows and cattle and the like; duraḥ — the giver; asi; yavasya — of grain; duraḥ — the giver; vasunaḥ — of wealth (the cause of dwelling); inaḥ — the master; patiḥ — protector of all; śikṣānaraḥ — the foremost among givers; pradivaḥ — ancient; akāmakarśanaḥ — one who does not break the hopes of devotees; sakhibhyaḥ — to our friends, the priests; sakhā — the dear one; taṃ — to him; idam — this word of the form of praise; grṇīmasi — we speak."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you give us horses, cows and cattle, and grain. We offer praise to that Indra who is the master of wealth, the protector of all, the foremost among givers, the ancient, the one who does not break the hopes of devotees, and the one who is dear to our friends, the priests."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 270)

— "Indra, you are the giver of horses, of cows, of barley, the lord and protector of wealth, the instrument of habitation, the foremost in liberality, the most ancient god: you do not disappoint the desires addressed to you; you are a friend to our friends; we praise such Indra."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayaḥ), p. 270 (begins; continues on p. 271) - duraḥ — "'One who gives': this is the meaning of this word. It is formed from the root ḍudāñ dāne. This word shows that Indra is the giver of everything." - yavasya — "Here, though the word yava has the sense only of barley, by lakṣaṇā (implication) the sense of all grains, beginning with barley, is given."

Rik 53.2, continued ¹¹

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 271 (continued) - śikṣānaraḥ — "As in the Nirukta sentence 'śikṣatir dānakarmā' (Ni. 3-10 as read [?]), the root śikṣ has the sense of the action of giving. This word, formed from the root śikṣa vidyopādāne, indicates that Indra is the giver of all qualities, such as knowledge." - pradivah — "By the derivation 'pragatā divo divasā yasmin saḥ' the word pradiva has the sense 'having no beginning', and 'one who has existed for a very long time'." - akāmakarśanaḥ — "One who destroys desired ends is called kāmakarśana: 'kāmān karśayati nāśayatīti kāmakarśanaḥ'; na kāmakarśanaḥ: akāmakarśanaḥ. The sense is that Indra is gracious to the sacrificers who offer the oblation, and does not destroy any of the desired ends they ask for."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹² - durah: ḍudāñ dāne; by the plural in unādayo bahulam, the Uṇādi suffix uraca (mandivāśimathaticin̄kyan̄kibhya uraca, Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]) also comes after this root; before uraca, by the plural, the ā of the root is dropped; durah; end-acute by citaḥ. - indra: the vocative; the nighāta by āmantritasya ca. - asi: as bhuvi; laṭ second singular; tāsastyoḥ [as printed: tāsasty...lopaḥ, Pā. 7-4-50 as read, [?]] drops the s of the root before an ending beginning with s: asi; following an atiñ, nighāta. - śikṣānaraḥ: śikṣa vidyopādāne; guroś ca halaḥ (Pā. 3-3-103) gives a; since saṃyoge guru the i is heavy; feminine ṭāp by ajādyatas ṭāp; "śikṣāyāḥ naraḥ", a genitive compound; samāsasya (Pā. 6-1-223) gives the end-acute. - akāmakarśanaḥ: "kāmān karśayati nāśayati iti kāmakarśanaḥ"; lyuṭ in the agent sense; yuvor anākau gives ana; pugantalaḥpādhasya ca gives guṇa to the root's penultimate; na kāmakarśanaḥ: tatpuruṣe tulyārtha... (Pā. 6-2-2) gives the accent of the first member, the particle. - gr̥ṇīmasi: gr̥ śabde, kryādi; masi in the first person plural; kryādibhyaḥ śnā; prādīnām hrasvaḥ shortens the root's vowel before śnā; īthalyaghoḥ (Pā. 6-4-113) gives ī to śnā's ā before

12. p. 271 foot – p. 272 head — grammar page, noted briefly

a kit/ñit suffix; yuvarṇānnasya ṇatvaṃ vācyam — the ṇatva for the n; idantomasi (Pā. 7-1-46 as read [?]) gives an i-augment to the ending: gr̥ṇīmasi; tiñ atīṇaḥ, nighāta. || 2 ||

original pp. 272–276

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

शचीव इन्द्र पुरुकृद्युमत्तम तवेदिदमभितश्चेकिते वसु । अतः संगृभ्याभिभूत आ भर मा त्वायतो जरितुः काममूनयीः ॥ ३ ॥ śacīva indra purukṛd dyumattama taved idam abhitaś cekite vasu

| ataḥ saṃgr̥bhyābhibhūta ā bhara mā tvāyato jarituh kāmam ūnayīḥ || 3 ||

Pada-pāṭha

शचीवः । इन्द्र । पुरुऽकृत् । द्युमत्ऽतम । तव । इत् । इदम् । अभितः । चेकिते । वसु । अतः । संऽगृभ्य । अभिऽभूते । आ । भर । मा । त्वाऽयतः । जरितुः । कामम् । ऊनयीः ॥ ३ ॥

śacīvaḥ | indra | puru-kṛt | dyumat-tama | tava | it | idam | abhitaḥ | cekite | vasu | ataḥ | saṃ-gr̥bhya | abhi-bhūte | ā |
bhara | mā | tvā-yataḥ | jarituh | kāmam | ūnayīḥ || 3 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

शचीवः । शचीति प्रज्ञानाम । हे इन्द्र शचीवः प्रज्ञावन् पुरुकृत् प्रभूतस्य वृत्रवधादेः
कर्तः द्युमत्तम अतिशयेन दीप्तिमन् अभितः सर्वत्र वर्तमानं वसु धनं यदस्ति तदिदं
तवेत् तवैव स्वभूतमिति चेकिते भृशमस्माभिर्ज्ञायते । अतः कारणाद्धनं संगृभ्य
सम्यक् गृहीत्वाभिभूते शत्रूणामभिभवितराभर । अस्मभ्यमाहर । देहीत्यर्थः ।
त्वायतस्त्वामात्मन इच्छतो जरितुः स्तोतुः कामम् अभिलाषं मोनयीः । परिहीनं मा कार्षीः । पूरयेत्यर्थः ॥

śacīvaḥ | śacīti prajñānāma | he indra śacīvaḥ prajñāvan purukṛt prabhūtasya vṛtravadhādeḥ kartaḥ dyumattama atīśayena dīptimann abhitaḥ sarvatra vartamānaṃ vasu dhanam yad asti *tad idam tave[d] tavaiva svabhūtam iti cekite bhṛśam asmābhir jñāyate | ataḥ kāraṇād dhanam saṃgrbhya samyak

grhūtvābhibhūte śatrūṇām abhibhavitā ābhara | asmabhyam
āhara | dehīty arthaḥ | tvāyatas tvām ātmana icchato jaritūḥ stotūḥ kāmam abhilāṣam [mā] ūnayīḥ | parihīnam mā kārṣīḥ |
pūrayety arthaḥ ||* ¹³

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Śacīvaḥ: śacī is a name for wisdom. O Indra, śacīvaḥ, wise one; purukṛt, doer of much — of the slaying of Vṛtra and the like, many deeds; dyumattama, exceedingly bright one: abhitāḥ, everywhere, whatever wealth there is, all this is yours alone, your own — thus it is cekite, it is well known to us. Therefore, saṃgrbhya, collecting it well, O abhibhūte, conqueror of enemies, ā bhara, bring it to us, give it. Tvāyataḥ, of the praiser who longs for you for himself, jaritūḥ, kāmam, the wish — mā ūnayīḥ, do not leave it unfulfilled; fulfil it, is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "śacīvaḥ — the wise one; purukṛt — who has done wonderful deeds (the slaying of Vṛtra and the rest); dyumattama — O exceedingly shining; indra — O Indra; abhitāḥ — all round (spread); vasu — wealth (whatever there is); idam — all that; tavet — only yours; cekite — is known to us; ataḥ — therefore; saṃgrbhya — collecting (the wealth); abhibhūte — O Indra, victor over the enemies; ā bhara — bring

13. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 272–273, is characterized:

śacīvaḥ (matuvaso ruḥ sambuddhau, Pā. 8-3-1; the accent of the vocative); cekite (kita jñāne, with the intensive yañ by dhātor ekāco halādeḥ, the Vedic liṭ for laṭ and the eś by liṭas tajhayor eśīrec); saṃgrbhya ābhara (grahaḥ... hṛgrahor bhaś chandasi, Pā. 8-2-32 as read [?], giving bh for h); tvāyataḥ (suva ātmanaḥ kyac, Pā. 3-1-8; tva the substitute for yusmad); kāmam (kamu kāntau, ghañ; ñit, so vṛddhi; vṛṣādi, so initial-acute); ūnayīḥ (ūna parihāṇe, curādi, luñ with cañ forbidden by nonayatiḍhvanayatyelayatyardayatibhyaḥ, Pā. 3-1-51 as read [?]; sic, iṭ, īṭ; hmyantakṣaṇaśvasa..., Pā. 7-2-5, forbids vṛddhi).

it to us; tvāyataḥ — who put their trust in you alone, who look for your help; jarituḥ — to the praiser; kāmam — the wish; mā ūnayiḥ — do not break (fulfil it)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you are wise, you have done wonderful deeds, you shine exceedingly. We know that this wealth, which is spread all round, is yours alone. Therefore, collect all that wealth and bring it to us. O Indra, the conqueror of enemies, do not break the wish of your devotee who trusts in you alone and looks for your help, but fulfil it."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 273)

— "Wise and resplendent Indra, the achiever of mighty deeds, the riches that are spread around are known to be yours; having collected them (victor over your enemies) bring them to us, disappoint not the expectation of the worshipper who trusts in you."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 274 - mukhyābhiprāya :

अत्र जगति यद्धनं दृश्यते तत्सर्वं तवैवास्ति । अतः कारणाद्धे इन्द्र तत्सर्वं तत्र तत्र
स्थानादानीयास्मभ्यं देहि । अस्मादृशानां तव स्तोत्राणां ह्यभिलाषं परिहीनं कर्तुं नार्हसीति भावः ॥

atra jagati yad dhanam drśyate tat sarvaṃ tavaivāsti | ataḥ kāraṇād dhe indra tat sarvaṃ tatra tatra sthānād ānīyāsmabhyaṃ dehi | asmādrśānāṃ tava stotṛṇāṃ hy abhilāṣaṃ parihīnaṃ kartuṃ nārhasīti bhāvaḥ || — "All the wealth that is seen in this world is yours alone; therefore, O Indra, bring all that from this or that place and give it to us; you ought not to leave unfulfilled the wish of praisers like us — this is the sense." The Kannada adds: "O Indra, all the wealth in this world is yours. Therefore bring, from wherever they are, whatever excellent things there are, and give them to us. Do not be indifferent to those of us who praise you." - śacīvaḥ — "Here the word śacī has the sense of wisdom, special knowledge (Ni. 3-9 as read [?])." - purukṛt — "The extended sense of this word is: Indra who has done deeds that are in abundance, i.e., that cannot be done by anyone — such as the slaying of Vṛtra." - cekite — "This form, made from the root kita jñāne, gives the sense 'it is greatly known by us'." - ā bhara — "Here the prefix ā with bhara (asmabhyaṃ bhara) has the sense 'show kindness to us in a special way'." - tvāyataḥ — "Tvām ātmana icchataḥ: 'to me, who wholly looks for your favour alone', is the sense."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁴ - śacīvaḥ: "śacī asya asti iti śacīvān"; the vocative: matuvasor ruḥ sambuddhau chandasi (Pā. 8-3-1) gives ru for s [of vasu/matup]; bhobhagoaghoapūrvasyayo 'śi gives yatva, which, before the i, is dropped by lopaḥ śākalyasya; kharavasānayor visarjanīyaḥ gives visarga. The word gets the vocative designation; since it stands at the beginning of a pāda, āmantritasya ca (Pā. 6-1-198, in the sixth adhyāya) gives the initial-acute. For the vocatives that follow in apposition, indra etc., āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19, the eighth adhyāya) gives complete anudātta. When speaking of the nighāta, "the property of following a word" (the vocative must have a word before it) is mentioned; then, since āmantritaṃ pūrvam avidyamānavat (Pā. 8-2-... as read [?]) makes the first vocative as if non-existent, a doubt arises about how one can speak of the nighāta for indra and the rest; but since these are all of one meaning, the prohibition nāmantrite samānādhikaraṇe sāmānyavacanam (Pā. 8-1-73) applies, so śacīvaḥ is not 'non-existent' — since the vocatives indra etc. stand after it, the earlier accent is not hindered. - cekite: kita jñāne, bhvādi; since intensity is meant, yañ by dhātor ekācho halādeḥ kriyāsamabhihāre yañ [as read, Pā. 3-1-22]; chandasi luṅlaṅliṭaḥ gives laṭ-sense for liṭ... [as read]; although the am would be required since the root ends in the yañ suffix, kāspratyayād āmantre liṭi (Pā. 3-1-35) prohibits ām in the

14. pp. 274-276 — grammar pages, noted briefly

vocative-context liṭ, here none comes; since liṭ is ārdhadhātuka, ato lopah drops the a of yañ; yasya halaḥ drops the y; being liñ-nimitta, reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; since yañ is ñit... guṇo yañluk... gives guṇa to the reduplicative vowel; liṭas tajhayor eśirec gives eś in place of ta: cekite; nighāta by tiñ atinaḥ. - saṃgr̥bhya, ābhara: graha upādāne; lyap (as ktvā with the prefix); hṛ (hṛñ haraṇe), loṭ second singular, with the bh for h by hṛgrahor bhaś chandasi (Pā. 8-2-32 as read [?]) in both places. - tvāyataḥ: "tvām ātmana icchati tvāyat": supa ātmanaḥ kyac (Pā. 3-1-8); with yuṣmad + ya, pratyayottarapadayoś ca (Pā. 7-2-98) gives tva for the yuṣmad up to the last, when a suffix follows; śeṣe lopah drops the rest; the Vedic ā comes at the end; tvāya is called a root by sanādyantā dhātavaḥ; śatr in the present sense; ato guṇe, single substitute: tvāyat; since it follows an upadeśa-a ending, lasārvadhātukam anudāttam by tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāt; kyac being cit, end-acute; the single substitute with the anudātta is acute by ekādeśa udānnenodāttaḥ (Pā. 8-2-5); ekādeśaḥ svarō 'ntaraṅgaḥ siddho bhavatīti vaktavyam (Pā. 8-2-6 vārttika); so it is siddha though read in the asiddha-kāṇḍa; genitive singular tvāyataḥ; since the ending begins an acute word, śaturanumo nadyajādī gives it an acute. - kāmam: kamu kāntau; ghañ in the sense of the action, ñit, so ata upadhāyāḥ gives vṛddhi: kāma; though kṛṣṭāpad... [karṣātvato ghaño 'nta udāttaḥ] would give end-acute, the word is vṛṣādī, so vṛṣādīnām ca (Pā. 6-1-203) gives initial-acute. - ūnayiḥ: ūna parihāṇe, curādi; luñ second singular sip; the cañ that ñisridrusrubhyaḥ kartari cañ (Pā. 3-1-48) would give for cli is forbidden by nonayatidhvanayatyelayatyardayatibhyaḥ (Pā. 3-1-51); then cleḥ sic gives sic; ārdhadhātukasyeḍ valādeḥ gives iṭ; astisicoprkte (Pā. 7-3-96) gives iṭ; iṭo 'ṭi drops the i of iṭ... the ñic lost; for ñic before iṭ, guṇa and ayādeśa; hmyantakṣaṇasvasa... (Pā. 7-2-5) forbids vṛddhi; by bahulaṃ chandasi [Pā. 6-4-75] no aṭ comes; the nighāta; the ru and visarga of the ending: ūnayiḥ. || 3 ||

Rik 4

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

एभिर्द्युभिः सुमना एभिरिन्दुभिर्निरुन्धानो अमतिं गोभिरश्विना । इन्द्रेण दस्युं दरयन्त इन्दुभिर्युतद्वेषसः समिषा रभेमहि ॥ ४ ॥ *ebhir dyubhiḥ sumanā ebhir indubhir nirundhāno amatiṃ gobhir aśvinā | indreṇa dasyuṃ darayanta indubhir yutadveṣasaḥ sam

iṣā rabhemahi || 4 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

एभिः । द्युभिः । सुमनाः । एभिः । इन्दुभिः । निःऽरुन्धानः । अमतिम् । गोभिः । अश्विना
। इन्द्रेण । दस्युम् । दरयन्तः । इन्दुभिः । युतद्वेषसः । सम् । इषा । रभेमहि ॥ ४ ॥

*ebhiḥ | dyu-bhiḥ | su-manāḥ | ebhiḥ | indu-bhiḥ | niḥ-rundhānaḥ
| amatiṃ | go-bhiḥ | aśvinā | indreṇa | dasyuṃ | darayantaḥ |
indu-bhiḥ | yuta-dveṣasaḥ | sam | iṣā | rabhemahi || 4 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र एभिरस्माभिर्दत्तैर्द्युभिर्दीप्तैश्चरुपुरोडाशादिभिः एभिरिन्दुभिः पुरोवर्तिभिस्तुभ्यं
दत्तैः सोम्यैश्च प्रीतस्त्वमस्माकममतिं दारिद्र्यं गोभिस्त्वया दत्तैः पशुभिरश्विना
[print: -श्विनाश्चयुक्तेन [?]] धनेन च निरुन्धानो निवर्तयन् सुमनाः शोभनमना
भव । वयमिन्दुभिरस्माभिर्दत्तैः सोम्यैः प्रीतेनेन्द्रेण दस्युमुपक्षपयितारं शत्रुं दरयन्तो
हिंसन्तोऽत एव युतद्वेषसः पृथग्भूतशत्रुका भूत्वेहेन्द्रदत्तेनान्नेन सं रभेमहि । संरब्धा भवेम । संगच्छेमहीत्यर्थः ॥

he indra ebhir asmābhir dattair dyubhir dīptaiś carupurodāśādibhiḥ ebhir indubhiḥ purovartibhis tubhyaṃ dattaiḥ somyaiś ca prītas tvam asmākam amatiṃ dāridryaṃ gobhis tvayā dattaiḥ paśubhir aśvinā [the print continues "aśvinā-śvayuktena", [?]] dhanena ca nirundhāno nivartayan sumanāḥ śobhanamanā bhava | vayam indubhir asmābhir dattaiḥ somyaiḥ prītenendreṇa dasyuṃ upakṣapayitāraṃ śatruṃ darayanto hiṃsanto 'ta eva yutadveṣasaḥ prthagbhūtaśatrukā bhūtveha indradattenānnena

saṃ rabhemahi | saṃrabdhā bhavema | saṃgacchemahīty arthaḥ
||

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, pleased with these dyubhiḥ, shining offerings given by us — the caru, the puroḍāśa and the like — and with these indubhiḥ, soma-drops, set before you; nirundhānaḥ, keeping off our amatim, poverty, with gobhiḥ, the cattle given by you, and with wealth that includes horses [?] — be sumanāḥ, of good mind. We, darayantaḥ, harming the dasyu, the destroying enemy, with indreṇa, Indra, pleased by the soma we offered with these drops — therefore yutadveṣasaḥ, having the enemy driven off — may we here saṃ rabhemahi, may we join in, with the food given by Indra: may we be firmly joined, is the sense."

Rik 53.4, continued ¹⁵

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, grammatical tail ¹⁶: nirundhānaḥ (rudhir āvaraṇe; the śnam and the śānac; the loss of the a of śnam by śnasor allopaḥ, Pā. 6-4-111 as read [?]); amatim ("maṃhitvyā matir aiśvaryam"; na matir amatīḥ, a nañ compound with the accent of the first member; "na lokāvyayeti śaṣṭhīpratiṣedhaḥ"; aśvinā ("aśvo 'syāstīty aśvi dhanam", matup sense; iniḥ).

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) ebhiḥ dyubhiḥ — with these shining puroḍāśas and the like (offered by us); ebhiḥ indubhiḥ — with these soma juices; (satisfied); amatim — our poverty; gobhiḥ — by giving cattle; aśvinā — by giving wealth in the form of horses; nirundhānaḥ — destroying; sumanāḥ — be of gracious mind; (we) indubhiḥ — satisfied by the soma juice offered by us; indreṇa — by Indra; dasyum — the destroying enemy; darayantaḥ — harming; yutadveṣasaḥ — freed from the enemy; iṣā — with the food (given by Indra); saṃ rabhemahi — may we come together and be happy."

15. pp. 277–279, PDF 293–295

16. pp. 276 foot – 277 — characterized, not transcribed

Bhāvārtha — "O Indra, satisfied with these puroḍāśa and other offerings made by us and with these soma juices, destroy our poverty by giving gifts of wealth — cattle, horses and the like — and be gracious towards us. With the help of Indra, satisfied by the soma juice we have offered, may we cause the destroying enemy to be harmed, be freed from him, and together enjoy the food given by Indra."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 277)

— "Propitiated by these offerings, by these libations, drive away poverty with gifts of wealth consisting of cattle and horses and be delighted; Indra, may we, subduing our enemy, and relieved from foes by our libations enjoy together abundant food."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 277–278 - mukhyābhiprāya :

दीप्तिमतो योऽस्मोवानां [?] वयमर्पयोऽमुस्मान् पीत्वेन्द्रः प्रसन्नो भविष्यति । अपि
चास्माकं शत्रुहनाय साहाय्यं करिष्यति तेन वयं निश्शत्रवः कृता अन्नसंपन्ना
भवेमेत्यर्थः । एभिरित्यस्य द्विरुक्तिरादरार्थेत्यनुसंधेयम् ॥ dīptimato yo 'smovānām [?] vayam arpayo 'musmān pītvendrah prasanno bhaviṣyati | api cāsmākaṁ śatruhananāya sāhāyyaṁ karīṣyati tena vayaṁ niśśatravaḥ kṛtā annasampannā bhavemety arthaḥ | ebhir ity asya dviruktir ādarārthety anusandheyam || —

The Sanskrit of this note is garbled in the print; the sense is read from the Kannada: "By drinking the shining soma we offer, Indra will be pleased; and he will help us to kill our enemies; thus freed of enemies, we shall be rich in food. It should be understood that the repetition of the word ebhiḥ is for respect (ādara)." The Kannada adds: "Because Indra, pleased by drinking the shining soma, will help us in destroying enemies, not only will our troubles from enemies end, but food and the like will be obtained for us in abundance. Since the word ebhiḥ is repeated in this Rik, it shows the great respect felt for Indra by those who praise him."
- dyubhiḥ — "Dīptaiś caru-puroḍāśādibhiḥ: by shining offerings, puroḍāśa and the like — the sense of 'shining things' comes by implication (lakṣaṇā). - amatim — "Maṃhitvyā matir aiśvaryam; na matir amatih": by this derivation the word has the sense of poverty." - indubhiḥ — "For this word the sense is 'by the soma offerings and the puroḍāśa that are the bright substances used in the sacrifice'." - yutadveṣasaḥ — "Those who have driven away the hating enemies, that is, who have wholly destroyed the enemies." - aśvinā — "Aśvo 'syāstīti aśvi dhanam": by this explanation it means all kinds of wealth beginning with horses."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁷ - sumanāḥ: "śobhanaṃ manaḥ yasya saḥ"; sormanasī alomoṣasī (Pā. 6-2-117) — su before manas, in a bahuvrihi, asun-ending: the acute is on the first syllable of the last member. - nirundhānaḥ: rudhir āvaraṇe, rudhādi; svaritañītaḥ kartrabhiprāye kriyāphale gives ātmanepada, śānac; śānac following, rudhādibhyaḥ śnam gives śnam; being mit, it goes after the last vowel (mid aco 'ntyāt paraḥ); śnasor allopaḥ (Pā. 6-4-111) drops the a of śnam: nirundhāna; being cit, citaḥ gives the end-acute; with the prefix nī, the compound is formed and gatikārapapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the last member. - amatim: "maṃhitvyā matih aiśvaryam"; ktin after the root man; being kit, anudāttopadeśa... drops the n; "na matih amatih": tatpuruṣe tulyārtha... gives the accent of the first member; for such places as amatim nirundhānaḥ, though karṭṛkarmanoh kṛti would give the genitive, na lokāvyayaniṣṭhākhalarthatṛnām (Pā. 2-3-69) forbids the genitive, since the word lādeśa applies [as printed]. - aśvinā: "aśvo 'syāsti iti aśvi"; dhanam; in the matup sense, ata ini-ṭhanau (Pā. 5-2-115) gives ini; by the suffix-accent the i is acute; instrumental singular. - darayantaḥ: dṛ bhaye; śatṛ after the ṇic-ending; being in the ghaṭādi list, mit, so mitām hrasvaḥ shortens before ṇic; śap as the cause gives guṇa and ayādeśa: darayat; by the ṇic-accent the a after r is acute; in the nominative plural, being ugit, num comes: darayantaḥ. - rabhemahi: rabha rābhasye, bhvādi; vidhiliṅ first person plural mahiṅ; liṅaḥ sīyutḥ gives sīyutḥ to mahiṅ; kartari śap; liṅaḥ salopo 'nantyasya drops the s of sīyutḥ; guṇa: rabhemahi; tiṅ atīṅaḥ, nighāta. || 4 ||

original pp. 279–282

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

सम् इन्द्र रायो समिषा रभेमहि सं वाजेभिः पुरुश्चन्द्रैरभिद्युभिः । सं देव्या प्रमत्या वीरशुष्मया गोअग्रयाश्चावत्या रभेमहि ॥ ५ ॥

¹⁸ *saṃ indra rāyā saṃ iṣā rabhemahi saṃ vājebhiḥ puruścandrair
abhidhyubhiḥ | saṃ devyā pramatyā vīraśuṣmayā
goagrayāśvāvatyā rabhemahi || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

सम् । इन्द्र । राया । सम् । इषा । रभेमहि । सम् । वाजेभिः । पुरुश्चन्द्रैः । अभिद्युऽभिः । सम्
। देव्या । प्रऽमत्या । वीरऽशुष्मया । गोऽअग्रया । अश्चऽवत्या । रभेमहि ॥ ५ ॥

saṃ | indra | rāyā | saṃ | iṣā | rabhemahi | saṃ | vājebhiḥ | puruścandriḥ | abhidyu-bhiḥ | saṃ | devyā | pra-matyā | vīra-śuṣmayā | go-agrayā | aśva-vatyā | rabhemahi || 5 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र रायो धनेन वयं सं रभेमहि । संगच्छेमहि ॥ तथेषान्नेन सं रभेमहि । तथा
वाजेभिर्बल्यैः सं रभेमहि । कीदृशैर्वाजैः । पुरुश्चन्द्रैः पुरुणां बहूनामाहादकैः
अभिद्युभिरभितो दीप्यमानैः । किंच देव्या द्योतमानया प्रमत्या त्वदीयया प्रकृष्टबुद्ध्या
सं रभेमहि । कीदृश्या । वीरशुष्मया वीरं विशेषेण शत्रूणां क्षेपणसमर्थं शुष्मं बलं
यस्याः सा तथोक्ता । गोअग्रया । स्तोतृभ्यो दानार्थमग्रे प्रमुखत एव गावो यस्याः
सा तथोक्ता । अश्चावत्या अश्वैरुपेतया ॥

18. The print gives the opening as "समिन्द्र राया"; It is read as saṃ indra rāyā:

he indra rāyo dhanena vyaṃ saṃ rabhemahi | saṃgacchemahi | |
 tathēṣānnena saṃ rabhemahi | tathā vājebhir balyaiḥ saṃ
 rabhemahi | kīdṛśair vājaiḥ | puruścandraiḥ purūṇāṃ bahūnām
 āhlādakaiḥ abhidyubhir abhito dīpyamānaiḥ | kiṃca devyā dyotamānayā pramatyā tvadīyayā prakṛṣṭabuddhyā saṃ rabhemahi | kīdṛśyā | vīraśuṣmayā vīraṃ viśeṣeṇa śatrūṇām
 kṣepaṇasamarthaṃ śuṣmaṃ balaṃ yasyāḥ sā tathoktā | goagrayā
 | stotṛbhyo dānārtham agre pramukhata eva gāvo yasyāḥ sā
 tathoktā | aśvāvatyā aśvair upetayā | | ¹⁹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, may we saṃ rabhemahi, come together, with rāyaḥ, wealth; with iṣā, food; with vājebhiḥ, strengths — what kind of strengths? puruścandraiḥ, delighting many; abhidyubhiḥ, shining all round. And with devyā pramatyā, the shining pramati, your excellent wisdom — what kind of wisdom? vīraśuṣmayā: that of which the śuṣma, strength, is able to hurl enemies far (vīra); goagrayā: that has cattle given ahead, at the front, for giving to the praisers; aśvāvatyā, with horses — may we be joined."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; (we) rāyaḥ — with wealth; saṃ rabhemahi — may we gain prosperity; iṣā — with food; saṃ [rabhemahi]; puruścandraiḥ — delighting many people; abhidyubhiḥ — shining all round; vājebhiḥ — with powers; saṃ [rabhemahi]; devyā — shining; vīraśuṣmayā — having strength to destroy enemies; goagrayā — with cows placed in front [for giving]; aśvāvatyā — joined with horses; pramatyā — with your excellent intelligence; sam rabhemahi — may we come together completely (may we attain complete increase)."

19. The grammatical tail: on rāyaḥ (the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidam padādi...), puruścandraiḥ (hrasvāc candrottaraṇapade mantrē, the augment suṭ; ścutva; compound accent), abhidyubhiḥ (abhigatā dyaur dīptir yeṣām; div implying radiance; the accent of the particle-first compound), devyā (udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt), pramatyā (tādau ca niti; Pā. 6-2-50 as read [?] — the prefix keeps its accent), goagrayā (sarvatra vibhāṣā goḥ, Pā. 6-1-122 as read [?], with no avādeṣa by prakṛtibhāva), aśvāvatyā (mantrē somāśvendriya..., lengthening before matup) — is given in full on pp. 281–282 and noted below.

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, so favour us that we gain wealth and food completely and have the powers that delight many people and shine all round. Favour us also that we may increase by your excellent intelligence — shining, destroying enemies' strength, with cattle placed in front for giving, and rich in horses."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 280)

— "Indra, may we become possessed of riches and of food; and with energies agreeable to many, and shining around, may we prosper through your divine power, the source of prowess, of cattle and of horses."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 281 - puruścandraiḥ — "The word candra, which comes from the root cadi āhlādane, means only 'a delighting thing'. The word puru here has the sense 'many' or 'extreme'. Therefore the full sense of this word is 'by things that give extreme delight'." - abhidyubhiḥ — "For the word div here the secondary meaning is 'radiance'. By the derivation 'abhigatā dyaur dīptir yeṣām te', it means things that shine all round." - vīraśuṣmayā — "This is an epithet of pramatyā (Indra's excellent intelligence). By explaining 'vīraṃ viśeṣeṇa śatrūṇāṃ kṣepaṇasamarthaṃ śuṣmaṃ balaṃ yasyāḥ sā', it makes clear the sense that Indra's intelligence is able to destroy all the measureless strength of enemies." - goagrayā — "Indra has the generosity to give cows and the like, first of all, to those who praise him, satisfying them with oblations and the like. Such is the nature of Indra's pramati (intelligence)."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁰ - rāyaḥ: rai + ā [= rai + ṇas/śas]: eco 'yavāyāvaḥ gives āy; ūḍidaṃ padādi... (Pā. 6-1-171) gives the vibhakti an acute. - puruścandraiḥ: hrasvāc candrottaraṇapade mantre (Pā. 6-1-151) gives suṭ to the word candra; since a ca follows [the s + c], stoḥ ścunā ścuḥ turns the s of suṭ into ś; "purūṇāṃ candrāḥ puruścandrāḥ", and by the compound's accent samāsasya the end-acute. - abhidyubhiḥ: "abhigatā dyaaur dīptir yeṣām abhidiṇvaḥ tair abhidyubhiḥ"; the word div has the sense of radiance by lakṣaṇā; the accent of the first member, the particle (avyayapūrvapada...). - devyā: the instrumental singular of devī; udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt (Pā. 6-1-174) gives the ending an acute. - pramatyā: man jñāne; ktin by striyām ktin; anudāttopadeśa... drops the nasal n; compound with pra; tāḍau ca niti (Pā. 6-2-50) — since the suffix is a ti-ending (tādi) and nit, the prefix keeps its accent; the word is initial-acute. - vīraśuṣmayā: "vīraṃ śuṣmaṃ yasyāḥ sā": a bahuvrīhi; the first member's accent by bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam. - goagrayā: "gāvaḥ agre yasyāḥ sā goagrā tayā"; as for bahuvrīhi, the accent as before; sarvatra vibhāṣā goḥ (Pā. 6-1-122) gives prakṛtibhāva, so the o does not become av. - aśvāvatyā: "aśvāḥ asyāḥ santi iti aśvāvātī"; tad asyāsty asmin gives matup; since it follows an a, māduḥ upadhāyās ca matoḥ turns the m of matup into v; in the feminine, ugitāś ca gives ñip; mantre somāśvendriyaviśvadevyasya matau (Pā. 6-3-131 as read [?]) lengthens the earlier aśva before matup: aśvāvātī; instrumental singular. || 5 ||

original p. 282

Rik 6

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

ते त्वा मदा अमदन्तानि वृष्या ते सोमासो वृत्रहत्येषु सत्यते । यत्कारवे दश वृत्राण्यप्रति बर्हिष्मते नि सहस्राणि बर्हयः ॥ ६ ॥

*te tvā madā amadan tāni vṛṣṇyā te somāso vṛtrahatyēṣu satpate | yat kārave daśa vṛtrāṇi aprati barhiṣmate ni sahasrāṇi barhayaḥ
|| 6 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

ते । त्वा । मदाः । अमदन् । तानि । वृष्ण्या । ते । सोमासः । वृत्रहत्येषु । सत्पते । यत् । कारवे । दश । वृत्राणि । अप्रति । बर्हिष्मते । नि । सहस्राणि । बर्हयः ॥ ६ ॥

*te | tvā | madāḥ | amadan | tāni | vṛṣṇyā | te | somāsaḥ | vṛtrahatyēṣu | sat-pate | yat | kārave | daśa | vṛtrāṇi | aprati |
barhiṣmate | ni | sahasrāṇi | barhayaḥ || 6 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya ²¹

हे सत्पते सतां पालयितरिन्द्र वृत्रहत्येषु वृत्रहननेषु निमित्तभूतेषु सत्सु ते पूर्वोक्ता मदा
मादका मरुतस्त्वा त्वामामदन् । अमदेर्य । हर्षं प्राप्नुयाः । तानि पूर्वोक्तानि वृष्ण्या वृष्णः सेचनसमर्थस्य तव संबन्धीनि चरुपु-... (continued on p. 283)

he satpate satām pālayitar indra vṛtrahatyēṣu vṛtrahananeṣu nimittabhūteṣu satsu te pūrvoktā madā mādakā marutas tvā tvām amadan | amadery[a] [?] | harṣaṁ prāpnuyāḥ [?] | tāni pūrvoktāni vṛṣṇyā vṛṣṇaḥ secanasamarthasya tava saṁbandhīni carupu-... ^{22 23}

Rik 53.6, continued ²⁴

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, rest of the main sense

... चरुपुरोडाशादीनि हवींषि त्वामामदन् । ते सोमासः प्रसिद्धाः सोमाश्च त्वामामदन्
। यद्यदा कारवे स्तुतिकर्त्रे बर्हिष्मते यज्ञवते यजमानाय दश सहस्राण्यपरिमितानि
वृत्राख्यावरकाण्युपद्रवजातान्यप्रति शत्रुभिरप्रतिगतस्त्वं निबर्हयः न्यवधीः ।

तदानीमिति पूर्वेण संबन्धः ॥

21. p. 282 — begins; continues on p. 283

22. continued on p. 283

23. Reading note: the clause "amadery[a] harṣaṁ prāpnuyāḥ" is crowded in the print, [?]; the sense — "the Maruts, the exhilarators, gladdened you" — is clear from the Pratipadārtha on p. 283.

24. pp. 283–285, PDF 299–301

... caru-puroḍāśādīni havīṃṣi tvām amadan | te somāsaḥ prasiddhāḥ somāś ca tvām amadan | yad yadā kārave stutikartre barhiṣmate yajñavate yajamānāya daśa sahasrāṇy aparimitāni vṛtrākhyāvarakāṇy upadravajātāny aprati śatrubhir apratigatas tvaṃ nibarhayaḥ nyavadhīḥ | tadānīm iti pūrveṇa saṃbandhaḥ |

25 26

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O satpate, protector of the good, Indra: vṛtrahatyēṣu, on the occasions of the slaying of Vṛtra, those madāḥ spoken of — the exhilarating Maruts — gladdened you; those oblations, caru, puroḍāśa and the like, gladdened you; and those well-known soma-drops gladdened you; yat, when, for the praiser, the barhiṣmat, the sacrificer who performs sacrifice, you, unopposed by enemies, ni barhayaḥ, destroyed ten thousands, countless, of the afflictions called vṛtras, the obstructors — then (this connects with the first part)."

Pratipadārtha — "satpate — O Indra, protector of the good; vṛtrahatyēṣu — on the occasions of the slaying of Vṛtra; te — those spoken of; madāḥ — the friends possessing the means of delight, the Maruts; tvā — you; amadan — gladdened; yat — when; kārave — to the praiser; barhiṣmate — to the sacrificer who performs the sacrifice; daśa sahasrāṇi — ten thousands, innumerable; vṛtrāṇi — obstructions; aprati — you who go forward unopposed by enemies; ni barhayaḥ — destroyed completely, then; tāni vṛṣṇyā — those oblations offered on the occasions of Vṛtra's slaying — caru, puroḍāśa and the like; te somāsaḥ — those well-known soma juices; (tvām amadan — gladdened you)."

25. the print: "carupu-" at the end of p. 282 and "roḍāśādīni" at the head of p. 283; read as joined.

26. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 283, is characterized: vṛṣṇyā (śeś chandasi bahulam, the loss of śi); barhayaḥ ("barhatir hiṃsākarmā", Ni. as read, [?]; lañ, no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi; śap being pit, anudātta; the accent of the ṇic; yadvṛttānnityam barring the nighāta).

Bhāvārtha — "O Indra, protector of the good: at the time of slaying Vṛtra, the destroyer of the good, your friends the Maruts gladdened you. When you, unobstructed by enemies, destroyed ten thousands of obstructions of the sacrificer — who praises you and gives you oblations — then the oblations offered by the sacrificers, caru, puroḍāśa and the like, and those well-known soma juices, gladdened you."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 283)

— "O protector of the pious, they, who were your allies (the Maruts) gladdened you while you were engaged in slaying Vṛtra; those oblations and libations gladdened you, when you, unimpeded by foes destroyed the ten thousand obstacles opposed to him who praised you and offered you oblations."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 283–284 - ²⁷:

यदा यदेन्द्रः स्तोपासकानां शत्रून् हन्ति तदा तदा तैरुपासकैः समर्पितान् सोमान्
चरुपुरोडाशादीनि चान्नानि भक्षयित्वा हृष्टः सन्नेव हन्ति । तस्मादेधुनास्माभिः सोमादीनि भक्षयितुमर्हतीत्यर्थः ॥

yadā yadendraḥ stopāsakānāṃ śatrūn haṁti tadā tadā tair upāsakaiḥ samarpitān somān carupuroḍāśādīni cānnāni bhakṣayitvā hrṣṭaḥ sanneva haṁti | tasmād edhunāsmābhiḥ somādīni bhakṣayitum arhatīty arthaḥ || ²⁸ — "Whenever Indra kills the enemies of those who worship him, then he kills them, having eaten, delighted, the soma and the food — caru, puroḍāśa and the rest — offered by those worshippers. Therefore it is fitting that he now eat the soma and the like offered by us — this is the sense." The Kannada adds: "After Indra kills the enemies of those who praise him, he is satisfied by eating the offerings, such as soma, caru and puroḍāśa, made by the worshippers. So we now pray that he be gracious to us, accepting the soma and the rest that we have prepared." - vṛtrahatyeṣu — "This word means: 'as the occasion of the action of destroying the Asura Vṛtra'. The locative here is used in the sense of the cause (nimitta)." - madāḥ — "This word means the Maruts, who increase Indra's joy by helping him at the time of battle." - vṛṣṇyā — "Indra is the one who favours the vṛṣṇi, the showerer. He is named vṛṣṇi. The caru, puroḍāśa and the like that suit Indra are called vṛṣṇya." - barhiṣmate — "As in the Nirukta sūtra 'barhatir hiṃsākarmā' (Ni. 2-... as read [?]), the word barhis means 'sacrifice'; the one who is chiefly consecrated in the sacrifice is barhiṣmat." - apṛati — "Śatrubhir apratigatas tvam: a word praising Indra, 'you, who have never been destroyed in fighting with enemies'. The word prati here means one who opposes."

27. first Special Topic, a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 283 foot – p. 284 head

28. the print's first word "yadā yadendraḥ" and "edhunā" are crowded, [?]

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁹ - tvā: in the second singular accusative of yuṣmad, trāmau dvitīyāyāḥ — tvā [Pā. 8-1-23 as read, [?]] is the anudātta substitute that comes in its entirety. - amadan: madī harṣe; the sense of the causative (ṇic) is included in the root's own sense; lañ third plural; it follows an atiñ, so nighāta. - vṛṣṇyā: in the neuter, jaśśasoḥ śiḥ gives śi for jas [= śas]; napuṃsakasya jhalacaḥ gives num; sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau lengthens the penultimate of the stem in n; śeś chandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-1-70 as read [?]) drops śi. - vṛtrahatyeṣu: "vṛtrasya hatyāni" — in these; hana hiṃsāgatyoh; hanas ta ca (Pā. 3-1-108) — since the subanta is not a preposition and stands as the upapada, kyap in the sense of the action and the substitution of t for the n come together; kyap being pit, the accent of the root is initial-acute; since the kāraka is the first member, gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the last member. - barhayaḥ: "barhatir

hiṃsākarmā" (Ni. 2-... as read [?]): the root barha is in the sense of harming; lañ second singular, barhayaḥ. By bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pi no aṭ comes; śap being pit, anudāttau supitau makes it anudātta, and so the accent of the ṇic alone prevails, so that the word is end-acute... [the print says "ṇic's accent is citaḥ... ṇic being cit... the a is acute and the vowel after h is acute"]; since the word yat is connected before, nipātair yadyadihanta (Pā. 8-1-30) forbids the nighāta. || 6 ||

original p. 285

Rik 7

Samhitā-pāṭha

युधा युधमुप घेदेषि धृष्णुया पुरा पुरं समिदं हंस्योजसा । नम्या यदिन्द्र सख्या परावति निबर्हयो नमुचिं नाम मायिनम् ॥ ७ ॥ *yudhā yudham upa gheda eṣi dhṛṣṇuyā purā puram sam idam

haṃsy ojasā | namyā yad indra sakhyā parāvati nibarhayo
namucim nāma māyinaṃ || 7 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

युधा । युधम् । उप । घ । इत् । एषि । धृष्णुया । पुरा । पुरम् । सम् । इदम् । हंसि ।
ओजसा । नम्या । यत् । इन्द्र । सख्या । परावति । निऽबर्हयः । नमुचिम् । नाम । मायिनम् ॥ ७ ॥

*yudhā | yudham | upa | gha | it | eṣi | dhṛṣṇu-yā | purā | puram
| sam | idam | haṃsi | ojasā | namyā | yat | indra | sakhyā |
parāvati | ni-barhayaḥ | namucim | nāma | māyinaṃ || 7 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya ³⁰

हे इन्द्र धृष्णुया शत्रूणां धर्षकस्त्वं युधा युद्धेन संबद्धं युद्धं युद्धमुप घेदेषि उपैव
गच्छसि । सर्वदा युद्धशीलो भवसीत्यर्थः । घु इति पादपूरणः । शत्रूणामसुराणां पुरा
पुरेण नगरेण सहेदं पुरोवर्ति पुरं शत्रुनगरमोजसा बलेन सं हंसि । सम्यग्विनाशयसि

। शत्रूणां पुराण्यभैत्सीरित्यर्थः । हे इन्द्र त्वं नम्या शत्रुषु नमनशीलेन सख्या
सहायभूतेन वज्रेण परावति दूरदेशे नमुचिं नामानया संज्ञया प्रसिद्धं मायिनं मायाविनमसुरं यद्यदा ...

*he indra dhr̥ṣṇuyā śatrūṇām dharṣakas tvam yudhā yuddhena sambaddham yuddham yuddham upa ghed eṣi upaiva gacchasi |
sarvadā yuddhaśīlo bhavasīty arthaḥ | ghu iti pādapūraṇaḥ | śatrūṇām asurāṇām purā pureṇa nagareṇa sahedam purovarti puraṃ śatrunagaram ojasā balena saṃ haṃsi | samyagvināśayasi
| śatrūṇām purāṇy abhaisīr ity arthaḥ | he indra tvam namyā śatruṣu namanaśīlena sakhyā sahāyabhūtena vajreṇa parāvati dūradeśe namuciṃ nāmānayā saṃjñayā prasiddham māyinaṃ māyāvinam asuraṃ yad yadā ...* ³¹

Rik 53.7, continued ³²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, rest of the main sense ³³

... स्मान्निर्बह्यः नितरामहिंसीः । अतस्त्वमेवं स्तूयस इत्यर्थः ॥

... *smān nibarhayaḥ nitarām ahiṃsīḥ | atas tvam evaṃ stūyasa ity
arthaḥ |* ³⁴

Note — The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 286, is characterized: yudhā (yudha saṃprahāre, kvip by sampadādibhyaḥ kvip; the accent of the ending after a monosyllable by sāvekācas ṛṭīyādīḥ); eṣi (iṇ gatau, adādi, śap elided); dhr̥ṣṇuyā (ñidhr̥ṣā prāgalbhye, Uṇādi knu by trasigr̥dhidhr̥ṣikṣipeḥ knuḥ, Pā. 3-2-140 as read [?]; kit, no guṇa; the supām suluk substitute yā; citaḥ); purā (pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ, kvip, udoṣṭhyapūrvasya, urat; the Vedic form); haṃsi (han, laṭ second singular sip, adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ luk; naś cāpadāntasya jhali gives the anusvāra); namyā (ṇamu prahvatve, Uṇādi in; supām suluk gives dyā; dit, so ṭi is lost); sakhyā (śeṣo ghy asakhi, Pā. 1-4-7: sakhi does not get the ghi-designation; hence no ña for the instrumental by āṇo nāstriyām; yaṇ: sakhyā); namuciṃ ("indreṇa saha yuddham na

³¹. continued on p. 286; "ghu" for the Saṃhitā's gha is as printed, [?]

³². pp. 286–290, PDF 302–306

³³. p. 286 head

³⁴. The first syllables, "...smān", join the unfinished clause of p. 285, "yad yadā ...": "yasmān nibarhayaḥ" is read, [?].

muñcatīti namuciḥ", muc, Uṇādi kin; nañō 'ntaḥ...', nabhrāṇnapātsvara; prakṛtibhāva); māyīnam (māyā in the vṛīhyādi list, vṛīhyādibhyaś ca Pā. 5-2-116, ini, yasyeti ca).

Translation of the bhāṣya (complete sentence): "O Indra, dhṛṣṇuyā, you who overwhelm enemies, yudhā, in battle — yudham yudham upa ghed eṣi: you go to every battle — you are always given to fighting (ghu/gha is a mere filler). Purā puram idaṃ: with the city of the enemies, the Asuras, you break this city before you, the enemy city, by your strength; you destroy it completely: you broke the cities of the enemies, is the sense. O Indra, with your namyā, bowing (the enemies), sakhyā, friendly, helping thunderbolt, parāvati, in a distant place, the Asura namucim nāma, known by the name Namuci, the māyīnam, the deceiver — when you nibarhayaḥ, destroyed utterly: for that reason you are praised thus — this is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) dhṛṣṇuyā — you who overpower the enemies; yudhā — in battle; yudham — to battle; upa gheṣi — you approach (you are always of warlike nature); purā — with the cities of the enemies; idaṃ puram — this city (before you); ojasā — by your power; saṃ haṃsi — you destroy completely; indra — O Indra (you); namyā — which makes (enemies) bow; sakhyā — which is always your friend (helper), by the thunderbolt; parāvati — in a far-off place; namucim nāma — the one named Namuci; māyīnam — the deceitful Rākṣasa; yat — for which reason; nibarhayaḥ — you destroyed without remainder (and so you are praised)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you overpower enemies and rush from battle to battle, destroying, by your strength, city after city. O Indra, with the thunderbolt that makes enemies bow and is always your helper, you killed in a distant place the deceitful Rākṣasa named Namuci; therefore you are praised."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 286)

— "Humiliator of adversaries, you go from battle to battle, and destroy, by your might city after city; with you foe-prostrating associate (the thunderbolt) you Indra, did slay afar off the deceiver named Namuchi."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 287–289 - namucim — "Indreṇa saha uddhaṃ na muñcatīti namuciḥ: 'one who does not give up fighting with Indra'; hence he is called Namuci. Namuci is a Rākṣasa. Because he was of great strength, it was very difficult for Indra to fight and win against him. On this matter there is a narrative in the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa:"

इन्द्रो वृत्रं हत्वा । असुरान् पराभाव्य । नमुचिमासुरं नालभत । तं शच्यागृहात् । तौ
समलभेताम् । सोऽस्मादभिशनतरोऽभवत् । सोऽब्रवीत् । संधां संधावहै । अथ
त्वासृजामि । न मा शुष्केण नार्देण हनः । न दिवा न नक्तमिति । स एतमपां
फेनमसिञ्चत् । न वा एष शुष्को नार्द्रो व्युष्टासीत् । अनुदितः सूर्यः । न वा एतदिवा न
नक्तम् । तस्यैतस्मिन् लोके । अपां फेनेन शिर उदवर्तयत् । तदेनमन्ववर्तत ।
मित्रध्रुगिति । स एतानपामार्गानजनयत् । तानजुहोत् । तैर्वै स रक्षागंस्यपाहत । यदपामार्गहोमो भवति । रक्षसामपहत्यै ॥ (Tai. Brā. 1-2-1 as read [?]; several words crowded — "śacyāgrhṇāt", "vyuṣṭāsīt", "anudithaḥ" — and I do not complete them, [?])

indro vṛtragṃ hatvā | asurān parābhāvya | namucim āsuram
nālabhata | tagṃ śacyāgrhṇāt | tau samalabhetām | so 'smād abhiśanataro 'bhavat | so 'bravīt | saṃdhāṃ saṃdadhāvahai |
atha tvāvasṛjāmi | na mā śuṣkeṇa nādreṇa hanaḥ | na divā na
naktam iti | sa etam apāṃ phenam asiñcat | na vā eṣa śuṣko nādro vyuṣṭāsīt | anuditaḥ sūryaḥ | na vā etad divā na naktam |
tasyaitasmin loke | apāṃ phenena śira udavartayat | tad enam
anvavartata | mitradhrug iti | sa etān apāmārgān ajanayat | tān ajuhot | tair vai sa rakṣāgṃsy apāhata | yad apāmārgahomo bhavati | rakṣasām apahatyai | — editorial and tentative, rough:
"Indra, having killed Vṛtra and routed the Asuras, did not get hold of the Asura Namuci; [Śaci? — crowded] seized him; the two grappled; he became the stronger of the two. He said: 'Let us make a compact; then I shall release you: do not kill me with dry or with wet, neither by day nor by night.' He Indra sprinkled this foam of the waters. It was neither dry nor wet, the dawn had come but the sun had not risen; this was neither day nor night. With the foam of the waters he cut off his head; [the head] followed him, [crying] 'Mitra-traitor!' He produced these apāmārga plants, offered them; by them he drove away the Rākṣasas; therefore there is an apāmārga-oblation, for the removal of the Rākṣasas." ³⁵ - The Kannada retelling (pp. 287–288): "After Indra killed Vṛtra he also killed other Rākṣasas; but he could not conquer the Rākṣasa Namuci. He was very strong; no weapon hurt him. Therefore Indra, wishing to conquer him by his own bodily strength, began wrestling with him; but as they fought, Namuci's strength only grew. Indra could not free himself from his grip. Then Indra asked Namuci to release him, and that Asura said to Indra: 'O Indra, if you wish to be released you must do as I say. Let us now make a compact between us. You must not wish to kill me by any weapon and any fighting. You must not use a weapon that is dry or wet; you must not kill me in the daytime or at night. If you agree to these conditions I shall release you.' Indra agreed and, freed from his grip, began to consider how to defeat him. After some time Indra thought of a way. The foam of the sea fell in his sight. This foam was neither dry nor wet. 'I shall therefore make this foam my weapon and kill Namuci.' When the night had passed and the dawn had begun, before the sun's rising, the time was clear and bright; since that time was not the night and the sun had not risen, it was not the day either. At such a time Indra fought with Namuci and cut off his head with the weapon made of foam of water, resolving that 'I shall not be a breaker of my word.' Even so, that Daitya, not dead, came pursuing Indra to kill him. 'O Indra, traitor to a friend, stand! Having promised that you would not kill me, you have done such a treacherous deed; I shall not leave you even now without killing you,' he said. Then

35. The Kannada retelling that follows (p. 287–288) agrees in sense.

Indra, afraid, created the tree called apāmārga and, with its twigs, offered oblations in the fire to increase his strength. By that Indra's strength increased and he killed that Namuci. Therefore those who wish to be free from the harm of Rākṣasas should offer oblations of apāmārga twigs." - The name of Namuci in the Ṛgveda (p. 288) — "Besides this Rik, the name of Namuci occurs in these Riks of the Ṛgveda:" ³⁶:

1. | यः पिप्रुं नमुचिं यो रुधिकां तस्मा इन्द्रायान्धसो जुहोत । ³⁷

yaḥ pipruṃ namuciṃ yo rudhikāṃ tasmā indrāyāndhaso juhota | — "To that Indra who [slew] Pipru, Namuci, Rudhikā: offer the soma-food." ³⁸

2. | निवेशने शततमाविवेषीरहज्य वृत्रं नमुचिमुताहन् । ³⁹

niveśane śatatamāviveṣīr ahañ ca vṛtraṃ namuciṃ utāhan | — "...in the dwelling you [pervaded...], and you slew Vṛtra and also Namuci." ⁴⁰

3. | त्वं जघन्थ नमुचिं मखस्युं दासं कृण्वान ऋषये विमानम् । ⁴¹

tvaṃ jaghantha namuciṃ makhasyūṃ dāsaṃ kṛṇvāna ṛṣaye vimānam | — "You slew Namuci, the sacrifice-seeking [?] dāsa, making a [?] for the seer." ⁴²

4. | अत्राह दासस्य नमुचेः शिरो यदवर्तयो मनवे गातुमिच्छन् । ⁴³

36. eight Riks are quoted in Kannada-script Sanskrit; Each is given in three layers, with the Ṛgveda references as read — all numerals [?] — and an editorial and tentative gloss

37. R. Saṃ. 2-14-5 as read [?]

38. editorial and tentative; "rudhikāṃ" as printed, [?]

39. R. Saṃ. 2-19-... as read [?]

40. editorial and tentative; the first half-line is crowded, [?]

41. R. Saṃ. 10-... as read [?]

42. editorial and tentative

43. R. Saṃ. 5-30-7 as read [?]

atrāha dāsasya namuceḥ [sic print: namuceḥ] śīro yad avartayo manave gātum icchan | — "Here you cut off the head of the dāsa Namuci, wishing a way for Manu."

5. | युजं हि मामकृथा आदिदिन्द्र शिरो दासस्य नमुचेर्मथायन् । ⁴⁴

yujam hi mām akṛthā ād id indra śīro dāsasya namucer mathāyan | — "You made me your yoke-fellow, O Indra, and then crushed the head of the dāsa Namuci."

6. | प्र श्येनो न मदिरमंशुमस्मै शिरो दासस्य नमुचेर्मथायन् । ⁴⁵

pra śyeno na madiram aṁśum asmai śīro dāsasya namucer mathāyan | — "Like a falcon [bringing] the exhilarating soma-stalk to him, crushing the head of the dāsa Namuci."

7. | अपां फेनेन नमुचेः शिर इन्द्रोदवर्तयः । ⁴⁶

apām phenena namuceḥ śīra indrodavartayaḥ | — "With the foam of the waters, O Indra, you cut off Namuci's head."

8. | युवं सुरामम् अश्विना नमुचावासुरे सचा । ⁴⁷

yuvam surāmam aśvinā namucāv āsure sacā | — "You two, Aśvins, [gave?] the surāma-drink to Namuci the Asura together..." ⁴⁸

"...and in other Riks also; nowhere else." ⁴⁹ - mukhyābhiprāya ⁵⁰:

44. R. Saṃ. 5-30-8 as read [?]

45. R. Saṃ. 6-20-6 as read [?]

46. R. Saṃ. 8-14-13 as read [?]

47. R. Saṃ. 10-131-4 as read [?]

48. editorial and tentative; the line is the first half of a longer Rik

49. The Kannada: "ಎಂಬ ಋಕ್ಕುಗಳಲ್ಲಿರುವುದು. ಮತ್ತೆಲ್ಲಿಯೂ ಇರುವುದಿಲ್ಲ" — "it occurs in these Riks; it occurs nowhere else."

50. a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 288

यदा इन्द्रः स्तोपासकस्य नमिनाम्नः ऋषये रक्षणार्थं नमुचिनामानमसुरं हतवान् तदा
 तेन नमुचिना सहैकस्माद्युद्धादनन्तरमन्यद्युद्धमेवं प्रकारेणानेकानि युद्धानि चकार ।
 तथैकस्मान्नगरादनन्तरमन्यन्नगरमेवं प्रकारेण नमुचेः सर्वाण्यपि नगराणि हतवानित्यर्थः ॥

yadā indrah stopāsakasya naminnāamnaḥ ṛṣaye rakṣaṇārthaṃ namucināmānam asuraṃ hataṃ tadā tena namucinā sahaikasmād yuddhād anantaram anyad yuddham evaṃ prakāreṇānekāni yuddhāni cakāra | tathaikasmān nagarād anantaram anyan nagaram evaṃ prakāreṇa namuceḥ sarvāṇy api nagarāṇi hataṃ ity arthaḥ || — "When Indra, to protect the sage named Nami, a worshipper, killed the Asura named Namuci, then with that Namuci he fought, after one battle another, and so many battles; and after one city another, in this way he destroyed all the cities of Namuci — this is the sense." The Kannada adds:
 "To protect the sage Nami, who praised him, Indra fought many times with the Asura Namuci; each time he destroyed one of his cities and then another; and finally he killed him. Some take the word sakhyā to mean the sage Nami, a friend of Indra; the bhāṣyakāra took it to mean the thunderbolt, as a dear friend of Indra." ⁵¹ - gha it eṣi — "Here the syllable gha is a mere filler for the foot; it has no meaning." - dhṛṣṇuyā — "This is an epithet of the word yudhā. The word dhṛṣṇu, formed from the root ñidhrṣā prāgalbhye, shows 'one who destroys enemies in a bold way'." - namyā — "This word, in the sense 'one who makes enemies bow', is an epithet of sakhyā, which denotes the thunderbolt. Some take this word to refer to the sage Nami."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵² - yudhā: yudha saṃprahāre; sampadādibhyaḥ kvip; instrumental singular; by sāvekācas ṛṭtyādiḥ (Pā. 6-1-168) the ending of a mono-syllable is acute. - eṣi:
iṅ gatau, adādi; laṭ second singular sip; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ

51. The "Nami" reading of namyā sakhyā is the Kannada author's report of "some" interpreters.

52. pp. 289–290 — grammar pages, noted briefly

luk; since sip is sārvadhātuka, guṇa of the root; after iñ, the suffix's s becomes ṣ (ādeśapratyayayoḥ); following an atiñ, nighāta. - dhṛṣṇuyā: ñidhṛṣā prāgalbhye; the suffix knu by trasigr̥dhidhṛṣikṣipeḥ knuḥ; being kit, no guṇa: dhṛṣṇu; in the instrumental singular the Vedic yā by supām suluk...; citaḥ gives the end-acute. - purā: pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ; "pūrayati rājñām abhimatāni iti purā"; kvip ca; udoṣṭhyapūrvasya (Pā. 7-1-102) gives u to the root; uraṇ raparaḥ; instrumental singular purā; by the word pur; sāvekācas tr̥tīyādiḥ gives the ending the acute. - haṃsi: han hiṃsāgatyoḥ; second singular sip; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ; naś cāpadāntasya jhali (Pā. 8-3-24) gives the anusvāra for the n of the word that does not end the pada; following an atiñ, nighāta. - namyā: ṇamu prahvatve; the Uṇādi suffix in: nami; in the instrumental singular, supām suluk gives ḍyā; since ḍit, the ṭi is dropped: namyā. - sakhyā: śeṣo ghy asakhi (Pā. 1-4-7): in the sūtra that gives the ghi-designation, asakhi is expressly excluded; so sakhi does not get the name ghi; hence āño nāstriyām does not apply to the instrumental singular (ñā); by yañ the form is sakhyā. - namucim: "indreṇa saha yuddham na muñcatīti namuciḥ" ("one who does not abandon fighting with Indra"); muḥ [= muc] mokṣaṇe; the Uṇādi ki; being kit, no guṇa; compound with naña, nabhrāṇ-napāt... (Pā. 6-2-... as read [?]) the naña retains its natural accent; since nañ na gatiḥ na ca kārakam, there being no occasion for the accent of the last member after kṛt, the accent of the first member, the particle, prevails. - māyinam: the word māyā is read among the vr̥thyādi, so vr̥thyādibhyaś ca (Pā. 5-2-116) gives ini in the sense of "having"; yasyeti ca drops the ā before ini: māyin; accusative singular; by the suffix-accent the i is acute. || 7 ||

original p. 290

Rik 8

Samhitā-pāṭha

त्वं करञ्जमुत पर्णयं वधीस्तेजिष्ठयातिथिग्वस्य वर्तनी । त्वं शता वङ्गदस्याभिनत्पुरोऽनानुदः परिषूता ऋजिश्चना ॥ ८ ॥

tvam karañjam uta parṇayaṃ vadhīs tejiṣṭhayātithigvasya vartanī
| tvam śatā vaṅgrdasyābhinat puro 'nānudaḥ pariśūtā ṛjīśvanā ||
8 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । करञ्जम् । उत । पर्णयम् । वधीः । तेजिष्ठया । अतिथिऽग्वस्य । वर्तनी । त्वम् । शता । वङ्गदस्य । अभिनत् । पुरः । अननुदः । परिऽसूताः । ऋजिश्चना ॥ ८ ॥ tvam | karañjam | uta | parṇayam | vadhīḥ | tejiṣṭhayā | atithigvasya | vartanī | tvam | śatā | vaṅgrdasya | abhinat | puraḥ |

ananudaḥ | pari-sūtāḥ | ṛjīśvanā || 8 || ⁵³

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वं करञ्जमेतत्संज्ञकमसुरमुताऽपि च पर्णयमेतन्नामानमसुरं
चातिथिग्वस्यैतत्संज्ञस्य राज्ञः प्रयोजनाय तेजिष्ठया अतिशयेन तेजस्विन्या वर्तन्या
वर्तन्या शत्रुप्रेरणकुशलया शक्त्या वधीः । हतवानसि । तथाननुदः । अनु
पश्चाद्धनुदति खण्डयतीत्यनुदः । अनुचरः । तादृशोऽनुचरहित एक एव
त्वमृजिश्चनैतत्संज्ञकेन राज्ञा परिषूताः परितोऽवष्टब्धाः शता शतानि शतसंख्याका वङ्गदस्यैतत्संज्ञकस्यासुरस्य पुरः पुराणि नगराण्यभिनत् । विभिदिषे । वधीः ।

he indra tvam karañjam etatsaṃjñakam asuram utāpi ca parṇayam etannāmānam asuraṃ cātithigvasyaitatsaṃjñasya rājñāḥ prayojanāya tejiṣṭhayā atīśayena tejasvinyā vartanyā vartanyā śatrupreraṇakuśalayā śaktyā vadhīḥ | hatavān asi |
tathānanudaḥ | anu paścād dhnudati khaṇḍayatīty anudaḥ |
anucaraḥ | tādṛśo 'nucarahita eka eva tvam

53. The Saṃhitā's anānudaḥ against the Pada's ananudaḥ is as printed: the Pada has the short vowel; the Saṃhitā lengthens — see the grammar notes.

ṛjīśvanaitatsaṃjñakena rājñā pariśūtāḥ parito 'vaṣṭabdhāḥ śatā śatāni śatasamkhyākā vaṅgrḍasyaitatsaṃjñakasyāsurasya puraḥ purāṇi nagarāṇy abhinat | bibhidiṣe | vadhīḥ | ⁵⁴

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you karañjam, the Asura of that name, and uta, also parṇayam, the Asura of that name, vadhīḥ, you killed, for the sake of the king named Atithigva, with tejiṣṭhayā vartanyā — with a most brilliant force, skilled in driving back enemies; and ananudaḥ, without a follower: anudaḥ is one who afterwards breaks; a follower; you, such, without a follower, alone, śatā puraḥ, hundreds of the cities of the Asura named vaṅgrḍa, pariśūtāḥ, surrounded all round, besieged, by the king Ṛjīśvan, abhinat, broke."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) tvam — you; karañjam — the Asura named Karañja; uta — and; parṇayam — the Asura named Parṇaya; atithigvasya — for the sake of the king named Atithigva; tejiṣṭhayā — with your most brilliant; vartanī — force that drives enemies away; vadhīḥ — you killed; (likewise) ananudaḥ — without the help of any follower; tvam — you alone; ṛjīśvanā — by the king named Ṛjīśvan; pariśūtāḥ — besieged all round; vaṅgrḍasya — of the Asura named Vaṅgrḍa; śatā — a hundred; puraḥ — cities; abhinat — you broke."

Bhāvārtha

54. Reading notes: "vartanyā vartanyā" — the second is a repetition of the print's gloss; "anu paścād dhnudati" and the end "bibhidiṣe | vadhīḥ" (a clumsy gloss) are as read, [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 291–: on vadhīḥ (han, luḥ, sic, the substitute vadha by hano vadha lini, Pā. 2-4-42 and 43 as read, [?]), tejiṣṭhayā (tejas + iṣṭhan ... with vinī — "tejasvī"), vartanī (vṛtu vartane, lyuṭ, ñīp), abhinat, ananudaḥ (nud with ka; naṅsubhyām), pariśūtāḥ (ṣūṇ prāṇigarbhavimocane / sū prerāṇe, kta) — is characterized.

— "O Indra, you killed the Asuras Karañja and Parṇaya, for the sake of the king Atithigva, with your brilliant, enemy-repelling force. Likewise, without the help of any follower, you alone destroyed the hundred cities of the Asura Vaṅgrda, which were besieged on all sides by the king R̥jiśvan."

Rik 53.8, continued ⁵⁵

English Translation (the source's own, p. 292)

— "You have slain Karanja and Parnaya with your bright gleaming spear in the cause of Atithigva; unaided, you demolished the hundred cities of Vangrida when besieged by Rijiswan."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 292 - karañjam parṇayam — "Karañja is the name of a kind of tree (Pongamia glabra [printed in English]). Here it is the name of a Daitya named Karañja. This word and the word parṇaya occur also in the Rik"

येऽर्णयेऽश्नं उत वा करञ्जे [?] प्राहं महे वृत्रहत्ये अशुश्रवि । (R. Saṃ. 10-48-8 as read [?]; the print is crowded, I give it as read, doubtful)

ye 'rṇaye 'śnam uta vā karañje [?] prāhaṃ mahe vṛtrahatyē aśuśravi | — editorial and tentative, rough: "...I was heard in the great Vṛtra-slaying, at [?] Parṇaya... or at Karañja." The Kannada comment: "In this Rik too, in the context of Indra's slaying the Asura Karañja, the name of the Daitya Parṇaya is told. Not much is known about them." - atithigvasya — "The name of a king. For his matter see what we wrote on p. 174 (of this volume)." - vartanī — "In the sense of the third case the first has come. It means 'by the power that destroys enemies'. The derivation is vṛtyate preryate anayeti vartanī." - ananudaḥ — "Anu paścāt dyati khaṇḍayati iti anudaḥ, anucaraḥ: from this derivation the word anuda gives the sense 'follower, servant'. By this word anudaḥ is shown the sense: 'Indra, who destroys enemies without the help of any such follower'. Nāsti anudo yasya ananudaḥ is its analysis. The lengthening seen in the Saṃhitā does not belong to the rules of grammar; it is just a Vedic matter." - vaṅṛdasya — "One who has this name is a Rākṣasa. Since his name is not found anywhere other than in this Rik, one cannot learn much about him." - ṛjīśvanā — "Ṛjīśvan is a king. For this see what we wrote on p. 169 [as read, [?]]." - pariśūtāḥ — "This word, formed from the root sū prerāṇe, means 'attacked on all sides'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵⁶ - vadhīḥ: han hiṃsāgatyoḥ; luṇ second singular sip; itaś ca drops the i of sip; luṇi ca (Pā. 2-4-43) gives vadha for the root; since this is a-ending, vṛddhi does not come (ato halādeḥ..., Pā. 7-2-7 as read [?], and ato hrasvā...); since the root is of one syllable, ekāca upadeśe 'nudāttāt forbids it to sic; ārdhadhātukasyeḍ valādeḥ gives it; astisicoprkte (Pā. 7-3-96) gives it to the aprakta sip; ita itī (Pā. 8-2-28) drops the s of sic; by bahulam chandasy amānyoge 'pi no aṭ comes: vadhīḥ; nighāta. - tejiṣṭhayā: the word tejas ends in s, so asmāyāmedhāsrajo vini (Pā. 5-2-121) gives vini in the sense of "having": tejasvin; to it, in the sense of surpassing, ātiśāyane tamabiṣṭhanau (Pā. 5-3-55) gives iṣṭhan; before iṣṭhan, vinmatvor luk (Pā. 5-3-65) drops vin; teḥ (Pā. 6-4-155) drops the ṭi of tejas; in the feminine, ṭāp (since it ends in a): tejiṣṭhā; since iṣṭhan is nīt, ñnityādir nityam gives the initial acute; instrumental singular. - vartanī: "vṛtyate preryate anayeti vartanī"; lyuṭ in the instrumental sense; yuvor anākau gives ana; since lyuṭ is tit, ṭiddhāṇaṇ... (Pā. 4-1-15) gives ñṭip in the feminine; vartanī + ā: supām suluk gives the lengthening by the same-sound rule; vyatyayo bahulam gives the end-acute. - abhinat: bhidir vidāraṇe, rudhādi; laṇ second singular sip; itaś ca drops the i; rudhādibhyaḥ śnam; being mit, it follows the last vowel; halṇyābbhyo... drops the aprakta s; vāvasāne gives carva [t] for the final d; aṭ as the augment; following an atiṇ, nighāta. - ananudaḥ: do avakhaṇḍane; ādeca upadeśe 'siti ... ā for the root-

56. pp. 293–294 — grammar pages, noted briefly

vowel; ātaś copasarge (Pā. 3-2-... as read [?]): when anu is the prefix-upapada, ka after the root; ato lopa iṭi ca drops the ā: anuda; "nāsti anudo yasya ananudaḥ"; naño naluk [as printed, "nalopo nañah"] drops the n of nañ — since a is nañ's remnant, tasmān nuḍ aci gives nuṭ to the following vowel; nañsubhyām gives the end-acute of the last member; in the Saṃhitā, Vedic lengthening (ānānudaḥ). - pariśūtāḥ: sū prerane; kta in the passive; being kit, no guṇa; upasargāt sunoti... (Pā. 8-3-65) gives ṣatva; gatiṛ anantaraḥ keeps the prefix pari's own accent. || 8 ||

original pp. 294-297

Rik 9

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

त्वमेतान् जनराज्ञो द्विर्दशाबन्धुना सुश्रवसोपजग्मुषः । षष्टिं सहस्रा नवतिं नव श्रुतो नि चक्रेण रथ्या दुष्पदावृणक् ॥ ९ ॥

tvam etāñ janarājño dvir daśābandhunā suśravasopajagmuṣaḥ | ṣaṣṭim sahasrā navatiṃ nava śruto ni cakreṇa rathyā duṣpadāvṛṇak || 9 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । एतान् । जनऽराज्ञः । द्विः । दश । अबन्धुना । सुऽश्रवसा । उपऽजग्मुषः । षष्टिम् । सहस्रा । नवतिम् । नव । श्रुतः । नि । चक्रेण । रथ्या । दुःऽपदा । अवृणक् ॥ ९ ॥

tvam | etān | jana-rājñah | dviḥ | daśa | abandhunā | su-śravasā
| upa-jagmuṣaḥ | ṣaṣṭim | sahasrā | navatiṃ | nava | śrutaḥ | ni
| cakreṇa | rathyā | duḥ-padā | avṛṇak || 9 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र श्रुतो विश्रुतः प्रख्यातस्त्वं द्विर्दश विंशतिसंख्याकानबन्धुना बन्धुरहितेन
सहायरहितेन सुश्रवसैतत्संज्ञकेन राज्ञा युद्धार्थमुपजग्मुष उपगतवत एतानेवंविधान्
जनराज्ञो जनपदानामधिपतीन् । षष्टिमित्यादिना तेषां राज्ञामनुचरसंख्योच्यते । षष्टिं
सहस्रा सहस्राणां षष्टिं नवतिं नव नवसंख्योत्तरां नवतिं । तान् राज्ञ

ईदृक्संख्यानानुचरांश्च रथ्या रथसंबन्धिना दुष्पदा दुष्प्रपदनेन शत्रुभिः
प्राप्तुमशक्येनेत्यर्थः । ईदृशेन चक्रेण न्यवृणक् न्यवर्जयः । त्वां स्तुवतः सुश्रवसो जयार्थं त्वमागत्य तदीयाञ् शत्रूनजैषीरित्यर्थः ॥

he indra śruto viśrutaḥ prakhyātas tvam dvir daśa viṃśatisaṃkhyākān abandhunā bandhuraहितेना सहāyarahितेना suśravasaitatsaṃjñakena rājñā yuddhārtham upajagmuṣa upagatavata etān evaṃvidhān janarājñō janapadānām adhipatīn |
ṣaṣṭim ity ādinā teṣāṃ rājñām anucarasaṃkhyocyate | ṣaṣṭim sahasrā sahasrāṇām ṣaṣṭim navatiṃ nava navasaṃkhyottarām navatiṃ | tān rājñā īdṛksaṃkhyānān anucarāṃś ca rathyā rathasaṃbandhinā duṣpadā duṣprapadanena śatrubhiḥ prāptum āśakyenety arthaḥ | īdṛśena cakreṇa nyavṛṇak nyavarjayaḥ | tvām stuvataḥ suśravaso jayārtham tvam āgatya tadīyāñ śatrūn
ajaiṣīr ity arthaḥ | | 57

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, śrutaḥ, renowned, you — dvir daśa, twenty — of those janarājñāḥ, 'kings of the people', the lords of the countries, who came (upajagmuṣaḥ) to fight against suśravasā, the king of that name, abandhunā, who had no kinsman, no helper: ṣaṣṭim sahasrā navatiṃ nava, with sixty thousand and ninety-nine — here the number of the followers of those kings is told: sixty thousand, and ninety plus nine. Those kings, and their followers of this number, cakreṇa rathyā duṣpadā, with the chariot-wheel — duṣpada meaning that which enemies cannot approach — with such a wheel ni avṛṇak, you laid low, defeated: coming to the victory of the praising Suśravas, you conquered his enemies, is the sense."

57. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 295–: on janarājñāḥ (the compound and the ṭac excluded by sāmāsāntavidhir anityaḥ, Pari. 94 as read [?]; rājan, kanin, initial-acute), abandhunā, suśravasā, upajagmuṣaḥ (gam with kvasu, śasi bhasaṃjñāyām vasoḥ samprasāraṇam, the loss of the penultimate by gamahanajana...), rathyā (rathasyedaṃ rathyam, yat by rathād yat, Pā. 4-3-121 as read [?]), duṣpadā (pada gatau, khal by īśaddussuṣu, Pā. 3-3-126), avṛṇak (vṛjī varjane, rudhādi, śnam, ṇatva, kutva, carva) — is characterized.

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) śrutah — you who are well known (in the world); tvam — you; abandhunā — without kinsmen or helpers; suśravasā — with the king named Suśravas; upajagmuṣah — who went (to battle); etān — such; dvirdaśa — twenty; janarājñah — the lords of the country; ṣaṣṭim sahasrā navatiṃ nava — sixty thousand and ninety-nine in number, (the followers of the kings); rathyā — belonging to (your) chariot; duṣpadā — hard for enemies to approach; cakreṇa — with the wheel; ni avṛṇak — you laid low."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you are renowned in the world. When the twenty lords of the country went to war, with sixty thousand ninety-nine followers, against the king named Suśravas, who had no friends and no helpers, you destroyed them all with the wheel of your chariot, which enemies cannot approach."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 295)

— "O renowned Indra, you overthrew, by your not-to-be-overtaken chariot-wheel, the twenty kings of men, who had come against Susravas, unaided, and their sixty-thousand and ninety and nine followers."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 295–296 - suśravasā — "Suśravas is a king dear to Indra. We do not know much about him. In the Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa (14-6-8 as read [?]), Suśravas is said to be the son of Upagu; in the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (10-5-5-1 [?]) Suśravā Kauṣya is spoken of as a teacher; and in the Vaṃśa Brāhmaṇa (1-... [?]) Suśravā Vārṣagaṇya is told to be a descendant of Vṛṣagaṇa, a teacher, a pupil of Puruṣa [and of Prātaraha] Kauhala. It is not clear which of these is the Suśravas of the Rik under discussion." ⁵⁸ - abandhunā suśravasā — "Suśravas is a king. He had neither kinsmen nor any helpers of any kind. Praising Indra, he won victory in battle with Indra's help. Śobhanam śravaḥ annam yasya saḥ: 'one who has excellent food', that is, 'one who has riches' — thus they explain." - janarājñah — "Lords of the earth. Here the word jana means 'country, region'." - ṣaṣṭim sahasrā navatiṃ nava — "The kings who came to fight against Suśravas came to battle with sixty thousand ninety-nine soldiers." - duṣpadā — "From the root pada gatau the word pada gives the sense of going. But, taking the sense of 'reaching' for the word pada here, they explain: 'hard for enemies to reach easily'." - rathyā — "This word, in the sense 'connected with the chariot', is an epithet of Indra's wheel."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵⁹ - janarājñah: "janānām rājā": as a compound, rājāhaṣakhibhyaḥ tac (Pā. 5-4-91) would give taḥ, but samāsāntavidhir anityaḥ (paribhāṣā, as read [?]) means that it does not come here; genitive singular; the word rājan is formed from rāja dīptau with kanin, and so is initial-acute; as a compound, gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the kṛdanta-final member, and the initial-acute stays. - abandhunā: "na vidyate bandhur yasya saḥ abandhuḥ tena"; a bahuvrīhi: nañsubhyām (Pā. 6-2-172) gives the end-acute. - suśravasā: "śobhanam śravaḥ annam yasya suśravāḥ tena"; dvyac chandasi (Pā. 6-2-... as read [?]) — in the Veda, when the last member has

58. The Kannada numerals, all uncertain, [?].

59. pp. 296–297 — grammar pages, noted briefly

more than one syllable... the whole takes the initial acute of the upapada (su): initial-acute. - upajagmuṣaḥ: gamlṛ gatau; kvasuś ca (Pā. 3-2-107) gives kvasu for liṭ; liṅ-nimitta reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; cutva; gamahanajana... (Pā. 6-4-98) drops the penultimate; jagmus; in the accusative plural, when śas follows, vasoḥ saṃprasāraṇam (Pā. 6-4-131) gives saṃprasāraṇa to the v; saṃprasāraṇāc ca gives the earlier form; śāsivasighasīnām ca (Pā. 8-3-60) gives ṣatva; ru, visarga: upajagmuṣaḥ; since gati-first, gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt keeps the accent of vasu from the kvasu. - rathyā: "rathasya idaṃ rathyam"; rathād yat (Pā. 4-3-121) gives yat; svaritatva arises, but yato 'nāvaḥ (Pā. 6-1-213) gives the initial-acute; instrumental singular: supām suluk gives ā for the ending: rathyā. - duṣpadā: pada gatau; iṣaddussuṣu (Pā. 3-3-126) gives khal: duṣpada; khal being lit, liti gives the vowel before the suffix the acute; here too supām suluk gives ā for ṭā. - avṛṇak: vṛjī varjane, rudhādi, laṅ second singular sip; itaś ca drops the i; rudhādibhyaḥ śnam; being mit, it follows the last vowel; since r precedes, the n of śnam becomes ṇ; since the hal follows, halṇyābbhyo... drops sip's s; coḥ kuḥ gives kutva for the final j; vāvasāne gives carva; aṭ as the laṅ augment: avṛṇak; following an atiṅ, tiṅ atiṅaḥ, nighāta. || 9 ||

original p. 297

Rik 10 — metre Triṣṭubh

Samhitā-pāṭha

त्वमाविथ सुश्रवसं तवोतिभिस्तव त्रामभिरिन्द्र तूर्वयाणम् । त्वमस्मै कुत्समतिथिग्वमायुं महे राज्ञे यूने अरन्धनायः ॥ १० ॥

*tvam āvitha suśravasaṃ tavotibhis tava trāmabhir indra tūrvayāṇam | tvam asmai kutsam atithigvam āyuṃ mahe rājñe
yūne arandhanāyaḥ || 10 ||*

Rik 53.10, continued ⁶⁰

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । आविथ । सुऽश्रवसम् । तव । ऊतिऽभिः । तव । त्रामऽभिः । इन्द्र । तूर्वयाणम् । त्वम् ।
। अस्मै । कुत्सम् । अतिथिऽग्वम् । आयुम् । महे । राज्ञे । यूने । अरन्धनायः ॥ १० ॥

tvam | āvitha | su-śravasam | tava | ūti-bhiḥ | tava | trāma-bhiḥ
| indra | tūrvayāṇam | tvam | asmai | kutsam | atithi-gvam |
āyum | mahe | rājñe | yūne | arandhanāyaḥ || 10 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वं तवोतिभिस्त्वदीयैः पालनैः सुश्रवसं पूर्वोक्तं राजानमाविथ ररक्षिथ । तथा
तूर्वयाणमेतन्नामानं राजानं तव त्रामभिस्त्वदीयैस्त्रायकैः पालकैर्बलैराविथेति शेषः ।
किञ्च त्वं महे महते यूने तरुणायास्मै सुश्रवसे राज्ञे कुत्सादीन् त्रीन् राज्ञोऽरन्धनायः । वशमनयः । रध्यतिर्वशगमने । नि. ६-३२ [?] इति यास्कः ॥

he indra tvam tavotibhis tvadīyaiḥ pālanaiḥ suśravasam pūrvoktaṁ rājānam āvitha rarakṣitha | tathā tūrvayāṇam etannāmānaṁ rājānaṁ tava trāmabhis tvadīyais trāyakaiḥ pālakair balair āvitheti śeṣaḥ | kiṁca tvam mahe mahate yūne taruṇāyāsmāi suśravase rājñe kutsādīn trīn rājño 'randhanāyaḥ |
vaśam anayaḥ | radhyatir vaśagamane | ni. 6-32 [?] iti yāskaḥ ||

61 62

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you, tavotibhiḥ, by your protections, suśravasam, protected the king spoken of above; and likewise tūrvayāṇam, the king of that name, you protected trāmabhiḥ, with your forces that protect (supply: you protected). Further, mahe yūne, for this great, young Suśravas, the king, you

61. The Nirukta numeral as read, [?].

62. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 298: on trāmabhiḥ (trai pālāne, ādeca upadeśe 'siti gives ā; manin by ātro manin kvanip vanipāś ca, Pā. 3-2-74 as read [?]; the initial-acute from the nit suffix), arandhanāyaḥ (randhanaṁ vaśikaraṇaṁ karoti randhanayati; tatkaroti tadācaṣṭe, ṇic; iṣṭhavad bhāva, ṭilopa; laṇ second singular; śap; the Vedic lengthening) — is characterized.

arandhanāyaḥ — brought under his sway — three kings, Kutsa and the others; radhyati has the sense of coming under control, says Yāska (Ni. 6-32 [?])."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; tvam — you; tava ūtibhiḥ — by your help; suśravasam — the king Suśravas; āvitha — protected; tūrvayāṇam — the king Tūrvayāṇa also; tava trāmabhiḥ — by your protective forces; (you protected); tvam — you; yūne — young; mahe — of great majesty; asmai rājñe — to this king Suśravas; kutsam — Kutsa; atithigvam — Atithigva; āyum — and Āyu (these three kings); arandhanāyaḥ — you made subject."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, by your help you protected the king named Suśravas, and by your protective forces you saved Tūrvayāṇa also. And because this Suśravas, though young, was of great majesty, you made these three kings — Kutsa, Atithigva and Āyu — subject to him."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 299)

— "Indra, you have preserved Susravas by your protection. Turvayana by your help; you have made kutsa, Atithigwa, and Ayu subject to the mighty, though youthful Susravas."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 299 - atithigvam — "See what we wrote on his account on p. 174." - kutsam — "His account is given on p. 173." - āyum — "It is known that Āyu was a king, a ruler of the people called Śakta [?]. Here it is said that Tūrvayāṇa defeated him with Indra's help. His name occurs in the Riks Ṛ. Saṃ. 6-18-... [?]; 1-... [?]; 9-... [?]; 10-... [?] (all numerals uncertain)." - tava ūtibhiḥ — "Though the word ūti has the sense of protection, here by implication it must be taken as 'by the special acts that give protection'." - tūrvayāṇam — "This is the name of a king protected by Indra. In Ṛ. Saṃ. 2-... [?] he is called an enemy of Atithigva, Āyu and Kutsa; in Ṛ. Saṃ. 10-... [?] it is said that he was a king of the people called Śākta. His name occurs also in the Riks R. Saṃ. 1-... [?]; 6-... [?]." - trāmabhiḥ — "This word, formed from the root trai pālāne, gives the special sense 'by the armies that protect those who take refuge'." - rājñe — "'To the king named Suśravas': this is the meaning of this word." - arandhanāyaḥ — "'You made subject': this is its meaning. According to Yāska's idea 'radhyatir vaśagamane' (Ni. 6-32 [?]), they explain this word as randhanaṃ vaśikaraṇaṃ karoti randhanayati."

रध्यतिर्वशगमने । (Ni. 6-32 as read [?])

radhyatir vaśagamane | — editorial and tentative: "radh is [a root] in the sense of 'coming under control'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶³ - āvitha: ava rakṣaṇe; liṭ second singular sip; parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus... gives thal; reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; akaś ca ādeḥ ... dīrgha lengthens the a of the reduplicative; ārdhadhātukasyeḍ valādeḥ gives iṭ to thal: āvitha; following an atiñ, nighāta. - suśravasam: explained under the previous Rik; accusative singular. - trāmabhiḥ: trai pālāne; ādeca upadeśe 'śiti (Pā. 6-1-45) gives ā in place of the ai; ātro manin kvanip vanipaś ca (Pā. 3-2-74 as read [?]) gives manin: trāman; being nit, initial-acute; in the instrumental plural, na loopaḥ prātipadikāntasya (Pā. 8-2-7) prevents the loss of n — no: nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya drops the n? The print says "na lopah prātipadikāntasya" gives nalopa — the n is dropped before bhis: trāmabhiḥ. - asmai: for the word idam, in the substitution-context idam... anvādeśe, [and for the dative] idamo 'nvādeśe 'śanudāttas tṛtīyādau (Pā. 2-4-32) gives the anudātta substitute aśa; since it is śit, it replaces the whole word; anudāttaṃ supitau [anudāttaṃ sup pit] makes the ending anudātta. - arandhanāyaḥ: "randhanaṃ vaśikaraṇaṃ karoti randhanayati"; tatkaroti tadācaṣṭe (Pā. 3-1-26 as read [?]) gives ṇic when the sense of the root is intended after a

63. pp. 299–300 — grammar pages, noted briefly

prātīpadika; before ṇic, iṣṭhavad bhāva [iṣṭhasya] ... iṣṭhavad bhāvaḥ prātīpadikasya (Pā. 6-4-... as read [?]) — as before iṣṭhan, so before ṇic the ṭi is dropped, the same acts that apply before iṣṭhan apply before ṇic: ṭilopa; the randhani is a ṇic-ending, which by sanādyantā dhātavaḥ is a root; laṅ second singular sip; itaś ca drops the i; kartari śap; since śap is the cause, guṇa before ṇic... the i; ayādeśa: the s of the ending becomes ru, visarga; aṭ as the laṅ augment: arandhanayaḥ; the lengthening is Vedic: arandhanāyaḥ; following an atiṅ, nighāta. || 10 ||

original p. 300

Rik 11 — metre Triṣṭubh

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

य उद्ऋचीन्द्र देवगोपाः सखायस्ते शिवतमा असाम । त्वां स्तोषाम त्वया सुवीरा द्राघीय आयुः प्रतरं दधानाः ॥ ११ ॥

*ya udṛcīndra devagopāḥ sakhāyas te śivatamā asāma | tvāṃ
stoṣāma tvayā suvīrā drāghīya āyuh prataram dadhānāḥ || 11 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

ये । उद्ऋचि । इन्द्र । देवऽगोपाः । सखायः । ते । शिवऽतमाः । असाम । त्वाम् । स्तोषाम । त्वया । सुऽवीराः । द्राघीयः । आयुः । प्रऽतरम् । दधानाः ॥ ११ ॥

*ye | ut-ṛci | indra | deva-gopāḥ | sakhāyaḥ | te | śiva-tamāḥ |
asāma | tvām | stoṣāma | tvayā | su-vīrāḥ | drāghīyaḥ | āyuh |
pra-taram | dadhānāḥ || 11 ||* ⁶⁴

Rik 53.11, continued ⁶⁵

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

64. The Saṃhitā's ya udṛci is as printed; the Pada's ut-ṛci (a locative) is the Pada's division; Neither is altered, and it is noted as doubtful, [?].

65. pp. 301–303, PDF 317–319

हे इन्द्र ये वयम् उदृचि यज्ञसमाप्तौ वर्तमाना देवगोपा देवैः पालितास्ते तव सखायः
 सखिवदत्यन्तं प्रियाः अत एव शिवतमा असाम अतिशयेन कल्याणा अभूम् ते वयं
 यज्ञसमाप्त्युत्तरकालमपि त्वां स्तोषाम स्तवाम । अस्माभिः स्तुतेन त्वया सुवीराः
 शोभनपुत्रवन्तः सन्तो द्राघीयोऽतिशयेन दीर्घमायुर्जीवनं प्रतरं प्रकृष्टतरं यथा भवति तथा दधाना धारयन्तो भूयास्म ॥

*he indra ye vayam udṛci yajñasamāptau vartamānā devagopā devaiḥ pālītās te tava sakhāyaḥ sakhivad atyantam priyāḥ ata eva śivatamā asāma atīśayena kalyāṇā abhūma te vayam yajñasamāptyuttarakālam api tvām stoṣāma stavāma | asmābhiḥ stutena tvayā suvīrāḥ śobhanaputravantāḥ santo drāghīyo
 'tīśayena dīrgham āyur jīvanam prataram prakṛṣṭataram yathā
 bhavati tathā dadhānā dhārayanto bhūyāsma | |* ⁶⁶

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, we who udṛci, are present at the close of the sacrifice, devagopāḥ, protected by the gods, te sakhāyaḥ, your friends — exceedingly dear, like friends — and therefore śivatamāḥ asāma, may we be most auspicious; we, even after the end of the sacrifice, tvām stoṣāma, will praise you. Tvayā, through you, praised by us, suvīrāḥ, having fair sons, drāghīyaḥ āyuh, a very long life, prataram, in the best way, dadhānāḥ, holding, may we be."

66. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 301, is characterized: devagopāḥ (bahuvrīhi); asāma (as bhuvi, loṭ in the sense of the liṅ; uttama plural mas; śnasor allopaḥ excluded because pittva is stated; Pā. 6-4-111); stoṣāma (ṣṭuñ stutau, adādi, leṭ; sip; ādyudāttah); suvīrāḥ (vīravīryau ca, Pā. 6-2-120 as read [?]); drāghīyaḥ (dīrgha + īyasun; priyasthīrasphīrorubahulagurvaṅga..., Pā. 6-4-157 as read [?]; the substitute drāghā; nit, so initial-acute); prataram (pra + tarap, then amu ca chandasi, Pā. 5-4-12 as read [?]); dadhānāḥ (ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ, śānac, juhotyādibhyaḥ śluḥ, reduplication, hrasva and jaṣṭva; abhyastānām adīḥ).

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; ye — we who; devagopāḥ — protected by the gods; udṛci — at the close of the sacrifice; te — your; śivatamāḥ — most fortunate; sakhāyaḥ — friends; asāma — we are; tvām — you; stoṣāma — we praise (even though the sacrifice is complete); tvayā — (praised) by you; suvīrāḥ — having fair offspring; drāghīyaḥ — long; prataram — causing the highest stability; āyuh — life; dadhānāḥ — [we are] holding."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, protected by the gods, we, at the close of the sacrifice, are your most fortunate friends. We praise you; by your favour we hold fair offspring and a long life that gives high stability, and so we praise you even at the end of the sacrifice."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 301)

— "Protected by the gods, remain, Indra, at the close of the sacrifice, your most fortunate friends; we praise you, for we enjoy through you excellent offspring and a long and prosperous life,"

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣaya-gaḥ), p. 302 - udṛci — "'At the time of the close of the sacrifice' is the sense." - ye — "Following the context, here too the word yat should be taken in the sense of asmat, 'we'." - devagopāḥ — "Devāḥ gopāḥ rakṣakāḥ yeṣām: the full sense of this word is 'we who live protected by the gods'." - suvīrāḥ — "By the sense 'those who have fair sons', the fruit-statement (phalaśruti) is made plain here, that those who praise Indra even at the end of the sacrifice obtain the wealth of sons." - drāghīyaḥ — "A thing with a very long extent. Since it is an epithet of āyus, the sense must be said to be 'a long time'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶⁷ - devagopāḥ: "devā gopā yeṣām": a bahuvrīhi: bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam gives the accent of the first member. - asāma: as bhuvi; vyatyayo bahulam gives loṭ in the sense of the liṅ; first person plural mas; loṭo laṅvat gives laṅ-

67. pp. 302–303 — grammar pages, noted briefly

ness, so nityam ñitaḥ drops the s of mas; āḍ uttamasya pic ca (Pā. 3-4-92) gives āt to it; as it is stated pit, sārvadhātukam apit does not make it ñit; therefore śnasor allopaḥ does not drop the a of as; since pit is stated, the tiñ is anudātta, so the accent of the root remains. - stoṣāma: ṣtuñ stutau, adādi; the first-person plural of loṭ — leṭ: yeṣ as before; the s dropped; by sibbahulaṃ leṭi (Pā. 3-1-34), since bahulam is taken, sip also comes in the leṭ; being pit, guṇa of the root; after an i-class [iṇ], ādeśapratyayayoḥ gives ṣatva; āḍ uttamasya pic ca gives the augment āt: stoṣāma; following an atiñ, nighāta. - suvīrāḥ: "śobhanā vīrā yeṣām"; vīravīryau ca (Pā. 6-2-120) gives the initial-acute of the last member. - drāghīyaḥ: after dirgha, a quality-word, īyasun in the sense of surpassing: dvivacanavibhajyopapade tarabīyasunau (Pā. 5-3-57); when īyasun follows, priyasthirasphirorubahulagurvaṅgadīrghavṛddhatṛpradīrghavṛndārakāṇām prasthasphiravarabamhigarvarṣitrap... [as read, Pā. 6-4-157] gives drāghā for dirgha; yasyeti ca drops the a: drāghīyas; since nit, ñnityādir nityam gives the initial acute. - prataram: with tarap after pra, amu ca chandasi (Pā. 5-4-12) gives amu when the sense of surpassing is not of substance (adravyagata); prataram; end-acute by the suffix-accent. - dadhānāḥ: ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; śānac in the sense of laṭ; juhotyādibhyaḥ śluḥ gives ślu; reduplication by ślau; hrasvaḥ; jhalām jaś jhaśi: dadhāna; abhyastānām ādiḥ gives the initial acute. || 11 || ⁶⁸

Close of Sūkta 53

Sūkta 53 (Maṇḍala 1, Tenth Anuvāka, 11 Riks; ṛṣi Savya Āṅgīrasa; deity Indra; Jagatī, with Riks 10 and 11 Triṣṭubh)
— printed pp. 264–303, PDF 280–319.

68. The print gives no closing sentence for Sūkta 53: the last grammar paragraph, on dadhānāḥ, ends the Rik on p. 303 and a short rule separates it from the title of the next sūkta, which begins on the same page. My own summary, not the source's:

The Riks offer praise to the great Indra in the sacrificer's house, who quickly seizes the demons' treasure like a thief taking the property of the sleeping (1); he is the giver of horses, cattle and barley, the ancient protector, dear to the priests (2); the source of all the wealth that is seen, whom the praiser begs not to leave his wish unfulfilled (3); the one whose favour, with the soma, drives away poverty and brings the foe's defeat (4); for whose power the praisers pray for wealth, food, brilliant strength and increase (5); whom the Maruts and the oblations gladdened when he slew the ten thousand obstacles of the sacrificer (6); the warrior from battle to battle, city to city, who slew the deceiver Namuci with the foam of the waters, a story the source gives at length from the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa and with eight Ṛgveda parallels (7); who slew Karañja and Parṇaya for Atithigva and broke the hundred cities of Vaṅṛda for Ṛjīśvan (8); who overthrew the twenty kings and their sixty thousand ninety-nine followers for Suśravas (9) and made Kutsa, Atithigva and Āyu subject to him (10); and finally the friends whom the gods protect, who praise Indra at the close of the sacrifice (11). Many numerals are marked [?] in the Riks.

Sūkta 54 — "mā no asmin"

original p. 303

Title and Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 303)

ಐವತ್ತನಾಲ್ಕನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — ¹

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya (introduction)

मा न इत्येकादशर्चं चतुर्थं सूक्तम् । षष्ठ्यष्टमीनवम्येकादश्यस्त्रिष्टुभः । शिष्टाः सप्त
जगत्यः । सव्य ऋषिः । इन्द्रो देवता । तथा चानुक्रान्तम् । मा नोऽन्त्या त्रिष्टुप्
षष्ठ्यष्टमी नवमी चेति । अतिरात्रे प्रथमे पर्याये ऽच्छावाकशस्त्र इदं सूक्तम् । तथा
च सूत्रितम् । मानो अस्मिन्मघवन्निन्द्र पिबा तुभ्यं सुतो मदायेति याज्या । आश्व.

६-४ [?] इति ॥

mā na ity ekādaśarcaṃ caturthaṃ sūktam |
ṣaṣṭhyaṣṭamīnavamyekādaśyas triṣṭubhaḥ | śiṣṭāḥ sapta jagatyah
| savya ṛṣiḥ | indro devatā | tathā cānukrāntam | mā no 'ntyā triṣṭup ṣaṣṭhyaṣṭamī navamī ceti | atirātre prathame paryāye
'cchāvākaśastra idaṃ sūktam | tathā ca sūtritam | mā no asmin
maghavann indra pibā tubhyaṃ suto madāyeti yājyā | āśva. 6-4 [?]
iti || ²

Translation: "'Mā naḥ': a sūkta of eleven Riks, the fourth [of the Tenth Anuvāka]; the sixth, eighth, ninth and eleventh are Triṣṭubh; the remaining seven are Jagatī. The seer is Savya, the deity Indra; so the Anukramaṇī: 'Mā naḥ: the last [is] Triṣṭubh; the sixth, the eighth and the ninth' [?]. In the Atirātra rite, in the first parvāya, this sūkta belongs to the recitation of the Acchāvāka; so it is aphorized: 'mā no asmin maghavann indra pibā tubhyaṃ suto madāya' is the yājyā (Āśv. 6-4 as read [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 303) — "'Mā naḥ' is the fourth sūkta in the tenth anuvāka. It has eleven Riks. The sixth, eighth, ninth and eleventh Riks of this sūkta are in the Triṣṭubh metre; the remaining seven Riks are in Jagatī. The seer of this sūkta is Savya; the deity is Indra. In the Anukramaṇikā it is said 'mā no 'ntyā triṣṭup ṣaṣṭhyaṣṭamī navamī ceti' [?]. In the sacrifice called Atirātra, in the first parvāya, this sūkta is to be used by the priest Acchāvāka for the śastra mantras; the sūtra 'mā no asmin maghavann indra pibā tubhyaṃ suto madāya' in the Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra shows this (Āś. 6-4 as read [?])." ³

Heading block of Sūkta 54 (p. 304, PDF 320)

- Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 10 · Sūkta 54
- Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 14, 15 [as read, small numerals, [?]]
- Number of Riks in the sūkta: 11
- Ṛṣi: Savya Āṅgīrasa
- Deity: Indra
- Metre: Riks 1–5, 7, 10 Jagatī; Riks 6, 8, 9, 11 Triṣṭubh ⁴

2. Reading note: the Anukramaṇī's "mā no 'ntyā triṣṭup ṣaṣṭhyaṣṭamī navamī ceti" is crowded in the print ("ṣaṣṭhyaṣṭavi navamī ce..."), [?]; the Āśvalāyana numeral "6-4" is as read, [?]. The quotation mā no asmin maghavann indra pibā tubhyaṃ suto madāya is as the print gives it; the Rik's own words (Rik 54.1) are mā no asmin maghavan pṛtsv aṃhasi, so the quotation is treated as the yājyā-verse, not as Rik 54.1.

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-fourth sūkta"

3. The heading block and Rik 54.1 begin on p. 304 (PDF 320).

4. the print's numerals "೦-೫, ೭, ೧೦ ಜಗತೀ | ೬, ೮, ೯, ೧೧ ತ್ರಿಷ್ಠುಭ್", small, [?]

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ⁵

मा नो अस्मिन्मघवन्पृत्स्वंहसि नहि ते अन्तः शवसः परीणशे । अक्रन्दयो नद्यो रोरुवद्वना कथा न क्षोणीर्भियसा समारत ॥ १ ॥

*mā no asmin maghavan pṛtsv aṃhasi nahi te antaḥ śavasah parīṇaśe | akrandayo nadyo roruvad vanā kathā na kṣoṇīr bhiyasā
sam ārata || 1 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

मा । नः । अस्मिन् । मघऽवन् । पृत्ऽसु । अंहसि । नहि । ते । अन्तः । शवसः । परिऽनशे । अक्रन्दयः । नद्यः । रोरुवत् । वना । कथा । न । क्षोणीः । भियसा । सम् । आरत ॥ १ ॥

*mā | naḥ | asmin | magha-van | pṛt-su | aṃhasi | nahi | te |
antaḥ | śavasah | pari-naśe | akrandayah | nadyah | roruvat |
vanā | kathā | na | kṣoṇīḥ | bhiyasā | sam | ārata || 1 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे मघवन् धनवन्निन्द्र अस्मिन् परिदृश्यमानेऽहसि पापे पृत्सु पृतनासु पापफलभूतेषु
संग्रामेषु च नोऽस्मान्मा प्रक्षैप्सीरिति शेषः । यस्मात्ते तव शवसो बलस्यान्तोऽवसानं
परीणशे परितो व्याप्तुं न हि शक्यते । सर्वोऽपि जनस्त्वदीयं बलमतिक्रमितुं न
शक्नोतीत्यर्थः । तस्मात्त्वमन्तरिक्षे वर्तमानो रोरुवत् आत्मार्थं शब्दं कुर्वन् नद्यो
नदीर्वना तत्संबन्धीन्युदकानि चाक्रन्दयः शब्दयसि । क्षोणीः क्षोण्यः । क्षोणीति
पृथिवीनाम । कदुफलक्षणास्त्रयो लोका भियसा त्वदीयेन कथा कथं न समारत । न
संगच्छन्ते । त्वदीयं बलमवलोक्य त्रयोऽपि लोका बिभ्यतीति भावः ॥

*he maghavan dhanavann indra asmin paridrśyamāne 'ṃhasi pāpe pṛtsu pṛtanāsu pāpaphalabhūteṣu saṃgrāmeṣu ca no 'smān mā prakṣaipsīr iti śeṣaḥ | yasmāt te tava śavaso balasyānto 'vasānaṃ
parīṇaśe parito vyāptuṃ na hi śakyate | sarvo 'pi janas tvadīyaṃ*

*balam atikramituṃ na śaknotīty arthaḥ | tasmāt tvam antarikṣe vartamāno roruvat ātmārthaṃ śabdaṃ kurvan nadyo nadir vanā tatsaṃbandhīny udakāni cākrandayaḥ śabdayasi | kṣoṇīḥ kṣoṇyaḥ
| kṣoṇīti pṛthivīnāma | kaduphalakṣaṇās trayo lokā bhiyasā tvadīyena kathā katham na samārata | na saṃgacchante |
tvadīyaṃ balam avalokya trayo 'pi lokā bibhyatīti bhāvaḥ ||* ⁶

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O maghavan, wealthy Indra, in this visible aṃhasi, sin, and in pṛtsu, battles that are the fruit of sin, do not throw us (this is understood). Because the end, the limit, of your śavaśaḥ, your strength, cannot be pervaded all round (parīṇaśe) — everyone is unable to surpass your strength, is the sense. Therefore you, abiding in the atmosphere, roruvat, roaring for your own sake, akrandayaḥ, make nadyaḥ, the rivers, and vanā, their waters, sound. Kṣoṇīḥ — kṣoṇī is a name for earth — the three worlds, beginning with the earth, kathā na samārata, how should they not be filled — bhiyasā, with fear of you? Seeing your strength all three worlds are afraid, is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "maghavan — O wealthy Indra; asmin aṃhasi — in this visible sin; pṛtsu — in battles that are the fruit of sin; naḥ — us; mā (prakṣaipsiḥ) — do not forcibly throw (because); te — your; śavaśaḥ — strength's; antaḥ — limit; parīṇaśe — to pervade; na hi — it is not possible; (you, standing in the atmosphere) roruvat — making a roaring sound; nadyaḥ — the rivers; vanā — their waters; akrandayaḥ — you make to sound; kṣoṇiḥ — the three worlds beginning with the earth; bhiyasā — through fear of you; kathā — how; na samārata — are they not filled?"

6. Reading notes: "prakṣaipsiḥ" is the print's "prakṣaipsīr", doubtful; "kaduphalakṣaṇāḥ" ("marked by ... fruit") is crowded in the print and is left as read, [?] — the Kannada Special Topics and Pratipadārtha say "the three worlds beginning with earth", so it is translated so. The grammatical tail on pp. 305 — on pṛtsu (pṛtanā with the substitute pṛt by pṛtanāyām... Pā. 6-1-63 vārttika), parīṇaśe (naśa adarśane, kenyaḥ? — "kṛtyārthe tavaikakenn" read as kenn suffix, Pā. 3-4-14 as read [?]; nīpātasya ca lengthening), nadyaḥ, roruvat (ru śabde, yaṇluk, śatṛ; adādivac ca), kathā (kim + thāl, kimaḥ kaḥ), ārata (ṛ gatau, saṃ with gamy-ṛcchi...) — is characterized.

Bhāvārtha

— "O wealthy Indra, do not cast us forcibly into this visible sin, nor into the battles that are its fruit. For no one can measure the limit of your strength. Standing in the atmosphere you make a roaring sound and make the rivers and their waters resound. How is it that the three worlds, earth and the rest, are not filled with fear of one of such majesty?"

English Translation (the source's own, p. 305) — "O Maghaven, do not throw us into this iniquity, into these sinful conflicts, for the limit of your strength cannot be measured ; you are shouting in the heavens and making the waters of the rivers roar ; why shall not the earth be filled with terror ?" ⁷

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 306 - 8:

केचिदेवमाहुः । किञ्चित्संग्राममुपसंप्राणसंकटप्रसंगमुद्दिश्य वचनमिदं सव्यस्य । य
इन्द्रो वृत्रं भित्त्वा सगर्जनेन तथा लोकान् भयहेतुत्वात्सन्मासयेषा महता
मेघजलवर्षणेन तेजसा नदीर्महदेकशब्दयेत् तेन च स्वबलमनन्तमित्याविरभावयेत् सोऽस्मिन्धारुणे प्रसंगेऽस्माकं प्राणसंकटस्य निवारको भविष्यतीति भागवतम् ॥

*kecid evam āhuḥ | kiñcit saṅgrāmam upasaṁprāṇasaṁkaṭaprasaṅgam uddiśya vacanam idaṁ savyasya
| ya indro vṛtraṁ bhittvā sagarjanena tathā lokān bhayaahetutvāt
...[crowded, [?]] ... meghajalavarṣaṇena tejasā nadīr mahad ekaśabdayet tena ca svabalam anantam ity āvirabhāvayet so 'smin dhāruṇe prasaṅge 'smākaṁ prāṇasaṁkaṭasya nivārako bhaviṣyatīti bhāgavatam ||* — "Some say thus: This saying of

7. The print's heading reads "English Transation"; reproduced as printed, [sic].

8. first Special Topic, a Sanskrit passage in the print

Savya is made with reference to some battle and a crisis of life: Indra who, having split Vṛtra, with a roar ... by showering the rain-water of the cloud with brilliance made the rivers resound as one great sound, and thereby revealed his own boundless strength — he will be the remover of the crisis of our lives in this dreadful situation: so says the Bhāgavata." ⁹ The Kannada adds: "These are the words of Savya, the seer of the sūkta, in fear of battle. It is said in the Bhāgavata and the Purāṇas that when Indra killed Vṛtra there was a great rain with a loud sound and lightning, and a great river began to roar with terrible noise; seeing it the army (Savya) was frightened and praised Indra in this way to protect him." - pr̥tsu — "In battles that are the fruit of sin. For pr̥tanā, a word meaning 'army', the substitute pr̥t comes and gives the form pr̥tsu." - parīṇaśe — "Parito vyāptum: here the root naś, with the prefix pari, is understood in the sense of the action of pervading: 'to pervade fully'." - nadyaḥ — "This is used in the first case in the sense of the third [sic: second] case." - vanā — "The word vana, meaning water, ends here in a long vowel and gives the sense of water connected with rivers." - kṣoṇī — "Though this word generally means earth, here one must say it means the three worlds, marked by earth and the rest."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁰ - pr̥tsu: the word pr̥tanā in the locative plural; padādiṣu māṃspr̥tsnūnām upasaṃkhyānam (Pā. 6-1-63 vārttika, as read [?]) gives pr̥t for it: pr̥tsu. - parīṇaśe: naśa adarśane; here with the sense of pervasion; kr̥tyārthe tavaikakenn... (Pā. 3-4-14 as read [?]) gives kenn; being nīt, initial-acute; with pari standing first, nīpātasya ca (Pā. 6-3-... as read [?]) lengthens the i. - nadyaḥ: from nadī, jas following, dīrghājjasi ca (Pā. 6-1-... as read [?]) forbids the long same-sound substitution; yaṇ; here the first case stands in the second-case sense.

9. The print's middle is crowded, so this is a rough rendering, [?].

10. p. 306 — grammar page, noted briefly; continues on p. 307

Rik 54.1, grammar (end) ¹¹ - roruvat: ru śabde; in the sense of intensity, yañ by dhātor ekāco halādeḥ...; yañ is dropped (luk) by yañō 'ci ca (as read, [?]); reduplication; guṇo yañlukoh gives guṇa to the reduplicative; sanādyantā dhātavaḥ gives the root-designation; śatṛ in the present sense; yañluki the adādivat extension drops śap by adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ; since śatṛ is ñit-like, no guṇa by sārvadhātukam apit; ro-ru + at: āciśnudhātubhruvām... gives uvañ: roruvat; nābhyastācchataḥ forbids num even after sarvanāmasthāna; halñyābbhyo... drops su: roruvat; abhyastānām ādiḥ gives the initial acute. - kathā: the word kim; where the sense of the interrogative is shown, thā hetau ca chandasi (Pā. 5-3-26 as read [?]) gives thāl; since the suffix is in the prāg diśo vibhaktiḥ section it takes the vibhakti-designation, so kimaḥ kaḥ (Pā. 7-2-103) gives ka for kim: kathā; end-acute by the suffix-accent. - ārata: r gatau; with sam before, samo gamyṛcchibhyām (Pā. 1-3-29) gives the ātmanepada; chandasi luñlañliṭaḥ gives lañ in the present sense; for the third plural jha, ātmanepadeṣv anataḥ gives at; being in the adādi, śap drops by adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ; ādajādīnām gives āt; āṭas ca gives vṛddhi: ārata; tiñ atīnaḥ, nighāta. || 1 ||

original pp. 307–310

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

अर्चा शक्राय शाकिने शचीवते शृण्वन्तमिन्द्रं महयन्नभिष्टुहि । यो धृष्णुना शवसा रोदसी उभे वृषा वृषत्वा वृषभो न्यूज्जते ॥ २ ॥ *arcā śakrāya śākine śacīvate śṛṇvantam indraṃ mahayann abhi ṣṭuhi | yo dhṛṣṇunā śavasā rodasī ubhe vṛṣā vṛṣatvā vṛṣabho

nyṛñjate || 2 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

11. p. 307, PDF 323 — grammar page, noted briefly

अर्च । शक्राय । शाकिने । शचीऽवते । शृण्वन्तम् । इन्द्रम् । महयन् । अभि । स्तुहि । यः । धृष्णुना । शवसा । रोदसी इति । उभे इति । वृषा । वृषऽत्वा । वृषभः । निऽऋञ्जते ॥ २ ॥

arca | śakrāya | śākinē | śacī-vate | śṛṇvantam | indram |
mahayan | abhi | stuhi | yaḥ | dhṛṣṇunā | śavasā | rodasī iti |
ubhe iti | vṛṣā | vṛṣa-tvā | vṛṣabhaḥ | ni-ṛñjate || 2 || ¹²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे अध्वर्यो शाकिने शक्तियुक्ताय शचीवते प्रज्ञावते शक्रायेन्द्रायार्च । एवंविधमिन्द्रं
पूजय । किंच स्तुतिः शृण्वन्तं समीचीनेयं स्तुतिरिति जानन्तं तमिन्द्रं महयन्
पूजयन्नाभिं ष्टुहि । आभिमुख्येन तस्य स्तोत्रं कुरु । य इन्द्रो धृष्णुना शत्रूणां धर्षकेण
शवसा बलेनोभे रोदसी द्यावापृथिव्यौ न्यृञ्जते नितरां प्रसाधयति । ऋञ्जतिः
प्रसाधनकर्मा । नि. ६-२१ [?] इति यास्कः । स इन्द्रो वृषा सेचनसमर्थो वृषत्वा वृषत्वेनैव सेचनसामर्थ्येन वृषभो वर्षिता कामानां यद्वा वृष्युदकानाम् ॥

he adhvaryo śākinē śaktiyuktāya śacīvate prajñāvate śakrāyendrāyārca | evaṃvidham indram pūjaya | kiṃca stutīḥ śṛṇvantam samīcīneyam stutir iti jānantaṃ tam indram mahayan pūjayann abhi ṣṭuhi | ābhimukhyena tasya stotraṃ kuru | ya indro dhṛṣṇunā śatrūṇāṃ dharṣakeṇa śavasā balenobhe rodasī dyāvāpṛthivyau nyṛñjate nitarāṃ prasādhayati | ṛñjatiḥ
prasāadhanakarmā | ni. 6-21 [?] iti yāskaḥ | sa indro vṛṣā secanasamartho vṛṣatvā vṛṣatvenaiva secanasāmarthyena
vṛṣabho varṣitā kāmānāṃ yadvā vṛṣnyudakānām || ¹³

12. The Saṃhitā's arcā has the lengthened final vowel, the Pada's arca the short, as the grammar note says.

13. The grammatical tail, p. 308 foot: on arca (pit-ness of śap, the root accent; the Vedic lengthening in the Saṃhitā by dvyacas tiṇaḥ), śākinē, abhi ṣṭuhi (upasargāt sunoti... for the ṣatva; ṣṭuñ stutau; hi for sip), vṛṣatvā (the suffix tva in the Veda by tva in the sense of the action), nyṛñjate (ṛñjatiḥ prasāadhanakarmā, Ni. 6-21 as read [?]; rji bhrji bharjane, num; vyatyaya, śa) — is characterized.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Adhvaryu, arca, worship śakrāya, Indra — śākinē, endowed with power, śacīvate, with wisdom: such an Indra, worship. And mahayan, honouring that Indra, śṛṇvantam, who hears the praises, knowing 'this is a fitting praise' — abhi ṣṭuhi, praise him face to face, make his hymn. Indra yaḥ dhṛṣṇunā śavasā, with his strength that overpowers enemies, ubhe rodasī, both heaven and earth, nī ṛñjate, adorns exceedingly — ṛñjati has the sense of adorning, says Yāska (Nī. 6-21 [?]). That Indra is vṛṣā, capable of showering; vṛṣatvā, by that very capacity of showering, vṛṣabhah, the shower of desires, or of the waters."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Adhvaryu) śākinē — to the powerful; śacīvate — the wise; śakrāya — to Indra; arca — offer worship; śṛṇvantam — [him] who listens (to your hymns); indram — Indra; mahayan — worshipping; abhi stuhi — stand before him and praise him; yaḥ — which Indra; dhṛṣṇunā — overpowering (the enemies); śavasā — by strength; ubhe rodasī — both heaven and earth; nyṛñjate — adorns completely; (saḥ) — that Indra; vṛṣā — able to cause the rain; vṛṣatvā — by this capacity; vṛṣabhah — the giver of our desires, or the giver of the waters of the rain (so well known)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Adhvaryu, offer worship to Indra, who is powerful and wise. Worshipping Indra who listens to your hymns, stand before him and praise him. Indra who adorns both heaven and earth with his enemy-overpowering strength is capable of sending the rain, and by his own capacity gives us our desires."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 309)

— "Adore the wise and powerful Indra; adoring the listening Indra, praise him who adorns both heaven and earth by his irresistible [sic] might, he is the sender of showers, and by his bounty gratifies our desires."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 309 - śākine — "For the word śāka, formed from the root śakḷ śaktau, the sense is 'power'. One who has śāka is śākī: one who has complete power." - śṛṇvantam — "This is an epithet of the word indra: 'one who listens attentively to the hymns of those who praise him'." - abhi ṣṭuhi — "Stand facing him and make his hymn." - ubhe rodasī — "The two, heaven and earth. Here, though the sense of the word ubhe is understood from the dual alone on the word rodasī, one should know that the use of the word ubhe is for clarity." - nyrñjate — "Nitarāṃ prasādhayati: from the root ṛji bhrjī bharjane, joined with the preposition ni, this verb-form gives the sense 'adorns'. The Nirukta itself is the authority: 'rñjatiḥ prasādhanakarmā' (Ni. 6-21 as read [?])."

ऋज्जतिः प्रसाधनकर्मा । (Ni. 6-21 as read [?])

rñjatiḥ prasādhanakarmā | — editorial and tentative: "rñj is [a verb] of the action of adorning." - vṛṣā — "One who causes the rain." - vṛṣatvā — "One who has the capacity of showering rain." - vṛṣabhaḥ — "One who fulfils the desires of the sacrificers; or one who satisfies all with the gift in the form of rain (Indra)."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁴ - arca: arca pūjāyām; loṭ second singular sip; serhy apicca (Pā. 3-4-87) gives hi for sip; kartari śap; since a precedes, ato heḥ drops hi; since the word begins a pāda, there is no nighāta; śap being pit, anudāttau supitau makes it anudātta, so the root's own accent remains; in the Saṃhitā, dvyaco 'tas tiṇaḥ (Pā. 6-3-135) lengthens the final: arcā. - śākine: śaktiḥ śākaḥ; śakḷ śaktau; ghañ in the sense of the action; ñit, so ata upadhāyāḥ gives vṛddhi; "sāko 'syāsti": ata ini-ṭhanau (Pā. 5-2-115) gives ini; yasyeti ca drops the a: śākin; dative: the dative stands since kriyāgrahaṇam kartavyam gives the object the sampradāna-name. - abhi ṣṭuhi: ṣṭuñ stutau; loṭ second singular, sip→hi; being apit, no guṇa; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ drops śap: stuhi; upasargāt

sunoti... (Pā. 8-3-65) gives ṣatva to the root's s after the prefix abhi; ṣṭunā ṣṭuḥ turns the t of the root into ṭ; so ṣṭuhi; nighāta. - dhṛṣṇunā: ñidhrṣā prāgalbhye; trasigr̥dhidhr̥ṣikṣipeḥ knuḥ; being kit, no guṇa; the instrumental singular: nā, since dhṛṣṇu has the ghi-designation, āño nā... the nā is allowed; the suffix-accent applies. - vṛṣatvā: vṛṣu secane; tva in the sense of the action; in the instrumental, supām suluk gives ā: vṛṣatvā; end-acute by the suffix-accent. - nyṛñjate: ṛji bhr̥jī bharjane; since idit, idito num dhātoḥ gives num; vyatyayo bahulam gives śa [as śap] for the characteristic; ṛñjate; with the prefix ni, iko yaṇaci gives yaṇ to the i; since it follows an atiñ... the anudātta accent from tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāl..., so the vikaraṇa accent holds; because the relative yaḥ stands before, yadvṛttānnityam forbids the nighāta. || 2 ||

original p. 311

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

अर्चा दिवे बृहते शूष्यं वचः स्वक्षत्रं यस्य धृषतो धृषन्मनः । बृहच्छ्रवा असुरो बर्हणा कृतः पुरो हरिभ्यां वृषभो रथो हि षः ॥ ३ ॥ *arcā dive bṛhate śūṣyam vacaḥ svakṣatram yasya dhṛṣato dhṛṣan manaḥ | bṛhacchravā asuro barhaṇā kṛtaḥ puro haribhyām

vṛṣabho ratho hi ṣaḥ || 3 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अर्च । दिवे । बृहते । शूष्यम् । वचः । स्वक्षत्रम् । यस्य । धृषतः । धृषत् । मनः ।
बृहत्श्रवाः । असुरः । बर्हणा । कृतः । पुरः । हरिभ्याम् । वृषभः । रथः । हि । षः ॥ ३ ॥ *arca | dive | bṛhate | śūṣyam | vacaḥ | sva-kṣatram | yasya |

dhṛṣataḥ | dhṛṣat | manaḥ | bṛhat-śravāḥ | asuraḥ | barhaṇā |
kṛtaḥ | puraḥ | haribhyām | vṛṣabhaḥ | rathaḥ | hi | ṣaḥ || 3 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे स्तोतः दिवे दीप्ताय बृहते महते इन्द्राय शूष्यम् । शूषमिति सुखनाम । तत्र साधु
 शूष्यम् । तादृशं स्तुतिलक्षणं वचोऽर्च । उच्चारय । यस्येन्द्रस्य धृषतः शत्रून्धर्षयतः
 स्वक्षत्रं स्वभूतबलवन्मनो धृषत् धृष्टं भवति । हि षः स हि स खल्विन्द्रो बृहच्छ्रवाः
 प्रभूतयशा असुरः शत्रूणां निरसिता । यद्वा । असुः प्राणो बलं वा । तद्वान् । रो मत्वर्थीयः । अथवा । असवः प्राणाः । तेन चापो लक्ष्यन्ते । प्राणा वा आपः । तै.
 ब्रा. ३-२-५-२ [?] इति श्रुतेः । तानाप्रति ददातीत्यसुरः । बर्हणा शत्रूणां निबर्हयिता हरिभ्यामश्वाभ्यां पुरस्कृतः पूजितः वृषभः कामानां वर्षिता रथो रंहणशीलः ॥

*he stotaḥ dive dīptāya bṛhate mahate indrāya śūṣyam | śūṣam iti
 sukhanāma | tatra sādhu śūṣyam | tādrśaṃ stutīlakṣaṇaṃ vaco
 'rca | uccāraya | yasyendrasya dhṛṣataḥ śātrūn dharṣayataḥ
 svakṣatram svabhūtabalavan mano dhṛṣat dhṛṣṭaṃ bhavati | hi ṣaḥ sa hi sa khalv indro bṛhacchravāḥ prabhūtayaśā asuraḥ śātrūṇāṃ nirasitā | yadvā | asuḥ prāṇo balaṃ vā | tadvān | ro matvarthīyaḥ | athavā | asavaḥ prāṇāḥ | tena cāpo lakṣyante |
 prāṇā vā āpaḥ | tai. brā. 3-2-5-2 [?] iti śruteḥ | tān āprati [?]
 dadātīty asuraḥ | barhaṇā śātrūṇāṃ nibarhayitā haribhyām aśvābhyām puraskṛtaḥ pūjitaḥ vṛṣabhaḥ kāmānāṃ varṣitā ratho raṃhaṇaśīlaḥ ||* ¹⁵

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O praiser: to Indra, dive, the shining, bṛhate, the great — śūṣyam: śūṣa is a name for happiness, and what is good in that is śūṣya — such a word of praise, arca, utter. Of that Indra dhṛṣataḥ, who overpowers enemies, svakṣatram, whose own-born strength, manaḥ, mind, is dhṛṣat, bold; for he, bṛhacchravāḥ, of great renown, asuraḥ, the thrower-off of enemies — or asu is breath, or strength; one who has it (ra is the

15. Reading notes: "tān āprati dadātīty" — the print gives "tānāprati" or "tānāprati", crowded, [?]; The sense taken is "he gives these [the waters, the life-breaths]". The grammatical tail, p. 311 foot: on śūṣyam (sukhanāma; tatra sādhu, yat), dhṛṣataḥ, bṛhacchravāḥ (bahuvrīhi with first-member accent), asuraḥ (asu kṣepaṇe, Uṇādi uran, Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]; or the ra-suffix in the possessive sense), barhaṇā, purāḥ (pūrvādharaṇā..., as read, [?]) — is characterized.

possessive suffix); or asavaḥ are the life-breaths, and by that the waters are meant ('the waters are indeed life-breaths', Tai. Brā. 3-2-5-2 [?]); he who gives these — barhaṇā, the destroyer of enemies, haribhyām, honoured by the two horses placed in front, vṛṣabhaḥ, the shower of desires, rathaḥ, swift-going [or: 'a chariot', as the print has the word rathaḥ separate, [?]]."

Rik 54.3, continued ¹⁶

Pratipadārtha — "(O praiser) dive — to the shining; bṛhate — the wonderful Indra; sūśyam — delight-giving; vacaḥ — (the hymn-form) word; arca — offer, utter; dhṛṣataḥ — who makes enemies afraid, or who is himself fearless; yasya — of which Indra; svakṣatram — firm by his own strength; manaḥ — the mind; dhṛṣat — has become fixed (with single-pointed intent); hi saḥ — for that Indra; bṛhacchravāḥ — of excessive renown; asuraḥ — the sender of rain-water; barhaṇā — the one who breaks and drives off the enemies; rathaḥ — the one who moves (hither; i.e. who comes to us)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O praiser, offer a delight-giving hymn to the shining, wonderful Indra. That Indra, whose firm mind is single-pointedly set, who makes enemies fear and himself fears none, is of great renown; he sends down the water of the rain; he breaks and drives off enemies, and comes to us."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 312)

— "Offer pleasant laudations to the great and illustrious Indra, who is the victor of enemies and is firm-minded by his own strength. He, of great renown is obeyed by his horses, the showerer of bounties and impetuous, drives away the Asuras and enemies."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 312 - dive — "The word div, which denotes the atmosphere, has here the sense of brightness. It is an epithet of the word br̥hat." - śūṣyam — "Śūṣa means happiness. A hymn that gives happiness is called śūṣya." - asuraḥ — "One who casts off enemies. Or: asuḥ prāṇo balaṃ vā tadvān asuraḥ: if one explains thus, it means 'one who has special strength'. Or asavaḥ means the life-breaths, and by that, water is also meant: the śruti 'prāṇā vā āpaḥ' (Tai. Brā. 3-2-5-2 as read [?]) is the authority for this. One who rāti, gives, such water: the Rākṣasas like Vṛtra from time to time took the form of clouds and obstructed the earth's waters; he kills such. Or, he himself brings the rain to the earth (Indra)."

प्राणा वा आपः । (Tai. Brā. 3-2-5-2 as read [?])

prāṇā vā āpaḥ | — editorial and tentative: "the waters are indeed the life-breaths." - barhaṇā — "One who makes the enemies flee in all directions." - vṛṣabhaḥ — "One who rains the desired ends like rain." - rathaḥ — "Raṃhanaśīlaḥ: one whose nature is to move swiftly; one who attacks enemies (Indra)."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁷ - dive: dative singular of div; the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidaṃ padādi... (Pā. 6-1-171). - śūṣyam: "śūṣe sādhu śūṣyam", tatra sādhuḥ (Pā. 4-4-98) gives yat; because it begins with y it gets the bha-designation; yasyeti ca drops the a; since yat is tit, yato 'nāvaḥ would give the initial acute, but "all rules are optional in the Veda" (sarve vidhayaś chandasi vikalpyante), so it does not come here; tit svaritam gives svarita. - dhṛṣataḥ: ñidhṛṣā prāgalbhye; śatr in the sense of laṭ; vyatyayo bahulam gives śa-characteristic instead of śap; so no laghūpadha-guṇa; sārvadhātukam apit makes it ñit; ato guṇe gives pararūpa: dhṛṣat; genitive singular; śaturanumo nadyajādī gives the ending its acute. - br̥hacchravāḥ: "br̥hat śravo yasya": a bahuvrīhi; bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam. - asuraḥ: asu kṣepaṇe, divādī;

17. p. 313 — grammar page, noted briefly

asser uran (Uṇ. 1-42 as read [?]) gives uran; being nīt, ñnityādir nityam gives the initial acute. - barhaṇā: supām suluk... gives ā in the instrumental [as printed; probably "nominative"] dual...: [the print says "third dual"; it is noted as read, [?]]. - poraḥ: pūrvādharaṇām asi puradhavaś caiṣām (Pā. 5-3-39 as read [?]) gives asi in the sense of "from this"; with it pūrva takes the substitute pur: purās; ru, visarga: poraḥ; end-acute by the suffix-accent. || 3 ||

original p. 313

Rik 4 — metre Triṣṭubh? — the heading marks Riks 6, 8, 9, 11 as Triṣṭubh, so Rik 4 is Jagatī

Samhitā-pāṭha

त्वं दिवो बृहतः सानु कोपयोऽव त्मना धृषता शंबरं भिनत् । यन्मायिनो वृन्दिनो मन्दिना धृषच्छिताम् गभस्तिमशनिं पृतन्यसि ॥ ४ ॥ *tvaṃ divo bṛhataḥ sānu kopayo 'va tmanā dhṛṣatā śambaram bhinat | yan māyino vṛndino mandinā dhṛṣac chitām gabhastim

aśanim prtanyasi || 4 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । दिवः । बृहतः । सानु । कोपयः । अव । त्मना । धृषता । शम्बरम् । भिनत् । यत् ।
मायिनः । वृन्दिनः । मन्दिना । धृषत् । शिताम् । गभस्तिम् । अशनिम् । पृतन्यसि ॥ ४ ॥

*tvaṃ | divaḥ | bṛhataḥ | sānu | kopayaḥ | ava | tmanā | dhṛṣatā
| śambaram | bhinat | yat | māyinaḥ | vṛndinaḥ | mandinā |
dhṛṣat | śitām | gabhastim | aśanim | prtanyasi || 4 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वं बृहतो महतो दिवो द्युलोकस्य सानु समुच्छितमुपरिप्रदेशं कोपयः ।
आकम्पयः । धृषता शत्रूणां धर्षयित्रा त्मनात्मना स्वयमेव
शंबरमेतत्संज्ञमसुरमवाभिनत् । अवधीः । यद्यदा वृन्दिनः शत्रून् जेतुं मृदुभावं
प्राप्तान् । यद्वा वृन्दं समूहः । असुरसमूहवतः । मायिनो मायाविनोऽसुरान् मन्दिना

हृष्वेन धृषत् धृषता प्रागल्भ्यं प्राप्तवता मनसा युक्तस्त्वं शिताम् तीक्ष्णीकृताम्
 गभस्तिं हस्तेन गृहीताम् । यद्वा गभस्तिरिति रश्मिनाम् । तद्वतीमशनिं वज्रं पृतन्यसि
 । तानसुरान् जेतुं पृतनारूपेणेच्छसि । तान् प्रति प्रेरयसीत्यर्थः । तदानीं बृहतो दिवः सानु कोपयः इति पूर्वणान्वयः ॥

*he indra tvam bṛhato mahato divo dyulokasya sānu samucchritam uparipradeśam kopayaḥ | ākampayaḥ | dhṛṣatā śatrūṇām dharṣayitrā tmanātmanā svayam eva śambaram etatsamjñam asuram avābhinat | avadhīḥ | yad yadā vṛndinaḥ śatrūn jetum mṛdubhāvaṃ prāptān | yadvā vṛndaṃ samūhaḥ |
 asurasamūhavataḥ | māyino māyāvino 'surān mandinā hṛṣvena dhṛṣat dhṛṣatā prāgalbhyaṃ prāptavatā manasā yuktas tvam śitām tīkṣṇīkṛtām gabhastim hastena grhītām | yadvā gabhastir iti raśminām | tadvatīm aśanim vajraṃ pṛtanyasi | tām asurān jetum pṛtanārūpeṇecchasi | tām prati prerayasīty arthaḥ | tadānīm
 bṛhato divaḥ sānu kopayaḥ iti pūrveṇānvayaḥ |* ¹⁸

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you kopayaḥ, shook, sānu, the lofty top, the upper region, of bṛhataḥ divaḥ, the great heaven; dhṛṣatā, overpowering enemies, tmanā, of yourself, by yourself alone, śambaram, the Asura of that name, avābhinat, you split; killed — yad, when vṛndinaḥ [those enemies that had become soft in order to conquer — or, vṛnda is a multitude: possessed of hosts of Asuras], the māyinaḥ, the deceitful Asuras: you, joined with a mind mandinā, glad and dhṛṣat, bold, pṛtanyasi, desire as an army — you hurl against them — aśanim, the thunderbolt, śitām, sharpened, gabhastim, held in the hand (or: gabhasti is a name of rays — bearing rays); to conquer those Asuras. Then, 'you shook the top of great heaven' — connect with the first part."

18. Reading notes: the print's "bṛhato maruto divo" at the head — "bṛhato mahato" is read, which the Pratipadārtha supports ("of the very great heaven"), [?]; "mṛdubhāvaṃ" is crowded, [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 314: on kopayaḥ (kupa kope, ṇic, lañ; the Vedic non-aṭ), tmanā (mantrēṣv āṇy ādeḥ... the loss of the a in ātman), dhṛṣat (supām suluk with luk for the instrumental), śitām (śo tanūkarāṇe, niṣṭhāyām śāc choranyatarasyām, Pā. 6-4-... as read [?]), pṛtanyasi (pṛtanām icchatī, supā ātmanaḥ kyac, the loss of the end of pṛtanā) — is characterized.

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) dhṛṣatā — causing fear to the enemies; tmanā — by your own power alone; śambaram — the Rākṣasa named Śambara; āvābhinat — you destroyed; yat — when; vṛndinaḥ — those who have taken a gentle manner in order to conquer their enemies, or those joined together in a mass; māyinaḥ — the deceitful Rākṣasas; mandinā — with a delighted; dhṛṣat (dhṛṣatā) — firm-resolved for the destruction of enemies, mind (you); śītām — sharpened; gabhastim — filled with rays, or held in the hand; aśanim — the thunderbolt; prṭanyasi — you hurled with force (upon that Asura); tvam — you; bṛhataḥ — very great; divaḥ — of the sky; sānu — the lofty region; kopayaḥ — shook."

Rik 54.4, continued ¹⁹

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, by your own enemy-destroying strength you destroyed the Rākṣasa named Śambara. When your enemies came together to conquer you, then you hurled, against those deceitful ones, with a delighted and firmly resolved mind, your thunderbolt — sharpened, and filled with rays — with force. By that onrush you shook the lofty region of the very great heaven."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 315)

— "You have shaken the summit of the spacious heavens; you have yourself killed Sambara by your foe-destroying might; you have hurled with exulting and determined mind the sharp and bright-eyed thunderbolt against the assembled Asuras."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 315–316 - idam uktaṁ bhavati ²⁰: "This is what is said: Śambara, accompanied by many māyā-working followers, came to fight with Indra. Then Indra, taking his sharp thunderbolt, which is fit to be grasped in the hand, and with delight born from drinking soma, and filled with courage and enthusiasm, fought with Śambara and killed him. At that time even the great heaven trembled with fear of Indra. The deceitful ones, of evil conduct, with many followers, came wishing to fight Indra; then Indra, having drunk the soma and become delighted, firm and enthusiastic, took his bright thunderbolt in his hand, fought Śambara and killed him. At that time, the great world of heaven also shook with the force of Indra." - divaḥ sānu — "The upper part of the world of heaven. In common usage the word sānu means the 'table-land of a mountain'; here they have said 'the upper part'." - tmanā — "The word ātman in the Veda, by the loss of the letter ā, gives the very sense of the word ātman." - śambaram — "Śambara is a well-known Rākṣasa. There are many tales in the Purāṇas that Manmatha (Kāma) killed him." - vṛndinaḥ — "This is an epithet of the word māyinaḥ: those who have taken a gentle manner by guile in order to conquer their enemies; or those who always have hosts of Asuras." - mandinā — "One of delighted mind. This is an epithet of Indra." - dhṛṣatā — "One who has the nature of a mind able to destroy enemies. (The context here is the praise of Indra.)" - gabhastim — "Hastena grhītā; or gabhastiḥ is a name of rays: possessing them. The thunderbolt that is to be held in Indra's hand, and that has bright rays." - prṭanyasi — "The word prtanā has both senses, 'battle' and 'army'. Here the meaning is 'we make the thunderbolt into the army'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²¹ - kopayaḥ: kupa kope, curādi; lañ after ṇic, second singular sip; itaś ca drops the i; before ṇic the root's penultimate takes guṇa (pugantalaḥpādhasya ca); śap causing guṇa and ayādeśa for ṇic; ru, visarga: kopayaḥ; bahulaṃ chandasya

20. Kannada, p. 315; the print gives it in Kannada with a few Sanskrit words

19. pp. 315–317, PDF 331–333

21. pp. 316–317 — grammar pages, noted briefly

amānyoge 'pi — no aṭ; nighāta. - tmanā: instrumental of ātman; mantreṣv ānyādeḥ ātmanaḥ (Pā. 6-4-141) drops the a. - māyinaḥ: as before, vrīhyādibhyaś ca gives ini; yasyeti ca; instrumental [i.e. accusative/nominative] plural form; the i acute by the suffix. - vṛndinaḥ: "vṛnde 'sya asti iti vṛndī"; ata ini-ṭhanau gives ini; yasyeti ca drops the a; the middle acute by the initial acute of the suffix. - dhṛṣat: ñidhṛṣā prāgalbhye; śatṛ; vyatyaya gives śa for śap; ato guṇe, pararūpa; in the instrumental singular supām suluk drops the ending (luk): dhṛṣat; ekāra... the accent of the characteristic (śatṛ). - śītām: śo tanūkaraṇe; niṣṭhā kta; śo + ta: śacchoranyatarasyām (Pā. 7-4-... as read [?]) gives optional i for ā: śīta; in the feminine ajādyatas ṭāp; end-acute by the suffix; accusative singular. - pṛtanyasi: "pṛtanām ātmana icchati pṛtanyati"; supa ātmanaḥ kyac gives kyac in the sense of desire; since pṛtanā + ya, kavyadhvarapṛtanasyarci lopah (Pā. 7-4-39) drops the end of pṛtanā; sanādyantā dhātavaḥ gives the root-designation; laṭ second singular sip; kartari śap; ato guṇe: pṛtanyasi; since yat stands first, yadvṛttān nityam forbids the nighāta; by the suffix-accent the vowel after y is acute. || 4 ||

original p. 317

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

नि यद्वृणक्षि श्वसनस्य मूर्धनि शुष्णस्य चिद्वृन्दिनो रोरुवद्वना । प्राचीनेन मनसा बर्हणावता यदद्या चित्कृणवः कस्त्वा परि ॥ ५ ॥ *ni yad vṛṇakṣi śvasanasya mūrdhani śuṣṇasya cid vṛndino roruvad vanā | prācīnena manasā barhaṇāvatā yadadyā cit kṛṇavaḥ kas

tvā pari || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

नि । यत् । वृणक्षि । श्वसनस्य । मूर्धनि । शुष्णस्य । चित् । वृन्दिनः । रोरुवत् । वना । प्राचीनेन । मनसा । बर्हणाऽवता । यत् । अद्य । चित् । कृणवः । कः । त्वा । परि ॥ ५ ॥

ni | yat | vṛṇakṣi | śvasanasya | mūrdhani | śuṣṇasya | cit |
 vṛndinaḥ | roruvat | vanā | prācīnena | manasā | barhaṇā-vatā |
 yat | adya | cit | kṛṇavaḥ | kaḥ | tvā | pari | | 5 | |

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya ²²

हे इन्द्र त्वं रोरुवत् मेघैः शब्दार्थं शब्दयन् श्वसनस्य । अन्तरिक्षे श्वसितीति श्वसनो
 वायुः । तस्य वृन्दिनः स्वकिरणैराम्रफलादीनां मृदुभावं प्रापयतः शुष्णस्य चित्
 रसानां शोषयितुरादित्यस्यापि मूर्धन्युपरिप्रदेशे वना वनान्युदकानि यद्यस्मान्निवृणक्षि
 आवर्जयसि । प्रापयसीत्यर्थः । वायुना सूर्यकिरणैश्च वृष्टा आपः सूर्यस्योपरि
 पुनरवस्थाप्यन्ते । तदेवावस्थापनमिन्द्रः करोतीत्युपचर्यते । प्राचीनेन प्रकर्षेण गन्त्रा
 । अपरा जुमेनेत्यर्थः [?] । बर्हणावता निबर्हयतीति वधकर्मसु पाठाद्धर्हणा शत्रूणां
 हिंसा । तद्वता । एवंभूतेन मनसा युक्तस्त्वं यद्यस्मादद्याचिदद्यापि कृणवः । घर्मकाले
 सूर्यस्योपरि भौमा रसान् वस्थापयसि वर्षासु च वर्षयसीति । यस्मादेतत्कुरुषे
 तस्मात्कारणात्वां परि ... कः ... [crowded] ... अतस्त्वमेव सर्वाधिक इति भावः ॥

he indra tvam roruvat meghaiḥ śabdārthaṃ śabdayan śvasanasya
 | antarikṣe śvasitīti śvasano vāyuh | tasya vṛndinaḥ svakiraṇair āmrāphalādīnāṃ mṛdubhāvaṃ prāpayataḥ śuṣṇasya cit rasānām śoṣayitur ādityasyāpi mūrdhany uparipradeśe vanā vanāny udakāni yad yasmān nivṛṇakṣi āvarjayasi | prāpayasīty arthaḥ | vāyunā sūryakiraṇaiś ca vṛṣṭā āpaḥ sūryasyopari punar avasthāpyante | tad evāvasthāpanam indraḥ karotīty upacaryate |
 prācīnena prakarṣeṇa gantrā | aparājumenety arthaḥ [?] | barhaṇāvatā nibarhayatīti vadhakarmasu pāthād barhaṇā
 śatrūṇām hiṃsā | tadvatā | evaṃbhūtena manasā yuktas tvam
 yad yasmād adyācid adyāpi kṛṇavaḥ | gharmakāle sūryasyopari
 bhaumā rasān vasthāpayasi varṣāsu ca varṣayasīti | yasmād etat kuruṣe tasmāt kāraṇāt tvam pari ... kaḥ ... [crowded] ... atas tvam eva sarvādhika iti bhāvaḥ | |

Rik 54.5, continued ²³

22. p. 317 — begins; continues on p. 318

23. pp. 318–321, PDF 334–337

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, grammatical tail ²⁴: prācīnena (añcu gatipūjanayoḥ, with ṛtvikdadṛk... the suffix kvin; the loss of the nasal; prāc, and the suffix kha by vibhāṣāñcer adikstriyām, Pā. 5-4-8 as read [?]; the īna substitute by āyaneyīniyiyah...; aco 'ñciti...); adyā cit (nipātasya ca, lengthening); kṛṇavaḥ (kṛvi hiṃsākaraṇayoś ca, idit, num; leṭ, sip, aṭ; the u suffix by dhinvikṛṇvyor a ca, Pā. 3-1-80 as read [?]; the v becomes a; ato lopa; guṇa, avādeśa); and the Nirukta passage (Ni. 3-... as read [?]):

वृन्दी वृन्देर्मृदुभावकर्मणः । निवृणक्षि यच्छसनस्य मूर्धनि शब्दकारिणः
शुष्णस्यादित्यस्य च शोषयितुः रोरूयमाणो वनानीति वा धनानीति वा ।

vṛndī vṛnder mṛdubhāvakarmanah | nivṛṇakṣi yac chvasanasya mūrdhani śabdakāriṇah śuṣṇasyādityasya ca śoṣayituh roruyamāṇo vanānīti vā dhanānīti vā | — editorial and tentative: "vṛndin is from vṛnd [a root] of the action of becoming soft; 'when you pour down on the head of the sounding wind and of the drying sun, roaring, the vana, or [= the dhana]' — [the Nirukta] says 'the waters' or 'the riches' (?)" — the Kannada (p. 321) says that in the dhanāni alternative the sense is "the waters of the cloud" ("meghasya dhanānīti vyākhyeyam").

Translation of the bhāṣya (as far as the print is legible, [?]): "O Indra, you, roaring through the clouds, in the head — the upper region — of śvasanasya, the wind (śvasana, that which breathes in the atmosphere), vṛndinaḥ, which brings softness to the mango-fruit and the like by its rays, and of śuṣṇasya cit, even of the sun, the drier-up of the juices, vanā, the waters, ni vṛṇakṣi, you pour down: you cause to reach. For the waters rained down by the wind and by the sun's rays are placed again above the sun; and Indra does just that placing — thus it is figuratively said. Prācīnena, with a mind of forward going, barhaṇāvātā, set on the destruction of enemies — such a mind — yad adyā cit kṛṇavaḥ: because even today you do this: in the hot season you hold up the earth's juices above the sun, and in the rains you rain. Because you do this, kaḥ tvā pari, who is above you [?]: therefore you alone are the highest — this is the sense."

24. p. 318 — characterized, not transcribed

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra, you) roruvat — making a roaring sound (with the clouds); śvasanasya — of the wind; vṛndinaḥ — of the ripener (of fruits); śuṣṇasya cit — of the sun, the drier-up of juices; mūrdhani — upon the head; vanā — the waters; yat — for which reason (by whose power); ni vṛṇakṣi — you pour down (and not only that); prācīnena — with a mind of excellent (firm) motion; barhaṇāvātā — intent upon destroying enemies; manasā — with such a mind; (you) yat — because; adyā cit — even today; kṛṇavaḥ — you are doing (the extraordinary acts spoken of); tvā pari — above you; kaḥ — who is there?"

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, roaring with the clouds, you pour down the waters upon the head of the wind and upon the head of the sun, the ripener of fruits and the drier of juices; and even today, with a mind of excellent motion, intent upon destroying enemies, you do such extraordinary acts. Who then is above you in power?"

English Translation (the source's own, p. 318)

— "Loud-shouting (Indra) you have poured the rain upon the wind and on the head of the maturing and absorbing (sun). Who is above you in the work that you, endowed with a mind, unaltered and bent upon destroying enemies have done to-day?"

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 319 - idam uktaṃ bhavati ²⁵: "This is what is said: Indra, in former times, struck with a cloud-rain the head of the Asura named Śuṣṇa, whose form is that of the absorbing [drier], and killed him: such is the statement in the words of the seers, and well known. Even today, if Indra wishes, he is able to do the same. This being so, who is greater than Indra? There is no one, is the sense." The Kannada adds: "In the past, when Indra killed the Asura named Śuṣṇa — who had the nature of drying up all things, absorbing water — it is told in the words of the seers that he killed him by sending down water from the cloud upon his head." - roruvat — "One who roars specially with the help of clouds: Indra." - śvasanasya — "Antarikṣe śvasitīti śvasanaḥ, the wind; 'one who breathes in the atmosphere', that is, 'one who moves', — this word denotes the wind." - vṛndinaḥ, śuṣṇasya — "Both these words denote the sun: one who, with the help of his own rays, makes hard things like the mango fruit soft; and also dries all the juices seen on this earth. Both these powers are in the sun. In the hot season he draws up with the sun all the juices that lie on the earth, and in the rainy season gives them back; since Indra has this power of giving them to the sun, Indra is called the best of all." - vṛṇakṣi — "Āvarjayasi: the rain that falls to the earth from the sun and the wind joins the sun and the wind again in the form of vapour. This work is done by Indra; thus Indra is praised." - barhaṇāvātā — "As the word barhaṇā is read in the sense of harm, barhaṇāvātā means 'making harm'. This applies to Indra's mind." - kṛṇavaḥ — "This word, formed from the root kṛvi hiṃsākaraṇayoś ca, gives the sense of 'doing'." - vṛndinaḥ śuṣṇasya — "The explanation of these words is given in the Nirukta thus: 'vṛndī vṛndeḥ mṛdubhāvakarmaṇaḥ; śuṣṇasyādityasya ca śoṣayituḥ; roruyamāṇo vanānīti vā dhanānīti vā' (Ni. 3-... as read [?])." ²⁶

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁷ - vṛṇakṣi: vṛjī varjane, rudhādi; laṭ second singular sip; rudhādibhyaḥ śnam; being mit, it follows the last vowel; vṛnaj + si: coḥ kuḥ gives g by kutva; khari ca gives k by carva; ādeśapratyayayoḥ gives ṣatva; with k + ṣ the cluster kṣ; ṛkāra-preceded, ṇatva by ṛvarṇān nasya ṇatvaṃ vācyam: vṛṇakṣi;

26. p. 321 adds: "In another order": "nivṛṇakṣi yac chvasanasya mūrdhani śabdakāriṇaḥ śuṣṇasyādityasya ca śoṣayituḥ roruyamāṇo vanānīti vā dhanānīti vā (Ni. 3-... [?])". The Kannada: "In the alternative of 'dhanāni', the explanation is 'the waters of the cloud'."

27. pp. 320-321 — grammar pages, noted briefly

there being a yat before, no nighāta; by the characteristic's accent the vowel after ṇ is acute; sip being pit, anudātta. - prācīnena: añcu with the prefix pra; ṛtvikdadhr̥k... gives kvin; aniditām hala upadhāyāḥ kñiti drops the penultimate nasal; prāc; with vibhāṣāñcer adikstriyām (Pā. 5-4-8 as read [?]) the suffix kha in the pleonastic sense; āyaneyīnīyiaḥ phadḥakhachaghām pratyayādīnām gives īn for kha; ac: acaḥ (Pā. 6-4-138) drops the a of the añc root which has lost its nasal; because of cau, the lengthening of the preceding syllable when the root's nasal and a are lost: prācīna; since kha is ñit-like, īn is treated as upadeśavat, so the ī is acute (acaḥ... upadeśavad bhāva); instrumental singular. - adyā cit: adya is a nipāta; nipātasya ca gives the lengthening. - kṛṇavaḥ: kṛvi hiṃsākaraṇayoś ca; idit, so num; leṭ second singular sip; leṭo 'ṭātau gives aṭ; dhinvikṛṇvor a ca (Pā. 3-1-80) gives u; the v of the root becomes a; ato lopaḥ drops it; because of aci śnudhātubhruvām... (śnudhātu...); pugantalaghūpadhasya ca does not give guṇa; kṛṇu + as: ṇatva after ṛ; guṇa of the u for the as; avādeśa; ru, visarga: kṛṇavaḥ; since aṭ is anudātta, the vowel after ṇ is acute by the suffix; since yat is connected, no nighāta. - The Kannada gives here another way of deriving the form in the Nirukta: "vṛndī from the root vṛnd in the sense of becoming soft; ṇini in the sense of habit: vṛndinaḥ in the plural."

original p. 321

Rik 6 — metre Triṣṭubh

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

त्वमाविथ नर्यं तुर्वशं यदुं त्वं तुर्वीति वय्यं शतक्रतो । त्वं रथमेतशं कृत्व्ये धने त्वं पुरो नवतिं दम्भयो नव ॥ ६ ॥

tvam āvitha naryam turvaśam yadam tvam turvītiṃ vayyam śatakrato | tvam ratham etaśam kṛtvye dhane tvam puro navatiṃ dambhaya nava || 6 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । आविथ । नर्यम् । तुर्वशम् । यदुम् । त्वम् । तुर्वीतिम् । वय्यम् । शतक्रतो इति
 शतऽक्रतो । त्वम् । रथम् । एतशम् । कृत्व्ये । धने । त्वम् । पुरः । नवतिम् । दम्भयः । नव ॥ ६ ॥

tvam | āvitha | naryam | turvaśam | yadum | tvam | turvītim |
 vayyam | śatakrato iti śata-krato | tvam | ratham | etaśam |
 kṛtvyē | dhane | tvam | puraḥ | navatim | dambhayaḥ | nava || 6
 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वं नर्यादीन् त्रीन् राज्ञ आविथ ररक्षिथ । तथा हे शतक्रतो बहुविधकर्मन्
 बहुविधप्रज्ञ वा त्वं वय्यं वय्यकुलजं तुर्वीतिनामानं राजानमाविथेत्येव । अपि च त्वं
 रथं रंहणस्वभावमेतत्संज्ञमृषिमेतशमेतत्संज्ञकं धने धननिमित्ते संग्रामे कृत्व्ये कर्तव्ये
 सत्याविथेति शेषः । यद्वा । पूर्वोक्तानां राज्ञां रथम् । एतशः इत्यश्वनाम । एतशमश्वं
 च ररक्षिथेति योज्यम् । तथा त्वं शंबरस्य नवतिं नव नवोत्तरनवतिसंख्याकाः पुरः पुराणि दम्भयः व्यनीनशः ॥

he indra tvam naryādīn trīn rājña āvitha rarakṣitha | tathā he śatakrato bahuvidhakarman bahuvidhaprajña vā tvam vayyam vayyakulajam turvītināmānam rājānam āvithety eva | api ca tvam ratham raṁhaṇasvabhāvam etatsamjñam ṛṣim etaśam etatsamjñakam dhane dhananimitte saṁgrāme kṛtvyē kartavye satyāvitheti śeṣaḥ | yadvā | pūrvoktānām rājñām ratham | etaśaḥ
 ity aśvanāma | etaśam aśvam ca rarakṣitheti yojyam | tathā tvam śaṁbarasya navatim nava navottaranavatisaṁkhyākāḥ puraḥ
 purāṇi dambhayaḥ vyanīnaśaḥ ||

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you protected naryādīn trīn, the three kings beginning with Narya [Narya, Turvaśa and Yadu]; and, O śatakrato, of many works or many wisdoms, you protected the king named Turvīti, born in the family of Vayya. Further, you protected, in the battle for wealth that was to be fought, the chariot — of swift nature — and the sage named Etaśa; or: the chariot of those kings spoken of; etaśa is a name for the horse: construe 'you protected the horse also'. And you, navatiṃ nava, ninety-nine cities of Śambara you dambhayaḥ, destroyed."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) tvam — you; naryam — (the king) Narya; turvaśam — Turvaśa; yadum — Yadu; āvitha — protected; (likewise) śatakrato — O Indra of many works, or of many kinds of wisdom (or who performed a hundred sacrifices); tvam — you; vayyam — born in the family of Vayya; turvītim — the king named Turvīti (protected); tvam — you; ratham — [their] chariots; etaśam — and horses — or [ratham — the sage named Ratha; etaśam — the sage named Etaśa]; dhane — in the battle for wealth; kṛtvye — that must necessarily be fought (you protected); tvam — you; śambarasya — of Śambara; navatiṃ nava — ninety-nine; purah — cities; dambhayaḥ — destroyed."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra of many works, you protected the kings Narya, Turvaśa and Yadu, and likewise Turvīti, of the family of Vayya. You protected their chariots and horses in the battle for wealth that had to be won. And you destroyed Śambara's ninety-nine cities."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 322)

— "You have protected Narya, Turvasa, Yadu and Turviti, of the race of Vayya; you have protected their chariots and horses in a battle undertaken for necessary wealth; you have destroyed the ninety-nine cities (of Sambara)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 322 (begins) - turvaśam, yadum — "See what we have written on them in Ṛ. Saṃ. Part 4, pp. 210–212 [numerals as read, [?]]." - turvītim — "His matter is described in Ṛ. Saṃ. Part 4, p. 214 [?]." - naryam — "The name of a king. His name occurs in this Rik and in Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-100-... [?]. Since it is found nowhere else, we have not learned more about him." - śatakrato — "'One who has many kinds of deeds,' or 'one who has many kinds of wisdom,' or 'one who has performed a hundred sacrifices': thus they explain the word indra in many ways."

Rik 54.6, continued ²⁸

Special Topics, rest - vayyaṃ turvītim — "Vayya is the name of a family. The one born in it is the king named Turvīti. Indra saved him from the troubles of the Rākṣasas and protected him." - etaśaṃ ratham — "The two words ratha and etaśa may each indicate the name of a king; or the word ratha may mean the chariots of some of the kings spoken of before, and the word etaśa may mean 'horse' — 'one who goes (eti)' is the derivation for the sense of horse." - navatiṃ nava — "It means ninety-nine. It is an epithet of the word poraḥ. The Asura Śambara had ninety-nine cities; Indra destroyed all of them: thus Indra is praised here."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁹ - āvitha: ava rakṣaṇe; liṭ second singular sip, thal by parasmaipadānāṃ ṇalatusus...; reduplication; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; lengthening by akaś ca ādeḥ [as read, "ataḥ ādeḥ", Pā. 7-4-70]; iṭ for thal: āvitha; following an atiṇ, nighāta. - śatakrato: āmantritasya ca gives the nighāta. - etaśam: "eti gacchatīti etaśaḥ"; iṇ gatau, adādi; iṇas taśan-kaśasunau (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]) gives taśan; when taśan follows, sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ gives guṇa; ñnityādir nityam gives the initial acute. - kṛtvye: prṣodarādīni yathopadiṣṭam: since kartavye is thus read, the form kṛtvye arises by letter-change and loss. - dambhayaḥ: dambhu dambhe, curādi; laṇ second singular sip; itaś ca drops the i; kartari śap after ṇic; guṇa and ayādeśa with śap as cause; ru, visarga; no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāñyoge 'pi: dambhayaḥ; tiṇ atiṇaḥ, nighāta. || 6 ||

original pp. 324-327

28. p. 323, PDF 339

29. p. 323 — grammar page, noted briefly

Rik 7

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

स घा राजा सत्पतिः शूशुवज्जनो रातहव्यः प्रति यः शासमिन्वति । उक्था वा यो अभिगृणाति राधसा दानुरस्मा उपरा पिन्वते दिवः ॥ ७ ॥ sa ghā rājā satpatiḥ śūśuvaj jano rātahavyaḥ prati yaḥ śāsam invati | ukthā vā yo abhigrṇāti rādhasā dānur asmā uparā pinvate

divaḥ || 7 ||

Pada-pāṭha

सः । घ । राजा । सत्पतिः । शूशुवत् । जनः । रातहव्यः । प्रति । यः । शासम् । इन्वति । उक्था । वा । यः । अभिगृणाति । राधसा । दानुः । अस्मै । उपरा । पिन्वते । दिवः ॥ ७ ॥

sah | gha | rājā | sat-patiḥ | śūśuvat | janaḥ | rāta-havyaḥ | prati
| yaḥ | śāsam | invati | ukthā | vā | yaḥ | abhi-grṇāti | rādhasā |
dānuḥ | asmai | uparā | pinvate | divaḥ || 7 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

स घ स खलु जनो जातो राजा राजमानः सत्पतिः सतां पालयिता यजमानः शूशुवत्
आत्मानं वर्धयति । य इन्द्रं प्रति रातहव्यो दत्तहविष्कः सन्
शासमिन्द्रकर्तृकमनुशासनं यद्वा तस्य स्तुतिमिन्वति व्याप्नोति । उक्था वोक्थानि
शस्त्राणि वा यः स्तोता राधसा हविर्लक्षणेनान्नेन सहाभिगृणाति
तस्याभिमुखीकरणाय शंसति । अस्मै स्तोत्रे दानुरभिमतफलप्रदातेन्द्र उपरो
परान्मेघान् । उपर इति मेघनाम । स च यास्केनैवं निरुक्तः । उपर उपलो मेघो भवत्युपरमन्तेऽस्मिन्भ्राण्युपरता आप इति वा । निरु. २-२१ [?] इति । तान्
मेघान् दिवः सकाशात् पिन्वते । सेचयति । दोग्धीति यावत् ॥ sa gha sa khalu jano jāto rājā rājamānaḥ satpatiḥ satām pālayitā yajamānaḥ śūśuvat ātmānaṃ vardhayati | ya indraṃ prati rātahavyo dattahaviṣkaḥ san śāsam indrakartṛkam anuśāsanam yadvā tasya stutim invati vyāpnoti | ukthā vokthāni śastrāṇi vā yaḥ stotā rādhasā havirlakṣaṇenānnena sahābhigrṇāti tasyābhimukhikaraṇāya śaṃsati | asmai stotre dānur

*abhimataphalapradātendra upero [= uparo] parān meghān | upara
iti meghanāma | sa ca yāskenaivam niruktaḥ | upara upalo megho bhavaty uparamante 'sminn abhrāṇy uparatā āpa iti vā | niru.
2-21 [?] iti | tān meghān divaḥ sakāśāt pinvate | secayati |
dogdhīti yāvat | |*³⁰

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Sa gha: that man indeed, born a rājā, shining, satpatiḥ, the protector of the good — the sacrificer — śūśuvat, increases himself — who, rātahavyaḥ, having given offerings to Indra, śāsam invati, comes to the command given by Indra, or pervades his praise; and who, the praiser, abhigṛṇāti, praises, in order to turn him towards himself, ukthā, recitations, or śāstras, together with rādhasā, food in the form of the oblation; for that praiser, Indra, dānuḥ, the giver of the desired fruit, uparā, makes the clouds — upara is a name for cloud, which Yāska explains thus: 'the upara, upala, is the cloud: on it the clouds are stopped, or the waters are stopped' (Ni. 2-21 [?]) — divaḥ, from heaven, pinvate, rain down, milk, as it were."

Pratipadārtha — "yaḥ — which man (towards Indra); prati — towards Indra; rātahavyaḥ — offering oblations; śāsam — Indra's command, or his praise; invati — is obeying (also); yaḥ — which one; ukthā vā — whether with uktha or with śāstra hymns [of the form of uktha or of śāstra]; rādhasā — with the food of the form of oblation; abhigṛṇāti — praises, to draw (him) towards himself; saḥ gha — that very; janaḥ — man; rājā —

30. Reading notes: "upero [uparo] parān meghān" is crowded, [?]; the Nirukta numeral as read, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 324 foot-325: on gha (the lengthening in the Saṃhitā by rci tunughamakṣutaṅkutroraśyāṇām, Pā. 6-3-133), satpatiḥ (patyāv aiśvarye), śūśuvat (tuōś vi gatīḥ vṛddhyoḥ; ṇic, luñ, cañ; saṃprasāraṇa; reduplication; dīrgho laghoḥ; uvañ), rātahavyaḥ, śāsam (śāsu anuśiṣṭau, ghañ), invati (ivi vyāptau, num, śap), abhigṛṇāti, uparā (lengthening by same-sound), pinvate (pivi mivi ṇivi secane) — is characterized and also given in the Kannada grammar notes below.

shining; satpatiḥ — the protector of the good, the sacrificer; śūsuvat — increases himself; asmai — for such a praiser; dānuḥ — Indra, the giver of desired things; uparā — clouds; divaḥ — from the atmosphere; pinvate — makes rain down."

Bhāvārtha — "The sacrificer who offers oblations to Indra, obeys his command, and praises him with uktha and śastra hymns together with the food-oblation, becomes a king, shining, the protector of the good, and grows. And Indra, the giver of desired fruits, calls down the clouds from the atmosphere and makes the rain fall for such a praiser."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 325)

— "That eminent person, the cherisher of the pious, advances his own prosperity, who while offering oblations to Indra, sings his praise; or who, along with the offerings he presents, recites hymns in honour of him; for him the bounteous Indra causes the clouds to rain from heaven."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 325–326 - idam uktaṃ bhavati ³¹:

इदमुक्तं भवति । यो जनो दत्तहविष्कः सन् तथा दत्तराधाः सन्निन्द्रस्य शासनं
पालयति तथा तस्य स्तुतीर्गायति स निःसंशयं सत्पती राजा भूत्वा वर्धते तदर्थं च दिव्या मेघोदकवृष्टिर्विपुलं यथा तथा पतेतीति ॥

idam uktaṃ bhavati | yo jano dattahaviṣkaḥ san tathā dattarādhāḥ sann indrasya śāsanam pālayati tathā tasya stutīr gāyati sa niḥsaṃśayaṃ satpatī rājā bhūtvā vardhate tadarthe ca divyā meghodakavṛṣṭir vipulaṃ yathā tathā patetīti || — "This is what is said: the man who, having given the oblation and having given food, obeys Indra's command and sings his praises, undoubtedly becomes a king, protector of the good, and grows; and for his sake the divine rain from the clouds falls in abundance." The Kannada adds: "Whichever sacrificer offers the oblation and the like to Indra, obeys his commands and, with hymns and the like, pleases Indra, becomes a king: for his benefit the clouds rain specially. In this matter, there is no doubt." - gha — "This is the word gha; it means khalu (indeed), 'with respect'. By the sūtra ṛci tunughamakṣu... the lengthening arises in the Saṃhitā." - satpatiḥ — "Here, one who protects the good — a sacrificer who is consecrated for a sacrifice." - śūśuvat — "This word, formed from the root ṭuoś vi gativṛddhyoḥ, a root with the sense of growth, indicates that 'he increases himself'." - rātahavyaḥ — "Rātaṃ havyaṃ yena saḥ: by this derivation, one who has offered the oblation to the deities." - śāsam — "This word, from the root śāsu anuśiṣṭau, gives the sense of Indra's command, or the praise of Indra." - rādhasā — "With food that is joined with the oblation." - ukthā vā — "Here the word uktha means certain mantras called śāstras." - uparā — "Upara is a name of the cloud. The Nirukta sūtra 'upara upalo megho bhavaty uparamante 'sminn abhrāṇy uparatā āpa iti vā' (Ni. 2-21 [?]) is the authority for this."

31. a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 325

उपर उपलो मेघो भवत्युपरमन्तेऽस्मिन्भ्राण्युपरता आप इति वा । (Ni. 2-21 as read [?])

upara upalo megho bhavaty uparamante 'sminn abhrāṇy uparatā āpa iti vā | — editorial and tentative: "upara, upala, is a cloud: in it the clouds come to rest; or [it is] the waters brought to a halt." - dānuḥ — "Indra, who gives all the desired objects the sacrificers ask for."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³² - gha: ṛci tunughamakṣutaṅkutroruṣyāṇām (Pā. 6-3-133) gives the lengthening in the Saṃhitā. - satpatiḥ: "satam patiḥ": patyāv aiśvarye (Pā. 6-2-18) keeps the accent of the first member. - śūśuvat: ṭuoś vi gativṛddhyoḥ; by hetumati ca the causative sense is shown, so ṇic; sanādyantā dhātavaḥ gives the root-designation;

in the sense of the present, chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭaḥ gives luṇ; third singular tip; itaś ca drops the i; ṇisridrusrubhyaḥ kartari caṇ gives caṇ for cli; the ṭu and o of the root are it [markers]; tasya lopah; since ṇic follows, the vrddhi would be reached, but by saṃprasāraṇaṃ tadāśrayakāryaṃ ca baliyaḥ (Pā. paribhāṣā) the saṃprasāraṇa of the v of śvi takes precedence over vrddhi etc., since it is more internal; hvaś ca saṃprasāraṇaṃ ca gives u for v; saṃprasāraṇāc ca gives the earlier form; reduplication by caṇi; śu + i + at; since saṃjñāpūrvako vidhir anityaḥ, no vrddhi; the ṇi is dropped by ṇer aniṭi; śuśu + at; sanvallahuni caṇparehy anoglope gives sanvad bhāva, so by ḍīrgho laghoḥ (Pā. 7-4-94) the reduplicative light vowel is lengthened; ajiśnudhātubhruvām... gives uvaṇ for the u: śuśuvat; no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi; nighāta. - rātahavyaḥ: "rātaṃ havyaṃ yena saḥ": a bahuvrihi: first-member accent; rā ādāne, suffix kta; the suffix-accent gives the end-acute. - śāsam: śāsu anuśiṣṭau; ghaṇ in the sense of the action; karṣātvato ghaṇo 'nta udāttaḥ would give the end-acute, but vyatyayo bahulam gives the initial-acute; or, because it belongs to the vr̥ṣādi list, vr̥ṣādīnām ca gives the initial-acute; or from śaṃsu stutau with ghaṇ in the action sense, the loss of n even without the cause by vyatyaya; ata upadhāyāḥ gives vrddhi: śāsa. - invati: ivi vyāptau, bhvādi; idito num dhātoḥ gives num; kartari śap; laṭ third singular tip; śap being pī, anudātta, so the root's accent stays; since yaḥ precedes, yadvṛttān nityam forbids the nighāta. - abhiḡṛṇāti: gṛ śabde, kryādi; laṭ with tip; kryādibhyaḥ śnā; prādīnām hrasvaḥ shortens the root's vowel; rvarṇān nasya ṇatvaṃ vācyam gives ṇa: gṛṇāti; tip being pī, anudātta, so the characteristic's accent stays; since yaḥ precedes, no nighāta. - uparā: upara + śas; supām suluk... gives the same-sound lengthening. - pinvate: pivi mivi ṇivi secane; idit, so num; vyatyayo bahulam gives the ātmanepada; ṭita ātmanepadānām ṭer e gives e: pinvate; tiṇ atīnaḥ, nighāta. || 7 ||

Rik 8 — metre Triṣṭubh

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

असमं क्षत्रमसमा मनीषा प्र सोमपा अपसा सन्तु नेमे । ये त इन्द्र ददुषो वर्धयन्ति महि क्षत्रं स्थविरं वृष्ण्यं च ॥ ८ ॥

*asamaṃ kṣatram asamā manīṣā pra somapā apasā santu neme | ye ta indra daduṣo vardhayanti mahi kṣatram sthaviraṃ vṛṣṇyaṃ
ca || 8 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

असमम् । क्षत्रम् । असमा । मनीषा । प्र । सोमऽपाः । अपसा । सन्तु । नेमे । ये । ते । इन्द्र । ददुषः । वर्धयन्ति । महि । क्षत्रम् । स्थविरम् । वृष्ण्यम् । च ॥ ८ ॥

*asamam | kṣatram | asamā | manīṣā | pra | soma-pāḥ | apasā |
santu | neme | ye | te | indra | daduṣaḥ | vardhayanti | mahi |
kṣatram | sthaviram | vṛṣṇyam | ca || 8 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

इन्द्रस्य क्षत्रं बलमसमम् । न केनचित्समम् । सर्वाधिकमित्यर्थः । तथा मनीषा
बुद्धिश्चासमा । न कस्यापि बुद्ध्या समाना । सर्वं वस्तु विषयीकरोतीत्यर्थः । नेमे इति
सर्वनामशब्द एतच्छब्दसमानार्थः । नेमे एते सोमपाः सोमस्य पातारो यजमाना
अपसा कर्मणा प्र सन्तु । प्रवृद्धा भवन्तु । हे इन्द्र ते तव ददुषो हविर्दत्तवन्तो ये
त्वदीयं महि महत् क्षत्रं बलं स्थविरं स्थूलं प्रवृद्धं वृष्ण्यं वृषत्वं पुंस्त्वं च वर्धयन्ति प्रवृद्धं कुर्वन्ति । यद्वा । ददुषो यजमानेभ्यो यागफलं दत्तवतस्तव ॥

*indrasya kṣatram balam asamam | na kenacit samam |
sarvādhikam ity arthaḥ | tathā manīṣā buddhiś cāsamā | na
kasyāpi buddhyā samānā | sarvaṃ vastu viṣayīkarotīty arthaḥ |
neme iti sarvanāmaśabda etacchabdasamānārthaḥ | neme ete
somapāḥ somasya pātāro yajamānā apasā karmaṇā pra santu | pravṛddhā bhavantu | he indra te tava daduṣo havirdattavanto ye tvadīyaṃ mahi mahat kṣatram balaṃ sthaviraṃ sthūlaṃ* *pravṛddhaṃ vṛṣṇyaṃ vṛṣatvaṃ puṃstvaṃ ca vardhayanti pravṛddhaṃ kurvanti | yadvā | daduṣo yajamānebhyo

yāgapalaṃ dattavatas tava ||* ³³

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Indra's kṣatra, strength, is asamam, equal to none: surpassing all, is the sense. And his manīṣā, wisdom, is also asamā, equal to none: no one's wisdom is like it; it takes in every object. Neme is a pronoun with the sense of ete, 'these': neme somapāḥ, these sacrificers, drinkers of soma, apasā, by rite, pra santu: may they grow great. O Indra, those daduṣaḥ, givers of oblations to you, who increase your mahi kṣatram, great strength, sthaviram, vast, enlarged, and vṛṣṇyam, manliness: they make it grow. Or: daduṣaḥ — of you who have given to the sacrificers the fruit of the sacrifice."

Pratipadārtha — "(Indrasya) kṣatram — the strength; asamam — has no equal (it exceeds the strength of all); manīṣā — also the wisdom; asamā — is unequalled; neme somapāḥ — these sacrificers who drink the soma juice; apasā — by their pure rites; pra santu — may they grow great (may they obtain strength and wisdom equal to Indra's); indra — O Indra; te — your (or of you who give the sacrificers the right fruits); daduṣaḥ — those who offer oblations; ye — which sacrificers; mahi — your great; kṣatram — strength; sthaviram — vast; vṛṣṇyam ca — and manly vigour; vardhayanti — make to grow; may they grow great."

33. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 328 foot: on neme (traya... sarvādi, the sarvanāma-designation; jaśaḥ śī; the accent by tva sama sima nema... phīṭ sūtra 4-... as read [?]), daduṣaḥ (ḍudāñ dāne, kvasu for liṭ; reduplication; ātolopa iṭi ca; vasoḥ saṃprasāraṇa; saṃprasāraṇaṃ tadāśrayakāryaṃ ca baliyaḥ; śāsivasighasīnāṃ ca), mahi (maha pūjāyām, Uṇādi in), sthaviram (ṣṭhā gatinivṛtau, kirac by ajirośiraśīthilasthiraśphirasthavira..., Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]) — is characterized and echoed in the Kannada notes below.

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, your strength is unequalled, and your wisdom is unequalled. May these sacrificers, drinkers of the soma juice, grow great by their pure rites, and obtain strength and wisdom equal to Indra's. O Indra, the sacrificers who offer oblations to you make your great strength and your vast manly vigour grow."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 329)

— "Peerless is his power; peerless is his wisdom; may these drinkers of the soma-juice become equal to him by the pious act, for they, Indra, who present oblations, to your augment your vast strength and your manly vigour."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 329–330 - kṣatram asamam — "Indra's power of kṣatra — the ability to destroy enemies — is greater than that of all. The sense is that none equal Indra in qualities such as valour." - neme — "This is a pronoun. It has the sense of the word etad ('this'): neme means 'these'." - somapāḥ — "Those who drink the soma juice, the sacrificers." - apasā — "The word apas means rites such as sacrifice (Ni. 2-1 as read [?])." - daduṣaḥ — "It must be understood that this is both the nominative plural and the genitive singular. As nominative plural it has the sense 'those who give oblations'; as genitive singular it is also used as an epithet of Indra, in the sense of 'Indra who gives the fruit of the sacrifice to sacrificers'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁴ - somapāḥ: "somaṃ pibanti iti somapāḥ"; pā pāne; kvip; since the kāraka is first, gatikārapapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the kṛdanta final member. - santu: as bhuvi, adādi; jhoṇtaḥ (Pā. 7-1-3 as read [?]) gives ant; eru ruḥ gives u; śnasor allopaḥ drops the a of the root: santu; tiṅ atinaḥ, nighāta. - neme: since it is read in the sarvādi list, sarvādīni sarvanāmāni gives the sarvanāma-designation; when jas follows, jaśaḥ śī (Pā. 7-1-17) gives śī for jas; anekāl śit sarvasya makes it replace the whole; ādgunaḥ: neme; since tva sama sima nema (Phit-sūtra) would give all-anudātta, vyatyayo bahulam gives the initial acute. - daduṣaḥ: ḍudāñ dāne; kvasuś ca gives kvasu for liṭ; reduplication; the reduplicative vowel shortened; dadā + vas: ātolopa iṭi ca drops the ā; vyatyayo bahulam gives śas-substitution for jas; ārdhadhātukasyeḍ valādeḥ would give iṭ and vasoḥ saṃprasāraṇam the saṃprasāraṇa of v; since saṃprasāraṇam tadāśrayakāryam ca baliyaḥ the saṃprasāraṇa takes precedence even over iṭ; saṃprasāraṇāc ca gives the earlier form; śāsivasighasīnām ca gives ṣatva: daduṣaḥ; since the suffix is initial-acute, daduṣaḥ is middle-acute. - mahi: maha pūjāyām; uṇādayo bahulam gives in; niṭ, so the initial acute. - sthaviram: ṣṭhā gatinivṛtau; ajirośiraśithilasthirasphirasthavira... (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]) the suffix kirac is irregularly given; "nīpāta" is the irregular utterance including operations not obtainable by other rules; hence the initial acute. || 8 ||

34. p. 330 — grammar page, noted briefly

original pp. 331–333

Rik 9 — metre Triṣṭubh

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

तुभ्येदेते बहुला अद्रिदुग्धाश्चमूषदश्चमसा इन्द्रपानाः । व्यश्नुहि तर्पया कामसेषामथा मनो वसुदेयाय कृष्व ॥ ९ ॥

tubhyed ete bahulā adridugdhās camūṣadaś camasā indrapānāḥ |
vy aśnuhi tarpayā kāmam eṣām athā mano vasudeyāya kṛṣva || 9
|| 35

Pada-pāṭha

तुभ्य । इत् । एते । बहुलाः । अद्रिदुग्धाः । चमूऽसदः । चमसाः । इन्द्रऽपानाः । वि । अश्नुहि
। तर्पय । कामम् । एषाम् । अथ । मनः । वसुदेयाय । कृष्व ॥ ९ ॥

35. The print joins "kāmam eṣām" as "kāmasesām"-looking in the Saṃhitā line; kāmam eṣām is read from the Pada.

tubhya | it | ete | bahulāḥ | adri-dugdhāḥ | camū-sadaḥ |
 camasāḥ | indra-pānāḥ | vi | asnuhi | tarpaya | kāmam | eṣām |
 atha | manaḥ | vasu-deyāya | kṛṣva || 9 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र तुभ्येत् तुभ्यमेव चमसाः । चम्यन्ते भक्ष्यन्त इति चमसाः सोमाः । एते
 सोमास्त्वदर्थं संपादिताः । कीदृशा इत्याह । बहुलाः प्रभूता अद्रिदुग्धाः
 अद्रिभिर्गावभिरभिषुताश्चमूषदश्चमूषु चमसेष्ववस्थिता इन्द्रपानाः इन्द्रस्य पानेन
 सुखकराः । अतस्त्वं तान्यश्नुहि । व्याप्नुहि । व्याप्य चैषां त्वदीयानामिन्द्रियाणां कामम् अभिलाषं तर्पय पूरयेति यावत् । अथानन्तरं वसुदेयायास्मभ्यमभिमतधनप्रदानाय त्वदीयं मनः कृष्व कुरुष्व ॥

he indra tubhyet tubhyam eva camasāḥ | camyante bhakṣyanta iti
 camasāḥ somāḥ | ete somās tvadārthaṁ saṁpāditāḥ | kīdrśā ity āha | bahulāḥ prabhūtā adridugdhāḥ adribhir grāvabhir abhiṣutās camūśadaś camūṣu camaseṣv avasthitā indrapānāḥ indrasya pānena sukhakarāḥ | atas tvaṁ tāny asnuhi | vyāpnuhi | vyāpya caiṣāṁ tvadīyānām indriyāṇām kāmam abhilāṣaṁ tarpaya pūrayeti yāvat | athānantaraṁ vasudeyāyāsmabhyam
 abhimatadhanapradānāya tvadīyaṁ manaḥ kṛṣva kuruṣva || 36

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, tubhya it: for you alone — camasāḥ: the camasas are Somas, so called because they are camyante, consumed. These Somas have been prepared for you.

36. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 331 foot: on tubhya (the dative form with the loss of the m by chāndasa), adridugdhāḥ (duha prapūraṇe; kta; dādhaḥ... ghoḥ for the h; ṛtīyā karmaṇi, the accent of the first member), camūśadaḥ (camu adane, kvip; ṣatva by pūrvapadāt saṁjñāyām agah), indrapānāḥ (karmaṇi ca yena saṁsparśāt kartuḥ śarīrasukham, lyuṭ), asnuhi (asū vyāptau, svādi; śnu), vasudeyāya (ḍudāñ dāne, yat by aco yat; it by īdyati) and kṛṣva (ḍukṛñ karaṇe; the loss of the u-vikaraṇa by bahulaṁ chandasi) — is characterized, echoed in the Kannada grammar notes below.

What are they like? Bahulāḥ, abundant; adridugdhāḥ, pressed by the stones; camūṣadaḥ, seated in the camū, the cups; indrapānāḥ, giving ease through Indra's drinking. Therefore you aśnuhi, partake — vy: pervade — of them, and, having filled yourself, kāmaṃ tarpaya, satisfy, fulfil, the desire of these your senses. Then, manaḥ kṛṣva, set your mind, vasudeyāya, upon giving us the wealth we desire."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra) tubhya it — for you alone; bahulāḥ — abundant; adridugdhāḥ — pressed with stones; camūṣadaḥ — in the cups; indrapānāḥ — fit for Indra's drinking; ete camasāḥ — these soma juices (have been prepared); vyaśnuhi — you drink them completely (and); eṣām — of your senses; kāmam — desire; tarpaya — satisfy; atha — afterwards; vasudeyāya — for the wealth to be given to us; manaḥ — your mind; kṛṣva — set."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, these soma juices, fit for your drinking, have been abundantly pressed with stones and set in the cups. Drink them as much as you wish and satisfy the desire of your senses. Afterwards set your mind upon giving us the wealth we need."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 332)

— "These copious Soma-juices expressed with stones and contained in ladles, are prepared for you; they are the beverage of Indra; drink them; Sate your appetite with them; and then fix your mind on the wealth that is to be given to us."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 332–333 - tubhyet — "Tubhya + it: in the Veda the form tubhyam, the dative singular of yuṣmad, is used with the loss of the anusvāra (the letter m)." - camasāḥ — "Camyante bhakṣyante iti camasāḥ somāḥ: the soma juice fit to be consumed by the deities is called camasa." - adridugdhāḥ — "Here the word adri means stone: 'soma juice pressed with the help of stones'." - camūṣadaḥ — "Camūṣu camaseṣu avasthitāḥ: those which lie in the vessels called camasa, made of wood in the form of a ladle." - indrapānāḥ — "Soma juice suited to Indra's drinking; it is an epithet of the word camasāḥ." - vasudeyāya — "To give us the desired objects — that is, wealth, gold and the like — when you have been satisfied with the soma juice." - kṛṣva — "In the verb-form kṛṇuṣva, following the sūtra bahulaṃ chandasī, the middle nu — the vikaraṇa suffix — is dropped. The intention is: 'set your mind'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁷ - tubhya: tubhyam: supāṃ... tubhyamahyau ṇayi (Pā. 7-2-95) gives tubhya when ṇe follows the yusmad; the ending ṇe is replaced by ya (ṇer yaḥ) [as read, "jaya" for the ending], ṇe prathamayor am gives am, śeṣe lopah drops the rest, ami pūrvah gives the earlier substitution: tubhyam; in the Veda the m drops. - adridugdhāḥ: druha jighāṃsāyām [as printed; read duha prapūraṇe, [?]]; kta in the passive; hodhaḥ... when the ḍhatva is obtained, dādo... vā druhamuḥṣṇuḥṣṇihām gives gha [optional]; dhaḥ for t by jhaṣas tathor dho 'dhaḥ; jhalām jaś jhaśi, gha → g; adribhir dugdhāḥ: ṛṭīyā karmaṇi (Pā. 6-2-48) gives the accent of the first member, an exception to the kṛdanta final-member accent. - camūśadaḥ: camu adane; camanti anena iti camūḥ; kṛṣicamitanidhanisarjyarthi... (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]) the Uṇādi ū; camūṣu sīdanti iti camūśadaḥ; sat-sūdvīśadruha... (Pā. 3-2-61) gives kvip; pūrvapadāt saṃjñāyām agaḥ (Pā. 8-3-106) gives ṣatva; gatiḥ kāropapadāt kṛt gives the kṛdanta accent of the final member. - indrapānāḥ: karmaṇi ca yena saṃsparśāt kartuḥ śarīrasukham (Pā. 3-3-116): lyuṭ after pā with the object as upapada; yuvor anākau gives ana: indrapāna. - aśnuhi: aśū vyāptau, svādi; vyatyayo bahulam gives the parasmaipada; loṭ second singular sip; hi for sip; svādibhyaḥ śnuḥ gives śnu: aśnuhi; tiṇ atiṇaḥ, nighāta. - vasudeyāya: ḍudāñ dāne; aco yat (Pā. 3-1-97) gives yat after ac-ending roots, in the sense of the action here; īdyati (Pā. 6-4-65) gives ī to the root's ā before yat; dī + ya: guṇa;

yato 'nāvaḥ gives the initial acute; compound with vasu, so gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the kṛdanta. || 9 || - kr̥ṣva ³⁸: ḍukṛñ karāṇe, ñit, so both padas; loṭ second singular; thāsaḥ se (Pā. 3-4-80) gives se; bahulaṃ chandasi drops the u-characteristic (vikaraṇa); sa after v: savābhyām vāmau (Pā. 3-4-91) gives va [the optional ending]; since s arises, ādeśapratyayayoḥ gives ṣatva; since sārvadhātukam apit gives ñit-ness, guṇa of the ṛ does not arise: kr̥ṣva; tiñ atinaḥ, nighāta. || 9 ||

original pp. 334-338

Rik 10 — metre Jagatī

Samhitā-pāṭha

अपामतिष्ठद्धरुणह्वरं तमोऽन्तर्वृत्रस्य जठरेषु पर्वतः । अभीमिन्द्रो नद्यो वत्रिणा हिता विश्वा अनुष्ठाः प्रवणेषु जिघ्नते ॥ १० ॥

apām atiṣṭhad dharuṇahvaram tamo 'ntar vṛtrasya jaṭhareṣu parvataḥ | abhīm indro nadyo vavriṇā hitā viśvā anuṣṭhāḥ pravaṇeṣu jighnate || 10 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अपाम् । अतिष्ठत् । धरुणऽह्वरम् । तमः । अन्तः । वृत्रस्य । जठरेषु । पर्वतः । अभि । ईम् ।
इन्द्रः । नद्यः । वत्रिणा । हिताः । विश्वाः । अनुऽस्थाः । प्रऽवणेषु । जिघ्नते ॥ १० ॥

apām | atiṣṭhat | dharuṇa-hvaram | tamaḥ | antaḥ | vṛtrasya | jaṭhareṣu | parvataḥ | abhi | īm | indraḥ | nadyaḥ | vavriṇā | hitāḥ | viśvāḥ | anu-sthāḥ | pra-vaṇeṣu | jighnate || 10 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अपां वृष्युदकानां धरुणह्वरम् । धरुणशब्दो धारावाचनः । धारानिरोधकं
तमोऽन्धकारमतिष्ठत् । अयमेवार्थः स्पष्टीक्रियते । वृत्रस्य लोकत्रयावरितुरसुरस्य
जठरेषूदरप्रदेशेष्वन्तर्मध्ये पर्वतः पर्ववान्मेघोऽभूत् । अतस्तमोरूपेण वृत्रेण

मेघस्यावृतत्वाद्वृष्युदकमस्यावृतमित्युच्यते । ईमिमाः पूर्वोक्ताः नद्यो नदीरपः ।
 नदनान्द्य इति व्युत्पत्त्या नदीशब्देनाप उच्यन्ते । वव्रिणावरकेण वृत्रेण हिताः
 पिहिता विश्वा व्यापनीरनुष्ठा अनुक्रमेण तिष्ठन्तीः । एवंविधा अप इन्द्रः प्रवणेषु निम्नेषु भूप्रदेशेष्वभिजिघ्नते अभिगमयति ॥

*apām vṛṣṇyudakānām dharuṇahvaram | dharuṇaśabdo
 dhārāvācanaḥ | dhārānirodhakam tamō 'ndhakāram atiṣṭhat |
 ayam evārthaḥ spaṣṭikriyate | vṛtrasya lokatrayāvariturasasya jaṭhareṣūdarapradeśeṣv antar madhye parvataḥ parvavān megho
 'bhūt | atas tamorūpeṇa vṛtreṇa meghasyāvṛtatvād vṛṣṇyudakam
 asyāvṛtam ity ucyate | īm imāḥ pūrvoktāḥ nadyo nadīr apāḥ |
 nadanān nadya iti vyutpattyā nadiśabdenāpa ucyante | vavriṇāvarakeṇa vṛtreṇa hitāḥ pihitā viśvā vyāpanīr anuṣṭhā anukrameṇa tiṣṭhantīḥ | evaṃvidhā apa indraḥ pravaneṣu
 nimneṣu bhūpradeśeṣv abhijighnate abhigamayati ||* ³⁹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Apām, of the waters — the rain-waters — dharuṇahvaram: dharuṇa means a stream; tamas, darkness, blocking the streams, atiṣṭhat, stood. The same sense is made clear: vṛtrasya, of Vṛtra, the Asura who covers the three worlds, jaṭhareṣu, in the belly-regions, antaḥ, inside, parvataḥ, the cloud with its joints, was. Therefore, since the cloud is covered by Vṛtra of the form of darkness, the rain-water is said to be covered by him. Īm, these just-spoken nadyaḥ, rivers — the waters (by the derivation nadanāt nadyaḥ, 'from sounding', the word nadī signifies waters) — vavriṇā, by the coverer Vṛtra, hitāḥ, covered,

38. p. 334, PDF 350

39. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 334 foot–335, is characterized:

vavriṇā (vṛṇ varaṇe, the suffix ki by āḍṛgamahanajana..., Pā. 3-2-171; reduplication, urat, halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; yaṇ), anuṣṭhāḥ (ṣṭhā gatinivṛttau with ka by ātaś copasarge; ātolopa iṭi ca; upasargāt sunoti..., ṣṭutva), jighnate (han hiṃsāgatyoḥ in the sense of going; ātmanepada by vyatyaya; śap, śluḥ; reduplication, the gh; artipartya... — the Kannada notes below give the details).

viśvāḥ, all of them, pervading, anuṣṭhāḥ, standing in succession: such waters Indra pravaṇeṣu, in the low places of the earth, abhi jighnate, makes go all round."

Pratipadārtha — "apām — of the (rain) waters; dharuṇahvaram — that obstructs the currents; tamaḥ — darkness; atiṣṭhat — stood; vṛtrasya — of Vṛtra, who covered the three worlds; jaṭhareṣu — in the belly-regions; antaḥ — in the middle; parvataḥ — the cloud (was hidden); vavriṇā — by Vṛtra, who covered everything; hitāḥ — covered, (such); viśvāḥ — all; anuṣṭhāḥ — standing in succession; īm nadyaḥ — these waters; indrah — Indra; pravaṇeṣu — in the low places (of the earth); abhi jighnate — makes flow all round."

Bhāvārtha

— "Because Vṛtra covered the three worlds, the darkness that obstructs the streams of the waters stood. In the middle of Vṛtra's belly the cloud was hidden. When Vṛtra thus stopped the waters, Indra released all those waters one after another, and made them flow all round into the low places of the earth."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 335)

— "The darkness obstructed the current of the waters, the cloud was within the belly of Vritra, but Indra precipitated all the waters which the obstructor had concealed, in succession, down to the hollows (of the earth)."

Special Topics (*viśeṣa-viṣaya*gaḥ), pp. 335–336 - atredam uktaṃ bhavati ⁴⁰:

अत्रेदमुक्तं भवति । पुरा किल जलानां वर्षकं मेघं वृत्रः स्वोदरे निधाय सकलं जगत्
तिमिरावृतं कृत्वा मेघोदकानि निरुद्धवान् । तदेन्द्रस्तदुदरस्थं मेघरूपं पर्वतं भित्त्वा तत्रस्थान्युदकानि भूमौ पातितवानिति ॥

40. a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 335

atredam uktaṃ bhavati | purā kila jalānāṃ varṣakaṃ megham vṛtraḥ svodare nidhāya sakalaṃ jagat timirāvṛtaṃ kṛtvā meghodakāni niruddhavān | tadendras tadudarasthaṃ megharūpaṃ parvataṃ bhittvā tatrasthāny udakāni bhūmau pātitaṃ iti || — "Here this is meant: formerly Vṛtra, having placed in his own belly the cloud that sends the waters, made the whole world covered with darkness, and stopped the cloud-waters. Then Indra, having split the cloud-mountain that stood in his belly, caused the waters in it to fall on the earth." The Kannada adds: "Formerly the Asura Vṛtra, having kept in his belly the cloud that causes rain, made the whole world dark and held back the rain. Then Indra pierced the cloud — which lay in Vṛtra's belly in the form of a mountain — and made the water in it fall on the earth as rain." - dharuṇahvaram — "Here the word dharuṇa has the sense of dhārā, a stream (of water). That which obstructs it is dharuṇahvara. Here this is an epithet of tamaḥ, darkness. Vṛtra pervaded the whole atmosphere, caused darkness, and obstructed the rain coming to the earth." - īm —
"This word gives the sense of the plural of the pronoun idam. It is an epithet of the word nadyaḥ." - nadyaḥ — "By the derivation nadanāt nadyaḥ, the word nadī means water." - vavriṇā — "One who covers the whole world, in the form of cloud and in the form of darkness: Vṛtra." - anuṣṭhāḥ — "Anu kramena tiṣṭhantīti anuṣṭhāḥ: this word conveys the sense that the stopped water will flow in succession." - pravaneṣu — "In the hollow lands of the earth. The sense is that, having killed Vṛtra, Indra caused the mass of water, which had stood in one place, to flow in low places."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴¹ - atiṣṭhat: ṣṭhā gatinivṛttau, bhvādi; laṇ third singular tip; itaś ca drops the i [of tip]; pāghrādhmāsthāmnādāṇḍṛśyartisartisadasadām... (Pā. 7-3-78) gives tiṣṭha; aṭ as the laṇ augment: atiṣṭhat; tiṇ atinaḥ, nighāta. -

41. pp. 336–338 — grammar pages, noted briefly

vavriṇā: vṛñ varane; ādṛgamahanajanaḥ kikināu liṭ ca (Pā. 3-2-171) gives ki, with liḍvad bhāva, so reduplication; urat; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; before ki, yañ; vavri, a stem in i; end-acute by the initial acute of the suffix; instrumental singular. - hitāḥ: ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; before kta, dadhāter hiḥ (Pā. 7-4-42) gives hi; end-acute by the suffix; nominative plural. - anuṣṭhāḥ: the prefix anu as upapada, ātaś copasarge (Pā. 3-3-106 [as read]) gives ka after sthā; ātlopa iṭi ca drops the ā before ka; upasargāt sunoti... gives ṣatva; by ṣtutva the th becomes ṭh: anuṣṭha; end-acute by the suffix. - jighnate: han hiṃsāgatyoḥ, taken here in the sense of going; vyatyayo bahulam gives the ātmanepada ending; since adādi, śap would drop (luk), but bahulaṃ chandasi gives ślu for śap; ślau gives reduplication; abhyāsac ca gives gh by kutva; artiparty...; the hanteḥ is ñit... so ṭita ātmanepadānām ṭer e gives e; jighnate; tiñ atināḥ, nighāta. || 10 ||

Rik 54.10, grammar (end) ⁴²: for jighnate, the hanteḥ here gives ātmanepada by vyatyaya; aprakta te is ñit by sārvadhātukam apit, so te takes ñit-ness; hence gamahanajana... (Pā. 6-4-98) drops the penultimate a; the h of the root turns to gh by hohanter ṇṇnaneṣu [as printed, "hohaṃte", Pā. 7-3-54 as read, [?]]; alternatively by abhyāsac ca (Pā. 7-3-55) gh comes from kutva; the i that artiparty... [and] bahulaṃ chandasi (Pā. 7-4-78) prescribe, comes to the reduplicative here: jighnate; since it follows an atin, nighāta. || 10 ||

original pp. 337–340

Rik 11 — metre Triṣṭubh — the last Rik

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

स शेवृधमधि धा द्युम्नमस्मे महि क्षत्रं जनाषाळिन्द्र तव्यम् । रक्षा च नो मघोनः पाहि सूरीत्राये च नः स्वपत्या इषे धाः ॥ ११ ॥

sa śevṛdham adhi dhā dyumnam asme mahi kṣatram janāṣāḥ indra tavyam | rakṣā ca no maghonaḥ pāhi sūrīn rāye ca naḥ svapatyā iṣe dhāḥ || 11 ||

Pada-pāṭha

सः । शेवृधम् । अधि । धाः । द्युम्नम् । अस्मे इति । महि । क्षत्रम् । जनाषाट् । इन्द्र । तव्यम् ।
रक्ष । च । नः । मघोनः । पाहि । सूरीन् । राये । च । नः । सुऽअपत्यै । इषे । धाः ॥ ११ ॥

saḥ | śevṛdham | adhi | dhāḥ | dyumnam | asme iti | mahi | kṣatram | janāṣāt | indra | tavyam | rakṣa | ca | naḥ | maghonaḥ | pāhi | sūrīn | rāye | ca | naḥ | su-apatyai | iṣe | dhāḥ || 11 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र स त्वमस्मे अस्मासु द्युम्नं यशोऽधि धाः । अधिनिधेहि । कीदृशमित्याह ।
शेवृधम् । शं शमनं । रोगाणां शमने सति यद्वर्धते तादृशम् । तथा महि महत्
जनाषाट् शत्रुजनानामभिवित्तव्यं तव्यं प्रवृद्धं क्षत्रं बलं चाधि धा इति शेषः । किंच
हे इन्द्र नोऽस्मान्मघोनो धनवतः कृत्वा रक्ष । पालय । सूरीन् विदुषो विद्वान्पाहि ।
पालय । तथा रायै धनाय च स्वपत्यै शोभनपुत्रयुक्तायेषे चान्नाय च नोऽस्मान् धेहि । स्थापय ॥

*he indra sa tvam asme asmāsu dyumnam yaśo 'dhi dhāḥ |
adhinidhehi | kīdṛśam ity āha | śevṛdham | śam śamanam |
rogāṇām śamane sati yad vardhate tādṛśam | tathā mahi mahat janāṣāt śatrujanānām abhibhavittavyam [?] tavyam pravṛddham kṣatram balaṁ cādhi dhā iti śeṣaḥ | kiṁca he indra no 'smān maghono dhanavataḥ kṛtvā rakṣa | pālaya | sūrīn viduṣo vidvān
pāhi | pālaya | tathā rāyai dhanāya ca svapatyai
śobhanaputrayuktāyeṣe cānnāya ca no 'smān dhehi | sthāpaya ||*

Note — Reading notes: "abhibhavittavyam" in the print is crowded;
"Overcoming enemies" is read from the Pratipadārtha. "sūrīn viduṣo vidvān" is as read — the print has the repetition "vidvān"... [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 338, is characterized: dhāḥ (ḍudhāñ, luri/lañ/liṭ for the prayer sense; the loss of ṛ; luk by gātisthā...; no āt by bahulam chandasy amānyoge 'pi), asme (supām suluk gives śe for the locative; śeṣe lopah), janāṣāt (sahe, chandasi sahaḥ, nvi; ata upadhāyāḥ; saheḥ sādaḥ saḥ gives śatva; the lengthening of the first member; hoḍhaḥ, jhalām jaśo 'nte, vāvasāne gives ṭ), tavyam (tu in the sense of growth; aco yat; dhātoḥ... avādeśa), rakṣa, maghonaḥ (śvayuvamaghonām atad dhite, Pā. 6-4-133: saṃprasāraṇa; guṇa), pāhi, svapatyai (śobhanāny apatyāni yasyāḥ; jasādiṣu chandasi vā vacanam gives yāt; vṛddhir eci; naḥsubhyām; ekādeśa udāttēnodāttah; ayādeśa with optional loss of y) — the Kannada pp. 338–340 give these in full, noted below.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you, asme, upon us — dyumnām, fame — adhi dhāḥ, bestow: what kind? Śevṛdham: śam is cessation; that which grows when diseases cease — such. And mahi, great, janāṣāt, overcoming the people who are enemies, tavyam, enlarged, kṣatram, strength: bestow it (this is understood). Further, O Indra, naḥ maghonaḥ kṛtvā, making us wealthy, rakṣa, protect; sūrīn, the wise, pāhi, protect; and rāye, for wealth, svapatyai, for excellent offspring, and iṣe, for food, naḥ dhāḥ, establish us."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; saḥ — you; asme — in us; śevṛdham — that which grows (renown); dyumnām — fame; adhi dhāḥ — place and favour us (likewise); mahi — great; janāṣāt — that which overcomes enemies; tavyam — that which is grown; kṣatram — strength; (adhi dhāḥ — place); (and, O Indra) naḥ — us; maghonaḥ — make wealthy; rakṣa — protect; ca — and; sūrīn — other learned men; pāhi — protect; rāye — for wealth; svapatyai — together with excellent sons; iṣe ca — and for food; naḥ — us; dhāḥ — establish (make us possess wealth and food)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, favour us with fame that spreads widely and with great, enemy-overcoming, increasing strength. Make us wealthy and protect us. Protect other learned men also. Favour us with wealth and with food together with excellent sons."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 338)

— "Bestow upon us, Indra, increasing reputation; (bestow upon us) great augmenting and foe-subduing strength; protect us by making us rich; cherish the wise; and confer upon us wealth with excellent progeny and food."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 339 - asme — "This is the form of the seventh case plural of the word asmad; it is used in the sense of asmāsu ('in us'). This word is used in the sense of all the cases." - śevṛdham — "Śaṃ śamanam; rogāṇāṃ śamane sati yad vardhate tādr̥śam: that which grows after the cessation of a disease, as a patient does: may our fame grow in just that way." - janāṣāt — "That which overcomes enemy people. It is an epithet of the word kṣatram. Its derivation is janān saḥate iti janāṣāt." - maghonaḥ — "Since the word magha means wealth, when praying 'make us wealthy', this word is an epithet of the word asmān." - svapatyai — "Śobhanāni apatyāni yasyāḥ: that which has excellent children and the like. This word is an epithet of iṣe [i.e. annāya]."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴³ - dhāḥ: ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; in the sense of prayer, chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭaḥ gives lañ; itaś ca drops the i of sip; cleḥ sic → gātisthāghupābhūbhyāḥ sicaḥ parasmaipadeṣu (Pā. 2-4-77) drops sic; bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pi gives no aṭ; ru, visarga: dhāḥ; nighāta. - asme: the seventh-case plural of asmad; supām suluk... gives śe for the locative; śeṣe lopah drops the part of asmad above ma: asme. - janāṣāt: "janān saḥate"; chandasi saḥaḥ (Pā. 3-2-63) gives ṇvi after sah; being ñit, ata upadhāyāḥ gives vṛddhi; in the nominative singular saheḥ sāḍaḥ saḥ (Pā. 8-3-56) gives ṣatva to the s; anyeṣām api dṛśyate lengthens the first member; janāsāḥ + s: halṇyābbhyo... drops su; hoḍhaḥ gives ḍha; jhalām jaśo 'nte gives ḍ; vāvasāne gives carva optionally: janāṣāt; gatikārakopapadāt kṛt gives the accent of the kṛdanta. - tavyam: tu in the sense of growth (read only in sūtras); aco yat gives yat; when yat follows, sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ

43. pp. 339–340 — grammar pages, noted briefly

gives guṇa; since o is followed by y, dhātos tannimittasyaiva (Pā. 6-1-80) gives av; yato 'nāvaḥ gives the initial acute. - rakṣa: rakṣa pālāne; loṭ second singular sip, → hi; śap; before a, ato heḥ drops hi: rakṣa; śap being pit is anudātta, so the root's accent holds; since the word begins a pāda, apādāda forbids nighāta; in the Saṃhitā dvyaco 'tas tiṇaḥ lengthens it: rakṣā. - maghonaḥ: maghavan with śas; because of the bha-designation, śvayuvamaghonām atadhite (Pā. 6-4-133) gives saṃprasāraṇa; saṃprasāraṇāc ca; magha + un + as: guṇa; ru, visarga: maghonaḥ. - pāhi: pā rakṣaṇe, adādi; loṭ second singular sip → hi; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ gives luk; since hi is stated as apit, the suffix-accent holds; pāhi is end-acute; though maghonaḥ — a tiṇanta — stood before, it belongs to a different sentence; since pāhi is at the head of the sentence, nighāta does not come. - svapatyai: "śobhanāny apatyāni yasyāḥ sā svapatyā"; dative singular, feminine ne → nī... jasādiṣu chandasi vā vacanam gives yāt for the ne after a feminine stem [the āt yoḍāpaḥ, Pā. 7-3-113]; vṛddhir eci (Pā. 6-1-88) gives vṛddhi: svapatyai; naṅsubhyām gives the end-acute of the last member; ekādeśa udāddenodāttaḥ gives the acute to ai; in the Veda, because the e is followed by i, eco 'yavāyāvaḥ gives āy, and optionally the y is dropped.

Closing note ⁴⁴ — "ಐವತ್ತ ನಾಲ್ಕನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು ಸಮಾಪ್ತವು " — "The fifty-fourth sūkta is ended." ⁴⁵ || 11 ||

Close of Sūkta 54

Sūkta 54 (Maṇḍala 1, Tenth Anuvāka, 11 Riks; ṛṣi Savya Āṅgīrasa; deity Indra; Jagatī in Riks 1–5, 7, 10; Triṣṭubh in Riks 6, 8, 9, 11 by the introduction) — printed pp. 303–340, PDF 319–356. The Riks are a petition and praise addressed to Indra: do not cast us into sin and sinful battles, for the limit of your strength cannot be measured and even the earth is afraid (1); worship the listening, powerful Indra who adorns heaven and earth and sends rain (2); offer him a delight-giving hymn, for he is great-renowned and breaks enemies (3); he shook the summit of heaven and killed Śambara by his own strength and hurled the sharp bolt at the Asuras (4); he pours water on the head of the wind and the sun, and who is above him (5); he protected Narya, Turvaśa, Yadu and Turvīti and broke the ninety-nine cities of Śambara (6); the sacrificer who praises him becomes a king and Indra brings rain from heaven for him (7); his strength and wisdom are peerless and the sacrificers grow by their rites (8); here are the pressed soma juices, drink and then turn your mind to giving us wealth (9); he released the waters from the darkness-covered belly of Vṛtra (10); and a final prayer for fame, strength, wealth, protection of the wise, offspring and food (11). The Special Topics carry little reference-matter: the Bhāgavata note on Savya's fear (Rik 1), the Śambara and Turvīti accounts by cross-reference (Riks 4, 6), and the Nirukta glosses on upara and vṛndin.

⁴⁴. p. 340, printed large

⁴⁵. Unlike Sūktas 47–53, this sūkta carries a closing sentence in the print; a small ornament follows.

Sūkta 55 — "divaś cid asya"

original p. 341

ಐವತ್ತೈದನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — 1

Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 341)

ದಿವಶ್ವಿದಸ್ಯೇತ್ಯೃಶ್ಚ ಪಜ್ಯಮಂ ಸೂಕ್ತಂ ಸವ್ಯಸ್ಯಾರ್ಷಮೈन्द्रಂ ಜಾಗತಮ್ । ತಥಾ ಚಾನುಕ್ರಾಂತಂ ।
ದಿವಶ್ವಿದೃಶಾ ಜಾಗತಂ ಹೀತ್ಯಭಿಧಾನಾತ್ತತ್ರ ಹ್ಯಾದಿಪರಿಭಾಷಯೋತ್ತರೇ ದ್ವೇ ಚ ಸೂಕ್ತೇ ಜಾಗತೇ ।
ಅತಿರಾತ್ರೇ ಪ್ರಥಮೇ ಪರ್ಯಾಯೇ ಮೈತ್ರಾವರುಣಶಸ್ತ್ರ ಇದಂ ಸೂಕ್ತಮ್ । ಸೂತ್ರಿತಂ ಚ । ದಿವಶ್ವಿದಸ್ಯೇತಿ
ಪರ್ಯಾಸಃ ಸ ನೌ ನವ್ಯೇಭಿರिति ಚ । ಆಶ್ವ. ೬-೪ [?] ಇತಿ । ವಿಷುವತಿ
ನಿಷ್ಕೇವಲ್ಯೇಽಪ್ಯೇತತ್ಸೂಕ್ತಮ್ । ಸೂತ್ರಿತಂ ಚ । ಶಂಸೇದೇವೋತ್ತರಾಣಿ ಷಟ್ ದಿವಶ್ವಿದಸ್ಯ । ಆಶ್ವ.
೮-೬ [?] ಇತಿ । ಸಮೂಹಸ್ಯ ದಶರಾತ್ರಸ್ಯ ದ್ವಿತೀಯೇ ಛಂದೋಮೇಽಪಿ ನಿಷ್ಕೇವಲ್ಯ ಎತತ್ಸೂಕ್ತಮ್
|
ತ್ವಂ ಮಹಿ ಇन्द्र ಯೋ ಹ ದಿವಶ್ವಿದಸ್ಯ ತ್ವಂ ಮಹಿ ಇन्द्र ತುಭ್ಯಮिति ನಿಷ್ಕೇವಲ್ಯಮ್ । ಆಶ್ವ. ೮-೨ [?] ಇತಿ ॥

*divaś cid asyety aṣṭarcaṃ pañcamam sūktam savyasyārṣam aindraṃ jāgatam | tathā cānukrāntam | divaś cid aṣṭā jāgatam hīty abhidhānāt tatra hy ādiparibhāṣayottare dve ca sūkte jāgate |
atirātre prathame paryāye maitrāvaruṇaśastra idam sūktam |
sūtritam ca | divaś cid asyeti paryāsaḥ sa no navyebhir iti ca |
āśva. 6-4 [?] iti | viṣuvati niṣkevalye 'py etat sūktam | sūtritam ca |*

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-fifth sūkta"

śamsed evottarāṇi ṣaṭ divas cid asya | āśva. 8-6 [?] iti | samūlhasya daśarātrasya dvitīye chandome 'pi niṣkevalya etat sūktam | tvaṃ mahī indra yo ha divas cid asya tvaṃ mahī indra tubhyam iti niṣkevalyam | āśva. 8-2 [?] iti | ²

Translation: "'Divas cid asya': a sūkta of eight Riks, the fifth [of the Tenth Anuvāka]; the seer is Savya, the deity Indra, the metre Jagatī; so the Anukramaṇī [?]; by the statement 'Jagatī' the two sūktas that follow are also Jagatī by the general rule beginning with hi. In the Atirātra, in the first paryāya, this sūkta is used in the Maitrāvaruṇa-śāstra, and is aphorized: 'divas cid asya' as the paryāsa and 'sa no navyebhiḥ' (Āśv. 6-4 [?]). In the Viṣuvat day it is also in the niṣkevalya [recitation]: 'let him recite the next six: divas cid asya' (Āśv. 8-6 [?]). In the second chandoma day of the Samūlha ten-night rite it is likewise in the niṣkevalya (Āśv. 8-2 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 341) — "'Divas cid asya' is the fifth sūkta of the tenth anuvāka. It has eight Riks. The seer is Savya, the deity Indra, the metre Jagatī. In the Anukramaṇikā: 'divas cid aṣṭā jāgataṃ hi'; the word hi shows that the next two sūktas are also in Jagatī. In the Atirātra, in the first paryāya, it is used for the Maitrāvaruṇa śāstra mantras (Āśv. 6-4); in the Viṣuvat sacrifice, and in the Samūlha ten-night sacrifice at the time of the chandoma mantras, for the niṣkevalya śāstra (Āśv. 8-6, 9-2 [?])."

Heading block

: Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 10 · Sūkta 55 · Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 19, 20 [as read, [?]] · Riks: 8 · Ṛṣi: Savya Āṅgīrasa · Deity: Indra · Metre: Jagatī.

original pp. 341–344

2. Reading note: the small bold print is crowded; the Anukramaṇī half-line and every Āśvalāyana numeral are [?]; "tvaṃ mahī indra" is as printed — the second opening, probably "tvaṃ mahām indra", is not completed [?].

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ³

दिवश्चिदस्य वरिमा वि पप्रथ इन्द्रं न महना पृथिवी चन प्रति । भीमस्तुविष्माञ्चर्षणिभ्य आतपः शिशीते वज्रं तेजसे न वंसगः ॥ १ ॥ *divaś cid asya varimā vi papratha indram na mahnā pṛthivī cana prati | bhīmas tuviṣmāñ carṣaṇibhya ātapaḥ śīśīte vajraṁ tejase

na vaṃsagaḥ || 1 ||* ⁴

Pada-pāṭha

दिवः । चित् । अस्य । वरिमा । वि । पप्रथे । इन्द्रम् । न । महना । पृथिवी । चन । प्रति ।
भीमः । तुविष्मान् । चर्षणिभ्यः । आतपः । शिशीते । वज्रम् । तेजसे । न । वंसगः ॥ १ ॥

divaḥ | cit | asya | varimā | vi | paprathe | indram | na | mahnā | pṛthivī | cana | prati | bhīmaḥ | tuviṣmān | carṣaṇi-bhyaḥ | ā-tapaḥ | śīśīte | vajram | tejase | na | vaṃsagaḥ || 1 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्येन्द्रस्य वरिमोरुत्वं प्रभावं दिवश्चित् द्युलोकादपि वि पप्रथे । विस्तीर्णं बभूव ।
पृथिवी चन पृथिव्यपि च महना महत्त्वेनेन्द्रं न प्रति भवति । भूमिरपीन्द्रस्य
प्रतिनिधिर्न भवति । ततोऽपि स गरीयानित्यर्थः । भीमः शत्रूणां भयंकरस्तुविष्मान्
प्रज्ञावान् बलवान्वा चर्षणिभ्यो मनुष्येभ्यः स्तोतृभ्यस्तेषामर्थाय शत्रूणामातपः
आसमन्ताद्वाधकारी । एवंविधः स इन्द्रो वज्रं वर्जनशीलमायुधं तेजसे तैक्षण्याय
शिशीते तनूकरोति । तीक्ष्णीकरोति । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । वंसगो न । वननीयगतिमान् वृषभो यथा स्वशृङ्गे युद्धार्थं तीक्ष्णीकरोति तद्वत् ॥

*asyendrasya varimoruttvaṁ prabhāvaṁ divaś cit dyulokād api vi papathe | vistīrṇaṁ babhūva | pṛthivī cana pṛthivy api ca mahnā mahattvenendraṁ na prati bhavati | bhūmir apīndrasya
pratinidhir na bhavati | tato 'pi sa garīyān ity arthaḥ | bhīmaḥ*

3. accents printed, not reproduced

4. The print's second pāda begins "भीमस्तुविष्मान्" with a crowded ligature; tuviṣmān is read per the Pada.

śatrūṇāṃ bhayaṃkaras tuviṣmān prajñāvān balavān vā carṣaṇibhyaḥ manuṣyebhyaḥ stotṛbhyas teṣāṃ arthāya śatrūṇāṃ ātapah āsamantād bādhakārī | evaṃvidhaḥ sa indro vajraṃ varjanaśīlam āyudhaṃ tejase taikṣṇyāya śīśīte tanūkaroti |
 tīkṣṇīkaroti | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | vaṃsago na | vananīyagatimān
 vṛṣabho yathā svaśṛṅge yuddhārtham tīkṣṇīkaroti tadvat | | ⁵

Translation of the bhāṣya: "The varimā, breadth — majesty — of this Indra vi paprathe, spread wider divaś cit, even than the heaven; and pṛthivī cana, even the earth, mahnā, in greatness, does not equal Indra (na prati): the earth too is no counterpart of Indra; he is greater than that, is the sense. Bhīmaḥ, terrifying to enemies; tuviṣmān, wise or strong; carṣaṇibhyaḥ, for the men, the praisers, for their sake, ātapah, the afflicter of enemies on every side. Such an Indra śīśīte, sharpens, vajram, the thunderbolt, the weapon that turns [enemies] away, tejase, for keenness. Example: vaṃsago na, as a bull of an attractive gait sharpens its own horns for battle."

Pratipadārtha — "asya — of this Indra; varimā — the breadth, or greatness; divaḥ cit — more than heaven; vi paprathe — became wider; pṛthivī cana — the earth too; mahnā — in greatness; indram — Indra; na prati — does not match (does not equal); bhīmaḥ — terrifying (to enemies); tuviṣmān — wise, or strong; carṣaṇibhyaḥ — for the men who praise; ātapah — one who harasses [enemies] on all sides; such Indra; vajram — the thunderbolt; tejase — for sharpness; vaṃsagaḥ na — as a bull of attractive gait [sharpens] its horns; śīśīte — sharpens."

Bhāvārtha

5. The tail — on varimā, paprathe, mahnā, prati (karmapravacanīya), bhīmaḥ, ātapah, śīśīte, vaṃsagaḥ — is characterized, and repeated in the Kannada grammar notes below.

— "The breadth of this Indra's majesty is greater than heaven; even the earth does not equal Indra in greatness. Terrifying, exceedingly mighty, the destroyer of the enemies who torment his worshippers, Indra sharpens his thunderbolt, as a bull whets its horn."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 343)

— "The power of Indra was vaster than heaven; earth could not equal Indra in bulk; formidable and most mighty, he has been ever the afflicter (of the enemies of) those men (who worship him); he whets his thunderbolt for sharpness, as a bull (his horns)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 343-344 - ⁶:

द्यावापृथिवीभ्यामपीन्द्रस्य महिमा गरीयान् तथेन्द्रो भीमादिगुणविशिष्टः सन्
स्वबलस्य दर्शयित्वा वज्रं हस्ते धारयतीत्यर्थः ॥

dyāvāpṛthivībhyām apīndrasya mahimā garīyān tathendro bhīmādiguṇaviśiṣṭaḥ san svabalasya darśayitnā vajraṁ haste dhārayatīty arthaḥ || — "Indra's majesty is greater even than heaven and earth; Indra, endowed with qualities such as terribleness, holds the thunderbolt in his hand in order to show his strength." (darśayitnā, read from the print, is doubtful, [?].) The Kannada adds: "Indra's power and the glory of his majesty are greater than heaven and earth. Even so, in order to display his own valour, he bears the thunderbolt in his hand." - varimā — "This word, formed from uru with the suffix imanic, means 'the best of all'." - pṛthivī cana prati — "Even the earth does not equal him; the earth is not a counterpart of Indra. Indra is greater in majesty than the earth." - bhīmaḥ — "One who is terrifying to enemies; the word is formed from bhī bhaye. Yāska derives it 'bhīmo bibhyaty asmāt' (Nī. 1-10 as read [?]): that of which others are much afraid is bhīma."

6. a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 343

भीमो बिभ्यत्यस्मात् । (Ni. 1-10 as read [?])

bhīmo bibhyaty asmāt | — editorial and tentative: "bhīma [is he] of whom [others] are afraid." - tuviṣmān — "One who has wisdom; or 'the strongest' (baḷiṣṭha)." - tejase śīśīte — "Indra whets the thunderbolt to make it keen. Though the word śīśīte has the sense 'to make slender', here it is explained as 'to make keen by whetting'." - vaṃsagaḥ — "From the root vana ṣaṇa sambhaktau, vaṃsam vananīyaṃ gacchati iti vaṃsagaḥ, a bull whose gait is attractive; it means a bull. As a bull, when it fights with another, whets its horns for the fight, so Indra, fighting the Rākṣasas, makes his thunderbolt keen."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁷ - divaḥ: fifth singular of div; the ending's acute by ūdidam padādi... (Pā. 6-1-171). - varimā: from uru (in the prthvādi list) prthvādibhya imanic vā gives imanic in the sense of excess; priyasthirasphira... (Pā. 6-4-157) gives vara for uru; variman; nominative with the long vowel; citaḥ gives the end-acute. - paprathe: prath prakhyāne; liṭ third singular, ta → e (liṭas tajhayor eśirec); reduplication; nighāta. - mahnā: mahimnā, with the loss of i and m in the Veda; or from maha pūjāyām with Uṇādi kanin: mahan, instrumental ā, the a of an dropped by āl lopo... anaḥ; the end-acute; the ending is acute by the udāttanivṛtti accent. - prati: pratiḥ pratinidhipratidānayoḥ (Pā. 1-4-92) gives the karmapravacanīya-name; karmapravacanīyayukte dvitīyā (Pā. 2-3-8) the second case after indra; the fifth case which pratinidhipratidāne ca yasmāt would give does not arise in the Veda. - bhīmaḥ: ñibhī bhaye; Uṇādi mak (bhiyaḥ ṣuk ca, Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]); kit so no guṇa. - ātapah: tapa with ac (nandigrahipacādibhyo...); thāthaghañktājabitrakāṇām gives the end-acute of the last member. - śīśīte: śo tanūkarāṇe; the ātmanepada by vyatyaya; ślu for śap (bahulaṃ chandasī); ādeca upadeśe 'śiti: ā; reduplication; i for the reduplicative (bahulaṃ chandasī); īhalyaghoḥ: ī for ā; śīśīte. - vaṃsagaḥ: vana ṣaṇa

sambhaktau, Uṇādi sa; the n becomes anusvāra; gam with ḍa (ḍo 'nyatrāpi drśyate), the ṭi dropped; a divodāsādi, so the first member's accent. || 1 ||

original p. 345

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

सो अर्णवो न नद्यः समुद्रियः प्रति गृभ्णाति विश्रिता वरीमभिः । इन्द्रः सोमस्य पीतये वृषायते सनात्स युध्म ओजसा पनस्यते ॥ २ ॥ *so arṇavo na nadyaḥ samudriyaḥ prati gr̥bhṇāti viśritā varīmabhiḥ | indraḥ somasya pītaye vṛṣāyate sanāt sa yudhma

ojasā panasyate || 2 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

सः । अर्णवः । न । नद्यः । समुद्रियः । प्रति । गृभ्णाति । विश्रिताः । वरीमभिः । इन्द्रः । सोमस्य । पीतये । वृषायते । सनात् । सः । युध्मः । ओजसा । पनस्यते ॥ २ ॥

*saḥ | arṇavaḥ | na | nadyaḥ | samudriyaḥ | prati | gr̥bhṇāti | viśritāḥ | varīma-bhiḥ | indraḥ | somasya | pītaye | vṛṣa-yate |
sanāt | saḥ | yudhmaḥ | ojasā | panasyate || 2 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

स इन्द्रः समुद्रियः । समुद्रवन्त्यस्मादाप इति समुद्रमन्तरिक्षं । तत्र भवः समुद्रियः ।
एवंभूतः स वरीमभिः स्वकीयैः संवरणैर्युद्धोरुत्कैर्विश्रिता व्याप्ताः नद्यो नदीः
शब्दकारिणीवृत्रेणावृता आपोऽर्णवो न समुद्र इव प्रति गृभ्णाति । स्वीकृत्य ववर्षेति
भावः । सचेन्द्रः सोमस्य पीतये पानाय वृषायते वृष इवाचरति । हर्षयुक्तो वर्तत
इत्यर्थः । तथा स इन्द्रो युध्मो योद्धा सनाच्चिरादेव यद्वा सनातन ओजसा बलकृतेन
वृत्रवधादिरूपेण कर्मणा पनस्यते पनः स्तोत्रमिच्छति ॥

*sa indraḥ samudriyaḥ | samudravanty asmād āpa iti samudram
antarikṣaṃ | tatra bhavaḥ samudriyaḥ | evambhūtaḥ sa varīmabhiḥ svakīyaiḥ saṃvaraṇair yuddhorutkair viśritā vyāptāḥ*

nadyo nadīḥ śabdakāriṇīr vṛtreṇāvṛtā āpo 'rṇavo na samudra iva prati gr̥bhṇāti | svīkṛtya vavarṣeti bhāvaḥ | sa cendraḥ somasya pītaye pānāya vṛṣāyate vṛṣa ivācarati | harṣayukto vartata ity arthaḥ | tathā sa indro yudhmo yoddhā sanāc cirād eva yadvā sanātana ojasā balakṛtena vṛtravadhādīrūpeṇa karmaṇā panasyate panaḥ stotram icchati | | ⁸

Translation of the bhāṣya: "That Indra is samudriyaḥ: the samudra is the atmosphere (the waters flow from it); he who is in it. Such is he: with varīmabhiḥ, his own coverings [or: shields], eager for battle, viśritāḥ, spread out, nadyaḥ, the sounding rivers — the waters covered by Vṛtra — he prati gr̥bhṇāti, takes, like the arṇava, the ocean: having taken them, he rained, is the sense. And Indra vṛṣāyate for somasya pītaye, to drink the soma, behaves like a bull: he abides in delight. And that Indra, yudhmaḥ, warrior, sanāt, from of old, or the eternal, ojasā, by the deed done with strength in the form of slaying Vṛtra and the like, panasyate, desires praise."

Rik 55.2, continued ⁹

Pratipadārtha — "saḥ indraḥ — that Indra; samudriyaḥ — abiding in the atmosphere; varīmabhiḥ — by the power of his greatness; viśritāḥ — spread all round; nadyaḥ — the waters; arṇavo na — as the ocean [takes the rivers]; prati gr̥bhṇāti — takes (he accepts and sends down the rain); indraḥ — Indra; somasya pītaye — for the drinking of soma; vṛṣāyate — comes

8. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 346 foot: on arṇavaḥ (arṇaso lopaś ca, Kā. 5-2-109 [?]; vap suffix), nadyaḥ (nada avyakte śabde, ac, the ñīp; Atharvaveda 3-13-1 as read [?] quoted: "āhāvanavatā hate tasmād ādyo nāma sthā to vo nāmāni sindhavaḥ" — doubtful, [?]), samudriyaḥ, gr̥bhṇāti (grahor bhaḥ), viśritāḥ, varīmabhiḥ (Uṇādi imanīc), vṛṣāyate (kyaṇ for conduct), yudhmaḥ (yudha saṃprahāre, Uṇādi man with muk), panasyate (pana stutau; panam icchati; kyac) — is characterized.

9. pp. 347-349, PDF 363-365

impetuous like a bull; yudhmaḥ — the warrior; saḥ — that Indra; sanāt — from long ago, or always; ojasā — (by the deeds of valour, such as the slaying of Vṛtra); panasyate — looks for praise."

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra, abiding in the atmosphere, takes the waters spread all round by the power of his greatness, as the ocean takes the rivers; and for the drinking of soma he comes like a bull, with joy and impetuosity. That warrior Indra always looks for praise of his valour."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 347)

— "The firmament-abiding Indra grasps the wide-spread waters with his comprehensive faculties as the ocean receives the rivers; he rushes (impetuous) as a bull, to drink of the soma-juice; he, the warrior ever covets praise for his prowess."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 347–349 - ¹⁰: अत्रेदमुक्तं भवति । इन्द्रः सोमस्य पाने प्रभूतमेव तृष्णालुर्भवति । अतः विवानेकैरुपासकैरर्पितान् सोमान् समुद्रो नदीरिव स्वीकरोति । सोमं पीत्वा च स्तुत्यर्हाणि वृत्रहननादीनि कर्माणि करोतीति ॥

— atredam uktaṁ bhavati | indraḥ somasya pāne prabhūtam eva tṛṣṇālur bhavati | ataḥ vivānekair upāsakair arpitān somān samudro nadīr iva svīkaroti | somaṁ pītvā ca stutyarhāṇi vṛtrahananādīni karmāṇi karotīti | — "Here this is meant: Indra is very thirsty for the drinking of soma; therefore he accepts the Somas offered by the many worshippers as the ocean accepts the rivers; and having drunk the soma he does deeds worthy of praise, the slaying of Vṛtra and the like." (vivānekair is crowded in the print, [?].) - samudriyaḥ — "Samudravanti asmād āpaḥ iti samudram antarikṣam, tatra bhavaḥ samudriyaḥ: the atmosphere, which supplies the earth with water. This is an epithet of Indra; to destroy Vṛtra, who in the form of water lay in the atmosphere, Indra went to the atmosphere." - nadyaḥ — "From the root nada avyakte śabde comes the word nadī: waters that make a sound. The śruti 'āhāvanavatā hate tasmād ādyo nāma sthā tā vo nāmāni sindhavaḥ' (Tai. Saṃ. 5-6-1-2 as read [?]) shows this sense." ¹¹ आहावनदता हते तस्मादा नद्यो नाम स्थ ता वो नामानि सिन्धवः । (Tai. Saṃ.

5-6-1-2 as read [?]; crowded)

āhāvanadatā hate tasmād ā nadyo nāma sthā tā vo nāmāni sindhavaḥ | — editorial and tentative, incomplete: "...therefore you are named 'sounding ones' (nadyaḥ); those are your names, rivers." - vṛṣāyate — "Vṛṣa ivācarati: he comes with joy; Indra is like a bull: he is happy." - panasyate — "Panaḥ stotram icchatī: he seeks praise. The word pana, which gives the sense of praise (stotra), is meant."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹² - arṇavaḥ: arṇas; for the possessive sense arṇaso lopaś ca (Kā. 5-2-109 as read [?]) gives va, and drops the s; end-acute by the suffix. - nadyaḥ: nada avyakte śabde; ac (nandigrahipacādibhyo); nadaṭ is read in a gaṇa, so it is ṭit, hence ṭiddhāṇā... gives nīp; yasyeti ca; anudāttasya ca yatrodāttalopaḥ: the ī is acute; yaṇ before jas; udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svaritaḥ: svarita. The nominative stands for the accusative (vivakṣātaḥ kārakāṇi). - samudriyaḥ: samudrābhrād ghaḥ (Pā. 4-4-118): gha; āyaneyīniyayaḥ... īya; īya treated as upadeśavat, so the ī is acute. - grbhṇāti: graha upādāne, kryādi; śnā; grahiyā... the saṃprasāraṇa; hrgrahor bhaś chandasi: bh for h. - viśritāḥ: śrīṇ sevāyām; kta, no guṇa; gatir anantaraḥ: the prefix's accent; plural initial-acute. - varīmabhiḥ: vṛñ varaṇe; Uṇādi īmasin; guṇa; sit: ñnityādir... initial-acute; instrumental plural; nalopaḥ. Or uru + imanic → vara + lengthening, initial-acute [Vedic]. - vṛṣāyate: kartuḥ kyaṇ salopaś ca (Pā. 3-1-11): kyaṇ in the sense of conduct; ātmanepada; akṛtsārvadhātukayor dīrghaḥ lengthens the a of vṛṣa. - yudhmaḥ: yudha saṃprahāre;

11. Quoted garbled; The Devanagari is given as printed, doubtful:

12. pp. 348–349 — grammar pages, noted briefly

iṣiyudhīndhidasiśyādhūsūbhyo mak (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]): mak;
end-acute. - panasyate: pana stutau, bhvādi; panaṃ panaḥ icchati;
supa ātmanaḥ kyac; vyatyaya gives ātmanepada; panasyate;
nighāta. || 2 ||

original pp. 349–353

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

त्वं तमिन्द्र पर्वतं न भोजसे महो नृम्णस्य धर्मणामिरज्यसि । प्र वीर्येण देवताति चेकिते विश्वस्मा उग्रः कर्मणे पुरोहितः ॥ ३ ॥

*tvam tam indra parvataṃ na bhojase maho nṛmṇasya dharmaṇām irajyasi | pra vīryeṇa devatāti cekite viśvasmā ugraḥ karmaṇe
purohitaḥ || 3 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । तम् । इन्द्र । पर्वतम् । न । भोजसे । महः । नृम्णस्य । धर्मणाम् । इरज्यसि । प्र । वीर्येण । देवता । अति । चेकिते । विश्वस्मै । उग्रः । कर्मणे । पुरःऽहितः ॥ ३ ॥

*tvam | tam | indra | parvatam | na | bhojase | mahaḥ |
nṛmṇasya | dharmaṇām | irajyasi | pra | vīryeṇa | devatā | ati |
cekite | viśvasmai | ugraḥ | karmaṇe | puraḥ-hitaḥ || 3 ||* ¹³

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वं भोजसे भोजनाय पर्वतं पर्ववन्तं मेघं नाकार्षीः । न हि हतो भुङ्क्ते ।
इन्द्रो हि वर्षणार्थं मेघं वज्रेण हन्ति । तथा महो महतो नृम्णस्य धनस्य धर्मणां
धारयितृणां कुबेरादीनामिरज्यसि । ईशिषे । इरज्यतिरैश्वर्यकर्मा । स इन्द्रो देवता
वीर्येणात्यतिशयित इति प्र चेकिते प्रकर्षेणास्माभिर्ज्ञातो बभूव । स चोग्र उद्गूर्ण इन्द्रो
विश्वस्मै सर्वस्मै वृत्रवधादिरूपाय कर्मणे देवैः पुरोहितः पुरस्तादवस्थापितः ॥

13. The Pada reads pra ... ati as two words: "pra | vīryeṇa | devatā | ati | cekite" — i.e. the Samhitā's devatāti; The print is followed.

*he indra tvam bhojase bhojanāya parvatam parvavantam megham
nākārṣīḥ [?] | na hi hato bhuṅkte | indro hi varṣaṇārtham
megham vajreṇa hanti | tathā maho mahato nṛmṇasya dhanasya dharmaṇām dhārayitṛṇām kuberādīnām irajyasi | īśiṣe | irajyatir
aiśvaryakarmā | sa indro devatā vīryeṇātyatisayita iti pra cekite
prakarṣeṇāsmābhir jñāto babhūva | sa cogra udgūrṇa indro viśvasmai sarvasmai vṛtravadhādirūpāya karmaṇe devaiḥ
purohitaḥ purastād avasthāpitaḥ | | ¹⁴*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you did not [strike] the cloud (parvatam, the cloud with its joints) bhojase, for eating — for one who is struck does not eat; Indra strikes the cloud with the thunderbolt for the sake of rain. And you irajyasi, are lord, of dharmaṇām, the holders — Kubera and the others — of mahaḥ nṛmṇasya, great wealth; irajyati is a verb of lordship. That Indra, as a deity, surpasses all by valour: so pra cekite, he has come to be well known to us. And he is ugraḥ, fierce, uplifted, viśvasmai karmaṇe, for every deed such as the slaying of Vṛtra, purohitaḥ, placed in front by the gods."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; tvam — you; bhojase — for your own enjoyment; tam parvatam — that cloud; na — you did not strike with the thunderbolt (you struck the cloud to make rain for men); mahaḥ — great; nṛmṇasya — of wealth; dharmaṇām — of the lords, Kubera and the others; irajyasi — you are the lord (you break); devatā — Indra in the form of a deity; vīryeṇa — by

14. Reading notes: "nākārṣīḥ" for "you did not make (it) food" is as read, [?] — the Kannada Pratipadārtha says "you did not strike (the cloud) with the thunderbolt [for your own enjoyment], but struck it to make rain for men". The grammatical tail, pp. 350 foot: on dharmaṇām (dhṛ, manin; uraṇ raparaḥ), irajyasi (irajyatīḥ aiśvaryakarmā, Ni. as read [?]; īrṣyā; kaṇḍvādi yak), vīryeṇa (vīra + yat, the vīravīryau ca rule), devatā (devāt tal), cekite (kita jñāne, intensive), purohitaḥ (purās, an avyaya with the gati name, so the prefix's accent) — is characterized.

valour; ati — he surpasses all; pra cekite — he has been known to us well; ugraḥ — the proud Indra (valiant); viśvasmai karmaṇe — for all deeds (such as the slaying of Vṛtra); purohitaḥ — has been put first (among the gods)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you did not strike the cloud with the thunderbolt for your own enjoyment, but struck it to cause rain. You are the master of Kubera and the other lords of great wealth. We have come to know that Indra, in the form of a deity, surpasses all by his valour. The valiant Indra stands first among the gods in all deeds of valour."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 351)

— "Indra, you have not set open the cloud for your own enjoyment; you rule over the great lords of riches; that Divinity (Indra) has been, by his own strength, greatly known to us, that fierce (Indra) has been, on account of his exploits, leader of all the gods."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), pp. 351–352 - bhojase — "Bhojanāya: the word bhojas, ending in s, gives in the Veda the sense of eating." - parvatam — "Parvavantam megham: it gives satisfaction; it gladdens people by giving water and the like. The Nirukta says 'parvavān parvataḥ, parva punaḥ prṇāteḥ prṇāter vā; arthavad apa-parva-devān asmin prṇantīti' (Ni. 1-20 as read [?])" ¹⁵. - nṛmṇasya — "This word means wealth (Ni. 2-10 as read [?])." - irajyasi — "Apekṣisuttīye: 'you wish for' — though this is the sense, for the verb irajyati of the sense of jealousy (īrṣyāyām) some have given the sense of lordship from 'aiśvārye ity eke'; the commentator takes the sense 'you hold lordship'." - pra cekite — "Prakarṣeṇa asmābhir jñāto babhūva: he has come to be especially known to us. This word is formed from the root kita jñāne." - ugraḥ — "Udgūrṇa indraḥ: the Indra who rises against enemies is its sense."

15. quoted incompletely in the print

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁶ - dharmaṇām: dhṛñ dhāraṇe; manin (anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyante); guṇa, uraṇ raparah: dharman; genitive plural; nit, initial-acute. - irajyasi: irajyatir aiśvaryakarmā; īrṣyāyām the root īraj, in the kaṇḍvādi list: kaṇḍvādibhyo yak; sanādyantā dhātavaḥ; laṭ second singular; nighāta. - vīryeṇa: vīra (śūra vīra vikrāntau, curādi) with satyāpapāśa...: ṇic; ac... yat (aco yat); ṇeraniṭi: loss of ṇic; vīrya; instrumental. By yato 'nāvaḥ initial-acute would arise, but since vīravīryau ca restates the initial-acute for compounds, the Kannada reasons that yat's accent does not come here, and tit svaritam gives svarita; "if yato 'nāvaḥ gave the initial acute, vīravīryau ca would be needless, since ādyudāttaṃ dvyac chandasi already gives it in compounds — so it would be useless; therefore the svarita comes here." - devatā: deva eva devatā; devāt tal (Pā. 5-4-27): tal in the self-sense; talantaṃ strīyām: feminine; liti: the acute before the suffix. - cekite: kita jñāne; yañ in the sense of intensity; sanyaṇoḥ reduplication; guṇo yañluk...; cekitya; liṭ with te → e... (details as before).

Rik 55.3, grammar (end) ¹⁷: cekite — liṭ after yañ-ending root (liṭ is ārdhadhātuka by liṭi...); ato lopaḥ drops the a of yañ; yasya halaḥ drops y; liṭas tajhayor eśirec gives e for ta: cekite; following an atiñ, nighāta. purohitaḥ — pūrvādhārāvarāṇām asi puradhavaś caiśām (Pā. 5-3-39): asi with pur for the base: puras; being read as an avyaya (taddhitaś cāsarvavibhaktiḥ, Pā. 1-1-38), purorvyayam (Pā. 1-4-67) gives it the gati-name, so gatiṛ anantaraḥ keeps the first member's accent. || 3 ||

original pp. 353–356

16. pp. 352–353 — grammar pages, noted briefly

17. p. 353, PDF 369

Rik 4

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

स इद्वने नमस्युभिर्वचस्यते चारु जनेषु प्रब्रुवाण इन्द्रियम् । वृषा छन्दुर्भवति हर्यतो वृषा क्षेमेण धेनां मघवा यदिवन्ति ॥ ४ ॥

*sa id vane namasyubhir vacasyate cāru janeṣu prabruvāṇa indriyam | vṛṣā chandur bhavati haryato vṛṣā kṣemeṇa dhenām
maghavā yad invati || 4 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

सः । इत् । वने । नमस्युऽभिः । वचस्यते । चारु । जनेषु । प्रब्रुवाणः । इन्द्रियम् । वृषा । छन्दुः । भवति । हर्यतः । वृषा । क्षेमेण । धेनाम् । मघवा । यत् । इन्वति ॥ ४ ॥ *saḥ | it | vane | namasyu-bhiḥ | vacasyate | cāru | janeṣu | pra-

bruvāṇaḥ | indriyam | vṛṣā | chanduh | bhavati | haryataḥ | vṛṣā
| kṣemeṇa | dhenām | maghavā | yat | invati || 4 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

स इत् स एवेन्द्रो वने रण्ये । नमस्युभिर्नमसा स्तोत्रेण पूजयितृभिर्ऋषिभिर्वचस्यते ।
वच इच्छन् क्रियते । स्तूयत इत्यर्थः । यद्वा वचः स्तोत्रमात्मन इच्छति । स चेन्द्र
आत्मीयेषु जनेष्विन्द्रियं स्ववीर्यं प्रब्रुवाणः प्रकटयन् चारु वर्तते । किंच स वृषा
कामानां वर्षको हर्यतः प्रेप्सावतो यियक्षतश्छन्दुरुपच्छन्दयिता भवति । यियक्षतां
पुरुषाणां योगे रुचिमुत्पादयतीति भावः । वृषा हविषां वर्षयिता हविष्प्रदातेत्यर्थः ।
मघवा धनवान् । एवंभूतो यजमानः क्षेमेणेन्द्रकृतेन रक्षणेन युक्तः सन् यद्यदा धेनां
स्तुतिलक्षणां वाचमिन्वति प्रेरयति । तदानीं छन्दुर्भवतीति पूर्वणान्वयः । यद्वा ।
मघवा वृषेन्द्रः क्षेमेण क्षेपकरेण मनसा धेनां यजमानैः कृतां स्तुतिं यद्यस्मादिन्वति व्याप्नोति तस्मादिति योज्यम् ॥

sa it sa evendro vane raṇye | namasyubhir namasā stotreṇa pūjayitr̥bhir ṛṣibhir vacasyate | vaca icchan kriyate | stūyata ity arthaḥ | yadvā vacaḥ stotram ātmana icchati | sa cendra ātmīyeṣu janeṣv indriyaṃ svavīryaṃ prabruvāṇaḥ prakāṣṭayan cāru vartate | kiṃca sa vṛṣā kāmānām varṣako haryataḥ prepsāvato

yiyakṣataś chandur upacchandayitā bhavati | yiyakṣatām
 puruṣāṇām yoge rucim utpādayatīti bhāvaḥ | vṛṣā haviṣām varṣayitā haviṣpradātety arthaḥ | maghavā dhanavān | evambhūto yajamānaḥ kṣemeṇendrakṛtena rakṣaṇena yuktaḥ san yad yadā dhenām stutilakṣaṇām vācam invati prerayati | tadānīm chandur bhavatīti pūrveṇānvayaḥ | yadvā | maghavā vṛṣendraḥ kṣemeṇa kṣepakareṇa manasā dhenām yajamānaiḥ kṛtām stutiṃ
 yad yasmād invati vyāpnoti tasmād iti yojyam || ¹⁸

Translation of the bhāṣya: "That very Indra, vane, in the forest, is vacasyate, praised by the namasyubhiḥ, the sages who worship with reverence and hymn; or he himself wishes a vacas, a hymn. And Indra, janeṣu, among his own people, prabruvāṇaḥ, proclaiming indriyam, his own valour, abides cāru, beautifully. Further, he is vṛṣā, the shower of desires, chanduh, the one who brings pleasure (upacchandayitā) to haryataḥ, one who wishes to sacrifice: he creates a liking, in men who wish to sacrifice, for the sacrifice. Vṛṣā is also the one who showers the oblations, i.e. the giver of oblations; maghavā, the wealthy one. When such a sacrificer, endowed with kṣema, the protection given by Indra, invati, sends out dhenām, a speech of praise — then Indra becomes chandu (connect with the first). Or: maghavā vṛṣā Indra, because he fills with his mind — kṣemeṇa, which dispels [trouble] — the dhenā, the praise made by the sacrificers, therefore (he becomes a pleasing one)."

Pratipadārtha — "saḥ it — that Indra; vane — in the forest; namasyubhiḥ — by the sages who worship with salutation; vacasyate — is praised, or wishes to be praised; janeṣu — among [his own] people; indriyam — his own valour; prabruvāṇaḥ — revealing; cāru — he is beautiful; vṛṣā — the giver of oblations, and; maghavā — wealthy; such a sacrificer; kṣemeṇa — with [Indra-given] protection; yat — when; dhenām — a praise in the form of speech; invati — offers; vṛṣā — Indra, who protects the desires; haryataḥ — to the sacrificer who wishes to sacrifice; chanduḥ — the giver of joy (satisfaction); bhavati — becomes."

18. The tail, p. 354, characterized: on namasyubhiḥ (namasaḥ kyac, kyāc chandasi: u), vacasyate, prabruvāṇaḥ (brūñ vyaktāyāṃ vāci, śānac, uvañ, ṇatva), indriyam (indrasya liṅgam, gha), invati (ivi vyāptau, num, śap) — and see the Kannada notes below.

Bhāvārtha

— "That Indra is praised in the forest by the sages who worship him; he proclaims his beautiful valour among his own people. The sacrificer, wealthy and a giver of oblations, protected by Indra, offers him a praise in speech; then Indra, who grants desires, becomes the giver of satisfaction to the sacrificer who wishes to sacrifice."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 355) — "He is praised by adoring (sages) in the forest, he stands beautifully by announcing his own strength amongst men, when protected by Indra, a wealthy sacrificer, the offerer of oblation, recites laudatory verses, Indra, the showerer of desires, engages him who is desirous of performing a sacrifice in that rite." ¹⁹

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 355 - namasyubhiḥ — "Namasā stotreṇa pūjayitr̥bhiḥ ṛṣibhiḥ: by sages who are satisfied by hymn alone. Indra, who loves praise, is satisfied by the praise of the sages in the forest." - vacasyate — "Vaca icchatī vacasyati: those sages, who make him vacasya, one who wishes hymns. The sense that sages cause Indra to be fond of praise is also fitting." - haryataḥ — "Prepsāvato yiyakṣataḥ: one who sacrifices of his own wish." - chanduḥ bhavati — "Upacchandayitā bhavati: Indra makes the sacrificers fond of the sacrificial act." - vṛṣā — "Here the word vṛṣā refers to Indra, as the giver of desired things, and to the sacrificer, as the one who offers oblations." - dhenām —

19. Printed "announcing" [sic]; heading "English Transation" [sic].

"Speech that displays praise: the word is used here in the context that 'one who speaks praise-words dear to Indra gives delight to the sacrificing people'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁰ - namasyubhiḥ: namas is an avyaya ending in s; namovarivaścitraṇaḥ kyac (Pā. 3-1-19) gives kyac in the sense of worship; namasya is a root; kyāc chandasi (Pā. 3-2-170) gives u after kyac-ending in the Veda; ato lopah; by the suffix-accent namasyu is end-acute; instrumental plural. - vacasyate: vacaḥ icchatī vacasyati; supa ātmanaḥ kyac; taṃ vacasyantaṃ kurvanti munayo vacasyayanti: hetumati ca gives ṇic after kyac; ṇer aniṭi drops it before yat ...; yasya halaḥ, ato lopah; or with mere kyac, vacasya; vyatyayo bahulam gives ātmanepada; nighāta. - prabruvāṇaḥ: brūñ vyaktāyām vāci; laṭaḥ śānac; ādādikāc chapo luk; sārvadhātukam apit: no guṇa; brū + śānac: āciśnudhātubhruvām...: uvañ; aṭkuvāñnum...: ṇatva; citaḥ: end-acute; with pra, gaticārapapadāt kṛt. - indriyam: indrasya liṅgam indriyam; indriyam indraliṅgam indradrṣtam indrasrṣtam indrajuṣtam indradattam iti vā (Pā. 5-2-93): gha is irregularly given; gha → iya; citaḥ: end-acute. - invati: ivi vyāptau; idito num dhātoḥ; laṭ third singular; kartari śap; śap and tip being pit, anudātta; the root's accent remains; since yat stands before, no nighāta. || 4 ||

original p. 357

Rik 5

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

स इन्महानि समिथानि मज्मना कृणोति युध्म ओजसा जनेभ्यः । अधा चन श्रद्धति त्विषीमत इन्द्राय वज्रं निघनिघ्नते वधम् ॥ ५ ॥ sa in mahāni samithāni majmanā kṛṇoti yudhma ojasā janebhyaḥ | adhā cana śraddadhati tviṣīmata indrāya vajraṃ nighanighnate vadham || 5 ||

Pada-pāṭha

सः । इत् । महानि । सम्ऽइथानि । मज्मना । कृणोति । युध्मः । ओजसा । जनेभ्यः । अध । चन । श्रत् । दधति । त्विषिऽमते । इन्द्राय । वज्रम् । निऽघनिघ्नते । वधम् ॥ ५ ॥

saḥ | it | mahāni | sam-ithāni | majmanā | kṛṇoti | yudhmaḥ |
ojasā | janebhyaḥ | adha | cana | śrat | dadhati | tviṣi-mate |
indrāya | vajram | ni-ghanighnate | vadham || 5 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

स इत् स एवेन्द्रो युध्मो योद्धा महानि समिथानि महतः संग्रामान् मज्मना सर्वस्य
शोधकेनौजसा बलेन कृणोति करोति । किमर्थं । जनेभ्यः । स्तोतृजनार्थं । यदेन्द्रो
वधं हननसाधनं वज्रमायुधं मेघेषु निघनिघ्नते । निहंति । अधा चन अनन्तरमेव
त्विषीमते दीप्तिमत इन्द्राय सर्वे जनाः श्रद्धति । श्रदिति सत्यनाम । इन्द्रो बलवानिति यदुच्यते तत्सत्यमेवेति सर्वे प्रतिपद्यन्ते ॥ sa it sa evendro yudhmo yoddhā mahāni samithāni mahataḥ saṃgrāmān majmanā sarvasya śodhakenaujasā balena kṛṇoti karoti | kimartham | janebhyaḥ | stotrjanārtham | yadendro vadham hananasādhanam vajram āyudham megheṣu nighanighnate | nihaṃti | adhā cana anantaram eva tviṣimate dīptimata indrāya sarve janāḥ śraddadhati | śrad iti satyanāma | indro balavān iti yad ucyate tat satyam eveti sarve pratipadyante

|| ²¹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "That very Indra, yudhmaḥ, the warrior, mahāni samithāni, great battles, majmanā, with strength that purifies everything, ojasā, with might, kṛṇoti, does — for what? janebhyah, for the sake of the praising people — when Indra vadham vajram, the killing thunderbolt, the weapon, nighanighnate, strikes down on the clouds. Adhā cana, immediately, tviṣimate, to the radiant Indra, all people śraddadhati: śrat is a name for truth; what is said, 'Indra is mighty', is true — thus all believe."

21. The tail, pp. 357 foot–358, characterized: on mahāni (mahat neuter plural; the loss of t; śi), samithāni (iṇ gatau, Uṇādi thak: "saṃyanti saṃgacchante 'smiṇ vīrā iti"), majmanā, kṛṇoti, tviṣimate (tviṣa dīptau), nighanighnate (han, intensive-like reduplication: nigha-nighnate; vyatyaya for the ātmanepada, plural sense) with the Nirukta note "ity ṛcaśabdaḥ prakārārthaḥ" — the Kannada notes below.

Pratipadārtha — "yudhmaḥ — the warrior; saḥ it — that Indra; mahāni — wonderful; samithāni — battles; majmanā — (that purify everything) that uproot enemies; ojasā — with strength; janebhyah — for the good of his worshippers; kṛṇoti — does (when Indra); vadham — the killing; vajram — his thunderbolt; nighanighnate — hurls repeatedly (on the clouds); adhā cana — immediately after that; tviṣimate — to the blazing; indrāya — Indra; śraddadhati — all people show devotion with trust in his true valour."

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra the warrior fights wonderful battles, for the good of his worshippers, with strength that can root out the enemies. When Indra hurls his deadly thunderbolt repeatedly, immediately all people show devotion, trusting the valour of the blazing Indra."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 358)

— "Indra, the warrior, engages in many great conflicts for man with his all-purifying prowess; when he hurls his fatal thunderbolt, every one immediately has faith in the resplendent Indra (as being highly powerful)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 358 (begins) - it — "A particle with the sense of the word eva." - yudhmaḥ — "The warrior; one who fights." - samithāni — "Samyanti saṃgacchante 'smin vīrā iti samithāni saṃgrāmāḥ": battles in which heroes gather together." - majmanā — "From the root ṭumasjo śuddhau: this word means 'purifying everything'." ²²

Rik 55.5, continued ²³

Special Topics, rest — adhā cana — "this group of words gives the sense 'immediately after'." śraddadhātī — "śrat is a name of truth; they believe it true when it is said that Indra is the mightiest." tviṣimate — "to Indra, who has radiance."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁴ - mahāni: mahat; in the neuter plural śi gives mahānti; in the Veda the loss of t gives mahāni; or mahyante pūjyante (mah) with ka by ghaṇarthe kavidhānam: maha with num and lengthening in the neuter; the suffix-accent makes the ā after h acute. - samithāni: iṇ gatau; samīṇaḥ (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]) gives thak after sam; kit, so no guṇa; thāthaghañktājabitrakāṇām: end-acute of the last member. - majmanā: ṭumasjo śuddhau; manin; masj + man: jhalām jaśo jhaśi gives d for s; stoḥ ścunā ścuḥ, ṣṭunā ṣṭuḥ [ścutva/jaśtva]: j; suffix-accent; instrumental. - adhā: atha with tha → dha in the Veda; nipātasya ca lengthens. - tviṣimate: tviṣa dīptau; in (ins sarvadhātubhyaḥ, Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]); nit: initial-acute; tad asyāsty asmin gives matup; lengthening of the first member (anyeṣām api dṛśyate). - nighanighnate: han hiṃsāgatyoh; vyatyaya gives ātmanepada and the plural; bahulam chandasi gives ślu for śap; ślau reduplication; gamahanajana... drops the penultimate a; hohanteḥ...: gh for the h; ātmanepadeṣv nataḥ: at for jha... nighanighnate; āgamīgamītī ca [as read]: ity is for "such like", so one must reckon this among the Vedic exceptions. || 5 ||

original pp. 360–363

Rik 6Samhitā-pāṭha

22. Remaining Special Topics and grammar of Rik 5 are on p. 359.

23. p. 359, PDF 375

24. pp. 359–360 — grammar pages, noted briefly

स हि श्रवस्युः सदनानि कृत्रिमा क्षमया वृधान ओजसा विनाशयन् । ज्योतींषि कृण्वन्नवृकाणि यज्यवे ऽव सुक्रतुः सर्तवा अपः सृजत् ॥ ६ ॥ sa hi śravasyuḥ sadanāni kṛtrimā kṣmayā vṛdhāna ojasā vināśayan | jyotīṃṣi kṛṇvann avṛkāṇi yajyave 'va sukratuḥ sartavā

apah srjat || 6 ||

Pada-pāṭha

सः । हि । श्रवस्युः । सदनानि । कृत्रिमा । क्षमया । वृधानः । ओजसा । विनाशयन् । ज्योतींषि । कृण्वन् । अवृकाणि । यज्यवे । अव । सुक्रतुः । सर्तवै । अपः । सृजत् ॥ ६ ॥

saḥ | hi | śravasyuḥ | sadanāni | kṛtrimā | kṣmayā | vṛdhānaḥ | ojasā | vi-nāśayan | jyotīṃṣi | kṛṇvan | avṛkāṇi | yajyave | ava |
su-kratuḥ | sartavai | apah | srjat || 6 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

श्रवस्युरन्नं यशो वात्मन इच्छन् कृत्रिमा कृत्रिमाणि क्रियया निर्वृत्तानि
सदनान्यसुरपुराण्योजसा बलेन विनाशयन् क्षमया भूम्या समानं वृधानो वर्धनशीलः ।
यद्वा क्षम्येत्योजोविशेषणं शत्रूणामभिभवित्वा बलेनेत्यर्थः । ज्योतींषि सूर्यादीनि
वृत्रेणावृत्तान्यवृकाणि वृकेणावरकेण तेन रहितानि कृण्वन् कुर्वन् सुक्रतुः
शोभनकर्मसहित एवंविधः स खल्विन्द्रो यज्यवे यष्ट्रे यजमानाय तदर्थं सर्तवै सरणायापो वृष्टिलक्षणान्युदकान्यवासृजत् । वृष्टिं कृतवानित्यर्थः ॥ śravasyur annaṃ yaśo vātmana icchan kṛtrimā kṛtrimāṇi kriyayā nirvṛttāni sadanāny asurapurāṇy ojasā balena vināśayan kṣmayā bhūmyā samānaṃ vṛdhāno vardhanaśīlaḥ | yadvā kṣmayety

ojoviśeṣaṇaṃ śatrūṇām abhibhavitrā balenety arthaḥ | jyotīṃṣi sūryādīni vṛtreṇāvṛtāny avṛkāṇi vṛkeṇāvarakeṇa tena rahitāni kṛṇvan kurvan sukratuḥ śobhanakarmasahita evaṃvidhaḥ sa khalv indro yajyave yaṣtre yajamānāya tadarthaṃ sartavai saraṇāyāpo vṛṣṭilakṣaṇāny udakāny avāsrjat | vṛṣṭim kṛtavān ity arthaḥ | | ²⁵

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Śravasyuḥ, wishing for food or fame for himself, vināśayan, destroying with strength the kṛtrimā sadanāni, the artificial dwellings — the cities of the Asuras built by effort — kṣmayā vṛdhānaḥ, growing equal to the earth (or: kṣmayā as an epithet of ojasā, 'the strength that overcomes enemies'); jyotīṃṣi, the luminaries such as the sun, covered by Vṛtra, avṛkāṇi kṛṇvan, making free of the vṛka (the coverer) — such Indra, sukratuḥ, of good deeds, yajyave, for the sacrificer, sartavai, to flow, apah ava sṛjat, let down the waters, the rains: made rain."

Pratipadārtha — "śravasyuḥ — desiring food or fame; kṛtrimā — well built; sadanāni — (of the Rākṣasas) houses; ojasā — by his strength; vināśayan — destroying; kṣmayā — like the earth, or equal to his power; vṛdhānaḥ — growing widely; jyotīṃṣi — the luminaries such as the sun; avṛkāṇi — free of the cover (of Vṛtra); kṛṇvan — making; sukratuḥ — with excellent works; saḥ hi — that very Indra; yajyave — for the sacrificer; sartavai — to flow; apah — the waters; ava sṛjat — let go (made the rain fall)."

Bhāvārtha

— "Desiring fame, destroying the well-built houses of the Rākṣasas with his strength, growing as wide as the earth, freeing the sun and other luminaries from the covering of Vṛtra, and doing excellent works, that very Indra sent down rain for the use of the sacrificer, and made the waters flow."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 362)

25. The tail, pp. 360 foot–361 and the Kannada grammar notes: on kṛtrimā (ḍukṛṇ karāṇe, kṛi by ḍvitaḥ kṛiḥ, then trer mam nityam gives map), kṣmayā, vṛdhānaḥ (cānaś), avṛkāṇi (vṛṇ varaṇe, Uṇādi kak; bahuvrīhi), yajyave (yaja, Uṇādi yu), sukratuḥ, sartavai (sṛ gatau, tavai), apah, sṛjat (sṛja visarge, laṇ, no aṭ) — noted below.

— "Desiring of fame, destroying the well-built houses of the Asuras with his power, expanding like the earth and setting the (heavenly) luminaries free from concealment, he, the performer of good deeds enables the waters to flow for the sake of his worshippers."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 362 - śravasyuḥ — "One who wishes food or fame for himself." - kṛtrimā — "Kṛtrimāṇi kriyayā nirvṛttāni: things made, built by one's own effort." - kṣmayā — "The power that destroys enemies; it is an epithet of ojasā." - jyotiṃṣi avṛkāṇi — "The Asura Vṛtra, abiding in the atmosphere, covered the sun and all the planets; Indra, having killed him, removed all the affliction that had come to the luminaries from Vṛtra: he destroyed all the coverings that Vṛtra had made." - yajyave — "Yaṣṭre: for the sacrificer." - sartavai — "From the root sr̥ gatau: it indicates 'to flow, for the sake of going'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁶ - śravasyuḥ: "śravaḥ annam ātmana icchatī śravasyati"; supa ātmanaḥ kyac; kyāc chandasi: u; ato lopaḥ; end-acute by the suffix. - kṛtrimā: ḍukṛñ karaṇe; ḍu is it by ādir n̄iṭuḍavaḥ, lost; ḍvitaḥ ktriḥ (Pā. 3-3-88): ktri in the action sense; ktr̥er mam nityam (Pā. 4-4-20): map in the sense of "accomplished by"; ktri is kit, so no guṇa; map being pit is anudātta, so the ktri-suffix accent remains; in the neuter plural śi is dropped by śeś chandasi bahulam. - kṣmayā: kṣamūṣ sahanē; kṣamate prāñijātakṛtam upadravam iti kṣamā; śidbhidādibhyo 'ñ (Pā. 3-3-104): añ; ajādyataṣ ṭāp; the penultimate a lost by vyatyaya: kṣmā; instrumental kṣmayā; the ending's acute (Vedic). Or the root in the sense of overcoming: manī; Uṇādi manin; in the feminine by vyatyaya; n̄p barred by manaḥ (Pā. 4-1-11); ḍāp by ḍābubhābhyām anyatarasyām, ṭi lost. - vṛdhānaḥ: vṛdhu vṛddhau; tācchīlavayoh...cānaś; śap → luk (bahulaṃ chandasi); cānaś being jī... no laghūpadha guṇa; citaḥ: end-acute. - avṛkāṇi: vṛñ varāṇe;

sr̥vr̥bhūsūṣimuṣibhyaḥ kak (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]): kak, kit, no guṇa; na vidyante vṛkāṇi yeṣām: naṅsubhyām: end-acute. - yajyave: yaja devapūjāsaṅgatikaraṇadāneṣu; yajimaniśundhidasijanibhyo yuḥ (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]): yu; dative singular; vṛṣādi (ākṛtigaṇa): initial-acute. - sukratuḥ: bahuvrīhi; kratvādayaś ca: the kṛdanta-final accent is set aside; initial-acute of the last member. - sartavai: sr̥ gatau; kṛtyārthe tavaikakenanvaḥ...: tavai; guṇa by ārdhadhātuka; antaś ca tavai yugapat (Pā. 6-1-200): initial and final both acute at once. - apah: accusative plural of ap; ūḍidam...: śas acute. - sr̥jat: sr̥ja visarge, tudādi; laṅ third singular; itaś ca: i dropped; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ; śa is pit, so anudātta; no laghūpadha guṇa (sārvadhātukam apit); no aṭ (bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi); no nighāta in this position. || 6 ||

original p. 364

Rik 7

Samhitā-pāṭha

दानाय मनः सोमपावन्नस्तु तेऽर्वाञ्चा हरी वन्दनश्रुदा कृधि । यमिष्ठासः सारथयो य इन्द्र ते न त्वा केता आ दभ्नुवन्ति भूर्णयः ॥ ७ ॥ dānāya manah somapāvann astu te 'rvāñcā harī vandanaśrud ā kṛdhi | yamiṣṭhāsaḥ sārathayo ya indra te na tvā ketā ā dabhnuvanti bhūrṇayaḥ || 7 ||

Pada-pāṭha

दानाय । मनः । सोमऽपावन् । अस्तु । ते । अर्वाञ्चा । हरी इति । वन्दनऽश्रुत् । आ । कृधि । यमिष्ठासः । सारथयः । ये । इन्द्र । ते । न । त्वा । केताः । आ । दभ्नुवन्ति । भूर्णयः ॥ ७ ॥

*dānāya | manah | soma-pāvan | astu | te | arvāñcā | harī iti |
vandana-śrut | ā | kṛdhi | yamiṣṭhāsaḥ | sārathayaḥ | ye | indra
| te | na | tvā | ketāḥ | ā | dabhnuvanti | bhūrṇayaḥ || 7 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya ²⁷

हे सोमपावन् सोमस्य पातरिन्द्र ते त्वदीयं मनो दानायास्मदभिमतफलप्रदानायास्तु ।
 भवतु । हे वन्दनश्रुत् वन्दनानां स्तुतीनां श्रोतः हरी
 त्वदीयावश्चावर्वाञ्चास्मद्यज्ञाभिमुखावा कृधि । आभिमुख्येन कुरु । हे इन्द्र ते तव
 स्वभूता ये सारथयः सन्ति ते यमिष्ठासोऽतिशयेन यन्तारः । अश्वनियमनकुशला
 इत्यर्थः । यस्मादेवं तस्मात्केताः प्रातिकूल्यज्ञातारो भूर्णयः स्वकीयायुधादीनां भर्तारः । यद्वा । भीतास्त्रस्नवः शत्रवस्त्वा त्वां ना दभ्नुवन्ति । ...

*he somapāvan somasya pātar indra te tvadīyaṃ mano dānāyāsmadabhimataphalapradānāyāstu | bhavatu | he vandanaśrut vandanānāṃ stutīnāṃ śrotaḥ harī tvadīyāv aśvāv arvāñcāsmadyajñābhīmukhāv ā kṛdhi | ābhīmukhyena kuru | he indra te tava svabhūtā ye sārathayaḥ santi te yamiṣṭhāso 'tiśayena yaṃtāraḥ | aśvaniyamanakuśalā ity arthaḥ | yasmād evaṃ tasmāt ketāḥ prātikūlyajñātāro bhūrṇayaḥ svakīyāyudhādīnāṃ bhartāraḥ | yadvā | bhītās trasnavaḥ śatravas tvā tvāṃ nā
 dabhnuvanti | ...*²⁸

Rik 55.7, continued²⁹

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, end of the main sense — "... bhītās trasnavaḥ śatravas tvā tvāṃ nā dabhnuvanti | na hiṃsanti |" — "or: the frightened, fearful enemies do not harm you (dabhnuvanti)."^{30 31}

Pratipadārtha — "somapāvan — O Indra, who drink the soma juice; te — your; manah — mind; dānāya — to give (our desires); astu — be; vandanaśrut — O hearer of our hymns; harī — your horses; arvāñcā — facing our sacrifice; ā kṛdhi — make come; indra — O Indra; te — your; ye sārathayaḥ — whichever charioteers; yamiṣṭhāsaḥ — those who are able to run the horses

²⁸. continued on p. 365

²⁹. pp. 365–367, PDF 381–383

³⁰. The first sentence of the bhāṣya on p. 364 is thus: "O Indra, drinker of soma, may your mind be for giving what we desire; hearer of praises, make your two horses turn towards our sacrifice; your own charioteers are most skilled controllers of the horses; therefore your ketāḥ, adversaries who know hostility, bhūrṇayaḥ, bearers of their own weapons — or the frightened, fearful enemies — do not harm you."

under control; ketāḥ — the adversaries or deceivers who understand (your strength); bhūrṇayaḥ — the cruel ones bearing weapons, or the ones frightened of your strength, being enemies; tvā — you; na ā dabhnuvanti — cannot harm (cannot conquer)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, drinker of the soma, may your mind be inclined to favour us with our desires. O hearer of our hymns, make your horses come facing our sacrifice. Your charioteers are skilled in controlling the horses. Your enemies, the cruel ones who rely on your strength [sic], cannot conquer you."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 366)

— "Drinker of the soma-juice, may your mind be disposed to grant our desires; hearer of praises, let your horses be present (at our sacrifice); your charioteers are experts in restraining your horses; therefore, (your enemies) cherishing malevolent feelings against you and carrying arms cannot injure you."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḥ), p. 366 - somapāvan — "'Indra who drinks the soma': the vocative of somapā, somapāvan (O drinker of soma)." - vandanaśrut — "'Hearer of the praises': this too is the vocative singular; vandana means praise; one who is extremely eager in hearing praise." - arvāñcā harī — "O Indra,

31. The grammatical tail, p. 365, is characterized: on somapāvan (pā pāne, vanip; the lengthening in the vocative is prevented, since the vocative of such words is read as asambuddhau), arvāñcā (añc with the dual au → ā), vandanaśrut (vadī abhivādanastutyoh, num, lyuṭ; śru, kvip, tuk), yamiṣṭhāsaḥ (yam uparame, tṛc; tuś chandasi: iṣṭhan; turiṣṭhemeyaḥsu: loss of tṛ), ketāḥ (kita jñāne; ac, guṇa; initial-acute by vṛṣādī), dabhnuvanti (dabhu dambhe, svādī, śnu; uvañ), bhūrṇayaḥ (bhṛñ bharaṇe, ṇi: dhṛñiḥ pṛśñiḥ pārṣñiḥ, an irregular formation with u and lengthening; or bhī bhaye) — compare the Kannada notes.

may your strong horses come facing our sacrifice: this is the context of praying that you come with your chariot to our sacrifice and accept the oblation." - ketāḥ — "Prātikūlyajñātāraḥ: cikete prātikūlyam jānantīti ketāḥ, or 'those who are known as hostile'. Those who consider everything as against them: enemies." - bhūrṇayah — "Those who have arms; or enemies who are frightened: so it is explained in two ways."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³² - somapāvan: pā pāne; ātomanin kvanipvanipaś ca (Pā. 3-2-74): vanip; the vocative: sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau does not lengthen, because asambuddhau is stated; halṇyābbhyo... drops su; nalopaḥ: no loss since na nisambuddhyoḥ; āmantritasya ca: nighāta. - arvāñcā: arvāñc + au: supām suluk...: ā for the ending. - vandanaśrut: vadi abhivādanastutyoḥ; idito num dhātoḥ; lyuṭ in the action sense, yuvor anākau: ana; śru śravaṇe, kvip ca; hrasvasya piti kṛti tuk: tuk; vocative. - yamiṣṭhāsaḥ: yam uparame; tṛc in the agent sense: yanṭṛ; tuś chandasi: iṣṭhan; turiṣṭhemeyahsu: tṛ lost; yamiṣṭha; nit: initial-acute; ājjaser asuk: asuk for jas: yamiṣṭhāsaḥ. - ketāḥ: kita jñāne; nandigrahipacādibhyaḥ (ac); pugantalaghūpadhasya ca: guṇa; citaḥ would give end-acute, but since vṛṣādi is an ākṛtigaṇa the initial-acute holds; or ghañ in the passive: ñnityādir nityam. - dabhnuvanti: dabhu dambhe, svādi; laṭ third plural, jho'ntaḥ: ant; svādibhyaḥ śnuḥ; śnu is ñit-like (sārvadhātukam apit), so anidatām halaḥ...: loss of n of the root; no yaṇ since śnu follows a conjunct (huśnuvoḥ sārvadhātuke); āciśnudhātubhruvām...: uvañ; nighāta. - bhūrṇayah: bhrñ bharane; dhṛṣṇiprśniparṣṇi... (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]): ni with u and lengthening by the nipāta; or from bhī bhaye; kṛtyalyuṭo bahulam: kranin; udoṣṭhyapūrvasya: u; halica: lengthening; rkārālādibhyaḥ kṛin niṣṭhāvad bhavati (a vārttika): treated as niṣṭhā, so ṇatva: bhūrṇi; initial-acute. || 7 ||

original pp. 368–371

Rik 8

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

अप्रक्षितं वसु बिभर्षि हस्तयोरषाळहं सहस्तन्वि श्रुतो दधे । आवृतासोऽवतासो न कर्तृभिस्तनूषु ते क्रतव इन्द्र भूरयः ॥ ८ ॥ *apra-kṣitam vasu bibharṣi hastayor aṣālham sahas tanvi śruto dadhe | āvṛtāso 'vatāso na kartṛbhis tanūṣu te kratava indra

bhūrayaḥ || 8 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अप्रक्षितम् । वसु । बिभर्षि । हस्तयोः । अषाळहम् । सहः । तन्वि । श्रुतः । दधे । आऽवृतासः । अवतासः । न । कर्तृभिः । तनूषु । ते । क्रतवः । इन्द्र । भूरयः ॥ ८ ॥

*apra-kṣitam | vasu | bibharṣi | hastayoḥ | aṣālham | sahaḥ |
tanvi | śrutaḥ | dadhe | ā-vṛtāsaḥ | avatāsaḥ | na | kartṛ-bhiḥ |
tanūṣu | te | kratavaḥ | indra | bhūrayaḥ || 8 ||* ³³

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र त्वमप्रक्षितं प्रक्षयरहितं वसु धनं हस्तयोर्बिभर्षि । स्तोतृभ्यो दातुं धारयसि ।
तथा श्रुतः प्रख्यातो भवं तन्वि तन्वां त्वदीये शरीरेऽषाळहं शत्रुभिरनभिभूतं सहो बलं
दधे । धारयति । त्वदीयास्तनवः कर्तृभिर्वृत्रादेरसुरस्य वधं कुर्वद्भिर्बलकृतैः सर्वाणि
कर्माण्येतस्य शरीरमावृत्यावतिष्ठन्ते । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । अवतासो न । अवत इति
कूपनाम । यथा कूपा जलोद्धरणाय प्रवृत्तैः प्राणिभिरावृयन्ते तद्वत् । यस्मादेवं तस्माद्धे इन्द्र ते तव शरीरेषु क्रतवः कर्माणि भूरयो बहूनि विद्यन्ते ॥

he indra tvam aprakṣitam prakṣayarahitam vasu dhanam hastayor bibharṣi | stotṛbhyo dātum dhārayasi | tathā śrutaḥ prakhyāto bhavam tanvi tanvām tvadiye śarīre 'ṣālham śatrubhir anabhibhūtam saho balaṃ dadhe | dhārayati | tvadiyās tanavaḥ kartṛbhir vṛtrāder asurasya vadham kurvadbhir balakṛtaiḥ

33. The Saṃhitā reads "śruto dadhe", the Pada "śrutaḥ | dadhe"; the Pada's "dadhe" is as printed; the Saṃhitā's "sahas tanvi" is the Pada's sahaḥ | tanvi.

sarvāṇi karmāṇy etasya śarīram āvṛtyāvatiṣṭhante | tatra
 dṛṣṭāntaḥ | avatāso na | avata iti kūpanāma | yathā kūpā jalodharaṇāya pravṛttaiḥ prāṇibhir āvṛyante tadvat | yasmād evaṃ tasmād dhe indra te tava śarīreṣu kratavaḥ karmāṇi bhūrayo
 bahūni vidyante || ³⁴

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, you hastayoḥ bibharṣi, hold in both hands, aprakṣitam, unexhausted wealth, vasu: you keep it in order to give it to the praisers. And śrutah, renowned, in your own body (tanvi) you have aśālham, unconquered by enemies, sahaḥ, strength; you hold it. Your limbs are covered, all round, by deeds of strength done by the doers who slay Vṛtra and the like — all those deeds stand about this body, enveloping it. An illustration: avatāso na: avata is a word for 'well': as wells are surrounded by creatures who go for water. Since this is so, O Indra, te tanūṣu kratavaḥ bhūrayaḥ, in your bodies are many deeds."

Pratipadārtha — "(O Indra, you) aprakṣitam — without exhaustion; vasu — wealth; hastayoḥ — in your two hands; bibharṣi — you hold (in order to give to us); śrutah — you who are renowned; tanvi — in your body; aśālham — which enemies cannot withstand; sahaḥ — strength; dadhe — you hold [i.e. your limbs]; kartṛbhiḥ — by deeds of valour (such as killing Vṛtra);

34. Reading note: the bhāṣya is printed with a few crowded syllables ("bhavaṃ", "dadhe | dhārayati"); The sense is given from the Pratipadārtha. The tail, pp. 368 foot–369, is characterized: aprakṣitam (kṣi kṣaye, niṣṭhā; anyadarthe... no lengthening; prakṣitam kṣitam yasya), bibharṣi (dubhṛñ, juhotyādi, ślu, reduplication, i), aśālham (saha abhibhave, kta; iṭ optional triśahalubha...; hodhaḥ, jhaṣastathoḥ, ṣṭunā; the Vedic sādhyā sādhyā, tanvi (tanu, locative i; Vedic tan), dadhe (ḍudhāñ, liṭ)) — see the Kannada notes below.

avatāsaḥ na — as a well is surrounded by those who come for water; āvṛtāsaḥ — are full; indra — O Indra; te — your [bodies']; kratavaḥ — valorous deeds; bhūrayaḥ — are numerous."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you hold in both your hands unexhausted wealth to give to us. In your renowned body there is strength that enemies cannot withstand. As a well is surrounded all round by people who come for water, your limbs are filled all round with numerous deeds of valour."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 369)

— "You hold in you hands unexhausted wealth; renowned Indra, you have irresistible strength in your body; your limbs are invested with (glorious) exploits, as wells are (surrounded by those who come for water); Indra, you have many exploits in your body."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 369–370 - aprakṣitam

— "Prakṣitaṃ kṣitaṃ yasya tat prakṣitaṃ na prakṣitam aprakṣitam: wealth that has not suffered any decay — a firm treasure." - tanvi — "In the body': the word tanū is used in the Veda here and there in the form tan." - aśālham — "Unconquered by enemies. It is an epithet of jalaśabda [sahas, as the print has it, [?]]." - kartṛbhiḥ — "By deeds of valour such as the slaying of Vṛtra and other Rākṣasas; by prowess." - avatāso na — "Avata means a well (Ni. 3-... as read [?]); in the Nirukta fourteen words beginning with avata are read as names of a well. As people build a wall around a well to draw water, all deeds become strong by resorting to you — so Indra is praised."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁵ - aprakṣitam: kṣi kṣaye; kta in the sense of the action, niṣṭhāyām anyadarthe (Pā. 6-4-60): prohibition of lengthening before niṣṭhā... since the sense is the action (bhāva),

35. pp. 370–371 — grammar pages, noted briefly

the lengthening that would follow niṣṭhā does not come; and śriyo dīrghāt (Pā. 8-2-46) does not give natva to the t; "prakṛṣṭam kṣitam yasya tat prakṣitam, na prakṣitam aprakṣitam"; tatpuruṣe tulyārtha... gives the accent of the first member, the particle. - bibharṣi: ḍubhṛñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; juhotyādi, laṭ second singular sip; juhotyādibhyaḥ śluḥ; ślau: reduplication; jaśtva; bhṛñām it (Pā. 7-4-76): i for the reduplicative; sip is cause of guṇa; ṣatva of s after r; nighāta. - aṣālham: saha abhibhave; niṣṭhā kta; triṣahalubha... (Pā. 7-2-48): iṭ is optional after these roots, so yasya vibhāṣā (Pā. 7-2-15) forbids iṭ for cta; sah + ta: ṣatva at the beginning; hodhaḥ: dha for h; jhaṣas tathor dho 'dhaḥ: dh for t; ṣṭunā ṣṭuḥ: ḍh; ḍhe ḍhalopaḥ: the earlier ḍh drops; saha with saheḥ sādhaḥ, sahvahor odavarṇasya (Pā. 6-3-112): o for the a — but the Vedic sādhyaī sādḥā sādheti nigame (Pā. 6-3-113) gives ā instead; since sādḥā in that sūtra is given as a ṭṛc-ending the Kannada says it is only illustrative: the form occurs in other contexts also. - tanvi: tanu; the locative ni → i; āc ca ghoḥ (Pā. 7-3-119): ni becomes au after ghi-stems, but jasādiṣu chandasi vāvacanam makes it optional, so here it does not come; yaṇ; udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svaritaḥ: svārīta on the ending; and udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt would give the ending an acute (because a hal precedes the yaṇ), but in the Veda it does not. - dadhe: dudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; Vedic liṭ, reduplication; ātlopa iṭi ca: loss of ā; nighāta. || 8 ||

Close of Sūkta 55

Closing note ³⁶ — "ಐವತ್ತ ಐದನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು ಸಮಾಪ್ತವು" — "The fifty-fifth sūkta is ended."

Sūkta 55 (Maṇḍala 1, Tenth Anuvāka, 8 Riks; ṛṣi Savya Āṅgīrasa; deity Indra; Jagatī) — printed pp. 341–371, PDF 357–387. The Riks praise Indra's vastness beyond heaven and earth, and the sharpening of his bolt as a bull whets its horn (1); his

36. p. 371, printed large

taking the waters as the ocean takes the rivers, and his thirst for soma (2); his not striking the cloud for his own food, his mastery of the lords of wealth, and his place as leader of the gods (3); his praise in the forest by the sages and the pleasure he gives the sacrificer (4); his great battles and the faith of all in him (5); his destruction of the Asura cities, the freeing of the luminaries and the release of the waters (6); the petition that he turn his mind to giving, with his well-driven chariot (7); and his unfailing wealth, unconquered strength and countless deeds, likened to a well surrounded by those who come for water (8). The Special Topics contain no long narratives; the Kannada grammar notes carry the main argument on vīrya (Rik 3).

Sūkta 56 — "eṣa pra pūrvīḥ"

original p. 371

ಐವತ್ತಾರನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — ¹

Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 371)

एष प्र पूर्विरिति षडृचं षष्ठं सूक्तं सव्यस्यार्षमैन्द्रं जागतमित्युक्तं । अनुक्रान्तं च ।
एष प्र षडिति ॥ विषुवति निष्केवल्य एतत्सूक्तं शंसनीयं । विषुवान्दिवाकीर्त्य इति
खण्डे सूत्रितं । एष प्र पूर्वैर्वृषामदः प्र मंहिष्ठाय । आ. ८-६ [?] इति ॥ *eṣa pra pūrvīḥ iti ṣaḍṛcam ṣaṣṭham sūktam savyasyārṣam aindram jāgatam ity uktam | anukrāntam ca | eṣa pra ṣaḍ iti || viṣuvati

niṣkevalya etat sūktam śamsanīyam | viṣuvān divākīrtya iti khaṇḍe sūtritam | eṣa pra pūrvīḥ vṛṣāmadaḥ pra maṁhiṣṭhāya | ā.
8-6 [?] iti ||*

Translation: "'Eṣa pra pūrvīḥ': a sūkta of six Riks, the sixth [of the Tenth Anuvāka]; the seer is Savya, the deity Indra, the metre Jagatī, as stated; so the Anukramaṇī: 'eṣa pra ṣaḥ'. On the Viṣuvat day this sūkta is to be recited in the niṣkevalya; in the section 'viṣuvān divākīrtyaḥ' it is aphorized: 'eṣa pra pūrvīḥ vṛṣāmadaḥ pra maṁhiṣṭhāya' (Āśv. 8-6 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 371) — "'Eṣa pra pūrvīḥ' is the sixth sūkta in the tenth anuvāka. It has six Riks. The seer is Savya, the deity Indra, the metre Jagatī. The Anukramaṇikā says 'eṣa pra ṣaṭ'. In the Viṣuvat sacrifice this sūkta is to be recited for the niṣkevalya śāstra mantras: so the sūtra 'eṣa pra pūrvīr vṛṣāmadaḥ pra maṃhiṣṭhāya' in the section 'viṣuvān divākīrtyaḥ' of the Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra (Āśv. 8-6) shows." ²

Heading block of Sūkta 56 (p. 372, PDF 388)

Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 10 · Sūkta 56 · Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 20 [as read, [?]] · Riks: 6 · Ṛṣi: Savya Āṅgīrasa · Deity: Indra · Metre: Jagatī.

original pp. 372–375

Rik 1

Samhitā-pāṭha ³

एष प्र पूर्वीरव तस्य चम्रिषोऽत्यो न योषामुदयंस्त भुर्वणिः । दक्षं महे पाययते हिरण्ययं रथमावृत्या हरियोगमृभ्वसम् ॥ १ ॥ *eṣa pra pūrvīr ava tasya camriṣo 'tyo na yoṣām udayamsta bhurvaṇiḥ | dakṣam mahe pāyayate hiraṇyayam ratham āvrtyā

hariyogam ṛbhvasam || 1 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

एषः । प्र । पूर्वीः । अव । तस्य । चम्रिषः । अत्यः । न । योषाम् । उत् । अयंस्त । भुर्वणिः । दक्षम् । महे । पाययते । हिरण्ययम् । रथम् । आवृत्या । हरियोगम् । ऋभ्वसम् ॥ १ ॥

*eṣaḥ | pra | pūrvīḥ | ava | tasya | camriṣaḥ | atyaḥ | na | yoṣām
| ut | ayaṃsta | bhurvaṇiḥ | dakṣam | mahe | pāyayate |
hiraṇyayam | ratham | ā-vrtya | hari-yogam | ṛbhvasam || 1 ||*

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-sixth sūkta"

2. The heading block and Rik 56.1 are on p. 372 (PDF 388).

3. accents printed, not reproduced

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

भुर्वणिर्भक्षको भक्षणशीलो वा एष इन्द्रस्तस्य यजमानस्य पूर्वीः प्रभूताश्चमिषश्चमूषु
चमसेष्ववस्थिताः सोमलक्षणा इषः प्रावोदयंस्त । प्रकर्षेण पानार्थमुद्धरति । तत्र
दृष्टान्तः । अत्यो न योषाम् । यथाश्चो वडवां क्रीडार्थमुपगच्छति । स चेन्द्रो हिरण्यं
सुवर्णमयं हरियोगं हरिभ्यां युक्तमृभ्वसमुरु भासमानं रथमावृत्यावस्थाप्य महे महते वृत्रवधादिरूपाय कर्मणे दक्षं प्रवृद्धमात्मानं सोमं पाययते । पानं कारयति ॥

*bhurvaṇir bhakṣako bhakṣaṇaśīlo vā eṣa indras tasya yajamānasya pūrvīḥ prabhūtāś camriṣaś camūṣu camaseṣv avasthitāḥ somalakṣaṇā iṣaḥ prāvodayaṃsta | prakarṣeṇa
pānārtham uddharati | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | atyo na yoṣām |
yathāśvo vaḍavāṃ krīḍārtham upagacchati | sa cendro hiraṇyayaṃ suvarṇamayaṃ hariyogaṃ haribhyāṃ yuktam ṛbhvasam uru bhāsamānaṃ ratham āvṛtyāvasthāpya mahe mahate vṛtravadhādirūpāya karmaṇe dakṣaṃ pravṛddham
ātmānaṃ somaṃ pāyayate | pānaṃ kārayati ||* ⁴

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Bhurvaṇiḥ, the devouring one — this Indra: pūrvīḥ, the abundant iṣaḥ, drinks, in the form of soma, of that sacrificer — camriṣaḥ, which lie in the camū, the cups — pra ud ayamsta, he lifts up eagerly to drink. An illustration: atyo na yoṣām, as a stallion goes to a mare for sport. And that Indra, having mounted and halted the golden chariot — hiraṇyayaṃ — hariyogaṃ, yoked to the two bays, ṛbhvasam, widely shining,

4. The tail, pp. 373, is characterized: on pūrvīḥ
(pyā, Uṇādi ku; nīṣ), camriṣaḥ (camū + iṣaḥ; camu adane, Uṇādi ū; camva with r for v in the Veda), ayamsta (yam uparame, luṇ in the present sense; sic; no iṭ; nasya anusvāra), bhurvaṇiḥ (bhurvatir hiṃsākarmā, Ni. 6-... as read [?];
bhurvan; anih), pāyayate (pā pāne, ṇic; ṇicaś ca: ātmanepada; śāchāsāhvāvyā...
yuk), hiraṇyayaṃ (mayat;
ṛtvyaṣṭvyaṣṭvamādhvīhiraṇyayāni chandasi: ma dropped), hariyogaṃ, ṛbhvasam (uru bhāḥ; prṣodarādi) — see the Kannada notes.

mahe, for the great deed, the slaying of Vṛtra and the like, dakṣam, grown strong, himself, pāyayate, has the soma drunk — that is, drinks it."

Pratipadārtha — "bhurvaṇiḥ — the devouring one; iṣaḥ — Indra; yoṣām — a mare; atyō na — as a stallion [goes to a mare for sport], eagerly; tasya — of that sacrificer; pūrvīḥ — abundant; camriṣaḥ — which lie in the vessels, the Soma juices; [to drink them] pra ava udayamsta — he eagerly rises; hiranyayam — made of gold; hariyogam — joined with horses; ṛbhvasam — brilliant; ratham — chariot; āvṛtya — having mounted; mahe — for great deeds (the slaying of Vṛtra and so on); dakṣam — for the capable body (the belly); pāyayate — he makes (the soma) drunk."

Bhāvārtha

— "As a stallion eagerly goes to a mare for sport, the devouring Indra rises eagerly to drink the soma juices that the sacrificer has offered in abundance, lying in the cups. Having mounted his golden, horse-yoked, brilliant chariot, he drinks the soma to make himself capable of great deeds such as the slaying of Vṛtra."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 373)

— "Voracious (Indra) has risen up, as a horse (approaches) a mare, to partake of the copious libations (contained) in the sacrificial ladles; having stayed his well-horsed, golden and splendid chariot, he plies himself, capable of heroic (actions with the beverage)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 374 - pūrvīḥ — "This word, formed from the root pyā pālanapūraṇayoh, means abundant or exceeding." - camriṣaḥ — "Camūṣu vartamānā iṣaḥ — as the derivation shows, camū means the vessel camasa; the soma-offerings in them. The word iṣ is read among the synonyms of food in the Nirukta (Ni. 2-7 as read [?])." - atyō na yoṣām — "Here the word atya means horse. As a stallion longs for a mare in sport, so Indra desires the oblation distinguished as soma." - hariyogam — "Haryoḥ yogaḥ yojanaṃ yasmin: one that is yoked with two horses. This and hiranyayam, ṛbhvasam ('shining specially') are epithets of Indra's chariot." - bhurvaṇīḥ — "One who eats. Bhurvatir hiṃsākarmā (Ni. 6-... as read [?]) — the Nirukta-authors give 'eater' for this word formed from the root bhurv hiṃsāyām."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵ - pūrvīḥ: pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ; prasvabhidivvyadhi... (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]): ku; udoṣṭhyapūrvasya: u; uraṇ raparaḥ: puru; for the feminine, vottaro guṇavacanāt: ñṣ; yaṇ; halica: lengthening of ur; end-acute by the suffix. - camriṣaḥ: camu adane, kṛṣicamitanidhanisu... (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]): ū; camū, always feminine; camvām vartamānā iṣaḥ: the Vedic r for v; gatikārakopapadāt kṛt. - ayamsta: yam uparame; Vedic luṇ with the present sense; ātmanepada by vyatyaya; sic by cleḥ sic; ekāca upadeśe 'nudāttāt': no iṭ; naś cāpadāntasya jhali: anusvāra; aṭ; niḡhāta. - bhurvaṇīḥ: bhurv hiṃsāyām (bhurvatir hiṃsākarmā, Ni.); Uṇādi ani; aṭkuvpān...: ṇatva; middle-acute. - pāyayate: pā pāne; hetumati ca: ṇic; ṇicas ca: ātmanepada; śāchāsāhvāvyāvepām yuk: yuk; śap, guṇa, ayādeśa; ṭita ātmanepadānām ṭer e. - hiranyayam: mayaṭ after hiranya in the sense of "made of"; ṛtvyavāstvyavāstvamādhvīhiranyayāni chandasi (Pā. 6-4-175): ma dropped by nipāta; hariyogam: bahuvrīhi; haris, ending in in, is initial-acute by jñādyudāttatvam; bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam. - ṛbhvasam: uru bhāḥ yasya sa urubhāḥ tam: prṣodarādīni yathopadiṣṭam: ṛbhvasa. || 1 ||

original pp. 375-378

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

तं गूर्तयो नेमन्निषः परीणसः समुद्रं न संचरणे सनिष्यवः । पतिं दक्षस्य विदथस्य नू सहो गिरिं न वेना अधि रोह तेजसा ॥ २ ॥ *taṃ gūrtayo nemanniṣaḥ parīṇasaḥ samudraṃ na saṃcaraṇe saniṣyavaḥ | patiṃ dakṣasya vidathasya nū saho girim na venā

adhi roha tejasā || 2 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

तम् । गूर्तयः । नेमन्ऽइषः । परिऽनसः । समुद्रम् । न । संचरणे । सनिष्यवः । पतिम् । दक्षस्य । विदथस्य । नु । सहः । गिरिम् । न । वेनाः । अधि । रोह । तेजसा ॥ २ ॥

*taṃ | gūrtayaḥ | neman-iṣaḥ | pari-nasaḥ | samudram | na |
saṃ-carāṇe | saniṣyavaḥ | patiṃ | dakṣasya | vidathasya | nu |
sahaḥ | girim | na | venāḥ | adhi | roha | tejasā || 2 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

गूर्तयः स्तोतारो नेमन्निषः नमस्कारपूर्वकं गच्छन्तः । यद्वा नीतहविष्काः परीणसः
परितो व्याप्नुवन्तः । एवंगुणविशिष्टा यजमानास्तमिन्द्रं स्तुतिभिरधिरोहन्ति ।
स्तुवन्त इत्यर्थः । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । सनिष्यवः सनिं धनमात्मन इच्छन्तो वणिजो धनार्थं
संचरणे संचारे निमित्तभूते सति समुद्रं न । यथा नावा समुद्रमधिरोहन्ति एवं
स्तोतारोऽपि स्वाभिमतधनलाभायेन्द्रं स्तुवन्तीति भावः । हे स्तोतस्त्वं च दक्षस्य
प्रवृद्धस्य विदथस्य यज्ञस्य पतिं पालयितारं सहः सहस्वन्तं बलवन्तमिन्द्रं तेजसा
देवताप्रकाशकेन स्तोत्रेण नु क्षिप्रमधि रोह । स्तुहीति यावत् । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । वेनाः
कान्ताः स्त्रियो गिरिं न । यथा पर्वतं स्वाभिमुखपुष्पोपचयार्थमधिरोहन्ति ॥

*gūrtayaḥ stotāro nemanniṣaḥ namaskārapūrvakaṃ gacchantāḥ |
yadvā nītahaviṣkāḥ parīṇasaḥ parito vyāpnuvantaḥ |
evaṃguṇaviśiṣṭā yajamānās taṃ indraṃ stutibhir adhirohanti |
stuvanta ity arthaḥ | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | saniṣyavaḥ saniṃ dhanam ātmana icchanto vaṇijo dhanārthaṃ saṃcaraṇe saṃcāre nimittabhūte sati samudraṃ na | yathā nāvā samudram adhirohanti evaṃ stotāro 'pi svābhimatadhanalābhāyendraṃ stuvantīti bhāvaḥ | he stotas tvam ca dakṣasya pravṛddhasya vidathasya yajñasya patiṃ pālayitāraṃ sahaḥ sahasvantam* *balavantam indraṃ tejasā devatāprakāśakena stotreṇa nu kṣipram adhi roha | stuhīti yāvat | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | venāḥ kāntāḥ striyo

giriṃ na | yathā parvataṃ svābhimukhapuṣpopacayārtham
adhirohanti ||* ⁶

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Gūrtayaḥ, the praisers, nemanniṣaḥ, who go with salutation — or: who have brought oblations; parīṇasaḥ, spread all round: sacrificers of such qualities mount that Indra with their praises, i.e. praise him. An illustration: sanīṣyavaḥ, merchants wishing wealth for themselves, when there is travelling for wealth, samudraṃ na, as they mount the ocean in a ship; so the praisers also praise Indra to obtain the wealth they desire. And you, O praiser, dakṣasya vidathasya patim, the protector of the grown sacrifice, sahaḥ, the strong, the mighty Indra, tejasā, with a hymn that makes the deity shine, nu, quickly, adhi roha, mount: praise. An illustration: venāḥ giriṃ na, as lovely women climb a mountain to gather flowers they like."

Pratipadārtha — "gūrtayaḥ — the praisers; nemanniṣaḥ — those who go with salutation, or who carry the oblation; parīṇasaḥ — the sacrificers who have gathered round; saṃcaraṇe — at the time of travel for wealth; sanīṣyavaḥ — merchants who want wealth; samudraṃ na — as they gather by boats to reach the ocean (so they reach him through hymns, O praiser); dakṣasya — the capable; vidathasya — of the sacred sacrifice; patim — protector; sahaḥ — strong; tejasā — with a hymn that illumines (the deities); venāḥ — women; giriṃ na — as they climb a mountain (to gather flowers); su — vigilantly; adhi roha — approach Indra by the hymn."

6. The tail, p. 376 foot: on gūrtayaḥ (gṛ śabde, ktic; gūrti, Uṇ. as read [?]), nemanniṣaḥ (namanta iṣyanti; Uṇādi thak... kvip), parīṇasaḥ (ṇasa kauṭilye, "nasate" with pari; upasargād asamāse: ṇatva), sanīṣyavaḥ (ṣaṇu dāne, kyac with sarvaprātīpadīkebhya lālasāyām asug...: suk; kyāc chandasi: u), nu, sahaḥ (matup dropped) — in the Kannada notes.

Bhāvārtha

— "As merchants who want wealth gather in boats to sail the ocean when they travel for wealth, the sacrificers, bearing oblations, gather all round and approach Indra with hymns. O praiser, approach, with a hymn that illumines the deities, Indra — strong, the protector of the sacred sacrifice — as women climb a mountain to gather flowers."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 377)

— "He adorers, bearing oblations, thronging round (him) as (merchants) covetous of gain crowd the ocean (in vessels) on a voyage; ascend quickly, with a hymn to the powerful Indra, the protector of the solemn sacrifice as women (climb) a mountain."

Rik 56.2, continued ⁷

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 377–378 - gūrtayaḥ — "Gṛṇanti stuvanti iti gūrtayaḥ: from the root gṛ śabde; it means those who make the hymn." - nemanniṣaḥ — "Namantaḥ iṣyanti indraṃ prāpnuvantīti nemanniṣaḥ: those who go to Indra's presence with salutation; or those who bring oblation and give it to Indra: so explained in two ways." - parīṇasaḥ — "Parito nasanti gacchantīti parīṇasaḥ: the sacrificers who, pervading everywhere, praise Indra and the other deities and carry the sacrifice forward." - saniṣyavaḥ — "Saniṃ dhanam ātmana icchanto vaṇijaḥ: merchants who go for the earning of wealth. As those engaged in earning wealth sit in boats and travel on the ocean, the sacrificers praise Indra to obtain what they wish: this is the point of this context." - sahaḥ — "Explained as sahasvantam, balavantam: one of surpassing strength." - venāḥ

giriṃ na — "As women climb a mountain to gather flowers, — here the praise of Indra is given with an illustration: 'always praise Indra for the sake of obtaining your desired ends'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁸ - gūrtayaḥ: gṛ śabde; ktic ktau ca saṃjñāyām (Pā. 3-3-174): ktic here; bahulaṃ chandasi: u for the root's ṛ; uraṇ raparaḥ; halica: lengthening; gūrti; citaḥ: end-acute; nominative plural: guṇa, ayādeśa. - nemanniṣaḥ: ṇamu prahvatve śabde ca; śatr; vyatyaya for a → e and t → n: namantaḥ iṣyanti — iṣu gatau, kvip ca: kvip; gatikārapapadāt kṛt. Or from ṇī prāpaṇe, Uṇādi man (ārtistuṣu..., Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]); neman; nītāḥ prahatā iṣo yeṣām: bahuvrīhi, parādiś chandasi bahulam: initial-acute of the last member. - pariṇasaḥ: ṇasa kauṭilye, used here with the sense of going; pari + nas, kvip; nipātasya ca lengthens the first member; upasargād asamāse ṇi ṇopadeśasya: ṇatva. - saniṣyavaḥ: ṣaṇu dāne; ins sarvadhātubhyaḥ (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]); in; ṣa → s: sani; sanim ātmana icchati: supa ātmanaḥ kyac; sarvaprātipadikebhyo lālasāyām asug vaktavyaḥ... sukāgamo ṇi vaktavyaḥ (Kā.): suk; kyāc chandasi: u; ato lopaḥ; end-acute. - nu: ṛci tunugḥamakṣu...: lengthening in the Saṃhitā. - sahaḥ: "saho 'syāstīti sahasvān"; tad asyāsty asmin: matup, dropped (luk) in the Veda. - roha: ruha bījajanmani prādurbhāve ca; loṭ second singular; nighāta. || 2 ||

original pp. 379–383

Rik 3

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

स तुर्वणिर्महँ अरेणु पौंस्ये गिरेभृष्टिर्न भ्राजते तुजा शवः । येन शुष्णं मायिनमायसो मदे दुध्र आभूषु रामयन्नि दामनि ॥ ३ ॥

sa turvaṇir mahāṃ areṇu paum̐syē girer bhr̥ṣṭir na bhr̥jate tujā śavaḥ | yena śuṣṇam māyinam āyaso made dudhra ābhūṣu rāmayan ni dāmani || 3 || ⁹

Pada-pāṭha

सः । तुर्वणिः । महान् । अरेणु । पौंस्ये । गिरेः । भृष्टिः । न । भ्राजते । तुजा । शवः । येन । शुष्णम् । मायिनम् । आयसः । मदे । दुध्रः । आभूषु । रमयत् । नि । दामनि ॥ ३ ॥

saḥ | turvaṇiḥ | mahān | areṇu | paum̐syē | gireḥ | bhr̥ṣṭiḥ | na | bhr̥jate | tujā | śavaḥ | yena | śuṣṇam | māyinam | āyasaḥ | made | dudhraḥ | ābhūṣu | ramayat | ni | dāmani || 3 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

स इन्द्रस्तुर्वणिः शत्रूणां हिंसिता क्षिप्रकारी वा । तुर्वणिस्तूर्णवनिरिति यास्कः । नि. ६-१४ । तूर्णसंभजन इति तस्यार्थः । महान्प्रवृद्धश्च भवति । तस्येन्द्रस्य शवो बलं पौंस्ये वीर्यैः पुरुषैः कर्तव्ये संग्रामेऽरेणु अनवद्यं तुजा शत्रूणां हिंसकं सत् भ्राजते । दीप्यते । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । गिरेः पर्वतस्य भृष्टिर्न शृङ्गमिव । तद्यथोन्नतं सद्दीप्यते तद्वत् । आयसः अयोमयकवचयुक्तदेहो दुध्रः दुष्प्राणां शत्रूणां धर्ता वाऽवस्थापयिता एवंभूत इन्द्रो मदे सोमपानेन हर्षे सति येन बलेन शुष्णं सर्वस्य शोषकमसुरं मायिनं मायाविनमाभूषु कारागृहेषु दामनि बन्धके निगडे नि रमयत् न्यवासयत् तद्वलमिति

पूर्वेणान्वयः ॥

sa indras turvaṇiḥ śatrūṇāṃ hiṃsitā kṣiprakārī vā | turvaṇis tūrṇavanir iti yāśkaḥ | ni. 6-14 | tūrṇasaṃbhajana iti tasyārthaḥ | mahān pravṛddhaś ca bhavati | tasyendrasya śavo balaṃ paum̐syē vīryaiḥ puruṣaiḥ kartavye saṃgrāme 'reṇu anavadyaṃ tujā śatrūṇāṃ hiṃsakam sat bhr̥jate | dīpyate | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | gireḥ parvatasya bhr̥ṣṭir na śṛṅgam iva | tad yathonnatam sad dīpyate tadvat | āyasaḥ ayomayakavacayuktadeho dudhraḥ duṣprāṇāṃ śatrūṇāṃ dhartā vāvasthāpayitā evaṃbhūta indro made somapānena harṣe sati yena balena śuṣṇam sarvasya

9. The print's Saṃhitā reads "रामयन्नि दामनि" as "रामयन्नि दामनि"; the Pada: ramayat | ni | dāmani. The Saṃhitā's "tujā" in "bhr̥jate tujā" and the Pada's "tujā" agree. "āyasaḥ" and "ābhūṣu" as printed.

*śoṣakam asuraṃ māyinaṃ māyāvinam ābhūṣu kārāgrheṣu dāmani bandhake nigāḍe ni ramayat nyavāsayat tad balam iti
pūrveṇānvayaḥ ||* ¹⁰

Translation of the bhāṣya: "That Indra is turvaṇiḥ, the slayer of enemies, or the quick doer — Yāska says 'turvaṇi is tūrṇavani', meaning 'one who takes quickly' (Ni. 6-14 [?]); and he is great and grown. That Indra's śavaḥ, strength, paum̐syē, in the battle to be fought by manly heroes, areṇu, faultless, tujā, harming the enemies, bhrājate, shines; as girer bhr̥ṣṭiḥ, a mountain's peak, high, shines. Āyasaḥ, with a body furnished with iron armour, dudhraḥ, the holder or establisher of hard-to-subdue enemies — such Indra, made, when delighted by drinking the soma, yena, with which strength, śuṣṇam, the Asura who dries up all, māyinaṃ, the deceiver, ābhūṣu, in prisons, dāmani, in a binding chain, ni ramayat, made to dwell: that strength [shines] — connect with the first part."

Pratipadārtha — "saḥ — that Indra; turvaṇiḥ — the slayer of enemies, or the swift worker; mahān — of great majesty; āyasaḥ — the one with a body clad in iron armour; dudhraḥ — the subduer of evil enemies; made — when delighted by the soma; yena — with which strength; śuṣṇam — the all-parching; māyinaṃ — deceitful Rākṣasa; ābhūṣu — in prison; dāmani — in a binding chain; nirmayat — made to dwell; śavaḥ — that strength; paumsye — in the battles fought by heroes; areṇu — free from fault; tujā — harming enemies; gireḥ — of the mountain; bhr̥ṣṭiḥ na — like the peak (edge); bhr̥jate — shines."

10. The tail, p. 380: on turvaṇiḥ (turvī hiṃsārthaḥ; Uṇādi ani; ṇatva), areṇu (reṇuvad ājñādakatvād reṇuśabdenāvadyam ucyate — "like dust, [a fault] that hinders the eye"; bahuvrīhi; naṅsubhyām), tujā (tuja hiṃsāyām; igupadha-ka; kit, no guṇa; suluk), dudhraḥ (dhṛñ avasthāne; antarbhāvitanyartha; kapratyaya; mūlavibhujādibhya upasaṃkhyānam; yaṇ; loss of r in dur), ramayat (ramu kṛīḍāyām; ṇic; laṅ; mītām hrasvaḥ; yena before: no nighāta; lengthening of the a in the Saṃhitā: not in this Saṃhitā) — noted in the Kannada below.

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra is a swift doer, possessed of majesty, with a body clad in iron armour, subduer of evil enemies. When delighted with soma, he put into a chain, in a prison, the deceitful, all-parching Rākṣasa Śuṣṇa; that strength shines in the heroes' battle, faultless and destructive of enemies, like the peak of a mountain."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 381) — "He is quick in actions and mighty; his faultless and destructive prowess shines in manly (conflict) like the peak of a mountain (afar) with which clothed in iron (armour), he, the suppressor of the malignant, when exhilarated by the soma-juice, cast the wily sushna into prison and into bonds." ¹¹

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 381 - turvaṇiḥ — "Śatrūṇāṃ hiṃsitā kṣiprakārī vā; turvaṇis tūrṇavanir (Ni. 6-14 [?]); tūrṇaṃ yaḥ saṃbhajate": one who praises with vigilance. The word turvaṇi occurs in "śatavarṇir mahāṃ areṇu" (R. Saṃ. 1-56-3, this Rik, as quoted in the print, [?]). Here it is shown that Indra gives fruit with vigilance to those who praise him." - paumsye — "Explain this word as 'vīryaiḥ puruṣaiḥ kartavye saṃgrāme': the battle that is done by heroes." - areṇu — "Anavadyam: not in vain." - tujā — "From the root tujā hiṃsāyām; the word means 'that which harms enemies'." - gireḥ bhr̥ṣṭir na — "Like the peak of a mountain; the word na has here the sense of iva." - dudhraḥ — "From the root dhr̥ñ avasthāne; it means 'one who makes enemies stay, having punished them, where they are'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹² - turvaṇiḥ: turvī hiṃsārthaḥ; Uṇādi ani; aṭkupvāñnum...: ṇatva; middle-acute. - areṇu: reṇuvad ājñādakatvāt reṇuśabdenāvadyam ucyate — "that is, a blemish like dust"; bahuvrīhi; nañsubhyām: end-acute of the last member.

11. sic, as printed.

 - bhrājate: bhrāja dīptau; laṭ; nighāta. - tujā: tuja himsāyām; igupadhajñāprīkiraḥ kaḥ (Pā. 3-1-135): ka; kit: no guṇa; before the first-case ending su, supām suluk... gives ā. - māyīnam: vrīhyādibhyaś ca: ini; yasyeti ca; suffix-accent. - dudhrah: duṣṭān dhriyate avasthāpayati iti dudhrah; dhṛñ avasthāne; used here with the causative sense inside; being in mūlavibhujādi: kapraharaṇe mūlavibhujādibhya upasaṃkhyānam (Pā. 3-2-5 vārttika): ka; kit: no guṇa; yañ; the r of dur dropped in the Veda; end-acute. - ramayat: ramu krīḍāyām; hetumati ca: ṇic; ato halādeḥ...: ata upadhāyāḥ: vṛddhi; janīvadhyāsaḥ... (jani-)... mitām hrasvaḥ: mit-designation: shortening; lañ third singular tip; itaś ca: i dropped; śap; ṇic is cause of guṇa and ayādeśa; bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pi: no aṭ; since yena occurs before, yadvṛttān nityam prevents nighāta; the ṇic's accent: the a after m is acute; in the Samhitā the first vowel is lengthened in the Vedic way. || 3 ||

original pp. 382–385

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

देवी यदि तविषी त्वावृधोतय इन्द्रं सिषक्त्युषसं न सूर्यः । यो धृष्णुना शवसा बाधते तम इयति रेणुं बृहदहिरिष्वणिः ॥ ४ ॥

devī yadi taviṣī tvāvṛdhotaya indraṃ siṣakty uṣasaṃ na sūryaḥ | yo dhṛṣṇunā śavasā bādgate tama iyarti reṇuṃ bṛhad arhariṣvaṇiḥ || 4 ||

Pada-pāṭha

देवी । यदि । तविषी । त्वाऽवृधा । ऊतये । इन्द्रम् । सिषक्ति । उषसम् । न । सूर्यः । यः । धृष्णुना । शवसा । बाधते । तमः । इयति । रेणुम् । बृहत् । अहिरिऽस्वनिः ॥ ४ ॥

devī | yadi | taviṣī | tvā-vrdhā | ūtaye | indram | siṣakti | uṣasam
 | na | sūryaḥ | yaḥ | dhr̥ṣṇunā | śavasā | bād hate | tamaḥ |
 iyarti | reṇum | br̥hat | arhari-ṣvaṇiḥ || 4 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

यः इन्द्रो धृष्णुना धर्षकेण शवसा बलेन तमस्तमोरूपं वृत्रादिमसुरं बाधते हिनस्ति ।
 ऊतये रक्षणाय त्वावृधा त्वयेगा स्तोत्रा वर्धिशं तमिन्द्रं देवी तविषी द्योतमानं बलं
 यदि यदा सिषक्ति समन्वेति । सेवते इति यास्कः । सूर्य उषसं न यथोषोदेवतां
 सेवते । नित्यं तत्संबद्धो भवतीत्यर्थः । तदानीमर्हरिष्वणिः । गच्छन्तो
 हरन्तीत्यर्हरयः शत्रवः । तेषां व्यथोत्पादनेन स्वनयिता शब्दयितेन्द्रो रेणुं रेषणं हिंसनं बृहत् प्रभूतमियति । शत्रून् गमयेति ॥ yaḥ indro dhr̥ṣṇunā dharṣakeṇa śavasā balena tamas tamorūpaṃ

 vṛtrādim asuraṃ bād hate hinasti | ūtaye rakṣaṇāya tvāvrdhā tvayegā [?] stotrā vardhiśaṃ [?] tam indraṃ devī taviṣī dyotamānaṃ balaṃ yadi yadā siṣakti samanveti | sevate iti yāskaḥ
 | sūrya uṣasaṃ na yathoṣodevatāṃ sevate | nityaṃ tatsaṃbaddho bhavatīty arthaḥ | tadānīm arhariṣvaṇiḥ | gacchanto harantīty
 arharayaḥ śatravaḥ | teṣāṃ vyathotpādanena svanayitā śabdayitendro reṇuṃ reṣaṇaṃ hiṃsanaṃ br̥hat prabhūtam iyarti |
 śatrūn gamayeti || ¹³

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Yaḥ, the Indra who, dhr̥ṣṇunā śavasā, with enemy-overpowering strength, tamaḥ bād hate, strikes the darkness — Vṛtra and the like of the nature of darkness; ūtaye, for protection, tvāvṛdhā, increased by you the praiser: taṃ indram, that Indra, devī taviṣī, the shining power, yadi, when, siṣakti, attends — saca is 'to serve' says Yāska — sūryaḥ uṣasaṃ na, as the sun attends the dawn goddess; that is, is always joined to him. Then arhariṣvaṇiḥ: the arharayaḥ are enemies, who go and seize; Indra, who by causing them pain makes them sound (cry out), reṇum, harm, injury, bṛhat, great, iyarti, sends: he makes the enemies go."

Pratipadārtha — "yaḥ — which Indra; dhr̥ṣṇunā — that which overpowers (the enemies); śavasā — by strength; tamaḥ — Vṛtra and other Asuras of the nature of darkness; bādhate — strikes (and); ūtaye — for protection; tvāvṛdhā — increased by you, the praiser; taṃ indram — that Indra; devī — divine; taviṣī — shining power (of strength); yadi — when; sūryaḥ — the sun god; uṣasaṃ na — as he attends the goddess Uṣas; siṣakti — attends (then); arhariṣvaṇiḥ — Indra who makes enemies cry out by pressing them hard; reṇum — the pain; bṛhat — greatly; iyarti — causes to the enemies."

Bhāvārtha

13. Reading note: "tvayegā stotrā vardhiśaṃ" is crowded, [?]; it appears to say "tvayā stotrā vardhitam" — the Pratipadārtha: "(that Indra) who is increased by you, the praiser". Sense: "when the shining power (taviṣī) attends that Indra, who is increased by you [as praiser] for [your] protection, as the sun attends the dawn." The grammatical tail (p. 383) is characterized: on tvāvṛdhā (tvaṃ vardhayatīti, Vedic kvip with āluk; the prefix tvā for yuṣmad), siṣakti (saca samavāye, juhotyādi; reduplication; ślu), arhariṣvaṇiḥ (hṛ haraṇe, arti-pipartyoś ca, ac, ṇi; svan), reṇum (rī gatireṣaṇayoh; Uṇādi nu), iyarti (r gatau, juhotyādi; reduplication with iy) — see the Kannada notes on pp. 383–385.

— "When the shining power of strength attends — as the sun attends the goddess Uṣas — the Indra who, being increased by you the praiser, with his enemy-overpowering strength strikes Vṛtra and the other Asuras of the nature of darkness, then Indra causes great pain to enemies and makes them cry out."

Rik 56.4, continued ¹⁴

English Translation (the source's own, p. 384)

— "Divine strength waits, like the sun, upon the dawn, upon that Indra, who is made more powerful for protection by you, (his worshipper), who with resolute vigour resists the gloom, and inflicts severe castigation upon his enemies, making them cry aloud (with pain)."

Special Topics (p. 384) - tvāvṛdhā — "Tvayā vardhate iti tvāvṛt: this word is explained as 'one who is increased by you the praiser'." - siṣakti — "Samavaiti — sevate iti yāskaḥ (Ni. 3-21 as read [?]): though the root saca samavāye would give 'joins', the Nirukta gives 'serves'; explaining the Ṛgveda passage 'saneḥ siṣakti yas turah' (Ṛ. Saṃ. 10-... as read [?]), siṣaktīti sacate, the Nirukta says 'of one who serves'." - arhariṣvaṇiḥ — "Gacchanto haranti iti arharayaḥ śatravaḥ: the enemies who go and plunder everything on the highway; Indra, who punishes such hostile ones so that they cry out in pain, is arhariṣvaṇi." - reṇum — "Reṣaṇaṃ hiṃsanam: it means that Indra gives great harm to his enemies."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁵ - tvāvṛdhā: "tvayā vardhate iti tvāvṛt"; vṛdhu vṛddhau, kvip ca; pratyayottarapadayoś ca: tva for yuṣmad; śeṣe lopah; in the Veda ā for t... tvāvṛdhā: supāṃ suluk: ā for the instrumental/dual. - siṣakti: saca samavāye; laṭ; śap → ślu (bahulaṃ chandasi); reduplication; i for the reduplicative; co kuḥ: ka for c; yadi before: niṣātasya... no nighāta (nipātair

14. pp. 384–385, PDF 400–401

15. pp. 384–385 — grammar pages, noted briefly

yadyadihanta...); anudātte ca: initial-acute. - bādhate: bādh loḍane; laṭ; yaḥ before, so no nighāta; the root's accent: initial-acute. - iyarti: ṛ gatau, juhotyādi; ṇic-sense included; ślu; reduplication; ur at; artipiparty...: i; abhyāsasyāsavarṇe: iy; guṇa: iyarti; anudātte ca: reduplicative initial-acute; the preceding word is of another sentence, so no nighāta. - reṇum: rī gatireṣaṇayoḥ; Uṇādi nu; guṇa; ṇatva; end-acute. - arhariṣvaṇiḥ: ṛ gatau; anyebhyo 'pi drśyante: viṭ; guṇa: ar; arharayaḥ = arayaḥ, 'going and carrying off': ariḥ gacchantaś ca ime haraya ca iti arharayaḥ; svan (svana dhvana śabde, hetumati ca: ṇic; inan after ṇic; ṇeraniṭi: loss of ṇic; ghaṭādi so mit: mitām hrasvaḥ): svani; arhari, a kāraka-first word, so gati-kāra-kopapadāt kṛt: the accent of the kṛdanta. || 4 ||

original pp. 386–388

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

वि यत्तिरो धरुणमच्युतं रजोऽतिष्ठिपो दिव आतासु बर्हणा । स्वर्मीळहे यन्मद इन्द्र हर्ष्याहन् वृत्रं निरपामौब्जोऽर्णवम् ॥ ५ ॥

*vi yat tiro dharuṇam acyutaṁ rajo 'tiṣṭhipo diva ātāsu barhaṇā | svarmīḷhe yan mada indra harṣyāhan vṛtraṁ nir apām aubjo
'rṇavam || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

वि । यत् । तिरः । धरुणम् । अच्युतम् । रजः । अतिष्ठिपः । दिवः । आतासु । बर्हणा ।
स्वःऽमीळहे । यत् । मदे । इन्द्र । हर्ष्या । अहन् । वृत्रम् । निः । अपाम् । औब्जः । अर्णवम् ॥ ५ ॥

*vi | yat | tiraḥ | dharuṇam | acyutam | rajaḥ | atiṣṭhipaḥ | divaḥ
| ā-tāsu | barhaṇā | svaḥ-mīḷhe | yat | made | indra | harṣyā |
ahan | vṛtram | niḥ | apām | aubjaḥ | arṇavam || 5 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

यद्यदा तिरो वृत्रेण तिरोहितं धरुणं सर्वस्य प्राणिजातस्य धारकमच्युतं विनाशरहितं
 रज उदकं दिवो द्युलोकादातासु । आता इति दिङ्नाम । आशासु विस्तृतासु दिक्षु हे
 इन्द्र बर्हणा हन्ता त्वं व्यतिष्ठिपो विविधं स्थापयाम् चकृषे । तथा यद्यदा स्वर्मीळहे ।
 मीळहमिति धननाम । स्वः सुष्ठु गन्तव्यं मीळहं धनं यस्मिन् तस्मिन्संग्रामे मदे तव
 सोमपानेन हर्षे सति हर्ष्या हृष्टया शक्त्या वृत्रमावरकमसुरमहन् त्वमवधीः ।
 तदानीमपां पूर्णमर्णवं मेघं निरौब्जः । वर्षणाभिमुखमधोमुखमकार्षीः । वृष्टेरावरकं वृत्रं हत्वा वृष्टिजलेन भूमिं न्यसैज्वेरिति तात्पर्यार्थः ॥ *yad yadā tiro vṛtreṇa tirohitam dharuṇam sarvasya prāṇijātasya dhāarakam acyutam vināśarahitam raja udakam divo dyulokād ātāsu | ātā iti diṇnāma | āśāsu vistr̥tāsu dikṣu he indra barhaṇā

 hantā tvaṃ vyatiṣṭhipo vividham sthāpayām cakṛṣe | tathā yad yadā svarmīl̥he | mīl̥ham iti dhananāma | svaḥ suṣṭhu gantavyam mīl̥ham dhanam yasmin tasmin saṃgrāme made tava somapānena harṣe sati harṣyā hr̥ṣṭayā śaktyā vṛtram āvarakam asuram ahan tvam avadhīḥ | tadānīm apām pūrṇam arṇavam megham niraubjaḥ | varṣaṇābhimukham adhomukham akārṣīḥ | vṛṣṭer āvarakam vṛtram hatvā vṛṣṭijalena bhūmiṃ nyasaiñceriti
 tātparyārthaḥ | |* ¹⁶

Translation of the bhāṣya: "When, O Indra, tiraḥ, concealed by Vṛtra, dharuṇam, the sustainer of all living beings, acyutam, undecaying, rajaḥ, the water, divaḥ ātāsu, from the sky, in the wide quarters (ātā is a name for quarter) — you, the slayer, vi atiṣṭhipaḥ, distributed in many ways; and when, svarmīl̥he, in the battle in which a good prize is to be won (mīl̥ha is a name for wealth), made, delighted by drinking soma, harṣyā, with gladdened power, you ahan, slew Vṛtra the coverer, then you nir aubjah, turned down towards the earth the cloud, aṇavam, full of waters, for rain: by killing the obstructor of rain you drenched the earth with rain-water — such is the sense."

16. Reading note: the last clause "vṛṣṭijalena bhūmiṃ nyasaiñceḥ" is printed "nyasyairiti", crowded, [?]. The grammatical tail is characterized: on atiṣṭhipaḥ (ṣṭhā, ṇic with arti-hr̥i...: puk; luñ, cīṇ; ṇeraniṭi; ṣṭhā reduplicated tiṣṭhip; the loss of s), barhaṇā (supām suluk), svarmīl̥he (mih secane, kta; hoḍhaḥ, jhaṣastathoh; bahuvrīhi), ahan (han, lañ, sip), aubjaḥ (ubja ārjave, lañ, śap, vṛddhi)).

Pratipadārtha — "barhaṇā — the destroyer of enemies; indra — O Indra; yat — when; tiraḥ — concealed by Vṛtra; dharuṇam — the life-sustaining; acyutam — undecaying; rajaḥ — water; divaḥ — from heaven; ātāsu — in the broad quarters; vi atiṣṭhipaḥ — you spread; yat — when; svarmīḥ — in the battle for excess of wealth; made — when you are delighted (by soma); harṣyā — with your gladdened strength; vṛtram — Vṛtra, who covered all; ahan — you killed; (then) apām — with water; aṇavam — the ocean-like cloud; niḥ aubjah — you sent down (rain)."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, destroyer of enemies: when you freed the water that Vṛtra had hidden — life-sustaining, undecaying — and spread it in the wide quarters of heaven; and when, in battle for wealth, delighted with soma, you killed Vṛtra with your gladdened strength, then you made the water-filled cloud pour down, and made an ocean of rain."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 387) — "When you, destroying Vritra, distributed the hidden, life-sustaining, undecaying waters through the different quarters of the heaven, then, animated (by the Soma-juice) you engaged in battle, and with exulting (prowess) slew Vritra and sent down an ocean of waters." ¹⁷

Special Topics (pp. 387–388) — tiraḥ "an epithet of rajas (water): concealed by Vṛtra." ātāsu "in the Nirukta eight words such as ātāḥ, āsāḥ are read as names of the quarters: in the wide quarters." svarmīlhe "mīlham is a name of wealth in the Nirukta; a battle in which one gains wealth." aubjah "varṣaṇābhimukham adhomukham akārṣīḥ: having killed Vṛtra who hindered the rain, you made the rain fall on the earth, and preserved the earth-world."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁸ - atiṣṭhipaḥ: ṣṭhā gatinivṛttau; hetumati ca: ṇic; s for ṣ at the beginning; arti-hrī-vlī-rī-knūyī-kṣmāyy-ātām puñ nau (Pā. 7-3-36): puk; luñ second singular sip; itaś ca; ṇisridrusrubhyaḥ: cañ; ṇeraniṭi: ṇic dropped; cañi: reduplication; hrasvaḥ; śarpūrvāḥ khayah: th remains; tiṣṭhater it: i; abhyāse carca: t; ṣatva; ru, visarga; aṭ; yat before: no nighāta; initial-acute by aṭ. - barhaṇā: supāṃ suluk...: ā for the case ending. - svarmīlhe: mih secane; kta; hoḍhaḥ: ḍh; jhaṣastathor dho 'dhaḥ: dh; ṣṭunā ṣṭuḥ; ḍhoḍhe lopah; ḍhralope pūrvasya dīrgho 'ṇah: lengthening; mīlha; svar + mīlha: svar is svarita (nyañ svarau svaritau); bahuvrīhi, so the first member's accent; locative. - ahan: han; lañ second singular sip; itaś ca: loss; hal-ṇyābbhyaḥ: loss of s; saṃyogāntalopa; aṭ; yat before: no nighāta. - aubjah: ubja ārjave, tudādi; lañ second singular; śa; āḍ ajādīnām, āṭas ca: vṛddhi; ru, visarga; nighāta. | | 5 | |

original pp. 389–392

Rik 6

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

त्वं दिवो धरुणं धिष ओजसा पृथिव्या इन्द्र सदनेषु माहिनः । त्वं सुतस्य मदे अरिणा अपो वि वृत्रस्य समया पाष्यारुजः ॥ ६ ॥

tvaṃ divo dharuṇaṃ dhiṣa ojasā prthivyā indra sadaneṣu māhinaḥ
| tvaṃ sutasya made ariṇā apo vi vṛtrasya samayā pāśyārujaḥ | |
6 | | ¹⁹

17. The printed "destroying India" is for "destroying Indra"/"Vritra"; It is reproduced as printed, [sic].

18. pp. 388–389 — grammar pages, noted briefly

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । दिवः । धरुणम् । धिषे । ओजसा । पृथिव्याः । इन्द्र । सदनेषु । माहिनः । त्वम् । सुतस्य । मदे । अरिणाः । अपः । वि । वृत्रस्य । समया । पाष्या । अरुजः ॥ ६ ॥

tvam | divaḥ | dharuṇam | dhiṣe | ojasā | prthivyāḥ | indra |
sadaneṣu | māhinaḥ | tvam | sutasya | made | ariṇāḥ | apaḥ | vi
| vṛtrasya | samayā | pāśyā | arujaḥ || 6 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र माहिनः प्रवृद्धस्त्वं दिवो द्युलोकात्पृथिव्याः सदनेषु प्रदेशेष्वोजसा बलेन धरुणं
सर्वस्य जगतो धारकं वृष्टिजलं धिषे । दधिषे । स्थापयसि । यस्मात्त्वं सुतस्य
सोमस्य पानेन मदे हर्षे सत्यपो जलान्यरिणा मेघान्निरगमयः । वृत्रस्यावरकं वृत्रं च समया घनया पाष्या शिलया यद्वा शक्त्या व्यरुजो विशेषेणाभांक्षीः ॥

he indra māhinaḥ pravṛddhas tvam divo dyulokāt prthivyāḥ sadaneṣu pradeśeṣv ojasā balena dharuṇam sarvasya jagato dhārakaṁ vṛṣṭijalaṁ dhiṣe | dadhiṣe | sthāpayasi | yasmāt tvam sutasya somasya pānena made harṣe saty apo jalāni ariṇā meghān niragamayaḥ | vṛtrasyāvarakaṁ vṛtraṁ ca samayā ghanayā
pāśyā śilayā yadvā śaktyā vyarujo viśeṣeṇābhāṅkṣīḥ | |

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, great one, you, from heaven, in the regions of the earth, ojasā, with strength, dhiṣe, establish dharuṇam, the life-sustaining rain-water. For you, when delighted by drinking the pressed soma, ariṇāḥ, let out the waters from the clouds; and Vṛtra the coverer you vi arujaḥ, broke thoroughly, samayā pāśyā, with the solid stone, or with power."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; māhinaḥ — the marvellous (honoured); tvam — you; divaḥ — from heaven; prthivyāḥ — of the earth; sadaneṣu — in the various regions; ojasā — by your strength; dharuṇam — the water that sustains the whole world; dhiṣe — you establish; tvam — you; sutasya — of the soma juice

19. On p. 389 the print has labelled the Pada block with the heading "Bhāvārtha" by mistake; it is in fact the Pada-pāṭha. [sic]

(by drinking it); made — when delighted; apah — the waters; ariṇāḥ — you sent out from the clouds; vṛtrasya — Vṛtra; samayā — with the hard; pāśyā — with a rock, or power; vi arujaḥ — you destroyed well."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, by your wonderful power you pour down, from heaven into the many regions of the earth, the water of rain that sustains the whole world. When you were delighted by drinking the soma, you sent the waters out of the clouds; and you destroyed Vṛtra with a hard rock."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 390)

— "O mighty Indra, you sent down from heaven, by your power, upon the realms of earth, the world-sustaining rain; exhilarated by the (soma-juice) you have expelled the waters (from the clouds) and have crushed Vritra by a solid rock."

Special Topics (p. 391) — māhinaḥ "from the root maha pūjāyām: one who grows, or one worthy of worship: an epithet of Indra." dharuṇam "sarvasya jagato dhārakaṃ vṛṣṭijalam: the water of rain, support of the whole world." samayā "from the root śamu śramu avaikalye: firm, or strong." pāśyā "this word has the two meanings, stone or power." vi arujaḥ "you destroyed in a special way: from the root ruja bhaṅge."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁰ - dhiṣe: ḍudhāñ; Vedic liṭ; thāsaḥ se; dvīrvacane...: no doubling; the iṭ of liṭ is allowed (kṛṣṛbhṛvṛstudrusrusruvo liṭi, restricted); ādeśapratyayayoḥ: ṣatva; ātoloṇa iṭi ca; nighāta. - māhinaḥ: maha pūjāyām; maher iṇaṇ ca (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]): inan; ata upadhāyāḥ: vṛddhi; māhin; nit: initial-acute. - ariṇāḥ: rī gatireṣaṇayoḥ, kryādi; lañ second singular; sip; loss of i; prādināṃ hrasvaḥ; śnā; ṇatva; ru, visarga; aṭ; tiñ atinaḥ: nighāta; accent from śnā. - samayā: śam / śamu

śramu avaikalye; nandigrahipacādibhyaḥ: ac; sa for śa; citaḥ: end-acute; instrumental. - pāśyā: piṣṭ samcūrṇane; sarvadhātubhya in (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]): in; the i of the root's penultimate becomes a in the Uṇādi (bahulam): pāśi; in the feminine, kṛdikārād aktinaḥ (gaṇa) gives ṇīṣ; yaṇ; udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ: svarita. - arujah: ruja bhaṅge, tudādi; laṇ second singular; itaś ca; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ; pugantalaḥpādhasya barred (sārvadhātukam apit); aṭ; ru, visarga; nighāta. || 6 ||

Closing note — "ಐವತ್ತಾರನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು ಸಮಾಪ್ತವು " — "The fifty-sixth sūkta is ended."

Close of Sūkta 56

Sūkta 56 (Maṇḍala 1, Tenth Anuvāka, 6 Riks; ṛṣi Savya Āṅgīrasa; deity Indra; Jagatī) — printed pp. 371–392, PDF 387–408.

Indra, like a stallion going to a mare, eagerly takes the soma of the sacrificer and mounts his golden chariot (1); the praisers throng to him as merchants to the ocean (2); his strength shines like a mountain peak; he bound Śuṣṇa in prison (3); the divine power attends him as the sun attends the dawn (4); he released and spread the hidden waters and slew Vṛtra, sending down an ocean of rain (5); and he sends rain from heaven to the earth and crushes Vṛtra with a rock (6).

Sūkta 57 — "pra manhiṣṭhāya"

original p. 392

ಐವತ್ತೇಳನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — ¹

Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 392)

ಪ್ರ ಮಹಿಷಾಢೇತಿ ಷಡ್ಢಂ ಸಪ್ತಮಂ ಸೂಕ್ತಂ ಸವ್ಯಸ್ಯಾರ್ಷಮೈಂದ್ರಂ ಜಾಗತಂ । ತಥಾ ಚಾನುಕ್ರಾಂತಂ । ಪ್ರ
ಮಹಿಷಾಢೇತಿ । ವಿಷುವತಿ ನಿಷ್ಕೇವಲ್ಯ ಇದಂ ಸೂಕ್ತಂ ಶಂಸನೀಯಂ । ಸೂತ್ರಿತಂ ಚ । ಪ್ರ ಮಹಿಷಾಢ
ತ್ಯಮೂ ಷು ಇತಿಹ ಶಾಕೂರ್ಯಮನ್ತತಃ ॥ ಆ. ೮-೬ ಇತಿ ॥ ಁಕ್ತುಯಸಂಸ್ಥೇ ಕ್ರತೌ ತೃತೀಯಸವನೇ
ಬ್ರಾಹ್ಮಣಾಚ್ಛಾಸಿನಃ ಶಸ್ತ್ರೇಽಪ್ಯೇತತ್ಸೂಕ್ತಂ । ಸೂತ್ರಿತಂ ಚ । ಸರ್ವಾಃ ಕಕುಭಃ ಪ್ರ ಮಹಿಷಾಢೋದಪುತೇಃ । ಆ. ೬-೧ । ಇತಿ ॥

*pra maṇhiṣṭhāyeti ṣaḍrcam saptamaṇ sūktam savyasyārṣam
aindraṇ jāgataṇ | tathā cānukrāntaṇ | pra maṇhiṣṭhāyeti |
viṣuvati niṣkevalya idaṇ sūktam śaṃsanīyaṇ | sūtritaṇ ca | pra maṇhiṣṭhāya tyam ū ṣu itīha śākūryam antataḥ || ā. 8-6 iti || ukthyasaṃsthe kratau tṛtīyasavane brāhmaṇācchaṃsinaḥ śastre
'py etat sūktam | sūtritaṇ ca | sarvāḥ kakubhaḥ pra
maṇhiṣṭhāyodaputeḥ | ā. 6-1 | iti ||* ²

Translation: "'Pra maṇhiṣṭhāya': a sūkta of six Riks, the seventh [of the Tenth Anuvāka]; the seer is Savya, the deity Indra, the metre Jagatī; so the Anukramaṇī: 'pra maṇhiṣṭhāya'. On the

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-seventh sūkta"

Viṣuvat day this sūkta is to be recited in the niṣkevalya; so it is aphorized: 'pra maṃhiṣṭhāya', 'tyam ū ṣu' here, and the Śākūrya at the end (Āśv. 8-6 [?]). In the Ukthya-saṃsthā rite, in the third savana, it is also in the śāstra of the Brāhmaṇācchaṃsin: 'all the kakubh [Riks], pra maṃhiṣṭhāya...' (Āśv. 6-1 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 392) — "'Pra maṃhiṣṭhāya' is the seventh sūkta in the tenth anuvāka. It has six Riks. The seer is Savya, the deity Indra, the metre Jagatī. In the Anukramaṇikā: 'pra maṃhiṣṭhāya'. In the Viṣuvat sacrifice it is used for the niṣkevalya śāstra mantras (Āśv. 8-6); in the Ukthya-saṃsthā rite, in the third savana, the Brāhmaṇācchaṃsin is to recite this sūkta (Āśv. 6-1)." ³

Heading block of Sūkta 57 (p. 393, PDF 409)

Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 10 · Sūkta 57 · Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 22, 23 [as read, [?]] · Riks: 6 · Ṛṣi: Savya Āṅgīrasa · Deity: Indra · Metre: Jagatī.

original pp. 393–396

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ⁴

प्र मंहिष्ठाय बृहते बृहद्रये सत्यशुष्माय तवसे मतिं भरे । अपामिव प्रवणे यस्य दुर्धरं राधो विश्रायु शवसे अपावृतम् ॥ १ ॥ *pra maṃhiṣṭhāya bṛhate bṛhadraye satyaśuṣmāya tavase matiṃ bhare | apām iva pravaṇe yasya durdharaṃ rādho viśvāyu śavase

apāvṛtam || 1 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

2. Reading note: "udaputeḥ" is as printed, probably a crowded form, [?]; the numerals are as read, [?].

3. The heading block and Rik 57.1 are on p. 393 (PDF 409).

4. accents printed, not reproduced

प्र । मंहिष्ठाय । बृहते । बृहत्ऽरये । सत्यऽशुष्माय । तवसे । मतिम् । भरे । अपाम्ऽइव । प्रऽवणे । यस्य । दुःऽधरम् । राधः । विश्वऽआयु । शवसे । अपऽवृतम् ॥ १ ॥

*pra | maṁhiṣṭhāya | bṛhate | bṛhat-raye | satya-śuṣmāya | tavase
| matim | bhare | apām-iva | pra-vaṇe | yasya | duḥ-dharam |
rādhaḥ | viśva-āyu | śavase | apa-vṛtam || 1 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

मंहिष्ठाय । मंहतिर्दानकर्मैति यास्कः । नि. १-२ । दातृतमाय बृहते गुणैर्महते बृहद्रये
महाधनाय सत्यशुष्मायावितथबलाय तवस आकारतः प्रवृद्धाय ।
एवंगुणविशिष्टायेन्द्राय मतिं मननीयां स्तुतिं प्र भरे । प्रकर्षेण संपादयामि ।
यस्येन्द्रस्य बलं दुर्धरमन्यैर्धर्तुमशक्यं । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । प्रवणे निम्नप्रदेशेऽपामिव ।
यथा जलानां वेगः केनाप्यवस्थापयितुं न शक्यते तद्वत् । तथा राधो धनं विश्वायु
सर्वेषु व्याप्तं शवसे स्तोतृणां बलाय येनेन्द्रेणापावृतं । अपगतावरणं क्रियते तस्मै इन्द्रस्येति पूर्वेण संबन्धः ॥ *maṁhiṣṭhāya | maṁhatir dānakarmeti yāskaḥ | ni. 1-2 | dātṛtamāya bṛhate guṇair mahate bṛhadraye mahāadhanāya satyaśuṣmāyāvitathabalāya tavasa ākārataḥ pravṛddhāya |

evaṁguṇaviśiṣṭāyendrāya matim mananīyāṁ stutiṁ pra bhare |
prakarṣeṇa saṁpādayāmi | yasyendrasya balaṁ durdharam
anyair dhartum aśakyam | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | pravaṇe
nimnapradeśe 'pām iva | yathā jalānām vegāḥ kenāpy avasthāpayitum na śakyate tadvat | tathā rādho dhanam viśvāyu sarveṣu vyāptam śavase stotṛṇām balāya yenendrenāpāvṛtam | apagatāvaraṇam kriyate tasmai indrasyeti pūrveṇa saṁbandhaḥ
|| 5*

5. The tail, p. 394, is characterized: on maṁhiṣṭhāya (mahi vṛddhau, tṛc, tuś chandasi: iṣṭhan, turiṣṭhemeyahsu), bṛhate (bṛhanmahator upasaṁkhyānam), matim (man jñāne, ktin, mante vṛṣeṣapacamanaviduṣyā...), durdharam (iṣaddussuṣu kṛcchrākṛcchrārtheṣu khal), viśvāyu (iṇ gatau, Uṇādi uṇ; bahuvrīhau viśvaṁ saṁjñāyām), apāvṛtam.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "To maṃhiṣṭhāya — maṃhati is a verb of giving, says Yāska (Nī. 1-2 [?]) — to the greatest giver; bṛhate, great by qualities; bṛhadraye, of great wealth; satyaśuṣmāya, of unfailing strength; tavase, grown in form: to such an Indra I pra bhare, present, matim, a hymn worth meditating on. Of that Indra yasya, whose strength is durdharam, not to be withstood by others — an example: pravaṇe apām iva, as in a low place the rush of the waters cannot be held by anyone — and rādhaḥ, wealth, viśvāyu, pervading all, śavase, for the strength of the praisers, apāvṛtam, which Indra opens, uncovers: connect with the first part."

Pratipadārtha — "yasya — of which Indra; pravaṇe — (in a place where it flows) that no one can stop; apām iva — like the current of waters; durdharam — that cannot be withstood (by enemies); rādhaḥ — of which Indra the wealth; viśvāyu — spread out among all; śavase — for the strength of the praisers; apāvṛtam — is opened; maṃhiṣṭhāya — to the exceedingly generous; bṛhate — the great in qualities; bṛhadraye — of abundant wealth; satyaśuṣmāya — of effective valour; tavase — the powerful: to such Indra; matim — a worshipful hymn; pra bhare — I offer."

Bhāvārtha

— "Like the current of water that no one can stop, Indra's power cannot be withstood by enemies; his wealth is opened widely to all, to give strength to his worshippers. I offer a worshipful hymn to Indra, who is exceedingly generous, great in qualities, rich, of effective valour and powerful."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 394)

— "I offer the most desirable praise to the most bountiful, the great, the opulent, the highly powerful and stately Indra, whose irresistible impetuosity is like the rush of waters down a precipice, and by whom, widely-diffused wealth is laid open (to his worshippers) to sustain their strength."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 395 - maṁhiṣṭhāya — "Maṁhatir dānakarmā (Ni. 1-2 [?]): the Nirukta-authors fix that maṁhati is an act of giving; atiśayena maṁhitā maṁhiṣṭhaḥ: the most excellent among givers." - satyaśuṣmāya — "Satyaṁ śuṣmaṁ yasya: one who has strength that is not in vain." - tavase — "One of mighty form: an epithet of Indra." - pravane apām iva — "As water rushes to a hollow, Indra is of exceeding strength; the speed of water rushing to a hollow is given as a comparison, in the praise that no one can stop Indra's power." - viśvāyu — "Viśvasmin sarvasmin āyu gamanaṁ yasya tat: a thing pervading all regions of the world."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁶ - maṁhiṣṭhāya: mahi vṛddhau; tṛc; idit: num: maṁhitṛ; atiśayena maṁhitā maṁhiṣṭhaḥ; tuś chandasi: iṣṭhan; turiṣṭhemeyaḥsu: loss of tṛ; nit: initial-acute; dative. - bṛhate: bṛhat; bṛhanmahator upasaṁkhyānam: ending acute. - bṛhadraye, satyaśuṣmāya: bahuvrīhis, first-member accent. - matim: man jñāne; striyām ktin; anudāttopadeśa...: loss of nasal; mantra vṛṣeṣapacamanaviduṣyā... (Pā. 3-3-96): ktin acute; accusative: ekādeśa udāttanodāttaḥ. - bhare: bhṛñ bharaṇe; laṭ first singular; nighāta. - apām: genitive plural; ūḍidam...: ending acute. - durdharam: dhṛñ dhāraṇe; īṣaddussuṣu kṛcchrākṛcchrārtheṣu khal: khal; guṇa; uraṇ raparaḥ; liti: acute before the suffix. - viśvāyu: iṇ gatau; chandasīnaḥ (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]): uṇ; nit: vṛddhi; āy; viśvaṁ saṁjñāyām: end-acute of the first member. - apāvṛtam: vṛñ varaṇe; kta; no guṇa; gatiṛ anantaraḥ: the prefix's accent. || 1 ||

original pp. 396–398

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

अध ते विश्वमनु हासदिष्टय आपो निम्नेव सवना हविष्मतः । यत्पर्वते न समशीत हर्यत इन्द्रस्य वज्रः शनथिता हिरण्ययः ॥ २ ॥ adha te viśvam anu hāsad iṣṭaya āpo nimneva savanā haviṣmataḥ | yat parvate na samaśīta haryata indrasya vajraḥ śnathitā hiranyayaḥ || 2 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अध । ते । विश्वम् । अनु । ह । असत् । इष्टये । आपः । निम्नाऽइव । सवना । हविष्मतः । यत् । पर्वते । न । सम्ऽअशीत । हर्यतः । इन्द्रस्य । वज्रः । शनथिता । हिरण्ययः ॥ २ ॥ adha | te | viśvam | anu | ha | asat | iṣṭaye | āpaḥ | nimna-iva |

savanā | haviṣmataḥ | yat | parvate | na | sam-aśīta | haryataḥ |
indrasya | vajraḥ | śnathitā | hiranyayaḥ || 2 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अध हानन्तरमेव हे इन्द्र विश्वं सर्वमिदं जगत्ते तव संबन्धिन इष्टये यागायान्वसत् ।
अन्वभवत् । यद्वा । इष्टये हविरादिभिस्तव प्राप्तय इति योज्यम् । हविष्मतो
यजमानस्य सवना सवनानि यज्ञजातानि निम्नेव निम्नानि भूस्थलान्यापा इव त्वां
संभजन्त इति शेषः । हर्यतः शत्रुवधं प्रेप्सत इन्द्रस्य । हर्यतिः प्रेप्साकर्मति यास्कः ।
नि. २-१२ । यद्वा । हर्यतः शोभनः । हिरण्मयो हिरण्ययः शनथिता शत्रूणां
हिंसनशीलो वज्रः पर्वते पर्ववति शिलोच्चये वृत्रे वा यद्यदा न समशीत संसुप्तो
नाभवत् । किंतु जागरितः सन्नवधीदित्यर्थः । यदेन्द्रेण प्रेरितो वज्रोऽप्रतिहतः
सन्वृत्रमवधीत्तदाप्यभ्युक्त्यैव शं यष्टुं सर्वे यजमानाः प्रावर्तिषतेति भावः ॥ adha hānantaram eva he indra viśvaṃ sarvaṃ idaṃ jagat te tava saṃbandhina iṣṭaye yāgāyānvasat | anvabhavat | yadvā | iṣṭaye

haviradibhis tava prāptaya iti yojyam | haviṣmato yajamānasya savanā savanāni yajñajātāni nimneva nimnāni bhūsthalāny āpā iva tvām saṃbhajanta iti śeṣaḥ | haryataḥ śatruvadhaṃ prepsata indrasya | haryatiḥ prepsākarmeti yāskaḥ | ni. 2-12 | yadvā |
haryataḥ śobhanaḥ | hiraṇmayo hiraṇyayaḥ śnathitā śatrūṇāṃ himsanaśīlo vajraḥ parvate parvati śiloccaye vṛtre vā yad yadā na samaśīta saṃsupto nābhavat | kiṃtu jāgaritaḥ sann avadhīd ity

arthaḥ | yadendreṇa prerito vajro 'pratihataḥ san vṛtram avadhīt tadāpy abhyuktyaiva [?] śaṃ yaṣṭuṃ sarve yajamānāḥ prāvartīṣateti bhāvaḥ | | ⁷

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Adha, immediately after that, O Indra, viśvam, this entire world, te iṣṭaye, for your sacrifice, anv asat, was ready — or: iṣṭaye 'for reaching you with oblations': connect so. Haviṣmataḥ savanā, the sacrifices of the sacrificer who has oblations, nimneva āpaḥ, like waters to low places, flow to you (this is understood) — of Indra haryataḥ, who desires the slaying of enemies (haryati is a verb of desire, Ni. 2-12 [?]); or haryataḥ, beautiful. The hiraṇyayaḥ, golden, śnathitā, enemy-destroying thunderbolt yad na samaśīta, did not sleep parvate, on the mountain, the heap of rock, or on Vṛtra: it did not become dormant, but, awake, it killed. When the thunderbolt, driven by Indra, unresisted, killed Vṛtra, then all the sacrificers set about the sacrifice, as if bidden, to conclude it, is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "haryataḥ — who looked for the slaying (of enemies); indrasya — of Indra; hiraṇyayaḥ — made of gold; śnathitā — the destroyer of enemies; vajraḥ — the thunderbolt; parvate — on the mountain, or when hurled at Vṛtra; yat — when; na samaśīta — did not sleep (i.e. being sharp, it killed the enemy); adha ha — immediately after that; viśvam — the whole world; te — for you; iṣṭaye — for the sacrifice; anv asat — became ready; haviṣmataḥ — of the sacrificer; savanā — the offerings; nimneva āpaḥ — like waters flowing in a low place (reached you without obstruction)."

7. The tail, p. 397: on asat (as bhuvi, lañ; śap not elided; no aṭ), iṣṭaye (yaja, ktin; vacisvapiyajādīnām kiti: saṃprasāraṇa; vraścabhrasja...: ṣatva; ṣṭutva; Uṇādi alternative iṣa gatau), nimneva (nimna + iva; eva; Vedic ā shortening), samaśīta (śīṇ svapne, lañ; guṇa barred), haryataḥ (haryatir gatikāntyoḥ; bhṛmṛdṛṣṭyajiparvibandhi...: atac), śnathitā (śnatha kṣatha kratha hiṃsārthāḥ; tācchīlaka tṛn; sīt: anudātta, so initial-acute) — see Kannada notes.

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, when, looking for the slaying of the enemy, your golden, enemy-destroying thunderbolt, hurled upon Vṛtra, killed him without the least delay, then immediately the whole world was ready for your sacrifice; the oblations of the sacrificer reached you like water flowing to a hollow, without obstruction."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 398)

— "Indra, this entire universe was engaged in your sacrifice; the oblations of the sacrificer flowed like water falling to a depth; the beautiful, golden, fatal thunderbolt of Indra did not sleep upon the mountain."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 398 - adha — "The word adha is used in the sense of atha, 'afterwards'." - iṣṭaye — "Explained in two ways: for worshipping you with oblations; or for the sacrifice." - savanā — "Though the word savana denotes only sacrifice, here, by implication, it means all the acts that occur in the sacrifice." - haryataḥ — "Śatruvadhaṃ prepsataḥ; haryatiḥ prepsākarmā (Ni. 2-12 [?]): by this Nirukta usage the verb hary gatikāntyoḥ [the root hary with the senses of motion and desire] takes the sense of an act that is wished for. They also give the sense 'praiseworthy' to this word." - śnathitā — "The thunderbolt is by nature destroyer of enemies; it is an epithet of vajra. After the thunderbolt, driven by Indra, had uprooted the enemies, all began to please Indra with sacrificial acts: this is the point here."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁸ - adha: atha; in the Saṃhitā, chandasi gives dhatva. - asat: as bhuvi; lañ third singular; itaś ca: loss of i; bahulaṃ chandasi: śap not elided (luk does not come); no aṭ (bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi); nighāta. - iṣṭaye: yaja devapūjāsaṅgatikaraṇadāneṣu; ktin in the action sense; kit: vacisvapīyajādīnāṃ kiti (Pā. 6-1-15): samprasāraṇa of y; vraścabhraśjaśrjamṛjayajārājabhrājacchāṃ śaḥ: śatva of j; the suffix t becomes ṭ by ṣṭunā ṣṭuḥ: iṣṭi; though nit, by vyatyaya end-acute. Or from iṣa gatau with ktin; no laghūpadha-guṇa (kit).

Rik 57.2, grammar (end) ⁹ - iṣṭaye (end): since ktin is nit, it would be initial-acute, but by vyatyaya ... mantra vṛṣeṣapacamanaviduṣyā...: ktin acute; dative. - nīmneva savanā: both words are neuter plural; the śi that replaces jaś/śas is dropped by śeś chandasi bahulam. - samaśīta: śīn svapne, adādi; lañ third singular; ta; sārvadhātukam apit makes it ñit; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ: luk; guṇa of śīn (sārvadhātuke guṇaḥ, Pā. 7-4-21 as read [?]) does not come, by saṃjñāpūrvako vidhir anityaḥ; aṭ; yat before: no nighāta; the aṭ is acute. - haryataḥ: hary gatikāntyoḥ; bhṛmṛdrśīyajiparvibandhi... (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]): atac; citaḥ: end-acute. - śnathitā: śnatha kṣatha kratha hiṃsārthāḥ; tācchīlye ṭṛn; ārdhadhātukasyeḍ valādeḥ: iṭ; śnathitṛ; nit: initial-acute; nominative singular su: ṛdudaśanas...: anañ; apṭṛnṭṛc...: lengthening of the penultimate; halīnyādi: su dropped; nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya: n dropped. || 2 ||

original pp. 399–402

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु भीमाय नमसा समध्वर उषो न शुभ्र आ भरा पनीयसे । यस्य धाम श्रवसे नामेन्द्रियं ज्योतिरकारि हरितो नायसे ॥ ३ ॥

asmā id u bhīmāya namasā samadhvara uṣo na śubhra ā bharā pañīyase | yasya dhāma śravase nāmendriyaṃ jyotir akāri harito nāyase || 3 || ¹⁰

8. pp. 398– — grammar pages, noted briefly; continued on p. 399

9. p. 399, PDF 415 — grammar page, noted briefly

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । भीमाय । नमसा । सम् । अध्वरे । उषः । न । शुभ्रे । आ । भर । पनीयसे । यस्य । धाम । श्रवसे । नाम । इन्द्रियम् । ज्योतिः । अकारि । हरितः । न । अयसे ॥ ३ ॥

asmai | bhīmāya | namasā | sam | adhware | uṣaḥ | na | śubhre |
ā | bhara | paṇīyase | yasya | dhāma | śravase | nāma | indriyam
| jyotiḥ | akāri | haritaḥ | na | ayase || 3 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे उषः उषोदेवते शुभ्रे शोभने त्वं भीमाय शत्रूणां भयंकराय पनीयसे अतिशयेन
स्तोतव्यायास्मा इन्द्रायाध्वरे हिंसारहितेऽस्मिन्याग इति शेषः । न इति संप्रत्यर्थे ।
तथा च यास्कः । अस्तु कृमार्थस्य संप्रत्यर्थे प्रयोगे इहेव निधेहि । नि. २-६० । इति
। संप्रतीदानीं नमसा नमो हविर्लक्षणमन्नं सम् आ भर । सम्यक् संपादय । धाम
सर्वस्य धारकं नाम स्तोतृषु नमनशीलं प्रसिद्धं वेन्द्रियमिन्द्रस्य परमैश्वर्यस्य लिङ्गं
यस्येन्द्रस्यैवविधं ज्योतिः श्रवसेऽन्नाय हविर्लक्षणान्नलाभार्थमयसे इति सः कः
गमनायाकारि । क्रियते । हरितो न । यथाश्चानादिनः स्वाभिलषितदेशं गमयन्ति तद्वदिन्द्रोऽपि स्वाभिमतहविर्लाभाय स्वकीयं तेजो गमयतीति भावः ॥

he uṣaḥ uṣodevate śubhre śobhane tvaṃ bhīmāya śatrūṇāṃ bhayaṃkarāya paṇīyase atīśayena stotavyāyāsmā indrāyādhware himsārahite 'smin yāga iti śeṣaḥ | na iti saṃpratīyarthē | tathā ca yāskaḥ | astu kṛmārthasya saṃpratīyarthē prayoge iheva nidhehi |
ni. 2-60 [?] | iti | saṃpratīdānīm namasā namo havirlakṣaṇam
annaṃ sam ā bhara | samyak saṃpādaya | dhāma sarvasya dhārakaṃ nāma stotr̥ṣu namanaśīlaṃ prasiddhaṃ vendriyam indrasya paramaiśvaryaśya liṅgaṃ yasyendrasyaivaṃvidhaṃ jyotiḥ śravase 'nnāya havirlakṣaṇānnalābhārtham ayase [?]
gamanāyākāri | kriyate | harito na | yathāśvānādinaḥ svābhilaṣitadeśaṃ gamayanti tadvad indro 'pi
svābhimatehavarilābhāya svakīyaṃ tejo gamayatīti bhāvaḥ | | 11

10. The print's first pāda reads "अस्मै" in the Pāda and "अस्मा इदु" in the Saṃhitā; Each is followed as printed. The Saṃhitā's last word "नायसे" is na ayase of the Pāda.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Uṣas, goddess Uṣas, śubhre, beautiful one, you sam ā bhara, bring well, namasā, the food in the form of an oblation, asmai bhīmāya, for this Indra who is terrible to enemies, panīyase, most praiseworthy — adhvare, in this sacrifice free of harm. Na here has the sense of 'now' (saṃprati): so Yāska [says] 'in the sense of saṃprati put it in the place here' (Ni. 2-60 [?]) — uṣo na, 'O Uṣas, now'. Yasya, whose [Indra's] dhāma, the sustainer of all, nāma, renowned, bowing before the praisers, indriyam, the mark of the supreme lordship, jyotiḥ, radiance, śravase, to win food in the form of the oblation, ayase, in order to go, akāri, is made to go — harito na, as charioteers make horses go to the place they desire, so Indra too sends his own splendour to obtain the oblation he wants."

Pratipadārtha — "śubhre — O pure; uṣaḥ — O goddess Uṣas; bhīmāya — to the terrible (to enemies); panīyase — to the most praiseworthy; asmai — to this Indra; adhvare — in this harmless sacrifice; na — now; namasā — with the food in the form of oblation; sam ā bhara — well supply; yasya — of which Indra; dhāma — the sustainer of all; nāma — renowned; indriyam — the mark of Indra's unique character; jyotiḥ — radiance; śravase — for the food in the form of the oblation; harito na — as a charioteer drives the horses to his desired place; ayase — for going to various places; akāri — is made to go."

Bhāvārtha

11. The Nirukta quotation "asta kṛmārthasya" is as read, crowded, [?]; the numeral "2-60" is likewise [?]. Tail, pp. 400: on uṣaḥ (vocative, āmantritasya ca; the loss of nighāta at the start of a pāda), śubhre (śubha dīptau, Uṇādi rak, spāyitañcivañcy...: rak), bhara (hṛgrahor bhaś chandasi; dvyacas tiṇaḥ: lengthening in the Saṃhitā), panīyase (pana vyavahāre stutau ca, asun; īyasun; ṭeḥ), indriyam, akāri (luṇ, ciṇ by cinbhāvakarmaṇoḥ; ciṇo luk), ayase (aya gatau, asun)).

— "O pure Uṣas, now supply well the food in the form of the oblation for this Indra, terrible to enemies and most praiseworthy, in this harmless sacrifice. The radiance of Indra, the sustainer of all, renowned, the mark of Indra's unique lordship, is sent out in all directions to gather the oblation, as a charioteer drives his horses to the place he wishes."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 401) — "Beautiful Ushas, now present the oblation in this rite to the formidable, praise-deserving Indra, whose all-sustaining, celebrated and characteristic radiance has impelled him hither and thither, (in quest) of (sacrificial) food, as a charioteer drives his horses (in various directions)." ¹²

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 401 - uṣaḥ — "This is the name of a deity named Uṣas. In the Nirukta (Ni. 3-... as read [?]) sixteen synonyms are given for Uṣas. The Nirukta, explaining the word uṣas as 'rātrēr iva hyaparaḥ kālāḥ uṣā āpyo bhavatīti rātrīṇām abhy uttarāṇi uṣonāmāni', clarifies the meaning of the word uṣas in the mantra 'idaṃ śreṣṭhaṃ jyotiṣāṃ jyotir āgāc citraḥ praketo ajaniṣṭa vibhvā | yathā prasūtā savitus savāyaivā rātry uṣase yonim āraik' (Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-113-1 as read [?])"; ¹³

इदं श्रेष्ठं ज्योतिषां ज्योतिरागाच्चित्रः प्रकेतो अजनिष्ट विभ्वा । यथा प्रसूता सवितुः सवायँ एवा रात्र्युषसे योनिमारैक् ॥

idaṃ śreṣṭhaṃ jyotiṣāṃ jyotir āgāc citraḥ praketo ajaniṣṭa vibhvā | yathā prasūtā savituh savāyaṃ evā rātry uṣase yonim āraik | — editorial and tentative: "This best of lights has come, the bright, wide-shining sign has been born; as one impelled by Savitr for his urging, so Night has yielded her womb to Uṣas." ¹⁴ "In sum, the time of the latter half of the night is uṣaḥ-kāla, and the deity that presides over that time is Uṣas." - panīyase — "To the root pan,

12. Printed "Transation" [sic].

13. The mantra is given, as printed, in three layers:

14. The print's last words "savāyaivā rātry" are crowded, [?].

the sense of praise, the suffix added after it in the sense of 'excess': one who is most worthy of praise." - na — "The word na here means saṃprati, 'now' — the Nirukta (Ni. 2-... as read [?]) 'astu kṛmārthasya saṃpratyarthe prayoge iheva nidhehi' establishes na as ivārtha and saṃpratyartha." - indriyam — "Indrasya paramaiśvaryasya liṅgam: it means the radiance of Indra — the radiance that displays the supreme sovereignty in Indra. Indra receives the share of the sacrifice, rich in oblation, through that radiance." - harito na — "Here the sense is 'like horses': as riders drive their horses to the place they wish, Indra sends his radiance there to receive the share of the oblation."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁵ - asmai: dative of idam; ūḍidam...: ending acute. - uṣaḥ: vocative, at the head of the pāda: no nighāta; āmantritasya ca: initial-acute. - śubhre: śubha dīptau; spāyitañcivañcy... (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]): rak; kit: no guṇa; feminine ṭāp; vocative. - bhara: hṛ haraṇe; loṭ second singular; hi for sip; ato heḥ: loss; śap; hṛgrahor bhaś chandasi: bh; dvyaco 'tas tiṇaḥ: lengthening in the Samhitā: bharā. - panīyase: pana vyavahāre stutau ca; uṇādayo bahulam: asun: panas; in the sense of excess, dvivacanavibhajyopapade tarabīyasunau: īyasun; ṭeḥ drops as: panīyas; nit: initial-acute; dative. - indriyam: indriyam indraliṅgam (Pā. 5-2-93): gha (ghac) by nipāta; citaḥ: end-acute. - akāri: ḍukṛñ karaṇe; Vedic luṇ; cinbhāvakarmaṇoḥ: ciṇ; ciṇo luk: loss of ta; ṇit: vṛddhi; aṭ; no nighāta (asya before). - ayase: aya gatau; sarvadhātubhyo 'sun: asun: ayas; nit: initial-acute; dative.
|| 3 ||

original pp. 402–405

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

15. pp. 401–402 — grammar pages, noted briefly

इमे त इन्द्र ते वयं पुरुष्टुत ये त्वारभ्य चरामसि प्रभूवसो । नहि त्वदन्यो गिर्वणो गिरः सघत्क्षोणीरिव प्रति नो हर्य तद्वचः ॥ ४ ॥ *ime ta indra te vyaṃ puruṣṭuta ye tvārabhya carāmasi prabhūvaso | nahi tvad anyo girvaṇo giraḥ saghat kṣoṇīr iva prati

no harya tad vacaḥ | | 4 | |*

Pada-pāṭha

इमे । ते । इन्द्र । ते । वयम् । पुरुऽस्तुत । ये । त्वा । आऽरभ्य । चरामसि । प्रभुवसो इति
प्रभुऽवसो । नहि । त्वत् । अन्यः । गिर्वणः । गिरः । सघत् । क्षोणीऽइव । प्रति । नः । हर्य । तत् । वचः ॥ ४ ॥

*ime | te | indra | te | vyaṃ | puru-stuta | ye | tvā | ā-rabhya |
carāmasi | prabhūvaso iti prabhu-vaso | nahi | tvat | anyāḥ | girvaṇaḥ | giraḥ | saghat | kṣoṇīḥ-iva | prati | naḥ | harya | tat |
vacaḥ | | 4 | |*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे इन्द्र प्रभूवसो प्रभूतधन अत एव पुरुष्टुत पुरुभिर्बहुभिर्यजमानैः स्तुत ये च वयं त्वा
त्वामारभ्याश्रयतयावलम्ब्य चरामसि चरामो यागे वर्तामहे त इमे वयं ते तव
स्वभूताः । हे गिर्वणो गीर्भिर्वननीयेन्द्र त्वदन्यस्तत्तोऽन्यः कश्चिदपि गिरः स्तुतीर्नहि
सघत् न हि प्राप्नोति । अतस्त्वं नोऽस्माकं तत्स्तुतिलक्षणं वचः प्रति हर्य । कामयस्व । क्षोणीरिव । यथा क्षोणी पृथिवी स्वकीयानि भूतजातानि कामयते ॥

*he indra prabhūvaso prabhūtadhana ata eva puruṣṭuta purubhir bahubhir yajamānaiḥ stuta ye ca vyaṃ tvā tvām ārabhyāśrayatayāvalambya carāmasi carāmo yāge vartāmahe ta ime vyaṃ te tava svabhūtāḥ | he girvaṇo gīrbhir vananīyendra tvadanyas tatto 'nyaḥ kaścid api giraḥ stutīr nahi saghat na hi prāpnoti | atas tvaṃ no 'smākaṃ tatstutilakṣaṇaṃ vacaḥ prati
harya | kāmayasva | kṣoṇīr iva | yathā kṣoṇī pṛthivī svakīyāni
bhūtajātāni kāmayate | | ¹⁶*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, prabhūvaso, of abundant wealth, therefore puruṣṭuta, praised by many sacrificers: we who, tvā ārabhya, having begun with you, relying on you, carāmasi, are engaged in the sacrifice — we are te, yours. O girvaṇaḥ, to be served with praises, Indra: tvad anyah, none other than you saghat, attains [receives] the giraḥ, praises. Therefore you prati harya, desire, favour, tad vacaḥ, that speech of praise of ours; kṣoṇīr iva, as the earth desires the beings of her own."

Pratipadārtha — "prabhūvaso — O Indra of abundant wealth; puruṣṭuta — one praised by many (therefore); ye — which; vayam — we; tvā — you; ārabhya — taking refuge in; carāmasi — are engaged in the sacrifice (in your presence); te ime vayam — those same we; te — are yours; girvaṇaḥ — O Indra, delighted with praise; tvadanyah — [any] other than you; giraḥ — praises; nahi saghat — does not receive; naḥ — our; tat vacaḥ — those words in the form of praise; kṣoṇīr iva — as the earth [nourishes the beings born in her]; prati harya — be pleased with."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, you are rich in wealth, and are praised by many. We are yours, since we perform the sacrifice in your presence, relying on you alone. O Indra, delighted with praise: since no one other than you receives our praises, be pleased with those words of praise of ours and increase them, as the earth is pleased to nourish all the beings that are born in her."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 404)

16. The tail, p. 403 foot: on carāmasi (cara gatibhakṣaṇayoḥ; laṭ; idantomasi: i augment), saghat (saghu hīṃsāyām; leṭ; aṭ; bahulaṃ chandasi: ślu; pādāditvān nighātābhāvaḥ), kṣoṇīriva (halīyābbhyo...: loss of su... not here: "sulopābhāvaś chāndasaḥ"), harya (hary gatikāntyoḥ; loṭ, a-loss), with a remark that the roots have many senses (dhātūnām anekārthatvāt) — noted below.

— "Much-praised and most opulent Indra, we are those, who relying on your favour, approach you; accepter of praise, no other than you receives our commendations; be pleased (with our address) as the earth (cherishes her creatures)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 404 - prabhūvaso — "By the derivation 'prabhūtaṃ vasu yasya', one of special wealth; or, by this word the sense 'one who always increases his lordship' is shown." - puruṣtuta — "Purubhiḥ bahubhiḥ yajamānaiḥ stuta: praised by all sacrificers who are consecrated for the sacrifice." - gīrvaṇaḥ — "Gīrbhiḥ vananīyaḥ: one who is always praised with hymns." - nahi saghat — "Nahi prāpnoti: the word, from the root saghu hiṃsāyām, ought to have meant 'does not hurt'; but by the rule dhātūnām anekārthatvāt ('roots have many meanings') it is shown to mean 'does not receive'." - prati no harya tad vacaḥ — "Take special pleasure in the praise we speak. As an illustration: as the earth lovingly nourishes all the beings in it, so you, listening to our praise-words with regard, protect us."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁷ - puruṣtuta: "purubhiḥ bahubhiḥ stutaḥ"; ṣtuñ stutau; kta in the object sense; āmantritasya ca: nighāta (the vocative).

Rik 57.4, grammar (end) ¹⁸ - ārabhya: rabha rābhasye, bhvādi; ktvā with the prefix; since the ā is a prefix and the word is a compound, samāse 'nañpūrve ktvo lyap (Pā. 7-1-37): lyap; being pit, anudātta (so the root's accent stays). - carāmasi: cara gatibhakṣaṇayoh; laṭ first plural masi [mas]; kartari śap; ato dīrgho yañi: lengthening of the a before m; idantomasi: i augment; no nighāta, because of the ye [= yat-word] before; śap is pit, anudātta; lasārvadhātukam [the masi] is also anudātta; the root's accent remains. - saghat: saghu hiṃsāyām; since roots have many meanings, here it is used in the sense of "reaching"; dhātvādeḥ saḥ saḥ; leṭ third singular tip; itaś ca lopah parasmaipadeṣu: i

17. p. 404 — grammar page, noted briefly; continues p. 405

18. p. 405, PDF 421 — grammar page, noted briefly

dropped; leṭo 'tātau: aṭ; bahulaṃ chandasi: śap → luk; at the beginning of a pāda: no nighāta; pit: anudātta; initial-acute of the root. - kṣoṇīriva: kṣoṇī ends in ī, hence always feminine; with su following, halṇyābbhyo... would drop it, but here the Veda keeps it; sasajuṣo ruḥ: ru. - harya: hary gatikāntyoḥ ("desire"); loṭ second singular sip → hi; śap; ato heḥ: hi dropped; nighāta by tiṅ atinaḥ. || 4 ||

original pp. 405–408

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

भूरि त इन्द्र वीर्यं तव स्मस्यस्य स्तोतुर्मघवन्कामामा पृण । अनु ते द्यौर्बृहती वीर्यं मम इयं च ते पृथिवी नेम ओजसे ॥ ५ ॥ *bhūri ta indra vīryaṃ tava smasy asya stotur maghavan kāmam ā prṇa | anu te dyaur brhatī vīryaṃ mama iyaṃ ca te prthivī nema

ojase || 5 ||* ¹⁹

Pada-pāṭha

भूरि । ते । इन्द्र । वीर्यम् । तव । स्मसि । अस्य । स्तोतुः । मघवन् । कामम् । आ । पृण ।
अनु । ते । द्यौः । बृहती । वीर्यम् । मम इति ममे । इयम् । च । ते । पृथिवी । नेमे । ओजसे ॥ ५ ॥

*bhūri | te | indra | vīryam | tava | smasi | asya | stotuḥ | magha-
van | kāmam | ā | prṇa | anu | te | dyauḥ | brhatī | vīryam |
mame | iyaṃ | ca | te | prthivī | neme | ojase || 5 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

19. The print's first line reads "तव स्मसि" and "कामम् आ पृण"; The Pada is followed.

हे इन्द्र ते तव वीर्यं सामर्थ्यं भूरि बहु । न केनाप्यवच्छेत्तुं शक्यते । तादृशस्य तव
 वयं स्मसि । स्वभूता भवामः । हे मघवन्नस्य स्तोतुस्त्वां स्तुवतो यजमानस्य कामम्
 अभिलाषम् आ पृण । आपूरय । बृहती द्यौर्महान् द्युलोकोऽपि ते तव वीर्यमनु मने ।
 अन्वमंस्त । इन्द्रेण सहावस्थानादियं चेयमपि पृथिवी ते तवौजसे बलाय नेमे । प्रह्वीबभूव । त्वद्वलाद्भीता सत्यथैव वर्तत इति भावः ॥

*he indra te tava vīryaṃ sāmārthyam bhūri bahu | na kenāpy avacchettum śakyate | tādṛśasya tava vayaṃ smasi | svabhūtā
 bhavāmaḥ | he maghavann asya stotus tvāṃ stuvato yajamānasya
 kāmam abhilāṣam ā pṛṇa | āpūraya | bṛhatī dyaury mahān dyuloko
 'pi te tava vīryam anu mame | anvamaṃsta | indreṇa
 sahāvasthānād iyaṃ ceyam api pṛthivī te tavaujase balāya neme |
 prahvībabhūva | tvadbalād bhītā satyathaiva vartata iti bhāvaḥ |*

20

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Indra, te vīryam, your valour, power, is bhūri, great; it cannot be cut off by anyone. Tava smasi: of such you we are — we are your own. O maghavan, asya stotuḥ kāmam ā pṛṇa, fulfil the wish of this praiser, the sacrificer who praises you. Bṛhatī dyauḥ, the great heaven also anu mame, acknowledged [anvamaṃsta] your valour; and, through staying with Indra, iyaṃ ca pṛthivī, this earth too, ojase, before your strength, neme, bowed: becoming afraid of your strength, it behaves truly [submissively] — such is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "indra — O Indra; te — your; vīryam — prowess; bhūri — abundant; tava — (such) yours; smasi — we are; maghavan — O Indra; asya stotuḥ — of this praiser; kāmam

20. The tail, p. 406: on smasi (as bhuvi, mas; śnasor allopah; idantomasi), pṛṇa (pṛṇa prīṇane; tudādi; śa; loḥ; no hi, since sip's hi dropped by ato heḥ), mame (mān māne śabde ca; liḥ; ātmanepada; lidvat; ata ekahalmadhye...), neme (ṇamu prahvatve; liḥ; eś; ata ekahalmadhye: e for a; the loss of the reduplicative)).

— the wish; ā pr̥ṇa — fulfil; br̥hatī dyauḥ — the vast heaven; te — your; vīryam — prowess; anu mame — has acknowledged; iyam ca pr̥thivī — and this earth too; te — your; ojase — before your strength; neme — has bowed."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, your prowess is exceedingly great. We are yours, as such. O Indra, fulfil the wish of this praiser. The vast heaven has acknowledged your prowess, and this earth too has bowed before your strength."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 407)

— "Indra, great is your prowess; we are yours; satisfy, Maghavan, the desires of this your worshipper; the vast heaven has acknowledged your might; this earth has been bowed down through your vigour."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 407 - smasi — "Svabhūtā bhavāmaḥ: this word is formed from the root as bhuvi with loss of the a; 'we shall be yours'." - ā pr̥ṇa — "Āpūraya: this word, formed from the root pr̥ṇa pr̥ṇane, though giving the sense of 'pleasing', is explained by lakṣaṇā as the sense of 'fulfilling': 'fulfil completely our desires'." - neme — "A form born of the root ṇamu prahvatve: 'the earth, afraid of your strength, is bowed before you': thus Indra is praised."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²¹ - smasi: as bhuvi, adādi; laṭ first plural mas; adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ: luk; sārvadhātukam apit: ñit; śnasor allopaḥ: loss of the a of as; idantomasi: i to mas; after an atiñ: nighāta. - asya: idam, genitive singular; ūdīdam...: ending acute. - stotuḥ: ṣtuñ stutau; trc in the agent sense; citaḥ: end-acute; genitive singular. - pr̥ṇa: pr̥ṇa pr̥ṇane, tudādi; loṭ second singular sip → hi; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ; sārvadhātukam apit; no laghūpadhaguna (pugantalaghūpadhasya ca); ato heḥ: luk; tiñ

21. pp. 407–408 — grammar pages, noted briefly

atiṇaḥ: nighāta. - mame: mān māne śabde ca, juhotyādi; jit: ātmanepada; liṭ third singular; ta → e (liṭas tajhayor eśirec); *śit-*ness: sarvādeśa; since liṇ-nimitta: doubling; hrasva; asaṃyogāl liṭ kit: kit; ātolopa iṭi ca: loss of ā; nighāta. - neme: ṇamu prahvatve (śabde ca); liṭ third singular; eś; doubling; kit; since the root has a single consonant between as, atra: ata ekahalmadhye 'nādeśāder liṭi (Pā. 6-4-120): e for the root-vowel and loss of the reduplicative; neme; tiṇ atiṇaḥ: nighāta. || 5 ||

original pp. 408-411

Rik 6

Samhitā-pāṭha

त्वं तमिन्द्र पर्वतं महामुरुं वज्रेण वज्रिन्पर्वशश्चकर्तिथ । अवासृजो निवृताः सतर्वा अपः सत्रा विश्वं दधिषे केवलं सहः ॥ ६ ॥

tvam tam indra parvatam mahām urum vajreṇa vajrin parvaśaś cakartitha | avāsṛjo nivṛtāḥ sartavā apāḥ satrā viśvam dadhiṣe kevalam sahaḥ || 6 ||

Pada-pāṭha

त्वम् । तम् । इन्द्र । पर्वतम् । महान् । उरुम् । वज्रेण । वज्रिन् । पर्वशः । चकर्तिथ । अव ।
असृजः । निवृताः । सतर्वा । अपः । सत्रा । विश्वम् । दधिषे । केवलम् । सहः ॥ ६ ॥

tvam | tam | indra | parvatam | mahān | urum | vajreṇa | vajrin | parva-śaḥ | cakartitha | ava | asṛjaḥ | ni-vṛtāḥ | sartavai | apāḥ | satrā | viśvam | dadhiṣe | kevalam | sahaḥ || 6 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे वज्रिन्नायुधवन्निन्द्र त्वं तं प्रसिद्धं महान्मायामतो महान्तमुरुं विस्तीर्णं सर्वं पर्वतं
पर्ववन्तं मेघं वृत्रासुरं वा वज्रेणायुधेन पर्वशः पर्वणि पर्वणि चकर्तिथ । शकलीचकृषे
। तेन मेघेन निवृता आवृता अपः सतर्वा सरणाय गमनायावासृजः ।

आवाङ्मुखमसाक्षीः । अतस्त्वमेव केवलं विश्वं व्याप्तं सहो बलं दधिषे । धारयसि ।
नान्यः कश्चिदिति । यदेतत्सत्रा सत्यमेव । सत्रेति सत्यनाम । सत्रेत्येति तन्नामसु पाठात् ॥

*he vajrinn āyudhavann indra tvam tam prasiddham mahān māyāmato mahāntam urum vistīrṇam sarvaṃ parvatam parvavantaṃ megham vṛtrāsuraṃ vā vajreṇāyudhena parvaśaḥ parvaṇi parvaṇi cakartitha | śakālīcakṛṣe | tena meghena nivṛtā
āvṛtā apaḥ sartavai saraṇāya gamanāyāvāsṛjaḥ | avāṇmukham
asrākṣīḥ | atas tvam eva kevalam viśvaṃ vyāptaṃ saho balaṃ dadhiṣe | dhārayasi | nānyaḥ kaścid iti | yad etat satrā satyam eva
| satreti satyanāma | satrettheti tannāmasu pāṭhāt |* ²²

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O vajrin, wielder of the weapon, Indra, you, tam parvatam, that well-known cloud (parvata, the one with joints) or the Asura Vṛtra — great, broad, vast — vajreṇa, with your thunderbolt, parvaśaḥ, joint by joint, cakartitha, cut up into pieces; and the waters nivṛtāḥ, enclosed by that cloud, sartavai, to flow, you ava asṛjaḥ, let down, turned the mouth downward. Therefore you alone dadhiṣe, hold, viśvam kevalam sahaḥ, all-pervading strength; none other: satrā, truly — satra is a name for truth, since 'satrā' is read among the names of truth ('satrā itthā')."

Pratipadārtha — "vajrin — wielder of the thunderbolt; indra — O Indra; tvam — you; tam — that well-known; mahān — great; urum — wide; parvatam — cloud, or Vṛtra; vajreṇa — with your thunderbolt; parvaśaḥ — in each joint; cakartitha — cut up in pieces; nivṛtāḥ — enclosed by that cloud; apaḥ — waters;

22. Reading note: "mahān māyāmato mahāntam" at the start is crowded, [?]. The tail, p. 409: on mahān, cakartitha (kṛtī chedane; liṭ second singular; doubling; thal; iṭ; r → ar), sartavai (sṛ gatau, tavai), dadhiṣe.

sartavai — to flow; ava asṛjaḥ — let down; kevalam — you alone; viśvam sahaḥ — all power; dadhiṣe — hold; satrā — this is truth."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, wielder of the thunderbolt, you cut that great, broad, well-known cloud into pieces, joint by joint, with your thunderbolt, and let down the waters shut up in it to flow. Therefore it is true that you alone possess all power."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 409)

— "Weilder [sic] of the thunderbolt, you have shattered with your bolt, the broad and massive cloud into fragments, and have sent down the waters that were confined in it, to flow (at will); verily you alone possess all power."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḥ), pp. 409–410 - mahān — "Great in extent." - parvatam — "This word is explained as the cloud (Ni. 3-... as read [?]), or Vṛtra the Asura in the form of a cloud, or the mountain. Yāska says 'parvavān parvataḥ, parva punaḥ prṇāteḥ prīṇāter vā | devān asmin prīṇantīti | megho 'pi giries tasmād eva' (Ni. 1-20 as read [?])." ²³ - satrā — "It conveys the sense of 'truth'. In the Nirukta the word satrā is read among the synonyms of truth: 'satrā itthā' (Ni. 3-10 as read [?])." - parvaśaḥ — "Joint by joint; in pieces."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁴ - mahān: mahat; in the accusative singular mahāntam; in the Saṃhitā, n and t are lost in the Veda. - parvaśaḥ: saṃkhyāikavacanāc ca vīpsāyām (Pā. 5-4-43): śas is added to the word parva whose sense is "one by one" when repetition is meant. - cakartitha: kṛtī chedane; liṭ second singular; parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus...: thal; doubling; halādīḥ śeṣaḥ; ur

23. In the print the second half is as the first, "parvataḥ"; the sense: 'a parvata has joints; "parva" is from "pr" to fill or "prī" to please; the gods are pleased in it; the cloud too is a giri, from the same'.

24. pp. 410–411 — grammar pages, noted briefly

at; kuhoś cuḥ: c; ārdhadhātukasyeḍ valādeḥ: iṭ; pugantalaghūpadhasya ca: guṇa; tiñ atīnaḥ: nighāta. - asṛjaḥ: sṛja visarge, tudādi; lañ second singular; śa; no laghūpadha-guṇa; nighāta. - sartavai: sṛ gatau; kṛtyārthe tavaikakenanvaḥ: tavai in the sense of the action; sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ: guṇa; kṛn mejantaḥ: avyaya; avyayād āpsupaḥ: luk [of the case ending]; antaś ca tavai yugapat: both the first and final syllables are acute at once. - dadhiṣe: ḍudhāñ; Vedic liṭ; thāsaḥ se: se; doubling; hrasva; jaśtva; kṛsr̥bhṛvr̥studru...: iṭ is allowed here because of kṛsr̥... limit — so iṭ; asaṃyogāl liṭ kit: kit; ātolopa iṭi ca: loss of ā; śatva; tiñ atīnaḥ: nighāta. || 6 ||

Closing note ²⁵ — "ಐವತ್ತೇಳನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು ಸಮಾಪ್ತವು " — "The fifty-seventh sūkta is ended."

Close of Sūkta 57

Sūkta 57 (Maṇḍala 1, Tenth Anuvāka, 6 Riks; ṛṣi Savya Āṅgīrasa; deity Indra; Jagatī) — printed pp. 392–411, PDF 408–427.

The Riks offer a hymn to the most generous Indra whose strength no one can withstand, as no one can hold back water rushing to a hollow (1); the whole world became ready for his sacrifice when his golden bolt killed Vṛtra (2); Uṣas is bidden to bring the oblation to the terrible and praiseworthy Indra, whose radiance goes out like a charioteer driving horses (3); the praisers who are Indra's own pray that he accept their praise as the earth cherishes her creatures (4); his prowess is great and heaven and earth bow before it (5); and he cut the vast cloud joint by joint and loosed the waters, so that he alone possesses all power (6). There are no long narratives in the Special Topics.

25. p. 411, printed large

End of the Tenth Anuvāka: with Sūkta 57 the print ends the seven sūktas of the tenth anuvāka (Sūktas 51–57); the next sūkta begins a new anuvāka. ²⁶

26. First sūkta of the Eleventh Anuvāka.

Sūkta 58 — "nūcit sahojāḥ"

original p. 411

ಐವತ್ತೆಂಟನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — 1

Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 411)

एकादशानुवाके सप्त सूक्तानि । तत्र नू चिदिति नवर्चं प्रथमं सूक्तं गौतमस्य नोधस
आर्षमाग्नेयम् । आद्याः पञ्च जगत्यः । शिष्टाश्चतस्रस्त्रिष्टुभः । तथा चानुक्रान्तम् । नू
चित्रव नोधा गौतम आग्नेयं हि चतुस्त्रिष्टुबन्तमिति । हीति वचनादुत्तरे च द्वे सूक्ते
अग्निदेवताके ॥ अभिप्लवषडहस्य पञ्चमेऽहन्यग्निमारुते इदं जातवेदस्यं निविद्धानं
। तृतीयस्येति खण्डे सूत्रितं । पृक्षस्य वृष्णो वृष्णे शर्धाय नू चित्सहोजा
इत्यग्निमारुतं । आ. ८-२ इति ॥ प्रातरनुवाकस्याग्नेये क्रतावाश्विनशस्त्रे च जागते
छन्दस्यादितः पञ्चर्चः । सूत्रितं च । त्वमग्ने प्रथमो अङ्गिरा नू चित्सहोजा अमृतो नि तुन्दत इति पञ्च । आ. ४-१३ । इति ॥

ekādaśānuvāke sapta sūktāni | tatra nū cid iti navarcaṃ
prathamam sūktam gautamasya nodhasa ārṣam āgneyam | ādyāḥ pañca jagatyaḥ | śiṣṭāś catasras triṣṭubhaḥ | tathā cānukrāntam | nū citrava [= nū cid dhi?] nodhā gautama āgneyam hi catustriṣṭubantam iti | hīti vacanād uttare ca dve sūkte agnidevatāke || abhiplavaṣaḍahasya pañcame 'hany agnimārute
idaṃ jātavedasyaṃ nividdhānam | tṛtīyasyeti khaṇḍe sūtritam | pṛkṣasya vṛṣṇo vṛṣṇe śardhāya nū cit sahojā ity agnimārutam | ā.

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-eighth sūkta"

8-2 [?] iti || prātaranuvākasyāgneye kratāv āśvinaśastre ca jāgate
chandasya āditaḥ pañcarcaḥ | sūtritaṃ ca | tvam agne prathamo
aṅgirā nū cit sahojā amṛto ni tundata iti pañca | ā. 4-13 [?] | iti ||

2

Translation: "In the eleventh anuvāka there are seven sūktas. Of them, 'nū cit' is the first, of nine Riks; the seer is Nodhas Gautama, the deity Agni; the first five are Jagatī, the remaining four Triṣṭubh; so the Anukramaṇī [?]; by the word hi, the two following sūktas also have Agni as deity. On the fifth day of the Abhiplava ṣaḍaha this is the jātavedasya nivid-accompaniment of the Agni-Māruta [recitation]: in the section 'of the third' it is aphorized: 'prkṣasya vṛṣṇo vṛṣṇe śardhāya, nū cit sahojāḥ' is the Agni-Māruta (Āśv. 8-2 [?]). In the Prātaranuvāka, in the Āgneya rite and in the Āśvina-śastra, the first five Riks, being Jagatī: so aphorized: 'tvam agne prathamo aṅgirāḥ, nū cit sahojā amṛto ni tundate' — five (Āśv. 4-13 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 411) — "From this sūкта the eleventh anuvāka of the first maṇḍala begins. This anuvāka has seven sūktas. Of them, 'nū cit' is the first. It has nine Riks. The seer is Nodhas, son of Gotama; the deity is Agni. The first five Riks are Jagatī, the remaining four Triṣṭubh. In the Anukramaṇikā: 'nū cinnava nodhā gautama āgneyaṃ hi catustriṣṭubantam' [?]; by the word hi, the next two sūktas also have Agni as deity. On the fifth day of the sacrifice called Abhiplavaṣaḍaha, in the Agni-Māruta mantras this sūкта serves the jātavedasya nivid-mantras, in Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra's section 'tṛtīyasya' (Āśv. 8-2 [?]); and, at the time of reciting the Prātaranuvāka mantras, in the Āgneya-kratu and the Āśvin-śastra, the first five Jagatī Riks are used (Āśv. 4-13 [?])."

2. Reading note: the Anukramaṇī half-line "nū citrava nodhā..." is crowded — it should be "nū cid dhi ...", the first words being the sūкта's own opening — [?]; numerals [?].

Heading block of Sūkta 58 (p. 412, PDF 428)

Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 11 · Sūkta 58 · Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 23, 24 [as read, [?]] · Riks: 9 · Ṛṣi: Nodhas Gautama · Deity: Agni · Metre: Riks 1–5 Jagatī, Riks 6–9 Triṣṭubh.

original pp. 412–414

Rik 1Samhitā-pāṭha³

नू चित्सहोजा अमृतो नि तुन्दते होता यदूतो अभवद्विवस्वतः । वि साधिष्ठेभिः पथिभी रजो मम आ देवताता हविषा विवासति ॥ १ ॥

*nū cit sahojā amṛto ni tundate hotā yad dūto abhavad vivasvataḥ |
vi sādhiṣṭhebhīḥ pathibhī rajo mama ā devatātā haviṣā vivāsati | |
1 | |*

Pada-pāṭha

नु । चित् । सहःऽजाः । अमृतः । नि । तुन्दते । होता । यत् । दूतः । अभवत् । विवस्वतः । वि । साधिष्ठेभिः । पथिऽभिः । रजः । ममे । आ । देवऽताता । हविषा । विवासति ॥ १ ॥

*nu | cit | sahaḥ-jāḥ | amṛtaḥ | ni | tundate | hotā | yat | dūtaḥ |
abhavat | vivasvataḥ | vi | sādhiṣṭhebhīḥ | pathi-bhīḥ | rajaḥ |
mame | ā | deva-tātā | haviṣā | vivāsati | | 1 | |*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

सहोजाः सहसा बलेन जातः । अग्निर्हि बलेन मथ्यमानोऽरण्योः सकाशाज्जायते ।
अमृतो मरणरहितः । एवंभूतोऽग्निर्नू चित् क्षिप्रमेव नि तुन्दते । नितरां व्यथयति ।
उत्पन्नमात्रस्याग्नेः स्पृष्टुमशक्यत्वात् । यद्वा । निर्गच्छति । तुन्दतिर्गत्यर्थः सौत्रो
धातुः । यद्यदा होता देवानामाह्वाता होमनिष्पादको वाग्निर्विवस्वतः परिचरतो
यजमानस्य देवान्प्रति हविर्वहनाय दूतोऽभवत् । हविर्वहने नियुक्तो भवति तदानीं
साधिष्ठेभिः समीचीनैः पथिभिर्मार्गैर्गच्छन् रजोऽन्तरिक्षलोकं वि ममे । निर्मिमे । पूर्व

विद्यमानमस्यान्तरिक्षमसत्कल्पमभूत् । इदानीं तस्य तेजसा प्रकाशमानं
सदुत्पन्नमिव दृश्यते । किंच । देवतातेति यज्ञनाम । देवतातौ देवताता यज्ञे हविषा चरुपुरोडाशादिलक्षणेन देवानां विवासति । परिचरति ॥

sahojāḥ sahasā balena jātaḥ | agnir hi balena mathyamāno
'raṇyoḥ sakāśāj jāyate | amṛto maraṇarahitaḥ | evaṃbhūto 'gnir
nū cit kṣipram eva ni tundate | nitarāṃ vyathayati |
utpannamātrasyāgneḥ spraṣṭum aśakyatvāt | yadvā | nirgacchati
| tundatir gatyarthaḥ sautro dhātuḥ | yad yadā hotā devānām āhvātā homaniṣpādako vāgnir vivasvataḥ paricarato yajamānasya devān prati havirvahanāya dūto 'bhavat | havirvahane niyukto bhavati tadānīm sādhiṣṭhebhīḥ samīcīnaiḥ pathibhir mārgair gacchan rajo 'ntarikṣalokaṃ vi mame | nirmime | pūrvaṃ vidyamānam asyāntarikṣam asatkalpam abhūt | idānīm tasya tejasā prakāśamānaṃ sad utpannam iva dṛśyate | kiṃca | devatāteiti yajñanāma | devatātau devatātā yajñe haviṣā caru-puroḍāśādilakṣaṇena devānām vivāsati | paricarati || 4

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Sahojāḥ: born by sahas, force — for Agni is born of the two fire-sticks when rubbed with force; amṛtaḥ, free from death. Such Agni nū cit, quickly, ni tundate: it troubles utterly — since Agni, once born, cannot be touched; or: it comes forth (tundati is a Sautra root of motion). Yat, when the hotā, the invoker of the gods or performer of the oblation, Agni, became the dūtaḥ, messenger of the sacrificer vivasvataḥ who serves, to carry the oblations to the gods — when he is appointed to carry oblations — then going by the sādhiṣṭhebhīḥ pathibhiḥ, the best paths, he vi mame, measures out, creates, rajaḥ, the atmosphere-world: formerly it had existed as though non-existent; now, shining by his radiance, it is seen as though newly born. Further: devatātā is a name for sacrifice; in the sacrifice, with oblations such as caru and puroḍāśa, he vivāsati, serves, the gods."

4. The tail on pp. 413 is characterized, with the Nirukta "devatātā ... yajñanāmāni ... fifteen" and the sūtras sarvadevāt tātīl and supāṃ sulug...: on sahojāḥ, amṛtaḥ, tundate (tuda vyathane, svaritet), sādhiṣṭhebhīḥ (bāḍha + iṣṭhan, antikabāḍhayor nedasādhou), devatātā (tātīl), vivāsati (vivāsa paricaraṇe).

Pratipadārtha — "sahojāḥ — born by force (friction); amṛtaḥ — deathless; Agni; nū cit — quickly, with alertness; ni tundate — appears (or burns); yat — when; hotā — he who invites the gods or the accomplisher of the oblation, Agni; vivasvataḥ — to the sacrificer (to offer oblations to the gods); dūtaḥ abhavat — became the messenger; sādhiṣṭhebbhiḥ — by favourable; pathibhiḥ — by paths (going); rajaḥ — the atmosphere; vi mame — created (made shine the dark atmosphere); devatātā — in the sacrifice; haviṣā — with oblations; ā vivāsati — worships (the gods)."

Bhāvārtha

— "Agni, born by force and deathless, appears quickly with alertness. When Agni, the invoker of the gods, becomes the messenger of the sacrificer, then, going by favourable paths, he lights up the dark atmosphere; and in the sacrifice he worships the gods with oblations."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 413)

— "The immortal Agni, generated by great strength, quickly issues forth, when he became the invoker of the gods and the messenger (of the sacrificer); he, going by suitable paths created the firmament; he worships (the gods) in the sacrifice with oblations."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 414 - sahojāḥ — "Sahasā balena jātaḥ: by consecrated force exerted on the fire-sticks, Agni is born; hence Agni got the name balajāta or sahojas." - amṛtaḥ — "mṛtaṃ maraṇam asya nāstīti: free from death; an epithet of Agni." - nū cit — "Both are indeclinables meaning 'alertly'; cit is used in the sense of eva." - ni tundate — "Nitarāṃ vyathayati or nirgacchati: none can touch Agni born of the sticks; if one touches, he causes pain; or: he comes out from the stick, manifesting his form previously hidden. The sense of motion is assigned to the root tuda, which means 'to hurt'. - hotā — "One who invites all the deities in the sacrifice; here, since it is Agni who invites the deities, Agni is called hotṛ." - vivasvataḥ — "The sacrificer who serves Agni." - devatātā — "A name for sacrifice; in the Nirukta (Ni. 3-17 as read [?]) fifteen synonyms for sacrifice are read: yajñanāmāny uttarāṇi pañcadaśa. This word, though in the nominative form, is used in the locative sense."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵ - nu: ṛci tunughamakṣu...: lengthening in the Saṃhitā. - amṛtaḥ: bahuvrīhi with naña: nañi jaramaramitramṛtāḥ (Pā. 6-2-116): the last member's initial is acute. - tundate: tuda vyathane, svaritet: ātmanepada (svaritañitaḥ...); ta → e (ṭita ātmanepadānām ṭer e); tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ; ñit-ness: no laghūpadha-guṇa; nuṭ as Vedic augment (nakārāgama chāndasa); nighāta. - abhavat: bhū sattāyām; lañ; yat before: no nighāta; aṭ acute: initial-acute. - sādhiṣṭhebhīḥ: bāḍha in the sense of excess takes iṣṭhan; antikabāḍhayor nedasādha (Pā. 5-3-63): sādha for bāḍha; ṭeḥ: loss of a; sādhiṣṭha; instrumental plural: bahulam chandasi: no ais [ebhis]; bahuvacane jhaly et: e; ru, visarga; nit: initial-acute. - devatātā: sarvadevāt tātil (Pā. 4-4-142): tātil in the self-sense; ṭilopa; supām sulug...: ḍā-substitution (ā) of the locative; lit-ness gives the acute before the suffix. - vivāsati: vivāsa paricarane; laṭ; nighāta. || 1 ||

original pp. 415–417

Rik 2

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

आ स्वमद्वा युवमानो अजरस्तृषु च्यवानो अविष्यन्तसेषु तिष्ठति । अत्यो न पृष्ठं
प्रुषितस्य रोचते दिवो न सानु स्तनयन्नचिक्रदत् ॥ २ ॥

ā svam adma yuvamāno ajaras tṛṣu cyavāno aviṣyann atāseṣu tiṣṭhati | atyo na prṣṭham pruṣitasya rocate divo na sānu stanayann acikradat || 2 || ⁶

Pada-pāṭha

आ । स्वम् । अद्म । युवमानः । अजरः । तृषु । अविष्यन् । अतसेषु । तिष्ठति । अत्यः । न ।
पृष्ठम् । पृषितस्य । रोचते । दिवः । न । सानु । स्तनयन् । अचिक्रदत् ॥ २ ॥

ā | svam | adma | yuvamānaḥ | ajaraḥ | tṛṣu | aviṣyan | atāseṣu | tiṣṭhati | atyaḥ | na | prṣṭham | pruṣitasya | rocate | divaḥ | na | sānu | stanayan | acikradat || 2 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अजरो जराराहितोऽयमग्निः स्वं स्वकीयमद्म अदनीयं तृणगुल्मादिकं युवमानः
स्वकीयज्वालाया संमिश्रयन् तदनन्तरं चाविष्यन् भक्षयंश्च ।
अविष्यन्नित्येतदत्तिकर्मसु पठितं । एवंभूतोऽग्निस्तृषु क्षिप्रमेवातसेषु प्रभूतेषु काष्ठेषु आ तिष्ठति । आरोहति । अत्रातसशब्दः काष्ठवाची । अतसं न शुष्कम् । ऋग्वे.
४-४-४ । इति दर्शनात् । पृषितस्य दग्धुमितस्ततः प्रवृत्तस्याग्नेः पृष्ठमुपर्यवस्थितं
ज्वालाजालमत्यो न रोचते । यथा सततगमनशीलोऽश्च इतस्ततो गच्छन्शोभते
एवमग्नेर्ज्वालापि सर्वत्र गच्छन्ती शोभत इति भावः । तदानीं दिवो द्युलोकस्य
संबन्धि सानु समुच्छ्रितमभ्रं स्तनयन्निवाचिक्रदत् । गंभीरं शब्दमात्मानमचीकरत् ॥

ajaro jarārahito 'yam agniḥ svaṃ svakīyam adma adanīyaṃ tṛṇagulmādikaṃ yuvamānaḥ svakīyajvālayā saṃmīśrayan tadanantaraṃ cāviṣyan bhakṣayaṃś ca | aviṣyann ity etad attikarmasu paṭhitam | evambhūto 'gnis tṛṣu kṣipram evātaseṣu prabhūteṣu kāṣṭheṣu ā tiṣṭhati | ārohati | atrātasasabdaḥ kāṣṭhavācī | atasam na śuṣkam | ṛgve. 4-4-4 [?] | iti darśanāt | prṣitasya dagdhum itas tataḥ pravṛttasyāgneḥ prṣṭham upary avasthitaṃ jvālājālam atyo na rocate | yathā satatagamanaśīlo

6. The print's Saṃhitā reads "तृषु च्यवानो" in the first line; the Pada has "तृषु । अविष्यन्" — the Pada reads tṛṣu | aviṣyan; The Saṃhitā "tṛṣu cyavāno" is given as printed, doubtful: it may be the print's crowded "tṛṣu ca avānaḥ", [?].

'śva itas tato gacchañ śobhate evam agner jvālāpi sarvatra gacchantī śobhata iti bhāvaḥ | tadānīm divo dyulokasya saṃbandhi sānu samucchritam abhram stanayann ivācikradat |
gaṃbhīram śabdam ātmānam acikarat || ⁷

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Ajarah, free from old age, this Agni yuvamānaḥ, mixing with his own flame, svam adma, his own fuel — grass, shrubs and the like — and afterwards aviṣyan, devouring (aviṣyan is read among the verbs of eating) — such Agni tṛṣu, quickly, atāseṣu, on the abundant wood (atasa means wood, as in 'not dry wood', Ṛ. 4-4-4 [?]) ā tiṣṭhati, mounts. Pruṣitasya, of the Agni who moves here and there to burn, pṛṣṭham, the mass of flame above, atyo na rocate, shines like a horse: as a horse that is always moving shines going hither and thither, so the flame of Agni too goes everywhere and shines. Then, like the cloud lying at the summit of the sky stanayan, thundering, he acikradat, cried out — made a deep sound."

Pratipadārtha — "ajarah — the undecaying Agni; svam — his own; adma — food; yuvamānaḥ — mixing with his flame; aviṣyan — devouring; tṛṣu — alertly; atāseṣu — on dry sticks; ā tiṣṭhati — mounts; pruṣitasya — of Agni who spreads all round to burn; pṛṣṭham — the flame above (his back); atyo na — like an always-moving horse; rocate — shines; divaḥ — of the sky; sānu na — like the cloud at the summit; stanayan — thundering; acikradat — sounds deeply."

Bhāvārtha

7. Reading note: the first word, "tṛṣu" for "quickly" (kṣipram), is read from the print's glosses; the bhāṣya's cyavāno of the Saṃhitā is not commented on and the Pada's tṛṣu | aviṣyan is taken. The tail — on yuvamānaḥ, ajarah, ācikradat (kadi kradi kladi roots), with the remark that the num is not added by āgamānuśāsanam anityam — is characterized, and the Kannada grammar notes on p. 417-418 are summarized below.

— "The undecaying Agni mixes his food, grass and shrubs, with his flame, devours it alertly, and mounts the dry sticks. The flame spreading all round to burn shines always like a moving horse, and Agni sounds deeply like a thundering cloud at the summit of heaven."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 416)

— "Undecaying Agni, combining his food (with his flame) and devouring it quickly, ascends the dry wood; (the blaze) situate on the back (of Agni) spreading hither and thither for consuming, shines like a horse and roars like a roaring (cloud) in the height of heaven."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 417 - adma — "Adanīyaṃ tṛṇagulmādikam: the grass, shrubs and the like that are food for Agni." - yuvamānaḥ aviṣyan — "Agni mixes his food, grass and the like, with the oblation in the sacrifice and consumes it. The Nirukta-author reads the word aviṣyan among the verbs of eating (attikarma, Ni. 2-... as read [?])." - atāseṣu — "In abundant sticks and the like: the word atasa means wood: 'atasaṃ na śuṣkam' (Ṛ. Saṃ. 4-4-4 as read [?])." - pruṣitasya — "Dagdhum itas tataḥ pravṛttasyāgneḥ: of Agni whose nature is to burn everything, spreading everywhere; in this sense Agni got the name pruṣita." - atyō na rocate — "Here atya means horse; na has the sense of iva. As a horse shines as it moves hither and thither, Agni by the enveloping of his flame spreads everywhere and shines."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁸ - adma: ad bhakṣaṇe; Uṇādi man; nit: initial-acute. - yuvamānaḥ: yu miśraṇe; vyatyayo bahulam: ātmanepada śānac; kartari śap: vyatyaya: śa [= śap]; bahulaṃ chandasi: no luk; aci śnudhātu...: uvaṇ barred; āne muk: muk to the ajanta stem; tāsyānudātten...: anudātta; the root's accent stays; the vowel after v is acute. - ajaraḥ: bahuvrīhi, nañi jaramaramitramṛtāḥ: initial-acute of the last member. - tiṣṭhati:

8. pp. 417–418 — grammar pages, noted briefly

ṣṭhā gatinivṛttau; pāghrādhmā...: tiṣṭha; nighāta. - acikradat: kadi kradi kladi āhvāne rodane ca; āgamānuśāsanam anityam: no num though the root is idit; hetumati ca: ṇic; luṇ (Vedic), tip; itaś ca; ṇisīdrusrubhyaḥ kartari caṇ: caṇ; ṇeraniṭi; caṇi: doubling; halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; kuhoś cuḥ; sanvallaḥguni caṇpare 'nogloṇe: i for the reduplicative (sanyataḥ); saṃyogāt-para: no lengthening; nighāta.
 || 2 ||

original pp. 418-421

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

क्राणा रुद्रेभिर्वसुभिः पुरोहितो होता निषत्तो रयिषाळमर्त्यः । रथो न विक्ष्वृञ्जसान आयुषु व्यानुषग्वार्या देव ऋण्वति ॥ ३ ॥

krāṇā rudrebhir vasubhiḥ purohito hotā niṣatto rayiṣāḥ amartyaḥ |
 ratho na vikṣv ṛñjasāna āyuṣu vy ānuṣag vāryā deva ṛṇvati || 3 ||

Pada-pāṭha

क्राणा । रुद्रेभिः । वसुऽभिः । पुरःऽहितः । होता । निऽसत्तः । रयिऽसाट् । अमर्त्यः । रथः । न
 । विक्ष्व । ऋञ्जसानः । आयुषु । वि । आनुषक् । वार्या । देवः । ऋण्वति ॥ ३ ॥

krāṇā | rudrebhiḥ | vasu-bhiḥ | puraḥ-hitaḥ | hotā | ni-sattaḥ |
 rayi-sāṭ | amartyaḥ | rathaḥ | na | vikṣu | ṛñjasānaḥ | āyuṣu | vi
 | ānuṣak | vāryā | devaḥ | ṛṇvati || 3 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

क्राणा हविर्वहनं कुर्वाणो रुद्रेभी रुद्रेर्वसुभिश्च पुरोहितः पुरस्कृतो होता देवानामाह्वता
 निषत्तो हविःस्वीकरणाय देवयजने निषण्णो रयिषाट् रयीणां
 शत्रुधनानामभिभवितामर्त्यो मरणरहितः । एवंभूतो देवो द्योतमानोऽग्निर्विक्षु प्रजासु
 लौकिकजनेषु रथो न रथ इवायुषु यजमानलक्षणेषु मनुष्येष्वृञ्जसानः स्तूयमानो
 वार्या वार्याणि संभजनीयानि धनान्यानुषक् आनुषक्तं यथा भवति तथा वि ऋण्वति
 । विशेषेण प्रापयति । यद्वा । वार्याणि वरणीयानि हवींषि स्वयं प्राप्नोति ॥

krāṇā havirvahanaṃ kurvāṇo rudrebhī rudrair vasubhiś ca purohitaḥ puraskṛto hotā devānām āhvātā niṣatto haviḥsvikaraṇāya devayajane niṣaṇṇo rayiṣāt rayīṇāṃ śatrudhanānām abhibhavitāmartyo maraṇarahitaḥ | evaṃbhūto devo dyotamāno 'gnir vikṣu prajāsu laukikajaneṣu ratho na ratha ivāyuṣu yajamānalakṣaṇeṣu manuṣyeṣv ṛñjasānaḥ stūyamāno vāryā vāryāṇi saṃbhajanīyāni dhanāny ānuṣak ānuṣaktaṃ yathā bhavati tathā vi ṛṇvati | viśeṣeṇa prāpayati | yadvā | vāryāṇi varaṇīyāni havīmṣi svayaṃ prāpnoti | | ⁹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Krāṇā, doing the carrying of oblations; rudrebhiḥ vasubhiḥ puro-hitaḥ, placed in front by the Rudras and Vasus; hotā, the invoker of the gods; niṣattaḥ, seated at the sacrifice to receive the oblations; rayiṣāt, conqueror of the wealth of enemies; amartyaḥ, deathless; such the god, shining Agni, vikṣu, among the people, in worldly folk, ratho na, like a chariot, āyuṣu, among men, the sacrificers, ṛñjasānaḥ, being praised, vi ṛṇvati, attains in special measure vāryā, desirable wealth, ānuṣak, in succession; or: he himself receives the choice oblations."

Pratipadārtha — "krāṇā — (the oblation) bearer; rudrebhiḥ — by Rudras; vasubhiḥ — by Vasus; purohitaḥ — honoured; hotā — the invoker of gods; niṣattaḥ — seated (at the sacrifice, taking the first place); rayiṣāt — the conqueror, who wins the wealth of enemies; amartyaḥ — deathless and; devaḥ — shining Agni; vikṣu — among people; rathaḥ na — as chariots are honoured; āyuṣu — among men who are sacrificers; ṛñjasānaḥ — praised;

9. The tail — on krāṇā (kṛ + kānac with karoter bahulaṃ chandasi, loss of śap; citaḥ), rayiṣāt (saheḥ sādaḥ saḥ; chandasi sahaḥ; śatva), ṛñjasānaḥ (ṛñjatiḥ stutikarmā; āsānajityanuvṛtyā...; kit), āyuṣu (āyuh iti manuṣyanāma; Uṇādi uṣ), vāryā (vṛñ saṃbhaktaḥ; nyat), ṛṇvati (ṛ gataḥ; svādi; śnu; vyatyaya; nighāta) — is characterized.

vāryā — desired oblations; ānuṣak — in succession; vi ṛṇvati — obtains in abundance, or he gives the desired wealth to the sacrificers."

Bhāvārtha

— "Agni, the carrier of oblations, honoured by the Rudras and Vasus, the invoker of the gods, who takes the first seat at the sacrifice, conqueror of the wealth of enemies, deathless and shining, is praised by sacrificers as chariots are honoured by people, and receives in abundance the oblations offered to him in succession and the desired ones."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 419)

— "The immortal and effulgent Agni, the bearer of oblations, placed in front of all by the Rudras and Vasus, the invoker (of the gods) who is present at a sacrifice and conquers the wealth (of the enemies), lauded by his worshippers, and admired like a chariot amongst mankind, accepts the oblations that are successively presented."

Rik 58.3, continued ¹⁰

Bhāvārtha

— "Agni, the carrier of oblations, honoured by the Rudras and Vasus, the invoker of the gods, who takes the first seat at the sacrifice, conqueror of the wealth of enemies, deathless and shining, is praised by sacrificers as chariots are honoured by people, and receives in abundance the oblations offered to him in succession."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 420 - krāṇā — "Havirvahanam kurvāṇaḥ: one who carries oblations to the deities in the sacrifice." - niṣattaḥ — "Haviḥsvīkaraṇāya devayajane niṣaṇṇaḥ: Agni is seated, ready to accept the oblation in all the sacrificial acts performed for the sake of the deities." - rayiṣāt — "From the root saha abhibhave [sah, with the sense of overcoming] comes ṣāt, 'one who overcomes'; here rayi is wealth of enemies: one who wholly destroys, wins and brings the property of enemies." - vikṣu ratho na — "As a chariot is the means of accomplishing wishes for people engaged in worldly transactions, so Agni is specially helpful to sacrificers in offering the share of the sacrifice to the deities they desire." - āyusu — "Yajamānalakṣaṇeṣu manuṣyeṣu: here the word āyus means 'man'; it is read so in the Nirukta (Ni. 3-3-... as read [?])." - vi ṛṇvati — "From the root ṛvi gatau: it means 'obtains in a special way'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹¹ - krāṇā: ḍukṛñ karaṇe; śānac; bahulam chandasi: u of the characteristic dropped; being apit sārva dhātuka, ñit: no guṇa; yaṇ; āt kupvān...: ṇatva; citaḥ: end-acute; supām suluk: lengthening of the vibhakti: krāṇā. - niṣattaḥ: ṣadḥ viśaraṇagatyavasādaneṣu; kta; natva barred by nasattaniṣatta... (Pā. 8-2-61) given by nipāta; upasargāt sunoti...: ṣatva; gatiṛ anantaraḥ: prefix accent. - rayiṣāt: saha abhibhave; chandasi sahaḥ: ṇvi; ata upadhāyāḥ: vṛddhi; hoḍhaḥ, jhalām jaśo 'nte; vānaśaṃsaneyā... optional ṭ or ḍ; saheḥ sādah saḥ: ṣatva: rayiṣāt. - ṛñjasānaḥ: ṛji in the sense of praise; asānac; ṛñjivṛdhimandi sahibhyaḥ kit (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]): asānac in the object sense; kit; citaḥ: end-acute. - āyusu: āyavaḥ iti manuṣyanāma; iṇ gatau; chandasiṇaḥ (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]): uṇ; ñit: vṛddhi; ay: āyu; suffix-accent: end-acute; locative plural. - vāryā: vṛñ saṃbhaktaḥ; ṛhalonyat: ṇyat; ñit: vṛddhi; titsvaritam: svarita is obtained, but īḍavandavṛśaṃsa...: initial-acute; in the neuter plural śi, dropped by śeś chandasi bahulam. - ṛṇvati: ṛvi gatau; idito num dhātoḥ; vyatyaya: saṃprasāraṇa; saṃprasāraṇāc ca: earlier form; laṭ; kartari śap; ṛvarṇān nasya ṇatvaṃ vācyam; nighāta. || 3 ||

original pp. 421–424

Rik 4

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

वि वातजूतो अतसेषु तिष्ठते वृथा जुहूभिः सृण्या तुविष्वणिः । तृषु यदग्ने वनिनो वृषायसे कृष्णं त एम रुशदूर्मे अजर ॥ ४ ॥

*vi vātajūto atāseṣu tiṣṭhate vṛthā juhūbhiḥ sṛṇyā tuviṣvāṇiḥ | tṛṣu
yad agne vanino vṛṣāyase kṛṣṇaṃ ta ema ruśadūrme ajara || 4 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

वि । वातऽजूतः । अतसेषु । तिष्ठते । वृथा । जुहूऽभिः । सृण्या । तुविऽस्वनिः । तृषु । यत् । अग्ने । वनिनः । वृषऽयसे । कृष्णम् । ते । एमः । रुशत्ऽऊर्मे । अजर ॥ ४ ॥

*vi | vāta-jūtaḥ | atāseṣu | tiṣṭhate | vṛthā | juhū-bhiḥ | sṛṇyā |
tuvi-svāṇiḥ | tṛṣu | yat | agne | vaninaḥ | vṛṣa-yase | kṛṣṇam | te
| emaḥ | ruśat-ūrme | ajara || 4 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

वातजूतो वायुना प्रेरितस्तुविष्वणिर्महास्वनः । एवंभूतोऽग्निर्जुहूभिः
स्वकीयाभिर्जिह्वाभिः सृण्या सरणशीलेन तेजःसमूहेन च युक्तः सन् ।
वृथेत्यनायासवचनः । वृथानायासेनैव वातसेषूत्रतेषु वृक्षेषु वि तिष्ठते । विशेषेण
तिष्ठति । हे अग्ने यद्यदा वनिनो वनसंबन्धान्वृक्षान्दग्धुं वृषायसे वृषवदाचरसि
दहसीत्यर्थः । हे रुशदूर्मे दीप्तज्वाल अजर जरारहिताग्ने ते तवैव गमनमार्गः कृष्णं
कृष्णवर्णो भवति ॥ वातजूतः । जू इति सौत्रो धातुः । वातेन जूतो वातजूतः ।
तृतीया कर्मणीति पूर्वपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं । वि तिष्ठते । समवप्रविभ्यः स्थः
इत्यात्मनेपदं । जुहूभिः । हु दानादनयोः । हूयते आसु इति जुहः । हुवः श्लुवच्च ।
उ. २-१०८ । इति क्विप् । चकारादीर्घः । श्लुवद्भावाद्बिर्भावादि । धातोर्इत्यन्तोदात्तत्वं । सृण्या । सृ गतौ । सरतीति सृणिः । सृवृषिभ्यां कित् । उ.
४-४९ । इति निप्रत्ययः । एमु । एत्यनेनेत्येमु मार्गः । इण् गताविति । ओणादिको मनिन् । निच्वादाद्युदात्तत्वं ॥

vātajūto vāyunā preritas tuviṣvaṇir mahāsvanaḥ | evambhūto
 'gnir juhūbhiḥ svakīyābhir jīhvābhiḥ sṛṇyā saraṇasīlena tejahsamūhena ca yuktaḥ san | vṛtheti anāyāsavacanaḥ |
 vṛthānāyāsenaiva vātaseṣūnnateṣu vṛkṣeṣu vi tiṣṭhate | viśeṣeṇa
 tiṣṭhati | he agne yad yadā vanino vanasaṃbandhān vṛkṣān dagdhumṃ vṛṣāyase vṛṣavad ācarasi dahasīty arthaḥ | he ruśadūrme dīptajvāla ajara jarārahitāgne te tavaiva gamanamārgaḥ kṛṣṇam kṛṣṇavarṇo bhavati || vātajūtaḥ | jū iti
 sautro dhātuḥ | vātena jūto vātajūtaḥ | tṛtīyā karmanīti pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ | vi tiṣṭhate | samavaprabhīyaḥ
 sthaḥ ity ātmanepadam | juhūbhiḥ | hu dānādanayoḥ | hūyate āsu
 iti juhvaḥ | huvaḥ śluvac ca | u. 2-108 [?] | iti kvip | cakārād dīrghaḥ | śluvadbhāvād dvirbhāvādi | dhātor ity antodāttatvaṃ |
 sṛṇyā | sṛ gatau | saratīti sṛṇiḥ | sṛvṛṣibhyām kit | u. 4-49 [?] | iti ni-pratyayaḥ | emu | ety anenety emu mārgaḥ | iṇ gatāv iti |
 oṇādiko manin | nittvād ādyudāttatvaṃ | |¹²

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Vātajūtaḥ, urged on by the wind; tuviṣvaṇiḥ, of great sound: such Agni, juhūbhiḥ, with his tongues, and sṛṇyā, with a restlessly moving mass of flame, vṛthā (vṛthā means 'without effort') — vi tiṣṭhate, stands spread over atāseṣu, the lofty trees, with no effort. O Agni, yad, when you act like a bull — vṛṣāyase — to burn the vaninaḥ, the trees of the forest, that is, you burn: O ruśadūrme, of shining flames, ajara, ageless Agni, te emaḥ, your path of going, kṛṣṇam, becomes black."

Pratipadārtha — "vātajūtaḥ — urged on by the wind; tuviṣvaṇiḥ — of a roaring sound; Agni; juhūbhiḥ — with his flames; sṛṇyā — with his spreading radiance; vṛthā — without effort; atāseṣu — on lofty trees; vi tiṣṭhate — stands pervading; ruśadūrme — of fierce flames; ajara — ageless; agne — O Agni;

12. Reading note: "vātaseṣu" is the print's rendering of atāseṣu, dropping the first vowel; atāseṣu is read with the Pada and the Pratipadārtha. "vṛṣāyase" etc. as printed.

yat — when; vaninaḥ — forest trees (to burn); tr̥ṣu — alertly; vṛṣāyase — you rush forward like a bull; te — your; emaḥ — path (that you have traversed); kṛṣṇam — becomes black."

Bhāvārtha

— "Urged on by the wind and roaring loudly, Agni, with his flames and his spreading radiance, easily pervades and burns the lofty trees. O ageless Agni of fierce flames, when you rush forward like a bull to burn the forest trees, the path you have traversed becomes black."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 423)

— "Urged on by the wind, and roaring loudly, Agni easily sits upon the trees with his burning tongue and diffusive energy; when, undecaying and fiercely-blazing Agni, you rush rapidly like a bull amongst the forest trees, your path is blackened."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 423 - vātajūtaḥ — "Vātena jūtaḥ: urged on by the wind. Jū is a mere Sautra root; it is not often seen in ordinary usage." - tuviṣvaṇiḥ — "Mahāsvanaḥ: at the time of receiving oblations Agni is making a bhaṭabhaṭa sound; therefore here Agni is called 'endowed with sound', and the wind is said to be the cause of that sound." - sṛṇyā — "Saratīti sṛṇiḥ: this word, from the root sṛ gatau, shows that Agni pervades and burns everything." - vṛthā — "Here the word vṛthā means 'without effort'." - vanino vṛṣāyase — "In burning the forest trees you advance like a bull, that is, rush forward: whatever you want to burn, you advance with only a little strength, without effort; for no accomplishment is your whole strength needed — this is the sense." - ruśadūrme — "Ruśantaḥ ūrmayaḥ yasya: one of shining flames; Agni is praised so." - ema — "Ety anena iti emu: from the root iṇ gatau, it means 'path'."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹³ - vātajūtaḥ: jū is a Sautra root; kta; ṭṛtīyā karmaṇi (Pā. 6-2-48): the first member's accent. - vi tiṣṭhate: samavaprabhayaḥ sthaḥ (Pā. 1-3-22): ātmanepada because of the prefix vi; laṭ; ṭita ātmanepadānām ṭer e; pāghrādhmā...: tiṣṭha; nighāta. - juhūbhiḥ: hu dānādanayoḥ; huvāḥ śluvac ca (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]): kvip; the ca gives lengthening; śluvad bhāva: doubling; hrasva; kuhoś cuḥ: j; the suffix is wholly lost: dhātoḥ: end-acute. - sṛṇyā: sṛ gatau; sṛvṛṣibhyām kit (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]): ni; kit: no guṇa; after ṛ: ṇatva. - vṛṣāyase: upamānād ācāre: kyac after vṛṣa in the sense of behaving like; kyan in this Veda... [the print: kyac — jī, so ātmanepada]; yat connected: no nighāta. - ema: iṇ gatau; Uṇādi manin in the sense of instrument; guṇa; eman; neuter su: svamor napuṃsakāt: su lost; nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya; nit: initial-acute. || 4 ||

original pp. 424–427

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

तपुर्जम्भो वन आ वातचोदितो यूथे न साह्वौ अव वाति वंसगः । अभिव्रजन्नक्षितं पाजसा रजः स्थातुश्चरथं भयते पतत्रिणः ॥ ५ ॥ tapurjambho vana ā vātacodito yūthe na sāhvāñ ava vāti vaṃsagaḥ | abhivrajann akṣitam pājasā rajaḥ sthātuś caratham

bhayate patatrināḥ || 5 ||

Pada-pāṭha

तपुःऽजम्भः । वने । आ । वातऽचोदितः । यूथे । न । साह्वान् । अव । वाति । वंसगः । अभिऽव्रजन् । अक्षितम् । पाजसा । रजः । स्थातुः । चरथम् । भयते । पतत्रिणः ॥ ५ ॥

tapuḥ-jambhaḥ | vane | ā | vāta-coditaḥ | yūthe | na | sāhvān |
ava | vāti | vaṃsagaḥ | abhi-vrajan | akṣitam | pājasā | rajaḥ |
sthātuḥ | caratham | bhayate | patatrināḥ || 5 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

तपुर्जम्भः । तपूंषि ज्वाला एव जम्भा आयुधानि मुखानि वा यस्य स तथोक्तः ।
 वातचोदितो वायुना प्रेरितः । एवंभूतोऽग्नियूथं ज्वालासमूहे सत्यक्षितमक्षीणं रजः
 आर्द्रवृक्षान्तर्गतमुदकं पाजसा तेजोबलेनाभिव्रजन् अभिमुखेन गच्छन्नेवारण्ये साह्वान्
 सर्वमभिभवन् आ अभिमुखेनाव वाति । व्याप्नोति । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । वंसगो न । यथा
 वननीयगतिर्वृषो गोयूथे सर्वमभिभवन्वर्तते तद्वत् । यस्मादेवं तस्मात्पतत्रिणः पतनवतोऽग्नेः सकाशात्स्थातुः स्थावरं चरथं चं जङ्गमं च भयते । बिभेति ॥ *tapurjambhaḥ | tapūṃṣi jvālā eva jambhā āyudhāni mukhāni vā

 yasya sa tathoktaḥ | vātacodito vāyunā preritaḥ | evaṃbhūto 'gnir yūthe jvālāsamūhe saty akṣitam akṣīṇaṃ rajaḥ ārdravṛkṣāntargatam udakaṃ pājasā tejobalenābhivrajan abhimukhena gacchann evāraṇye sāhvān sarvam abhibhavan ā abhimukhenāva vāti | vyāpnoti | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | vaṃsago na | yathā vananīyagatir vṛṣo goyūthe sarvam abhibhavan vartate tadvat | yasmād evaṃ tasmāt patatṛiṇaḥ patanavato 'gneḥ sakāśāt
 sthātuḥ sthāvaram carathaṃ ca jaṅgamaṃ ca bhayate | bibheti |*

14

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Tapurjambhaḥ: tapūṃsi, the flames, are his jambhāḥ, weapons or mouths; vātacoditaḥ, urged on by the wind. Such Agni, yūthe, in the mass of flames, akṣitam rajaḥ, the undecayed water that is inside the wet trees, pājasā, by the strength of his radiance, abhivrajan, going towards, sāhvān, overcoming everything, in the forest, ā va vāti, blows through and pervades. An illustration: vaṃsago na, as a bull of attractive

14. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 425, is characterized: on sāhvān (dāśvān sāhvān... kvasu nīpātana; the lengthening dīrghād aṭ samānapāde, the ru of n; yatvalopaḥ), sthātuḥ (kimimanijanī...: tun), and bhayate (ñibhī bhaye; vyatyaya: ātmanepada; bahulaṃ chandasi: śluk absent; guṇa).

gait overcomes everything in a herd of cows. Therefore patatṛiṇaḥ, from the flying Agni, the sthātuḥ — the immovable — and the caratham, the movable, bhayate, are afraid."

Pratipadārtha — "tapurjambhaḥ — whose weapons are flames; vātacoditaḥ — urged on by the wind; agni — Agni; yūthe — in the mass of flames; akṣitam — undecaying; rajaḥ — the water in the wet trees; pājasā — by his radiance and strength; abhivrajan — rushing forward; sāhvān — overcoming everything; vane — in the forest; vaṃsagaḥ na — like a bull of attractive gait, victorious; ava vāti — pervades all round; patatṛiṇaḥ — from Agni who flies; sthātuḥ — the stationary world; caratham — the moving world; or after the stationary the moving world; bhayate — is afraid."

Rik 58.5, continued ¹⁵

Bhāvārtha

— "Agni, whose weapons are flames, urged on by the wind, together with his mass of flame and the force of his radiance, rushes forward toward the moisture hidden in the trees; conquering everything that stands before him, he — like a bull of attractive gait who, in a herd of cows, conquers all and moves in victory — fills the whole forest around in victory. As Agni flies forward, the whole world, stationary and moving, is afraid."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 426)

— "The flame-weaponed and breeze-excited Agni, assailing the unexhaled moisture (of the trees) with all his strength, in a volume of fire, rushes triumphant (against all things) in the forest, like a bull, and all, whether stationary or moveable, are afraid of him as he flies along."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 426 - tapurjambhaḥ — "Tapūṃṣi jvālā eva jambhā āyudhāni mukhāni vā yasya: the flames are Agni's weapons; or, since he receives everything by the flame, the flames are his mouths (see Ṛ. Saṃ. Part 4, p. 234 [?])." - rajaḥ — "Ādravr̥kṣāntargatam udakam: Agni, by his mass of flame, dries up the water inside the trees and burns them up, leaving nothing in them. Here the word rajas is used in the sense of water." - vaṃsagaḥ na — "Vanantīyagatiḥ vṛṣaḥ goyūthe sarvām abhibhavan vartate tadvat: like a bull that moves bravely, which in a herd of cows moves without concern for anything: so Agni burns everything, stationary or moving, without regard." - sthātuḥ caratham ca — "Sthāvara means trees and the like that stand without moving; caratha, the animals that move. Here it is also praised: 'having first burnt the stationary things, afterwards I shall burn the moving things'. In the word caratham the root car has the sense of motion. In this Rik a forest fire (dāvāgni) is described."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁶ - sāhvān: dāśvān sāhvān mīdhvāmś ca (Pā. 6-1-12): irregularly formed ending in kvasu; sāhvān + ava: dirghād aṭi samānapāde: n becomes ru before the following a in the same pāda (nṛn pe...); ato roraplutād aplute: u; bhobhago...: yatva; lopaḥ śākalyasya. - vāti: vā gatigandhanayoḥ, adādi; laṭ; nighāta. - sthātuḥ: Uṇādi tun by kimimanijanīty...: kvip optional; or tṛc: sthātṛ; then "after the stationary the moving one is afraid" is construed. Genitive sthātuḥ. - caratham: cara gatibhakṣanayoḥ; here in the sense of motion; Uṇādi atha; suffix-accent. - bhayate: ñibhī bhaye; vyatyaya: ātmanepada; juhotyādi but bahulaṃ chandasi: no śluk; kartari śap; guṇa; ayādeśa; ṭita...: e; nighāta. || 5 ||

original pp. 427–430

Rik 6 — metre Triṣṭubh

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

15. pp. 426–427, PDF 442–443

16. pp. 426–427 — grammar pages, noted briefly

दधुष्ट्वा भृगवो मानुषेष्वा रयिं न चारुं सुहवं जनेभ्यः । होतारमग्ने अतिथिं वरेण्यं मित्रं न शेवं दिव्याय जन्मने ॥ ६ ॥

dadhuṣ ṭvā bhṛgavo mānuṣeṣv ā rayiṃ na cāruṃ suhavaṃ janebhyaḥ | hotāram agne atithiṃ vareṇyaṃ mitraṃ na śevaṃ divyāya janmane || 6 ||

Pada-pāṭha

दधुः । त्वा । भृगवः । मानुषेषु । आ । रयिम् । न । चारुम् । सुहवम् । जनेभ्यः । होतारम् । अग्ने । अतिथिम् । वरेण्यम् । मित्रम् । न । शेवम् । दिव्याय । जन्मने ॥ ६ ॥

dadhuḥ | tvā | bhṛgavaḥ | mānuṣeṣu | ā | rayim | na | cāruṃ | su-havam | janebhyaḥ | hotāram | agne | atithim | vareṇyam | mitram | na | śevam | divyāya | janmane || 6 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे अग्ने त्वा त्वां मानुषेषु मनुष्येषु मध्ये भृगव एतत्संज्ञा महर्षयो दिव्याय जन्मने देवत्वप्राप्तये चारुं रयिं न शोभनं धनमिवा दधुः । आधानसंभारेषु मन्त्रैः स्थापनेन समस्कुर्वन् । कीदृशं त्वाम् । जनेभ्यः सुहवं यजमानार्थमाह्वातुं सुशकं होतारं देवानामाह्वातारम् आतिथिमतिथिवत्पूज्यम् । यद्वा । देवयजनदेशेषु सततं गन्तारम् । वरेण्यां वरणीयं मित्रं न शेवं । यथा सखा सुखकरो भवति तद्वत् सुखकरमित्यर्थः ॥
दधुः । लिट्यस्यातो लोपः । इट् चेत्याकारलोपः । युष्मत्तत्तक्षुःष्वन्तःपादम् ।
विसर्जनीयस्य षत्वं । सुहवं । ह्यतेरीषद्दुःसुषु इति खल् । बहुलं छन्दसीति संप्रसारणं । परपूर्वत्वं । गुणावादेशौ । लितीति प्रत्ययात्पूर्वस्योदात्तत्वं । कृदुत्तरपदप्रकृतिस्वरत्वं ॥

he agne tvā tvāṃ mānuṣeṣu manuṣyeṣu madhye bhṛgava etatsaṃjñā maharṣayo divyāya janmane devatvaprapṛtaye cāruṃ rayiṃ na śobhanaṃ dhanam ivā dadhuḥ | ādhānasaṃbhāreṣu mantraiḥ sthāpanena samaskurvan | kīdṛśaṃ tvām | janebhyaḥ suhavaṃ yajamānārtham āhvātuṃ suśakaṃ hotāraṃ devānām āhvātāram atithim atithivat pūjyam | yadvā | devayajanadeśeṣu

*satataṃ gantāram | vareṇyaṃ varaṇīyaṃ mitraṃ na śevam |
yathā sakṃhā sukhakaro bhavati tadvat sukhakaram ity arthaḥ ||*

17

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O Agni, mānuṣeṣu, among men, the Bṛḡus, great sages of that name, divyāya janmane, to attain divine birth, dadhuḥ, placed you like cāruṃ rayiṃ na, a beautiful treasure: in the ceremonies of the placing of fire they consecrated you with mantras by establishing you. How do you [stand]? Janebhyaḥ suhavam: easy to call for the sake of the sacrificers; hotāram, the invoker of the gods; atithim, to be honoured like a guest — or one who always goes to the places of the sacrifice of the gods; vareṇyam, worthy of choice; mitraṃ na śevam: as a friend gives happiness, so you are the one who gives happiness."

Pratipadārtha — "agne — O Agni; janebhyaḥ — for the sacrificers; suhavam — one who has the power to sacrifice well; hotāram — (the invoker of the gods to the sacrifice); atithim — the guest (the best) — or one who comes to the place of the sacrifice at the proper time; vareṇyam — most desired; mitraṃ na — like a friend; śevam — giver of happiness; tvā — you; mānuṣeṣu — among men; bṛḡgavaḥ — the Bṛḡu sages; divyāya janmane — to obtain divine birth; cāruṃ rayiṃ na — like a beautiful treasure; ā dadhuḥ — placed and honoured."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Agni, you are the performer of sacrifice for sacrificers, the invoker of the gods to the sacrifice, the dear guest, a friend as one who gives happiness. The Bṛḡu sages among men placed you in their sacrificial fire as a beautiful and desired treasure, in order to obtain divine birth, and honoured you."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 429)

17. The grammatical tail, p. 428: on dadhuḥ, suhavam (hṡayater iṣadduḥsuṣu ...khal; saṃprasāraṇa), hotāram, vareṇyam, śevam — characterized.

— "The Bhrigus amongst men, for the sake of being born as gods, cherished you like a costly treasure. Agni, you sacrifice for men, you are the invoker of the gods, the welcome guest at sacrifices and you are to be esteemed like a loving friend."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 429 - bhr̥gavaḥ — "Those born in the line of the sage named Bhr̥gu." - divyāya janmane — "To obtain divine nature; that is, to experience the fruit of heaven." - cāruṃ rayiṃ na — "As wealth pleases all people, all serve you: wealth is a thing needed by all." - suhavam — "Yajamānārtham āhvātuṃ suśakam: Agni is the one who can easily call all the deities for the sacrificer." - atithim — "Honoured like a guest; or one who always moves in the places of sacrifice." - mitraṃ na śevam — "A giver of happiness like a friend: as a dear friend desires one's happiness, so Agni gives happiness to the sacrificer."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁸ - dadhuḥ: ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; liṭ third plural; parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus...: us; doubling; hrasva; jaśtva; asam̐yogāl liṭ kit: kit; ātolopa iṭi ca: ā dropped; ru, visarga; since tvā follows, yuṣmattataḥsuḥṣvantahpādām (Pā. 8-3-103): visarjanīya becomes ṣ: dadhuṣtvā. - suhavam: hve ñ spardhāyām śabde ca; iṣadduḥsuḥ kṛcchrākṛcchrārtheṣu khal: khal though no cause, with su; bahulaṃ chandasi: saṃprasāraṇa; saṃprasāraṇāc ca: earlier form; guṇa, avādeśa; lit: acute before the suffix; gatiḥkarakopapadāt kṛt: kṛdanta accent. - hotāram: hu dānādanayoḥ; tṛn; nit: initial-acute; ṛto 'ñ sarvanāmasthānayoḥ: guṇa; āptṛnṛc...: lengthening of the penultimate. || 6 ||

original pp. 430–433

Rik 7 — metre Triṣṭubh

Samhitā-pāṭha

18. pp. 429–430 — grammar pages, noted briefly

होतारं सप्त जुहो यजिष्ठं यं वाघतो वृणते अध्वरेषु । अग्निं विश्वेषामरतिं वसूनां सपर्यामि प्रयसा यामि रत्नम् ॥ ७ ॥

hotāraṃ sapta juhvo yajisṭhaṃ yaṃ vāghato vṛṇate adhvaṛeṣu |
agniṃ viśveṣāṃ aratiṃ vasūnāṃ saparyāmi prayasā yāmi ratnam
|| 7 ||

Pada-pāṭha

होतारम् । सप्त । जुहः । यजिष्ठम् । यम् । वाघतः । वृणते । अध्वरेषु । अग्निम् । विश्वेषाम् । अरतिम् । वसूनाम् । सपर्यामि । प्रयसा । यामि । रत्नम् ॥ ७ ॥

hotāram | sapta | juhvaḥ | yajisṭham | yaṃ | vāghataḥ | vṛṇate |
adhvaṛeṣu | agniṃ | viśveṣāṃ | aratiṃ | vasūnāṃ | saparyāmi |
prayasā | yāmi | ratnam || 7 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

सप्त सप्तसंख्याका जुहो होतारो वाघत ऋत्विजोऽध्वरेषु योगेषु यजिष्ठं यष्टृतमं
होतारं देवानामाह्वतारं यमग्निं वृणते संभजन्ते विश्वेषां सर्वेषां वसूनामरतिं
प्रापयितारं तमग्निं प्रयसा हविरलक्षणेनान्नेन सपर्यामि । परिचरामि । रत्नं रमणीयं कर्मफलं च यामि । याचामि ॥ sapta saptasaṃkhyākā juhvo hotāro vāghata ṛtvijo 'dhvaṛeṣu yogeṣu yajisṭhaṃ yaṣṭṛtamaṃ hotāraṃ devānām āhvātāraṃ yaṃ agniṃ vṛṇate saṃbhajante viśveṣāṃ sarveṣāṃ vasūnāṃ aratiṃ prāpayitāraṃ tam agniṃ prayasā havirlakṣaṇenānnena saparyāmi | paricarāmi | ratnaṃ ramaṇīyaṃ karmaphalaṃ ca yāmi |

yācāmi || ¹⁹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "The seven juhvaḥ, hotṛs — the vāghataḥ, officiating priests — in the sacrifices (adhvaṛeṣu) vṛṇate, choose (resort to) Agni, the most worshipful, the invoker

19. The tail, p. 431: on vṛṇate (vṛñ saṃbhaktaṭau, kryādi), aratiṃ (r̥ gatiprāpaṇayoh, Uṇādi ati), saparyāmi (sapara pūjāyām, kaṇḍvādi, ya), yāmi (yāc, loss of the letter) — characterized.

of the gods; that Agni, who brings to all vasūnām, wealths, I serve prayasā, with food in the form of oblation, and ratnam yāmi, I ask for delightful fruit of rites."

Pratipadārtha — "sapta — seven; juhvaḥ — the priests of the hotṛ's station; vāghataḥ — priests; adhvareṣu — in the sacrifices; yajiṣṭham — the most worshipful; hotāram — the invoker (of the gods to the sacrifice); yam — which Agni; vṛṇate — they choose and worship; viśveṣām — of all; vasūnām — of the riches; aratim — giver; agnim — Agni; prayasā — with food in the form of oblation; saparyāmi — I worship; ratnam — delightful fruit of rites (wealth); yāmi — I ask for."

Bhāvārtha

— "I worship, with food in the form of oblation, that Agni whom the seven priests who stand in the place of the hotṛ choose as the most worshipful invoker of the gods in sacrifices, the giver of all wealth; and I ask of him lovely wealth."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 431)

— "I worship with oblations that Agni whom the seven invoking priests invite as the invoker of the gods; who is most worthy of adoration at sacrifices, and who is the giver of all riches; I solicit of him riches;"

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 431–432 - sapta juhvaḥ

— "The seven hotṛs; there is a group of hotṛs consisting of seven priests, to invoke the deities in the sacrifice." - vāghataḥ — "Priests. Among the eight priest-names beginning with bhāratāḥ, kuravaḥ [the print lists them], the word vāghataḥ is read as 'priests' (Ni. 3-... as read [?])." ²⁰

Rik 58.7, continued ²¹

²⁰. The rest of the Special Topics and the grammar are on p. 432 (PDF 448) and are given in the next batch.

²¹. pp. 432–433, PDF 448–449

Special Topics, rest (p. 432) - yajīṣṭham — "Exceedingly eminent among those who perform sacrifice." - vasūnām aratim — "Agni, who obtains complete lordship [for the sacrificer]." - saparyāmi — "I serve: saparyatiḥ paricaraṇakarmā; from the root sapara pūjāyām." - yāmi — "In the verb-form yācāmi, the middle syllable dropped, the word is used in the same sense."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²² - yajīṣṭham: yaṣṭr; tuś chandasi: iṣṭhan; turiṣṭhemeyaḥsu: loss of ṛc; nit: initial-acute. - vṛṇate: vṛñ saṃbhaktau, kryādi; laṭ third plural, jha; kryādibhyaḥ śnā; ātmanepadeṣv anataḥ: at for jha; the ā of śnā dropped (śnābhyastayor ātaḥ); no guṇa of the ṛ (sārvadhātukam apit, kit-like); yat: no nighāta; suffix-accent: middle-acute. - aratim: ṛ gatiprāpaṇayoḥ; Uṇādi ati (vahivasyarti..., Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]): guṇa; uraṇ raparaḥ; citaḥ: end-acute; accusative. - saparyāmi: sapara pūjāyām, in the kaṇḍvādi list: kaṇḍvādibhyo yak: yak; laṭ first singular mip; ato lope: loss of the a; atodīrgho yañi: lengthening before y-ending; at the head of a pāda: no nighāta. - yāmi: ṭuyāc yācñāyām, ubhayapadī; laṭ first singular; vyatyaya: mip; the middle c dropped in the Veda. || 7 ||

original pp. 433–435

Rik 8 — metre Triṣṭubh

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

अच्छिद्रा सूनो सहसो नो अद्य स्तोतृभ्यो मित्रमहः शर्म यच्छ । अग्ने गृणन्तमंहस उरुष्योर्जो नपात्पूर्भिःरायसीभिः ॥ ८ ॥ *acchidrā sūno sahaso no adya stotr̥bhyo mitramahaḥ śarma yaccha | agne gr̥ṇantam aṃhasa uruṣyorjo napāt pūrbhir

āyasībhiḥ || 8 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अच्छिद्रा । सूनो इति । सहसः । नः । अद्य । स्तोतृभ्यः । मित्रऽमहः । शर्म । यच्छ । अग्ने ।
गृणन्तम् । अंहसः । उरुष्य । ऊर्जः । नपात् । पूःभ्यः । आयसीभिः ॥ ८ ॥ acchidrā | sūno iti | sahasaḥ | naḥ | adya | stotṛ-bhyaḥ | mitra-mahaḥ | śarma | yaccha | agne | grṇantam | aṃhasaḥ | uruṣya |

ūrjaḥ | napāt | pūḥ-bhiḥ | āyasībhiḥ || 8 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे सहसः सूनो बलस्य पुत्र । बलेन हि मथ्यमानोऽग्निर्जायते ।
मित्रमहोऽनुकूलदीप्तिमन्नग्ने नोऽस्मभ्यं स्तोतृभ्योऽद्यास्मिन्कर्मण्यच्छिद्राच्छिद्राणि
शर्म शर्माणि सुखानि यच्छ । देहि । किंच हे ऊर्जो नपात् अन्नस्य पुत्र ।
भुक्तेनान्नेन जठराग्नेः प्रवर्धनादग्नेरन्नपुत्रत्वं । एवंविधाग्ने गृणन्तं त्वां
स्तुवन्तमायसीभिर्युप्तैः । यद्वा । अयोवदृढतरैः । पूर्वभिः पालनैरंहसः पापादुरुष्य । रक्ष । उरुष्यती रक्षाकर्मा । नि. ५-२३ [?] इति यास्कः ॥

he sahasaḥ sūno balasya putra | balena hi mathyamāno 'gnir
jāyate | mitramaho 'nukūladīptimann agne no 'smabhyaṃ stotṛbhyo 'dyāsmiṇ karmaṇy acchidrācchidrāṇi śarma śarmāṇi sukhāni yaccha | dehi | kiṃca he ūrjo napāt annasya putra | bhuktenānnena jaṭharāgneḥ pravardhanād agner annaputratvaṃ | evaṃvidhāgne grṇantaṃ tvāṃ stuvantaṃ āyasībhir vyāptaiḥ | yadvā | ayovad dṛḍhatarair | pūrbhiḥ pālanaḥ aṃhasaḥ pāpād
uruṣya | rakṣa | uruṣyati rakṣākarmā | ni. 5-23 [?] iti yāskaḥ ||

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O sahasāḥ sūno, son of strength — for Agni, when rubbed with force, is born; mitramahaḥ, of favourably shining radiance: Agni, to us the praisers adya, today, in this rite, acchidrā śarma yaccha, grant uninterrupted joys. And, O ūrjo napāt, offspring of food — by the food eaten, the belly-fire is increased, whence Agni is 'the son of food' — such Agni, grṇantam, you who are praised: āyasībhiḥ pūrbhiḥ, with the all-pervading — or, strong as iron — guards, protections, aṃhasaḥ uruṣya, protect from sin; uruṣyati is a verb of protecting, says Yāska (Ni. 5-23 [?])."

Pratipadārtha — "sahasah sūno — O son of force; mitramahah — O (Agni) of favourable radiance; nah stotṛbhyaḥ — to us the praisers; adya — in this sacrifice; acchidrā — uninterrupted; śarma — happiness; yaccha — give; ūrjo napāt — O offspring of food; agne — Agni; gr̥ṇantam — [you] who are praised (your devotee); āyasibhiḥ — extensive, or strong as iron; pūrbhiḥ — with protections; aṃhasah — from sin; uruṣya — protect."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Agni, son of strength, of favourable radiance, graciously grant us, your praisers, in this sacrifice uninterrupted happiness. O Agni, son of food, protect your praising devotee from sin by the iron-strong guards of your protection."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 434)

— "Son of strength, favourably-shining Agni, grant to your adorers, on this occasion, uninterrupted happiness; offspring of food, preserve him who praises you from sin with guards of iron."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 434 - sahasah sūno — "This is a vocative of a word that denotes Agni. Since Agni is produced with the help of the fire-sticks only by the exertion of force, the status 'son of force' is attributed to Agni." - mitramahah — "Mitram mahah yasya: one of favourable radiance, i.e. Agni does not, by his radiance in the sacrifice, burn anyone." - ūrjo napāt — "Na pātayati iti napāt: 'son of food'. Men increase the digestive fire by the food they have eaten; so the strength that grows by food came to Agni; hence Agni should be called 'son of food'." - āyasibhiḥ — "Vyāptaiḥ or ayovad dr̥ḍhataraiḥ: two senses, 'all-pervading' or 'stronger than iron', are given for this word." - uruṣya — "Rakṣa: the Nirukta (Ni. 5-23 [?]) says that uruṣyati is a verb of protection."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²³ - acchidrā: na chidrāṇi acchidrāṇi; in the Samhitā śeś chandasi bahulam: the neuter ending śi lost. - sūno sahasaḥ: though the vocative sūno stands before, the genitive sahasah is in construction with it (parampi chandasi): by āmantritasya ca the nighāta applies to the two words as a unit; hence at the beginning of the pāda the word sūno keeps accent where the nighāta is not applied. - śarma: accusative plural; supām suluk: the ending lost. - yaccha: dāṇ dāne; loṭ second singular; sip → hi; pāghrādhmā...: yaccha; śap after a: luk of hi; nighāta. - ūrjo napāt: na pātayati iti napāt; nabhrāṇ napān nāsatyā... (Pā. 6-3-75): prakṛtibhāva; subāmantrite parāṅgavat svare (Pā. 2-1-2): the preceding word counts as part of the following vocative; since this stands at the beginning of a pāda, no nighāta; āmantritasya ca: initial-acute. - pūrbhiḥ: pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ; saṃpadādibhyaḥ kvip: kvip in the action sense; udoṣṭhyapūrvasya: u; uraṇ raparah; halica: lengthening; sāvekācas tṛtīyādiḥ: acute of the vibhakti. || 8 ||

original pp. 435–439

Rik 9 — metre Triṣṭubh — the last Rik

Samhitā-pāṭha

भवा वरूथं गृणते विभावो भवा मघवन्मघवद्भ्यः शर्म । उरुष्याग्ने अंहसो गृणन्तं प्रातर्मक्षू धियावसुर्जगम्यात् ॥ ९ ॥

bhavā varūthaṃ grṇate vibhāvo bhavā maghavan maghavadbhyaḥ śarma | uruṣyāgne aṃhaso grṇantaṃ prātar makṣū dhiyāvasur
jagamyāt || 9 ||

Pada-pāṭha

भव । वरूथम् । गृणते । विभावः । भव । मघवन् । मघवद्भ्यः । शर्म । उरुष्य । अग्ने ।
अंहसः । गृणन्तम् । प्रातः । मक्षु । धियावसुः । जगम्यात् ॥ ९ ॥

*bhava | varūtham | gr̥ṇate | vibhāvaḥ | bhava | magha-van |
maghavat-bhyaḥ | śarma | uruṣya | agne | aṃhasaḥ | gr̥ṇantam
| prātaḥ | makṣū | dhiyā-vasuḥ | jagamyāt || 9 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे विभावो विशिष्टप्रकाशाग्ने गृणते त्वां स्तुवते यजमानाय । वरूथमिति गृहनाम ।
वरूथमनिष्टनिवारकं गृहं भव । हे मघवन् धनवन्नग्ने मघवद्भ्यो
हविर्लक्षणधनयुक्तेभ्यो यजमानेभ्यः शर्म सुखं यथा भवति तथा भव । हे अग्ने
गृणन्तं स्तुवन्तमंहसः पापकारिणः शत्रोरुरुष्य । रक्ष । धियावसुः कर्मणा बुद्ध्या वा प्राप्तधनोऽग्निः प्रातरिदानीमिव परेद्यरपि मक्षु शीघ्रं जगम्यात् । आगच्छतु ॥

*he vibhāvo viśiṣṭaprakāśāgne gr̥ṇate tvāṃ stuvate yajamānāya |
varūtham iti gr̥hanāma | varūtham aniṣṭanivārakaṃ gr̥haṃ bhava
| he maghavan dhanavann agne maghavadbhyo havirlakṣaṇadhanayuktebhyo yajamānebhyaḥ śarma sukhaṃ
yathā bhavati tathā bhava | he agne gr̥ṇantaṃ stuvantaṃ
aṃhasaḥ pāpakāriṇaḥ śatror uruṣya | rakṣa | dhiyāvasuḥ karmaṇā buddhyā vā prāptadhano 'gniḥ prātar idānīm iva paredyur api makṣu śīghraṃ jagamyāt | āgacchatu ||*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O vibhāvaḥ, Agni of special radiance, gr̥ṇate, to the sacrificer who praises you: varūtha is a name for house — be a house that keeps off undesired things. O maghavan, wealthy Agni, maghavadbhyaḥ, to the sacrificers endowed with the wealth of oblation, be as happiness (śarma). O Agni, protect your praising devotee from aṃhasaḥ, the sin-doing enemy. May Agni, dhiyāvasuḥ, wealthy by rite or by wisdom, prātaḥ, in the morning, as now, on the next day too, makṣu, quickly, come (jagamyāt)."

Pratipadārtha — "vibhāvaḥ — O Agni of special radiance; gr̥ṇate — to the sacrificer who praises you; varūtham — a house (a shelter that wards off misfortune); bhava — be; maghavan — O wealthy Agni; maghavadbhyaḥ — to the wealthy (sacrificers who have the wealth of oblation); śarma — happiness; bhava — be; agne — O Agni; gr̥ṇantam — [one who] praises; aṃhasaḥ — from the sin-doing enemy; uruṣya — protect; dhiyāvasuḥ — Agni, rich by pure rites or wisdom; prātaḥ — in the morning (as now); makṣu — alertly; jagamyāt — may he come."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Agni of special radiance, be a shelter for the sacrificer who praises you. O wealthy Agni, be a source of happiness to the sacrificers who have the wealth of the oblation. O Agni, protect those who praise you from the enemy that does harm. May Agni, who is rich by pure rites, come graciously and alertly in the morning too."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 437)

— "Agni of various rays, be a house to him who praises you; wealthy Agni, be a source of happiness to the wealthy (sacrificers); protect, Agni, your worshippers from sin; may Agni who is rich with righteous deeds, come to us speedily in the morning."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 437 - vibhāvaḥ — "Agni shining in a special way; its derivation is viśiṣṭā bhāḥ vibhāḥ." - varūtham — "The word varūtha is read among the words for house. In ordinary usage it means 'chariot'. The Nirukta (Ni. 3-4 as read [?]) reads twenty-two words beginning with gr̥hanāmāny uttarāṇi as names of a house. Here the word has the sense 'house, which wards off undesired things'." - dhiyāvasuḥ — "Karmaṇā buddhyā vā prāptadhano 'gniḥ: Agni, who gains complete lordship by action or by intelligence. In the compound-explanation dhiyā vasu yasya the loss of the third-case ending is only Vedic." - makṣu jagamyāt — "Śighram āgacchatu: a verb-form from the root gam."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁴ - bhava: bhū sattāyām; loṭ second singular; dvyaco 'tas...; dyaucotiśrīh... [as printed: dvyacotastiṇaḥ]: final lengthening in the Saṃhitā. - varūtham: vṛñ varaṇe; jyāvṛñbhyām ūthan (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]): ūthan; guṇa; uraṇ raparaḥ; nit: initial-acute. - grṇate: gṛ śabde (here in the sense of praise); śatr; kryādibhyaḥ śnā; prādīnām hrasvaḥ; śatr is jī-like: śnābhyastayor ātaḥ: the ā of śnā dropped; ṇatva for the n after ṛ; śaturanumo nadyajādī: ending acute. - vibhāvaḥ: viśiṣṭā bhāḥ vibhāḥ; bhā dīptau; ato manin...: viṭ; vibhāḥ asya asti; matup; māduḥ upadhāyās ca matoḥ: v; vocative: matuvasoruḥ sambuddhau: ru; āmantritasya ca: nighāta. - maghavadbhyaḥ: maghavā bahulam (Pā. 6-4-128): ṭṛ substitute for the end of maghavan; the ṛ of ṭṛ is it-marked and so dropped; nānubandhakṛtam anekāśatvam (paribhāṣā): the substitute does not replace the whole by reason of the marker; so it is an anta-substitute (alo 'ntyasya). - uruṣya: the root uruṣya in the sense of protection; loṭ second singular; at the head of the pāda: no nighāta. - makṣū: ṛci tunughamakṣu...: lengthening in the Saṃhitā. - dhiyāvasuḥ: bahuvrīhi; the instrumental ending not dropped in the Veda; sāvekācas ṭṛtīyādīḥ: the ending's acute; end-acute; bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam: the first member's accent stays. - jagamyāt: gamḷ gatau; liṇ third singular; bahulam chandasī: śap → ślu; ślau: doubling; halādīḥ śeṣaḥ; kuhoś cuḥ: j; yāsuṭ: yāsuṭ parasmaipadeṣūdāttaḥ...; sulopa; liṇaḥ salopo 'nantyasya: the s of yāsuṭ and the final s dropped; nighāta. || 9 ||

Closing note ²⁵ — "ಐವತ್ತ ಎಂಟನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು ಸಮಾಪ್ತವು" — "The fifty-eighth sūkta is ended."

24. pp. 437-439 — grammar pages, noted briefly

25. p. 439, printed large

Close of Sūkta 58

Sūkta 58 (Maṇḍala 1, Eleventh Anuvāka, 9 Riks; ṛṣi Nodhas Gautama; deity Agni; Jagatī in Riks 1–5, Triṣṭubh in Riks 6–9) — printed pp. 411–439, PDF 427–455.

The Riks celebrate Agni: born of force, deathless, he becomes the messenger of the sacrificer and creates the atmosphere (1); undecaying, he mounts the dry wood and roars like a cloud (2); honoured by Rudras and Vasus, he takes the first seat and receives the oblations (3); urged on by the wind he burns the forest, blackening his path (4); flame-weaponed, like a bull he rushes through the forest, and all that stands and moves is afraid (5); the Bhṛguś placed him among men to gain divine birth (6); the seven priests choose him as most worshipful, and the poet asks him for wealth (7); a prayer to the son of strength and of food for uninterrupted happiness and protection from sin (8); and a final prayer that he be a house for the praiser and come quickly in the morning (9). No long narratives; the Special Topics are word-studies.

Sūkta 59 — "vayā ide agne"

original p. 439

ಐವತ್ತೊಂಭತ್ತನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — ¹

Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 439)

वया इदिति सप्तर्चं द्वितीयं सूक्तं नोधस आर्षं त्रैष्टुभं । वैश्वानरगुणकोऽग्निर्देवता ।
तथा चानुक्रान्तं । वया इत्सप्त वैश्वानरीयमिति ॥ सूक्तविनियोगो लिङ्गादवगन्तव्यः ॥

*vayā id iti saptarcam dvitīyaṃ sūktaṃ nodhasa ārṣaṃ traiṣṭubhaṃ | vaiśvānaragunaḥko 'gnir devatā | tathā cānukrāntaṃ | vayā it
sapta vaiśvānarīyam iti | | sūktaviniyogo liṅgād avagantavyaḥ | |*

Translation: "'Vayā it': a sūkta of seven Riks, the second [of the eleventh anuvāka]; the seer is Nodhas, the metre Triṣṭubh; the deity is Agni in his quality of Vaiśvānara; so the Anukramaṇī: 'vayā it sapta vaiśvānarīyam'. The ritual use of the sūkta is to be understood from the indications [of the content]."

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-ninth sūkta"

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 439) — "'Vayā it' is the second sūkta in the eleventh anuvāka. It has seven Riks. The seer of this sūkta is Nodhas Gautama; the metre is Triṣṭubh; the deity is Agni named Vaiśvānara. In the Anukramaṇikā: 'vayā it sapta vaiśvānarīyam'. The ritual use of the sūkta is to be learned from the sense."

Heading block

: Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 11 · Sūkta 59 · Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 25 [as read, [?]] · Riks: 7 · Ṛṣi: Nodhas Gautama · Deity: Agni Vaiśvānara · Metre: Triṣṭubh.

original p. 439

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ²

वया इदग्ने अग्नयस्ते अन्ये त्वे विश्वे अमृता मादयन्ते । वैश्वानर नाभिरसि क्षितीनां स्थूणेव जनाँ उपमिद्यन्थ ॥ १ ॥

vayā id agne agnayas te anye tve viśve amṛtā mādayante | vaiśvānara nābhir asi kṣitīnām sthūṇeva janāṃ upamid yayantha
|| 1 ||

Rik 59.1, continued ³

Pada-pāṭha

वयाः । इत् । अग्ने । अग्नयः । ते । अन्ये । त्वे इति । विश्वे । अमृताः । मादयन्ते । वैश्वानर ।
नाभिः । असि । क्षितीनाम् । स्थूणाऽइव । जनान् । उपऽमित् । यमन्थ ॥ १ ॥

vayāḥ | it | agne | agnayah | te | anye | tve iti | viśve | amṛtāḥ |
mādayante | vaiśvānara | nābhiḥ | asi | kṣitīnām | sthūṇā-iva |
janān | upa-mit | yayantha || 1 || ⁴

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

2. accents printed, not reproduced

3. pp. 440–443, PDF 456–459

4. The Saṃhitā's "yayantha" is as printed.

वयाः शाखा वेतेर्वातायना भवन्तीति यास्कः । नि. १-४ । हे अग्ने येऽत्र
 नैवान्येऽग्नयः सन्ति ते सर्वेऽपि ते तव वया इत् शाखा एव । तत्स्वतोऽन्ये न
 सन्तीति भावः । किंच त्वे त्वयि सति विश्वे सर्वेऽमृता अमरणधर्माणो देवा मादयन्ते
 । हृष्यन्ति । न हि त्वद्व्यतिरेकेण तैर्जीवितुं शक्यते । हे वैश्वानर विश्वेषां नराणां
 जाठररूपेण संबन्धिन्गने क्षितीनां मनुष्याणां नाभिः संनद्धासि । आवस्थापको
 भवसि । अतस्त्वमुपमिदुपस्थापयिता सन् । यद्वा । उपमिदित्येतद्दृष्टान्तविशेषणं ।
 जनान्ययन्थ । आधारयेः । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । उपमिदुपनिखाता स्थूणेव वंशधारणार्थं निखातः स्तम्भो यथा गृहोपरिस्थं वंशं धारयति तद्वत् ॥ *vayāḥ śākhā veter vātāyanā bhavantīti yāskaḥ | ni. 1-4 [?] | he agne ye 'tra naivānye 'gnayaḥ santi te sarve 'pi te tava vayā it śākhā eva | tat svato 'nye na santīti bhāvaḥ | kiṃca tve tvayī sati viśve sarve 'mṛtā amaraṇadharmāṇo devā mādayante | hṛṣyanti |

 na hi tvadvyatirekeṇa tair jīvitum śakyate | he vaiśvānara viśveṣāṃ narāṇāṃ jāṭharūpeṇa saṃbandhinn agne kṣitīnām manuṣyāṇām nābhiḥ saṃnaddhāsi | āvasthāpako bhavasi | atas
 tvam upamid upasthāpayitā san | yadvā | upamid ity etad dṛṣṭāntaviśeṣaṇam | janān yayantha | ādhārayeḥ | tatra
 dṛṣṭāntaḥ | upamid upanikhātā sthūṇeva vaṃśadhāraṇārtham nikhātaḥ stambho yathā gṛhoparistham vaṃśam dhārayati tadvat
 ||*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Vayāḥ are branches — 'the vayāḥ are from vetiḥ; they are the wind-passages [i.e. branches]', says Yāska (Ni. 1-4 [?]). O Agni, whatever other fires there are here, all of them are only your vayā it, branches; apart from you they do not exist on their own. Further, tve, when you are, viśve amṛtāḥ, all the immortal gods mādayante, rejoice; they cannot live without you. O vaiśvānara, Agni, related to all men in the form of the belly-fire, you are nābhiḥ, the navel, the centre, of kṣitīnām, men: you are the establisher. Therefore you, upamid, as one who sets firmly, janān yayantha, uphold the people — an example: sthūṇā iva, as a pillar planted deep to hold the beam holds the roof-beam over a house."

Pratipadārtha — "agne — O Agni; anye agnayaḥ — whichever other fires; vayā it — are but your branches; tve — in you; viśve amṛtāḥ — all the deathless gods; mādayante — rejoice; vaiśvānara — O Agni, who among all men in the form of the belly-fire; kṣitīnām — of men; nābhiḥ asi — are the centre, as the navel; upamit — set deep; sthūṇā iva — as a pillar [holds the house up well]; janān — men; yayantha — you hold, giving support."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Agni, whatever other fires there are in the world are your branches. Because of you all the deathless gods rejoice. Dwelling in the belly of all men as belly-fire, you stand in the centre as the navel. Like a deep-planted pillar that holds up the roof-beam of a house, you stand holding and supporting all men."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 441)

— "O Agni, whatever other fires there may be, they are but ramifications of you; all the immortals rejoice in you; you Vaiswanara, are the navel of men and uphold them like a deep-planted column."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḥ), p. 441 - vayāḥ — "Vayā śākhā veter vātāyanā bhavanti (Ni. 1-4 [?]): the word vayas means 'branch'. The Nirukta explains vayaḥ as a synonym of śākhā: 'vayaḥ śākhāḥ.'" - mādayante — "Hṛṣyanti: if the gods are to rejoice greatly, Agni's help is absolutely necessary: that is the sense — without Agni they cannot be satisfied." - vaiśvānara — "Viśve ca ime narāḥ viśvānarāḥ tatsaṃbandhī vaiśvānaraḥ: Agni who abides in the heart of all men in the form of the belly-fire." - upamit — "One who establishes. This word may be made an epithet of Agni or of the post given as an illustration here: as a pillar planted to bear the burden of a house bears all the weight of the house, you, standing in the belly of men, are the support of the life of all."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵ - mādayante: mada tr̥ptiyoge, curādi; satyāpapāśa...: ṇic in the own sense; ata upadhāyāḥ: vṛddhi; laṭ third plural; nighāta. - vaiśvānara: viśve ca ime narāś ca viśvānarāḥ; nare saṃjñāyām (Pā. 6-3-129): lengthening of the first member; viśvānarasya ayaṃ vaiśvānaraḥ: tasyedam: aṇ; ñit: ādivṛddhi; the vocative: eṇhrasvāt sambuddheḥ: sulopa; at the head of a pāda: no nighāta; āmantritasya ca: initial-acute. - nābhiḥ: ṇah bandhane; ṇo naḥ: na for ṇa; nahobhas ca (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]): iñ; bh by ante for the root's h; ñit: ata upadhāyāḥ: vṛddhi; ñnityādir nityam: initial-acute. - asi: as bhuvi; sip; tāsasty...: loss of s; nighāta. - kṣitīnām: kṣi nivāsagatyoh; ktic ktau ca saṃjñāyām: ktic; kit: no guṇa; citaḥ: end-acute; genitive plural nām; hrasvanadyāpo nuṭ: nuṭ; nāmi: lengthening; nāmanyatarasyām: acute of the vowel. - janān: accusative plural; dīrghād aṭi samānapāde: n → ru; ato 'ṭ ni...: nasalization of the preceding ā. - upamit: ḍumiñ prakṣepaṇe; with upa before: bahulavacanāt: kvip in the object sense; hrasvasya piti kṛti tuk: tuk; gatikārakopapadāt kṛt: the kṛdanta's accent. - yayantha: yamu uparame; liṭ second singular; parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus...: thal; doubling; though the root is aniṭ, kradiniyama: iṭ would be obtained for thal, but upadeśe 'tvataḥ: iṇ-niṣedha because the root has a in the upadeśa; the m before th: anusvāra, then anusvārasya yayi parasavarṇaḥ: n; nighāta. || 1 ||

original pp. 443–445

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

मूर्धा दिवो नाभिरग्निः पृथिव्या अथाभवदरती रोदस्योः । तं त्वा देवासोऽजनयन्त देवं वैश्वानर ज्योतिरिदार्याय ॥ २ ॥

*mūrdhā divo nābhir agniḥ pṛthivyā athābhavad aratī rodasyoḥ |
taṃ tvā devāso 'janayanta devaṃ vaiśvānara jyotir id āryāya || 2
||*

Pada-pāṭha

मूर्धा । दिवः । नाभिः । अग्निः । पृथिव्याः । अथ । अभवत् । अरतिः । रोदस्योः । तम् । त्वा । देवासः । अजनयन्त । देवम् । वैश्वानर । ज्योतिः । इत् । आर्याय ॥ २ ॥

*mūrdhā | divaḥ | nābhiḥ | agniḥ | pṛthivyāḥ | atha | abhavat |
aratiḥ | rodasyoḥ | taṃ | tvā | devāsaḥ | ajanayanta | devaṃ |
vaiśvānara | jyotiḥ | it | āryāya || 2 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

विषुवत्संज्ञेऽहन्यग्निमारुते मूर्धा दिवो नाभिरग्निः पृथिव्या इति
वैकल्पिकोऽनुरूपस्तृचः । विषुवान्दिवाकीर्त्य इति खण्डे सूत्रितं । मूर्धानं दिवो अरतिं
पृथिव्या मूर्धा दिवो नाभिरग्निः पृथिव्या इति वा । आ. ८-६ [?] इति ॥
अयमग्निर्दिवो द्युलोकस्य मूर्धा शिरोवत्प्रधानभूतो भवति । पृथिव्या भूमेश्च नाभिः
संनाहकः । रक्षक इत्यर्थः । अथानन्तरं रोदस्योर्वावापृथिव्योरयमरतिरधिपतिरभवत्
। हे वैश्वानर तं तादृशं देवं दानादिगुणयुक्तं त्वा त्वां देवासः सर्वे देवा आर्याय विदुषे
मनवे यजमानाय वा ज्योतिरित् ज्योतीरूपमेवाजनयन्त । उदपादयन् ॥ मूर्तमस्मिन्धीयत इति मूर्धा । नि. २-२२ । श्वन्नुक्षन्निति...

*viṣuvatsaṃjñe 'hany agnimārute mūrdhā divo nābhir agniḥ
pṛthivyā iti vaikalpiko 'nurūpas tṛcaḥ | viṣuvān divākīrtya iti khaṇḍe sūtritaṃ | mūrdhānaṃ divo aratiṃ pṛthivyā mūrdhā divo nābhir agniḥ pṛthivyā iti vā | ā. 8-6 [?] iti || ayam agnir divo dyulokasya mūrdhā śirovat pradhānabhūto bhavati | pṛthivyā
bhūmeś ca nābhiḥ saṃnāhakaḥ | rakṣaka ity arthaḥ | athānantaraṃ rodasyor dyāvāpṛthivyor ayam aratir adhipatir
abhavat | he vaiśvānara taṃ tādrśaṃ devaṃ dānādiguṇayuktaṃ tvā tvāṃ devāsaḥ sarve devā āryāya viduṣe manave yajamānāya vā jyotir it jyotīrūpam evājanayanta | udapādayan || mūrtam
asmin dhīyata iti mūrdhā | nī. 2-22 [?] | śvann ukṣann iti ...⁶*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "On the day called Viṣuvat, in the Agni-Māruta [recitation], 'mūrdhā divo nābhir agniḥ prthivyāḥ' is an optional alternative to the preceding triplet; in the section 'viṣuvān divākīrtyaḥ' it is aphorized: 'mūrdhānaṃ divo aratiṃ prthivyāḥ or mūrdhā divo nābhir agniḥ prthivyāḥ' (Āśv. 8-6 [?]). This Agni is the mūrdhā, head, of heaven: chief like a head; nābhiḥ, navel — the binder, the protector — of the earth; and then rodasyoḥ, of heaven and earth, he became aratiḥ, the lord. O Vaiśvānara, such a god, endowed with qualities like generosity, tvā, you, devāsaḥ, all the gods ajanayanta, produced, for the āryāya, the wise Manu or the sacrificer, jyotiḥ it, as light itself. Mūrdhā: 'that in which the formed [body] is placed' (Nī. 2-22 [?])."

Pratipadārtha — "agniḥ — Agni; divaḥ — of heaven; mūrdhā — (the principal) head; prthivyāḥ — of earth; nābhiḥ — (protector) as the navel; atha — and; rodasyoḥ — of heaven and earth; aratiḥ — the lord; abhavat — became; vaiśvānara — O Agni; tam — such; devam — one endowed with generosity; tvā — you; devāsaḥ — all the gods; āryāya — for the wise Manu, or for the sacrificer; jyotiḥ it — as light; ajanayanta — created."

Bhāvārtha

— "Agni is chief of the heaven world like a head; he is the protector of the earth as the navel is of the body; and he is the lord of both heaven and earth. O Agni, endowed with generosity and other qualities, all the gods created you in the form of light for the wise sacrificer."

6. The last words, "śvann ukṣann iti", begin the grammatical tail on the Nirukta etymology of mūrdhan; the tail — on prthivyāḥ (śid gaurādibhyaś ca), ajanayanta (janī prādurbhāve, ŋic, mitām hrasvaḥ; janīṛṣṣkṣnasuramjo mantās ca, Dhā. gaṇa-sūtra as read [?]) — is characterized.

English Translation (the source's own, p. 444) — "Agni, the head of heaven, the navel of earth, became the ruler over earth and heaven; all the gods created you, Vaiswanara, in the shape of light for the Arya." ⁷

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 444 - ⁸ "In the sacrifice called Viṣuvat, when reciting the Agni-Māruta śāstra mantras, the three Riks beginning 'mūrdhā divo nābhir agniḥ prthivyāḥ' may be used as an optional alternative; the Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra in the section 'viṣuvān divākīrtyaḥ' explains it by the sūtra 'mūrdhānam divo aratiṃ prthivyā mūrdhā divo nābhir agniḥ prthivyā iti vā' (Āśv. 8-6 [?])." - mūrdhā — "Śirovat pradhānabhūto bhavati: Agni is the chief among all the gods, as the head among the limbs. The Nirukta-author supports it: 'mūrtam asmin dhīyate iti mūrdhā' (Ni. 2-22 [?])." - āryāya — "Vidvāṃsāya, manave, yajamānāya: the sense 'wise one, Manu, the sacrificer' is given here." - jyotir it — "Jyotīrūpam eva: here the word it is established in the sense of eva; 'he became light itself' is its sense."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁹ - mūrdhā: "mūrtam asmin dhīyate" (Ni. 2-22 [?]), Yāska's etymology; śvan-ukṣan... (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]): the form is established as an irregular nipāta. - divaḥ: ūḍidam...: ending acute. - prthivyāḥ: prthivī, with the ñīṣ by ṣid gaurādibhyaś ca, hence end-acute; genitive; udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt: the ending acute. - abhavat: bhū sattāyām; laṅ; nighāta. - devāsaḥ: ājjaserasuk. - ajanayanta: janī prādurbhāve; the causative; hetumati ca: ñic; ata upadhāyāḥ: vṛddhi; jani is a root by sanādyantā dhātavaḥ; laṅ third plural, jha: jho 'ntaḥ: anta; janīṛṣkṣnasuraṃjo 'mantās ca (Dhātupāṭha gaṇa, as read [?]): the root is mit, hence mitām hrasvaḥ: shortening; śap, guṇa, ayādeśa; laṅ gives aṭ; nighāta. - nābhiḥ, vaiśvānara: explained in the previous mantra. || 2 ||

7. Printed "Transation" [sic].

8. first Special Topic

9. p. 445 — grammar page, noted briefly

Rik 3

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

आ सूर्यो न रश्मयो ध्रुवासो वैश्वानरे दधिरेऽग्ना वसूनि । या पर्वतेष्वोषधीष्वप्सु या मानुषेष्वसि तस्य राजा ॥ ३ ॥

*ā sūryo na raśmayo dhruvāso vaiśvānare dadhire 'gnā vasūni | yā
parvateṣv oṣadhīṣv apsu yā mānuṣeṣv asi tasya rājā || 3 ||* ¹⁰

Rik 59.3, continued ¹¹

Pada-pāṭha

आ । सूर्ये । न । रश्मयः । ध्रुवासः । वैश्वानरे । दधिरे । अग्ना । वसूनि । या । पर्वतेषु । ओषधीषु । अप्सु । या । मानुषेषु । असि । तस्य । राजा ॥ ३ ॥

*ā | sūrye | na | raśmayah | dhruvāsaḥ | vaiśvānare | dadhire |
agnā | vasūni | yā | parvateṣu | oṣadhīṣu | ap-su | yā | mānuṣeṣu
| asi | tasya | rājā || 3 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अग्ना वैश्वानरे ग्नौ वसूनि धनान्या दधिरे । आहितानि स्थापितानि बभूवुः । तत्र
दृष्टान्तः । ध्रुवासो निश्चला रश्मयः किरणाः सूर्ये न यथा सूर्य आधीयन्ते तद्वत् ।
अतस्त्वं पर्वतादिषु यानि धनानि विद्यन्ते तस्य धनजातस्य राजासि । अधिपतिर्भवसि ॥

*agnā vaiśvānare 'gnau vasūni dhanāny ā dadhire | āhitāni
sthāpitāni babhūvuḥ | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | dhruvāso niścalā
raśmayah kiraṇāḥ sūrye na yathā sūrya ādhīyante tadvat | atas tvaṃ parvatādiṣu yāni dhanāni vidyante tasya dhanajātasya rājāsi
| adhipatir bhavasi ||* ¹²

10. The print's reading of the last line is "या मानुषेष्वसि तस्य राजा" — the Pāda's yā mānuṣeṣu | asi | tasya | rājā is taken, pending the Pāda on p. 446.

11. pp. 446–448, PDF 462–464

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Agnā, in the fire Vaiśvānara, vasūni, treasures, ā dadhire, were deposited, set up. An example: as the dhruvāsaḥ, steady rays are placed in the sun, so. Therefore you are the king, the lord, of all the treasures that exist in mountains and the like."

Pratipadārtha — "vaiśvānare agnā — in Agni who abides as Vaiśvānara; vasūni — (all) treasures; dhruvāsaḥ — constant; raśmayah — rays; sūrye na — as they are placed in the sun; ā dadhire — are deposited (therefore you); parvateṣu — in mountains; oṣadhīṣu — in herbs; apsu — in waters; mānuṣeṣu — among men; yā — whatever treasures; tasya — of all that mass of wealth; rājā asi — you are the lord."

Bhāvārtha

— "As the constant rays are placed in the sun, all wealth is deposited in Agni, who abides as Vaiśvānara. Therefore, O Agni, you are the lord of all the wealth that is in mountains, in herbs, in waters and among men."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 447)

— "Treasures were deposited in Agni, Vaiswanara, like the permanent rays (of light) the Sun; You are the sovereign of all the treasures that exist in the mountains, in the herbs, in the waters, or amongst men."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 447 — agnā: "here the vocative sense of he agne is expressed by the ā substitution for the first case." ā dadhire: "āhitāni sthāpitāni babhūvuḥ: were completely placed." sūryena [sūrye na]: "as steady rays are contained in the sun, so all kinds of treasure are contained in you — that is the illustration given for praising Agni." oṣadhīṣu:

12. The tail, p. 446: on agnā (supām sulug...: ḍā for the locative), oṣasā... oṣadhīṣu (uṣa dāhe, ghañ, oṣaḥ pākaḥ; oṣa āsu dhīyate; kirupa in the locative-sense), apsu (ūḍidam...) — characterized.

"from uṣa dāhe: oṣaḥ means pāka, 'ripening'; by the derivation 'oṣaḥ āsu dhīyate iti oṣadhayaḥ', it is shown that every kind of quality is produced by ripening, in the word oṣadhi."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹³: dhruvāsaḥ: ājjaserasuk. dadhire: ḍudhāñ; liṭ third plural; liṭas tajhayor eśirec: irec; nighāta. agnā: agni + locative; supāṃ suluk...: ḍā; ḍit: loss of ṭi. yā: yad; neuter plural śi lost (śeś chandasi bahulam). oṣadhīṣu: uṣa dāhe; ghañ; pugantalaḡhūpadha-guṇa; ñit hence initial-acute; karmaṇy adhikaraṇe ca (Pā. 3-3-93): ki in the locative sense; loss of ā of dhā; dāsībhārādī: first member's accent. apsu: ap, locative plural; ūḍidam...: ending acute; asi: yat before: no nighāta; root's accent.
|| 3 ||

original pp. 448–450

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

बृहती इव सूनवे रोदसी गिरो होता मनुष्यो न दक्षः । स्वर्वते सत्यशुष्माय पूर्वैर्वैश्वानराय नृतमाय यहीः ॥ ४ ॥

br̥hatī iva sūnave rodasī giro hotā manuṣyo na dakṣaḥ | svarvate satyaśuṣmāya pūrvīr vaiśvānarāya nṛtamāya yahvīḥ || 4 ||

Pada-pāṭha

बृहती इवेति बृहती ऽइव । सूनवे । रोदसी इति । गिरः । होता । मनुष्यः । न । दक्षः । स्वःऽवते । सत्यऽशुष्माय । पूर्वीः । वैश्वानराय । नृतमाय । यहीः ॥ ४ ॥

*br̥hatī iveti br̥hatī-iva | sūnave | rodasī iti | girah | hotā |
manuṣyaḥ | na | dakṣaḥ | svaḥ-vate | satya-śuṣmāya | pūrvīḥ |
vaiśvānarāya | nṛ-tamāya | yahvīḥ || 4 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

रोदसी द्यावापृथिव्यौ सूनवे स्वपुत्राय वैश्वानराय बृहती इव प्रभूते इवाभूतां ।
 वैश्वानरस्य द्यावापृथिव्योः पुत्रत्वं मन्त्रान्तरे स्पष्टमवगम्यते । उभा पितरा
 महयन्नजायताग्निर्द्यावापृथिवी भूरिरेतसेति । ऋग्वे. ३-३-११ । इति । महतो
 वैश्वानरस्यावस्थानाय द्यावापृथिव्यौ विस्तृते जाते इत्यर्थः । किंचायं होता
 देवानामाह्वाता दक्षः समर्थः पूर्वीर्बहुविधा यद्दीर्घहतीर्गिरः स्तुतीर्वैश्वानरायाग्नये
 प्रायुंक्तेति शेषः । कीदृशयास्मै । स्वर्वते शोभनगमनयुक्ताय ।
 सत्यशुष्मायावितथबलाय । नृतामायातिशयेन सर्वेषां नेत्रे । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । मनुष्यो न
 । यथा मनुष्यो लौकिको वन्दी दातारं प्रभुं बहुविधया स्तुत्या स्तौति तद्वत् ॥ *rodasī dyāvāpṛthivyau sūnave svaputrāya vaiśvānarāya bṛhatī iva prabhūte ivābhūtām | vaiśvānarasya dyāvāpṛthivyoḥ putratvaṃ

 mantrāntare spaṣṭam avagamyate | ubhā pitarā mahayann
 ajāyatāgnir dyāvāpṛthivī bhūri retaseti | ṛgve. 1-... [print: ३-३-११, i.e.
 3-3-11 [?]] | iti | mahato vaiśvānarasyāvasthānāya dyāvāpṛthivyau vistr̥te jāte ity arthaḥ | kiṃcāyaṃ hotā devānām āhvātā dakṣaḥ samarthaḥ pūrvīḥ bahuvidhā yahvīḥ mahatīḥ girāḥ stutīḥ vaiśvānarāyāgnaye prāyuṅkteti śeṣaḥ | kīdr̥śāyāsmāi |
 svarvate śobhanagamanayuktāya | satyaśuṣmāyāvitatthalāya |
 nṛtamāyātīśayena sarveṣāṃ netre | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | manuṣyo na
 | yathā manuṣyo laukiko vandī dātāraṃ prabhuṃ bahuvidhayā stutyā stauti tadvat | |*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Rodasī, heaven and earth, for sūnave, their own son Vaiśvānara, became bṛhatī iva, vast as it were. That Vaiśvānara is the son of heaven and earth is clearly understood from another mantra: 'Agni was born making both parents great, heaven and earth, rich in seed' (R̥. 3-3-11 [?]) — that is: heaven and earth became broad for the abiding of the great Vaiśvānara. Further, this hotā, the invoker of the gods, dakṣaḥ, capable, pūrvīḥ yahvīḥ girāḥ, many mighty praises, [offers] to Vaiśvānara, Agni (this is understood) — to what sort of one? Svarvate, who has an attractive gait; satyaśuṣmāya, of unfailing strength; nṛtamāya, the best leader of all men. An example: manuṣyo na, as an ordinary man, a bard, praises a generous lord with praises of many kinds."

Pratipadārtha — "rodasī — heaven and earth; sūnave — for their son (Agni in the form of Vaiśvānara); bṛhatī iva — as if became vast; dakṣaḥ — the capable; hotā — the invoker; svarvate — to one of attractive motion; satyaśuṣmāya — of effective strength; nṛtamāya — the best guide; vaiśvānarāya — to Agni; manuṣyo na — as a worldly bard praises (the praiser of the qualities of a king); pūrvīḥ — ancient, or of many kinds; yahvīḥ — and great; gīrah — praises; (he offers)."

Bhāvārtha

— "Heaven and earth both appeared widely spread for their son Agni. The capable hotṛ offers to Agni — of attractive motion, effective strength, and best guide — ancient and great praises, as a bard praises the qualities of a king."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 449)

— "Heaven and earth expanded as it were for their son. The experienced sacrificer recites, like a bard, many ancient and copious praises addressed to the graceful-moving, truly-vigorous and all-guiding Vaiswanara."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 449–450 - sūnave — "Here Agni is the son of heaven and earth. As proof the śruti 'ubhā pitarā mahayann ajāyatāgnir dyāvāpṛthivī bhūri retasā' (Ṛ. Saṃ. 3-3-11 [?])."

उभा पितरा महयन्नजायताग्निर्द्यावापृथिवी भूरिरेतसा ।

ubhā pitarā mahayann ajāyatāgnir dyāvāpṛthivī bhūri retasā | — editorial and tentative: "making both parents great, Agni was born, heaven and earth, with abundant seed." — "It says that heaven and earth are Agni's mother and father: for the sake of the great Agni's abiding the earth and atmosphere became very wide." - svarvate, satyaśuṣmāya — "These two words indicate Agni's special manner of going: though his gait is graceful, he is [praised as] of special strength." - manuṣyo na — "like a man"; here the illustration: as in the world a man, being a bard, praises the lord who gives wealth with many kinds of praise, so the hotṛ praises Agni with many praises."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁴ - manuṣyaḥ: manor jātāv aṅyatau śuk ca (Pā. 4-1-161): yat after manu; śuk; titsvaritam: svarita; yato 'nāvaḥ would give initial-acute, but because of the continued dvyacaḥ there, as the word is polysyllabic, the rule does not apply. - svarvate: svar (r gatau; su before; vic); guṇa; svar [svaḥ] has matup: tad asyāsty asmin; māduḥ upadhāyās ca matoḥ: v; nyaṅ svarau svaritau: svarita; dative. - satyaśuṣmāya: bahuvrīhi; first member's accent. - pūrvīḥ: pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ; pyābhidivyadhi... (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]): ku; udoṣṭhyapūrvasya: u; uraṇ raparaḥ: puru; voto guṇavacanāt: nīṣ for the feminine; yaṇ for the acute u; halica: lengthening; suffix-accent: end-acute. || 4 ||

original pp. 450-453

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

दिवश्चित्ते बृहतो जातवेदो वैश्वानर प्र रिरिचे महित्वम् । राजा कृष्टीनामसि मानुषीणां युधा देवेभ्यो वरिवश्चकर्थ ॥ ५ ॥

*divaś cit te bṛhato jātavedo vaiśvānara pra ririce mahitvam | rājā
kṛṣṭīnām asi mānuṣīṇāṃ yudhā devebhyo varivaś cakartha || 5 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

दिवः । चित् । ते । बृहतः । जातवेदः । वैश्वानर । प्र । रिरिचे । महित्वम् । राजा । कृष्टीनाम् । असि । मानुषीणाम् । युधा । देवेभ्यः । वरिवः । चकर्थ ॥ ५ ॥

divaḥ | cit | te | bṛhataḥ | jāta-vedaḥ | vaiśvānara | pra | ririce |
mahitvam | rājā | kṛṣṭīnām | asi | mānuṣīṇām | yudhā |
devebhyaḥ | varivaḥ | cakartha || 5 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हे जातवेदो जातानां वेदितर्वैश्वानराग्ने ते तव महित्वं माहात्म्यं बृहतो महतो दिवश्चित्
 द्युलोकादपि प्र रिरिचे । प्रववृधे । किंच त्वं मानुषीणां मनोजातानां कृष्टीनां प्रजानां
 राजासि । अधिपतिर्भवसि । तथा वरिवोऽसुरैरपहृतं धनं युधा युद्धेन देवेभ्यश्चकर्त्त ।

देवाधीनमकार्षीः ॥

he jātavedo jātānām veditar vaiśvānarāgne te tava mahitvam māhātmyam bṛhato mahato divas cit dyulokād api pra ririce |
pravavṛdhe | kiṃca tvaṃ mānuṣīṇām manor jātānām kṛṣṭīnām
prajānām rājāsi | adhipatir bhavasi | tathā varivo 'surair apahrtaṃ dhanam yudhā yuddhena devebhyas cakartha |
devādhīnam akārṣiḥ || ¹⁵

Translation of the bhāṣya: "O jātavedaḥ, knower of what is born, Vaiśvānara Agni, your mahitvam, greatness, pra ririce, exceeds — grows beyond — even divaḥ bṛhataḥ, the vast heaven. And you are rājā, lord, of mānuṣīṇām kṛṣṭīnām, the peoples born of Manu; and varivaḥ, the wealth carried off by the Asuras, yudhā, by battle, devebhyaḥ cakartha, you recovered for the gods — you placed it under the gods' control."

Pratipadārtha — "jātavedaḥ — you who know all that is born; vaiśvānara — O Agni; te — your; mahitvam — greatness; bṛhataḥ — spacious; divaḥ cit — than even heaven; pra ririce — exceeded; mānuṣīṇām — born of Manu; kṛṣṭīnām — of all

15. The tail, p. 451: on ririce (ricir virecane; upasargavaśāt the sense "to exceed"), kṛṣṭīnām, mānuṣīṇām (śārīgaravādyañño nīn), yudhā (kvip), variva (nabviṣayasyānyatarasyām) — characterized.

peoples; rājā asi — you are the lord; (likewise) varivaḥ — the wealth carried off by Asuras; yudhā — by battle; devebhyaḥ — for the gods; cakārtha — [again] gained."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Agni, you know all that is born. Your greatness has grown beyond even the spacious heaven. And you are the lord of all peoples born of Manu; and, fighting against the Asuras, you regained for the gods the wealth they had carried off."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 452)

— "Vaiswanara, who knows all that are born, your magnitude has exceeded that of the spacious heaven; you are the monarch of Manu-descended men; you have regained for the gods in battle, the wealth (carried off by the Asuras)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), p. 452 — jātavedaḥ: "jātānām veditā: one who knows all things born; or one who is known by all." vaiśvānara: "one who abides in the heart of all men in the form of belly-fire (Agni)." varivaḥ: "asurair apahṛtaṃ dhanam: Agni is prayed to as having fought and recovered for the gods the wealth carried off by enemies; in the Nirukta (Ni. 3-8 as read [?]) the word varivas is read among eight synonyms of wealth beginning with maghaṃ, rekṇaḥ."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁶ — vaiśvānara: as explained in the same sūkta's first mantra; at the head of a pāda: no nighāta; āmantritasya ca: initial-acute. rice: ricir virecane; by the prefix pra the sense is reversed to "exceed" (upasargeṇa dhātvartho balād anyaḥ pratīyate); liṭ third singular; eś; doubling; nighāta. kr̥ṣṭinām: hrasvanadyāpo nuṭ; nāmi: lengthening of the i; nāmanyatarasyām: acute of nām. mānuṣiṇām: manor jātāv...: añ, so mānuṣa; in the feminine jāter astrīviśayād ayopadhāt (Pā. 4-1-63) would give ñiṣ, but by exception śārṅgaravādyañño nīn

(Pā. 4-1-73): ñīn; ñīt: initial-acute; nāmanyatarasyām would give acute on nām, but jyāścandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-1-... as read [?]): no acute here. yudhā: yudha saṃprahāre; saṃpadādibhyaḥ kvip; instrumental; sāvekācas tṛtīyādih. varivaḥ: varivas means wealth; always neuter; nabviṣayasyānyatarasyām (Phiṭ-sūtra 2-... as read [?]): initial-acute. cakartha: ḍukṛñ karaṇe; liṭ second singular; kradiniyama: no iṭ for thal [iṭ by the rule not applying]; nighāta. || 5 ||

original p. 453

Rik 6

Samhitā-pāṭha

प्र नू महित्वं वृषभस्य वोचं यं पूरवो वृत्रहणं सचन्ते । वैश्वानरो दस्युमग्निर्जघन्वाँ अधूनोत्काष्ठा अव शंबरं भरेत् ॥ ६ ॥ *pra nū mahitvaṃ vṛṣabhasya vocaṃ yaṃ pūravo vṛtrahaṇaṃ sacante | vaiśvānaro dasyum agnir jaghanvām adhūnot kāṣṭhā

ava śambaram bhet || 6 ||* ¹⁷

Pada-pāṭha

प्र । नू । महित्वम् । वृषभस्य । वोचम् । यम् । पूरवः । वृत्रहणम् । सचन्ते । वैश्वानरः । दस्युम् । अग्निः । जघन्वान् । अधूनोत् । काष्ठाः । अव । शम्बरम् । भेत् ॥ ६ ॥

*pra | nu | mahitvam | vṛṣabhasya | vocam | yam | pūravaḥ |
vṛtra-hanam | sacante | vaiśvānaraḥ | dasyum | agniḥ |
jaghanvān | adhūnot | kāṣṭhāḥ | ava | śambaram | bhet || 6 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अत्र वैश्वानरशब्देन मध्यमस्थानस्थो वैद्युतोऽग्निरभिधीयते । पूरव इति मनुष्यनाम ।
पूरवो मनुष्या वृत्रहणमावरकस्य मेघस्य हन्तारं यं वैश्वानरं सचन्ते सेवन्ते ।
वर्षार्थिनः सेवन्ते । तस्य वृषभस्यापां वर्षितुर्वैश्वानरस्य महित्वं माहात्म्यं नु क्षिप्रं प्र

वोचं । प्रब्रवीमि । किं तदित्यत आह । अयं वैश्वानरोऽग्निर्दस्युं रसानां कर्मणां
 वोपक्षयितारं राक्षसादिकं जघन्वान् हतवान् । तथा काष्ठा आपो वृष्ट्युदकान्यधूनोत्
 । अधोमुखान्यपातयत् । शंबरं तं निरोधकारिणं मेघमव भेत् । अवाभिनत् ॥ वोचं ।
 छन्दसि लुङ्लङ्लिट इति वर्तमाने । लुङ्यस्तिवक्त्यादिना च्लेरजादेशः । वच
 उमित्यमागमः । गुणः । बहुलं छन्दसमाङ्चोगेऽपीत्यङभावः । जघन्वान् । हन्तेर्लिटः
 क्वसुः । अभ्यासाच्चेत्यभ्यासादुत्तरस्य हकारस्य घत्वं । विभाषा गमहनेति
 विकल्पनादिङभावः । भेत् । भिदिर् विदारणे । लुङ् बहुलं छन्दसीति विकरणस्य लुक् । हल्ङ्याब्भ्य इति तकारस्य लोपः । पूर्ववदङभावः ॥ *atra vaiśvānaraśabdena madhyamasthānastho vaidyuto 'gnir abhidhīyate | pūrava iti manuṣyanāma | pūravo manuṣyā vṛtrahaṇam āvarakasya meghasya hantāraṃ yaṃ vaiśvānaram sacante sevante | varṣārthinaḥ sevante | tasya vṛṣabhasyāpāṃ varṣitur vaiśvānaraśya mahitvaṃ mātmyaṃ nu kṣipraṃ pra vocaṃ | prabravīmi | kiṃ tad ity ata āha | ayaṃ vaiśvānaro 'gnir dasyuṃ rasānāṃ karmanāṃ vopakṣayitāraṃ rākṣasādikaṃ jaghanvān hataṃ | tathā kāṣṭhā āpo vṛṣṭyudakāny adhūnot |

 adhomukhāny apātayat | śambaram taṃ nirodhakārīṇaṃ
 megham ava bhet | avābhinat | | vocaṃ | chandasi luṅlaṅliṭa iti vartamāne | luṅy astivaktyādinā ca cler aj-ādeśaḥ | vaca um ity amāgamah | guṇaḥ | bahulaṃ chandasamānyoge 'pīty aḍabhāvaḥ
 | jaghanvān | hanter liṭaḥ kvasuḥ | abhyāsāc cety abhyāsād uttarasya hakārasya ghatvaṃ | vibhāṣā gamahaneti vikalpanād
 iḍabhāvaḥ | bhet | bhidir vidāraṇe | luṅ bahulaṃ chandasīti vikaraṇasya luk | halṅyābbhya iti takārasya lopaḥ | pūrvavad
 aḍabhāvaḥ | |*

Translation of the first part of the bhāṣya: "Here, by the word vaiśvānara the fire of lightning, situated in the middle region, is meant. Pūravaḥ is a name for men: the men sacante, serve, that Vaiśvānara, vṛtrahaṇam, the slayer of the covering cloud; those

17. The print's last word in the Saṃhitā reads "भरेत्" and in the Pada

"भेत्"; the sense is bhet ("split"), as the bhāṣya's gloss

"bibheda" — the Saṃhitā spelling is a crowded print, [?].

who wish rain serve him. Of that vṛṣabhasya, showerer of waters, Vaiśvānara, I pra vocam, proclaim quickly the mahitvam, greatness. What is it? This Vaiśvānara Agni jaghanvān, has killed the dasyu, the Rākṣasa or the like, who injures the savours or the rites; and adhūnot, shook down the kāṣṭhāḥ, the waters, the rain-waters, made them fall face-downwards; and śambaram ava bhet, split the cloud called Śambara, the obstructor."

Rik 59.6, bhāṣya continued and end ¹⁸

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya, the discussion on Vaiśvānara ¹⁹ — After the grammatical notes the bhāṣya quotes Yāska's Nirukta on this Rik (Ni. 7-... as read [?]): "pra bravīmi tan mahitvaṃ mahābhāgyaṃ vṛṣabhasya varṣitur apāṃ yaṃ pūravaḥ pūrayitavyā manuṣyā vṛtrahaṇaṃ meghahanaṃ sacante sevante varṣakāmā dasyur dasyateḥ kṣayārthād upadasyanty asmin rasā upadāsayati karmāṇi, tam agnir vaiśvānaro ghnann abhyadhūnod apāḥ kāṣṭhā abhinac chambaram megham" (Ni. 2-... as read [?]) — "I proclaim that greatness, the majesty of the showerer of waters, whom men who are to be filled serve, the cloud-slayer, wanting rain; the dasyu is from dasyati 'to waste': the savours waste away in him, or he makes the rites waste; Agni Vaiśvānara, striking him, shook down the waters, the quarters, and split Śambara the cloud." Sāyaṇa then asks who Vaiśvānara is here: "some say the wind of the middle region, or Indra" (since they have authority over the rain-making rite); "others say the sun, because the three savanas — morning, midday and evening — correspond to the three worlds, earth, atmosphere and heaven, and by the third savana the sacrificer, reaching heaven, would fall from the earth; to avert that fall, in the last śāstra of the Agni-Māruta group the priest, to descend from heaven again to earth, recites this śāstra; it begins with the Vaiśvānara sūkta; then he descends by sūktas whose deity is Rudra and the Maruts of the middle region; since earth is

18. pp. 454-457, PDF 470-473

19. a long passage, in part crowded — given in gist, [?] where doubtful

Agni's place, if Vaiśvānara here were not the sun, how could the descent to the earth be possible?" — the Kannada notes that this is the argument for taking vaiśvānara as the sun, "but Sāyaṇācārya's own opinion is that Vaiśvānara here is the lightning-fire of the middle region." The bhāṣya then derives the word three ways: viśve ca ime narāḥ viśvānarāḥ tatsaṃbandhād vaiśvānaraḥ; viśvān sarvān prāṇinaḥ prati ṛto gacchati iti viśvānarau madhyamottamau, from them vaiśvānaraḥ (middle and last [worlds]); and from the arising of the fire from lightning and from the sun, he is Vaiśvānara (vaidyuto 'gnir madhyamasthānasambaddhaḥ). The text ends with the thought that Agni is Vaiśvānara because the sacrificial fire arises from lightning after thunder and from the sun in the hot season, citing "agnau prāstāhutiḥ samyag ādityam upatiṣṭhate | ādityāj jāyate vṛṣṭir vṛṣṭer annaṃ tataḥ prajāḥ" (Manu 3-76 as read [?]) — अग्नौ प्रास्ताहुतिः सम्यगादित्यमुपतिष्ठते । आदित्याज्जायते वृष्टिवृष्टेरन्नं ततः प्रजाः ॥ agnau prāstāhutiḥ samyag ādityam upatiṣṭhate | ādityāj jāyate vṛṣṭir vṛṣṭer annaṃ tataḥ prajāḥ || — editorial and tentative: "the oblation offered into the fire rises rightly to the sun; from the sun rain is born; from rain, food; from that, creatures." The sentence breaks off crowded at the foot of p. 454 ("pratyavaroho 'pi na karṭṛ..."), and the passage closes on p. 455 with the remark that, as Yāska (Ni. 7-... [?]) has expanded, "what has not been said here is to be supplied by connecting with that."

Pratipadārtha — "pūravaḥ — men; vṛtrahaṇam — the splitter of the cloud that covered (the world); yam — which Vaiśvānara-Agni; sacante — they serve, wishing rain; vṛṣabhasya — of that Agni who sends rain; mahitvam — greatness; nu — alertly; pravocam — I proclaim; vaiśvānaraḥ agniḥ — Agni in the form of Vaiśvānara; dasyum — [him who] harms the waters or the rites, the Rākṣasa and the like; jaghanvān — killed; kāṣṭhāḥ — the waters of rain; adhūnot — he dropped downward; śambaram — the cloud that stopped the water; ava bhet — split."

Bhāvārtha

— "I alertly proclaim the greatness of that Vaiśvānara-Agni, the splitter of the cloud that covered all the world, whom all men serve wishing rain, for he sends rain. That Agni killed the Rākṣasas who harm the waters, split the cloud that stopped the water, and let the waters of rain fall down."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 455)

— "I extol the greatness of that showerer of rain whom men celebrate as the slayer of Vritra; Vaiswanara, Agni killed the stealer (of the waters) and sent them down (upon earth), and clove the (obstructing) cloud."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 455–456 — pūravaḥ: "manuṣyāḥ: in the Nirukta (Ni. 3-8 as read [?]) the word puru is read among the twenty-five synonyms for men." vaiśvānaraḥ: "as said earlier: viśve sarve narā enam agniṃ yajñādaḥ praṇayanti iti viśvanaraḥ, tatsaṃbandhād vaiśvānaraḥ; or viśveṣāṃ narāṇāṃ lokāntaram prati netṛtayā saṃbandhī vaiśvānaraḥ; or viśvān sarvān prāṇinaḥ prati ṛto gacchati iti viśvānarau madhyamottamau, from these two arisen, vaiśvānaraḥ" (explained in the three ways). śambaram: "svaniroḍhakāriṇaṃ megham: the cloud that stops the water." In this Rik, the Kannada says, the praise of Vaiśvānara is conveyed in the sense that "he killed Vṛtra, who covered the cloud, caused rain, and destroyed the Rākṣasas."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁰ — vocam: vaca paribhāṣaṇe; chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭaḥ: luṇ in the present sense; mip; tasthasthamipāṃ...: am; cleḥ in luṇ: asti-vakti-khyātibhyo 'n (Pā. 3-1-52): aṇ; vacaḥ um: um augment; guṇa; bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi: no aṭ; nighāta. sacante: saca seṣane sevane ca; laṭ third plural; yat before: no nighāta; root's accent. jaghanvān: han; kvasuś ca: kvasu for liṭ; doubling; kuhoś cuḥ; abhyāsāc ca: h → gh; vibhāṣā gamahana...

optional iṭ absent; jaghanvas; āc ca saṃyogasya...: lengthening; ugidacām: num; hal̥nyābbhyo...; saṃyogāntasya lopah; dirghād aṭi samānapāde: ru; nasalization. adhūnot: dhūñ kampane; lañ; svādibhyaḥ śnuḥ; guṇa; aṭ; at the head of a pāda: no nighāta. bhet: bhidir vidāraṇe; luñ; bahulaṃ chandasi: śnam → luk; guṇa; hal̥nyābbhyaḥ: loss of t; no aṭ; nighāta. || 6 ||

original pp. 458–461

Rik 7

Samhitā-pāṭha

वैश्वानरो महिम्ना विश्वकृष्टिर्भरद्वाजेषु यजतो विभावा । शातवनेये शतिनीभिरग्निः पुरुणीथे जरते सूनृतावान् ॥ ७ ॥

vaiśvānaro mahimnā viśvakṛṣṭir bharadvājeṣu yajato vibhāvā |
śātavaneye śatinībhir agniḥ puruṇīthe jarate sūnṛtāvān || 7 ||

Pada-pāṭha

वैश्वानरः । महिम्ना । विश्वऽकृष्टिः । भरत्स्वाजेषु । यजतः । विऽभावा । शातवनेये । शतिनीभिः । अग्निः । पुरुऽनीथे । जरते । सूनृताऽवान् ॥ ७ ॥ vaiśvānaraḥ | mahimnā | viśva-kṛṣṭiḥ | bharat-vājeṣu | yajataḥ |

vi-bhāvā | śātavaneye | śatinībhiḥ | agniḥ | puru-nīthe | jarate |
sūnṛtā-vān || 7 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

वैश्वानरोऽग्निर्महिम्ना महत्त्वेन विश्वकृष्टिः । कृष्टिरिति मनुष्यनाम । विश्वे सर्वे मनुष्या
यस्य स्वभूताः स तथोक्तः । भरद्वाजेषु पुष्टिकरहविलक्षणान्वत्सु यागेषु । यद्वा ।
एतत्संज्ञेष्वृषिषु यजतो यष्टव्यो विभावा विशेषेण प्रकाशयिता सूनृतावान् । सूनृता
प्रिया सत्या वाक् । तद्युक्तः । एवंभूतोऽग्निः शातवनेयेऽ शतसंख्याकान्
क्रतूनन्वनति संभजत इति शतवनिः । तस्य पुत्रः शातवनेयः । तस्मिन् पुरुणीथे बहूनां नेतर्येतत्संज्ञके राजनि च शतिनीभिर्बहुभिः स्तुतिभिर्जरते । स्तूयते ॥

vaiśvānaro 'gnir mahimnā mahattvena viśvakṛṣṭiḥ | kṛṣṭir iti manuṣyanāma | viśve sarve manuṣyā yasya svabhūtāḥ sa tathoktaḥ | bharadvājeṣu puṣṭikarahavirlakṣaṇānnavatsu yāgeṣu | yadvā | etatsaṃjñeṣv ṛṣiṣu yajato yaṣṭavyo vibhāvā viśeṣeṇa prakāśayitā sūnṛtāvān | sūnṛtā priyā satyā vāk | tadyuktaḥ | evaṃbhūto 'gniḥ śātavaneye ['] śatasamkhyākān kratūn anvanati sambhajata iti śatavaniḥ | tasya putraḥ śātavaneyaḥ | tasmin puruṇithe bahūnāṃ netary etatsaṃjñake rājani ca śatinībhir bahubhiḥ stutibhir jarate | stūyate ||

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Vaiśvānara Agni, mahimnā, by his greatness, is viśvakṛṣṭiḥ: kṛṣṭi is a name for men; one to whom all men belong. Bharadvājeṣu, in sacrifices that have food in the form of oblations that nourish; or, among the sages of that name (Bharadvāja); yajataḥ, to be worshipped; vibhāvā, shining specially; sūnṛtāvān: sūnṛtā is pleasant, true speech — endowed with it. Such Agni is jarate, praised, in the son of Śatavani (śātavaneye; Śatavani is 'one who serves a hundred sacrifices') and in the king Puruṇitha, the leader of many, śatinībhiḥ, with many praises."

Pratipadārtha — "vaiśvānaraḥ — Agni in the form of Vaiśvānara; mahimnā — by his majesty; viśvakṛṣṭiḥ — united with all men (and); bharadvājeṣu — in sacrifices that have nourishing oblation-food, or among the Bharadvāja sages; vibhāvā — very bright; yajataḥ — worshipful; sūnṛtāvān — one who has pleasant and true words; agniḥ — Agni; śātavaneye — in the son of Śatavani; puruṇithe — in the king Puruṇitha, who is the guide of many; śatinībhiḥ — with many hymns; jarate — is praised."

Bhāvārtha

— "Vaiśvānara Agni is united by his greatness with all men. In sacrifices having nourishing oblation-food, very bright, worshipful, with pleasant and true words, Agni is praised with many hymns by the son of Śatavani and by the king Puruṇītha, guide of many."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 459)

— "Vaiswanara by his magnitude exists in all men, and is worthy of being adored in sacrifices of nourishing foods; Agni, endowed with rays and truthful speech, is praised with many commendations, by Purunitha, and the son of Satavani."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 459–460 — viśvakṛṣṭiḥ: "viśve sarve manuṣyā yasya: here kṛṣṭi means man; in the Nirukta the word kṛṣṭi is read as a name for men." bharadvājeṣu: "in sacrifices that have food-oblations that give nourishment, or among the Bharadvāja sages in succession; bharanti poṣayanti bhoktṛṇ iti bharantaḥ, tādrśā vājā yeṣu bharadvājāḥ: thus the derivation in the sense of sacrifice." vibhāvā: "from bhā dīptau: 'who shines specially'." sūnṛtāvān: "sūnṛtā priyā satyā vāk tadyuktaḥ: one who has pleasant and true words; an epithet of Agni." śātavaneye: "śatasamkhyākān kratūn vanati sambhajate iti śatavaniḥ: the son of the great sage Śatavani, who performed a hundred sacrifices, is Śātavaneya." puruṇīthe: "one who is the guide of many people; or the king named Puruṇītha — both senses are suggested."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²¹ — bharadvājeṣu: bharanti poṣayanti bhoktṛṇ iti bharantaḥ; ḍubhṛṇ bharaṇe; śatṛ; bahuvrīhi bharantaḥ vājā yeṣu te bharadvājāḥ; bahuvrīthau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam would give the first member's accent, but because the word is among marudvṛdhādi the final-acute of the first member: marudvṛdhādiṣu...: pūrvapadāntodātta. yajataḥ: yaja devapūjāsaṅgatikaraṇadāneṣu; bhṛmṛdṛśiyajiparvipaci... (Uṇ. 3-...

as read [?]): atac; citaḥ: end-acute. vibhāvā: ato manin kvanib vanibaś ca: vanip; vibhāvan; pit: anudātta, root's accent stays; nominative: sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau: lengthening of the penultimate; halīyābbhyo...; nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya. śātavaneye: iñ sarvadhātubhyaḥ (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]): iñ: śatavani; ītaś ca ṇiḥ... itaś cāniñāḥ (Pā. 4-1-122): ṭhak for a stem ending in i other than iñ; kit: ādivṛddhi; āyaneyīṇīyiaḥ phaḍhakhachaghām pratyayādīnām: eya; śātavaneya; kiṭeḥ: end-acute. śatinibhiḥ: śata + ini (tad asyāsti); yasyeti ca: loss of a: śatin; feminine ñip (ṛnnebhya ṇip); jñip is pit, anudātta, so the suffix-accent of ini stays: tak vowel after t acute; instrumental plural. puruṇithe: pūrvapadāt saṃjñāyām agaḥ: ṇatva. jarate: jṛṣ vayohānau, here used in praise; vyatyayo bahulam: kartṛ [śap] with the object; laṭ; ṭita ātmanepadānām ṭer e; kartari śap; guṇa; nighāta. sūnṛtāvān: sūnṛtā asya asti: tad asyāsty asmin: matup; māduḥ upadhāyāś ca matoḥ: v; āt-saṃyogasya...: lengthening; ugidacām: num; nalopa is not applied because tasya [ta-lo-pasya] is asiddha. || 7 || ²²

Close of Sūkta 59

Sūkta 59 (Maṇḍala 1, Eleventh Anuvāka, 7 Riks; ṛṣi Nodhas Gautama; deity Agni Vaiśvānara; Triṣṭubh) — printed pp. 439–461, PDF 455–477.

All other fires are branches of Agni; the deathless gods delight in him; he is the navel of men and holds them up like a deep-planted pillar (1); head of heaven and navel of earth, the ruler of both, created by the gods as light for the Ārya (2); all treasures are stored in him as rays in the sun, and he is lord of the wealth of mountains, herbs, waters and men (3); heaven and earth widen for their son and the hotṛ praises him as a bard praises a king (4); his greatness exceeds heaven; he recovered the Asuras' wealth for the gods (5); he is the lightning-fire that kills the waters' enemy, shakes down the rain and splits the cloud Śambara — with Sāyaṇa's long discussion whether Vaiśvānara here is the wind, Indra, the sun or the lightning-fire (6); and he is praised by Puruṇītha and the son of Śatavani (7).

22. The print gives no closing sentence for Sūkta 59: the last grammar paragraph ends on p. 461 and a small ornament separates it from the next title. My own summary, not the source's:

Sūkta 60 — "vahniṃ yaśasam"

original p. 461

ಅರವತ್ತನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — 1

Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 461)

वह्निमिति पञ्चर्चं तृतीयं सूक्तं नोधस आर्षं त्रैष्टुभमाग्नेयं । अनुक्रान्तं च । वह्निं
पञ्चेति ॥ प्रातरनुवाकस्याग्नेये क्रतौ त्रैष्टुभे छन्दसीदं सूक्तमाश्विने शस्त्रे च । तथा च सूत्रितं । वह्निं यशसमुप प्र जिन्वन्निति त्रीणि । आ. ४-१३ । इति ॥ *vahniṃ iti pañcarcaṃ tṛtīyaṃ sūktaṃ nodhasa ārṣaṃ traiṣṭubham āgneyaṃ | anukrāntaṃ ca | vahniṃ pañceti || prātaranuvākasyāgneye kratau traiṣṭubhe chandasīdaṃ sūktaṃ āśvine śastre ca | tathā ca sūtritaṃ | vahniṃ yaśasam upa pra

jinvann iti trīṇi | ā. 4-13 [?] | iti ||*

Translation: "'Vahniṃ': a sūkta of five Riks, the third [of the eleventh anuvāka]; the seer is Nodhas, the metre Triṣṭubh, the deity Agni; so the Anukramaṇī: 'vahniṃ pañca'. In the Agni-rite (āgneya kratu) of the Prātaranuvāka, in the Triṣṭubh metre, this sūkta belongs also to the Áśvin-śastra: so it is aphorized: 'vahniṃ yaśasam upa pra jinvann' — three (Āśv. 4-13 [?])."

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 461) — "'Vahniṃ' is the third sūkta in the eleventh anuvāka. It has five Riks. The seer is Nodhas; the deity Agni; the metre Triṣṭubh. In the Anukramaṇikā: 'vahniṃ pañca'. At the time of reciting the Prātarānuvāka mantras, this sūkta is for the Triṣṭubh Riks of the Āgneya-kratu and for the Aśvin-śastra mantras: so the Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra by the sūtra 'vahniṃ yaśasam upa pra jinvaṇ iti trīṇi' (Āśv. 4-13)." ²

Heading block of Sūkta 60 (p. 462, PDF 478)

Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 11 · Sūkta 60 · Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Varga 26 [as read, [?]] · Riks: 5 · Ṛṣi: Nodhas Gautama · Deity: Agni · Metre: Triṣṭubh.

original pp. 462–465

Rik 1

Saṃhitā-pāṭha ³

वहिं यशसं विदथस्य केतुं सुप्राव्यं दूतं सद्योऽर्थम् । द्विजन्मानं रयिमिव प्रशस्तं रातिं भरद्गवे मातरिश्वा ॥ १ ॥

*vahniṃ yaśasaṃ vidathasya ketuṃ suprāvyam dūtaṃ sadyoartham | dvi-janmānaṃ rayim iva praśastaṃ rātiṃ bharad
bhṛgave mātariśvā || 1 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

वहिम् । यशसम् । विदथस्य । केतुम् । सुप्राव्यम् । दूतम् । सद्यःऽअर्थम् । द्विजन्मानम् । रयिम्ऽइव । प्रशस्तम् । रातिम् । भरत् । भृगवे । मातरिश्वा ॥ १ ॥

*vahniṃ | yaśasaṃ | vidathasya | ketum | su-prāvyam | dūtam |
sadyaḥ-artham | dvi-janmānam | rayim-iva | pra-śastam | rātim |
bharat | bhṛgave | mātariśvā || 1 ||*

1. Kannada heading: "the sixtieth sūkta"

2. The heading block and Rik 60.1 are on p. 462 (PDF 478).

3. accents printed, not reproduced

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

वह्निं हविषां वोढारं यशसं यशस्विनं विदथस्य केतुं यज्ञस्य प्रकाशयितारं सुप्राव्यं सुष्ठु
 प्रकर्षेण रक्षितारं दूतं देवैर्हविर्वहनलक्षणे दूत्ये नियुक्तं । सद्योअर्थं । यदा हवींषि
 जुह्वति सद्यस्तदानीमेव हविर्भिः सह देवान् गन्तारं । यद्वा । सद्योअर्थमरणं गमनं
 यस्य तं । द्विजन्मानं । द्वयोर्वावापृथिव्योररण्योर्वा जायमानं रयिमिव धनमिव प्रशस्तं
 प्रख्यातं । एवंभूतमग्निं मातरिश्वा वायुर्भृगव एतत्संज्ञकाय महर्षये रातिं भरत् । मित्रमहरत् । अकरोदित्यर्थः ॥ *vahnīm haviṣām voḍhāraṃ yaśasaṃ yaśasvinaṃ vidathasya ketuṃ yajñasya prakāśayitāraṃ supṛāvyam suṣṭhu prakarṣeṇa rakṣitāraṃ dūtaṃ devair havirvahanalakṣaṇe dautye niyuktaṃ |

 sadyoartham | yadā havīmṣi juhvati sadyas tadānīm eva havirbhiḥ
 saha devān gantāraṃ | yadvā | sadyoartham araṇaṃ gamanaṃ
 yasya taṃ | dvijanmānaṃ | dvayor dyāvāpṛthivyor aranyor vā jāyamānaṃ rayim iva dhanam iva praśastaṃ prakhyātaṃ | evambhūtaṃ agniṃ mātariśvā vāyur bhṛgava etatsaṃjñakāya
 maharṣaye rātiṃ bharat | mitram aharat | akarod ity arthaḥ ||* ⁴

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Vahnim, the bearer of oblations; yaśasam, glorious; vidathasya ketum, the illuminator of the sacrifice; supṛāvyam, the excellent protector; dūtam, the messenger appointed by the gods to the task of carrying the oblations; sadyoartham: as soon as the oblations are offered, at that very moment he goes with the oblations to the gods — or, one whose going is immediate; dvijanmānam, born of two, of heaven

4. The tail, p. 463: on vahnīm (vahi-sri-yu-sru-glā-hā-tvaribhyo niḥ, Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]), yaśasam (yaśasvinam, the loss of vin in the Veda), supṛāvyam (su-pṛa-av, supṛāvīḥ, Uṇ.
 3-... ī), sadyoartham (r gatau, than), rātim (rātiḥ = friend, āpastamba-grhya 7-...
 [?]: "rātinā saṃbhāṣya" = with a friend; or "rātiḥ putraḥ" some say; supporting mantra: "rātiṃ bhṛgūṇām uśijaṃ kavikratum", Rg. 3-2-4 [?]), mātariśvā (mātari antarikṣe śvasiti; śvann ukṣann... Uṇ. 1-... [?]; or aś gatidīptyādāneṣu, dvan) — Nīrūkta 7-... [?] is cited for the last word: "mātā antarikṣaṃ śvasitir atra gatikarmā".

and earth or of the two fire-sticks; rayim iva praśastam, famed like wealth. Such Agni Mātariśvan, the wind, bharat, brought as a friend (rātim) to Bhṛgu, the sage of that name — made him a friend, is the sense."

Pratipadārtha — "vahnim — the bearer of oblations; yaśasam — the famed; vidathasya — of the sacrifice; ketum — the illuminator; suprāvyam — the good protector; dūtam — the messenger who carries oblations to the gods; sadyoartham — who immediately carries oblations to the gods; dvijanmānam — born of heaven and earth, or of the two fire-sticks; rayim iva — like wealth; praśastam — priceless; Agni; mātariśvā — the wind; bhṛgave — to the sage Bhṛgu; rātim — as a friend; bharat — brought (made a friend)."

Bhāvārtha

— "The wind called Mātariśvan brought as a friend to the sage Bhṛgu that Agni — the carrier of oblations, famous, illuminator of sacrifice, good protector, messenger who carries the oblations to the gods at once, born of heaven and earth or of the two fire-sticks, and priceless like wealth."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 464)

— "Matariswan brought as a friend to Bhṛgu the celebrated Vanhi, (Agni) the illuminator of sacrifices, the careful protector (of his worshippers) the swift-coursing messenger (of the gods) the offspring of two parents, highly spoken of like wealth."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 464 — yaśasam: "though there is no suffix giving the sense 'having glory', the sense yaśasvinam ('glorious') is to be understood here." ketum: "yajñam prakāśayitā agniḥ: since ketu has the sense of 'banner', Agni is the banner-support of the sacrifice." sadyoartham: "sadyaḥ artham araṇam gamanam yasya taṃ, or sadyo artham yadā havīmṣi juhvati sadyas tadānīm eva haviḥbhiḥ saha devān gantāram: explained in two ways: one who at once carries the oblation to the gods, or one who always moves with the oblation-materials." dvījanmānam: "born of heaven and earth, or of two fire-sticks." bhṛgave: "to the great sage named Bhṛgu." rātiṃ bharat: "made a friend. In the place 'rātinā saṃbhāṣya' (Āp. Gr. 7-... as read [?]) the sages of the Kapardin line gave rāti the sense 'friend'; others give rāti the sense 'son'. A mantra suggesting this sense is in the Ṛgveda: 'rātiṃ bhṛgūṇām uśijaṃ kavikratum' (Ṛ. Saṃ. 3-2-4 [?]) — meaning that Uśij, [who had] the name of a son in the Bhṛgu line [?]."

रतिं भृगूणामुशिजं कविक्रतुम् । (Ṛ. Saṃ. 3-2-4 as read [?])

rātiṃ bhṛgūṇām uśijaṃ kavikratum | — editorial and tentative: "the friend [or: gift] of the Bhṛgus, the Uśij, of poet's wisdom." mātariśvā: "sarvanirmāṇahetutvān mātā antarikṣaṃ śvasitir atra gatikarmā — mātari antarikṣe śvasiti gacchatīti mātariśvā: one who moves in the atmosphere, namely the wind."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁵ — vahnim: vaha prāpaṇe; vahiśriyuśrugrlāhātvaribhyo niḥ (Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]): ni; since nit is imposed by atideśa (kit-like), ñnityādir nityam: initial-acute; accusative. yaśasam: yaśaḥ asya asti iti yaśasvī; asmāyāmedhāsrajo vini (Pā. 5-2-121): vini; vin dropped (luk) in the Veda; by vyatyaya end-acute; or arśa ādibhyo 'c (Pā. 5-2-127): ac; citaḥ: end-acute. suprāvyam: su-pra before av; avitrstṛtantribhya iḥ (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]): ī; suprāvīḥ; accusative singular; vā chandasi: optional pūrvarūpa; yaṇ; udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svaritaḥ: svarita. sadyoartham: ṛ gatau; ushikuṣigārtibhyas than (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]): than; guṇa; sadyaḥ arthaḥ yasya: bahuvrīhi: first-member accent; tatpuruṣe tulyārtha... would give the avyaya-first accent. mātariśvā: śvann ukṣann... (Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]) as irregular; or aś with dvan; ḍit: loss of ṭi; mātariśvan. bharat: hṛ haraṇe; laṇ; itaś ca; śap; guṇa; no aṭ; hṛgrahor bhaś chandasi: bh; nighāta. || 1 ||

Rik 2

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

अस्य शासुरुभयासः सचन्ते हविष्मन्त उशिजो ये च मर्ताः । दिवश्चित्पूर्वो न्यसादि होताऽपृच्छ्यो विशपतिर्विक्षु वेधाः ॥ २ ॥

*asya śāsura ubhayāsaḥ sacante haviṣmanta uśijo ye ca martāḥ |
divaś cit pūrvo nysādi hotāpṛcchyo viśpatir vikṣu vedhāḥ || 2 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अस्य । शासुः । उभयासः । सचन्ते । हविष्मन्तः । उशिजः । ये । च । मर्ताः । दिवः । चित् । पूर्वः । नि । असादि । होता । आऽपृच्छ्यः । विशपतिः । विक्षु । वेधाः ॥ २ ॥

*asya | śāsuḥ | ubhayāsaḥ | sacante | haviṣmantah | uśijah | ye |
ca | martāḥ | divah | cit | pūrvah | ni | asādi | hotā | ā-pṛcchyaḥ
| viś-patiḥ | vikṣu | vedhāḥ || 2 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

शासुः शासितुरस्याग्नेरुभयासः उभये ऽपि देवा मनुष्याश्च । यद्वा । स्तुतिभिः
स्तोतारो यज्ञैर्यजमानाश्चेमग्निं शासितारं सचन्ते । सेवन्ते । उशिजः कामयमाना देवा
हविष्मन्तो हविषा युक्ता ये च मर्ता मरणधर्माणो यजमानाः । यद्वा । उशिज इति
मेधाविनाम । उशिजो मेधाविनः स्तोतारो हविष्मन्तो हविर्युक्ता मर्ता यजमानाः ।
किंचायं होता होमनिष्पादकोऽग्निर्दिवश्चित् आदित्यादपि पूर्व उषःसु वर्तमानो
भूत्वाग्निहोत्रहोमार्थं विक्षु यजमानेषु न्यसादि । अध्वर्युणाग्न्यायतने न्यधायि ।
स्थाप्यते । कीदृशो होता । आपृच्छ्य आ प्रष्टव्यः । पूज्य इत्यर्थः । विशपतिर्विशां प्रजानां पालयिता वेधाः । विधाताभिमतफलस्य कर्ता ॥

*śāsuḥ śāsitur asyāgner ubhayāsaḥ ubhaye 'pi devā manuṣyās ca |
yadvā | stutibhiḥ stotāro yajñair yajamānās cemaḥ agniḥ
śāsītāraḥ sacante | sevante | uśijah kāmayaḥ devā haviṣmanto haviṣā yuktā ye ca martā maraṇadharmāṇo yajamānāḥ | yadvā | uśija iti medhāvināma | uśijo medhāvinah*

*stotāro haviṣmanto havir yuktā martā yajamānāḥ | kiṃcāyaṃ hotā homaniṣpādako 'gnir divas cit ādityād api pūrva uṣaḥsu vartamāno bhūtvāgnihoṭrahomārthaṃ vikṣu yajamāneṣu nyasādi | adhvaryuṇāgny-āyatane nyadhāyi | sthāpyate | kīdṛśo hotā |
āpr̥cchya ā praṣṭavyaḥ | pūjya ity arthaḥ | viśpatir viśāṃ
prajānāṃ pālayitā vedhāḥ | vidhātābhimataphalasya kartā ||* ⁶

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Of this śāsuḥ, ruler, Agni — ubhayāsaḥ, both [kinds], gods and men — sacante, serve; or: the praisers with praises and the sacrificers with sacrifices serve this ruling Agni. Uśijaḥ, the gods who desire, and haviṣmantaḥ, those who are with oblations, the mortal sacrificers; or uśij is a word for the wise, the wise praisers, mortals with oblation, the sacrificers. Further, this hotā, accomplisher of the oblation, Agni, being present in the dawns before the sun even, nyasādi, is set among the sacrificers by the Adhvaryu on the fire-place for the Agnihotra offering. What kind of hotṛ? Āpr̥cchyaḥ, to be consulted, i.e. honoured; viśpatiḥ, protector of the people; vedhāḥ, the creator, who accomplishes the desired fruit."

Pratipadārtha — "uśijaḥ — the gods who are desired [for help], or the wise praisers; haviṣmantaḥ — endowed with oblation; ye ca martāḥ — the mortal sacrificers; ubhayāsaḥ — both groups (gods and men, or praisers and sacrificers); śāsuḥ — [of the ruler of all]; asya — this Agni; sacante — serve; āpr̥cchyaḥ — honoured; viśpatiḥ — protector of the people; vedhāḥ — giver of desired fruits; hotā — accomplisher of the oblation; agniḥ —

6. The tail: on śāsuḥ (śāsu anuśiṣṭau, tṛṇ, śaṃsi-śāsi-..., Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]; loss of iṭ), uśijaḥ (vaś kāntau, iji, Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]; grahijyādinā: samprasāraṇa), martāḥ (mṛñ prāṇatyāge, tan, Uṇ.: asihasimṛgrinvāpāṃ...), āpr̥cchyaḥ (prachchha jñīpsāyām, kyap in the Vedic: āṇ-pūrvāt, niṣkarkyetyādaḥ, Pā. 3-1-123 as read [?]), viśpatiḥ, vedhāḥ — characterized.

Agni; divaḥ cit — before the rising of the sun; pūrvaḥ — [even] earlier (at dawn); vikṣu — among the sacrificers; nyasādi — is placed by the Adhvaryu in the fire-house."

Bhāvārtha

— "The gods desired by men, and the oblation-bearing men — both groups — serve this ruling Agni. Honoured, protector of the people, giver of desired fruits and accomplisher of the oblation, Agni is established on the altar in the fire-house by the Adhvaryu at the time of dawn, before sunrise."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 467)

— "Both (gods and men) are the worshippers of this ruler; those who are to be desired (gods) and the mortals bearing oblations (are also worshippers); for this adorable invoker [sic] (of the gods), the protector of people and distributor of desired-for objects, was placed by the officiating priests (upon the altar), before [sic] the Sun was in the sky."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḥ), pp. 467–468 — ubhayāsaḥ: "here gods and men are praising Agni simultaneously; or the praisers by hymns and the sacrificers by sacrifices will satisfy Agni." uśijah: "the gods who desire everything (oblations); the word uśij is read in the Nirukta as 'wise' (Ni. 3-19 as read [?]: medhāvi nāmāny uttarāṇi caturviṃśatiḥ) — so also 'men who in sacrifices praise in many ways as wise ones'." divas cit pūrvaḥ: "that the Adhvaryu and other priests establish the fire that gives delight to the new [day], before the time of the sun's rising, on the sacrificial altar." viśpatiḥ: "viśam patiḥ: the protector of subjects." vedhāḥ: "the giver of the desired fruit to the Creator (Brahmā)."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁷ — śāsuḥ: śāsu anuśiṣṭau; tṛn tṛc (Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]): tṛn; no iṭ; genitive: ṛta ut; loss of t in the Veda; tṛn is nit: initial-acute. ubhayāsaḥ: ubhayor anyatra: aya-substitution

7. p. 468 — noted briefly

for ubha; ājjaserasuk; ru, visarga. uśijah: vaś kāntau; vaśaḥ kit (Uṇ. 3-... as read [?]): iji; grahijyā...: saṃprasāraṇa; saṃprasāraṇāca; suffix-accent: i acute. martāḥ: mṛñ prāṇatyāge; asihasimṛgrinvāvi...: tan; guṇa; initial-acute. āprcchyaḥ: prachchha jñīpsāyām; āñ before; chandasi niṣṭarkya... (Pā. 3-1-123): kyap; grahijyā...: saṃprasāraṇa of r; kyap is pit, anudātta: the root's accent stays. viśpatih: patyāv aiśvarye; pūrvapadaprakṛtisvara barred; pati ends in ṇi... pārādiś chandasi bahulam: initial-acute of the last member. vikṣu: locative plural; sāvekācas tṛtīyādiḥ. || 2 ||

original pp. 469–472

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

तं नव्यसी हृद आ जायमानमस्मत्सुकीर्तिर्मधुजिह्वमश्याः । यमृत्विजो वृजने मानुषासः प्रयस्वन्त आयवो जीजनन्त ॥ ३ ॥ taṃ navyasī hṛda ā jāyamānam asmat sukīrtir madhujihvam

aśyāḥ | yam ṛtvijo vṛjane mānuṣāsaḥ prayasvanta āyavo jījananta
|| 3 ||

Pada-pāṭha

तम् । नव्यसी । हृदः । आ । जायमानम् । अस्मत् । सुऽकीर्तिः । मधुऽजिह्वम् । अश्याः । यम् । ऋत्विजः । वृजने । मानुषासः । प्रयस्वन्तः । आयवः । जीजनन्त ॥ ३ ॥

tam | navyasī | hṛdaḥ | ā | jāyamānam | asmat | su-kīrtiḥ |
madhu-jihvam | aśyāḥ | yam | ṛtvijaḥ | vṛjane | mānuṣāsaḥ |
prayasvantaḥ | āyavaḥ | jījananta || 3 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

नव्यसी नवतरा सुकीर्तिः सुष्ठु कीर्तयिष्यस्मात् अस्माकं स्तुतिर्हृदो हृदयवर्त्तिनः
शास्त्राणाज्जायमानमुत्पद्यमानं । अग्निर्हि वायोरुत्पद्यते वायुश्च प्राण एव । यः प्राणः
स वायुरित्यादिना ब्राह्मणे । तं मधुजिह्वं मादयितृज्वालं । एवंभूतं तमग्निमाश्याः ।

आभिमुख्येन व्याप्नोतु । वृजने संग्रामे प्राप्ते सत्यायवो मनुष्या यमग्निं जीजनन्त
यज्ञार्थमुदपादयन् । कीदृशा मनुष्याः । ऋत्विजः ऋतौ काले यष्टारो मानुषासो मनोः पुत्राः प्रयस्वन्तो हविर्लक्षणान्नोपेताः ॥ *navyasī navatarā sukīrtiḥ suṣṭhu kīrtayitry asmāt asmākaṃ stutir

hr̥do hr̥dayavarttinaḥ sāt prāṇāj jāyamānam utpadyamānam |
agnir hi vāyor utpadyate vāyus ca prāṇa eva | yaḥ prāṇaḥ sa vāyur
ity ādinā brāhmaṇe | taṃ madhujihvaṃ mādāyitrjvālaṃ |
evambhūtaṃ tam agniṃ aśyāḥ | ābhimukhyena vyāpnotu | vṛjane saṃgrāme prāpte saty āyavo manuṣyā yam agniṃ jījananta yajñārtham udapādayan | kīdṛśā manuṣyāḥ | ṛtvijaḥ ṛtau kāle yaṣṭāro mānuṣāso manoḥ putrāḥ prayasvanto
havirlakṣaṇānnopetāḥ | |*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Navyasī, our newest, sukīrtiḥ, well-praising hymn asmāt, of ours, aśyāḥ, may it reach and pervade [turning to him] that Agni who is jāyamānam, being born from hr̥daḥ, the life-breath that abides in the heart — for Agni is born of the wind, and the wind is life-breath: 'what is the life-breath is the wind', in the Brāhmaṇa — madhujihvam, sweet-tongued, whose flame gladdens. Vṛjane, when battle has come, the āyavaḥ, men, yam jījananta, begot him for the sacrifice. What men? Ṛtvijaḥ, those who sacrifice at the right time; mānuṣāsaḥ, sons of Manu; prayasvantaḥ, equipped with food in the form of oblation."

Pratipadārtha — "navyasī — the newest; sukīrtiḥ — the well-praising; asmāt — our hymn; hr̥daḥ — born of the life-breath in the heart; jāyamānam — Agni being born; madhujihvam — sweet-flamed; yam — whom; vṛjane — when battle is at hand; ṛtvijaḥ — sacrificers at all times; mānuṣāsaḥ — sons of Manu; prayasvantaḥ — with oblation-food; āyavaḥ — men; jījananta — beget (for the sacrifice); taṃ — that Agni; ā aśyāḥ — may [the hymn] reach and join."

Bhāvārtha

— "May our newest and well-praising hymn go towards that Agni, born of the life-breath in the heart and sweet-flamed, whom, when battle is at hand, the sacrificers — sons of Manu, bearing oblation-food — beget for the sacrifice."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 470)

— "May our newest hymn reach that Agni, who is sweet-tongued, and is to be engendered in the heart; whom the descendants [sic] of Manu, sacrificing and presenting oblations to him, beget in the time of battle."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), pp. 470–471 — sukīrtiḥ: "suṣṭhu kīrtayitrī: a hymn that conveys fame in a praiseworthy manner." hṛdaḥ: "though the word hṛd means only 'heart', here by lakṣaṇā the life-breath inside the heart is meant. That Agni is born of the life-breath has been established by the authority agnir hi vāyor utpadyate vāyuś ca prāṇa eva yaḥ prāṇasya vāyuh." madhujihvam: "the tongue that tastes everything — i.e. flame; Agni is the one with such flame." ṛtvijaḥ: "ṛtau kāle yaṣṭāraḥ: those who, without passing the time, carry out rites like the agnihotra, offering oblations." mānuṣāsaḥ: "manoḥ putrāḥ: men."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁸ — navyasī: nava; dvivacanavibhajyopapade tarabīyasunau: īyasun; loss of a; the u and n are it; feminine ugitaś ca: ñīp (jīp, pīp: anudātta); īyasun is nīp: initial-acute; the ī lost in the Saṃhitā by Vedic licence. hṛdaḥ: hṛdaya; pady-ān-nas-hṛd... (Pā. 6-1-63): hṛd in the fifth singular; ūḍidam...: ending acute. jāyamānam: janī prādurbhāve; sānac; divādibhyaḥ śyan; jñājanor jā: jā; āne muk: muk; śyan is nīp: initial-acute; accusative. asmat: supām suluk: luk of ām. aśyāḥ: aśū vyāptau; liṅ second singular sip; itaś ca: loss of i; bahulam chandasi: śap dropped; vyatyayo bahulam: ātmanepada; yāsuṭ; liṅaḥ salopo 'nantyasya': loss of the s; nighāta. jījananta: janī

8. pp. 471–472 — noted briefly

prādurbhāve; hetumati ca: ṇic; luṇ, jha; ṇisridrusrubhyaḥ kartari caṇ: caṇ; doubling; sanvad bhāva; dīrgho laghoḥ: lengthening; nighāta; abhyastānām ādiḥ: initial-acute. | | 3 | |

original pp. 472–475

Rik 4

Samhitā-pāṭha

उशिक्पावकोऽवसुर्मानुषेषु वरेण्यो होताधायि विक्षु । दमूना गृहपतिर्दम आँ
अग्निर्भुवद्रयिपती रयीणाम् ॥ ४ ॥

⁹ — uśik pāvako vasur mānuṣeṣu vareṇyo hotādhāyi vikṣu | damūnā gṛhapatir dama ā agnir bhuvad rayipatī rayīṇām | | 4 | |

Pada-pāṭha

उशिक् । पावकः । वसुः । मानुषेषु । वरेण्यः । होता । अधायि । विक्षु । दमूनाः । गृहपतिः ।
दमे । आ । अग्निः । भुवत् । रयिपतिः । रयीणाम् ॥ ४ ॥

uśik | pāvakah | vasuḥ | mānuṣeṣu | vareṇyah | hotā | adhāyi | vikṣu | damūnāḥ | gr̥ha-patiḥ | dame | ā | agniḥ | bhuvat | rayi-patiḥ | rayīṇām | | 4 | |

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

उशिक् कामयमानः पावकः शोधको वसुर्निवासयिता वरेण्यो वरणशीलः एवंभूतो
होताग्निर्विक्षु यज्ञगृहं प्रविष्टेषु मानुषेषु यजमानेष्वधायि । स्थाप्यते । स चाग्निर्दमूना
रक्षसां दमनकरेण मनसा युक्तो गृहपतिर्गृहाणां पालयिता च सन्दमे यज्ञगृहे
रयिपतिर्धनाधिपतिरा भुवत् । आ समन्ताद्भवति । न केवलमेकस्य रयेरपि तु
सर्वेषामित्याह रयीणामिति । यद्वा । रयीणां मध्ये उत्कृष्टं यद्धनं तस्य पतिरित्यर्थः ॥

uśik kāmaya mānaḥ pāvakah śodhako vasur nivāsayitā vareṇyo varāṇaśīlaḥ evambhūto hotāgnir vikṣu yajñagr̥haṃ praviṣṭeṣu mānuṣeṣu yajamāneṣv adhāyi | sthāpyate | sa cāgnir damūnā

9. the print's Samhitā: "उशिक्पावको वसुर्मानुषेषु वरेण्यो होताधायि विक्षु । दमूना गृहपतिर्दम आ अग्निर्भुवद्रयिपती रयीणाम्" *rakṣasāṃ damanakareṇa manasā yukto gr̥hapatir gr̥hānāṃ pālayitā ca san dame yajñagr̥he rayipatir dhanādhipatir ā bhuvat |

ā samantād bhavati | na kevalam ekasya rayer api tu sarveṣāṃ ity
āha rayīnām iti | yadvā | rayīnāṃ madhye utkr̥ṣṭaṃ yad dhanam
tasya patir ity arthaḥ ||* ¹⁰

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Uśik, desiring; pāvakaḥ, purifier; vasuḥ, the giver of dwelling; vareṇyaḥ, the choice: such Agni, the hotṛ, adhāyi, is established vikṣu mānuṣeṣu, among the people, the sacrificers who have entered the sacrificial house. May that Agni, damūnāḥ, with a mind that tames the Rākṣasas, gr̥hapatīḥ, protector of homes, in the dame, sacrificial house, be rayipatīḥ, lord of wealth, completely (ā bhuvat) — not of one wealth only but rayīnām, of all kinds; or: lord of the best wealth among the wealths."

Pratipadārtha — "uśik — the beloved; pāvakaḥ — the purifier; vasuḥ — the giver of dwelling; vareṇyaḥ — the best; hotā — Agni; vikṣu — in the sacrificial house; mānuṣeṣu — among the sacrificers; adhāyi — is established (on the altar); agniḥ — that Agni; damūnāḥ — with a mind that destroys enemies; gr̥hapatīḥ — protector of the house; dame — in the sacrificial house; rayīnām — among the glorious possessions; rayipatīḥ — [being] the lord of the best wealth; ā bhuvat — may he be."

Bhāvārtha

— "Beloved, purifier, giver of dwelling and best, Agni is established among the sacrificers on the altar in the sacrificial house. May that Agni, with a mind that destroys enemies, protector of the house, be lord of the best wealth among the glorious possessions in the sacrificial house."

10. The tail, p. 472 foot: on uśik (vaś kāntau, kvip...), damūnāḥ (dama upaśame, ūnasi, Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]; Yāska: "damūnā damanā vā dānāmanā vā dāntamanā vāpi vā dama iti gr̥hanāma tanmanāḥ syāt", Ni. 4-4 [?]), gr̥hapatīḥ, dame, bhuvat (leṭ, aṭ), rayipatīḥ — characterized.

English Translation (the source's own, p. 473)

— "Agni, the desirable, the purifying, the giver of dwellings, the excellent, the invoker (of the gods) has been placed (upon the altar) among men; may he be determined upon subduing (our foes) the protector of our dwellings, and the lord of treasures in the sacrificial chamber."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 473 — uśik: "kāmāyamānaḥ: one who specially wishes [for the oblation]." damūnāḥ: "from the root dama upaśame: damayati rākṣasādikam iti damūnāḥ, one with a mind that destroys Rākṣasas; or, by the Nirukta (Nī. 4-4 [?]): damūnā damanā vā dānāmanā vā dāntamanā vāpi vā dama iti grhanāma tanmanāḥ syāt — it is explained also as 'one whose mind is on the house' (dama is a name of house)." rayipatiḥ rayīṇām: "rayīṇām madhye utkr̥ṣṭam yad dhanam tasya patiḥ: here rayi means wealth; he is not lord of wealth alone: that he has mastery over all kinds of lordship in the world is shown by the derivation as above." ā bhuvat: "āsamantāt bhavati: may he be wholly capable."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹¹ — uśik: vaś kāntau; kvip; grahijyā...: saṃprasāraṇa; kvip gives the loss of the suffix; cutva, kutva. damūnāḥ: dama upaśame; dameḥ ūnasiḥ...(Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]): ūnasi; nī: initial-acute? — the print gives "asun"-type end-acute; it is read as ñnityādir nityam, [?]. bhuvat: bhū sattāyām; leṭ; leṭo 'tātau: aṭ; itaś ca lopāḥ parasmaipadeṣu; bhūsuvos tiñi: no guṇa; uvañ. rayipatiḥ: parādiś chandasi bahulam: initial-acute of the last member. rayīṇām: nāmanyatarasyām: acute on nām. ¹²

11. pp. 474– — noted briefly

12. The remaining grammar on this Rik is on p. 474 (PDF 490) and is noted with Rik 5's text below.

Rik 4 , grammar (end) (p. 474, PDF 490 — Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā, noted briefly)

Grammar page, noted briefly. adhāyi: root ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ (dhā); Vedic luñ in the passive sense, ta; ciṇ bhāvakarmaṇoḥ: ciṇ replaces ta; āto yuk ciṇkṛtoḥ (Pā. 7-3-33 as read [?]): augment yuk; ciṇo luk: loss of what follows ciṇ; the augment aṭ on the base; the accent is nighāta because the word follows a non-verb (atiñanta). vikṣu: viś, locative plural; sāvekācas tṛtīyādīḥ: acute on the ending. damūnāḥ: dama upasame; dameḥ ūnasiḥ (Uṇ. 4-[?]): suffix ūnasi, giving damūnas. The print cites Yāska (Nī. 4-4 [?]) as in the Special Topics: "damūnā damanā vā dānamanā vā dāntamanā vāpi vā dama iti grhanāma tanmanāḥ syāt" — "one who becomes calm, whose mind is on giving, or whose mind is restrained; or dama is a name for 'house', so 'whose mind is on it'." dama ā agniḥ: ā ño 'nunāsikaś chandasi (Pā. 6-1-126 as read [?]): the ā is nasalized and keeps its own form (prakṛtibhāva). bhuvat: bhū sattāyām; leṭ, tip; itaś ca lopah parasmaipadeṣu: loss of i; leṭo 'ṭāṭau: aṭ; bahulam chandasi: loss of śap; tiñanta nighāta. rayipatiḥ: genitive tatpuruṣa; parādiś chandasi bahulam (Pā. 6-2-[?]): initial-acute on the last member. rayiṇām: genitive plural; hrasvanadyāpo nuṭ: nuṭ; nāmi: lengthening; nāmanyatarasyām (Pā. 6-1-[?]): acute on nām.

original pp. 474–478

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha ¹³

तं त्वा वयं पतिमग्ने रयीणां प्र शंसामो मतिभिर्गोतमासः । आशुं न वाजंभरं मर्जयन्तः प्रातर्मक्षू धियावसुर्जगम्यात् ॥ ५ ॥

*taṃ tvā vayaṃ patim agne rayiṇāṃ pra śaṃsāmo matibhir gotamāsaḥ | āśuṃ na vājaṃbharaṃ marjayantaḥ prātar makṣū
dhiyāvasur jagamyāt || 5 ||*

13. p. 474, foot

Pada-pāṭha

तम् । त्वा । वयम् । पतिम् । अग्ने । रयीणाम् । प्र । शंसामः । मतिऽभिः । गोतमासः । आशुम् । न । वाजम्ऽभरम् । मर्जयन्तः । प्रातः । मक्षु । धियाऽवसुः । जगम्यात् ॥ ५ ॥

tam | tvā | vayam | patim | agne | rayīṇām | pra | śaṃsāmaḥ |
mati-bhiḥ | gotamāsaḥ | āśum | na | vājam-bharam |
marjayantaḥ | prātaḥ | makṣu | dhiyā-vasuḥ | jagamyāt || 5 || ¹⁴

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

गोतमासो गोतमगोत्रोत्पन्ना वयं । नोधसः स्तोतुरेकत्वेऽप्यात्मनि पूजार्थं बहुवचनं ।
हे अग्ने रयीणां धनानां पतिं रक्षितारं तादृशं त्वा त्वां मतिभिर्मननीयैः स्तोत्रैः
प्रशंसामः प्रकर्षेण स्तुमः । किं कुर्वन्तः । वाजंभरं वाजस्य हविर्लक्षणान्नस्य भर्तारं
त्वां मर्जयन्तो मार्जयन्तः । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । आशुं न अश्वमिव । यथाश्वमारोहन्तः
पुरुषास्तस्य वहनप्रदेशं हस्तैर्मृजन्ति । तद्वद्वयमस्याग्नेर्हविर्वहनप्रदेशं संमृजन्त
इत्यर्थः । तथा चाग्निसंमार्जनप्रकरणे वाजसनेयिभिराम्नातं । अथ मध्ये तूष्णीमेव
त्रिः संमार्ष्टि यथा युक्त्वा प्रेहि वहेति व्रजेदेवमेतदग्निं युक्त्वोपेक्षते [?] प्रेहि देवेभ्यो
हव्यं वहेति । धियावसुः कर्मणा बुद्ध्या वा प्राप्तधनः सोऽग्निः । प्रातः श्रोभूतस्याहः
प्रातःकाले मक्षु शीघ्रं जगम्यात् । आगच्छतु ॥ मतिभिः । मन ज्ञान इत्यस्मात्कर्मणि
क्तिन् । मन्त्रे वृषेत्यादिना तस्योदात्तत्वं । वाजंभरं । अग्नेरेषा वैदिकी संज्ञा ।
संज्ञायां भृतृवृजीति । पा. ३-२-४६ [?] । वाजशब्दे कर्मण्युपपदे खच्प्रत्ययः ।
आरुर्द्विषदजन्तस्य मुम् । पा. ६-३-६७ [?] । इति मुमागमः । चित इत्यन्तोदात्तत्वं
। मर्जयन्तः । संज्ञापूर्वकस्य विधेरनित्यत्वात् मृजेवृद्धिः । पा. ७-२-११४ । इति
वृद्धिभावः । अदुपदेशाल्लसार्वधातुकानुदात्तत्वे णिच एव स्वरः शिष्यते । जगम्यात् । लिङि बहुलं छन्दसीति शपः श्लुः ॥

gotamāso gotamagotrotpannā vayam | nodhasaḥ stotur ekatve 'py
ātmani pūjārthaṃ bahuvacanaṃ | he agne rayīṇām dhanānām patim rakṣitāraṃ tādr̥śaṃ tvā tvām matibhir mananīyaiḥ stotraiḥ praśaṃsāmaḥ prakarṣeṇa stumaḥ | kiṃ kurvantaḥ |

14. Reading note: the Saṃhitā prints a long ū in makṣū before dhiyā°; the Pada has short makṣu; the grammar page (p. 477) explains the lengthening as a Saṃhitā change.

vājaṃbharam vājasya havirlakṣaṇānnasya bhartāraṃ tvāṃ marjayantaḥ | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | āśuṃ na aśvam iva | yathāśvam ārohantaḥ puruṣās tasya vahanapradeśaṃ hastair mrjanti | tadvad vayam asyāgner havirvahanapradeśaṃ
 saṃmrjanta ity arthaḥ | tathā cāgnisaṃmārjanaprakaraṇe
 vājasaneyibhir āmnātaṃ | atha madhye tūṣṇīm eva triḥ saṃmārṣṭi yathā yuktivā prehi vaheti vrajed evam etad agniṃ yuktvopekṣate [?] prehi devebhyo havyaṃ vaheti | dhiyāvasuḥ karmaṇā buddhyā vā prāptadhanaḥ so 'gniḥ | prātaḥ śvobhūtasyāhnaḥ prātaḥkāle
 makṣu śīghraṃ jagamyāt | āgacchatu | | ¹⁵

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Gotamāsaḥ: we, born in the Gotama line. Although the singer Nodhas is one, the plural is used of himself as a mark of honour. O Agni, rayīṇām patim, the lord and protector of riches — such a one, you — we praise (pra śaṃsāmaḥ), laud highly, with matibhiḥ, hymns worthy of thought. Doing what? Marjayantaḥ, rubbing down (cleansing) you, vājaṃbharam, the bearer of vāja, food in the form of oblation. Here is the illustration: āśuṃ na, as if a horse. As men who mount a horse wipe with their hands the place on its back that carries them, so we wipe the place of Agni that carries the oblation — such is the meaning. And so it is handed down by the Vājasaneyins in the section on wiping Agni: 'Then in the middle, silently, he wipes three times; as one who, having yoked, might go off saying "go forth, carry", so here, having yoked Agni, he [urges?

15. The grammatical tail, p. 475, characterized, not transcribed: on matibhiḥ — root mana jñāne, ktin in the passive sense, mantre vṛṣeṣa... (Pā. 3-3-96 as read [?]) acute on the suffix; on vājaṃbharam — "this is a Vedic name of Agni"; saṃjñāyāṃ bhrṭvṛji... (Pā. 3-2-46 as read [?]): khac after vāja in the object; ārurdviṣad ajantasya mum (Pā. 6-3-67 as read [?]): augment mum; end-acute from citah; on marjayantaḥ — "since a rule that contains a technical name is not constant", the vṛddhi of mrj (Pā. 7-2-114) does not occur; of the accents of lasārvadhātuka after a base ending in a, only that of ṇic remains; on jagamyāt — liṇi bahulaṃ chandasi: śap replaced by śluḥ.

— reading doubtful] "go forth, carry the oblation to the gods".
Dhiyāvasuḥ: that Agni who has obtained wealth through rite or through intelligence. Prātaḥ: at the morning time of the coming day; makṣu, quickly, jagamyāt, may he come."

Pratipadārtha — "agne — O Agni; gotamāsaḥ — we, born in the Gotama line; vayam — we; rayīṇām — of riches; patim — the protector; tam tvā — that you; matibhiḥ — with hymns worthy of acceptance; āśum na — like a horse (that a rider rubs down); vājambharam — you who are the lord of food in the form of oblation; marjayantaḥ — rubbing [you] clean; pra śaṃsāmaḥ — we praise; dhiyāvasuḥ — Agni, who has wealth obtained through pure rite or intelligence; prātaḥ — in the morning; makṣu — with vigilance; jagamyāt — may he come."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Agni, we who are born in the Gotama line praise you, the protector of riches, with hymns worthy of acceptance, rubbing clean you, who are lord of food in the form of oblation, as a rider rubs down a horse. May Agni, who has gained wealth by pure rite, come vigilantly to the place of sacrifice in the morning."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 476) — "We, born of the race of Gotama, praise you, Agni. the protector of riehes [sic], with desirable hymns ; rubbing you, the bearer of oblations (as a rider rubs down) a horse ; may he who has acquired riehes [sic] by sacred rites, come hither quickly in the morning." ¹⁶

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 476 — gotamāsaḥ: "Those born in the Gotama line. This is an epithet of the word vayam, and is plural; although in the present context the praiser is one person, the plural is used, to signal a self-respect that is worship [i.e. a due dignity]." matibhiḥ — mananīyaiḥ stotraiḥ: "by speeches of praise that concern knowledge; a word formed from the root mana jñāne." vājaṃbharam: "vāja is food joined with oblation (Ni. 3-[?], the numeral as read [?]); the lord of such food, Agni, is vājaṃbhara." āśuṃ na — aśvam iva: "Here the section on wiping (saṃmārjana) of Agni is indicated. As those who mount a horse first cleanse the back of the horse, so they first cleanse, by wiping and the like, that Agni who offers the oblation to the deities. In the section on wiping of Agni the Vājasaneyā mantra runs thus: atha madhye tūṣṇīm eva triḥ saṃmārṣti yathā yuktivā prehi vaheti vrajed evam etad agniṃ yuktvopekṣate prehi devebhyo havyaṃ vaha [the last verbs as read, [?]]" — three layers:

16. Printing marks as in the source: "Agni." with a full stop for a comma [sic]; "riches" twice misprinted "riehes"/"riehe" [sic].

अथ मध्ये तूष्णीमेव त्रिः संमार्ष्टि यथा युक्त्वा प्रेहि वहेति व्रजेदेवमेतदग्निं युक्तवोपेक्षते प्रेहि देवेभ्यो हव्यं वह ।

atha madhye tūṣṇīm eva triḥ saṃmārṣti yathā yuktivā prehi vaheti vrajed evam etad agniṃ yuktvopekṣate [?] prehi devebhyo havyaṃ vaha | — "Then, in the middle, silently, he wipes thrice; as one having yoked might go off [saying] 'go forth, carry', so he, having yoked Agni, [urges him]: 'Go forth, carry the oblation to the gods.'" (Gloss editorial and tentative; the Vājasaneyā-brāhmaṇa numeral is not given in the print.) dhiyāvasuḥ: "karmanā buddhyā vā prāptadhanaḥ so 'gniḥ: by rite or by intelligence, Agni who has gained all lordship [of wealth]."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁷ — Grammar page, noted briefly. śaṃsāmaḥ: śaṃsu stutau; laṭ, first person plural; nighāta accent, since it follows a non-verb. matibhiḥ: mana jñāne; ktin in the passive; anudāttopadeśa...: loss of the nasal n of the root; as the base would take initial-acute, mantrē vṛṣeṣa... (Pā. 3-3-96 as read [?]) puts the acute on the suffix. gotamāsaḥ: nominative plural: ājjaśer asuk: augment asuk. vājaṃbharam: "a Vedic name of Agni"; ḍubhṛñ bharāṇe; with vāja as the object-word, saṃjñāyāṃ bhṛtrvr̥ji... (Pā. 3-2-46 as read [?]): khac;

17. p. 477, PDF 493, and the top of p. 478 — noted briefly

sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ: guṇa of the root, its own letter being a mark; ārurdivṣad ajantasya mum (Pā. 6-3-67 as read [?]): mum after the a-ending vāja; mid aco 'ntyāt paraḥ: placed after the last vowel; khac has c as mark: citaḥ: end-acute. marjayantaḥ: mṛjū śuddhau; hetumati ca: ṇic; because the rule is "not constant where a technical name is part of the rule", mṛjer vṛddhiḥ (Pā. 7-2-114) does not apply here; then śatṛ, śap; guṇa of the ṇic, ay; as it is after an a-ending base, the lasārvadhātuka is made anudātta, the ṇic accent remains; nominative plural, ugit: nuṃ (the sūtra ugidacām... as read [?]), n → anusvāra by parasavarṇa; the s of jas: ruttva and visarga. mākṣū: lengthening in the Saṃhitā by a rule beginning ṛcitunugha... (as read [?]). jagamyāt: gamḷ gatau; liṅ, third singular tip; itaś ca lopah: loss of i; bahulaṃ chandasi: śap replaced by śluḥ; ślau: reduplication; for the reduplicative syllable halādiśeṣa; kuhoś cuḥ: g → j; yāsuṭ parasmaipadeṣūdātto ṇic ca: yāsuṭ; suṭ tithoḥ: suṭ; liṅaḥ salopo 'nantyasya: both s lost (the last piece, on p. 478, partly clipped at the top of the page); tiṅ atīṅaḥ (as read [?]): nighāta.

Close of Sūkta 60

The print closes with a single line (p. 478): "ಅರವತ್ತನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು ಸಮಾಪ್ತವು" — aravattaneya sūktavu samāptavu — "The sixtieth sūkta is complete."

Sūkta 60 (Maṇḍala 1, Eleventh Anuvāka, 5 Riks; ṛṣi Nodhas Gautama; deity Agni; Triṣṭubh) — printed pp. 461–478, PDF 477–494. Agni is the carrier of oblations, famous, brought by Mātariśvan to Bhṛgu (1); served by gods and men, he is set on the altar at dawn (2); born in the heart from the life-breath, sweet-tongued, begotten by Manu's sons in battle (3); the desirable purifier, protector of the house and lord of the best wealth (4); and a closing prayer, by the Gotama poets, comparing the wiping of Agni to the rubbing down of a horse and asking that he come early in the morning (5).¹⁸

18. Fourth sūkta of the Eleventh Anuvāka.

Sūkta 61 — "asmā id u"

original p. 478

ಅರವತ್ತೊಂದನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು — ¹

Sāyaṇa's introduction (p. 478)

अस्मा इदु प्र तवस इति षोडशर्चं चतुर्थं सूक्तं । नोधस आर्षमैन्द्रं त्रैष्टुभं । अनुक्रान्तं
च । अस्मा इदु षोळशेति । अस्य सूक्तस्य नोधा दृष्टेत्येतद्ब्राह्मणे सामान्नायते ।
अस्मा इदु प्र तवसे तुरायेति नोधास्त एते प्रातःसवने । ऐ. ब्रा. ६-१८ [?] । इति ॥
षळहस्तोत्रियीयावापवत्सु [?] चतुर्विंशमहाव्रतादिष्वहःसु माध्यंदिने सवने
ब्राह्मणाच्छंसिनः शस्त्रे ब्रह्मा ते ब्रह्मयुजेत्यस्या आरम्भणीयाया
ऊर्ध्वमहीनसूक्तसंज्ञमेतच्छंसनीयं । तथा च सूत्रितं । अस्मा इदु प्र तवसे
शासद्वहिरितीतरावहीनसूक्ते । आ. ७-४ [?] । इति । ब्राह्मणं च भवति । त एते
प्रातःसवने षळहस्तोत्रियीयाञ्छस्त्वा माध्यंदिनेऽहीनसूक्तानि शंसन्तीति ॥

asmā id u pra tavasa iti ṣoḍaśarcaṃ caturthaṃ sūktaṃ | nodhasa
ārṣam aindraṃ traiṣṭubhaṃ | anukrāntaṃ ca | asmā id u ṣoḷaśeti
| asya sūktasya nodhā dṛṣṭety etad brāhmaṇe samāmnāyate |
asmā id u pra tavase turāyeti nodhās ta ete prātaḥsavane | ai. brā.
6-18 [?] | iti || ṣaḷahastotriyīyāvāpavatsu [?]
caturviṃśamahāvratādiṣv ahaḥsu mādhyam̐dine savane brāhmaṇācchaṃsinaḥ śāstre brahmā te brahmayujety asyā ārambhaṇīyā ūrdhvam ahīnasūktasaṃjñam etac chaṃsanīyaṃ |

1. Kannada heading: "the sixty-first sūkta"

*tathā ca sūtritaṃ | asmā id u pra tavase śāsad vahnir itītarāv
ahīnasūkte | ā. 7-4 [?] | iti | brāhmaṇaṃ ca bhavati | ta ete prātaḥsavane ṣaḥastotriyāñ chastvā mādhyamdine
'hīnasūktāni śaṃsantīti | |*

Translation: "'Asmā id u pra tavase': the fourth sūkta [of the anuvāka], of sixteen Riks; the seer is Nodhas, the deity Indra, the metre Triṣṭubh. So the Anukramaṇī: 'asmā id u ṣoḷaśa'. That Nodhas is the seer of this sūkta is handed down in the Brāhmaṇa: 'asmā id u pra tavase turāya' — these are the Nodhas [hymns] at the morning pressing (Ait. Br. 6-18 [?]). On the days such as the Caturviṃśa and the Mahāvrata, [which have the ṣaḍaha-hymn recitations — wording of the compound doubtful [?]], at the midday pressing, in the recitation of the Brāhmaṇacchaṃsin, after the opening Rik 'brahmā te brahmayujā', this is to be recited, called the ahīna-sūkta. And so it is aphorized: 'asmā id u pra tavase' and 'śāsad vahnīḥ' are the other two ahīna-sūktas (Āśv. 7-4 [?]). And the Brāhmaṇa says: 'those, having recited the ṣaḍaha hymns at the morning pressing, recite the ahīna-sūktas at the midday pressing.'

Anuvāda (Kannada, p. 478) — "This sūkta, asmā id u pra tavase, is the fourth in the eleventh anuvāka. It has sixteen Riks. The seer of the sūkta is Nodhas; the deity Indra; the metre Triṣṭubh. The Anukramaṇikā says: 'asmā id u ṣoḷaśa'. That Nodhas saw this sūkta is stated in the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa: 'asmā id u pra tavase turāya ... nodhās ta ete prātaḥsavane' (Ait. Br. 6-18 [?]). In sacrifices such as the Caturviṃśa and Mahāvratā (those having the ṣaḷaha hymns), the brāhmaṇācchaṃsin priest is to recite at the midday pressing, in the śāstra mantras that he must recite, this sūkta, called the ūrdhvam-ahīna-sūkta, after beginning with the Rik 'brahmā te brahmayujā'; this is explained by the Āśvalāyana Śrauta Sūtra in the sūtra 'asmā id u pra tavase śāsad vahnir itītarāv ahīnasūkte' (Āśv. 7-4 [?]). On this point there is a Brāhmaṇa sentence: 'ta ete prātaḥsavane ṣaḷahastotriyīyāñ chastvā mādhyamā dine 'hīnasūktāni śaṃsanti.'" ²

Heading block of Sūkta 61 (p. 479, PDF 495)

Maṇḍala 1 · Anuvāka 11 · Sūkta 61 · Aṣṭaka 1 · Adhyāya 4 · Vargas 27, 28, 29 [as read, [?]] · Riks in the sūkta: 16 · Ṛṣi: Nodhas Gautama · Deity: Indra · Metre: Triṣṭubh.

original pp. 479–482

Rik 1

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु प्र तवसे तुराय प्रयो न हर्मि स्तोमं माहिनाय । ऋचीषमायाग्निगव ओहमिन्द्राय ब्रह्माणि राततमा ॥ १ ॥

*asmā id u pra tavase turāya prayo na harmi stomaṃ māhināya |
ṛcīṣamāyādhrigava ohaṃ indrāya brahmāṇi rātataṃ || 1 ||* ³

2. The numerals of the Brāhmaṇa and sūtra references are small and unclear in the print: all marked [?].

3. Reading note: the print's Samhitā has "ओहमिन्द्राय" with the anusvāra written, i.e. ohamindrāya; ohaṃ is given as the Pada does.

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । प्र । तवसे । तुराय । प्रयः । न । हर्मि । स्तोमम् । माहिनाय । ऋचीषमाय । अध्रिऽगवे । ओहम् । इन्द्राय । ब्रह्माणि । राततमा ॥ १ ॥

asmai | it | ūṃ iti | pra | tavase | turāya | prayah | na | harmi |
stomam | māhināya | ṛcīṣamāya | adhri-gave | oham | indrāya | brahmāṇi | rātata mā || 1 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

इदु इति निपातद्वयं पादपूरणे । अथापि पादपूरणाः कमीमिदु इति [?] यास्कः ।
यद्वा । अवधारणार्थं । तवसे प्रवृद्धाय तुराय त्वरमाणाय । यद्वा । तुर्वित्रे [?] शत्रूणां
हिसित्रे । माहिनाय गुणैर्महते ऋचीषमाय ऋचा समाय । यादृशी स्तुतिः क्रियते
तत्समायेत्यर्थः । अध्रिगवेऽधृतगमनाय । अप्रतिहतगमनायेत्यर्थः । तथा च यास्कः
। अधृतकर्मण्यपीन्द्रोऽस्यध्रिगुरुच्यते । नि. ५-११ [?] । इति । एवंभूतायास्मा
इन्द्राय स्तोमं स्तोत्रं प्र हर्मि । प्रहरामि । करोमीत्यर्थः । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । प्रयो न ।
प्रय इत्यन्ननाम । यथा बुभुक्षिताय पुरुषाय कश्चिदन्नं प्रहरति । कीदृशं स्तोमं ।
ओहं । वहनीयं प्रापणीयं वा । अत्यन्तोत्कृष्टमित्यर्थः । न केवलं स्तोमं किन्तर्हि
ब्रह्माणि हविर्लक्षणान्नानि । कीदृशानि । राततमा । पूर्वैर्यजमानैरतिशयेन दत्तानि । इन्द्रं स्तुत्या हविषा च परिचरेमेति भावः ॥

idu iti nipātadvayaṃ pādapūraṇe | athāpi pādapūraṇāḥ kam īm id
u iti [?] yāskah | yadvā | avadhāraṇārthaṃ | tavase pravṛddhāya
turāya tvaramāṇāya | yadvā | turvitre [?] śatrūṇāṃ hiṃsitre |
māhināya guṇair mahate ṛcīṣamāya ṛcā samāya | yādrśī stutiḥ
kriyate tatsamāyety arthaḥ | adhrigave 'dhr̥tagamanāya |
apratihatagamanāyety arthaḥ | tathā ca yāskah | adhr̥takarmaṇy
apīndro 'syadhrigur ucyate | nī. 5-11 [?] | iti | evaṃbhūtāyāsmā
indrāya stomam stotram pra harmi | praharāmi | karomīty arthaḥ | tatra dr̥ṣṭāntaḥ | prayo na | paya [read: praya] ity annanāma | yathā bubhuṣitāya puruṣāya kaścid annam praharati |
kīdr̥śam stomam | oham | vahanīyam prāpaṇīyam vā |
atyantotkr̥ṣṭam ity arthaḥ | na kevalam stomam kintarhi

*brahmāṇi havirlakṣaṇānnāni | kīdrśāni | rātataṁ | pūrvair yajamānair atīṣayena dattāni | indraṁ stutyā haviṣā ca
paricaremeti bhāvaḥ ||* ⁴

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Id and u are two particles, used to fill out the line (pāda); Yāska too says that 'kam, īm, id, u' are line-fillers [reading of the list [?]]; or they are for emphasis. Tavase: to the grown-great; turāya: to the swift; or [with a different derivation: turvitre [?]], to the destroyer of foes. Māhināya: great by his qualities; rcīṣamāya: equal to the Ṛk — he who is equal to whatever praise is made. Adhrigave: to him of unrestrained going, i.e. of unobstructed going; so Yāska: 'Indra, even in the matter of one who is unrestrained, is called adhrigu' (Ni. 5-11 [?]). To such an Indra, I pra harmi, offer, make a stoma, a hymn. Illustration: prayo na, like food — prayaḥ is a name for food — as one offers food to a hungry man. What kind of hymn? Oham: fit to be carried, to be conveyed — i.e. exceedingly choice. Not the hymn only: but also brahmāṇi, offerings of food in the form of oblations. What kind? Rātataṁ: most abundantly given by earlier sacrificers. The thought is: 'let us serve Indra with praise and with oblation.'"

Grammatical tail of the bhāṣya ⁵: turāya — root tura tvarāṇe, with the suffix ka (igupadha...); alternatively turvī hiṁsāyām, turvati iti turaḥ, pacādi [ac], loss of v by Vedic licence; harmi — hṛñ harāṇe, loss of śap (bahulaṁ chandasī); māhināya — maha pūjāyām, the inaṇ suffix (maher inaṇ ca, Uṇ. 2-[?] as read [?]) with vṛddhi of the penultimate; rcīṣamāya — Yāska's rcīṣamam rcā samaḥ (Ni. 6-[?] [?]); a ṛtīyā-tatpuruṣa (Pā. 2-1-30 as read [?]), accent of the first member's own base; the ī inserted as in the pṛṣodarādi class, ṣatva by the suṣāmādi class; "some say" it is from ṛca stutau (igupadhāt kit); the discussion of the resulting

4. Reading note: "prayo na | prayaḥ ity anna-nāma" — the print has praya ity anna-nāma; It is read as prayaḥ, [?]. The grammatical tail, p. 480, is characterized, not transcribed, below.

5. p. 480 — characterized, not transcribed

accent is characterized only; adhṛigave — adhṛta + gu, ukāra by ici ik hrasvādeṣe, pr̥ṣodarādi: adhṛ for adhṛta; oḥam — root vah, ghaṇ by bahula in the passive; rātataṃ — root rā dāne, cta, tama, loss of śi by śeś chandasi bahulam.⁶

Pratipadārtha — "tavase — to the strong; turāya — to the swift-going, or the injurer of enemies; māhināya — to the great in qualities; ṛcīṣamāya — to the one suited to the hymn; adhṛigave — to the one of unobstructed going; asmai indrāya — to this Indra; oḥam — excellent; stomam — the hymn; rātataṃ — [oblations] given with love [by former sacrificers]; brahmāṇi — oblations and hymns; prayo na — as food [is given to the hungry]; pra harmi — I offer well."

Bhāvārtha

— "To Indra, strong, swift-going, great in qualities, suited to the hymn, of unobstructed going, I offer an excellent hymn, and oblations given lovingly by the former sacrificers, as one gives food to the hungry; so I offer."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 481)

— "I offer acceptable adorations and oblations, offered by the preceeding [sic] sacrificers, to that powerful, quick-coursing, mighty, praiseworthy and unobstructed Indra, as food (to a hungry man)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayagaḷu), p. 481 — it-u: "these are classed in grammar as particles (nipāta); they have no meaning here; they are placed to fill out the line. The Nirukta writers also give, as line-fillers in the Veda, certain words — kam, īm, id, u [list as read [?]] — 'athāpi pādapūraṇāḥ kam īm id u iti.'" turāya: "tvaramāṇāya — the one who goes with vigilance; or turvitre śatrūṇāṃ hṛṃsitre — the destroyer of enemies: both ways it is explained." ṛcīṣamāya — ṛcā samāya: "an epithet of the word

6. Grammar, noted briefly; sūtra numbers not legible at 150 dpi are not given.

Indra: whatever manner of praise is in the Riks, he has qualities of just that kind. ṛcīṣamaḥ ṛcāsamaḥ (Ni. 6-[?] [?])." adhṛigave — adhṛtagamanāya: "one of unhindered going. adhṛtakarmaṇy apīndro 'syadhṛiguḥ ucyate (Ni. 5-11 [?]) — the Nirukta writer himself has used adhṛigu as a synonym of the word Indra in this sense." prayo na — praya iva: "the word prayas appears in the Nirukta (Ni. 3-9 [?]) as a synonym of food." oham: "from vah: fit to be carried; or fit to be offered: both meanings are made plain."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁷ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. turāya: tura tvarāṇe; igupadhajñāprikiraḥ kaḥ (Pā. 3-1-135 as read [?]): ka; the k being it, no laghūpadha-guṇa; or turvī hiṃsārthaḥ, turvatīti turaḥ; nandigrahapacādibhyo lyuṇinyacaḥ: ac; loss of v in the Veda; citaḥ: end-acute; dative. harmi: hṛñ harāṇe, laṭ first person, mip; bahulaṃ chandasi: loss of śap; guṇa of the root, on account of the suffix; nighāta after a non-verb. ⁸ māhināya: maha pūjāyām; inaṇ; the ṇ being it: ato 'upadhāyāḥ: vṛddhi of the penultimate; dative. ṛcīṣamāya: ṛtīyā tatkr̥tārthena... (Pā. 2-1-30); tatpuruṣa; ṛtīyāpūrvapada-prakṛtisvara; by pr̥ṣodarādi the ī; suṣāmādiṣu ca (Pā. 8-3-98 as read [?]): ṣatva of the s in sama. "Some say": root ṛca stutau, igupadhāt kit (Uṇ. 4-[?]): i; since kit, no guṇa: ṛci; for the feminine kdikārādaktinaḥ (jīṣ): ṛcīṣ, "praise", and "equal to it" = ṛcīṣama; ṣatva as before; on this view the first-member accent should be audible, since jīṣ is acute, but the Samhitā shows no such accent, so the matter of accent must be considered — or one should say the Divodāsādi group is an ākṛtigāṇa and includes it. adhṛigave: adhṛtaḥ anyena anivārīto gaur gamanaṃ yasya saḥ adhṛigur; goṣṭriyōr upasarjanasya (Pā. 1-2-48): shortening, since go is subordinate in the compound; ici ik hrasvādeṣe: the u; pr̥ṣodarādi: adhṛta → adhṛ; dative. oham: vaha prāpaṇe; by bahula: ghañ in the passive; Vedic saṃprasāraṇa of v; saṃprasāraṇāc ca: the former form; uh + a, guṇa of the

7. pp. 481–482 — noted briefly

8. The print here says "bahuvacana" for the mip ending; mip is the singular ending: noted [?], not adjusted.

penultimate; or from tuhir duhir uhir arthane, ghañ as before; ñit: initial-acute (ñnityādir nityam). rātataṃā: rā dāne; kta: rāta; tamap; in the neuter śi; śeś chandasi bahulam: loss of śi.

original pp. 483–485

Rik 2

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु प्रय इव प्र यंसि भराम्याङ्गूषं बाधे सुवृक्ति । इन्द्राय हृदा मनसा मनीषा प्रत्नाय पत्ये धियो मर्जयन्त ॥ २ ॥

asmā id u praya iva pra yaṃsi bharāmy āṅgūṣaṃ bādhe suvrkti |
indrāya hṛdā manasā manīṣā pratnāya patye dhiyo marjayanta | |
2 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । प्रयःऽइव । प्र । यंसि । भरामि । आङ्गूषम् । बाधे । सुऽवृक्ति । इन्द्राय । हृदा । मनसा । मनीषा । प्रत्नाय । पत्ये । धियः । मर्जयन्त ॥ २ ॥

asmai | it | ūṃ iti | prayah-iva | pra | yaṃsi | bharāmi | āṅgūṣam
| bādhe | su-vṛkti | indrāya | hṛdā | manasā | manīṣā | pratnāya
| patye | dhiyaḥ | marjayanta | | 2 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्मा इदु अस्मा एवेन्द्राय । प्रय इत्यन्ननाम । प्रय इवान्नमिव प्र यंसि । प्रयच्छामि
। तदेव स्पष्टीक्रियते । बाधे शत्रूणां बाधनाय समर्थं सुवृक्ति सुष्टुवावर्जकमाङ्गूषं
स्तोत्ररूपमाघोषं भरामि । संपादयामि । अन्येऽपि स्तोतारः प्रत्नाय पुराणाय पत्ये
स्वामिन इन्द्राय हृदा हृदयेन मनसा तदन्तर्वर्तिनान्तःकरणेन मनीषा मनीषया
तज्ज्ञानेन ज्ञानेन च धियः स्तुतीः कर्माणि वा मर्जयन्त । मार्जयन्ति । संस्कुर्वन्ति ।
प्र यंसि । यम उपरम इत्यस्माल्लटि पुरुषव्यत्ययः । बहुलं छन्दसीति शपो लुक् ।
आङ्गूषं । आङ्गूषः स्तोम आघोषः । नि. ३-११ [?] इति यास्कः ।
आङ्पूर्वाद्धुषेर्घञि पृषोदरादित्वाद्धो इत्यस्य गू आदेशः । आजो जकारस्य
लोपाभावश्च । थाथादिनोत्तरपदान्तोदात्तत्वं । बाधे । बाधृ विलोडन इत्यस्मात्कृत्यार्थे

तवैकेनिति भावे केन्द्रत्ययः । एजन्तत्वादव्ययत्वेन सुपो लुक् । मनीषा । सुपां
 सुलुगिति तृतीयाया डादेशः । पत्ये । पतिः समास एव । पा. १-४-८ । इति
 घिसंज्ञायाः समासविषयत्वात् घेडितीति गुणाभावे यणादेशः ॥

*asmā id u asmā evendrāya | praya ity anna-nāma | praya ivānnam
 iva pra yaṃsi | prayacchāmi | tad eva spaṣṭīkriyate | bādhe śatrūṇāṃ bādhanāya samartham suvrkti suṣṭhv āvarjakam āṅgūṣaṃ stotrarūpam āghoṣaṃ bharāmi | saṃpādayāmi | anye 'pi stotāraḥ pratnāya purānāya patye svāmīna indrāya hṛdā hṛdayena manasā tadantarvartinā 'ntaḥkaraṇena manīṣā manīṣayā tajjñānena jñānena ca dhiyaḥ stutīḥ karmāṇi vā marjayanta |
 mārjayanti | saṃskurvanti | pra yaṃsi | yama uparama ity asmāl
 laṭi puruṣavyatyayaḥ | bahulaṃ chandasīti śapo luk | āṅgūṣaṃ |
 āṅgūṣaḥ stoma āghoṣaḥ | nī. 3-11 [?] iti yāskaḥ | āṇpūrvād ghuṣer
 ghañi pṛṣodarādītivād gho ity asya gū ādeśaḥ | āṇo jakārasya [sic
 — print reads so; probably the ṇ] lopābhāvaś ca |
 thāthādinottarapadāntodāttatvaṃ | bādhe | bādhr viloḍana ity
 asmāt kṛtyārthe tavaikeneti bhāve ken-pratyayaḥ | ejantatvād
 avyayatvena supo luk | manīṣā | supāṃ suluk iti tṛtīyāyā ḍādeśaḥ
 | patye | patiḥ samāsa eva | pā. 1-4-8 | iti ghisamjñāyāḥ
 samāsaṇiṣayātāt gher nīti guṇābhāve yaṇādeśaḥ || 9*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Asmā id u: to this very Indra. Praya is a name for food. Praya iva, like food: pra yaṃsi, I offer; this is itself made plain. Bādhe: for oppressing enemies, able; suvrkti: well turning [him] towards us; I bharāmi, bring about, āṅgūṣam, a cry in the form of a hymn. Other singers too, to the ancient (pratnāya) lord (patye) Indra, hṛdā, with the heart, manasā, with the mind, i.e. the inner organ abiding in it, manīṣā, with the intelligence, i.e. with knowledge arising from it, make bright (marjayanta), refine (saṃskurvanti) their dhiyaḥ, praises or rites."

9. Reading notes: "āṅgūṣa": the print writes the Saṃhitā and Pada forms with the anusvāra in the Saṃhitā — "āṃgūṣam" — and is normalised to āṅgūṣam [the print's own grammar uses āṅgūṣa]. The tavaikeneti sūtra is Pā. 3-4-14 as read; the sūtra number 1-4-8 for patiḥ samāsa eva is as printed.

10

Pratipadārtha — "asmā idu — to this very Indra; prayeiva — like food (the acceptable oblation); prayamṣi — I offer; bādhe — in oppressing enemies; suvṛkti — the good doer of deeds; āṅgūṣam — the cry in the form of a hymn; bharāmi — I bring forth (others too bring hymns); pratnāya — to the ancient; patye — the lord; indrāya — to Indra; hṛdā — with the heart; manasā — with the mind (abiding in it); manīṣā — with knowledge (born from it); dhiyaḥ — praises, or rites; marjayanta — they perfect."

Bhāvārtha

— "I offer to Indra, as food, acceptable oblations. I bring a cry in the form of a hymn, effective in oppressing enemies. Other singers also, with heart, with mind and with striving knowledge, offer praises to Indra, the ancient and lord, and honour him."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 484)

— "I offer (oblations acceptable as) food (to the hungry) to that Indra ; I raise (to him) exclamations that may be of efficacy in discomfiting (my enemies) ; others (also) adore Indra, the ancient lord, in heart, in mind, and in understanding."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 484 — asmā idu — asmai eva: "here the indeclinables it, u are used in the sense of eva ('just'). 'To him (Indra)' is the sense fitting the context." prayaḥ:

"this is a name for food (Ni. 3-9 [?]); it is read among the names of food." āṅgūṣam — stotrarūpam āghoṣam: "a proclamation in the form of praise. 'āṅgūṣaḥ stoma āghoṣaḥ' (Ni. 3-11 [?]) — thus the Nirukta writer says, in the sense of proclaiming praise." hṛdā: "by the heart; here the word 'heart', by lakṣaṇā, is taken to mean the inner organ (antaḥkaraṇa) that lies in the heart." marjayanta — mārjayanti saṃskurvanti: "they perform a purifying consecration."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹¹ — Grammar page, noted briefly.
prayamṣi: yama uparamē; in place of the first-person singular of laṭ, vyatyayo bahulam: the second-person ending sip; bahulam chandasi: loss of śap; neś...jhali: m → anusvāra; nighāta after a non-verb. bharāmi: ḍubhrñ bharaṇe; laṭ first singular; it is after a verb, so with atiṇaḥ as the cause, no nighāta; lasārvadhātuka after a base from a-upadeśa is anudātta, the accent of the root stays. āṅgūṣam: Yāska as above; ghañ after ghuṣir viśabdane with āñ; by prṣodarādi gū for gho, and āñ's j unelided; thāthaghañ... (Pā. 6-2-144 as read [?]): end-acute of the second member prevails over the ñit accent. bādhe: bādhr viloḍane; kṛtyārthe tavaikekenanvaḥ (Pā. 3-4-14 as read [?]): ken in the sense of bhāva; as ejanta kṛdanta, kṛnmejantaḥ: the name avyaya; avyayād āpsupaḥ: loss of the case ending. manīṣā: a word in ā, always feminine; instrumental singular: supām suluk: ḍā. patye: the word pati, though ending in i, patiḥ samāsa eva (Pā. 1-4-8): ghi name only in compounds, so not here; before the dative ñe, ñiti

10. Grammatical tail: pra yaṃsi — root yam uparamē, laṭ, change of person (puruṣavyatyaya), loss of śap; āṅgūṣam — Yāska: 'āṅgūṣaḥ stoma āghoṣaḥ' (Ni. 3-11 [?]), from ghuṣ with āñ, ghañ, with gū substituted for gho by prṣodarādi; bādhe — bādhr viloḍane, ken in the sense of tavai-ken; indeclinable, loss of the case ending; manīṣā — ḍā for the instrumental by supām suluk; patye — pati keeps the ghi name only in compounds (Pā. 1-4-8 as printed), so guṇa does not come; yañ. Characterized.

11. p. 485 — noted briefly

gives no guṇa; iko yaṇaci: y. marjayanta: mrjū śuddhau; ṇic, Vedic lañ; anta for the third plural; saṃjñāpūrvako vidhir anityaḥ and bahulaṃ chandasy amānyogepi: no aṭ augment; tiñ nighāta.

original pp. 486–488

Rik 3

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु त्यमुपमं स्वर्षा भराम्याङ्गूषमास्येन । मंहिष्ठमच्छोक्तिभिर्मतीनां सुवृक्तिभिः सूरिं वावृध्दयै ॥ ३ ॥

asmā id u tyam upamaṃ svarṣāṃ bharāmy āṅgūṣam āsyena | maṃhiṣṭham acchoktibhir matīnāṃ suvr̥ktibhiḥ sūriṃ vāvṛdhadhyai || 3 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । त्यम् । उपमम् । स्वःऽसाम् । भरामि । आङ्गूषम् । आस्येन ।
मंहिष्ठम् । अच्छोक्तिऽभिः । मतीनाम् । सुवृक्तिऽभिः । सूरिम् । ववृध्दयै ॥ ३ ॥

asmai | it | ūṃ iti | tyam | upamam | svaḥ-sām | bharāmi |
āṅgūṣam | āsyena | maṃhiṣṭham | acchokti-bhiḥ | matīnām |
suvr̥kti-bhiḥ | sūrim | vavṛdhadhyai || 3 || ¹²

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्मा इदु अस्मा एवेन्द्राय त्वं तं प्रसिद्धमुपममुपमानहेतुभूतं स्वर्षा सुष्ट्वरणीयस्य
धनस्य दातारं सूरिं विपश्चितमिन्द्रं ववृध्दयै वर्धयितुं सुवृक्तिभिः सुष्ट्वावर्जकैः
समर्थैरित्यर्थः । मतीनां स्तुतीनां सम्बन्धिभिरच्छोक्तिभिः
स्वच्छैर्वचोभिर्मंहिष्ठमतिशयेन प्रवृद्धमेवंलक्षणमाङ्गूषमाघोषमास्येन मुखेन भरामि ।
करोमीत्यर्थः ॥

12. Reading note: the Samhitā prints the long ā in vāvṛdhadhyai; the Pada has the short va; the grammar page explains the lengthening as a Samhitā change. As in Rik 2 the anusvāra before gū is the print's.

*asmā id u asmā evendrāya tyam taṃ prasiddham upamam upamānahetubhūtaṃ svarṣām suṣṭhv araṇīyasya dhanasya dātāraṃ sūriṃ vipāścitam indraṃ vavṛdhadhyai vardhayitum suvṛktibhiḥ suṣṭhv āvarjakaiḥ samarthair ity arthaḥ | matīnām stutīnām sambandhibhir acchoktibhiḥ svacchair vacobhir maṃhiṣṭham atīsayena pravṛddham evaṃlakṣaṇam āṅgūṣam
āghoṣam āsyena mukhena bharāmi | karomīty arthaḥ ||*¹³

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Asmā id u: to this very Indra, tyam, that well-known, upamam, the one who is the ground of all comparison, svarṣām, the giver of wealth that is well to be won, sūrim, the wise Indra — to vavṛdhadhyai, make him grow, suvṛktibhiḥ, with able things that win him well [i.e. strong in effect]; with acchoktibhiḥ, bright words that belong to matīnām, the hymns — I bharāmi, bring, with the mouth (āsyena), an āṅgūṣam, a proclamation, maṃhiṣṭham, most greatly grown: that is, I make it."

Pratipadārtha — "asmā idu — to this very Indra; tyam — to the famous; upamam — to the exemplar; svarṣām — to the good giver of wealth; sūrim — to the wise one: that Indra; vavṛdhadhyai — to cause to grow [in good qualities]; suvṛktibhiḥ — with the able, the effective; matīnām — of hymns; acchoktibhiḥ — with pure words; maṃhiṣṭham — the greatly grown; āṅgūṣam — the cry of praise; āsyena — with the mouth; bharāmi — I offer."

13. The grammatical tail, p. 486 — characterized, not transcribed: upamam — "that by which one compares", the suffix ka in the instrumental sense (ghaṇārthe kavīdhānam), loss of the final ā; svarṣām — svar (from su + r), and ṣaṇu dāne with viṭ (janasanakhanakramagamo viṭ, Pā. 3-2-67 as read [?]), ā for the nasal (vidvanoranunāsikasyāt, Pā. 6-4-41 as read [?]), ṣatva (Pā. 8-3-108 as read [?]); bharāmi — no nighāta, being at the head of a line (pādādi); acchoktibhiḥ — bahuvrīhi, accent of the first member; matīnām — nāmanyatarasyām; vavṛdhadhyai — vṛdhu vṛddhau, the causative sense included, the suffix kadhyai in the sense of the infinitive, no guṇa since it is kit, reduplication by Vedic licence; or from the yañ-luk form; the lengthening of the reduplicative vowel in the Samhitā — "in others also it is seen"; acute on the suffix.

Bhāvārtha

— "To Indra, famous, an exemplar, a good giver of wealth and wise, I offer with my mouth a cry of praise — one that is able to extol his excellent qualities, belongs to the hymns, and is grown great through pure words."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 487)

— "I offer with my mouth a loud exclamation with powerful and pure words of praise, to exalt him who is the type (of all), the giver (of good things) the great, the wise."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 487 — svarṣām — suṣṭhv araṇīyasya dhanasya dātāram: "the giver of excellent wealth in plenty — Indra." maṃhiṣṭham: "grown in an excessive manner; an epithet of the word āṅgūṣam." āṅgūṣam: "āṅgūṣaḥ stoma āghoṣaḥ (Ni. 3-11 [?]): a proclamation concerned with praise." upamam: "upamīyate 'neneti upamaḥ: that which is the ground of comparison — i.e. what is the root cause of simile." bharāmi — karomīty arthaḥ: "though the sense of the root is 'bear', here the sense 'I make' is given."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ¹⁴ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. tyam: the word tyad; before am, tyadādīnām aḥ: a; ato guṇe: pararūpa; ami pūrvaḥ: the earlier form. upamam: upamīyate 'neneti upamaḥ; root māñ māne; ghañarthe kavidhānam: ka in the instrumental sense; as it is kit, āto lopa īti ca (Pā. 6-4-64 as read [?]): loss of ā; end-acute from the suffix. svarṣām: root ṛ gatau after su, anyebhyo 'pi drśyante: vic; guṇa; svar; root ṣaṇu dāne, janasanakhanakramagamo viṭ (Pā. 3-2-67 as read [?]); before it vidvanoranunāsikasyāt (Pā. 6-4-41 as read [?]): ā for the nasal;

14. pp. 487–488 — noted briefly

sanoter anah (Pā. 8-3-108 [?]): ṣatva; so svarṣā; gatikārapapadāt kṛt: accent of the first member remains; accusative singular. bharāmi: ḍubhrñ bharane; laṭ first person; being at the head of a line (pādādi), no nighāta; since lasārvadhātuka after a root with a-upadeśa is unaccented, the accent of the root stays. maṃhiṣṭham: mahi vṛddhau; the suffix ṭṛc gives mahitṛ; with the sense of excess, iṣṭhan; tureṣṭhemeyahsu: loss of ṭṛc; initial-acute. acchoktibhiḥ: acchā uktayo yeṣām; bahuvrīthau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam: accent of the first member; instrumental plural. matinām: mana jñāne; ktic; loss of the nasal; genitive plural ām; nuṭ; lengthening of the vowel before it; nāmanyatarasyām: acute on nām. vavṛdhadhyai: vṛdhu vṛddhau; with ṇic absorbed in the sense of the root, in the sense of the infinitive tumarthe sesenasase... (Pā. 3-4-9): kadhyai; as it is kit, no guṇa; as the suffix follows, reduplication etc. in the Veda; or from yaj-form yañ-luk; yañś cic: loss of yañ [as read]; later kadhyai as before; āgamānuśāsanam anityam: no rik etc. for the reduplicative syllable; anyeṣām api dṛśyate (Pā. 6-3-137 as read [?]): lengthening of the reduplicative vowel in the Saṃhitā; being ejanta, kṛnmejantaḥ: indeclinable; acute on the dha-ā part of the suffix.

original pp. 489–492

Rik 4

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु स्तोमं सं हिनोमि रथं न तष्टेव तत्सिनाय । गिरश्च गिर्वाहसे सुवृक्तीन्द्राय विश्वमिन्वं मेधिराय ॥ ४ ॥

*asmā id u stomaṃ saṃ hinomi rathaṃ na taṣṭeva tatsināya | giras
ca girvāhase suvr̥ktīndrāya viśvaminvaṃ medhirāya || 4 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । स्तोमम् । सम् । हिनोमि । रथम् । न । तष्टाऽइव । तत्सिनाय । गिरः । च । गिर्वाहसे । सुवृक्ति । इन्द्राय । विश्वम्ऽइन्वम् । मेधिराय ॥ ४ ॥ asmai | it | ūṃ iti | stomam | sam | hinomi | ratham | na | taṣṭā-

iva | tat-sināya | girah | ca | girvāhase | suvrkti | indrāya |
viśvam-invam | medhirāya | | 4 | |

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्मा एवेन्द्राय स्तोमं शस्त्ररूपं स्तोत्रं सं हिनोमि । प्रेरयामि । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । तत्सिनाय । सिनमित्यन्ननाम । सिनमन्नं भवति सिनाति भूतानीति यास्कः । नि.
३-९ [?] । तेन रथेन सिनमन्नं यस्य स तथोक्तः । तस्मै रथस्वामिने तष्टेव तष्टा
तक्षको रथनिर्माता रथं न । यथा रथं प्रेरयति तद्वत् । इवेत्येतत्पादपूरणं । तथा
गिराहसे गीर्भिः स्तुतिभिरुह्यमानायेन्द्राय गिरश्च शस्त्रसंबन्धिनीः केवला ऋचश्च
सुवृक्ति शोभनमावर्जनं यथा भवति तथा प्रेरयामि । तथा मेधिराय मेधाविन इन्द्राय विश्वमिन्वं विश्वव्यापकं विश्वैर्व्याप्तं सर्वोत्कृष्टं हविश्च सं हिनोमीत्यनुषङ्गः ॥

asmā evendrāya stomam śastrarūpaṃ stotraṃ sam hinomi |
preraymi [read: prerayāmi] | tatra ḍṣṭāntaḥ | tatsināya | sinam
ity anna-nāma | sinam annam bhavati sināti bhūtānīti yāskaḥ | ni.
3-9 [?] | tena rathena sinam annam yasya sa tathoktaḥ | tasmai rathasvāmine taṣṭeva taṣṭā takṣako rathanirmātā ratham na |
yathā ratham prerayati tadvat | ivety etat pādapūraṇam | tathā girvāhase gīrbhiḥ stutibhir uhyamānāyendrāya giraś ca śastrasaṃbandhinīḥ kevalā ṛcaś ca suvrkti śobhanam āvarjanam yathā bhavati tathā prerayāmi | tathā medhirāya medhāvina indrāya viśvaminvaṃ viśvavyāpakaṃ viśvair vyāptaṃ
sarvotkrṣṭam haviś ca sam hinomīty anuṣaṅgaḥ | | ¹⁵

15. The grammatical tail, p. 489 foot, characterized, not transcribed:

hinomi (hi gatau vṛddhau ca, śnu); taṣṭā (takṣū tvakṣū tanūkaṇe, tṛn, the k lost before ṣ + t, ṣṭutva, tṛ-stem); tatsināya (ṣiṛi bandhane, nak, the sense "he whose food is [obtained by] that chariot"); girvāhase (vah prāpaṇe,

asun); viśvaminvaṃ (ivi vyāptau, nuṃ,

ac, mum); medhirāya (medhā asya asti, iran); the printed Uṇādi and Pāṇini numerals are too small to give at 150 dpi.

Translation of the bhāṣya: "To this very Indra I saṃ hinomi, send, a stoma, a hymn in the form of a śāstra. Illustration: tatsināya — sina is a name for food ('sina is food, for it binds beings', says Yāska, Ni. 3-9 [?]); he whose food is [won] by that chariot is so called; to that owner of the chariot, as a taṣṭā, a carpenter, the maker of the chariot, sends a chariot, so [I send]. Iva here fills out the line. Likewise to Indra, gīrvāhase, carried by the gīrah, praises [i.e. who is carried by the hymns], I send gīrah, those Riks connected with the śāstra, and plain Riks, in such a way that the winning-over (suvṛkti) is excellent; and to the wise Indra, medhirāya, I send the oblation — viśvaminvam, all-pervading, pervaded by all, the best of all. 'I send' is to be carried on."

Pratipadārtha — "tatsināya — [to the charioteer] for obtaining food; taṣṭā iva ratham na — as a carpenter builds a chariot; gīrvāhase — to him who is borne [grown] by the praises; indrāya — to Indra; stomam — the hymn in the form of a śāstra; gīrah — the plain Riks connected with the śāstra; suvṛkti — to be of good effect; saṃ hinomi — I build and offer; medhirāya — to the wise Indra; viśvaminvam — the best of oblations; saṃ hinomi — I build and offer."

Bhāvārtha — "As a carpenter builds a chariot for the charioteer to get food, so I, for Indra who grows through the praises, build and offer a hymn in the form of a śāstra, and plain Riks, so that they may be effective; and to the wise Indra I offer an all-excellent oblation."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 490) — "I send hymns to him (Indra) as the constructor of a car drives it to its owner, (so that he) may thence (obtain) food ; I send praises to him who is entitled to commendation ; and most excellent oblations to the wise Indra." ¹⁶

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 490–491 — stomam — śastrarūpaṃ stotram: "in a sacrifice, the many mantras that praise Indra are called śastra; such collections of mantras are called stoma." tatsināya: "by the derivation sena rathena sinam annaṃ yasya — 'with food in the form of the oblation, together with the chariot' is its meaning. sinam annaṃ bhavati sināti bhūtāni (Ni. 3-9 [?]): the Nirukta gives the sense 'food' to the word sina." taṣṭeva — taṣṭā iva: "takṣakaḥ rathanirmātā: as a carpenter who builds a chariot. Here the word iva is only a line-filler, since na itself gives the sense, by connection with the word ratha." gīrvāhase — gīrbhiḥ stutibhir uhyamānāya: "an epithet of the word indrāya: one who fully accepts the praise-speeches made by the hotṛ." suvṛkti — śobhanam āvarjanam yathā bhavati tathā preraymi: "I send in such a way that Indra is greatly pleased; or the sense is: I send the mantras of praise [word unclear in the print, ?]." viśvaminvam — viśvavyāpakaṃ viśvair vyāptaṃ sarvotkr̥ṣṭaṃ haviḥ: "viśvaṃ invati vyāpnoti iti viśvaminvam: an epithet of the word haviḥ (oblation). The praise of the oblation is here: this oblation is well known in the whole world, or has pervaded the whole world, is the self of the universe, is the best."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā¹⁷ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. hinomi: hi gatau vṛddhau ca (svādi); laṭ, mip; svādibhyaḥ śnuḥ: śnu; sārvadhātukam apit is ñit, so no guṇa of the root; guṇa of the vikaraṇa because of mip; nighāta. taṣṭā: takṣū tvakṣū tanūkarāṇe; tṛn in the habitual sense; the root having ū as a mark, iḍ is optional (svaratisūti..., Pā. 7-2-44) and is here not used; k·ṣ + t, skoḥ saṃyogādyor ante ca: loss of k; ṣṭunā ṣṭuḥ: ta → ṭa; so taṣṭṛ; accent on the first syllable by the suffix being ñit; in the nominative ṛduśanas... (Pā. 7-1-94 as read [?]): anar̥ḥ; āpr̥dhyanṛc... [as read]: lengthening of the penultimate: taṣṭā. tatsināya: sina;

16. Printing marks as in the source: the heading on this page reads "English T-ansation" in the print [sic], a damaged letter, not corrected.

17. pp. 491–492 — noted briefly

ṣiñ bandhane; suffix nak (Uṇ. 3-[?]) as read [?]); s for the initial ṣ; kit, so no guṇa; bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam: accent of the first member. gīrvāhase: vah prāpaṇe; vahihāñbhyaś chandasi (Uṇ. 4-[?]): asun; for gati and kāraka-first members the first-member accent also prevails; ñit, vṛddhi of the penultimate; gīrvāhas; though gir + h should lengthen, Vedicly it is not so; dative singular. viśvaminvam: ivi vyāptau; viśvam invati; idito num dhātoḥ: num; pacādi: ac; in the compound the retention of the accusative ending (aluk) is Vedic; or by bahula khac for this root also; then ārurdivṣad ajantasya mum (Pā. 6-3-67 as read [?]): mum after viśva. medhirāya: medhā asyāsti; medhārathābhyām iran nirac vaktavyau (a vārttika; reference as read [?]): iran in the possessive sense; yasyeti ca: loss of a; iran is nit, so initial-acute.

original pp. 492-495

Rik 5

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु सप्तमिव श्रवस्येन्द्रायार्क जुहा समञ्जे । वीरं दानौकसं वन्द्यै पुरां गूर्तश्रवसं दर्माणम् ॥ ५ ॥

*asmā id u saptim iva śravasyendrāyārkaṃ juhvā sam añje | vīraṃ
dānaukasaṃ vandadhyai purāṃ gūrtaśravasam darmāṇam || 5
||*

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । सप्तिम्ऽइव । श्रवस्या । इन्द्राय । अर्कम् । जुहा । सम् । अञ्जे । वीरम् । दानुऽओकसम् । वन्द्यै । पुराम् । गूर्तऽश्रवसम् । दर्माणम् ॥ ५ ॥

*asmai | it | ūṃ iti | saptim-iva | śravasyā | indrāya | arkam |
juhvā | sam | añje | vīram | dānu-okasam | vandadhyai | purām
| gūrta-śravasam | darmāṇam || 5 ||*¹⁸

18. Reading note: the Samhitā prints dānaukasaṃ, the Pada dānu-okasam; Both are given as printed. In the Pada the print puts the avagraha mark after dānu and gūrta.

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्मा एवेन्द्रायार्कं स्तुतिरूपं मन्त्रं श्रवस्या श्रवस्ययान्नेच्छया । अन्नलाभायेत्यर्थः ।
 जुह्वाह्वानसाधनेन वागिन्द्रियेण समंजे । समक्तं करोमि । एकीकरोमीत्यर्थः । तत्र
 दृष्टान्तः । सप्तिमिव । यथान्नलाभाय गन्तुकामः पुमानश्च रथेनैकीकरोति तद्वत् ।
 एकीकृत्य च वीरं शत्रुक्षेपणकुशलं दानौकसं दानानामेकनिलयं गूर्तश्रवसं प्रशस्यान्नं
 पुरामसुरपुराणां दर्माणं विदारयितारं । एवंगुणविशिष्टमिन्द्रं वन्दध्वै वन्दितुं स्तोतुं प्रवृत्तोऽस्मीति शेषः ॥

asmā evendrāyārkaṃ stutirūpaṃ mantraṃ śravasyā
 śravasyayānnecchayā | annalābhāyety arthaḥ |
 juhvāhvānasāadhanena vāgindriyeṇa samamje | samaktaṃ karomi
 | ekīkaromīty arthaḥ | tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | saptim iva | yathānnalābhāya gantukāmaḥ pumān aśvaṃ rathenaikīkaroti
 tadvat | ekīkṛtya ca vīraṃ śatrukṣepaṇakuśalaṃ dānaukaṣaṃ dānānām ekanilayaṃ gūrtaśravasaṃ praśasyānnaṃ purām asurapurāṇāṃ darmāṇaṃ vidārayitāraṃ | evaṃguṇaviśiṣṭam
 indraṃ vandadhyai vanditum stotum pravṛtto 'smīti śeṣaḥ | ¹⁹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "To this very Indra, an arka, a mantra of the form of praise, śravasyā, with desire for food — i.e. for obtaining food — juhvā, with the organ of speech, the means of invocation, saṃ añje, I join (samaktaṃ karomi) — I bring together.

19. The grammatical tail, pp. 492–493, characterized, not transcribed:

saptim — sapa samavāye, the suffix tip (Uṇ. 4-[?]) as read [?]) by bahula; the compound with iva; śravasyā — śravas + kyac in the sense "wishing for one's own", then a in the sense of the action (Pā. 3-3-103 as read [?]), then ṭāp, the instrumental ending replaced by dā; arkam — rca stutau, "that by which one praises", gha in the instrument sense, kutva of c, guṇa of the penultimate; juhvā — Vedic saṃprasāraṇa of hve, kvip (Uṇ. 2-[?]), lengthening, doubling, cutva; añje — añjū vyaktimrakṣaṇakāntigatiṣu, ātmanepada by Vedic variation; vandadhyai — vadi abhivādanastutyoh, kadhya in the infinitive sense; gūrtaśravasaṃ — gūrta from gūrī udyamane [print: gur; read as in the Special Topics], kta, no i; darmāṇaṃ — dṛ vidāraṇe, the suffix manin, guṇa.

Illustration: saptim iva, as a man who wishes to go for food yokes the horse to the chariot. Having so joined [them], I have begun to praise, vandadhyai, to praise and hymn Indra, who has such qualities: vīram, the hero, skilled in hurling at enemies; dānaukasam, the one dwelling-place of gifts; gūrtaśravasam, one with praiseworthy food; darmāṇam, the breaker, the shatterer, purām, of the cities of the Asuras. [I have begun] — this is the remainder understood."

Pratipadārtha — "śravasyā — with the desire for food; asmai idu indrāya — to this very Indra (with that Indra in view); arkam — the mantra in the form of praise; juhvā — with the voice that is the means of invocation; saptim iva — as a man who goes to get food yokes a horse (to the chariot); sam añje — I join together; vīram — to the heroic; dānaukasam — to the generous, with giving as his dwelling; gūrtaśravasam — to the possessor of food worthy of praise; purām — of the cities (of enemies); darmāṇam — to the destroyer, Indra; vandadhyai — in order to worship (I join the mantra and the voice together)."

Bhāvārtha

— "As a man who goes to get food yokes both the horse and the chariot together, so I, with desire for food, join, for the praise of Indra, a mantra in the form of praise with the voice that is the means of invocation. I join mantra and voice together and sing the praise, in order to worship Indra, the heroic, the generous, the possessor of food worthy of praise, the destroyer of the cities of enemies."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 493)

— "For the sake of food, I combine praise with the instrument of invocation as a man harnesses a horse to a car ; I begin to celebrate the heroic, munificent and food-conferring Indra, the destroyer of the cities (of the Asuras)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 494 — arkaḥ: "ṛcyate stūyate aneneti arkaḥ (mantraḥ): a mantra in the form of praise is the meaning. In the Nirukta there is the statement: 'arko mantrō bhavati yad anenārcanti' (Nī. 5-[?] [?])." śravasyā — śravasyayā annecchayā: "annalābhāyety arthaḥ — for the obtaining of food." saptim iva — sapa samavāye: "samavaiti rathenaikībhavatīti saptiḥ: the horse is that which joins together with the chariot. As one who sets out in order to get his food yokes the horse to the chariot, so — in order to gain what is wished for from Indra — I praise Indra with a mantra in the form of praise: this is an illustration by an example." dānaukasam — dānānām ekanīlayam: "he who fulfils all the wishes of the sacrificers." gūrtaśravasam — gūrtaṃ śravo yasya: "the word gūrta, derived from the root gū śabde, means 'praiseworthy'; one who has praiseworthy food, or one who has oblation-material." darmāṇam — dṛ vidāraṇe, vidārayitāram: "one who destroys the cities of enemies."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁰ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. saptim: sapa samavāye; samavaiti rathenaikībhavati iti saptiḥ; the suffix tip (the print cites Uṇ. 4-[?] [?]) is given to this root too by bahula; being pit, unaccented, so the accent of the root remains; the compound with iva; the case ending is not elided (vibhakter alopaś ca, as printed). śravasyā: śru śravaṇe; asun: śravas; kyac (supa ātmanaḥ kyac) in the sense "one who wishes his own śravas"; so śravasya is a verbal root (sanādyantā dhātavaḥ); after the kyac root the suffix a in the sense of the action (Pā. 3-3-103 as read [?]); ṭāp in the feminine; śravasyā; the instrumental ā is replaced by dā (supām suluk), and the acute is made to disappear: anudāttasya yatrodāttalopaḥ. arkam: ṛca stutau; "that by which one praises, arka, a mantra"; pum̐si samjñāyām ghaḥ prāyeṇa (Pā. 3-3-118 as read [?]): gha in the instrumental sense; cajoḥ ku ghiṇyatoḥ: kutva; guṇa of the penultimate; end-acute from the suffix; accusative singular. juhvā: hveñ spardhāyām śabde ca; by bahula, saṃprasāraṇa; saṃprasāraṇāc ca: the former form; huvaḥ śluvac ca (Uṇ. 2-[?]): kvip; lengthening of the root as a result; loss of all of kvip; as ślu is stated, reduplication; shortening of the reduplicative syllable; kuhoś cuḥ: cutva; juhū; end-acute by the root's accent; in the instrumental singular with ṭā the yaṇ substitution; the svarita appears in the place of the acute by udāttasvaritayor yaṇaḥ svarito'nudāttasya (Pā. 8-2-4 as read [?]); though iṇ-cases would take the acute by udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt, the prohibition by nonñdhātvoḥ applies. añje: añjū vyaktimrakṣaṇakāntigatiṣu; parasmaipada root, but by vyatyayo bahulam the ātmanepada ending; laṭ first singular; nighāta after a non-verb. vandadhyai: vadi abhivādanastutyoḥ; tumarthe sesenasenasekhyai... (Pā. 3-4-9 as read [?]): kadhyai; idito num dhātoḥ: num; being ejanta, it receives the name avyaya. gūrtaśravasam: gūrī... root, kta following, śryukaḥ kiti (Pā. 7-2-11): prohibition of iṭ; by bahulaṃ chandasi: ut; uraṇ raparaḥ: r; halica: lengthening of the penultimate; so gūrta; since ta follows r, the retroflex ṇ... nasatta... (Pā. 8-2-61 as read [?]) prevents ṇatva of the ta of the participle; gūrtaṃ śravo yasya saḥ; bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam: accent of the first member; accusative. darmāṇam: dṛ vidāraṇe; anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyante (Pā. 3-2-75 as read [?]): manin; guṇa of the root; nedaśaśikṛti: no iṭ before manin since it is from the vaśādi group; so darman; in the nominative the suffix is initially-acute by the change (vyatyaya); or by bahula the Uṇādi manin of the Aunādika is used, and the accent goes to the beginning by the suffix's own accent; in the accusative singular, sarvanāmasthāne cāsambuddhau: lengthening of the penultimate n-ending; raśābhyām no ṇaḥ: ṇatva of the n because of the r.

original pp. 496–498

Rik 6

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु त्वष्टा तक्षद्वज्रं स्वपस्तमं स्वर्यं रणाय । वृत्रस्य चिद्विद्वेन मर्म तुजन्नीशानस्तुजता कियेधाः ॥ ६ ॥

asmā id u tvaṣṭā takṣad vajraṃ svapastamaṃ svaryaṃ raṇāya |
vṛtrasya cid vidad yena marma tujann īśānas tujatā kiyedhāḥ || 6
|| 21

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । त्वष्टा । तक्षत् । वज्रम् । स्वपःऽतमम् । स्वर्यम् । रणाय । वृत्रस्य । चित् । विदत् । येन । मर्म । तुजन् । ईशानः । तुजता । कियेधाः ॥ ६ ॥

asmai | it | ūm iti | tvaṣṭā | takṣat | vajram | svapaḥ-tamam |
svaryam | raṇāya | vṛtrasya | cit | vidad | yena | marma | tujan |
īśānaḥ | tujatā | kiyedhāḥ || 6 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

त्वष्टा विश्वकर्मास्मा इदु अस्मा एवेन्द्राय वज्रं वर्जकमायुधं रणाय युद्धार्थं तक्षत् ।
तीक्ष्णमकरोत् । कीदृशं वज्रं । स्वपस्तममतिशयेन शोभनकर्माणं स्वर्यं सुष्ठु शत्रुषु
प्रेर्य यद्वा स्तुत्यं । तुजन् शत्रून् हिंसन् ईशान ऐश्वर्यवान् कियेधाः बलवान्
एवंगुणविशिष्ट इन्द्रो वृत्रस्य चित् आवरकस्यासुरस्य मर्म मर्मस्थानं तुजता हिंसता
येन वज्रेण विदत् । प्राहार्षीदित्यर्थः [?] ॥ ... कियेधाः । अत्र निरुक्तं । कियेधाः
कियद्वा इति वा क्रमुमाणधा [as read, ?] इति वेति । नि. ६-२० [?] ।
अस्यायमभिप्रायः । कियत् किंपरिमाणमस्य बलस्य तादृशं बलं दधाति धारयतीति
कियद्वाः । यः कोऽप्यस्य बलस्येयत्तां न जानातीत्यर्थः । यद्वा ।
क्रमुमाणमाक्रमुमाणं परेषां बलं धारयति निवारयतीति क्रमुमाणधाः । उभयत्रापि पृषोदरादित्वात्पूर्वपदस्य कियेभावः । दधातेर्विच् ॥ tvaṣṭā viśvakarmāsmā id u asmā evendrāya vajraṃ varjakam āyudhaṃ raṇāya yuddhārthaṃ takṣat | tīkṣṇam akarot | kīdṛśaṃ

vajraṃ | svapastamam atīśayena śobhanakarmāṇaṃ svaryaṃ
suṣṭhu śatruṣu preryaṃ yadvā stutyaṃ | tujan śatrūn hīmsan

21. Reading note: in the Saṃhitā line the print has a stray small sign after svaryaṃ; It is read as a printer's mark and is not reproduced.

*īśāna aiśvaryavān kiyedhāḥ balavān evaṃguṇaviśiṣṭa indro vṛtrasya cit āvarakasyāsurasya marma marmasthānaṃ tujatā hiṃsatā yena vajreṇa vidat | prāhārṣīd ity arthaḥ [?] || ...
kiyedhāḥ | atra niruktaṃ | kiyedhāḥ kiyaddhā iti vā
kramumāṇadhā [as read, ?] iti veti | nī. 6-20 [?] | asyāyam
abhiprāyaḥ | kiyat kiṃparimāṇam asya balasya tādrśaṃ balaṃ dadhāti dhārayatīti kiyaddhāḥ | yaḥ ko 'py asya balasyeyattāṃ na
jānātīty arthaḥ | yadvā | kramumāṇam ākramumāṇaṃ pareṣāṃ
balaṃ dhārayati nivārayatīti kramumāṇadhāḥ | ubhayatrāpi
pṛṣodarādītvāt pūrvapadasya kiyebhāvaḥ | dadhāter vic | | ²²*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Tvaṣṭā, Viśvakarman, for this very Indra takṣat, sharpened the vajra, the felling weapon, raṇāya, for battle. What kind of vajra? Svapastamam, of exceedingly good working; svaryam, well to be hurled at enemies, or praiseworthy. Indra — tujan, harming enemies, īśānaḥ, lordly, kiyedhāḥ, mighty, so endowed — vidat, [with that vajra which harms] found / struck the vital spot (marma) of Vṛtra, the Asura who enveloped [the waters]. [The gloss of vidat: 'he struck' — reading doubtful (?).] On kiyedhāḥ the Nirukta says: 'kiyedhāḥ is either kiyaddhāḥ or kramamāṇadhāḥ' (Nī. 6-20 [?]); the meaning: kiyat, of what measure is his strength? — he who holds such strength, whose measure no one at all knows, is kiyaddhāḥ; or he who holds back (restrains) the strength of others who advance is kramamāṇadhāḥ; in both, by the pṛṣodarādi class, the first member becomes kiye, and vic after dhā."

Pratipadārtha — "tujan — the destroyer of enemies; īśānaḥ — the lord; kiyedhāḥ — the strong: Indra; vṛtrasya cit — of Vṛtra the Asura; marma — the vital spot; tujatā — [by that vajra] which destroys (enemies); yena — with which vajra; vidat — he struck; svapastamam — the doer of the most excellent work; svaryam — that which is hurled at the enemy, or that which is praiseworthy; vajram — the vajra weapon; tvaṣṭā — Viśvakarman; asmā idu — for this very Indra; raṇāya — for fighting; takṣat — sharpened."

Bhāvārtha

— "Viśvakarman sharpened for Indra, for battle, the vajra weapon that does most excellent work and is hurled at the enemy. With that same vajra Indra — destroyer of enemies, lord of the world, mighty — struck the vital spot of Vṛtra the Asura and tore it."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 497)

— "For that Indra, verily Twashtri sharpened the well-acting, sure-aimed thunderbolt for the battle, with which fatal (weapon), the mighty and lordly (Indra) desirous of killing his enemies, pierced the vital parts of Vritra."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 497 — tvaṣṭā: "the word tvaṣṭṛ here means Viśvakarman, the divine craftsman." svapastamam — atiśayena śobhanakarmāṇam: "śobhanam apaḥ karma yasyāsau; atiśayena svapāḥ svapastamaḥ — explaining the word thus, the vajra is taken to be one that performs always [hard, crushing] deeds [the Kannada word is unclear, ?]." svaryam — suṣṭhu śatruṣu preryam yadvā stutyam: "that which is hurled pitilessly at enemies, or that which is worthy of praise; the same word is used in this sense in the Ṛk-saṃhitā: 'svaryam'

22. The grammatical tail, p. 496, characterized, not transcribed, and marked "... " above where it falls: on svapastamam (śobhanam apaḥ karma yasya, tamap), svaryam (the print refers to its earlier treatment in Ṛg 1-32-2 [?] — "svaryam tatakṣa"), vidat (vid lṛ lābhe, luṇ, aṇ for clī, no aṭ), tujan (tuja hiṃsāyām, śatṛ, śa), īśānaḥ (īśa aiśvārye, śānac, the śap lost), tujatā; the accents.

tataḥṣa' (Ṛg 1-32-2 [?])." kiyēdhāḥ: "the mighty; the Nirukta explains it thus: 'kiyēdhāḥ kiyaddhā iti vā kramamāṇadhā iti vā' (Ni. 6-20 [?]). Kiyat kiṃparimāṇam asya balasya tādrśam balaṃ dadhāti dhārayatīti kiyaddhāḥ — he who bears strength of such measure and whose strength no one can know; or he who wholly restrains the strength of enemies who attack."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²³ — Grammar page, noted briefly. takṣat: takṣa tanūkarāṇe; luṅ, third singular; bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi: no aṭ; nighāta. svaryam: "explained at Ṛg 1-32-2 [?]." vidat: vidḷ lābhe; luṅ, tip; itaś ca: loss of i; as the root is ḷdit, aṅ for cli (the print cites a sūtra beginning prṣādi..., doubtful [?]); being ṇit, no laghūpadha-guṇa; no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy...; because of the yad word (yena), the verb is not unaccented; the accent of the aṅ syllable leaves the da with the acute. svapastamam: śobhanam apaḥ karma yasya; svapāḥ; tamaḥ (pit, so unaccented); soḥ...manasī alomoṣasī (Pā. 6-2-117 as read [?]): the initial acute of the later member. tujan: tuja hiṃsāyām; śatṛ; vyatyayo bahulam: śa in place of śap; tujat; tāsyānudāttenṇidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam: the vikaraṇa accent remains; nominative singular su: num (ugit), loss of su, loss of the final t (saṃyogāntalopa): tujan. tujatā: śatṛ as before, instrumental singular; śatur anumō nadyajādī: acute on the ending. kiyēdhāḥ: Yāska as above; by prṣodarādi the first member becomes kiye; dhā + vic: dhāḥ; kṛdutarapade prakṛtisvaraḥ: accent of the first member remains.

original pp. 499–503

Rik 7

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्येदु मातुः सवनेषु सद्यो महः पितुं पपिवाञ्चारु अन्ना । मुषायद्विष्णुः पचतं सहीयान्विध्यद्वराहं तिरो अद्रिमस्ता ॥ ७ ॥

asyed u mātuḥ savaneṣu sadyo mahah pitum papivāñ cāru annā | muṣāyad viṣṇuḥ pacataṃ sahīyān vidhyad varāhaṃ tiro adrim
astā || 7 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अस्य । इत् । ऊं इति । मातुः । सवनेषु । सद्यः । महः । पितुम् । पपिऽवान् । चारु । अन्ना ।
मुषायत् । विष्णुः । पचतम् । सहीयान् । विध्यत् । वराहम् । तिरः । अद्रिम् । अस्ता ॥ ७ ॥

asya | it | ūm iti | mātuḥ | savaneṣu | sadyaḥ | mahah | pitum |
papi-vān | cāru | annā | muṣāyat | viṣṇuḥ | pacatam | sahīyān |
vidhyat | varāham | tiraḥ | adrim | astā || 7 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

इदु इत्येतन्निपातद्वयं पादपूरणं । यद्वावधारणार्थं । मातुर्वृष्टिद्वारेण सकलस्य जगतो
निर्मातुर्महो महतोऽस्य यज्ञस्य सवनेष्ववयवभूतेषु प्रातःसवनादिषु त्रिषु सवनेषु पितुं
सोमलक्षणमन्नं सद्यः पपिवान् । यदाग्नौ हूयते तदानीमेव पानं कृतवानित्यर्थः ।
तथा चार्वन्ना चारुणि शोभनानि धानाकरम्भादिहविलक्षणान्यन्नानि भक्षितवानिति
शेषः । किञ्च विष्णुः सर्वस्य जगतो व्यापकः पचतं परिपक्वमसुराणां धनं यदस्ति
तन्मुषायत् अपहरन् सहीयान् अतिशयेन शत्रूणामभिभविताद्रिमस्ताद्रेर्वज्रस्य क्षेपकः
। एवंभूत इन्द्रस्तिरः । सत इति प्राप्तस्य । नि. ३-१० [?] । इति यास्कः । तिरः
प्राप्तः सन् वराहं मेघं विध्यत् ताडयत् । यद्वा । विष्णुः सुत्यादिवसात्मको [?] यज्ञः
। यज्ञो देवेभ्यो निलाय विष्णू रूपं कृत्वेत्याम्नानात् । स विष्णुः पचतं
परिपक्वमसुरधनं यत्तन्मुषायत् आचूचुरत् [?] । तदनन्तरं दीक्षोपसदात्मनां
दुर्गरूपाणां सप्तानामह्नां परस्तादासीत् अद्रिमस्ता सहीयानिन्द्रो दुर्गाण्यतीत्य तिरः
प्राप्तः सन् वराहमुत्कृष्टदिवसरूपं तं यज्ञं विध्यत् । तथा च तैत्तिरीयकं । वराहोऽयं
वामुमोषः सप्तानां गिरीणां परस्ताद्विजितं वेद्यमसुराणां बिभर्तीति । स दर्भपुंजीलमुद्धृत्य सप्त गिरीन्भित्त्वा तमहन्निति च । तै. सं. ६-२-४-२,३ [?] ॥

idu ity etan nipātadvayaṃ pādapūraṇaṃ | yadvāvadhāraṇārthaṃ
| mātūr vṛṣṭidvāreṇa sakalasya jagato nirmātur maho mahato 'sya yajñasya savaneṣv avayavabhūteṣu prātaḥsavanādiṣu triṣu savaneṣu pitum somalakṣaṇam annaṃ sadyaḥ papivān |
yadāgnau hūyate tadānīm eva pānaṃ kṛtavān ity arthaḥ | tathā

*cārvannā cārūṇi śobhanāni dhānākarambhādhavirlakṣaṇāny annāni bhakṣitavān iti śeṣaḥ | kiṃca viṣṇuḥ sarvasya jagato vyāpakāḥ pacataṃ paripakvam asurāṇāṃ dhanam yad asti tan muṣāyat apaharan sahyān atīsayena śatrūṇāṃ abhibhavitādrimastādrer vajrasya kṣepakaḥ | evaṃbhūta indras
tiraḥ | sata iti prāptasya | ni. 3-10 [?] | iti yāskaḥ | tiraḥ prāptaḥ
san varāham megham vidhyat tādayat | yadvā | viṣṇuḥ
sutyādivasātmako [?] yajñāḥ | yajño devebhyo nilāya viṣṇu rūpaṃ kṛtvety āmnānāt | sa viṣṇuḥ pacataṃ paripakvam asuradhanam yat tan muṣāyat ācūcurat [?] | tadanantaram dīkṣopasadātmanām durgarūpāṇāṃ saptānām ahnām parastād āsīt adrimastā sahyān indro durgāny atītya tiraḥ prāptaḥ san varāham utkr̥ṣṭadivasarūpaṃ tam yajñam vidhyat | tathā ca taittirīyakaṃ | varāho 'yaṃ vāmamoṣaḥ saptānām girīṇāṃ parastād vittaṃ vedyam asurāṇāṃ bibhartīti | sa darbhapuṃjīlam uddhṛtya sapta
girīn bhittvā tam ahann iti ca | tai. saṃ. 6-2-4-2,3 [?] | ²⁴*

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Idu are two particles, line-fillers, or for emphasis. Mātuḥ: of the Maker, who through rain makes the whole world; mahaḥ: of the great; of this sacrifice, in the savanas, the three pressings, being its parts — the morning pressing and the rest — pitum, the food in the form of Soma, sadyaḥ papivān, he drank at once, i.e. he drank just when it was offered in the fire. And cārv annā, the lovely foods: the oblation-foods such as roasted grain and cakes (dhānā, karambha) — he ate. [The verb 'he ate' is understood.] Further, Viṣṇu, the pervader of the whole world (here Indra), pacataṃ, the ripe wealth of the Asuras — whatever there is — muṣāyat, stole; sahyān, the greatest subduer of enemies; adrimastā, the hurler of the adri, the thunderbolt; such an Indra, tiraḥ [sata iti prāptasya, Yāska, Ni. 3-10 [?]: 'having arrived'], having arrived, vidhyat, struck varāham, the cloud. Or: Viṣṇu is the sacrifice, in the form of the pressing-days. For it is handed down: 'the sacrifice, having made itself the form of Viṣṇu, hid from the gods.' That Viṣṇu [the sacrifice] stole [ācūcurat (?)] the ripe wealth of the Asuras. After that it stood beyond the seven days, in the form of forts of the dīkṣā and upasad [rites]. Indra, the hurler of the adri, the strong, having crossed the forts, having arrived, pierced the varāha, that sacrifice in the form of the most choice day. So the Taittirīya [Saṃhitā] says: 'This boar, the stealer of the vāma, holds the Asuras' wealth, to be found beyond the seven mountains.' And: 'He Indra, having taken up a bunch of darbha grass, split the seven mountains and killed him' (Tai. Saṃ. 6-2-4-2,3 [?])."

24. Reading notes: the print's yadāgnau hūyate is as in the Special Topics (yadāgnau), [?] in the bhāṣya where the first letters are crowded; sutyādivasātmako and ācūcurat are read at 150 dpi, uncertain [?]. The grammatical tail of the bhāṣya, p. 500, is characterized, not transcribed, with the Pāṇinian and Nirukta numerals given in the Special Topics and Vyākaraṇa notes below.

Pratipadārtha — "mātuḥ — of the Maker of the whole world through rain; mahaḥ — of the great; asya — of this sacrifice; savaneṣu — in all the three pressings, the morning pressing and the others; pituṃ — the Soma juice; sadyaḥ — at once; papivā — drank (immediately); cārvannā — the nourishing food of the oblation (and swallowed it); viṣṇuḥ — the all-pervading Indra; pacatam — the wealth (of the Asuras); muṣāyat — carried off; sahiyāḥ — the crusher of enemies; adrimastā — the hurler of the vajra, Indra; tiraḥ — (rushing at the enemy) against him; varāham — the cloud; vidhyat — pierced. [Or: viṣṇuḥ — the sacrifice; pacatam — the wealth of the Asuras; muṣāyat — it carried off (afterwards, during the dīkṣā period, it dwelt behind the seven days that were like forts); then adrimastā — the hurler of the vajra; sahiyāḥ — the conqueror of enemies, Indra (having passed those days like forts); tiraḥ — again, harming [?, the Kannada: "hiṃsirurḡi"]; varāham — that sacrifice, in the form of the excellent day; vidhyat — he brought to an end.]"

Bhāvārtha

— "In the form of rain, he is the maker of the whole world and is great. In all three pressing-times of his sacrifice Indra drank the Soma-juice as soon as it was offered, and swallowed at once the nourishing food of the oblation. Moreover Indra, who pervades everything, crushes enemies and hurls the thunderbolt, carried off the wealth of the Asuras. And, rushing against the enemy, he pierced the cloud."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 501)

— "Quickly drinking the libations, and devouring the grateful viands (presented) at the three (daily) sacrifices which are dedicated to the creator (of the world), he, the pervader of the universe, stole the ripe (treasure of the Asuras) ; the vanquisher (of his foes), the hurler of the thunderbolt, encountering, pierced the cloud."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 501–502 — it-u: "both are particles; without any sense, merely suited as line-fillers; or one may say they are indeclinables that indicate emphasis." savaneṣu: "in the three pressing-rites, the morning pressing and the rest, which are the parts [of the sacrifice]." sadyaḥ papivān: "yadāgnau hūyate tadānīm eva pānaṃ kṛtavān — Indra drinks, as soon as it is offered in the sacrifice, the food in the form of Soma." cārvannā: "cārūṇi śobhanāni dhānākarambhādhavirlakṣaṇāny annāni bhakṣitavān — Indra eats, with special love, the oblations — roasted grain, karambha [a kind of gruel] and the rest — as food." pacatam: "the possession of the Rākṣasas [Asuras], fully ripe." tiraḥ viṣṇuḥ: "all-pervading Indra. Vyāpnotīti viṣṇuḥ; prāptaḥ san — tiraḥ = sata iti prāptasya (Ni. 2-10 [?]). Here, in explaining the word viṣṇu as the sacrifice, they rely on the Taittirīya Saṃhitā: 'yajño devebhyo nilāya viṣṇu rūpaṃ kṛtvā' (Tai. Saṃ. 6-2-4-1 [?]) — the sacrifice that took the form of Viṣṇu carried off the Asuras' ripe wealth. After this it dwelt for seven days in the seven forts in the form of the dīkṣā and upasad [rites]. By the help of the vajra that splits the adri, Indra crossed the seven mountains and completed that sacrifice." varāham: "the sacrifice in the form of the excellent day — in this sense the compound is explained as varam ca tat ahaś ca; others explain the word varāha as 'cloud' — then varam udakam āhāro yasya, or varam āharati iti varāhārah, 'one whose food is excellent water'. The Taittirīya mantra 'varāho yaṃ vāmamoṣaḥ saptaṇām girīṇām parastād vittaṃ vedyam asurāṇām bibhartīti | sa darbhapuṃjīlam uddhṛtya sapta girīn bhittvā tam ahan' (Tai. Saṃ. 6-2-4-2,3 [?]) is the authority for the first sense." ²⁵

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁶ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. mahaḥ: the word mahat; genitive singular mahataḥ; in the Saṃhitā, by Vedic licence, the loss of ta; or mahaḥ is an epithet of pitu ("mahaḥ praśastaṃ pitum"). papivān: pā pāne; kvasuś ca (Pā. 3-2-107 as read [?]): kvasu for liṭ; vasvekājāḍghasām (Pā. 7-2-67 as read [?]): no iṭ since the root is monosyllabic; being kit, ātlopa iṭi ca (Pā. 6-4-64 as read [?]): loss of ā; dvirvacane 'ci: sthānivad bhāva, reduplication, shortening; papivas; acute on the ā-syllable following v by the suffix; nominative singular: ātvasantasya cādhātoḥ: lengthening of the penultimate; ugit: num; loss of su; loss of final t. cāru: accusative plural: supām suluk (the ending lost). muṣāyat: muṣa steye; ghaṇārthe kavīdhānam: ka; muṣa; "he wishes muṣa for himself": supa ātmanaḥ kyac: kyac; the lengthening of the stem-vowel is by Vedic variation; the kyac-ending form is a root (sanādyantā dhātavaḥ); laṇ, third singular; no aṭ (bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi); in this sense the action of wishing that precedes is conveyed by lakṣaṇā. pacatam: dupacīṣ pākhe; bhṛmṛḍrśi... (Uṇ. 3-110 as read [?]): suffix atac; citaḥ: end-acute; accusative singular. vidhyat: vyadha tāḍane; laṇ, third singular tip; loss of i; divāḍibhyaḥ śyan: śyan; sārvadhātukam apit is ñit, so grahijyā... (Pā. 6-1-16): saṃprasāraṇa (y to i); saṃprasāraṇāc ca: former form; no aṭ; śyan is nit, so initial-acute;

25. The Taittirīya text in the print has its words crowded; given as read.

26. pp. 502–503 — noted briefly

being at the head of a line (pādādi), no nighāta. varāham: varam udakam āhāro yasya; or varam āharati iti varāhāraḥ; by prṣodarādi the form is obtained; Yāska: 'varāho meghe bhavati varāhāraḥ; varam āhāram āhārṣīd iti ca brāhmaṇam' (Nī. 5-4 [?]); on the sacrifice view, varam ca tad ahaś ca varāhaḥ: rājāhaṣsakhibhyaḥ ṭac (Pā. 5-4-91 as read [?]): the compound-final ṭac; citaḥ: end-acute. astā: asu kṣepaṇe; in the sense "who does it well", ṭṛn (Pā. 3-2-135 as read [?]); no iṭ in the Veda; nominative singular: ṛto nīsarvanāmasthānayoḥ... anan [as read]; āprṭṛn...: lengthening of the penultimate; halṇyābbhyo...: loss of su; nalopaḥ prātipadikāntasya: loss of n; na lokāvyayaniṣṭhākhalarthatṛnām (Pā. 2-3-69): the genitive is barred, hence adrim is accusative.

original pp. 503–506

Rik 8

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु ग्नाश्चिदेवपत्नीरिन्द्रायार्कमहिहत्य ऊवुः । परि द्यावापृथिवी जभ्र उर्वी नास्य ते महिमानं परि ष्टः ॥ ८ ॥

asmā id u gnāś cid devapatnīr indrāyārkam ahihatya ūvuḥ | pari dyāvāprṭhivī jabhra urvī nāsya te mahimānam pari ṣṭaḥ || 8 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । ग्नाः । चित् । देवऽपत्नीः । इन्द्राय । अर्कम् । अहिऽहत्ये । ऊवुः ।
इति ऊवुः । परि । द्यावापृथिवी इति । जभ्रे । उर्वी इति । न । अस्य । ते इति । महिमानम् । परि । स्तः । इति स्तः ॥ ८ ॥

*asmai | it | ūm iti | gnāḥ | cit | deva-patnīḥ | indrāya | arkam |
ahi-hatye | ūvuḥ | iti ūvuḥ | pari | dyāvāprṭhivī iti | jabhre | urvī
iti | na | asya | te iti | mahimānam | pari | staḥ | iti staḥ || 8 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्मा एवेन्द्रायाहिहत्येऽहेर्वृत्रस्य हनने निमित्तभूते सति ग्नाश्चित् गमनस्वभावा अपि
स्थिता देवपत्नीर्देवानां पालयित्र्यो गायत्र्याद्या देवता अर्कमर्चनसाधनं स्तोत्रमूवुः ।
समतन्वत । चक्रुरित्यर्थः । स चेन्द्र उर्वी विस्तृते द्यावापृथिवी द्यावापृथिव्यौ परि जभ्रे
। स्वतेजसा परिजहार । अतिचक्रामेत्यर्थः ॥ ऊवुः । वेज् तन्तुसंताने । लिटि वेजो
वयिः । पा. २-४-४१ [?] । लिटः कित्वाद्यजादित्वेन संप्रसारणे क्रियमाणे यकारस्य
लिटि वयो यः । पा. ६-१-३८ [?] । इति प्रतिषेधाद्वकारस्य संप्रसारणं परपूर्वत्वं
द्विर्वचनादि । वश्चास्यान्यतरस्यां किति । पा. ६-१-३९ [?] । इति यकारस्य
वकारादेशः । जभ्रे । हृज् हरणे । लिटि जित्वात्कर्त्रभिप्राये ऽत्मनेपदं । हृग्रहोर्भ इति
भत्वं । उर्वी । उरुशब्दादोतो गुणवचनादिति डीष् । वा छन्दसीति पूर्वसवर्णदीर्घत्वं ॥

asmā evendrāyāhihatye 'her vṛtrasya hanane nimittabhūte sati gnāś cit gamanasvabhāvā api sthitā devapatnīr devānāṃ pālayitryo gāyatryādyā devatā arkam arcanasāadhanam stotram ūvuḥ | samatanvata | cakrur ity arthaḥ | sa cendra urvī vistr̥te dyāvāpṛthivī dyāvāpṛthivyau pari jabhre | svatejasā parijahāra | aticakrāmety arthaḥ || ūvuḥ | veñ tantusaṃtāne | liṭi veño vayiḥ | pā. 2-4-41 [?] | liṭaḥ kittvād yajāditvena saṃprasāraṇe kriyamāṇe yakārasya liṭi vayo yaḥ | pā. 6-1-38 [?] | iti pratiṣedhād vakārasya saṃprasāraṇam parapūrvatvaṃ dvirvacanādi | vaś cāsyānyatarasyām kiti | pā. 6-1-39 [?] | iti yakārasya vakārādeśaḥ | jabhre | ḥṛñ haraṇe | liṭi ṇittvāt kartrabhiprāye 'tmanepadam | ḥṛgrahor bha iti bhatvaṃ | urvī | uruśabdād oto guṇavacanād iti ṇīṣ | vā chandasīti pūrvasavarṇadīrghatvaṃ ||

Translation of the bhāṣya: "To this very Indra, ahihatye, when the slaying of Ahi, Vṛtra, had come about, the gnāḥ cit, those who though by nature given to going [i.e. moving, wandering] stood still, the devapatnīḥ, the goddesses who are the guardians of the gods, such as Gāyatrī and the rest, ūvuḥ, wove [i.e. performed], an arka, a hymn that serves as the means of worship. And that Indra pari jabhre, encompassed with his own splendour, i.e. surpassed, urvī, the wide dyāvāpṛthivī, heaven and earth. Ūvuḥ: veñ tantusaṃtāne, 'to weave a thread'; in the perfect, veño vayiḥ (Pā. 2-4-41 [?]); the perfect being kit, when saṃprasāraṇa of an yaj-

initial root would take place, the sūtra liṭi vayo yaḥ (Pā. 6-1-38 [?]) forbids it for the y; so the saṃprasāraṇa is of the v, and the following form is the earlier one, with reduplication etc.; vaś cāsyānyatarasyāṃ kiti (Pā. 6-1-39 [?]): optional v for the y. Jabhre: hṛñ haraṇe; in the perfect, because of the mark ñ, the middle voice when the fruit goes to the agent; hṛgrahor bhaḥ: bha for ha. Urvī: from uru, oto guṇavacanāt: ñiṣ; vā chandasi: lengthening to the earlier similar vowel." ²⁷

Pratipadārtha — "ahihatye — in the occasion of the destruction of the enemy, Vṛtra; gnāścīt — [though] by nature given to movement (stood still); devapatnīḥ — the female deities, Gāyatrī and the rest, who protect the gods; arkam — the hymn that is a means of worship; ūvuḥ — composed [offered], (to Indra); urvī — the vast; dyāvāprthivī — heaven, earth and the space between; pari jabhre — (with his own splendour) he surpassed [and became more extensive] (i.e. exceeded both heaven and earth); asya — of Indra; mahimānam — the greatness; na pari staḥ — they could not surpass."

Bhāvārtha

— "When Vṛtra, the enemy, was being slain, the goddesses, the guardians of the gods — Gāyatrī and the others — though by nature moving, stood still there and composed and offered to Indra a hymn that serves as a means of worship. That Indra, by his own nature, became more extended than the extended heaven, earth and atmosphere. And even heaven and earth together could not surpass Indra's greatness."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 504)

— "To that Indra, the women, the wives of the gods addressed their hymns, on the destruction of Ahi (Vritra) ; he encompasses the extensive heaven and earth ; they two do not surpass his vastness."

27. The reference numerals are small in the print: as read, all [?].

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 504–505 — ahihatye — aheḥ vṛtrasya hanane nimittabhūte sati: "at the time of the killing of the Asura Vṛtra." gnāścīt — gamanasvabhāvā api sthitāḥ: "they have the nature of constant going (moving). This is an epithet of the goddesses, Gāyatrī and the rest, who protect the gods." arkam: "a hymn, a mantra, that is a means of worship." parijabhre — svatejasā parijahāra aticakrāma: "he surpassed, with his splendour beyond measure, both earth and the two worlds — this is the sense." te: "those heaven and earth alone never surpassed Indra's greatness."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁸ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. arkam: explained under the first Rik of this sūkta (the print says "in the second mantra of this same sūkta" — i.e. 61.5 above: the print's reference is to the earlier treatment, [?]). ūvuḥ: veñ tantusaṃtāne; liṭ, third plural jhi, jher jus: us; the root becomes vay (veño vayiḥ); asaṃyogāl liṭ kit: the suffix is treated as kit, so, being in the yājādi group, saṃprasāraṇa would be given by grahijyā...; two letters could take it; na saṃprasāraṇe saṃprasāraṇam bars saṃprasāraṇa of the v; but as liṭi vayo yaḥ (Pā. 6-1-38 as read [?]) bars it for the y in this root, it falls to the v; the former form (pūrvarūpa); the reduplication of uy; halādiśeṣa; vaś cāsyānyatarasyāṃ kiti (Pā. 6-1-39 as read [?]): optional v for the y of the root, with lengthening by the savarṇa; nighāta, since it follows a non-verb. jabhre: hṛñ haraṇe; ñit, so svaritañitaḥ kartrabhiprāye kriyāphale: middle voice when the fruit goes to the agent; liṭas tajhayor eśirec (Pā. 3-4-81 as read [?]): ta → eś; doubling of the root; ur at: a; halādiśeṣa; kuhoś cuḥ: cutva; yaṇ; with jahre standing, hṛgrahor bhaś chandasi: ha → bha; nighāta. urvī: the word uru, expressing a quality; in the feminine, voto guṇavacanāt (Pā. 4-1-44 as read [?]): ñiṣ; yaṇ; end-acute from the suffix; dual au: vā chandasi: lengthening by the earlier similar vowel. stah: asa bhuvi; laṭ, third dual tas; sārvadhātukam apit being ñit, śnasor allopaḥ (Pā. 6-4-111 as read [?]): loss of the root's a; the s of the suffix: rutva, visarga; nighāta; the s of the root after pari becomes ṣ by upasargāt prādurbhyaṁ astir yacparaḥ (Pā. 8-3-87 as read [?]) — so pari ṣṭaḥ in the Saṁhitā; then by ṣṭunā ṣṭuḥ the t of the suffix becomes ṭ.

original pp. 506–509

Rik 9

Saṁhitā-pāṭha

अस्येदेव प्र रिरिचे महित्वं दिवस्पृथिव्याः पर्यन्तरिक्षात् । स्वराळिन्द्रो दम आ विश्वगूर्तः स्वरिरमत्रो ववक्षे रणाय ॥ ९ ॥

asyed eva pra ririce mahitvaṁ divas prṥthivyāḥ pary antarikṣāt |
svarāḷ indro dama ā viśvagūrtaḥ svarir amatro vavakṣe raṇāya | |
9 | |

Pada-pāṭha

अस्य । इत् । एव । प्र । रिरिचे । महिऽत्वम् । दिवः । पृथिव्याः । परि । अन्तरिक्षात् । स्वऽराट् । इन्द्रः । दमे । आ । विश्वऽगूर्तः । सुऽअरिः । अमत्रः । ववक्षे । रणाय ॥ ९ ॥

asya | it | eva | pra | ririce | mahi-tvam | divaḥ | prṥthivyāḥ | pari
| antarikṣāt | sva-rāṭ | indraḥ | dame | ā | viśva-gūrtaḥ | su-ariḥ
| amatraḥ | vavakṣe | raṇāya | | 9 | |

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्येदेव । इदिति पादपूरणः । अस्यैवेन्द्रस्य महित्वं माहात्म्यं प्र रिरिचे ।
अतिरिच्यते । अधिकं भवतीत्यर्थः । अत्रोपसर्गो धात्वर्थस्य निवृत्तिमाचष्टे । यथा
प्रस्मरणं प्रस्थानमिति । कुतः सकाशात्प्ररिच इत्यत आह । दिवो द्युलोकात्
पृथिव्या भूलोकात् अन्तरिक्षात् द्यावापृथिव्योर्मध्ये वर्तमानादन्तरिक्षलोकाच्च ।
पर्युपर्यर्थः । त्रीँल्लोकानतीत्योपरि प्ररिरिचे इत्यर्थः । दमे दमयितव्ये विषये स्वराट्
स्वेनैव तेजसा राजमानो विश्वगूर्तो विश्वस्मिन्सर्वस्मिन्कार्य उद्गूर्णः समर्थः । यद्वा ।
विश्वं सर्वमायुधं गूर्तमुद्यतं यस्य स तथोक्तः । स्वरिः । शोभनशत्रुकः । शोभने शत्रौ

हन्तव्ये सति हन्ता वीर्यवत्तम इति गम्यते । यथाकेवारं [?] दिव्यं शासमिन्द्रं ।
 ऋग्वे. ३-४२-३ [?] इति । अकुत्सितारिमिति हि तस्यार्थः । अमत्रो यद्वादिषु
 गमनकुशलः । मात्रयेयत्तया रहितो वा । अमत्रोऽमात्रो महान्भवत्यभ्यमितो वेति
 यास्कः । नि. ६-२२ [?] । एवंभूत इन्द्रो रणाय युद्धमा ववक्षे । आवहति ।
 मेघान्प्रापयति । मेघैः परस्परयुद्धं कारयित्वा वृष्टिं चकारेति भावः । यद्वा । युद्धाय स्वकीयान्भटानामयति ॥

*asyed eva | id iti pādapūraṇaḥ | asyaivendrasya mahitvaṃ
 mātmyaṃ pra ririce | atiricyate | adhikaṃ bhavatīty arthaḥ |
 atropasargo dhātvarthasya nivṛttim ācaṣṭe | yathā prasmaraṇaṃ
 prasthānam iti | kutaḥ sakāśāt praririca ity ata āha | divo dyulokāt pṛthivyā bhūlokāt antarikṣāt dyāvāpṛthivyor madhye vartamānād antarikṣalokāc ca | pary upary arthaḥ | trīṃ lokān
 atītyopari praricire ity arthaḥ | dame damayitavye viśaye svarāt svenaiva tejasā rājamāno viśvagūrto viśvasmin sarvasmin kārya udgūrṇaḥ samarthaḥ | yadvā | viśvaṃ sarvaṃ āyudhaṃ gūrtam udyataṃ yasya sa tathoktaḥ | svariḥ | śobhanaśatrukaḥ |
 śobhane śatrau hantavye sati hantā vīryavattama iti gamyate |
 yathākevāraṃ [?] divyaṃ śāsam indraṃ | rgve. 3-42-3 [?] iti |
 akutsitārim iti hi tasyārthaḥ | amatro yuddhādiṣu gamanakuśalaḥ
 | mātrayeyattayā rahito vā | amatro 'mātro mahān bhavaty abhyamito veti yāskaḥ | nī. 6-22 [?] | evambhūta indro raṇāya
 yuddham ā vavakṣe | āvahati | meghān prāpayati | meghaiḥ parasparayuddhaṃ kārayitvā vṛṣṭiṃ cakāreti bhāvaḥ | yadvā |
 yuddhāya svakīyān bhaṭān gamayati ||*

Note — Reading notes: the print has praririce [ririce] in "kutaḥ sakāśāt praririca", as the heading of the question — it is given as printed, [?]; the quotation yathākevāraṃ divyaṃ śāsam indraṃ and its Rg numerals are crowded: [?]. The grammatical tail, p. 507, is characterized, not transcribed: asya — the word idam, the ending acute; ririce — ricir virecane, the perfect in the passive sense (chandasi luṇlaṇḍīṭaḥ), eś in place of ta, reduplication; pṛthivyāḥ — udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt; svarāt — rāja dīptau, kvip, jaṣṭva; dame — damu upaśame, ghañ in the passive, the vṛddhi barred (Pā. 7-3-34 as read [?]); viśvagūrtaḥ — gṛ nigaraṇe / gūrī udyamane, kta, gūrta; amatraḥ — ama gatyādiṣu, atran (Uṇ. 3-[?]); vavakṣe

— vah, leṭ, sip, śap → ślu, reduplication, hoḍhaḥ, ṣaḍhoḥ kaḥ si; raṇāya — the dative, kriyāgrahaṇaṃ kartavyam (the vārttika), or gatyarthakarmanī (Pā. 2-3-12 as read [?]).

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Asyed eva — id is a line-filler. Of this same Indra the mahitvam, greatness, pra ririce, exceeds — becomes greater. Here the prefix pra signals the cancelling of the root's sense, as in prasmarāṇa ('forgetting'?) and prasthāna ('departure') [the print's examples, given as read]. Exceeds what? He says: divaḥ, than the heaven-world; prṥthivyāḥ, than the earth-world; antarikṣāt, than the world of the atmosphere lying between heaven and earth. Pari has the sense of upari, 'above'; the meaning is: having passed beyond the three worlds, it is above. Dame, in what is to be subdued, svarāṭ, shining with his own splendour; viśvagūrtaḥ, capable, ready in every task; or he for whom all weapons are lifted; svariḥ, having an excellent enemy: when the enemy to be slain is excellent, the slayer is understood to be the more heroic — 'Indra, whose enemy is not contemptible' (Ṛg 3-42-3 [?]): that is its sense. Amatraḥ: skilled in going, in war and the like; or without limit, measure — Yāska: 'amatra means amātra, great, either fearless or boundless' (Ni. 6-22 [?]). Such an Indra ā vavakṣe, carries on to war, brings the clouds on; having made the clouds fight one another, he makes the rain — such is the idea; or: he sends his own warriors to battle."

Pratipadārtha — "asyedeva — of this Indra himself; mahitvam — the greatness; divaḥ — than the heaven-world; prṥthivyāḥ — than the earth-world; antarikṣāt — than the world of the atmosphere between these two; pari — above; pra ririce — extended further; dame — [in his own dwelling] in the place for subduing; svarāṭ — shining by his own splendour; viśvagūrtaḥ — capable of all heroic deeds, or he who holds up all weapons; svariḥ — having an excellent enemy fit for his valour; amatraḥ — moving skilfully in battle, or exceeding limit; indrah — Indra; raṇāya — for battle; ā vavakṣe — gathered the clouds together (making the rain by their collision), or sent his warriors to battle."

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra's greatness has spread wider than heaven and earth and the world of the atmosphere. Indra, shining by his own splendour in his own abode, capable of every heroic deed, with an enemy worthy of his valour, and moving skilfully in battle, gathered the clouds together for battle and made the rain by their collision."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 508)

— "His magnitude verily exceeds that of the heaven and earth and sky ; Indra, self-irradiating in his dwelling, equal to every exploit, engaged with no unworthy foe, and skilled in conflict, calls to battle."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 508 — pra ririce — ricir virecane: "the root ric, meaning 'to empty' [or 'to exceed'], with the prefix pra; by the force of the prefix the sense of the root becomes the opposite: as in prasmaraṇa, prasthāna — in these words the root's ordinary sense is cancelled." pari: "this word has the sense upari, 'above'." viśvagūrtah — viśvasmīn sarvasmīn kārye udgūrṇaḥ samarthaḥ: "or viśvaṃ sarvaṃ āyudhaṃ gūrtam udyataṃ yasya saḥ: capable of every undertaking, or one who has all kinds of weapons — thus it is explained in two ways." svariḥ — śobhanaśatrukaḥ: "one who has heroic enemies. When enemies are called heroes, one who slays such is known as braver than they; hence Indra is here given the epithet svariḥ. The Ṛg mantra '...yathākevēraṃ divyaṃ śāsam indraṃ' (Ṛg 3-42-3 [?]) explains it: Indra is the one with an enemy not despicable." amatrah — yuddhādiṣu gamanakuśalaḥ mātrayeyattayā rahito vā: "one who is firm and steady in all tasks such as war; one about whom it cannot be determined 'his strength is only so much.' Amatro 'mātro mahān bhavaty abhyamito vā (Ni. 6-22 [?]): in the sense of one of exceeding valour the Nirukta writer has read the word amatra."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ²⁹ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. asya: the word idam; genitive singular; ūḍidaṃ padādi... (Pā. 6-1-171 as read [?]): acute on the ending. ririce: ricir virecane; chandasi luṇlanliṭaḥ: liṭ in the present sense, in the passive; third singular; eś for ta; doubling; halādiśeṣa; as the suffix is kit no guṇa of the penultimate; nighāta. prthivyāḥ: ablative singular; the yaṇ comes in place of the acute (jīṣ), a consonant stands before it, so udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt (Pā. 6-1-174 as read [?]): acute on the ending. svarāt: rāja dīptau; satsūdviṣa... (Pā. 3-2-61 as read [?]): kvip; vraścabhrasja...: ṣatva of j; at the end of the word jhalām jaśo 'nte: jaśtva; vāvasāne: optional carva. dame: damu upaśame; ghañ in the passive; ñit, so vṛddhi would result by making it the cause, but nodāttopadeśasya māntasyānācameḥ (Pā. 7-3-34) bars it; ñnityādir nityam: initial-acute; locative singular. viśvagūrtaḥ: gṛ nigaraṇe; kta beginning with ta; śryukaḥ kiti (Pā. 7-2-11): no iṭ; bahulaṃ chandasi: ut; uraṇ raparaḥ: r; halica: lengthening of the penultimate before r: gūrta; or gūrī udyamane, kta; nasattaniṣatta... (Pā. 8-2-61 as read [?]) prevents ṇatva of the participle; if analysed as viśvasmin gūrtaḥ, a tatpuruṣa, marudvṛdhādi... (Pā. 6-2-?? as read [?]): acute on the end of the first member; as viśvaṃ gūrtaṃ yasya saḥ a bahuvrīhi, bahuvrīhau viśvaṃ saṃjñāyām (Pā. 6-2-106 as read [?]): the first member's final acute also when it is not a name. amatraḥ: ama gatyādiṣu; āminakṣiyajibandhi... (Uṇ. 3-[?] as read [?]): atran of the Aunādika kind; nit: initial-acute. vavakṣe: vaha prāpaṇe; leṭ; sibbahulaṃ leṭi (Pā. 3-1-34 as read [?]): sip; bahulaṃ chandasi: śap → ślu; ślau: reduplication; halādiśeṣa; hoḍhaḥ: ḍha for the root's h; ṣaḍhoḥ kaḥ si: ka; s after k → ṣ; lopaṣ ta ātmanepadeṣu (Pā. 7-1-41 as read [?]): loss of t; nighāta after a non-verb. raṇāya: karmaṇā yam abhipraiti sa sampradānam — the vārttika "kriyāgrahaṇam kartavyam": karma here receives the name sampradāna, hence the dative; or gatyarthakarmaṇi dvitīyācaturthyau... (Pā. 2-3-12 as read [?]): the dative.

original pp. 510–512

Rik 10

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्यैदेव शवसा शुषन्तं वि वृश्चद्वज्रेण वृत्रमिन्द्रः । गा न व्राणा अवनीरमुञ्चदभि श्रवो दावने सचेताः ॥ १० ॥

*asyed eva śavasā śuṣantam vi vṛścad vajreṇa vṛtram indrah | gā
na vrāṇā avanīr amuñcad abhi śravo dāvane sacetāḥ || 10 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

अस्य । इत् । एव । शवसा । शुषन्तम् । वि । वृश्चत् । वज्रेण । वृत्रम् । इन्द्रः । गाः । न ।
व्राणाः । अवनीः । अमुञ्चत् । अभि । श्रवः । दावने । सऽचेताः ॥ १० ॥

*asya | it | eva | śavasā | śuṣantam | vi | vṛścat | vajreṇa | vṛtram
| indrah | gāḥ | na | vrāṇāḥ | avanīḥ | amuñcat | abhi | śravaḥ |
dāvane | sa-cetāḥ || 10 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्यैवेन्द्रस्य शवसा बलेन शुषन्तं शुष्यन्तं वृत्रमिन्द्रो वज्रेण वि वृश्चत् । व्यच्छिनत् ।
तथा गा न चोरैरपहृता गाव इव व्राणा वृत्रेणावृता अवनी रक्षणहेतुभूता अपोऽमुञ्चत्
। अवर्षीत् । तथा दावने हविर्दात्रि यजमानाय सचेतास्तेन यजमानेन समानचित्तः सन् श्रवः कर्मफलभूतमन्नमभ्याभिमुख्येन ददातीति शेषः ॥

asyaivendrasya śavasā balena śuṣantaṃ śuṣyantaṃ vṛtram indro vajreṇa vi vṛscat | vyacchinat | tathā gā na coraiḥ apahr̥tā gāva iva vr̥ṇāḥ vṛtreṇāvṛtā avanī rakṣaṇahetubhūtā apo 'muñcat | avarṣīt | tathā dāvane havirdātre yajamānāya sacetās tena yajamānena samānacittaḥ san śravaḥ karmaphalabhūtam annam abhyābhimukhyena dadātīti śeṣaḥ | | ³⁰

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Asyaiva: of this same Indra, śavasā, by the strength, śuṣantaṃ, the drying [one], vṛtram, Vṛtra, Indra vi vṛscat, tore apart, with the thunderbolt. And as cows seized by thieves, so vr̥ṇāḥ, the waters held back by Vṛtra, the avanīḥ, protectors [or 'refreshers', that are the cause of sustenance] — he amuñcat, let loose; i.e. he rained. And sacetāḥ, of one mind with that sacrificer, dāvane, to the sacrificer who gives the oblation, he gives śravaḥ, food that is the fruit of the rite, abhi, in front of him [bestowing] — the verb is to be supplied."

Pratipadārtha — "asyedeva — of this Indra himself; śavasā — by strength; śuṣantaṃ — the one who dries up [the waters]; vṛtram — Vṛtra; indraḥ — Indra; vajreṇa — with the vajra weapon; vi vṛscat — tore apart; gāḥ na — as one releases cows [stolen by thieves]; vr̥ṇāḥ — [the waters] held by Vṛtra; avanīḥ — the waters, which are the cause of protection; amuñcat — he released and rained; dāvane — to the sacrificer who gives the oblation; sacetāḥ — one with a mind in step with his wish; śravaḥ — the food [that is the fruit of his rite]; abhi — graciously, in front [he gives]."

Bhāvārtha

30. The grammatical tail, p. 510, characterized, not transcribed:

śuṣantaṃ — śuṣa śoṣaṇe, śa in place of śyan

by vyatyaya, the accent of the vikaraṇa remains;

vr̥ṇāḥ — vṛṇ varāṇe, passive laṭ, śānac, the yak lost by bahulaṃ chandasi, yaṇ; avanīḥ —

ava rakṣaṇe, the suffix ani in the instrumental sense

(Uṇ. 3-[?] [?]), acute on the suffix; dāvane — āto manin kvanib vanipaś ca [as read, ?]: vanip, the a-elision not applied in the dative, by Vedic licence.

— "With his own strength Indra tore apart with the vajra Vṛtra, who dries up the waters. As one releases cows stolen by thieves, he released the waters held by Vṛtra and let them rain. And, being of one mind with the sacrificer who offers the oblation, according to his wish, he graciously gives him the food that is the fruit of his rite."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 511)

— "Indra, by his power, cut to pieces with his thunderbolt Vritra, the absorber (of moisture), and set free the waters obstructed by Vritra and capable of protecting the universe, like cows (recovered from thieves) ; and in accordance with the wishes of the giver of the oblation ; (grants him) food."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viṣayaḥ), p. 511 — śuṣāntam — śuṣyantam, from the root śuṣa śoṣaṇe: "this word, formed from the root meaning 'to dry', means 'one who dries up (the water)'. It is an epithet of the word vṛtram." vrāṇāḥ — vṛtreṇāvṛtāḥ: "the waters in the cloud, held back by the Asura Vṛtra; a word derived from the root vṛñ varāṇe." sacetāḥ — tena yajamānena cetaḥ cittam yasya: "one whose firm mind is with the sacrificer; one whose mind acts in accordance with the sacrificer's wish." śravaḥ — karmaphalabhūtam annam: "Indra gives those who have performed rites such as sacrifices the food suited to their worth: this is the idea."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³¹ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. śuṣāntam: śuṣa śoṣaṇe (divādi); śatṛ in the present sense; divādibhyaḥ śyan would apply, but by vyatyayo bahulam it is śa; śuṣat; since the lasārvadhātuka follows a root of a-upadeśa, it is unaccented (tāsyānudātenñidadupadeśāl lasārvadhātukam anudāttam), so the accent of the vikaraṇa remains; accusative singular: ugit, so num (ugidacāṃ...), with anuvāra by parasavarṇa. vṛścat: ovraścū chedane; lañ, third singular; loss of the i of ti; tudādibhyaḥ śaḥ: śa; sārvadhātukam apit is ñit, so grahijyā...: saṃprasāraṇa; no aṭ (bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi); nighāta. vrāṇāḥ: vrñ varaṇe; passive laṭ, śānac; bahulaṃ chandasi: the yak that came from the sārvadhātuka is lost; śānac being ñit, no guṇa of the root; iko yaṇaci: yaṇ; accent at the end by the suffix [the print cites citaḥ, as printed]. avanīḥ: ava rakṣaṇe; in the instrumental sense artistṛdhṛ... (Uṇ. 3-[?] as read [?]): the suffix ani; the va and the following ā acute by the suffix's initial acute; accusative plural. amuñcat: muç mokṣaṇe; śe muca...: num; lañ, third singular; nighāta. dāvane: ḍudāñ dāne; āto manin...: vanip; the stem dāvan; in the dative singular the a-elision does not occur, by Vedic licence.

original pp. 512–514

Rik 11

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्येदु त्वेषसा रन्त सिन्धवः परि यद्वज्रेण सीमयच्छत् । ईशानकृदाशुषे दशस्यन्तुर्वीतये गाधं तुर्वणिः कः ॥ ११ ॥

asyed u tveṣasā ranta sindhavaḥ pari yad vajreṇa sīm ayacchat |
īśānakṛd dāśuṣe daśasyan turvītaye gādham turvaṇiḥ kaḥ || 11 ||

Pada-pāṭha

अस्य । इत् । ऊं इति । त्वेषसा । रन्त । सिन्धवः । परि । यत् । वज्रेण । सीम् । अयच्छत् ।
ईशानऽकृत् । दाशुषे । दशस्यन् । तुर्वीतये । गाधम् । तुर्वणिः । कः । इति कः ॥ ११ ॥

asya | it | ūṃ iti | tveṣasā | ranta | sindhavaḥ | pari | yat |
vajreṇa | sīm | ayacchat | īśāna-kṛt | dāśuṣe | daśasyan |
turvītaye | gādham | turvaṇiḥ | kaḥ | iti kaḥ || 11 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्यैवेन्द्रस्य त्वेषसा दीप्तेन बलेन सिन्धवः समुद्राः । यद्वा । गङ्गाद्याः सप्त नद्यो
 रन्त । स्वे स्वे स्थाने रमन्ते । यद्यस्मादयमिन्द्रो वज्रेण सीमेनान्सिन्धून्वज्रेण पर्ययच्छत् । परितो नियमितवान् । अपि च ईशानकृत्
 वृत्रादिशत्रुवधेनात्मानमैश्वर्यवन्तं कुर्वन्निन्द्रो दाशुषे हविर्दात्रे [?] यजमानाय फलं
 दशस्यन् प्रयच्छन् तुर्वणिस्तूर्णसंभजनः । तुर्वणिस्तूर्णवनिरिति यास्कः । नि. ६-१४
 [?] । यद्वा । तुर्विता शत्रूणां हिंसिता । एवंभूत इन्द्रस्तुर्वीतये एतत्संज्ञायोदके निमग्नया ऋषये गाधमवस्थानयोग्यं धिष्यप्रदेशं कः । अकार्षीत् ॥

asyaivendrasya tveṣasā dīptena balena sindhavaḥ samudrāḥ |
yadvā | gaṅgādyāḥ sapta nadyo ranta | sve sve sthāne ramante | yad yasmād ayam indro vajreṇa sīm enān sindhūn vajreṇa pary ayacchat | parito niyāmitavān | api ca īśānakṛt vṛtrādīśatruvadhenātmānam aiśvaryaavantam kurvann indro dāśuṣe havirdātre [?] yajamānāya phalam daśasyan prayacchan turvaṇis tūrṇasaṃbhajanaḥ | turvaṇis tūrṇavanir iti yāskaḥ | ni.
6-14 [?] | yadvā | turvitā śatrūṇām himsitā | evaṃbhūta indras turvītaye etatsaṃjñāyodake nimagnāya ṛṣaye gādham
avasthānayogyam dhiṣṇyapradeśam kaḥ | akārṣīt | | ³²

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Asyed u tveṣasā: by the shining strength of this very Indra sindhavaḥ, the oceans, or the seven rivers beginning with the Gaṅgā, ranta, rejoice, each in its own place; for yad, since, this Indra pari ayacchat, restrained on every side with the vajra, sīm, these rivers. Further: īśānakṛt, making himself lordly by slaying Vṛtra and the other enemies, Indra, dāśuṣe, to the sacrificer who offers the oblation, daśasyan, giving the fruit, turvaṇiḥ, who swiftly shares [in giving] (Yāska: 'turvaṇiḥ is tūrṇavanīḥ', Ni. 6-14 [?]); or turvitā, the slayer of enemies — such an Indra kaḥ, made, for turvīti, the sage by that name who was sunk in the water, gādham, a standing-place, a spot fit to stand on."

32. Reading note: havirdātre — in the print the letters after havir-dā are crowded (dātravaśe-like); havirdātre is read, [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 513–514, is characterized, not transcribed, below under the Vyākaraṇa notes.

Pratipadārtha — "yat — because; vajreṇa — with his vajra weapon; sīm — all these rivers; pari ayacchat — he made to flow round and restrained; asyedu — of this very Indra; tveṣasā — by shining strength; sindhavaḥ — the oceans or the seven rivers beginning with the Gaṅgā; ranta — sport in their own places; īśānakṛt — [by slaying Vṛtra and other enemies] making his lordship known; dāśuṣe — to the sacrificer who gives the oblation; daśasyan — giving [the fruit]; turvaṇiḥ — swift-going, or the destroyer of enemies; turvītaye — to the sage named Turvīti [sunk in the water]; gādham — a place for dwelling; kaḥ — made."

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra with his vajra made the way for the seven rivers and made them flow; therefore the seven rivers, beginning with the Gaṅgā, sport in their own places by the help of his shining strength. And Indra, by slaying enemies such as Vṛtra, making his lordship known, and giving to the sacrificer who offers the oblation the fruit [of his rite], himself swift-going, made a dwelling-place for the sage Turvīti."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 513)

— "Through his power the rivers sport, since he has, by his thunderbolt, determined their limits ; establishing his supremacy (by killing Vritra) and granting recompense to the giver (of the oblation), he, the swift-moving, provided a resting place for Turviti."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 513–514 — tveṣasā — dīptena balena: "by shining splendour and by strength." sindhavaḥ: "here the word sindhu is explained as 'ocean', or as the seven rivers beginning with the Gaṅgā." rante — ramu krīḍāyām: "each shines (sports) in its own place: this is the sense." sīm — enān sindhūn: "this word has the sense of parigraha [taking in, i.e. 'all']; it also fills out the line, i.e. it signals an object fit to be accepted, and completes the sense of the Vedic sentence.

'sīm iti parigrahārthīyo vā padapūraṇo vā' (Ni. 1-[?] [?]) — in the Nirukta the same sense as above is stated of the word sīm." īśānakṛt: "points to Indra's greatness by his slaying of Vṛtra and the others." turvaṇiḥ — tūrṇasaṃbhajanaḥ: "one who vigilantly destroys enemies. turvaṇiḥ stūrṇavaniḥ (Ni. 6-14 [?]); or turvītā śatrūṇām hiṃsitā — one who especially destroys foes (Indra)." turvītaye: "a certain great sage, Turvīta, who was sinking in the water." gādham — āvasthānayogyam dhiṣṇyapradeśam: "a part of the house fit for dwelling in."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³³ — Grammar page, noted briefly. rante: ramu krīḍāyām; chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭaḥ: laṇ in the present sense; third plural: jho 'ntaḥ: ant; bahulaṃ chandasi: loss of śap; Vedic loss of the root's final; no aṭ (bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi); nighāta, after a non-verb. āyacchat: yama uparamē; laṇ, third singular tip; itaś ca: loss of i; iṣugamiyamām chaḥ (Pā. 7-3-77 as read [?]); cha before śap; the augment aṭ; because of the yad word no nighāta (yadvṛttānnityam); initial acute from aṭ. īśānakṛt: īśānaṃ karoti; kṛñ + kvip; hrasvasya piti kṛti tuk: tuk; gatikārapapadāt kṛt: accent of the first member. kaḥ: ḍukṛñ karaṇe; luṇ, third singular tip; itaś ca; cli luṇi: cli, whose loss is by mantra ghasahvaraṇaśavṛdahādyāṇ... (Pā. 2-4-80 as read [?]); sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ: guṇa of the root vowel; hal-ṇyābbhyo...: loss of ti; no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi; rutva, visarga; nighāta.

original pp. 515-518

Rik 12

Saṃhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु प्र भरा तूतुजानो वृत्राय वज्रमीशानः कियेधाः । गोर्न पर्व वि रदा तिरश्चेष्यन्नर्णास्यपां चरध्वे ॥ १२ ॥

asmā id u pra bharā tūtujāno vṛtrāya vajram īśānaḥ kiyedhāḥ |
gor na parva vi radā tiraścēṣyann arṇāṃsy apāṃ caradhyai | | 12
|| 34

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । प्र । भर । तूतुजानः । वृत्राय । वज्रम् । ईशानः । कियेधाः । गोः । न ।
पर्व । वि । रद । तिरश्चा । इष्यन् । अर्णांसि । अपाम् । चरध्यै ॥ १२ ॥

asmai | it | ūṃ iti | pra | bhara | tūtujānaḥ | vṛtrāya | vajram |
īśānaḥ | kiyedhāḥ | goḥ | na | parva | vi | rada | tiraścā | iṣyan |
arṇāṃsi | apām | caradhyai || 12 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

तूतुजान इति क्षिप्रनाम । तूतुजानस्त्वरमाणः । यद्वा । शत्रून् हिंसन् । ईशान ईश्वरः
सर्वेषां कियेधाः कियतोऽनवधृतपरिमाणस्य बलस्य धाता । यद्वा । क्रमुमाणं
शत्रुबलं दधात्यवस्थापयतीति कियेधाः । हे इन्द्र एवंभूतस्त्वमस्मै वृत्राय वज्रं प्र भर
। इमं वृत्रं वज्रेण प्रहरेत्यर्थः । प्रहृत्य च अर्णांसि वृष्टिजलानीष्यन्
तस्माद्वृत्रात्प्रेरयंस्त्वमपां चरध्यै तासामपां चरणाय भूप्रदेशं प्रति गमनाय तस्य
वृत्रस्य मेघरूपस्य पर्व पर्वण्यवयवसन्धीन् तिरश्चा तिर्यग्वस्थितेन वज्रेण वि रद ।
विलिख । छिन्धीत्यर्थः । तत्र दृष्टान्तः । गोर्न । यथा मांसस्य विकर्तारो लौकिकाः
पुरुषाः पशोरवयवानितस्ततो विभजन्ति तद्वत् । अत्र निरुक्तं । अस्मै प्रहर तूर्णं
त्वरमाणो वृत्राय वज्रमीशानः कियेधाः कियद्वा इति वा क्रमुमाणधा इति वा गोरिव पर्वाणि विरद मेघस्येष्ट्यन्नर्णांस्यपां चरणाय । नि. ६-१० [?] ॥

tūtujāna iti kṣipra-nāma | tūtujānas tvaramāṇaḥ | yadvā | śatrūn
himsan | īśāna īśvaraḥ sarveṣāṃ kiyedhāḥ kiyato
'navadhṛtaparimāṇasya balasya dhātā | yadvā | kramumāṇaṃ
śatrubalaṃ dadhāty avasthāpayatīti kiyedhāḥ | he indra

34. Reading note: The Saṃhitā's tiraścēṣyan is read as tiraścēṣyan — tiraścā followed by iṣyan — as the Pada has tiraścā | iṣyan; the long ā of bharā and radā is the Saṃhitā lengthening of bhara, rada before a vowel/iti-less particle, noted in the grammar page.

evambhūtas tvam asmai vṛtrāya vajraṃ pra bhara | imaṃ vṛtraṃ
 vajreṇa praharety arthaḥ | prahrtya ca arṇāṃsi vṛṣṭijalāny iṣyan tasmād vṛtrāt prerayaṃs tvam apāṃ caradhyai tāsām apāṃ caraṇāya bhūpradeśaṃ prati gamanāya tasya vṛtrasya megharūpasya parva parvāṇy avayavasandhīn tiraścā tiryagavasthiteṇa vajreṇa vi rada | vilikha | chindhīty arthaḥ |
 tatra dṛṣṭāntaḥ | gor na | yathā māṃsasya vikartāro laukikāḥ
 puruṣāḥ paśor avayavān itas tato vibhajanti tadvat | atra niruktaṃ | asmai prahara tūrṇaṃ tvaramāṇo vṛtrāya vajraṃ īśānaḥ kiyedhāḥ kiyaddhā iti vā kramumāṇadhā iti vā gor iva parvāṇi virada meghasyeṣyann arṇāṃsy apāṃ caraṇāya | ni. 6-10
 [?] || 35

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Tūtujāna is a name for 'quick'; tūtujānaḥ: hastening; or: harming enemies. Īśānaḥ: the lord of all;
 kiyedhāḥ: the establisher of strength of boundless measure; or, he who stops the strength of enemies who advance. O Indra, such as you are, pra bhara, hurl the vajra at this Vṛtra; strike him with the vajra. And having struck, iṣyan, sending forth arṇāṃsi, the rain-waters from that Vṛtra, apāṃ caradhyai, so that these waters may move, may go to the region of the earth, vi rada, tear off, cut up, with the vajra standing crosswise (tiraścā), the parva, the joints, the members, of that Vṛtra in the form of a cloud. Illustration: gor na, as men who cut up meat divide the limbs of an animal this way and that. On this the Nirukta says: 'strike him, hastening swiftly, with the vajra, at Vṛtra, the lord, the kiyedhāḥ —

35. The grammatical tail, p. 516 — characterized, not transcribed: bhara
 (the bha for ha, the Saṃhitā lengthening); tūtujānaḥ (tuja himsāyām, kānac, the reduplicative vowel lengthened, the initial acute); kiyedhāḥ (explained under the sixth Rik); rada; tiraścā (tiryāñc, kvin, the n lost, the elision of a in the instrumental, ścutva, the ending acute); iṣyan (iṣa gatau, śyan, nit); caradhyai (cara gatibhakṣaṇayoḥ, the infinitive adhyai).

kiyaddhāḥ or kramamāṇadhāḥ — cut the joints like a cow's, sending forth the waters of the cloud that they may flow' (Ni. 6-10 [?])."

Pratipadārtha — "(he indra — O Indra;) tūtujānaḥ — swift-moving, or the destroyer of enemies; īśānaḥ — the lord of all; kiyedhāḥ — very strong, or one who lessens the strength of enemies; you; asmā idu vṛtrāya — upon this very Vṛtra; vajram — the vajra weapon; pra bhara — apply and strike; arṇāṃsi — the rain-waters; iṣyan — you who send forth from Vṛtra or from the cloud; apām — of the waters; caradhyai — for their flowing; goḥ parva na — as butchers cut the limbs of a cow's body into pieces; tiraścā — with your sharp vajra; vi rada — cut up."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, swift-moving, or destroyer of enemies, lord of all, very strong: strike this Vṛtra with your vajra and make the cloud fall as rain. So that the water may fall from the cloud, cut the body of Vṛtra, in cloud form, with your sharp vajra, as butchers cut the dead body of a cow into pieces."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 516)

— "Indra, quick-moving and strength-endowed lord of all, hurl your thunderbolt at this Vritra and cut off his joints as (butchers cut up) a cow, that the rains may issue from him, and the waters flow (over the earth)."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 516–517 — tūtujānaḥ: "a word that gives the sense kṣipra ('quick'). In the Nirukta (Ni. 3-9 [?]) six words signifying kṣipra are read together — nu, mumkṣu, dravat and so on [list as read, [?]]. Here the word is explained in two ways: one who hastens, or one who harms enemies." kiyedhāḥ — kiyato 'navadhṛtaparimāṇasya balasya dhātā: "the maker of strength of unmeasured measure; or kramumāṇaṃ śatrubalaṃ dadhāty avasthāpayatīti kiyedhāḥ — one who stands against the strength of enemies that advance and checks it, i.e.

Indra. The word kiyaddhā is used in the Nirukta statement 'asmai prahara tūrṇam...' (Ni. 6-[?] [?]) in the sense of one who confronts the attackers." tasmāt apāṃ caradhyai: "cause the water to flow from that Vṛtra to the earth. This calls up the story that when Vṛtra, in the form of a cloud, stopped the very rain on the earth, Indra struck him with the vajra and brought the rain upon the earth." tiraścā — tiryagavasthitena vajreṇa — tiro 'ñcatīti: "tiryañc — that which enters sideways; seeming always transverse." gaur na — paśor iva: "this gives an illustration. As butchers who cut meat first cut the animal's body into pieces, so cut Vṛtra, in the form of a cloud, into pieces: this is the sense. The same sense is to be known from the Nirukta [Ni. 6-10 [?]]."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁶ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. bhara: hrñ haraṇe; loṭ second singular, sip → hi; śap; guṇa; uraṇ raparaḥ; ato heḥ: loss of hi; hrgrahor bhaś chandasi: bha for ha; dvyacotastīnaḥ (Pā. 6-3-135 as read [?]): lengthening in the Saṃhitā; nighāta. tūtujānaḥ: tuja hiṃsāyām; liṭ → kānac; reduplication; halādiśeṣa; tujādīnām dīrgho 'bhyāsasya (Pā. 6-1-7 as read [?]): lengthening of the reduplicative vowel; chandasy ubhayathā: kānac is also sārvadhātuka, so abhyastānām ādiḥ: initial acute. kiyedhāḥ: explained in Ṛg 1-61-6 [?] (i.e. 61.6 above). rada: rada vilekhane; loṭ second singular; ato heḥ: loss of hi; tiṇ atīnaḥ: nighāta. tiraścā: tiro 'ñcatīti tiryañc; ṛtvigdadhṛk...: kvin after añc with an indeclinable in front; being kit, aniditām hala upadhāyāḥ kniti: loss of n; in the instrumental singular, before an ending with the bha name, acaḥ: loss of the a of añc; with ś following, ścutva: s → ś; so tiraścā; the acute goes to the ending (anudāttasya ca yatrodāttalopaḥ). iṣyan: iṣa gatau; the root includes a causative sense; śatr; divādibhyaḥ śyan; apit, hence ñit, so no guṇa; iṣyat; nit: initial acute; nominative singular: num; hal- ñyābbhyo...: loss of su; saṃyogāntalopa: loss of t. caradhyai: cara gatibhakṣaṇayoḥ; tumarthe sesenase... (Pā. 3-4-9): adhyai; being ejanta: avyaya. apām: ūḍidaṃ padādi...: acute on the ending.

original pp. 518–520

Rik 13

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्येदु प्र ब्रूहि पूर्व्याणि तुरस्य कर्माणि नव्य उक्थैः । युधे यदिष्णान आयुधान्युघायमाणो निरिणाति शत्रून् ॥ १३ ॥

asyed u pra brūhi pūrvyāṇi turasya karmāṇi navya ukthaiḥ |
yudhe yad iṣṇāna āyudhāny ṛghāyamāṇo nirināti śatrūn || 13 ||

37

Pada-pāṭha

अस्य । इत् । ऊं इति । प्र । ब्रूहि । पूर्व्याणि । तुरस्य । कर्माणि । नव्यः । उक्थैः । युधे । यत्
। इष्णानः । आयुधानि । ऋघायमाणः । निरिणाति । शत्रून् ॥ १३ ॥

asya | it | ūṃ iti | pra | brūhi | pūrvyāṇi | turasya | karmāṇi |
navyaḥ | ukthaiḥ | yudhe | yat | iṣṇānaḥ | āyudhāni |
ṛghāyamāṇaḥ | nirināti | śatrūn || 13 ||

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

उक्थैः शस्त्रैर्नव्यः स्तुत्यो य इन्द्र अस्येदु अस्यैव तुरस्य युद्धार्थं त्वरमाणस्येन्द्रस्य
पूर्व्याणि पुराणानि कर्माण्येतत्कृतानि बलकर्माणि हे स्तोतः प्र ब्रूहि । प्रशंस । यद्यदा
युधे योधनायायुधानि वज्रादीनीष्णान अभीक्ष्णेन प्रेरयन् शत्रून् उघायमाणो हिंसश्चेन्द्रो
निरिणाति अभिमुखं गच्छति । तदानीं प्र ब्रूहीति पूर्वेण संबन्धः । पूर्व्यमिति
पुराणनामसु पाठात् ॥

37. Reading note: in the print's Samhitā, line 2, iṣṇānaḥ is joined to the next word as yad iṣṇāna āyudhāni; the Pada has iṣṇānaḥ | āyudhāni.

ukthaiḥ śāstrair navyaḥ stutyo ya indra asyed u asyaiva turasya yuddhārthaṃ tvaramāṇasyendrasya pūrvyāṇi purāṇāni karmāṇy etatkṛtāni balakarmāṇi he stotaḥ pra brūhi | praśaṃsa | yad yadā yudhe yodhanāyāyudhāni vajrādīny iṣṇāna abhīkṣṇena prerayan śatrūn ṛghāyamāṇo hiṃsaṃś cendro nirināti abhimukhaṃ gacchati | tadānīm pra brūhīti pūrveṇa saṃbandhaḥ | pūrvyam iti
 purāṇanāmasu pāṭhāt || ³⁸

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Navyaḥ: praiseworthy by ukthaiḥ, the śāstras, i.e. the Indra who is to be praised; of this same Indra, turasya, who hastens to battle, O singer, pra brūhi, proclaim, praise, the pūrvyāṇi, ancient, deeds — the strength-deeds done by him. Yad, when, yudhe, for fighting, iṣṇānaḥ, constantly sending forth the weapons, the vajra and the rest, ṛghāyamāṇaḥ, harming, and nirināti, going out against, the enemies [i.e. goes towards them]: then, pra brūhi is connected with the preceding. Pūrvya ['old'] is read among the names for 'old'."

Pratipadārtha — "(O singer;) yat — when; yudhe — in battle; āyudhāni — the weapons such as the vajra; iṣṇānaḥ — constantly employing; śatrūn — enemies; ṛghāyamāṇaḥ — harming and destroying; nirināti — falls on them [then]; ukthaiḥ — with hymns in the form of śāstra; navyaḥ — which Indra is worthy of praise; asyedu turasya — of this very Indra, who hastens [to battle]; pūrvyāṇi — the former; karmāṇi — the deeds of valour; pra brūhi — praise well."

38. The grammatical tail, p. 519, characterized, not transcribed: turasya — tura tvarāṇe, the suffix ka; navyaḥ — ṇu stutau, yat, āv for o; iṣṇānaḥ — iṣa ābhīkṣṇye, kryādi, the middle voice by vyatyaya, śānac; ṛghāyamāṇaḥ — explained in the passage Ṛg 1-101-4 [?]; nirināti — rī gatireṣaṇayoḥ, śnā, shortening; the absence of nighāta because of the relative yat (yadvṛttayogāt).

Bhāvārtha — "O singer, praise well the former heroic deeds of that Indra, worthy of praise through the hymns that are śāstras and quick to go to battle, when he, wielding weapons such as the vajra, falls on the enemies in battle, harming and destroying them."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 519)

— "Describe, with new hymns, the former exploits of that quick-moving Indra, when holding his weapons in battle, he encounters and destroys his enemies."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), pp. 519–520 — navyaḥ: "praiseworthy." asyedu — asya + it + u: "the it and the u here give the sense eva ('indeed')." turasya: "of that Indra who hastens for battle." pūrvyāṇi — purāṇāni: "'pūrvyam ahnāya' (Ni. 3-2 [?]): the Nirukta writers read this word among the words for 'old' (purāṇa)."
ṛghāyamāṇaḥ: "one who harms enemies (Indra): nahi tvā rodasī ubhe ṛghāyamāṇam invataḥ (Rg 1-101-4 [?]) — in this mantra the sense of the word is specially explained."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ³⁹ — Grammar page, noted briefly. brūhi: brūñ vyaktāyām vāci; loṭ second singular; the ending hi is apit, hence ñit, so no guṇa (as the print says); nighāta. turasya: tura tvarāṇe; igupadhajñāprīkirakaḥ kaḥ (Pā. 3-1-135 as read [?]): ka; being kit, no laghūpadha-guṇa; end-acute by the suffix; genitive singular. navyaḥ: ṇu stutau; since it ends in a vowel, aco yat (Pā. 3-1-97 as read [?]): yat; sārvadhātukārdhadhātukayoḥ: guṇa; since the o arises from the yat suffix, dhātos tannimittasyaiva (Pā. 6-1-80 as read [?]): āv; yato 'nāvaḥ: initial acute. yudhe: yudha samprahāre; kvip; dative; sāvekācas ṛtīyādīḥ: acute on the ending. iṣṇānaḥ: iṣa ābhīkṣṇye; kryādi; vyatyayo bahulam: middle voice; sānac; kryādibhyaḥ śnā: śnā; sārvadhātukam apit is ñit, so no laghūpadha-guṇa; ṇatva for the n by the ṣ; citaḥ: end-acute. ṛghāyamāṇaḥ: explained at Rg 1-101-4 [?]. nirināti: rī

39. p. 520 — noted briefly

gatiṣaṇayoḥ; kryādi; laṭ third singular tip; kryādibhyaḥ śnā; pṛvādinām hrasvaḥ (Pā. 7-3-80 as read [?]): shortening; ṇatva of the n of the vikaraṇa (raṣābhyām...); tip is pit and unaccented, so the accent of the vikaraṇa remains; because of the yad word, no nighāta; since a verb with the acute follows, the preposition nir is accented by tiṅ codāttavati (Pā. 8-1-71 as read [?]).

original pp. 521–523

Rik 14

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्येदु भिया गिरयश्च दृळ्हा द्यावा च भूमा जनुषस्तुजेते । उपो वेनस्य जोगुवान ओणि सद्यो भुवद्वीर्याय नोधाः ॥ १४ ॥

*asyed u bhiyā girayaś ca dṛḷhā dyāvā ca bhūmā januṣas tujete |
upo venasya joguvāna oṇim sadyo bhuvad vīryāya nodhāḥ | | 14 | |*

Pada-pāṭha

अस्य । इत् । ऊं इति । भिया । गिरयः । च । दृळ्हाः । द्यावा । च । भूम । जनुषः । तुजेते इति । उपो इति । वेनस्य । जोगुवानः । ओणिम् । सद्यः । भुवत् । वीर्याय । नोधाः ॥ १४ ॥

*asya | it | ūm iti | bhiyā | girayaḥ | ca | dṛḷhāḥ | dyāvā | ca |
bhūma | januṣaḥ | tujete iti | upo iti | venasya | joguvānaḥ | oṇim
| sadyaḥ | bhuvat | vīryāya | nodhāḥ | | 14 | |*⁴⁰

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

अस्यैवेन्द्रस्य भियो भयेनेत्यर्थः । गिरयः पर्वता अपि दृळ्हाः । निश्चलाः
स्वस्वदेशेऽवतिष्ठन्ते । जनुषः प्रादुर्भूतादस्मादेवेन्द्राद्गीत्या द्यावा च भूमा च
द्यावापृथिव्यावपि तुजेते । तुजिर्हिसार्थोऽस्यत्र कंपने द्रष्टव्यः । कंपेते इत्यर्थः । किंच

40. Reading note: the Samhitā has bhūmā, the Pada bhūma; the grammar page explains the Samhitā form with ā and the position of ca between dyāvā and bhūmā.

वेनस्य कान्तस्यास्येन्द्रस्योणिं दुःखस्यापनयनकं रक्षणमुपो जोगुवानोऽनेकैः सूक्तैः
पुनः पुनरुपशब्दयन् । उपश्लोकयन्नित्यर्थः । एवंभूतो नोधा ऋषिः सद्यस्तदानीमेव वीर्याय भुवत् । वीर्यवानभवत् ॥

*asyaivendrasya bhiyo bhayenety arthaḥ | girayaḥ parvatā api
dṛḷhāḥ | niścalāḥ svasvadeśe 'vatiṣṭhante | januṣaḥ prādurbhūtād asmād evendrād bhītyā dyāvā ca bhūmā ca dyāvāprthivyāv api tujete | tujir hiṃsārtho 'syatra kaṃpane draṣṭavyaḥ | kaṃpete ity arthaḥ | kiṃca venasya kāntasyāsyendrasyoṇim duḥkhasyāpanayanakaṃ rakṣaṇam upo joguvāno 'nekaiḥ sūktaiḥ punaḥ punar upaśabdayan | upaślokayann ity arthaḥ | evaṃbhūto
nodhā ṛṣiḥ sadyas tadānīm eva vīryāya bhuvāt | vīryavān abhavāt*
|| ⁴¹

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Asyed u bhiyā: through fear of this very Indra, girayaḥ, even the mountains, dṛḷhāḥ, stand firm, motionless, each in its own place. Januṣaḥ: from this very Indra who has appeared (been born), out of fear, dyāvā ca bhūmā ca, heaven and earth too, tujete. The root tuj, which means 'to harm', is to be taken here in the sense of 'trembling': the two tremble. Further, oṇim, the protection that removes the sorrow of this venasya, beloved Indra, upo joguvānaḥ, sounding it again and again with many hymns — praising it — such is the sense. Such a one, the seer Nodhas, sadyaḥ, at once, vīryāya bhuvāt, became strong."

Pratipadārtha — "asyedu — of this very Indra; bhiyā — from fear (of him who cuts the wings [of the mountains]); girayaś ca — the mountains too; dṛḷhāḥ — stand firm without moving;

41. The grammatical tail, p. 521 foot, characterized, not transcribed: dyāvā ca bhūmā (dīvo dyāvā, dā for the dual, both members keeping their accents); januṣaḥ (janer usiḥ, an Uṇādi suffix); joguvānaḥ (guja avyakte śābde, yaṇluk, śānac, uvaṇ); oṇim (oṇṛ apanayane, the Uṇādi ī); bhuvāt (leṭ, aṭ, no guṇa); nodhāḥ (Yāska: "nodhā ṛṣir bhavati navanaṃ dadhātīti", Nī. 4-16 [?]; dhāñ, asun, nava → no).

januṣaḥ — [from fear] of this Indra who has appeared; dyāvā bhūmā ca — both heaven and earth; tujete — tremble; venasya — of the beloved Indra; oṇim — the protection that removes sorrow; upo joguvānaḥ — [with hymns] praising at every step; nodhāḥ — the seer Nodhas; sadyaḥ — at once; vīryāya bhuvat — became capable of valour."

Bhāvārtha

— "From fear of Indra the mountains stand firm, without moving; from fear of him heaven and earth too tremble. The seer Nodhas, praising step by step, with excellent hymns, the sorrow-removing protection of the beloved Indra, at once became exceedingly strong."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 522)

— "Though fear of him, the mountains remain still ; and through fear of his appearance, heaven and earth tremble ; praising repeatedly with hymns the preserving power of that beloved Indra, Nodhas speedily acquired vigour."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 522 — januṣaḥ — janī prādurbhāve: "from the state of Indra who has manifested himself." tujete: "though the root tuj has the sense of harming, here the sense 'trembling' must be said: heaven and earth shake from fear of Indra's appearance." venasya — kāntasya: "of the charming (Indra)." joguvānaḥ — guja avyakte śabde: "one who makes an indistinct sound at every step." nodhāḥ: "the meaning of this word is 'seer'. In the Ṛg-saṃhitā: 'ūvū adarśi śundhyavo navakṣo nodhā ivāvir akṛta priyāṇi' (as read, the Ṛg numeral illegible [?]) — here too the word nodhas is explained as 'seer' (the gloss, tentative: 'as [a seer like] Nodhas makes his dear things manifest' — the reading of the verse is uncertain). The Nirukta explanations — 'nodhā iva āvir akṛta priyāṇi', 'nodhā ṛṣir bhavati navanaṃ dadhāti' and the like — also give 'seer' as its meaning."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴² — Grammar pages, noted briefly. bhiyā: instrumental singular; sāvekācas tṛtīyādiḥ: acute on the ending. dyāvā ca bhūmā: the word dyāvābhūmī; the ca is read between the two words as a Vedic arrangement; divo dyāvā (Pā. 6-3-29 as read [?]): dyāvā in place of div; supāṃ suluk: ḍā for the dual ending; ḍit: loss of the ṭi; devatādvandve ca (Pā. 6-2-141 as read [?]): both members keep their own accent; both forms are traditional. januṣaḥ: janī prādurbhāve; janer usiḥ (Uṇ. 2-[?] as read [?]): the Aunādika suffix usi; janus; ablative singular; acute on u by the suffix. joguvānaḥ: guja avyakte śabde; yañ in the intensive sense; yañoś ca: its loss (luk); though a parasmaipada root, vyatyayo bahulam: sānac; as yañluganta roots are read in the adādi class (carkarītaṃ ca), adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ: loss of śap; because of yañ, doubling; guṇo yañluṅkoḥ (Pā. 7-4-82 as read [?]): guṇa of the reduplicative vowel; joguv + āna: aci śnudhātubhruvāṃ...: uvañ; abhyastānām ādiḥ: initial acute. oṇim: oṇṛ apanayane; the Aunādika i; end-acute by the suffix. bhuvat: bhū sattāyām; leṭ, third singular tip; itaś ca lopah parasmaipadeṣu: loss of i; leṭo 'ṭātau: aṭ; bahulaṃ chandasi: loss of śap; bhūsuvoṣ tiṇi (Pā. 7-3-88 as read [?]): no guṇa of the root; uvañ; tiñ atīnaḥ: nighāta. nodhāḥ: Yāska as above; ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; asun, which arises on every root; "he holds newness" so nava → no; nodhas; gatikārapapadāt kṛt: the first member's accent; nominative: atvasantasya cādhātoḥ: lengthening of the penultimate; hal-ñyābbhyyo...: loss of su; rutva, visarga.

original pp. 523–526

Rik 15

Samhitā-pāṭha

अस्मा इदु त्यदनु दायि एषामेको यद्वज्ने भूरेरीशानः । प्रैतशं सूर्ये पस्पृधानं सौवश्ये
सुष्विमावदिन्द्रः ॥ १५ ॥

42. pp. 522–523 — noted briefly

*asmā id u tyad anu dāyy eṣām eko yad vavne bhūrer īśānaḥ |
praitaśaṃ sūrye pasprdhānaṃ sauvaśvye suṣvim āvad indraḥ | |
15 | |* ⁴³

Pada-pāṭha

अस्मै । इत् । ऊं इति । त्यत् । अनु । दायि । एषाम् । एकः । यत् । वन्ने । भूरेः । ईशानः । प्र । एतशम् । सूर्ये । पस्पृधानम् । सौवश्ये । सुस्विम्[?] । आवत् । इन्द्रः ॥ १५ ॥

*asmai | it | ūṃ iti | tyat | anu | dāyi | eṣām | ekaḥ | yat | vavne |
bhūreḥ | īśānaḥ | pra | etaśaṃ | sūrye | pasprdhānam |
sauvaśvye | susvim [?] | āvat | indraḥ | | 15 | |* ⁴⁴

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

एक एक एव शत्रून्जेतुं समर्थो भूरेर्बहुविधस्य धनस्येशानः स्वामी यत्स्तोत्रं वन्ने
ययाचे एषां स्तोतृणां संबन्धि । यद्वा । विभक्तिव्यत्ययः । एभिः स्तोतृभिः तत्प्रसिद्धं
स्तोत्रमस्मा इन्द्रायानु दायि । अकारीत्यर्थः [?] । उत्तरार्धस्येयमाख्यायिका । स्वश्रो
नाम कश्चिद्राजा । स च पुत्रकामः सूर्यमुपासां चक्रे । तस्य च सूर्य एव पुत्रो बभूव ।
तेन सहैतशानाम्नो महर्षेर्युद्धं जातमिति तदेतदिहोच्यते ॥ अयमिन्द्रः सौवश्ये
स्वश्वपुत्रे सूर्ये पस्पृधानं स्पर्धमानं सुष्विं सोमानामभिषोतारमेतशमेतशसंज्ञकमृषिं प्रावत् । प्ररक्षत् ॥

*eka eka eva śatrūn jetuṃ samartho bhūrer bahuvidhasya dhanasyeśānaḥ svāmī yat stotraṃ vavne yayāce eṣāṃ stotṛñāṃ saṃbandhi | yadvā | vibhaktivyatyayaḥ | ebhiḥ stotṛbhiḥ
tatprasiddhaṃ stotram asmā indrāyānu dāyi | akārīty arthaḥ [?] |
uttarārdhasyeyam ākhyāyikā | svaśvo nāma kaścid rājā | sa ca
putrakāmaḥ sūryam upāsāṃ cakre | tasya ca sūrya eva putro
babhūva | tena sahaitaśanāmno maharṣer yuddhaṃ jātam iti tad*

43. Reading note: the Saṃhitā prints dāyy eṣām as dāyyeṣām, i.e. dāyi eṣām with y before e; It is given as the Pada does.

44. Reading note: the Pada's word before āvat is printed susvim, with a plain s, while the Saṃhitā has suṣvim and the grammar page treats it as from suṃ abhiṣave: The Pada is given as printed with [?], not adjusted.

etad ihocyate || ayam indraḥ sauvaśvye svaśvaputre sūrye pasprdhānam spardhamānam suṣvim somānām abhiṣotāram etaśam etaśasaṃjñakam ṛṣim prāvat | prarakṣat || ⁴⁵

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Ekaḥ: he alone, capable of conquering enemies, bhūreḥ īśānaḥ, lord, master, of manifold wealth, yad vavne, whatever hymn he asked for [belonging to these eṣām praisers]; or, with a change of case, by these praisers that well-known hymn has been offered (anu dāyi) to this Indra — meaning 'was made' [reading doubtful (?)]. This is the story for the second half: there was a king named Svaśva. He, wishing for a son, worshipped Sūrya, and Sūrya himself became his son. A battle arose between him and the great seer named Etaśa; this is what is told here. This Indra, sauvaśvye, in [the war with] the son of Svaśva, sūrye, Sūrya, [protected] etaśam, the seer named Etaśa, who pasprdhānam, was contending [with Sūrya], suṣvim, the presser of the Soma-juices: prāvat, protected him well."

Pratipadārtha — "ekaḥ — the sole one, in conquering enemies; bhūreḥ — of manifold wealth; īśānaḥ — the lord; Indra; yāt — whatever hymn; vavne — he desired; eṣām — of those praisers, or by them; tyāt — that famous hymn; asmā idu — to that Indra; anu dāyi — has been offered; indraḥ — Indra; sauvaśvye — [in the matter of] his own son; sūrye — with Sūrya; pasprdhānam — who was contending; etaśam — the seer named Etaśa; prāvat — protected well."

45. The grammatical tail, p. 524 foot, characterized, not transcribed: dāyi (the a-augment absent by bahulaṃ chandasy amāriyoge 'pī); vavne (vanu yācane, the perfect, the penultimate lost by vyatyaya); pasprdhānam (spardha saṃgharṣe, kānac, reduplication, the p remaining by śarpūrvāḥ khayāḥ, citaḥ); sauvaśvye (svaśva as a country-name that is also used of a kṣatriya, vā nāmādheyasya vṛddhasaṃjñā vaktavyā, ṇyañ, no vṛddhi after v, initial acute by ñit); suṣvim (ṣuñ abhiṣave, kin, doubling by the perfect-like rule, yañ).

Bhāvārtha

— "Indra, alone in conquering enemies and lord of manifold wealth: that famous hymn which he desired has been offered to him by the praisers. Indra protected well the seer Etaśa, who was contending with Sūrya, the son of Svaśva."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 525)

— "He alone (is capable of subduing his enemies) and is the powerful lord of manifold riches ; give unto him the hymns which he has desired for. Indra defended the pious sacrificer Etaśa, when fighting Surya, the son of Swaswa."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 525 — ekaḥ: "here the word eka means 'without a helper'. Indra, without anyone's help, alone, is able to conquer enemies." eṣām: "though it should mean 'of these hymns', here, by the exchange of case (vibhaktivyatyaya), they have explained it in the sense of the third case — 'by these hymns'." sauvaśvye: "in the son of the king named Svaśva: in former times King Svaśva, desiring a son, performed penance addressed to Sūrya; pleased with his penance, Sūrya himself was born as the king's son. A terrible battle arose between him and the great seer Etaśa." suṣviṃ — ṣuñ abhiṣave: "the one who offers (presses) the Soma-juice. The great seer Etaśa, named above, satisfied Indra by the Soma sacrifice. Indra, pleased with his penance, protected him from Sūrya."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁶ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. dāyi: ḍudāñ dāne; passive luñ, third singular ta; ciṇ bhāvakarmaṇoḥ: ciṇ for ta; ciṇo luk (Pā. 6-4-104 as read [?]): loss of the following ta; āto yuk ciṇkṛtoḥ (Pā. 7-3-33 as read [?]): yuk; no aṭ (bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi); nighāta, after a non-verb. vavne: vanu yācane; liṭ, third singular; eś; doubling; halādiśeṣa; by vyatyaya the penultimate is lost though there is no cause for it; because of the yad word, no nighāta; end-acute by the suffix. pasprdhānam:

spardha saṃgharṣe; kānac in place of liṭ; doubling; in the reduplicative syllable śarpūrvāḥ khayaḥ (Pā. 7-4-61 as read [?]): the p remains; by pr̥ṣodarādi, the loss of the a of the root and the saṃprasāraṇa of r, as taught by "as stated" rules; citaḥ: end-acute. sauvaśvye: svaśva is the name of a country and also a kṣatriya name; vā nāmadheyasya vṛddhasaṃjñā vaktavyā (a vārttika on Pā. 1-1-73 [?]): it receives the vṛddha name; vṛddhāt kosalājādāñ ṇyañ (Pā. 4-1-171 as read [?]): ṇyañ in the sense of "descendant"; vṛddhi would be expected at the beginning, but na yvābhyām padāntābhyām pūrvau tu tābhyām aic (Pā. 7-3-3 as read [?]) prevents the vṛddhi and gives the aic augment after the v; being ñit, initial acute. suṣvim: ṣuñ abhiṣave; utsargaś chandasi (Pā. 3-2-171 as read [?]): kin; doubling by the perfect-like rule (liḍvadbhāva); being kit, no guṇa; su + i: in the Veda uvañ does not apply; yañ: suṣvi. āvat: ava rakṣaṇe; lañ, third singular; nighāta, after a non-verb.

original pp. 526–529

Rik 16

Samhitā-pāṭha

एवा ते हारियोजना सुवृक्तीन्द्र ब्रह्माणि गोतमासो अक्रन् । ऐषु विश्वपेशसं धियं धाः प्रातर्मक्षू धियावसुर्जगम्यात् ॥ १६ ॥

*evā te hāriyojanā suvr̥ktīndra brahmāṇi gotamāso akran | aiṣu
viśvapeśasaṃ dhiyaṃ dhāḥ prātar makṣū dhiyāvasur jagamyāt ||
16 ||*

Pada-pāṭha

एव । ते । हारिऽयोजन । सुऽवृक्ति । इन्द्र । ब्रह्माणि । गोतमासः । अक्रन् । आ । ऐषु ।
विश्वऽपेशसम् । धियम् । धाः । प्रातः । मक्षु । धियाऽवसुः । जगम्यात् ॥ १६ ॥

*eva | te | hāri-yojana | su-vṛkti | indra | brahmāṇi | gotamāsaḥ |
akran | ā | eṣu | viśva-peśasaṃ | dhiyam | dhāḥ | prātaḥ | makṣu
| dhiyā-vasuḥ | jagamyāt || 16 ||*

Sāyaṇa-bhāṣya

हयोरश्वयोर्योजनं यस्मिन्नथे स तथोक्तः । तस्य स्वामित्वेन संबन्धी हारियोजनः । हे
 हारियोजनेन्द्र गोतमासो गोतमगोत्रोत्पन्ना ऋषयः सुवृक्ति
 सुष्ट्वावर्जकान्यभिमुखीकरणकुशलानि ब्रह्माणि स्तुतिरूपाणि मन्त्रजातानि ते
 तवैवाक्रन् । अकृषत । एषु स्तोतृषु विश्वपेशसं बहुविधरूपयुक्तं धियं धाः । धियो
 लभ्यत्वाद्दीर्धनमुच्यते । यद्वा । धीशब्दः कर्मवचनः । पश्चादिबहुविधरूपं
 धनमग्निष्टोमादिकं बहुविधरूपं कर्म वा धाः । धेहि । स्थापय । प्रातरिदानीमिव
 परेद्युरपि प्रातःकाले धियावसुर्बुद्ध्या कर्मणा वा प्राप्तधन इन्द्रो मक्षु शीघ्रं जगम्यात् । अस्मद्रक्षणार्थमागच्छतु ॥

*haryor asvayor yojanaṃ yasmin rathe sa tathoktaḥ | tasya
 svāmitvena saṃbandhī hāriyojanaḥ | he hāriyojanendra gotamāso gotamagotrotpannā ṛṣayaḥ suvr̥kti suṣṭhv āvarjakāny abhimukhīkaraṇakuśalāni brahmāṇi stutirūpāṇi mantrajātāni te tavaivākran | akṛṣata | eṣu stotr̥ṣu viśvapeśasaṃ
 bahuvidharūpayuktaṃ dhiyaṃ dhāḥ | dhiyo labhyatvād dhīr dhanam ucyate | yadvā | dhīśabdaḥ karmavacanaḥ | paśvādibahuvidharūpaṃ dhanam agniṣṭomādikaṃ
 bahuvidharūpaṃ karma vā dhāḥ | dhehi | sthāpaya | prātar idānīm iva paredyur api prātaḥkāle dhiyāvasur buddhyā karmaṇā vā prāptadhana indro makṣu śīghraṃ jagamyāt |
 asmadrakṣaṇārtham āgacchatu | |* ⁴⁷

Translation of the bhāṣya: "Hāriyojana: he in whose chariot there is a yoking of two bay horses, thus called; one who is related to it as its owner. O Indra, owner of the yoked bays, the seers gotamāsaḥ, born in the Gotama line, akran, have made for you alone brahmāṇi, groups of mantras in the form of praise, suvr̥kti, well drawing you toward them, clever in turning [you] to

47. The grammatical tail, p. 527 foot, characterized, not transcribed:
 eva — the Saṃhitā lengthening of the particle (evā); suvr̥kti — loss of the accusative-plural ending; akran — kr̥, luṇ, the loss of cli (mantra ghasahvara...), ant, yaṇ, the aṭ augment; dhāḥ — dhā, luṇ
 in the sense of loṭ, loss of sic, no aṭ.

face [them]. Eṣu, on these singers, dhāh, bestow dhiyam, viśvapeśasam, wealth of manifold forms (dhī is called wealth because it is to be won); or the word dhī means 'rite': bestow wealth of many forms such as cattle, or manifold rites such as the Agniṣṭoma. [May he], as now, so on the morrow, in the morning-time too, dhiyāvasuḥ, Indra who has gained wealth by understanding or by rite, makṣu, quickly, jagamyāt, come — let him come for our protection."

Pratipadārtha — "hāriyojana — [O Indra,] who have bay horses yoked to your chariot; indra — O Indra; gotamāsaḥ — the seers born in the Gotama line; suṃṛkti — good, effective; brahmāṇi — mantras in the form of praise; te eva — for you alone; akran — have made; eṣu — on these praisers; viśvapeśasam — of manifold kinds; dhiyam — wealth such as cattle, or rites such as the Agniṣṭoma; ā dhāh — bestow with favour; prātaḥ — (as now) also in the coming mornings; dhiyāvasuḥ — Indra who has obtained wealth by understanding or rite; makṣu — vigilantly; jagamyāt — may he come [for our protection]."

Bhāvārtha

— "O Indra, who yoke bays to your chariot: the seers born in the Gotama line have composed for you alone mantras in the form of praise, good and effective. Bestow on these seers wealth of manifold kinds such as cattle. And as now, so in the mornings that come, may Indra, who has gained wealth by his own pure rites, come here vigilantly for our protection."

English Translation (the source's own, p. 527)

— "O Indra, harnesser of horses, the descendants of Gotama, have offered to you well-worded hymns to secure your presence ; confer upon them manifold riches ; may he (Indra) who has acquired wealth by pious deeds, come hither quickly in the morning."

Special Topics (viśeṣa-viśayagaḷu), p. 528 — hāriyojana — haryor aśvayor yojanaṃ yasmin saḥ hariyojanaḥ: "he who is related to it as its owner is hāriyojanaḥ: one who has a chariot with horses; or one seated as master in a horse-chariot." gotamāsaḥ: "the seers born in the Gotama line." suvṛkti — suṣṭhv āvarjakāny abhimukhīkaraṇakuśalāni: "mantras that have the capacity to turn the deities, in an excellent manner, to face the singer: an epithet of the mantras." brahmāṇi: "the collections of mantras in the form of praise." viśvapeśasam — bahuvīdharūpayuktam: "endowed with many forms: an epithet of the word dhiyam." dhiyaṃ dhāḥ: "give wealth. Dhiyo labhyatvāt dhīḥ dhanam ucyate: or the word dhī is [read as] expressing rite — 'wealth of manifold forms such as cattle, or manifold rites such as the Agniṣṭoma': thus they explain dhiyam in two ways, either as wealth to be won by the understanding, or as rites such as the Agniṣṭoma through the word dhī meaning 'rite'." dhiyāvasuḥ: "one who has gained complete lordship by understanding or by the fruit of rite." makṣu jagamyāt — śighraṃ asmadrakṣaṇārtham āgacchatu: "may he come vigilantly to protect us."

Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā ⁴⁸ — Grammar pages, noted briefly. eva: nipātasya ca (Pā. 6-3-136 as read [?]): lengthening in the Saṃhitā. hāriyojana: āmantritasya ca (Pā. 8-1-19 as read [?]): the vocative nighāta. suvṛkti: in the neuter accusative plural, loss of the ending by supāṃ suluk. gotamāsaḥ: nominative plural jas: ājjaser asuk (Pā. 7-1-50 as read [?]): asuk. akran: ḍukṛñ karaṇe; luñ, third plural: jho 'ntaḥ: ant; itaś ca: loss of i; cli luñi: cli with its loss by mantre ghasahvara... (Pā. 2-4-80 as read [?]); sārvadhātukam apit is ñit, so no guṇa; iko yañaci: yañ; saṃyogāntasya lopah: loss of the final t; the aṭ augment because of luñ; nighāta, after a non-verb. viśvapeśasam: viśvāni peśāṃsi yasya; bahuvrīhau prakṛtyā pūrvapadam: accent of the first member. dhāḥ: ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ; chandasi luṇlaṇḍiṭaḥ: luṇ in the sense of loṭ; second singular sip; itaś ca: loss of i; cli luṇi sic: sic for cli; gātisthāghupā... (Pā. 2-4-77 as read [?]): since it is called ghu, loss of sic; no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi; nighāta. makṣū: ṛcitunughamakṣu... (Pā. 6-3-133 as read [?]): lengthening in the Samhitā.

Close of Sūkta 61 and of the Fourth Adhyāya (p. 529, PDF 545)

The print closes the sūkta with the line "ಅರವತ್ತೊಂದನೆಯ ಸೂಕ್ತವು ಸಮಾಪ್ತವು" — aravattondaneya sūktavu samāptavu — "The sixty-first sūkta is complete."

Then the Sanskrit colophon of the Adhyāya (Devanagari, IAST, translation):

वेदार्थस्य प्रकाशेन तमो हार्दं निवारयन् । पुमर्थाश्चतुरो देयाद्विद्यातीर्थमहेश्वरः ॥ इति
श्रीमद्राजाधिराजपरमेश्वरवैदिकमार्गप्रवर्तकश्रीवीरबुक्कभूपालसाम्राज्यधुरंधरेण
सायणाचार्येण विरचिते माधवीये वेदार्थप्रकाशे ऋक्संहिताभाष्ये प्रथमाष्टके चतुर्थोऽध्यायः समाप्तः ॥ ॐ तत्सत् ॥

*vedārthasya prakāśena tamo hārdaṃ nivārayan | pumarthāṃś
caturo deyaḍ vidyātīrthamaheśvaraḥ || iti śrīmad-rājādhirājaparameśvara-vaīdikamārga-pravartaka-śrīvīra-bukka-bhūpālasāmrāja-dhurandhareṇa sāyaṇācāryeṇa viracite mādhavīye vedārthaprakāśe ṛksaṃhitābhāṣye prathamāṣṭake caturtho
'dhyāyaḥ samāptaḥ || om tat sat ||*

Translation: "May Vidyātīrtha-Maheśvara, dispelling by the light of the Veda's meaning the darkness of the heart, grant the four aims of human life. Thus ends the fourth Adhyāya in the First Aṣṭaka of the Ṛksaṃhitā-bhāṣya, the Vedārtha-prakāśa of the Mādhava school, composed by Sāyaṇācārya, the bearer of the burden of the empire of the illustrious King Vīra-Bukka, the promoter of the Vedic path, the supreme lord of kings. Om tat sat."

Kannada closing line: "ಇಲ್ಲಿಗೆ ಶ್ರೀ ಸಾಯಣಭಾಷ್ಯಸಹಿತವೂ ಕರ್ನಾಟಕಭಾಷಾನುವಾದಯುತವೂ ಆದ ಋಗ್ವೇದಸಂಹಿತೆಯ ಪ್ರಥಮಾಷ್ಟಕದಲ್ಲಿ ನಾಲ್ಕನೆಯ ಅಧ್ಯಾಯವು ಸಮಾಪ್ತವಾದುದು" — "Here ends the fourth Adhyāya in the first Aṣṭaka of the R̥gveda-saṃhitā, accompanied by Sāyaṇa's bhāṣya and a Kannada translation."

यदक्षरपदभ्रष्टं मात्राहीनं तु यद्भवेत् । तत्सर्वं क्षम्यतां देव वागीश्वर नमोऽस्तु ते ॥ शुभं भूयात् ॥ मङ्गलम् ॥

yad akṣarapadabhraṣṭaṃ mātrāhīnaṃ tu yad bhavet | tat sarvaṃ kṣamyatām deva vāgīśvara namo 'stu te || śubhaṃ bhūyāt || maṅgaḷam ||

Translation: "Whatever syllable or word has fallen out, or whatever may be lacking in measure — may all that be forgiven, O God, Lord of Speech; salutation to you. May there be well-being. Auspiciousness." ⁴⁹

Sūkta 61 (Maṇḍala 1, Eleventh Anuvāka, 16 Riks; ṛṣi Nodhas Gautama; deity Indra; Triṣṭubh) — printed pp. 478–529, PDF 494–545. The sūkta, an ahīna-sūkta recited at the midday pressing, is a single sustained praise of Indra as warrior and creator of waters: the poet offers hymn and oblation as food to a hungry man (1–2); the hymn is a voice joined to the offering as a horse to a chariot or as a carpenter's chariot sent to its owner (3–5); Tvaṣṭṛ sharpens Indra's vajra and he pierces the vital part of Vṛtra (6); Indra drinks Soma and eats oblations at the three pressings, and the Viṣṇu-sacrifice is stolen back and its ripened wealth won (7); the goddesses, wives of the gods, offer him hymns at Ahi's slaying and his greatness exceeds heaven, earth and atmosphere (8–9); he splits Vṛtra, frees the waters like stolen cows (10), and makes the rivers flow, giving a standing-place to Turvīti (11); he is urged to cleave the cloud-Vṛtra limb by limb as a butcher cuts a cow, that the rains may flow (12); the poet is bidden to praise his old deeds (13); mountains stand firm and heaven and earth tremble for fear of him, and Nodhas gains strength (14); Indra defends Etaśa against Sūrya, the son of Svaśva (15); and the Gotamas offer these hymns, asking him to come quickly in the morning (16).

49. PDF 546 = printed p. 530 is blank apart from a small printer's ornament (a rose); the Parīśiṣṭa begins at printed p. 531 = PDF 547 and is not translated.

Pariśiṣṭa — Appendix on the Deities and Persons of the Ṛgveda

Added at the user's request (2026-10-06) after Volume 5's Sūktas 47–61 were complete. The Pariśiṣṭa is a Kannada prose essay with no Sāyaṇa bhāṣya; it has no Saṃhitā/Pada layers, so the Rik conventions do not apply. Conventions here: a faithful English rendering of the Kannada, page by page, with the printed page marked; Sanskrit words and quoted Ṛgveda phrases (where the print gives any) in Devanagari + IAST + English; the bracketed numerals in the print (Kannada digits) are reproduced as maṇḍala-sūkta-ṛk references exactly as read at 150 dpi, unverified — individual digits that are doubtful are marked [?]; the print's own English words (if any) keep [sic] for misprints.

original p. 531

Pariśiṣṭa.

Note (Sūcane):

"[In this part we have written the summary of the investigations that Western scholars have carried out on the various deities seen in the Ṛgveda, and, in the places where we saw it to be necessary, have added some parts of our own research. For those who study the Veda with a critical eye, and for others too who are interested in the subject of the Veda, there is no need to say that this part will be of special use. The numbers placed at the ends of sentences indicate, in order, the maṇḍala, sūkta and ṛk.]"

Deities of the Heavenly Region (svargasthānada devategaḷu)

Dyauḥ

Dyauḥ ¹: "The name of the sky that we see with our eyes. It is used mostly in this sense: it occurs in the sense of 'sky' more than five hundred times [as read]; and as 'day' about fifty times. When it is personified as a deity of the sky, it generally occurs together with Pṛthivī, in the dual, as Dyāvāpṛthivī (द्यावापृथिवी, dyāvāpṛthivī, 'heaven and earth'). These two are conceived as the father and mother of the world. There is not even one hymn that praises the sky as a deity [by itself]. If at some places it is used on its own, the only idea intended there is that of fatherhood. It is found chiefly in the genitive, in about fifty places [as read]; in every such genitive some deity is said to be the son or daughter of this one. For the most part the goddess Uṣas is his daughter; the Aśvins are his offspring; Agni is his son or child; Parjanya, Sūrya, the Ādityas, the Maruts and the Aṅgirasas are his sons. In the thirty places where it occurs in the nominative, in eight it is used alone; in the remaining places it is accompanied by Pṛthivī or by another deity. Three times he is 'father' (1-90-2; 1-164-33; 4-1-10); once he is Indra's father (4-17-3); once he is one of great seed (retas); and Agni is his begetter (4-12-4); a bull (5-36-5), the red bull that roars downward (5-58-6), and one who approved the slaying of Vṛtra (6-72-3) — thus three places each [as read]. In the dative case there are eight places, of which three are special: the famed father (1-27-5 [?]), the most excellent (1-54-3), and the lofty house (5-42-2). In the four places in the accusative only two are different: one in which he is given the epithet [...] (1-164-3 [?]), and one in which Agni is said to make him roar for the sake of men (1-?-4)."

"In this way, 'Dyauḥ' is used specially in the sense of father of the deities. Only in fifteen or sixteen places [as read] is his fatherhood stated; it is not stated clearly, either independently or together with Pṛthivī. This deity's chief characteristic is fatherhood. In a few passages he is compared to a bull: here it is the animal that thunders and drips towards the earth. Elsewhere (10-68-11) he is a black horse adorned with pearls; this must be the sky studded with stars. In 'in the hand of the sky-deity (an arrow), there is a thunderbolt' there is an attribution of human form, as in 'he laughs among the clouds' (3-?-?) — this too must be the sky lit by lightning. Such mantras are found here and there. Apart from these there is no mention of Dyauḥ as an animal or as a man. Fatherhood (the idea 'father') is the main intent. Pṛthivī is the mother. The use in the dual is the most frequent; the praise that applies to Dyauḥ together with Pṛthivī does not apply to Dyauḥ alone. There are six sūktas addressed to Dyāvāpṛthivī as deity. Like the other great deities he too is called an Asura (असुर, asura, here 'lord, powerful one'): (1-131-1; 1-?-?-; 8-20-?) [as read]; at one place there is the vocative 'Dyauḥ pitāḥ, pṛthivī mātāḥ' (6-51-5) [द्यौः पितः पृथिवि मातः, dyauḥ pitāḥ pṛthivī mātāḥ, 'O father Heaven, O mother Earth']. In a few places this word is used also in the feminine. If it is said that 'pitṛ' means the father of everything, and that he holds all things within him, a meaning is being forced on it. Nor can it be said that there is no deity greater than he; but in this same Ṛgveda, superlatives are attributed to other deities beyond Dyauḥ."

"This word is derived from the root div (दि॒व्, div, 'to shine'); like deva, it means a shining, bright thing."

Varuṇa

Varuṇa.

"A most excellent deity, equal to Indra. The number of mantras addressed to Varuṇa is very small: the sūktas that praise him alone are twelve. Judged by the count of mantras he would be the third great deity — or, if Mitra, who is the other deity with him, and the twenty-four sūktas praising the two together are taken, he would come to the fifth place in the list; he is in number far below even the Aśvins, and equal to the place of the Maruts. The number of mantras addressed to Varuṇa shows neither his true position nor his excellence."

"Varuṇa has a human body and human activities; but his moral activities seem to receive more attention than his physical body and activities. The description of his body and ornaments is very scanty; the description of his deeds is much fuller. He has a face, eyes, arms, hands and feet. He moves his hands; he stands on the chariot [path?] [the print's words unclear: [?]]; he sits; he eats and drinks. Varuṇa's face (anīka) is conceived as the face of Agni (7-88-2 [?]; compare 7-?-?); the eye of Mitra and Varuṇa is Sūrya (1-115-1; 6-51-1; 7-61-1; 7-63-1; 10-37-1). Since the idea that Sūrya is their eye is in the very first mantra of the sūktas addressed to Mitrāvaruṇa, it seems that this is the point that comes into view first whenever Mitra and Varuṇa are mentioned. In a sūkta addressed to Sūrya (1-50-6), when it says that Varuṇa looks at men with his eye, that eye must be Sūrya himself. Aryaman, Mitra and Varuṇa are 'sun-eyed' (7-66-10). This epithet is applied to all deities. Varuṇa is far-seeing (1-25-5; 8-90-3) and thousand-eyed (7-34-10)."

original p. 533

"Mitra and Varuṇa stretch out their arms (5-64-2; 6-67-1) and, making the very rays of Sūrya their arms, drive the chariot. Like Savitṛ and Tvaṣṭṛ they are of beautiful hands (suprāṇī, सुपाणी, supāṇī). Mitra and Varuṇa go swiftly with their feet (5-64-2), and Varuṇa treads with feet that trample evil deeds (8-41-8). He sits on the darbha grass spread in the sacrificial hall (1-25-?; 5-62-?). Like other deities he drinks Soma with Mitra (4-41-2 and following). Varuṇa wears a golden mantle, or armour (drāpi, द्रापि, drāpi, 'mantle'), and bears a shining garment (1-25-13). In some places (5-62-?; 2-41-?) it is said that he has a shining garment made of ghee: this must be connected with the ghee oblation (ājya) made in sacrifice; the 'shining garments' that they put on (1-?-?) must be in the same sense. In one place in the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (the numeral read as [?]) Varuṇa is depicted as handsome, with a bald head and yellow eyes, an old man. Among his ornaments the chief is his chariot. It is radiant like Sūrya (1-122-15 [?]), has a seat and whips (5-62-?), and well-yoked horses draw it easily (5-62-4). Mitra and Varuṇa mount the chariot in a very lofty region of the sky (5-63-1). The poet has the wish that this chariot should be seen upon the earth (5-62-2)."

"The dwelling of Mitra and Varuṇa is of gold, and is in the world above (5-62-8; 1-122-2). Varuṇa, seated in his palace, looks at all that happens in the world (1-25-10 and 11). The hall (sadas) of Varuṇa and Mitra is large, very high, supported on a thousand pillars, and firm (5-62-6; 2-41-5); and their house has a thousand doors (2-41-5). The all-seeing Sūrya sets forth from his own dwelling and goes to the house of Mitra and Varuṇa to report the doings of men (7-60-1 and 2), and enters their beloved house (1-152-4). The fathers see Varuṇa in the highest heaven (10-14-7). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa there is the statement that Varuṇa, in order to see the world, sits in the middle of the sky and from there visits the regions around him that inflict punishment (11-6-1)."

"In some places it is said that Varuṇa has secret agents (cāra). They sit around him (7-34-?). They behold both heaven and earth; knowing well the matter of the sacrifices, they become inspirers of praise (2-?-?). The secret agents of Mitra and Varuṇa enter the houses one by one (6-67-5), they are not deceived, they are intelligent (6-67-?). In the Atharvaveda (Av. 4-16-4) Varuṇa's agents come down from heaven and [the sentence continues on the next page: 'the whole world ...'].²

original p. 534

² "...they [the agents] see with a thousand eyes, [Av.] says. Here the 'agents' must be the stars. But there is no basis in the Ṛgveda for saying that the stars, as agents of Varuṇa and the other deities, inform them of what is going on in the world. Probably, like worldly kings, these too are described as having agents. Or: agents are not for Mitra and Varuṇa alone; the Rākṣasas who fought with Agni (4-4-3), with Soma (9-?-? and 8) and with Indra (1-33-?), and other deities — all these have agents (10-10-8). The Ādityas, like secret agents, look from a lofty place (8-?-?) [as read]. Varuṇa's 'messenger with golden wings' (10-123-6) must be Sūrya himself."

"Varuṇa, alone or together with Mitra, is called 'king' in many places, like Yama and other deities (1-24-7, 8 etc.). He is king of gods and men, of all (10-132-4; 2-27-10), of the whole world (5-85-3), and of all moving and unmoving things (2-27-6). In general it is only Indra who is described as a self-dependent king; but Varuṇa too is self-dependent (3-?-?). In more passages than those that call him 'king' (rājan), Varuṇa or Mitrāvaruṇa are called saṃrāt (सम्राट् saṃrāt, 'sovereign'). This epithet is seen for Agni too; but for the most part it fits Indra. The use of 'saṃrāt' for Varuṇa or Mitrāvaruṇa is found twice as often as for Indra. Since for every eight or ten sūktas addressed to Indra there is only one addressed to Varuṇa, it may be said that this epithet belongs, if to any, to Varuṇa."

"The epithet 'kṣatra' (क्षत्र, kṣatra, 'rule, dominion') is generally applied to Varuṇa together with Mitra, and twice with Aryaman. Besides this it is seen to be used only once each of Agni, Br̥haspati and the Aśvins. Of the five passages in which (kṣatriya) 'ruler' occurs, in four it is said of Varuṇa or the Ādityas and in only one of the other deities. 'Asura' (असुर, asura) is used more often of Varuṇa, or of Mitra and Varuṇa, than of Indra or Agni. If the small number of sūktas addressed to Varuṇa is taken into account, the epithet asura must be said to apply most of all to Varuṇa. Among the deities these are called those of mysterious nature, worthy of worship (asurāḥ āryāḥ) (7-65-2)."

"The divine power of Mitra and Varuṇa is described by the word 'māyā' (माया, māyā, 'hidden power'). When applied to these deities it means the secret power they have to do good; in contexts where it is applied to Rākṣasas, the same word means the secret power they have to do harm. In the good sense it suits Mitra and Varuṇa; in the bad sense it applies to Rākṣasas. In the same way the word asura too, in the sense 'one who is hard for ordinary people to know', belongs to the excellent deities, and in the sense 'not a sura' ('not a god') to Rākṣasas."

original p. 535

"By this hidden power of māyā, Varuṇa, standing in the sphere of the wind, measures out the earth with Sūrya as with a measuring-rod (5-85-5); Mitra and Varuṇa send down Uṣas (7-63-2); they make Sūrya cross the atmosphere and again cover him with clouds. Then drops mixed with honey (sweet) fall (5-63-4); they make the sky rain; and with the strength that the Asura (the sky-deity, or Parjanya) has given them, they carry on all the works named above. For this reason the word 'māyā' is said chiefly of Varuṇa among the deities (5-63-3; 7-28-?; 10-99-10; 10-?-?)."

"There are many legends of Indra. But about Varuṇa there are none; it is quite the contrary. He is much praised as the controller of physical and moral laws. The one who ordains the laws of nature is Varuṇa: he established earth and heaven, and dwells in all the worlds (8-41-1). The three upper worlds and the three earthly worlds are in him (7-87-5). Varuṇa and Mitra rule the whole world (5-62-?), or rule over two worlds (?); they are the protectors of the whole world (3-?-?). By Varuṇa's command heaven and earth are placed apart (6-70-1; 7-?-?; 8-?-?). With Mitra's help, Varuṇa is the support of heaven and earth (5-69-1) or of heaven, earth and atmosphere (7-?). He has made the golden disc (Sūrya) shine in the sky (7-87-5). He has placed Agni in the water, Sūrya in the sky and Soma on the rock (5-85-2). He has made a wide path for Sūrya (1-24-8; 7-87-1). Varuṇa, Mitra and Aryaman release a path for Sūrya (7-60-4). In all places where Sūrya's horses run the authority of Mitra and Varuṇa is established (5-69-1). The wind that blows with a sound in the sky is Varuṇa's breath (7-87-2)."

"By Varuṇa's laws (vratāni, व्रतानि, vratāni, 'ordinances') the moon shines at night, and the many stars in the atmosphere are seen at night only, and by day become hidden (1-24-10). Varuṇa puts on the nights as a garment (parasprje [?]); by his hidden power he makes the morning or the day (8-41-3). From this it is not suggested that Varuṇa's relation to night is closer than to day. In truth, the one who is always with Varuṇa is Sūrya, not the night or the moon. On the whole, Varuṇa is the controller of the light of the day and also of the light of the night; but Sūrya (Mitra) is the controller of the light of the day only."

"In the Brāhmaṇas a special connection of Varuṇa with the night, or with the sky of night, is stated. Mitra created the day and Varuṇa the night (Taittirīya Saṃhitā 6-4-8-?); the day belongs to Mitra and the night to Varuṇa (Tai. Saṃ. 1-?-?-?)."

original p. 536

"...in the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa the earth world is said plainly to be Mitra and the heaven world to be Varuṇa."

"In some places it is said that Varuṇa divided the seasons. The twelve months too are known to him (1-25-8); Mitra, Varuṇa and Aryaman divided the autumn, the months, the day and the nights (7-?-?-?)."

"In many places it is said that he is the one who regulates the waters. He made the rivers flow; by his command they flow ceaselessly (2-28-4 [?]). Though rivers run swiftly into the ocean, it is by his hidden power that it does not fill (5-85-6). Varuṇa and Mitra are breakers of the rivers (?). That Varuṇa breaks open (releases) the oceans is a settled point, yet it is very rare in the Ṛgveda; probably the reason is that it is very unimportant. Varuṇa, who joins the waters of the sea, is compared with the Maruts in the atmosphere, Agni on the earth and Vāyu in the airy region (1-161-14). 'The seven rivers flow into Varuṇa's mouth like a pit-[dwelling]...' [as read, [?]] (8-?-?) must refer to the ocean. Varuṇa descends into the ocean like the sky (7-?-?). In general whatever relates to Varuṇa is with the water that is in the sphere of the air. Like the encircling ocean, Varuṇa rises to the sky (8-41-?). Watching the truth and falsehood of men, Varuṇa moves in the midst of the water that falls gently drop by drop (7-49-3). Varuṇa bears the form [?] of water (9-90-2?; 8-69-11; compare 1-?). Among the deities who are prayed to for rain, Varuṇa and Mitra are the chief. When all the mountains are covered with clouds, Varuṇa is he who, with rain falling from above (from the cloud), makes the water descend to heaven, earth and sky, and makes the whole earth fertile (5-63-3 and 4). Near Mitra and Varuṇa are milk-giving cows and rivers giving honey (5-69-2). Here are the sky full of rain and the flowing rivers (5-68-5). They moisten pastures with ghee (rain) and other regions with honey (3-62-16). They send down rain and hail-like things from the sky (7-64-2). The rain of the heavenly water comes from them (8-35-6). One whole sūkta (5-63) praises their power to make rain. The fact that Varuṇa's name occurs among both the deities of the atmosphere and those of heaven must be because of his close relation with water and rain. In the Brāhmaṇas too Mitra and Varuṇa are deities of rain. In the Atharvaveda sovereignty is not stated of Varuṇa; only the lordship over the waters remains. As Soma has a kinship with the mountain, Varuṇa has kinship with water (Av. 4-?-?). His golden house is in the water (Av. ..."

original p. 537

"...(Av. 2-?-1). He is the lord of all waters; he and Mitra are the lords of rain (Av. 5-?-? and 5). In the Yajurveda it is said that he is the child of rain, and that he has made his home in the waters, which are like mothers (Vāj. Saṃ. 10-2). The waters are Varuṇa's wives (Tai. Saṃ. 5-5-?-1); Mitra and Varuṇa are the leaders of the waters (Tai. Saṃ. 6-4-?-?)."

"At every step it is said that Varuṇa's ordinances are well established. For this reason he is called dhṛtavrata (धृतरत, dhṛtavrata, 'one whose ordinances are firm'). This epithet applies to both, Mitra and Varuṇa. The deities themselves follow the ordinances of Varuṇa (8-41-2), or of Varuṇa, Mitra and Aryaman; even the immortal deities cannot transgress his vows (5-69-4; 5-63-?; compare ...). Mitra and Varuṇa are the controllers of law (ṛta) and of light. By the strength of these commands it is possible for them to make [creatures] bend to the laws (1-23-?). This quality is seen especially in these two; sometimes in the Ādityas or in other common deities. They increase truth and justice (ṛta) (1-2-8). Varuṇa or the Ādityas are called protectors of laws (ṛtasya gopāḥ, ऋतस्य गोपाः, ṛtasya gopāḥ, 'guardians of the law'). This applies also to Agni and Soma. The epithet ṛtāvan ('one who keeps the laws') is generally used of Agni; it is seen to be used of Mitra and Varuṇa also many times."

"Varuṇa's power is unfathomable. Neither the flying birds nor the flowing rivers can reach the boundary of his kingdom; they cannot exceed his power; they cannot restrain his anger (1-24-6). Neither sky nor rivers can reach the limit of Mitra and Varuṇa (1-152-?). Everything is contained in Varuṇa; the dwellings of all beings are in him (8-41-? and 7); the three heavens and three earths are placed in him (7-87-5). Varuṇa is all-knowing. The flight of birds in the sky, the passing of ships on the sea, the course of the far-going wind — all of this is known to him; he sees all things that are past or to come (1-25-7, 9, 11); he is the witness of men's truth and falsehood (7-49-3). Creatures cannot even wink without him (2-?-?); the number of men's winkings is known to him; the deeds, plans and devices of every man are known to Varuṇa (Av. 4-16-2 and 5). He can grasp everything in heaven and earth and whatever lies beyond them; however far one may run beyond the sky, no one can escape Varuṇa's sight (Av. 4-16-4 and 5). That this omniscience is a personal quality of Varuṇa is shown by the fact that Agni is compared to him in this matter."

"As the controller of moral law, Varuṇa stands in a far higher rank than all the other deities. To sin is to bring great anger upon oneself from him; transgression of his laws also brings his wrath."

original p. 538

"For both of these [sin and transgression] he lays down very severe punishment (2-28-? and 7). The noose (pāśa) that binds sinners is mentioned in many places (1-24-15; 1-25-11; 6-74-4; 10-85-24 [as read]); it is cast sevenfold or threefold, and that noose binds the speaker of untruth; it lets go the speaker of truth (Av. 4-16-6). Wearing many chains, Mitra and Varuṇa are the restrainers of untruth (7-65-3). 'Varuṇa, accompanied by Indra, binds with fetters that are not of straw' (2-28-? [?]) is said in one place. In the whole Veda it is only in one passage — in a mantra addressed to Agni, in the context of a prayer 'release the noose that binds his devotees' — that the word 'pāśa' occurs. Hence these acts of binding with the noose and of release belong to Varuṇa. Some think that this noose and the binding by it relate to the damming of water, and others that they are bonds connected with night. But it may be said that the figure is used by way of suggestion: fetters that bind those who have fallen morally. Varuṇa, together with Mitra, drives out untruth, hates it, and punishes (1-?-?; 2-?-?; 7-66-?). They punish those who are careless in the matter of their worship (1-?-?). But Varuṇa forgives those who repent: he looses them as a thief [unclear] and removes the noose (2-28-5; 5-85-7 and 8): he frees the man not only from the noose made by himself, but also from the noose made by his forefathers (7-86-5). Having transgressed every day the very laws laid down by him, he then spares even those who repent (1-25-1); and he shows mercy to those who have transgressed his commands through forgetfulness (7-89-5). It may be said that there is no other hymn to a deity that is free of prayer for worldly objects; in the same way there is no mantra addressed to Varuṇa without a prayer for forgiveness of offences."

"Varuṇa has hundreds and thousands of herbs; he drives death away and removes sin (1-24-9). He can take away life, and can also give life (1-24-11; 1-25-?; 2-?-?; 2-28-1). He is very skilled in protecting immortality (8-42-2). Worthy men look, as they reign in joy, upon the two kings — Varuṇa and Yama — in the world beyond (10-14-7)."

"His worshippers associate with him in his dwelling in the heavenly world. They see him with the eye of the mind (7-?-?; 2-?-?). With such persons Varuṇa behaves like a friend (2-?-?)."

"[Of Varuṇa's true position and nature:] Let us know what the true position of Varuṇa is, what his nature is. As far as we have known, this much is certain: Varuṇa and Mitra are related to Sūrya. Varuṇa is more closely related than Mitra. Compared with Varuṇa, Mitra seems to have no personality at all. Mitra belongs to the class of deities of the Saura (solar) group. Varuṇa reflects another part of Nature [the print breaks at the page foot]."

original p. 539

"...he must reflect [another aspect]. The root from which the word varuṇa arises is vr̥ (ṛ, vr̥), 'to cover'; hence Varuṇa means 'one who covers', or 'covering'. Hence by 'varuṇa' one may take the covering of the sky that is visible all around. If this word is so taken, there is room for all the works done by Varuṇa. A great substance much more extensive than Sūrya. Between Sūrya and Varuṇa there is a close relationship; there is no thinking of the orb of the sun apart from the sky; Sūrya is Varuṇa's eye; that eye (Sūrya) makes known to Varuṇa everything that goes on in the world; Varuṇa is far-sighted; by day and by night the world is within Varuṇa's view — all these agree. Moreover, whatever other idea is held, it is not possible to find sovereignty as natural as the sky; for the sky — far away, above the earth, the resting place of Sūrya and the other masses of light, ever looking, day and night, at all moving and unmoving things — can hardly be thought of as other than a deity who is the author of inviolable commands."

Mitra

Mitra. "Since the companionship of Mitra and Varuṇa is very great, there is in the Ṛgveda only one sūkta (3-59) that has Mitra alone as deity. Even there the part that praises the deity is very meagre; but in the first mantra alone some distinctive quality of Mitra is stated: speaking (brūvāṇaḥ), he joins all men together (yātayati) and looks at the people with unwinking eyes. This 'unwinking' is said of both Mitra and Varuṇa (7-60-6)."

"In another place the same words (he joins men together, speaking) are said of Mitra (7-36-2 [?]); there Varuṇa is called the strongest, the faultless guide. In another (3-62-9) Savitṛ, the solar deity, makes all beings listen to his word and brings them together; from this it can be conjectured that Mitra belongs to the group of the solar deities. In the fifth mantra of the sūkta addressed to Mitra he is called an Āditya worthy of praise, who joins all men together. This 'yātayajjana' ('joining men together') occurs in only three more places in the Ṛgveda: at (3-?-?) it is said of Mitra and Varuṇa, at (1-?-?) of Mitra, Varuṇa and Aryaman, and at (8-?-?) of Agni. In the last, Agni is compared to Mitra as 'one who joins men together like Mitra'. Hence this epithet belongs to Mitra alone. According to the same sūkta, Mitra supports heaven and earth; the five peoples of men are obedient to him; he is the life-support of all other deities. In one place (3-59-4), from the point of view of the rules laid down by him, Savitr and Mitra are one; in another (Vāj. Saṃ. 4-?) it is said that, following Mitra's laws..." (continues next page).

original p. 540

"...Viṣṇu strode three steps. From these two it may be said that Mitra indicates the path of Sūrya. Agni, established before the time of dawn, himself causes the birth of Mitra for his own sake (1-?-?); the kindled Agni is Mitra (3-5-4); when Agni is born he is Varuṇa; when kindled he is Mitra (3-5-1). The difference between Mitra at sunrise and Varuṇa at evening is stated (Av. 13-3-13); in the night Mitra prays that what has been covered by Varuṇa may be uncovered (Av. 9-3-18 [?]). These sentences support what is said in the Brāhmaṇas, that Varuṇa is the deity of night and Mitra the deity of day. The same idea is clear in the description of sacrifices: it is laid down there that a white-coloured animal be offered to Mitra and a black-coloured animal to Varuṇa (Tai. Saṃ. 2-1-2-?; 2-1-8-1; Maitr. Saṃ. 2-5-2). Therefore Mitra may be said to be a solar deity."

"The derivation of this word [mitra] is also not clear. In many places the word is used in the sense 'friend'. Probably the 'doing of good (upakāra) in many ways by the sun to men' is expressed in this Mitra."

Sūrya

Sūrya. "In the Ṛgveda ten sūktas praise Sūrya. It cannot be said definitely how many times this word is used, nor whether it denotes the deity or the orb of the sun. There is no deity so within the range of the senses as Sūrya. The light of Sūrya in the sky is Agni's face (10-?-?). Sūrya's eye is mentioned in many places (7-?-? etc.), but he is called the eye of himself, of Mitra and Varuṇa (7-66-10), and of Agni (1-115-1); once, [it is said that] the goddess Uṣas brings the eye of all the deities (7-77-3). There is a close relation between Sūrya and the organ of sight. It is said that the organ of sight of a dead man goes to Sūrya (10-16-3; 10-?-?; and compare 10-?-?, 4). Sūrya is the lord of the organs of sight (Av. 5-?-?); he looks at all beings, sky, earth and waters (Av. 13-?-?). He is far-seeing (7-35-? ; 10-37-1), all-seeing (1-50-2), the spy of the whole world (4-13-3); he looks at the moving world and at the good and bad deeds that men do (1-50-2; 6-51-?; 7-60-2; 7-63-1; 7-?-?). Awakened by Sūrya, men do their work (7-63-4). He who belongs to all men rises, waking them (7-63-?, ?); he is the self of all moving and unmoving things, their protector (1-115-1; 7-60-2). His chariot has one horse (7-63-2), or countless horses (1-115-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-2), or female horses (as read; 5-?-?), or seven horses (5-?-?), or seven mares (called haritaḥ) (1-50-8 and 9; 7-60-3), or seven swift mares (4-13-3)."

original p. 541

"Varuṇa prepares his path for Sūrya (1-24-8; 2-?-?), or Mitra, Varuṇa and Aryaman, the Ādityas, prepare it (7-60-4). Pūṣan is his messenger (6-58-3). Uṣas, or the dawns, uncover or give birth to Sūrya, Agni and the sacrifices (7-?-?). Resplendent in the lap of the goddess Uṣas he comes forth (7-?-?). From another point of view Uṣas is Sūrya's wife (7-75-5)."

"From the side of his mother Sūrya has the name Āditya (आदित्य, āditya, 'son of Aditi') or Āditeya (10-88-11); but he and the Ādityas are different (8-?-?). The sky is his begetter (10-?-?). He is born of the deities. When he was hidden in the ocean, the deities lifted him up (10-72-?). Agni, taking a different form, was placed by the gods in the sky (10-88-11). A view holds that he was born from the eye of Puruṣa who is the form of the Virāṭ (10-90-13). It is said that Sūrya, the maker of day, was released from Vṛtra (Av. 9-10-?)."

"It is said that various deities are, each by himself, the cause of Sūrya's birth. Indra made him be born, raised him to the sky and made him shine there (3-44-?; 8-?-?). Indra and Viṣṇu are his begetters (7-99-4). Indra and Soma made Sūrya, who was with light, shine (6-72-2); Mitra and Varuṇa established him in the sky

(5-69-?; 5-63-4 and 7). Indra and Varuṇa made him mount the sky (7-82-3). The light in Sūrya was placed by Soma (6-44-23; 9-?-?); it is by Soma that Sūrya was born (9-96-5; 9-110-5); the deity Soma made Sūrya shine (9-63-7), or made him stay high in the sky (9-?-?). It is Agni that has placed the splendour of Sūrya very high (10-?-?) and made him ascend to the sky (10-156-4). The very Creator (Dhātr) gave form to the sun and the moon (10-190-3). By the sacrificial acts of the Aṅgirasas, Sūrya was able to ascend to the sky (10-?-?). In all these texts on the birth of Sūrya it is the radiant orb of the sun that seems to be indicated."

"In many texts Sūrya is conceived as a bird flying in the space between. He is a bird (10-177-1 and 2), a beautiful bird (5-47-3); Sūrya flies (1-191-9 [?]); he is likened to a flying bird [as read] (2-?-5); he is called a bird of fine feathers [or 'a fine-feathered one'] (5-?-?). In one place he is called a bull or a bird (5-47-3); in another a bull with variegated plumage [print: 'a bird with a coloured bill?'] (10-?-?; compare 5-47-3 [?]). In one place (2-?-?) he is a white, shining horse brought forth by the goddess Uṣas; the seven horses of Sūrya are his rays (8-61-? [?]), for these rays carry (vahanti) him. His seven mares are the daughters of his chariot (1-50-9)."

original p. 542

³ "In some places Sūrya is counted as a lifeless thing. He is a stone in the sky (4-?-?; compare 6-?-?); a many-coloured rock raised in the middle of the sky (5-?-?; compare Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa 6-1-?-?); he is a weapon thrown as a missile, which Mitra and Varuṇa cover with rain-clouds (5-63-4). He is the pavi (the rim or bolt) weapon of Mitra and Varuṇa (5-63-3), or the shining chariot that the two have placed in the sky (5-63-?); Sūrya himself is a wheel (1-175-?; 4-30-?). Sūrya's wheel is mentioned in many places (4-28-2; 5-29-10)."

"Sūrya shines for the sake of the world (7-63-1); for men and the gods (1-50-?) he runs with his splendour, he rolls up the darkness like a skin (7-63-1). As one throws a skin, his light throws the darkness into the water (4-13-4); he conquers persons belonging to darkness and sorcerers (1-191-? and 9; 2-104-?). Statements about the fierce heat of Sūrya are only two or three (2-33-?; 8-102-?). In the Ṛgveda Sūrya is not a cruel deity; this aspect of Sūrya becomes clear in the Atharvaveda and the Brāhmaṇas."

"Sūrya measures the length of the day (1-50-7) and increases the span of life (8-?-?); he removes diseases and bad dreams (10-37-4). The sight of the rising sun is the sign of life (4-25-? ; 6-?-?). All beings depend on Sūrya (1-164-14); and the sky also depends on him (10-?-?). He is called the All-maker (Viśvakarman) (10-170-4). By his greatness he is the priest (purohita) of the deities (8-90-?). At sunrise men pray to Sūrya to tell the other deities that they are sinless (7-60-1; 7-63-?). After rising he goes near Indra who kills Vṛtra, and it is also said that when he is praised together with Indra, Sūrya himself kills Vṛtra (8-?-?, ? and 4)."

"The legend relating to Sūrya is only one: Indra defeated him (10-43-5 [?]) and stole his chariot-wheel (1-174-5; 4-30-4). Probably this applies to the disappearance of the solar orb caused by a violent storm."

Savitṛ

Savitṛ.

"Eleven complete sūktas, and also parts of some more, praise Savitṛ; his name occurs about 170 times. Of the eleven, only three are in the first and tenth maṇḍalas; the rest are in the remaining maṇḍalas. Savitṛ is a deity exceedingly golden; those belonging to him, and his ornaments, are all described as golden. His eyes are golden (1-35-8); his hands are golden (1-35-9 and 10);"

"he has a golden tongue (6-71-3). This kind of description is a peculiarity of Savitṛ. His hands are golden (6-71-1 and 5; 2-38-2), broad (3-33-?), or beautiful (3-33-6). He is of beautiful hands (supāṇi) (6-71-4), of beautiful tongue (3-54-11); and in one place he is said to be dark-lipped [?] (6-71-4). His hair is of yellow colour (10-139-1); the hair of Agni and Indra is also of this colour. [His] garment is tawny (4-53-2). His chariot is golden, with a golden pole (1-35-2 and 5). This chariot, like himself (5-81-2), has many forms (1-35-?). His chariot has two horses of special brilliance; or two or more horses, white-footed, of the colour of the mōsalu [unclear: 'a pale colour'?] draw the chariot (1-35-5 and 3; 2-38-1)."

"Savitṛ's is boundless brilliance. His golden light is without limit; it is unequalled by other deities (3-?-?; 2-38-1). He throws out this light, or shakes it. By this the sphere of the air, heaven and earth, the world, the cavities of the earth and the sky — all are lit up (1-35-2 and 9; 4-14-2; 4-53-4; 5-81-3). Raising his golden arms, which reach to the ends of the regions, he wakes all beings and blesses them (2-38-2; 4-53-3 and 4; 6-71-1 and 5; 2-38-2). Since other deities are compared to Savitṛ raising his arms, this too may be called a personal quality of his. Agni raises his arms like Savitṛ (1-95-?); Uṣas stretches out her light as Savitṛ stretches out his arms (6-?-?). Likewise Bṛhaspati prays that praise-words be firmly uttered (1-190-?). On the path that leads downward and upward, Savitṛ, seated in his golden chariot, goes looking at all beings (1-35-2 and 3). Before the time of dawn he sets out the chariot of the Aśvins (1-34-10). Following the path of the goddess Uṣas, he himself too shines (5-81-?). He rules the regions of the earth; he goes to the three regions of heaven; he joins the rays of Sūrya (5-81-? and 4). The word 'Sūryaraśmi' occurs once in the Ṛgveda; it belongs to Savitṛ. Shining with Sūrya's rays, Savitṛ, of golden hair, ceaselessly throws his light from the eastern quarter (10-139-1). He goes three times around the sphere of the air, the three skies, and the three luminous regions of the upper world

(4-53-5). The ancient paths that he follows in the sky are pure and easy to walk. Here his worshippers pray to him: 'Protect us' (1-35-11). They pray: 'For the dead, join the living to a place where living beings are' (10-?-?). It is he who gives the gods immortality and men long life (4-54-2). It is he who gave immortality to the Ṛbhus who came to his house by the strength of their works (1-110-3 and 4). Savitṛ is prayed to as one prays to Sūrya, and also for the warding off of evil dreams (5-82-4)"

original p. 544

"and for release from sin (4-54-3). He drives away evil deities and sorcerers (1-35-10; 2-38-?)."

"Like some other deities he too is an Asura (4-53-1). He follows certain well-known laws (4-53-4; 10-34-8; 10-139-3). Waters and winds are subject to his law (2-38-2). He is the one who shows the way to the waters; propelled by him, they flow widely (3-33-6; compare Nirukta 2-26). Other deities follow his leadership (5-82-3). No one can resist his determination and his independence; Indra, Varuṇa, Mitra, Aryaman, Rudra and the rest cannot resist (2-38-2 and 9; 5-82-2). The Vasus, Aditi, Varuṇa, Mitra and Aryaman praise his glory (2-38-3 and 4). Like Pūṣan and Sūrya, Savitṛ rules over all moving and unmoving things (4-53-6). All objects that are desired are under his control; he alone gives well-being to heaven, earth and sky (1-22-? ; 2-38-11) twice. Like Agni he is called a householder (gr̥hya), 'one who has come to the house' (damūnaḥ) (1-123-?; 6-50-?). Like other deities he too is the support of the sky (4-53-3; 10-149-4). He is the support of the world (4-?-?). He has bound the earth with chains and set it firm, and has made the sky stand in space that has no support (10-149-1)."

"The epithet 'apāṃ napāt' ('born of the waters'), which suits only Agni, is said of Savitṛ once (1-22-6; 10-149-2). It seems to be said of Savitṛ in the second [passage] as well. Yāska (Nirukta 10-31), commenting on the mantra (10-149-2) mentioned above, has said that since Savitṛ is the cause of rain, and since both the middle-region deity and the Sun in the sky (the Āditya) have the name Savitṛ, Savitṛ must be a deity of this middle world. Also because he is the cause of rain, and because Savitṛ's path lies in the sphere of the air or in the middle world (1-22-10), and since in the Naighaṇṭuka section the name of this deity stands in the list of deities of the heaven and middle worlds. Once Savitṛ is called also Prajāpati (4-53-2). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa the idea is expressed that Savitṛ and Prajāpati are one deity (Śat. Brā. 12-3-5-1). In the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa (1-6-2-1) it is said that Prajāpati himself, as Savitṛ, created beings. He alone is the lord of the power to give life; by his movements (yāmaḥ) he becomes Pūṣan (5-81-5). Pūṣan, endowed with life-giving power, goes about like a nourisher looking at all beings (10-139-1). In two mantras (6-71-6 and 10) Savitṛ is said to be connected with Pūṣan. In the first, the favour of Pūṣan who looks at all beings is asked; in the second, it is prayed that he should direct towards himself all the mental activities of those who desire to know Savitṛ's vigour and greatness, of the worshippers. This second one is the famous Sāvitrī or"

original p. 545

"Gāyatrī. At the beginning of Vedic study the way of reciting it has come about. Since Savitṛ is a controller of rules, he is called Mitra (5-82-?). Savitṛ is sometimes called 'Bhaga' (5-82-1 and 3; 2-38-1 and 6). Or this too may be an epithet belonging to him. The word bhaga (the deity who gives men good fruits) is frequently connected with Savitṛ and used as 'savitā bhagaḥ' or 'bhagaḥ savitā'. In other places a distinction of Savitṛ from Mitra, Pūṣan and Bhaga is made. In many texts the two words Savitṛ and Sūrya are used for one deity. Raising up his splendour, Savitṛ gives light to the world; and Sūrya, shining the more, fills heaven, earth and sky with his rays (4-14-2). In the Ṛks 2-?-? and 4 the epithet 'prasavitṛ', which belongs to Savitṛ, is used for Sūrya. In the third mantra of the same sūkta it is said that Savitṛ himself is Sūrya. In several other places (10-158-1 to 4; 1-35-1 to 11; 1-124-1), too, it is very difficult to separate the two. Savitṛ moves between heaven and earth; drives away disease; sends Sūrya forth (1-35-9): in this text the distinction between Sūrya and Savitṛ is plainly stated. Savitṛ tells Sūrya that men are sinless (1-123-3). He moves along with the rays of Sūrya (5-81-4), or shines together with them (10-139-1; 10-158-3; compare 1-35-?; 2-38-8 and 10). At sunrise, Savitṛ, accompanied by Mitra, Aryaman and Bhaga, is prayed to restore the worshipper to life again (2-38-4)."

"In Yāska's view Savitṛ appears after the darkness of night is removed (Nir. 12-12). Sāyaṇa (5-81-4) understood that Sūrya is called Savitṛ in the period before sunrise, and Sūrya from the time of sunrise to the time of sunset. But since it is said that Savitṛ puts creatures to sleep (4-53-6; 2-38-1), he must be connected with both the evening and the morning. In one sūkta (2-38) he is praised as the setting sun; and all the later sūktas of Savitṛ seem to be subject to a rule that they are to be used in the evening rites or at the morning oblations. It is he who, after making all two-footed and four-footed creatures take rest, rouses them again (6-?-?; 4-53-3; 2-38-1). He unyokes his horses; he makes the travellers rest; his command has come when night falls; the weaver rolls up his cloth, and the workman stops his unfinished work at his command (2-38-3 and 4). As it is said that 'Agni is in the east and Soma in the south', it is customary to say that Savitṛ is in the west (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?)."

original p. 546

"This word savitṛ is derived from the root sū (सू, sū, 'to impel, bring forth'). Only when the deity Savitṛ is praised is this root used in many forms; even in contexts where the same sense had to be expressed in mantras addressed to other deities, different roots are seen to be used. Encouragement, awakening and restoring to life — these are the meanings specially intended for this root. Savitṛ has set every moving thing to its task (prāsāvīt, प्रासावीत्, prāsāvīt) (1-157-1); you alone are able to give impulse (prasavasya) (5-81-2 [?]); Savitṛ has bestowed immortality (asuvat) on you (1-110-3); Savitṛ is ready to awaken us (savāya) (2-38-1); from the sky he sends down three times the objects that are desired (sosavīti) (5-82-6 [?]); 'O Savitṛ, make us sinless' (suwatāt) (4-54-3); 'by the strength of Savitṛ (save), may all boons be gained by us, who are sinless in regard to Aditi' (5-82-6); 'drive away bad dreams (parāsuva), ward off calamities, bestow what is good (asuva)' (5-82-4 and 5); 'may Savitṛ ward off disease (asāviśat [as read, ?])' (10-100-8 [?]); and in many places (2-38-6 etc.) Savitṛ is prayed to for prosperity by the very same root. In this way it may be said that this root belongs wholly to Savitṛ. But it is used two or three times of Sūrya (7-63-2 and 4; 10-37-4), with Uṣas in 7-?-1, of Varuṇa in 2-28-[?], of the Ādityas in 8-?-1, and of Mitra, Aryaman and Savitṛ together in 7-66-4. Because this root is used so often of Savitṛ, Yāska calls Savitṛ 'sarvasya prasavitā' (सर्वस्य प्रसविता, sarvasya prasavitā, 'the impeller of all'; Nir. 10-31), 'one who gives life to everything'."

"In about half of the contexts where the word savitṛ occurs it is joined with the word deva (देव, deva). In all of these places the word deva has no special meaning and simply seems to mean 'deity'. Whatever the case, in two mantras it is an epithet of Tvaṣṭṛ (devaḥ tvaṣṭā savitā viśvarūpaḥ, देवः त्वष्टा सविता विश्वरूपः, devaḥ tvaṣṭā savitā viśvarūpaḥ, 'the god Tvaṣṭṛ, Savitṛ, of all forms', 3-55-19 [?]; 10-10-5 [?]). Seeing these words joined thus, the sense comes out that Savitṛ and Tvaṣṭṛ are one."

"This name Savitṛ may be for that one power of Sūrya that quickens the world and gives it the power to move. But compared with Sūrya (the solar orb we see), it may be said that Savitṛ is not a deity within the range of the outer senses. From the Ṛgveda it is understood that Sūrya is the orb of a mass of light, visible in this gross sky, and that Savitṛ is the embodied divine power of that Sūrya."

"According to some, Savitṛ is the quickening power; Sūrya and his regular movement, and so on, are matters of secondary importance."

original p. 547

Pūṣan

Pūṣan ⁴. "This name occurs in the Ṛgveda in about 120 places [as read]; eight sūktas. Of these, five are in the sixth maṇḍala, two in the first, and one in the tenth. In one sūkta he is praised together with Indra (6-57), and in another with Soma (2-40). Taking the parts and portions, more mantras are in his praise than in Viṣṇu's. In the Brāhmaṇas and so on this name occurs rarely and is less frequent. There is no definite personality and few human actions such as the bearing of a body. There is a statement about his foot, in the prayer that it should trample evil-doers; and his strength too is spoken of (6-56-10). Like Rudra, he has a braided lock (6-55-2) and a beard (10-26-7). He uses a golden razor (1-42-6); he holds a goad (6-53-5, 6 and 9) or a whip (6-53-9); wheel, wheel-rim or seat (6-56-3) are all mentioned, and he is called the best of charioteers (6-56-2 and 3); his chariot is drawn by he-goats (ajāśva, अजाश्व, ajāśva, 1-38-4 [?]; 6-55-3 and 4). Gruel (karambha) is his food (6-56-1; compare 3-52-7). For this very reason one may say that he has no teeth (Śat. Brā. 1-2-4-2)."

"Pūṣan sees all creatures clearly at one time (3-62-9); these very words are said of Agni too (10-187-4 [?]); like Sūrya he breaks open [i.e. divides] all things, moving and unmoving (1-115-1; 2-40-2). He tries to win a mother's love (6-55-5) or loves his sister (6-55-4 and 5). These very words are used of Sūrya (1-115-2) and of Agni (10-3-3). The deities gave him Sūryā, the daughter of Sūrya, in marriage (6-58-4); in the marriage hymn (10-85) it is Pūṣan who, taking the bride's hand and leading her away, is prayed to grant her the boon connected with worldly life: he is the husband of Sūryā. In another place (9-67-10) he is prayed to give, to those who worship him, a maiden as their share. Moist with affection, he moves on his boats that sail in the sky, as Sūryā's messenger (6-58-3). In the same way, looking at the world, he goes forward ahead (2-40-5; 6-58-2); and he builds his house in the sky (2-40-6). Acting on Savitṛ's impulse, he too is a protector; he is known to all creatures, and looks at all of them. It is said that Pūṣan, the best of charioteers, made the golden chariot-wheel of Sūrya run downward (6-54-3). But the context is a little unclear (compare Nir. 3-?). The epithet that belongs to him alone, aghṛṇi (अघृणि, aghṛṇi, 'unwearying'), means 'shining'. Anaśrus (?) [as read: 'anagohya'], which one might say belonged to Savitṛ, is 'one who can be hidden', is used once of him also."

original p. 548

"Pūṣan, who was born, is on all the paths, on the most distant path; on the path of far-off heaven and earth; knowing those two worlds that are dear to him, he goes there and returns (6-58-2). As Agni and Savitṛ take the dead [i.e. the souls of the dead] to the place where the living are with the deities, so Pūṣan too, calling the dead from his worshippers by a very distant path, takes them safely and leaves them in the place where the living are (10-17-3 to 5). Pūṣan leads to the world of those who follow the good path, to the world of the lovely deities (Av. 18-2-?; 9-?-?). Pūṣan's he-goats lead on the sacrificial horse (1-162-2 and 3). It may be that his familiarity with these difficult paths arises from the very fact that his chariot has unfailing, sure-footed he-goats."

"Because he knows the paths, he is called the guardian of the highways. They pray to him to drive away with his reins the obstructing crooks, thieves, robbers and bandits (1-42-1 to 3). In this very context he is called the son of release (vimuco napāt, 'descendant of deliverance'); another place has the same epithet (6-55-1), and it is said that he is the one who sets free twice (vimocana) (8-4-15 and 18). Hence the prayer: 'make us free from sin' (Av. 6-112-3). 'Scatter the enemies, may our road lead to the desired things (6-53-4); strike down the enemies, make the road good, let it reach the place that is above (1-42-? and 7); avoid the crooks that may come on the road' (6-54-9). 'Make the road auspicious' (10-59-2). He is the protector of every road (6-49-8). He alone is the guide (6-53-1). He shows the road on the highway (Prapathya; Vāj. Saṃ. 22-20 [?]). For this very reason, every traveller setting out must recite the sūkta 6-53 and offer worship to Pūṣan, the craftsman of roads, and those who have lost the way must return to Pūṣan alone (Āśv. Gr. Sū. 3-6-? and 9; Sām. Śrau. Sū. 3-4-9), it is said. And besides, at the times of the morning and evening pressing, when oblations and the like are offered to all deities, Pūṣan stands at the door of the house and receives his portion (Sām. Gr. Sū. 3-14-9)."

"Because he knows all the paths, he can bring out hidden things, and discovery is made easy (6-48-13). Pūṣan, prayed to as 'find as one finds a stray animal', is said to have found the king who was lost and hidden (1-23-14 and 13; compare Tai. Saṃ. 2-6-?-?). For this very reason, whatever has been lost, one should worship Pūṣan (Āśv. Gr. Sū. 3-?-?). In the same way, driving back the robbers and protecting [cattle] is also a special mark of Pūṣan (6-54-5, 6 and 10; 6-56-3; compare 10-26-3). Like one who, seeing a person fallen into a pit, calls out and saves him, so that the cattle may not be lost, he brings them back to the house..."

original p. 549

"...and he saves again those that have strayed (6-54-2 and 10). His goad drives the robbers straight (6-53-9). That he strikes them straight is to be the sense; it is implied that he sets right the flanks of the cattle (4-?-?). He protects horses also (6-54-5) and makes smooth and sets right the hoofs of cows (10-26-6). For this reason, creatures are pure in Pūṣan's sight (1-?-1 and 2), and he is the creator of robbers [?] (Vai. Saṃ. 4-?-?; Tai. Brā. 1-2-?-?). The Sūtras teach the praise-sentences of Pūṣan that are to be used when robbers have gone to graze [cattle] and the cattle are lost (Sām. Gr. Sū. 3-?-?)."

"Many characteristics common to other deities are found in Pūṣan. He too has the title Asura (5-51-11 [?]); he is mighty (5-?-?); full of truth (8-4-15); he gives much in plenty (6-54-?); he is able (1-138-1); unobstructed (8-?-?); he is lord of men [?] and is equal to other deities in fame (6-48-15). He is the leader of heroes (1-106-5); an unconquerable protector, and gives help in wars (6-48-15). He protects the world itself (10-?-?; compare 3-40-1). He is a seer; a friend who protects the priest; the ever-faithful friend of the poor (10-26-5 and 7). He is wise (1-42-5) and generous (3-?-?). His generosity is stated many times. He has all kinds of wealth (1-89-6); has immeasurable wealth (8-4-15); makes wealth grow (1-89-5); is a helper (1-138-2); generous (6-54-? ; 8-?-?); bestows all kinds of good (1-42-6). He is a firm friend of wealth, and increases nourishment (10-26-2 and 7). Dasra (दस्र, dasra, 'wonder-worker'), the 'maker of wonders', ordinarily belongs to the Aśvins, but it is said of Pūṣan too in some places (1-42-5; 6-55-?); likewise 'dasma' (दस्म, dasma, 'wondrous') (1-42-10; 1-138-4) and a brilliance of marvellous kind that belongs only to Agni and Indra (dasmavarcas) (6-58-4) are said. 'Narāśaṃsa' (praised by men), which belongs only to Agni, occurs twice of Pūṣan too (1-106-4; 10-64-3). In one place he is all-pervading (2-40-6), and a swift bringer of food (8-4-3 [?]); there is a prayer to quicken devotion (2-40-6); his goad impels praise (6-53-8)."

"The epithets used only for him are: 'āghṛṇī' ['unwearying'], 'ajāśva' ['with goats for horses'], 'vimocana', 'vimuco napāt', and once 'puṣṭimbhara' (bringer of prosperity), 'anaśvapaśu' (one who does not lose cattle), 'anaṣṭavedāḥ' (one who does not lose things) and 'karambhād' (one who eats gruel). The last may be a cause of contempt in Pūṣan's case (compare 6-56-1; 1-138-4). As Soma is Indra's food, so karambha is Pūṣan's food; but Indra takes a portion of the karambha (3-52-?). In both the places where the word karambha (gruel mixed with barley [?]) occurs, it is connected with Indra's food [the page ends and continues]..."

original p. 550

⁵ "...it is connected with Indra's food (3-52-1; 8-80-?). That he is clearly called paśupā (पशुपा, paśupā, 'protector of cattle') is said of Pūṣan alone."

"Pūṣan is used in the dual together with Soma (2-40) and with Indra (6-57) only. In one place (6-55-5) he is called Indra's brother. Other than these two, he is most often addressed together with Bhaga (6-50-?; 6-?-?; 5-?-?; 10-?-?; Śat. Brā. 11-?; Kāt. Śrau. Sū. 5-?-?). And together with Viṣṇu (1-90-?; 5-?-?; 6-21-?; 2-?-?; 10-66-5): in all these mantras Pūṣan and another deity are said to be of one mind. With other deities, here and there, it is used."

"From the passages cited so far, Pūṣan does not appear to be a deity of one natural phenomenon. But many passages show that he is connected with Sūrya. Yāska too (Nir. 12-?) calls him an Āditya who protects all things. His chief works — setting the roads right, and joining the dead with good people — by the first quality he is a guide and a protector of cattle; that is, one who improves the circumstances of the people."

"This word Pūṣan has come from the root puṣ (पुष्, puṣ, 'to nourish'). This quality is clear from his epithets (viśvavedāḥ, anaṣṭavedāḥ, puruvasu, puṣṭimbhara) and from the prayers for wealth (6-48-13; etc.). He is a breaker of immeasurable wealth and of the flow of wealth, and of heaps (6-53-2 and 3). But the wealth obtained from Pūṣan is not rain-connected wealth like that obtained from Indra, Parjanya, the Maruts and others; it is connected with light [with brightness]. In this world to men, to the cattle-keepers, his fearless protection; in the other world, the showing of the road to joyful regions. By these the condition of the people is improved; people become happy. That is, Pūṣan may be called that portion of Sūrya which is beneficial to the people."

Viṣṇu

Viṣṇu. "Though he is a most important deity in the Brāhmaṇas and the rest, Viṣṇu has not so much prominence in the Ṛgveda. His influence is much greater than the number would show. Five sūktas and some portions of one sūkta are for the deity Viṣṇu. His name has not occurred more than a hundred times. Taking these alone, he is a deity of the fourth rank. Nor is there much detail about his body: he is described as a young man with a boundless body (1-155-6). The most important point in his case is the three steps (vikrama) that he takes; this is stated about twelve times. His epithets are 'urugāya' (उरुगाय, urugāya, 'of wide movement') and"

original p. 551

"'urukrama' (उरुक्रम, urukrama, 'of wide stride'); these also say the same thing. With three steps he has covered the entire earth. Of these, two steps are seen; the third is beyond the reach of birds and men (1-155-5; 7-99-1). The highest place of Viṣṇu is Agni's own place; for Viṣṇu is exceedingly lofty, and protects Agni's third place (10-1-3), and Agni guards the cattle from that lofty place of Viṣṇu (5-3-3). The wise look at the third step of Viṣṇu in the sky with the eye fixed (1-22-20). The devoted are plunged in bliss, there is the spring of honey (1-154-5), and the deities rejoice (8-29-7) in that beloved house of his. The step in that height, shining well downward, is the very dwelling of Indra and Viṣṇu. There are many-horned, swiftly moving cows there. The wish of the one who praises is for those (1-154-6). In these three steps all creatures dwell (1-154-2); they are filled with honey (1-154-4); Viṣṇu protects his own beloved dwelling (3-55-10; 1-154-5). He dwells very far from this world (7-100-5). He has three dwelling-places (tripasthā, 1-155-? [?]). This epithet commonly belongs to Agni; here only it is used of Viṣṇu."

"There is no difference of opinion on this matter, that these three steps of Viṣṇu mean the path of Sūrya. Yāska's predecessor Aurnavābha (Nir. 12-19), and many Western scholars as well, hold that these three steps indicate the rising of Sūrya, his being at the zenith, and his setting. The three Vedas such as the Yajus, the Brāhmaṇas, Yāska's other predecessor Śākapūṇi, and some other Western scholars hold that the three steps indicate the movement of Sūrya in the three divisions of the world [earth, atmosphere, sky]."

"Movement is the distinguishing feature of Viṣṇu: the roots urugāya, urukrama and vikrama are applied to him. This root is used of Sūrya also. He is said to have gone, taking a many-coloured stone in the middle of the sky and great strides (5-?-?). Viṣṇu is swift (viṣa, 'fast') or hastening (evayā, evayāvan). In Viṣṇu's rapid and far-reaching movements there is regularity. His taking the three steps is also in accordance with some rules (1-22-18). Like the other deities that go in a regular course (Agni, Soma, Sūrya and Uṣas), Viṣṇu is always devoted to the rules, the establisher of rules, and — like Agni, Sūrya and Uṣas — ancient and also modern (1-156-2 onwards). Like Savitr, Viṣṇu too fixes the limits of the portions of the earth (1-154-1; 6-49-13). In one place (1-155-6; compare 1-156-5) Viṣṇu, like a wheel, made four of his own names (seasons) of 90 days move: it cannot be other than the year of 360 days. There is a prayer, 'bestow the branch needed for the sacrifice' (Av. 7-26-?). The Brāhmaṇas say that when Viṣṇu's head is cut off it becomes Sūrya. The whirling wheel..."

original p. 552

"...is one of his weapons; his vehicle is Garuḍa, the king of birds. This vehicle, like Agni, is of especially radiant brilliance. It has names such as Garutmān (गरुत्मान्, garutmān) and Suparṇa (सुपर्ण, suparṇa). These names are said of the bird of Sūrya. A jewel called Kaustubha shines on his breast; to say that this is Sūrya is a view. Viṣṇu does not clearly resemble any one portion of Nature. But it may be said that Viṣṇu is a swiftly moving light, which moves far and wide taking steps and encircles the world. It is also a part of Sūrya. The root viś (विश्, viś) too gives the same meaning. In this sense Viṣṇu must be called Sūrya. But some do not accept this view: they hold that Viṣṇu is a distinct deity."

"The third step of Viṣṇu, the one raised upward, is his abode (dhāman). The highest position of Sūrya's course is called viṣṇupada by Yāska, and must be in this very sense, and in this sense he is called one who dwells on the mountain (giriḥṣit, गिरिḥसित्, giriḥṣit); [giriṣṭhāḥ], 'one who stays on a mountain', must be said of Viṣṇu [1-154-2 and 3]. In the 155th sūkta [1-155-1] it is said of Viṣṇu and Indra together: 'the two who are not to be deceived have stood on the peak of the mountain [the slope].' The previous sentence applies to Sūrya who stands on cloud-masses of mountain form and looks at the earth [compare 5-?-?]. From such statements Viṣṇu has the name 'one with mountains' (Tai. Saṃ. 3-4-?-1)."

"That Viṣṇu takes steps in this way for such a reason is a matter of secondary importance. For the sake of man who is afflicted, Viṣṇu strode over the regions of the earth three times [6-49-13]; to give man a house to live in, he took steps [7-100-4]; with Indra he took steps far and wide and spread out the world so that we may live [6-69-5 and 6]. In connection with this, the stories of the Vāmana incarnation, etc., arise later in the Purāṇas. On the basis of this story, it is said in the Brāhmaṇas (Śat. Brā. 1-2-5-?; Tai. Saṃ. 2-1-3-1; Tai. Brā. 1-?-?-?) that Viṣṇu became a dwarf (vāmana) in order to give back to the gods the earth covered by the Asuras."

"Among the secondary characteristics of Viṣṇu the most important is his friendship with Indra, and Viṣṇu's help to Indra when he fights with Vṛtra. There is a sūkta praising both Indra and Viṣṇu [6-69] and their names occur together very often. And even in the sūktas addressed to Viṣṇu, whether clearly [6-69-? and 6; 1-154-3] or indistinctly [2-?-?; 1-154-6; 1-155-?], the deity suggested is Indra alone. By Indra's might Viṣṇu took the three steps [8-?-12]. In the matter of killing Vṛtra, Indra says: 'O Viṣṇu, my friend, stride out widely' [4-18-11]."

original p. 553

"Keeping Viṣṇu with him, Indra killed Vṛtra (6-20-2). Indra and Viṣṇu conquered the servitude of Dāsa and destroyed Śambara's ninety-nine forts (7-99-5 and 6). Viṣṇu is Indra's dear friend (1-22-19). Together with his friend, Viṣṇu opens the doors of the cowpen (1-156-4). When Indra hurled the thunderbolt at Vṛtra, Viṣṇu stands just behind him (Śat. Brā. 5-?-?-1). In many mantras Viṣṇu is invoked together with Indra (4-?-?-; 4-55-?-; 8-100-?-; 10-66-?-). Where the dual Indrāviṣṇū is used, it is seen that Viṣṇu also has some qualities of Indra: the power of drinking Soma (6-69-?) and Indra's victories (6-?-?-). In the same way Indra too shares in the power of Viṣṇu to take great steps (6-69-5; 6-69-?). Both together: the task of creating the vast sphere of the air and of spreading out the regions (6-69-5), and the work of the birth of Sūrya, Uṣas and Agni (6-69-?): these are stated as their characteristics. For the sake of this friendship Indra drinks Soma with Viṣṇu (8-3-?-; 8-?-?-), and thereby increases his strength (8-?-?-; 10-113-?). The Soma pressed by Viṣṇu Indra drank in three bowls (2-22-1); this brings the three steps of Viṣṇu, filled with honey, to the level of knowledge (1-154-4). Viṣṇu cooks a hundred buffaloes for Indra (6-17-11 [?]) or cooks a hundred buffaloes and a drink made of milk (8-66-10). Together with Mitra, Varuṇa and the Maruts, Viṣṇu praises Indra (8-?-?-)."

"In the war with Vṛtra the Maruts, who are always with Indra, are Viṣṇu's companions. When Viṣṇu desired the intoxicating Soma, the Maruts sat on their altar like birds (1-85-?). When oblation is made for the swift-moving Viṣṇu, the Maruts are invited (5-?-?-). These Maruts are the very fruit of the generosity of the swift Viṣṇu (8-20-3). When Pūṣan and Viṣṇu were cooking a hundred buffaloes for Indra, the Maruts were Indra's helpers (6-17-11). Varuṇa and the Aśvins follow the very intentions of the Maruts; it is with such Maruts as companions that Viṣṇu lays down rules (1-156-4). In one whole sūкта (5-87) Viṣṇu and the Maruts are together. And he goes quickly, calling the Maruts along when he sets forth (5-87-4 and 3)."

"Apart from these, here and there Viṣṇu is described with many qualities and many forms: 'Though you take another form in the time of war, let this form of yours not be forgotten by us' (7-100-6). He is the protector of the embryo (7-36-9); with some other deities he is prayed to as a helper in conception (10-184-1). In the khila (supplementary) mantra that follows 10-184-2, he is prayed to place in the womb a male child, in the form of ... [the print: 'who is as handsome as Viṣṇu'] or 'to place a male child in the form of Viṣṇu who is exceedingly beautiful'."

original p. 554

⁶ "The other qualities of Viṣṇu are common ones, such as are seen in other deities. He is generous, and a benefactor of those who do him service (8-52-? [?]; 1-156-3); liberal (2-40-5); a protector (3-55-10); he cannot be deceived (1-22-18 [?]); he is the releaser who is without harm and generous (1-155-4). He alone is the cause of the existence of the three worlds and of all beings (1-154-4). He has bound the earth round with mountains [or 'with pegs'] (7-99-3). He is the ordainer of rules (1-154-4)."

"In the Brāhmaṇas it is said that Viṣṇu placed three steps in heaven, sky and earth (Śat. Brā. 1-9-3-9; Tai. Brā. 3-1-2-2). The performer of the sacrifice imitates these three steps in the sacrifice (Śat. Brā. 1-9-3, 10 and 13)."

"Two stories connected with Viṣṇu have a basis in the Ṛgveda. Carrying Indra's anger, he did the destruction of the Rākṣasas. In the Brāhmaṇas the deities and Asuras are ever enemies; they fight at every step. The deities are not always victorious; often they are wholly defeated. Hence the deities have to find means to win (Ait. Brā. 6-15): there, Indra and Viṣṇu, having fought with the Asuras, come to an agreement that the two deities (Indra and Viṣṇu) should take as much of the earth as Viṣṇu could cover in three steps. Accordingly Viṣṇu finished the world, the Vedas, speech — everything — in three steps. In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (1-2-5) it is said thus: the Asuras, having defeated the gods, began to divide the earth among themselves; then the gods came forward with Viṣṇu and asked for their own share. The Asuras agreed to give as much space as Viṣṇu, in the form of a dwarf, could cover. Then the gods performed a sacrifice and obtained, through Viṣṇu, all the earth. Here it is not said 'three steps'; it is in another place (Śat. Brā. 1-2-5-5 to 9): having pervaded the three worlds, Viṣṇu procured for the gods all-pervasiveness. Viṣṇu, as a dwarf, conquered the three worlds (Tai. Saṃ. 2-1-3-1). The assumption of the dwarf form was a device to go beyond the Daityas' hopes. This is the basis of the story of Viṣṇu's Vāmana incarnation in later Purāṇas."

"The basis of the second story is two mantras of the Ṛgveda (1-61-7; 8-66-10). Viṣṇu, having drunk Soma and, urged by Indra, took away a hundred buffaloes belonging to the boar Varāha Vrtra and a vessel of milk; then Indra struck, by means of clouds of mountain form, an arrow, and killed that boar. This is formed thus in the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (6-2-4): Taking the wealth of the Asuras, a boar placed that wealth beyond the seven mountains; then Indra, taking a blade of darbha grass and splitting the seven mountains with it, killed the boar; Viṣṇu (the sacrifice) lifted it up forcibly for the gods, and the gods obtained the Rākṣasas' wealth. The same story, slightly altered, is said in the Caraka Brāhmaṇa, as Sāyaṇa says in explaining the mantra 8-66-10 [?]. In"

original p. 555

"the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (14-1-2-11) it is said that a boar named Emūṣa lifted up the earth sunk in water, and in the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (7-1-5-1) that the boar that raised the earth from the waters of dissolution is a form of Prajāpati. Later, in the Purāṇas, this boar became famous as an incarnation of Viṣṇu."

"The fish that released Manu from the flood (Śat. Brā. 1-8-1-1) was later counted an incarnation of Viṣṇu. In the same way, in the desire to create, Prajāpati moves in the water of the dissolution in the form of a tortoise (Śat. Brā. 7-5-1-5; Tai. Ā. 1-23-3); later this too becomes known as an incarnation of Viṣṇu."

"Viṣṇu was the first to know the matter of sacrifice and attained great pre-eminence: the bow-string, snapping, cut off the head of Viṣṇu (of the sacrifice), and that very head became Sūrya (Āditya) (Śat. Brā. 14-1-1). Afterwards the Aśvins put the head of the sacrifice in its former place (Tai. Ā. 5-1-1 to 6); then, when it was complete, there is a story that the gods won the world of heaven."

"Viṣṇu is the greatest of the gods; Agni is the smallest; the other deities are between them (Ait. Brā. 1-1). There is also the statement that Viṣṇu is the guardian of the gods' door (Ait. Brā. 1-30); in this context the mantra 1-154-? is quoted, saying that with his friend, Viṣṇu opened the door of the cowpens."

Vivasvān

Vivasvān. "There is no separate sūkta praising Vivasvat; but his name occurs about thirty times. He is the father of the Aśvins (10-17-2) and of Yama (10-14-5; 10-17-1), and the father of Manu, the first man of mankind. This Manu has the name Vaivasvata ('son of Vivasvat') (Vāl. 4-1 [?]). In the Atharvaveda and the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa Manu has the title Vaivasvata. Manu is a descendant of the Āditya Vivasvān (Tai. Saṃ. 6-5-6-2; Śat. Brā. 3-1-3-4). Sometimes it is said that the deities too were born of Vivasvat (10-63-1). Saranyū, the daughter of Tvaṣṭṛ, is Vivasvat's wife (10-17-1 and 2)."

"Agni was first seen by Vivasvat and Mātariśvan (1-60-1). In only one place Mātariśvan is Vivasvat's messenger (6-8-4); in all other places Agni is his messenger (1-58-1; 4-7-4; 8-39-3; 10-21-5). Agni was churned out by his mother and father (the two fire-sticks) when Vivasvat became a seer (5-11-3)."

"The seat or place of Vivasvat is mentioned in five places. The deities (10-12-2) and Indra (3-51-3) rejoice at that place; there singers sing the praise of Indra (1-53-1; 6-?-2), or sing the glory of the water (10-?-1). The statement that a sūkta was composed on Vivasvat (1-139-1 [?]) must be with this same idea."

original p. 556

"The connection between Indra and Vivasvat is stated in many mantras. Indra's joy comes from the praise of Vivasvat; he places his treasure near Vivasvat (3-34-?). With the fingers of Vivasvat, Indra pours down the vessel from the sky (8-?-?; compare 8-?-?). Since there is so much nearness between Vivasvat and Indra, Soma must be there. In the ninth maṇḍala a close relation of Soma with Vivasvat is imagined. Soma dwells with Vivasvat (9-?-?), and Soma is purified by the daughters (fingers) of Vivasvat (9-14-5). At Vivasvat's prayer the flowing Soma, the seven brothers (waters), wise Soma, make [the waters] follow Vivasvat's path (9-66-?; 9-99-?). Receiving the favour of Vivasvat, the streams of Soma fall from the sky and bless Uṣas (9-10-5)."

"The Aśvins who live with Vivasvat are invited to the oblation (1-46-13). When the chariot of the Aśvins is yoked, the daughter of the sky (Uṣas) and the two days of Vivasvat (probably day and night) are born (10-39-12; compare Śat. Brā. 10-5-2-?)."

"Vivasvat is worshipped together with Varuṇa and other deities (10-65-6). In Vivasvat there is one bad quality: those who worship the Ādityas pray that Vivasvat's sharp arrow may not strike them before old age (8-?-?; compare Av. 8-?-?). Contrary to this, it is said in Av. 18-3-6 that Vivasvat protects from Yama."

"Vivasvat means 'one who shines'. In this sense it is used with Agni and Uṣas in some places. Agni created men's children, and the sky and the waters, by his boundless brilliance (1-96-2). Agni, the wise, the boundless one, the brilliant seer, shines at the beginning of dawn (2-?-?). Agni is prayed to favour the radiant Uṣas (1-44-1), and men are eager to see the shining face of the radiant goddess Uṣas (3-30-?). From the root vivās (विवस्, vivās, 'to shine well') the words vivasvān and uṣaḥ arise. The derivation of these words is clear in the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa: Āditya Vivasvat lights up night and days (Śat. Brā. 10-5-?-?)."

"In the Yajurveda (Vāj. Saṃ. 8-5; Vai. Saṃ. 1-6-?) and the Brāhmaṇas, Vivasvat has the name Āditya. In later books this too is a name of Sūrya."

"Vivasvat is not very well known as the hero of a Purāṇic story. Taking together the derivation of the word, his connection with Agni, Soma and the Aśvins, and his seat being the sacrificial hall, it may be said that Vivasvat is the rising Sūrya. Many scholars hold that Vivasvat is meant to be Sūrya. Some say he is a deity presiding over the sky; one holds that Agni is Vivasvat."

original p. 557

"Bergaigne and another, Oldenberg, say that Vivasvat is a deity presiding over light, and that the grounds are sufficient to hold that he was the first to perform a sacrifice, and the original progenitor of mankind."

The Ādityas

Ādityas ⁷. "This is a group of deities. Six sūktas and two portions of sūktas praise this group. It cannot be said definitely how many deities are included in it, or what their names are. It is not counted as more than six, and even that is in only one place: Mitra, Aryaman, Bhaga, Varuṇa, Dakṣa, Aṃśa (2-27-1). In other maṇḍalas the number is said to be seven (9-114-3), once eight (10-72-8), and it is said that Aditi, having first presented seven to the deities, afterwards brought the eighth, Mārtāṇḍa. In neither of these two mantras are they called Ādityas. Aditi has eight sons (Av. 8-9-21): Mitra, Aryaman, Varuṇa, Aṃśa, Bhaga, Dhātṛ, Indra and Vivasvat (Tai. Brā. 1-1-9-1); the first five of these names are in the Ṛgveda (2-27-1). Including Mārtāṇḍa, the Ādityas are eight persons (Tai. Brā.); in two places (Śat. Brā. 6-1-2-8; 11-6-3-8) it is said that the Ādityas are twelve persons, one for each month. In the Purāṇas the Ādityas are twelve persons, one for each month; among them Viṣṇu is one, and he is the greatest of them all. Along with the six persons of the Ṛgveda (2-27-1), Sūrya too is counted as an Āditya. In the Purāṇas the name Āditya is commonly applied to Sūrya. Sūrya, counted as Agni, was established in the sky by the deities under the name Āditya (10-88-11). In one place four persons (Bhaga, Varuṇa, Mitra and Aryaman) are with the Ādityas, and Savitr̥ is added (8-18-3). In the Ṛgveda the Ādityas are 'seven'. Sūrya is the seventh; Aditi, having once cast off [the eighth], brought him [back], the Mārtāṇḍa (the setting sun), who must be the eighth (10-72-8 and 9). Sūrya is the son of Aditi (Av. 13-2-?; 17-?-?), Sūrya and Candara are Ādityas (8-?-?), and Viṣṇu is one among Mitra, Varuṇa, Viṣṇu, Bhaga, Aṃśa and Vivasvat (11-6-3) — an Āditya. In one place alone (8-1-?) it is said that the mother of the Ādityas is not Aditi, but a golden-coloured Madhukāśā, daughter of the Vasus."

7. Ādityaru

"Along with Varuṇa, the greatest of the Ādityas, Indra too is once counted as an Āditya (2-?-?; and Vāl. 4-?). In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (2-?-?) Indra is one of Aditi's sons, but in Śat. Brā. 11-6-3 he is said to be different from the twelve Ādityas. When one deity is said to be an Āditya, it is Varuṇa; but in the sūkta of the deity Mitra (3-59) the deity Mitra is called an Āditya and Sūrya. When only two are mentioned, Mitra and Varuṇa are the Ādityas; once only Indra and Varuṇa are. If three, Varuṇa, Mitra and Aryaman are Ādityas. If five (said once)... With the previous three, Savitr̥ and Bhaga are joined. As for Dakṣa, which was mentioned before [the page ends]..."

⁸ "...[Dakṣa] occurs only together with these names. Many hymns praise the group of the Ādityas. In every hymn, together with them, the names of Mitra and Varuṇa are stated. Their names occur also together with those of the Vasus, Rudras, Maruts, Aṅgirasas, Ṛbhus and Viśve-devas. 'Ādityas' seems to be used not only for the solar group but also for ordinary deities. Their nature is no different from that of other deities. In general it may be said that they are the deities of heavenly light; they show no special distinction like Mitra and Varuṇa. Or, in the way of Sūrya, Candra and the stars, like Uṣas, they perform no particular function of light that has been set down for them."

"In the sūktas addressed to the Ādityas, generally (2-27), above all Mitra, Varuṇa and Aryaman are the ones specially indicated by 'Ādityas'. Being far away they are [yet] near: all moving and unmoving things they protect, as the deities protect the world (2-27-3 and 4). They can see the good and the bad in the minds of men and know the distinction between true and false statement (2-27-3; 8-47-13). They punish with hatred and punishment him who is crooked and sinful (2-27-4; 2-29-2; 2-?-?; 2-66-13). They are prayed to forgive sin (2-27-4; 2-29-5), to avoid its evil result, or to remove it from [the sage] Trita Āptya (5-?-?; 8-47-?). They bind enemies with a covenant (2-27-16); they protect those who worship them, as birds protect their young under the shelter of their wings (8-47-9). Like armour, they protect their servants, and as one arrow does not strike (8-47-8 and 9). They ward off disease and sorrow (8-47-10), and bestow wealth, light, long life, progeny and the leading of a good path (2-27; 8-47-12; 8-18-12 and 10)."

"The epithets used of them are these: pure, golden-coloured, many-eyed (bhūryakṣa), unwinking (animiṣa), sleepless (asvapnaja), far-seeing, long-lived [?], and so on. They are kings, of great strength, very great, deep, unassailable, firm in ordinance, faultless, free from sin, pure and holy."

"The name Ādityas is derived from the name of the mother. This is one of the three derivations of the word āditya (Nir. 2-13 [?]; compare Tai. Ā. 1-14-1)."

"The great deities among the Ādityas have been described separately. Let us know a little of the other deities who have no personal distinction."

Aryaman.

"Though the name occurs in about a hundred places in the Ṛgveda, since it is not completely personal it has been omitted from the list of deities in the Nighaṇṭu. Except in two mantras, in all the other places it is spoken of only together with other deities; and that most often together with Mitra and Varuṇa. In ten or twelve sentences this word is used in a conventional sense — 'companion', 'bridegroom' —"

original p. 559

"in places; sometimes this sense may apply to the deity too. Addressing Agni, 'you are Aryaman when you woo maidens' (5-3-2) is said. Aryamya ('relating to Aryaman') is used in the sense mitrya ('belonging to a friend') (1-?-?). Mitra and Aryaman — these two conceptions show no difference."

Bhaga. "One sūкта (7-41) is devoted to this deity; other deities too are praised in it. The name occurs about sixty times. The word means 'giver, distributor'; in about fifty places it is used in this sense, most often as an epithet of Savitr̥. In the sūktas the idea is that he is one who distributes wealth; when the generosity of Indra and Agni is praised, they are compared with Bhaga. In the senses 'generosity, wealth, fortune' the word is used about twenty times, and this pun is also seen to be used in a figurative way. In (7-41-2) he is named 'the one who distributes', and men hope that they too may become sharers in this. In another place (10-64-16) he is the distributor; the prayer is made that he may be a bhagavān — one who gives the worshippers abundant wealth."

"The goddess Uṣas is the sister of Bhaga (1-123-5). Bhaga's eye is adorned with rays (3-?-?). Yāska (Nir. 12-13) says that Bhaga is the lord of the day's brightness (or: before the light). One must say that Bhaga is a generous giver; or, more clearly stated, a deity of immeasurable wealth."

Aṃśa.

"It occurs fewer than twelve times. Another name for Bhaga is Aṃśa: 'one who gives a share or shares'. It is the name of a deity only three times; and in these three, in only one is it a name of the deity [proper]. Know the other matter [as secondary]. Here, Agni is described as Aṃśa and as the generous deity (2-1-?)."

Dakṣa. "As the name of a deity it occurs about six times. This word is used mostly as an epithet of Agni and Soma (3-14-2; 6-?-?; etc.) in the sense 'quick, strong, clever, intelligent'. Wherever there is no personification, the sense is 'a clever or skilful deity'. The word Dakṣa occurs as the name of one of the six Ādityas only in the mantra 2-27-1, and once in each of the first and tenth maṇḍalas. In (1-?-?) it is indicated together with the other Ādityas, and in (10-64-5) with Mitra, Varuṇa and Aryaman. In the second of these contexts Aditi is called his mother. In one sūkta on creation (10-72-4 and 5) it is said that Dakṣa was born of Aditi, and in the later mantras it is said that Aditi was born of him, that she is his daughter, and that afterwards the deities were born. In the womb of Aditi, the birthplace of Dakṣa, all created and uncreated things were set (10-5-7). From these last"

original p. 560

"two sentences it is understood that Dakṣa and Aditi are the parents of the world. The apparent contradiction that the children are the cause of the birth of the father and mother is not new in the R̥gveda. The Ādityas have the name 'dakṣapitarah̐' (दक्षपितरः, dakṣapitarah̐), that is, those who have Dakṣa (skill) as father (6-50-2). Mitra and Varuṇa too have this same name (2-27-?; dakṣapitarau), and they are also sudakṣa

('very skilful'). In another place (8-25-5) this same idea is still more clear (sūnū dakṣasya). In these contexts the word dakṣa applies to no person. Even ordinary sacrificers have the name dakṣapitarah, which confirms this sense. Such arrangements of words themselves leave room for the attribution of personality to Dakṣa and for his connection with Aditi. In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā the name dakṣapitarah is generally given to all the deities. Dakṣa and Prajāpati the creator are one deity (Śat. Brā. 2-4-4-2)."

Uṣas

Uṣas ⁹. "The sūktas that praise the goddess Uṣas number about twenty, and the word uṣas occurs more than 300 times. The word uṣas denotes both the deity and the times of dawn; and whenever the deity is discussed, the red dawn (aruṇodaya) is always in the background. No deity of the Veda is so lovely in form as Uṣas. In no other place in the poetry connected with religion is there so charming a description. Sacrifices or the explanations connected with them have not made use of her beauty. Like a dancer she puts on beautiful clothes and shows her bosom (1-92-4; compare 6-64-2). Like a maiden adorned by her mother she shows her form (1-123-11). Possessed of splendour, appearing in the eastern quarter, she displays her beauty (1-124-3 and 4). Shining with incomparable beauty, she gives light to all, small and great (1-124-6). Like one who has finished bathing and comes forth pure, she rises, drives away the darkness and gives the light (5-80-5 and 6). Though ancient, being born again and again, she is a young woman; shining on the same footing for all, she wears away the lives of mortals (1-92-10). As she shone in the past, so she shines now and will shine in the future; she is immortal and never grows old (1-113-1 and 13). That young woman comes again and, in the world, wakes everyone before all else (1-123-2). Last of the Uṣases that have gone and first of those to come, always lessening mortals' life, she shines (1-124-2). Always new, she revolves like a wheel (3-61-3). She wakes the creatures that have feet and makes the birds fly; to everyone her breath is life (1-48-5 and 10; 1-?-3). She rouses and sends forth every creature to go about (1-92-9; 7-?-?). The Uṣases wake the two-footed and four-footed creatures,"

original p. 561

"rouse them from sleep, and make them go about their tasks (7-?-?). When the dawn comes, birds fly from the nest; men go seeking food (1-?-?). She wakes the five kinds of people and shows men the paths that they must follow (7-79-1). She makes all creatures visible; she gives new life to all of them (7-80-1 and 2). She makes evil dreams run to Trita Āptya's house (8-47-14 and 18); she removes the black cloth of night (1-113-14). She removes darkness, the evil deities and the ill-omened darkness (7-?-?). She brings out the treasures hidden in darkness and distributes them liberally (1-123-4 and 6). When she rises she lights up the ends of the regions (1-?-11). She opens the doors of heaven (the sky) (1-48-15; 1-113-4). As cows open the door of the cow-pen, Uṣas, as soon as she comes, opens the doors of darkness (1-92-4). Like the udders of cows, her rays are seen (4-52-2 onward). She is seen from far, like a woman moving the wealth-bringing cows [?] (1-92-12). Rays of red colour issue forth; the tawny cows themselves set about their work; the red Uṣases cast their net of light as before (1-92-2). Therefore the goddess Uṣas has the name 'mother of cattle-keepers' [or 'speech of the wealth-givers'] (4-52-2 and 3; 7-77-2)."

"Without transgressing the order of the deities and of Nature, Uṣas appears day after day in the same place (1-92-12; 1-123-8; 1-124-3; 2-28-5); she moves in a regulated path; since she knows the path she is to follow she is never lost (5-80-4). She wakes all the performers of the sacrifice from sleep and makes them kindle the household fire; thus she does good to all the deities (1-113-9). She is prayed to wake only the faithful and generous worshipper, and to leave the faithless and the poor so (1-124-10; 4-51-3). In some places it is said that, leaving the work of awakening the worshippers, they wake her (4-51-4; etc.); and Vasiṣṭha claims that we were the first to do this work (7-80-1). In one place (5-?-?) she is warned that she is the one who acts as an enemy or a thief, and that Sūrya must hurry. She is prayed to call the deities to drink Soma (1-48-12). Perhaps for that reason it is said that all the deities rise together with Uṣas (1-14-9 etc.)."

"Uṣas moves in a shining chariot (2-28-1); the chariot is gleaming (1-92-?); shining (3-61-2); well adorned (1-49-?); an ornament to all and to all things (2-?-?); very firm (1-48-10 etc.); and by her own free..."

original p. 562

¹⁰ "...wins herself freely (2-28-1). She comes on a hundred chariots (1-48-7). To her chariot she yokes horses of a red-gold colour (2-?-?), easy to drive (3-61-2), and brought without fail (4-?-?). Yoked with horses, she shines (5-?-?). Her chariot is drawn by red cows (1-92-2; 1-123-11; 5-80-3). By 'horses and cows' the rays of the morning are meant; but the word 'cow' in general means 'cloud'. In one day the goddess Uṣas goes thirty yojanas (1-123-8)."

"It is natural that there is close kinship between Sūrya and Uṣas. She opens a path for Sūrya to travel (1-113-16). She crosses the eyes of the gods (Sūrya) and shows the way to the best bay horses (7-77-3). She shines with the splendour of Sūrya, her beloved (1-92-11). Savitṛ shines in the path of Uṣas (5-81-2). Sūrya follows Uṣas as a young man follows a young woman (1-115-2). He meets the deity who looks towards her (1-123-10). She is Sūrya's wife (7-75-5); the Uṣases are Sūrya's wives (4-5-13). Followed by him in the sky, she is thought of as his wife or beloved. From the point of view of time, she who comes before Sūrya is sometimes counted as his mother. She gave birth to Sūrya, the sacrifice and Agni (7-78-3). She was born only for the birth of Savitṛ, and comes and joins the child who is a mass of splendour (1-113-1 and 2). She is the sister of Bhaga (an Āditya) (1-123-5) and the kinswoman of Varuṇa (1-123-5). She is the sister of Night (1-113-2 and 3; 10-127-3) or her own sister (6-?-?); and the names of Night and the Uṣases are used in the dual: 'naktoṣāsā', 'uṣāsānaktā'. Uṣas is born in the sky (3-61-1); hence she is called a daughter of the sky (1-30-22 etc.), and once she is called the beloved of the sky (1-46-1)."

"Between the household fire (homāgni) that is kindled at the dawn and Uṣas there is a connection. In such contexts Sūrya also is generally suggested: Sūrya is seen at the time of kindling Agni (1-134-1 and 11; etc.). Agni is seen before the time of dawn or together with Uṣas. The goddess Uṣas makes the kindling of Agni happen (1-113-9). Hence, at times, like Sūrya, Agni too is her beloved (1-69-1; 2-10-1; compare 10-3-3). Agni goes to meet the shining Uṣas and expects of her superior wealth and so forth (3-61-6). With the morning deities, the Aśvins, too, she has kinship (1-46-3 etc.). They come with her (1-183-2) and she is their friend (4-52-2 and 3). She is prayed to wake them (8-9-17), and her praise rouses them..."

original p. 563

"(3-58-1). When the chariot of the Aśvins is ready, the goddess Uṣas is born (10-39-12). In one place it is said that Uṣas is related to Indra. Because the moon is born anew each time and so announces the coming of day, he shines before the dawn (10-85-19)."

"Many deities were the cause of Uṣas or found her. Indra, famed as a conqueror of light, created Uṣas or gave light to her (2-12-7 etc.). In some places he is her enemy; he smashed her chariot into bits. When the Uṣases were born, they were made radiant by Soma (6-44-23). Like Agni (2-1-?), Soma too made the Uṣases wives of the best man (6-44-22). Br̥haspati, sporting with the light and splitting the cows, found Uṣas, the sky and Agni (10-68-9). The Fathers (pitṛs), companions of the deities, saw by their praises the hidden light, and by it created Uṣas (7-76-4)."

"Uṣas has been asked many times to protect her worshippers, to grant them progeny and wealth, and to give long life (1-30-22; 1-48-1; etc.). There is a prayer that she should bring fame to all who praise her (5-79-6; compare 1-48-?). All her devotees expect wealth from her, and desire to be her children (7-81-4). The soul of the dead goes to the company of Sūrya and Uṣas (10-58-?), and when it is said that the Fathers sit in the lap of golden things, the golden things must be Uṣas herself."

"Besides the eighteen mentioned in the Nirukta (1-8), Uṣas has still many epithets. She is shining, brilliant, pure. She is of bright colour, red-hued, golden, generous, born of law (ṛta), like Indra, divine in form, immortal. Generosity (maghoni) is a natural quality of hers."

The Aśvins (Aśvinīdevategaḷu)

The Aśvins.

"Apart from Indra, Agni and Soma, the twin deities called Aśvins are the chief. They are praised in more than fifty sūktas and also in portions of some sūktas. The name of the Aśvins occurs more than four hundred times. Though they are determined to be deities of light (splendour), it is hard to say which aspect of it they reflect. They are deities of the dawn (3-58-1; 10-?-?) and cannot be separately distinguished. In one whole sūkta they are likened to the many pairs of things in the universe (eyes, hands, feet, wings"

original p. 564

"of birds, or pairs of animals, etc.) (5-78-1 to 3; 8-?-2 onward; 10-106-2 to 10). But some sentences seem to suggest that they were originally distinct individuals. They were born separately (nānā; 5-73-4); they were born in different places (iheha); one was a victorious royal prince, and the other a son of the sky (1-181-4).

Yāska too (Nir. 12-2) mentions a statement that one is the son of Night and the other the son of Dawn. In the Ṛgveda itself, in one place (4-3-6), only one is addressed: 'Nāsatya, who guards'. This word (Nāsatya) applies generally to both."

"The Aśvins are young (2-39-?). They are the youngest of the deities (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?). They are also ancient (3-?-?). They are bright (2-?-?); they are limited by light [i.e. bounded by brightness] (3-?-?; 10-?-?); they shine like gold (8-5-?), and are of the colour of the honey-bee (8-?-?). They have many forms (1-112-?). They are of shining form (6-63-?; 6-?-?); they wear garlands of lotus flowers (10-184-2; Av. 3-?-?; Śat. Brā. 4-1-?). They are quick (6-63-5), swift like the mind (8-?-?), or like the falcon (5-?-?). They are very strong (10-?-?), and have many strong limbs (6-63-?), and are many times called 'red' [with the sense of Raudra-form] (5-?-?). They are good knowers (8-?-?) and have the power of māyā (6-63-?; 10-?-?). The epithets used again and again and peculiar to them are dasra (दस्र, dasra, 'wonder-working') and nāsatya (नासत्य, nāsatya, 'not untrue'); the meanings 'protectors' etc. are also suggested for these two. These two epithets themselves became their names. Rudravartanī ('of red path') and hiraṇyavartanī ('of golden path') are their two epithets; the latter is used elsewhere also of rivers."

"The Aśvins have a greater connection with honey (madhu) than other deities. In many mantras both are used together. They have a leather bag filled with honey; in it there are many bees that drink honey (8-?-?). They poured out a hundred jars of honey (1-117-6). The honey-whip is peculiar to them (1-22-3; 1-157-4); by it they sprinkle the sacrifice and the sacrificer. Their chariot alone is described as 'of the colour of honey' (madhuvarṇa) or 'bearing honey' (madhuvāhana). They love honey much, and are drinkers of it (madhupā). The priest near whom the Aśvins are called to come is also 'honey-handed' (10-41-3). They themselves give honey to the bee (1-112-?);"

original p. 565

"compare 10-40-6); they are likened to bees (10-106-10). Like other deities they too love the Soma juice (3-58-? and 9; etc.), and are invited to drink Soma with Uṣas and Sūrya (8-35-1). Some scholars hold that they do not belong to the class of deities worthy to drink Soma."

"Their chariot is like Sūrya (8-8-2), or is golden (4-44-4 and 5), and all its parts, wheels and so on, are made of gold (1-180-1; 5-77-3; 8-22-?). It has a thousand rays (1-118-1) or ornaments (8-8-11 and 14). It is a most remarkable chariot: it has three kinds; three wheels, three seats, and some other parts, also three each (1-118-1 and 2; etc.). It travels with great speed (8-?-?), quicker than the mind (1-117-2 etc.) or quicker than the blink of an eye (6-62-?). It was made by the Ṛbhus (4-36-?). 'The chariot with three wheels' is theirs alone. When Sūryā went to the wedding, one wheel of the chariot was left lost (10-85-16)."

"Their name means 'owners of horses', but nowhere does it mean that they are horsemen and hence got that name. The horses that draw their chariot (1-117-2; etc.); and more often birds (6-63-6; etc.) or winged ones (10-143-5); swans (8-?-?); eagles (1-118-4); birds in the form of horses (3-?-?); falcon-formed horses (8-5-2) are the draught animals. Sometimes it is said that one buffalo, or buffaloes (5-73-?; 1-?-?), or an ass (1-?-?; 8-?-?) drew it. In the wedding of Sūryā the Aśvins won the race with their ass-chariot (Ait. Brā. 4-?-?; Av. 1-?-? and Sāyaṇa's commentary on it). Their chariot reaches the ends of the regions and is worshipped by the five peoples (2-?-? and 3). It goes round the sky (1-180-10), crosses the earth and sky in one day like the chariots of Sūrya [1-118-?] and Uṣas [4-?-?] (3-58-8). It goes round Sūrya at a great distance [1-118-?]. The epithet "

puruṣṭhā

' [one who goes in a ring] is used of them in many places; it is used also of Vāta, Agni and Sūrya."

"Their dwelling is not definitely fixed, and is described in many ways. They come from very far (8-5-?), from heaven (8-8-?), from heaven and earth (1-?-?), from heaven and the sphere of the air (8-8-4; 6-?-?), from the sphere of the air (8-?-?), from earth, heaven and sky (8-10-?), and from the air, from afar, from near (5-?-?). They dwell in the ocean of the sky (8-?-?), in the streams of heaven, in trees, in houses, on mountain-peaks (2-?-?). They come from behind, before, below and above, from all directions (2-?-?). Their dwelling has been asked about without being known for certain..."

original p. 566

¹¹ "...[They have three places (8-8-?), perhaps because they are invoked three times a day]."

"While it is still dark, at the time of the red dawn, they generally come to the sacrificial hall (10-40-?); they come to earth to receive oblations from their worshippers, and yoke horses to the chariot (1-?-?; etc.). Uṣas wakes them from sleep (5-?-?). Sitting in their chariot they court Uṣas herself (8-?-?). As they yoke the chariot, Uṣas rises (10-?-?). Their time is generally between the red dawn and sunrise; yet in one place (1-34-10) it is said that Savitr makes their chariot move even before the red dawn. Somewhere, in one place and another, it is said that the coming of the Ásvins, the kindling of the sacrificial fire, the red dawn and sunrise — all these take place at one time (1-?-1; 2-?-?). The request that they come to the sacrificial hall is not only for the dawn that is natural to them; they are asked to come also at the evening time (8-?-?), at morning, at midday and at sunset (5-?-?). The suggestion is that the Ásvins should be present at all three pressings, morning and the rest; and it seems to be the basis of praising them with three-fold sets in one whole sūkta (1-34). As deities of the morning they make the darkness run away (3-?-?), and sometimes they drive away Piśācas and the like (2-?-?; 8-?-?). The Ásvins, Uṣas and Agni are the deities of dawn (Ait. Brā. 3-?); in Vedic sacrifices they are the deities relating to the morning. The Áśvins are of white-and-red colour (Śat. Brā. 5-?-?); therefore a goat of that kind must be offered to them."

"Both of them are sons of the sky (1-182-1; 1-184-1; 10-61-4); once it is said that one of the two is the son of the sky (1-181-4). In one place alone the ocean is their mother (Sindhumātarau, 1-46-2). In one mantra (10-17-2) the Áśvins are the children of Viśvavat [Vivasvat] and of the daughter of Tvaṣṭṛ, Saranyū, these two; the rising Sūrya and the time of dawn must, in turn, be Vivasvat and Saranyū. Pūṣan calls the Áśvins his progenitors (10-?-?). Their sister (1-?-?) is most likely Uṣas. As deities of the light, they are connected with Sūryā, or the daughter of Sūrya, many times: Sūryā chose them (2-?-?); both are her husbands (8-?-?; compare 1-?-?). Sūryā [or the maiden] mounted their chariot (8-?-?). Sūrya's daughter mounts their chariot (1-34-5; 1-116-17; 1-119-5; 6-63-5) or chose it (1-116-17; 4-43-2). They consider Sūryā their own (2-?-?), and one of the distinctions is that she goes with them in their chariot (8-?-?)."

original p. 567

"The deity called "

Áśvinī

' (अश्विनी) mentioned along with other goddesses (5-46-8) must be herself. When Savitṛ gave Sūryā to her husband, it is said that the deity Soma did not charm her, and that the Áśvins were the suitors (10-85-9). In another place (6-58-4) it is said that the deities gave Pūṣan to Sūryā. Because of this connection with Sūryā, the prayer is made that they take the bride in the chariot to her home (10-85-?). They are prayed together with the other deities to bless the bride with sons. They show compassion even to the wife of a eunuch and cause a barren cow to give milk (1-116-13). To a maiden who had grown old they gave a husband, and to a lover a wife (1-117-?). They unite lovers (Av. 2-30-2; etc.)."

"They are foremost in helping those in distress and in releasing them from sorrow. No others are so quick in giving help (1-112-?; 1-119-?). They are always praised for such acts. In particular they protect in the sea by means of a boat. They are prayed to bring wealth from the sea or from heaven (1-?-?) and their chariot approaches from the shore of the sea (8-?-?); here 'sea' must be the sky. The help they give to the afflicted is by peaceful means; they do not protect from enemies in battle, as Indra and others do (but it is said once that they fought enemies together with Indra, and elsewhere that they killed Vṛtra). For this reason they are specially the physicians of the gods (8-?-?; etc.). They cure diseases with their herbs (8-22-10; etc.); they make the blind see (1-116-16); the lame, the sick and those with defective limbs they set right (10-39-3). They are physicians of the deities, immortal protectors; they ward off death from those who worship them (Av. 2-?-1; Tai. Brā. 1-?-?). They are helpers; their healing and their wonder-working deeds are praised for just these qualities. To their devotee they grant youth and keen sight, and bestow wealth, progeny and so on (1-116-?; 8-?-?)."

"There are many stories showing that they are quick to help in distress. They freed Cyavana, who had grown old and been forsaken by wife, children and others, from his weak affection [for them]; gave him long life, made him young again, made his wife look at him with desire, and caused the other maidens to choose him (1-116-10; etc.). The story of Cyavana's rejuvenation is told in detail in the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (4-1-5). They gave youth again to an old man named Kali (10-39-8), and he became a friend of theirs (1-112-?). They gave to Vimada's wife, a young woman, a chariot (1-?-?), or gave him a wife (1-112-?). She was seen as the wife of Purumitra"

"(1-116-?; 10-39-7) and her name is Kamadyū (10-65-12 [?]). They made Viṣṇāpu, the son of Kṛṣṇa, who had been lost to his worshipper Viśvaka, appear again (1-116-23; 1-117-7; 10-65-12). But the story most often told is that of the protection of Bhujyu."

"Bhujyu was the son of Tugra. As he was sinking in the sea, the Aśvins came to his help. They took him in a boat of a hundred oars on the unfathomable ocean and carried him to their house. Flying, as it seemed, through the sky — in a hundred-footed boat, in a ship without support or hold, with four [ropes], with wings, in a chariot of three wheels drawn by horses [the print: 'with a hundred feet and six horses'] flying quickly — with the help of their swift horses, or in their chariot swift as thought, they landed Bhujyu safely at home. In the midst of the waves Bhujyu was clinging to the end of a log of wood and floating. He was bound hand and foot and attacked by enemies [the print: 'by the waves']; ten nights and nine days he lay in the water. Like Rebha, who was counted as dead [and lifted], like one who lifts Soma juice from the vessel with a ladle, the Aśvins lifted him and gave him life. They rescued Vandana from a pit and brought him to the light (1-116-3; 1-118-6; 1-112-5; 1-119-6), and [him] who lay in a pit, bound and fallen as if dead, they lifted up (10-39-8), or restored one bent double to life (1-?-?). The sage Atri, thrown into a fire-pit by the māyā of a Rākṣasa, and his companions they saved. They gave cooling water and revival, and saved him from the heat; and at last they gave him youth, strength and so on. It is also said that they made him see with his eyes. When it is said that Agni spared Atri from the heat of a hot bath [the print: 'a fire-chamber'] (10-80-3), it was probably done through the mediation of the Aśvins. It is also said that the bird Vartikā, who asked for their help, was saved by them from the wolf's mouth."

"Rjṛāśva had killed a hundred and one sheep and given them as food to a she-wolf. His father, enraged, made him blind. Then the she-wolf praised the Aśvins, and they, pleased, gave Rjṛāśva his sight (1-116-16; 1-112-16 and 8). They cured the crookedness and lameness of Parāvr̥ja (1-112-8). In a battle Viśpalā's foot was cut off; the Aśvins gave her an iron foot. They gave a husband to Ghoṣā, who was growing old in her father's house, unmarried, and helped her (1-117-7; 10-39-3 and 6; 10-40-5). To the wife of a eunuch they gave a son called Hiraṇyahasta (1-116-13; 1-117-24; 6-62-7; 10-39-7), who was also named Śyāva (10-65-12 [?]). Śayu's cow gave no milk; the Aśvins made such a cow give milk (1-116-22; etc.). To Pedu they gave a swift, very strong, white, matchless horse, destroyer of Rākṣasas and urged by Indra; by it he gained boundless profit"

original p. 569

"(1-116-6; etc.). To Kakṣīvat of the Pajra family they gave boons as he wished; and, as one pours a hundred jars of liquor or honey in one stream, they made it flow from the hoof of a horse (1-116-7; 1-117-6). Besides those mentioned above, many more are said to have been helped by the Aśvins (the sūktas 1-112 and 1-116 to 1-119). There may be many who were protected or cured in extraordinary ways. Since the Aśvins are physicians of the gods, it may be said that they all obtained these helps from them. As some modern scholars say, it does not seem right to hold that, for the many natural acts connected with the sun, a deity has given only a form by his deeds, but that there are no truly divine deeds."

"What portion of Nature is reflected in the Aśvins is an uncertain matter. No definite and clear function is stated for them, as for Agni, Uṣas, Sūrya and others connected with light. Even for authorities like Yāska the nature of the Aśvins is doubtful; they too (Nir. 12-1) give various views — some say the Aśvins are heaven and earth (the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa 4-1-5-16 has the same sense), some day and night, some Sūrya and Candra, and others two kings who perform holy acts: they only give diverse opinions and do not give their own. Modern scholars have each taken a different view. Some say that the Aśvins correspond to the morning star Śukra (the star of dawn); it is seen at that time, gives light, and goes round the sky: in every way the Aśvins agree with Śukra (the Morning Star). But the point 'twins' alone does not fit."

"It may be that the morning star (Śukra) and the evening star (Budha or Guru) form a pair; but those two are always separate. The Aśvins, on the other hand, are always together. But in the Ṛgveda they are also said to be separate (two deities). Though the early morning is favoured for Vedic rites and not the evening (5-?-?), the Aśvins are called at two times (8-?-1; 10-?-?; 10-40-4). The view that these two are twilight and the Morning Star seems to be correct to a great extent; for, in all other respects, along with the characteristics of the Aśvins, it also fits that they are goddesses of light [this sentence is as read: 'they are also deities relating to the evening']."

Deities of the Atmosphere (Antarikṣada devategaḷu)

Indra

Indra ¹. "A very important deity. Some 250 sūktas and portions of sūktas praise him. Indra is also praised together with some other deities. Taking all of these together, about 300 sūktas are for him: that is, about one fourth of the Ṛgveda is for him. It cannot be said definitely that he reflects any one portion of Nature..."

original p. 570

² "...it cannot be said [of any one portion of Nature]. For this reason Indra displays human characteristics the most, and historical descriptions have wrapped him round in great number. Chiefly he is the deity of lightning. His chief work is to conquer the evil deities of darkness or of drought, or the Rākṣasas, and to win the water or the light."

"He is the foremost of the deities of the middle world. He has pervaded the sphere of the air (1-52-12 [?]). In the Nirukta (Nir. 7-4) he is spoken of separately in the list of the deities of the atmosphere, and in the three-fold arrangement of deities — Agni, Indra (Vāyu), Sūrya — he is the representative of Vāyu."

"Various parts of Indra's body are mentioned in the Veda. He has a body, a head, shoulders and hands (3-?-?; 8-?-?). Whenever his drinking of Soma comes up, his belly is mentioned (2-16-?, etc.); filled with Soma his belly is compared to a lake (3-?-?). His jaws

1. Indraḥ

2. Indra, continued

are described as beautiful jaws. After drinking Soma he moves his jaws (8-?-?). When he is greatly pleased, or when he moves, his beard shakes strongly (3-?-?; 10-?-?). His hair (10-96-5 and 8) and his beard are tawny, and his very form is tawny (10-96-?). In some places he is golden-coloured (1-?-?; 8-?-?). This golden colour is Savitr̥'s special mark; like Savitr̥ Indra is golden-armed (2-?-?); and, like him, he has firm, black-hued arms (1-?-?; 10-?-?). His arms, which especially wield the vajra, are described as growing steadily larger. They are broad, much praised, reaching far (6-?-?; 8-?-?), strong and well formed (Sām. Ve. 2-?-?). Like Sūrya, Indra takes forms with a red glow and splendid shapes (10-?-?); he becomes of many forms as he desires (3-?-?; 3-?-?; 6-?-?)."

"The vajra (वज्र, vajra, 'thunderbolt') is a weapon suited to Indra alone. In the Itihāsa this name occurs frequently. In general it is said that Tvaṣṭṛ made it (1-?-?, etc.); but there is also a statement that Kāvya Uśanā made it and gave it to Indra (1-121-?; 5-34-2). The deities delivered the vajra to Indra (Ait. Brā. 4-1). In the sea, surrounded by water, the vajra lies (8-?-?); its place is beneath the sun (10-?-?). In general it is said to be made of iron or of metals (1-?-?). Sometimes it is of the colour of gold (1-?-?, etc.); of tawny colour (3-?-?; 10-?-?); or of pure white colour (3-?-?). It has four edges (8-?-?), a hundred edges (4-?-?), a hundred points (8-?-?, etc.), and a thousand points (10-?-?; etc.). It is green (2-?-?, etc.). Indra whets it like a knife, or raising it makes his horns straight (1-?-?; 1-?-?). It has the names 'stone' or 'mountain' (2-?-?)"

original p. 571

"[also]. The vajra in Indra's hand is compared to Sūrya in the sky (8-?-?). Words formed from the word vajra, or compounded with it, are generally used of Indra alone. Vajrabhṛt, vajravat and vajradakṣiṇa belong to him only; but vajrabāhu, vajrahasta and vajrī are each once used also of Rudra, the Maruts and Manyu."

"Indra comes sitting in a golden chariot (6-?-?; etc.), swifter than the mind (10-112-?). To it two tawny horses are yoked: the name of these two is Hari ('bay'). In some mantras the number of horses is more than two — a hundred; a thousand, or a thousand and hundreds (3-?-?; 8-?-?; 6-?-?; 7-?-?). Sūrya himself is the eye of these horses (1-?-?). They neigh and whinny (1-?-?). They have flying manes (1-?-?; etc.), or golden-coloured locks (8-?-?; 8-?-?), and their locks are like the fruits of the ripe bilva (3-?-?; 8-?-?). However far away the place they must reach, they go very swiftly and arrive. As one flies with the help of wings, so Indra moves with the help of these horses (3-?-?; 8-?-?). It is the praises that yoke the horses to the chariot (3-?-?, etc.): that is, the praises call Indra to the sacrificial hall. In some places it is said that the horses of Sūrya (10-?-?), or those of Vāyu (10-?-? to 6), draw Indra. Indra is the charioteer of Vāyu (8-?-?) or his fellow-rider (4-?-?). The Ṛbhus built Indra's chariot and horses (1-?-?; 3-?-?). Indra uses a golden whip (8-?-?)."

"All the deities love Soma-drinking greatly (8-?-?; 8-?-?); and of them Indra loves it the most (1-?-?, etc.). He has cried out for it in order to drink it (3-?-?; 4-?-?). Among the deities he alone is the Soma-drinker (7-?-?); his companion Vāyu is somewhat on a par with him. Soma juice is nourishing for Indra (8-?-?); the epithets somapā and somapāvan belong to him alone. Though Agni, Bṛhaspati and Vāyu are with Indra, only for Vāyu alone is it used, once, separately."

"To make the works of the world, such as supporting earth and sky, or spreading the earth and so on, Soma is a help (2-?-?). In particular, for doing the war-works, such as killing Rākṣasas and Vṛtra, he is a help (2-?-?; 2-?-?; 6-?-?), or for the work of conquering enemies (6-?-?; 7-?-?; 8-?-?). His own mother gave it to him to drink, or, from the very day he was born he drank Soma — from this it may be imagined how necessary it is to him (3-?-?; 3-?-?; 6-?-?; ..."

"...6-?-?). When he was making ready to kill Vṛtra he drank as much as three lakes of Soma (5-?-?); he drank thirty lakes at one gulp (8-?-?). The after-effects of Soma-drinking Indra describes in a whole sūкта (10-119). As with men who take too much intoxicating matter, disease comes; the stupor that came upon Indra from too much Soma-drinking the deities had to cure by the Sautrāmaṇī sacrifice. Milk mixed with honey also is his drink (8-?-?)."

"He eats the flesh of bulls (10-28-3): one (10-?-?), twenty (10-86-14), a hundred (6-17-11; 8-66-10), or three hundred (5-29-8) buffaloes, roasted in fire. He accepts bread offered in sacrifice (3-?-?) and grain (3-?-?; 3-?-?; 1-16-2). This grain his horses also eat (3-?-?; 3-?-?)."

"Many times it is said that Indra was born. Two sūktas (3-?; 4-18) treat of his birth. Contrary to nature, he wished to be born from his mother's side (4-18-1 and 2). Probably, since the lightning comes from the side of the cloud, this matter must have come up. Having been born, he lights up the sky (3-?-?). At the moment of birth he made Sūrya's wheel move (1-?-?). He was a warrior as soon as he was born (3-?-?; 8-?-?; etc.) and unassailable from the beginning of his birth. At his birth the unshaken mountains, heaven and earth trembled at his fear (1-?-?). In the time of his birth, from fear of his wrath, heaven and earth shook (8-?-?), and all the deities were afraid of him (3-?-?). His mother's name is mentioned many times (3-?-?; etc.). Once (4-18-10) she is a cow, and he is her calf; and he is also called a bull born of a cow (Gārbhīya?); at another place (10-101-?) he is the son of Niṣṭigrī; it is Sāyaṇa's view that Niṣṭigrī is Aditi. The mother of Indra (and Agni) is a daughter of the Prajāpati named 'Ekāṣṭakā' (Av. 3-10-?). Heaven and earth are father and mother to Agni (6-?-?); for Indra also they are the same. In the mantra (4-?-?) too, in one way of explaining, the sky itself is Indra's father (10-?-?; 6-?-?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?; 1-?-?): the same idea comes in these. Tvaṣṭṛ, who made the vajra, is also called his father (3-?-?). Indra drank the Soma given by his mother, in his father's house (3-?-?); he drank Soma in Tvaṣṭṛ's house (4-?-?). As soon as he was born he conquered Tvaṣṭṛ, seized the Soma and drank it in the cups (3-?-?). Indra, taking his father by the foot, struck him to the ground. In the same verse the question is also asked, who made his mother a widow (4-18-12). From these statements it is understood that, in order to get the Soma, Indra killed his father Tvaṣṭṛ"

original p. 573

"(1-?-?). All the deities fought him — this must be in this very context of taking Soma by force (4-?-?)."

"There are certain different statements about Indra's birth. The deities created him to destroy the evil-doers (3-?-?); but here the root jan seems to be used in the sense of 'to bend' (compare 2-?-?; 3-?-?). Soma created Indra and some other deities (9-?-?). In the Puruṣa-sūkta it is said that Indra and Agni were born from the mouth of the Virāt-Puruṣa (10-90-13); that Indra, Agni, Soma and Parameṣṭhin were created by Prajāpati (Śat. Brā. 11-1-6-14); that Prajāpati created Indra last of all the deities (Tai. Brā. 2-2-10-1)."

"Agni is Indra's twin brother (6-59-2), and Pūṣan is also his brother. In one place (10-?-?) there are sons of Indra's brother; but who they are is not clear."

"Indra's wife's name occurs many times (1-82-5 and 6; 3-53-4 and 6; 10-86-9 and 10); she is called (10-86-11 and 12); in some more mantras this name occurs together with other goddesses (1-22-12; 2-32-8; 5-46-8). Indrāṇī is Indra's wife (Śat. Brā. 14-2-1-8). Prabhā and Senā are his wives (Ait. Brā. 3-22-2); both are names of Indrāṇī (Tai. Brā. 3-?-?; Mai. Saṃ. 4-?-?; 4-13-1). Śacī is her proper name (Vāj. Saṃ. 8-?-?). A demon's wife lifted Indra from among the deities, down (Av.

Indrāṇī

3-?-?); having charmed a demon-woman named Vilistengā, Indra lived in the world of the Asuras, appearing like a female in a group of females and like a male in the midst of males. (Kāṭhaka)"

"Indra is seen to fight with many deities. He has many chief friends: the Maruts and the deities. They help him in many wars. The epithet marutvān is applied to Indra especially, though it is applied to other deities; so also being followed by the group of Maruts (5-?-?; 8-?-?). The double deity Indrāgnī occurs especially with Agni; since lightning too is one form of fire, the close connection of Indra and Agni is natural. Indra generated Agni between two stones (2-?-?), or discovered Agni hidden in the water (10-?-?). With Varuṇa and Vāyu, and sometimes Soma, Bṛhaspati, Pūṣan and Viṣṇu, he is united. Viṣṇu is Indra's supreme friend; in wars with Rākṣasas he is Indra's helper."

original p. 574

"...Indra is said, a little more or less clearly, three or four times to be equal to Sūrya. Indra himself states that in a former time he was Manu and Sūrya (4-26-1). Once he is addressed as 'Sūrya' (10-89-2); Indra and Sūrya are invoked as if they were a single deity (8-?-?). The word 'Savitṛ' is used of Indra in one place (3-30-1). 'Indra is Sūrya, Vṛtra is the moon' (Śat. Brā. 1-6-4-18)."

"Indra has a huge form. When he took the two boundless worlds in his hands, they were only a fistful (3-30-5). In his form he surpasses heaven, earth and sky (3-46-3). The two worlds together are only half of him (3-32-11; 10-89-?). Heaven, earth and sky cannot match the girdle of his waist (1-?-?). If the earth were ten times as large, it would be equal to Indra (1-52-11). Even a hundred heavens and a hundred earths together, or a thousand Sūryas, could not equal him (8-?-?)."

"His greatness and powers are praised in unreserved terms. Among those born before there is none equal to him (4-?-?); neither in heaven nor on earth has anyone like him been born (7-32-23). Among deities and men there is no equal or greater

(6-30-4); none, past, future or present, dares so much (8-?-?). Neither gods nor men nor waters have seen even a part of his power (1-100-15). Among the deities there is none like him; those born, whether before or now, cannot compete with him (1-165-9). He surpasses all the deities (3-46-2). In strength and might all the deities bow before him (8-?-?). Even the great deities put their authority under his fame and weight (2-?-?). Though all assembled together, they cannot render his deeds fruitless (3-?-?). Even Varuṇa and Sūrya are subject to his command (1-101-3; compare 2-?-?). Mitra, Varuṇa and Aryaman pray to Indra to destroy their enemies (10-?-?), and it is said that, fighting, he provided room for the deities (2-?-?). Indra alone is ruler of the whole world (3-46-2), of all that moves and breathes (1-100-?); king of moving things and of men (3-?-?); the eye of all that moves and sees (10-?-?). He is the leader of human and divine races. Often he is called saṃrāt (सम्राट् saṃrāt, 'supreme sovereign') (8-?-?, etc.), and still more often self-dependent and wholly independent (3-46-1, etc.). An ancient seer, he alone rules by his own strength the whole world (8-?-?). Sometimes he is called an Asura (1-174-1; 8-?-?). There are some special epithets showing his might. 'śakra' (शक्र, śakra, 'mighty') is used of him some forty times and of others about five; 'śacīvat' (शचीवत्, śacīvat) is used some thirteen times for Indra and twice for another; 'śacīpati' (शचीपति, śacīpati) ten times of Indra and only once of the Aśvins."

original p. 575

"'śacīpate śacinām' ('lord of powers') (10-?-?) is an epithet of Indra at one place; in the Purāṇas the same epithet has become fixed in the sense 'husband of the goddess Śacī'. 'śatakratu' (शतक्रतु, śatakratu, 'of a hundred powers') is used some sixty times, of which only twice is it applied to other deities. Likewise 'satpati' (सत्पति, satpati, 'lord of the able') is generally an epithet of Indra. Many more words express his might and ability: strong (tavaḥ), quick (nṛtu), victorious (turaḥ), heroic (śūra), of boundless power (1-?-?; 1-?-?), of unobstructed ability (1-?-?). He has his own power as armour and uses weapons with the courage of a lion (4-?-?). He is a youth (1-?-?, etc.), never old (ajara), and ancient (pūrvā)."

"Let us now examine the history connected with him. Intoxicated by Soma-drinking, and accompanied by the Maruts, he who is the cause of the end of drought makes himself ready for war with Rākṣasas called Vṛtra, Ahi and so on. When he strikes Vṛtra with his vajra, heaven and earth tremble (1-80-11; 2-?-?; 6-?-?); even Tvaṣṭṛ, who made the vajra, trembles at the sight of Indra's wrath (10-?-?). With the vajra-weapon Indra smashes Vṛtra to bits (1-32-5; 1-61-10; 10-?-?); he strikes Vṛtra on the back with the vajra (1-32-?; 10-?-?), strikes him on the face with his own weapon (1-52-?). He finds and seizes the places without a guard (3-?-?; 3-?-?). He struck Vṛtra, who was lying with the water spread around him, or the serpent that lay encircled by the water (4-?-?), he struck him (6-?-?); he defeated the serpent lying on the water (3-?-?); he killed the serpent who, enclosing the waters, shut out the sky (2-11-5) and split Vṛtra, who was covering the waters, as one splits a tree (2-14-2). In this context the epithet apsujit ('conqueror in the waters') is used of no other deity. 'Indra killed Vṛtra', 'he kills Vṛtra', 'kill Vṛtra' — such praises: taken all together, it is clear that this is an event taking place constantly. After the killing of Vṛtra Indra releases the waters in many dawns and autumn seasons (4-19-8), or is prayed to do so in the future (8-?-?). He splits the mountains so that waters flow, or so that cows come out (1-?-?; 10-?-?), and by the mere sound of the vajra this work is done (6-?-?). When the mountains were split, the streams burst out; the Rākṣasa was killed; like the broken ridges of mountains, the waters shut in all around came out (5-?-?). Having killed the Rākṣasa, broken the mountain into bits, burst open the well, he released the waters that had been shut up (1-?-?; 5-?-?). He sets free the streams that were like cows tied up, or they flow to the ocean like the earnings of one who has toiled (1-61-10; 2-?-?).

Having won the cows and the Soma, he made the seven rivers flow (1-?-?; 2-12-12). The waters that had been bound, the waters that had been seized by the serpent (1-?-?), he set free, he made channels for the streams with the vajra (2-?-?), made the water's stream flow to the ocean (2-?-?); he made flow the waters that had been blocked by Vṛtra (3-?-?; 4-?-?). Having killed Vṛtra, he opened the door of the shut-up water"

original p. 576

"(1-32-11). His weapons have burst in sixty rivers (1-80-?). The story of killing Vṛtra and releasing the waters comes up at every step. One whole sūkta (1-80) is wholly devoted to this in various ways. One (1-32) sūkta describes the war with Vṛtra. In all these descriptions, apart from the words vajra, mountain, stream, it may be said that there is no use of the natural words lightning, thunder, cloud and rain (1-32-5, 6 and 13; etc.). Though the streams here intended are the rivers of the earth, in the Veda the water of the sphere of the air and of the sky is also spoken of (1-100-?; 2-30-?; 2-?-?). The cows released by Indra must be the waters; in many places water is likened to cows. After killing the serpent, Indra found the cows for man (3-?-?; compare 1-?-?). When it is said that Indra brought out light and cows from the darkness with the help of his vajra (1-33-10), 'cows' means waters. In general, where it is said that light was obtained, the cows are also to be taken as cattle. The red rays first seen in the morning are compared to cows coming out of the cow-pen. Though clouds are not seen clearly, the words gr̥ṣṭi, bugga, bāne, maḍike and so on must mean clouds. Likewise: when Indra was born, the cows roared (8-?-?) must mean clouds."

"But in all the stories connected with Indra, the words are mountain, giri; these are the mountains where the Rākṣasas live (1-32-2; 1-33-?; 2-?-11); by them he smashes down the Rākṣasas (1-131-2; 4-30-?; 6-?-?). Taking good aim, Indra strikes with arrows from these very mountains (8-66-6). In order to release the cows he pressed this mountain greatly (8-?-?); or the mountain that was covering the cows was shifted by Indra from its place (6-?-?). Shaking the rocks, he made the cows easy to find (10-?-?); he released the cows that had been well hidden in the rock (6-?-?; compare 5-?-?). The cloud-masses that are like mountains may also be the clouds, cows, rain and moving, thundering rain-clouds."

"The clouds are sometimes forts of the Rākṣasas living in the sky. Such forts are ninety, ninety-nine or a hundred (2-14-6; 2-?-?; 8-?-?). They move (8-1-?); are seen in autumn (1-130-?; 1-131-4; 1-174-?; 6-20-10); are made of iron (2-20-8) or of stone (4-30-20). Indra smashes them into bits (1-53-?, etc.): for this he is called Purbhid (पुर्भिद्, purbhid, 'breaker of forts'). In a Ṛk the one who breaks forts and loves water is mentioned (10-?-10). In another, various parts of this history are pictured: he killed Vṛtra, broke the forts, made channels for the rivers, split the mountain, and gave cows to his friend (10-?-?-?)."

"How important this story of the killing of Vṛtra is, is known from the epithet Vṛtrahā (वृत्रहा, vṛtrahā, 'slayer of Vṛtra') that has become fixed for Indra. This name is used about 70 times. Since Agni is Indra's companion, the name is used of him also. It is also used of Soma, once or twice,"

original p. 577

"but it is clear that it is not so important there. It is plainly said that Indra killed Vṛtra by his own power (1-?-?; 2-?-?; 10-?-?); yet, other deities are helpers to Indra in this work. The deities yoked Indra to the chariot for the sake of battle (1-?-?; 6-?-?) or for the killing of Vṛtra (8-?-?). To fight Vṛtra the deities increased his heroism (10-?-?), or gave him strength and ability (10-?-?; 6-?-?; 10-?-?), or placed the vajra in his hand (2-?-?). Most of all it is the Maruts who urge him on and are friends to him (3-?-?; 10-?-?; etc.). When all the other deities fled in fear of Vṛtra (8-?-?; compare Ait. Brā. 6-?), the Maruts stood by Indra; but in one place (8-?-?) it is said that the Maruts themselves once abandoned him.

While he fought with Vṛtra, Agni, Soma and Viṣṇu too were helpers to him. The seers too stood by him in this war (3-?-?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?). The worshipper (stotr) placed the vajra in his hands (1-?-?), and the sacrifice was a help to the vajra in the killing of the Rākṣasa (3-?-?). Sūktas, praises, worship and Soma — all these increase Indra's power."

"Besides Vṛtra, Indra has fought with minor Rākṣasas too. Uraṇa has ninety-nine arms (2-14-4); Viśvarūpa has three heads and six eyes (10-99-6). Indra does not kill them with the vajra alone: he crushes one Arbuda with his foot, or throws him down with a bamboo [staff?] (1-51-6; 8-32-26). He destroys ordinary Rākṣasas; with a chariot-wheel he crushes Rākṣasas (8-?-?). Agni burns the Śuṣṇa-forest [Śuṣṇa's wood?], and Indra uproots Rākṣasas with the vajra (6-?-10) and drives away evil deities (8-?-?; 8-?-?)."

"With the release of the waters there is also the gain of light, Sūrya and Uṣas. Indra won the heavenly splendour and the water (3-34-4); it was prayed to Indra, 'kill Vṛtra and obtain splendour' (6-?-?). When Indra, with his iron vajra, killed Vṛtra and let flow the water for the use of men, he set Sūrya in the sky so that all could see (1-?-?; 1-?-?). Indra, the destroyer of Vṛtra, made the water flow to the ocean, created Sūrya and found the cows (2-19-3). After the killing of Rākṣasas, he won Sūrya and the water (3-34-8 and 9). Indra, having killed the leader of the Rākṣasas and set the water free, made Sūrya, the sky and the Uṣases be born (1-?-?; 6-30-5). After Indra made the Rākṣasa be carried off into the air, Sūrya shone (8-?-?). Though Sūrya is the result of this overcoming of the Rākṣasas, once the solar orb has also been Indra's weapon. With the rays of the sun, Indra burns the Rākṣasas (8-?-?). Just as with the killing of Vṛtra, Indra found light in the darkness (1-?-?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?). Indra himself is the cause of Sūrya's birth (3-49-?). He placed Sūrya, a blazing light, in the sky (8-?-?). He makes Sūrya shine (8-?-?; 8-?-?) and goes upward in the sky (1-?-?)..."

"...[he raises] him upward. He himself obtained Sūrya (1-100-6 and 8; 3-34-8), or found him in the darkness (3-49-?), and made a path for him (10-111-?)."

"Indra brings forth Sūrya and the Uṣases (2-12-7; 2-?-4; 3-31-15; 3-?-?-; 3-?-?-). He himself made the Uṣases and Sūrya shine (3-44-?). He has removed the darkness from Sūrya and the Uṣases (1-?-?-). He drives Uṣas along with Sūrya (2-?-?-). Together with Sūrya and the Uṣases (1-?-?-; 2-?-?-; 6-?-?-) or with Sūrya alone (1-?-?-; 3-?-?-; 3-?-?-; 6-?-?-; 6-?-?-; 10-?-?-) — it is so said. The cows said to be obtained, given or won by Indra cannot be waters or clouds; they must be rays of light. The cows that are delicate and made of water (8-?-?-) are to be understood as clouds. In the passages that follow, the rays of light or the clouds are to be understood. Uṣas at once went forward to receive Indra, who was possessed of the cows (3-31-?). Having defeated Vṛtra, Night makes the cows visible (3-34-?). In the matter of Uṣas too the gaining of cows is suggested. Like a cow-pen, Uṣas opens the doors of darkness (6-?-?-); like the door of a firm rock, the goddess Uṣas opens (2-?-?-). The cows low in the direction of Uṣas (2-?-?-). The Aṅgirasas break and open the doors of the cow-pens of the high regions of the goddess Uṣas (6-?-?-). In the mantras where the subject is water, Uṣas is introduced together with Sūrya (1-?-?-; 6-?-?-; 10-?-?-). Thus, in these matters — Sūrya's release from the darkness of the storm-cloud, and his release from the darkness of night — there seems to be some connection. Though the second quality is not in Indra, expanding the first a little, it is said that he released Sūrya from the darkness of night as well."

"In the matter of rain and thunder the part played by Indra is stated more clearly in some places. Indra is the cause of lightning in the sky (3-?-?-), and he is also the one who makes the water flow downward (2-?-?-)."

"Soma is also connected with the war with Vṛtra and the gain of Sūrya and the cows. When Indra drove off the Rākṣasa by the nearness of Vāyu, Agni and Sūrya, Soma became manifest (8-?-?). After conquering the Rākṣasa, he chose the Soma juice as his drink (3-?-?); after the Rākṣasas were conquered, Soma became his own wealth (2-?-?); he became king of the Soma plant (6-?-?). Indra made the Soma juice pressed with stones famous in the world and brought out the cows (3-?-?). Together with the cows he made the Soma juice flow (1-?-?). He found the hidden aprutva (?) in heaven (6-?-?); he found the honey kept in the tawny cow (3-?-?). Ordinary cows have milk, which is of the best nourishing kind; but the tawny cow has all sweetness within her — Indra himself placed it there, for the experience of delight (3-?-?). Dark or"

original p. 579

"red (1-62-9) [the cow] (and the one who opens the door and goes out) (6-72-?) makes the best ripened milk (utkṛṣṭa) in the cows (8-?-?). All these contexts, in general, suggest the connection between Indra and the rain-clouds."

"Indra brought the quaking mountains and the plains to a standstill (2-12-2; 10-44-8). It is said that, when they desired, they flew about, and he cut the wings of the mountains that were harming the stability of the earth. These wings must be the clouds that thundered forward (Vai. Saṃ. 1-10-?). The basis of this story is as stated in the Ṛk (5-?-?). It was Indra who set the shining regions in the sky (8-?-?). He is the support of earth and sky (3-?-?; etc.). He alone separates earth and sky, as the two wheels of a chariot are separated by the axle (10-?-?). He spreads out heaven and earth as one spreads a skin (8-?-?). He alone is the maker of earth and sky (8-?-?; compare 6-?-?). By his secret name he created all that is and all that will be (10-?-?), and in a moment made the non-existent into the existent (6-?-?). That earth and sky stand each by itself, and are held apart as in a grip — this is the result of Indra's conquest of a Rākṣasa who held these two regions together (5-?-?). When Indra was born for the killing of Vṛtra, he spread out the earth and made the sky firm (8-?-?). Having killed the Rākṣasa, Indra made a way for the rivers and made the earth visible to heaven (2-?-?). He found earth and sky that were hidden (8-?-?), or released both of them, along with light and waters (3-?-?). What is seen as sky and earth seeming to be joined in the dark — that, when light comes, they are seen separately — may be the basis for the above-mentioned ideas."

"Warriors constantly praise Indra, the wielder of the vajra, who destroys the Rākṣasas of the sphere of the air in battle (8-?-?, etc.). As the god of war he is prayed to above the other deities, that he be the helper in destroying the enemies of the earth, the Āryas' foes. He protects the Āryan colour and subdues the Dasyus (3-?-?; 1-130-8). He destroyed 30,000 Dasyus of black colour and ruined all their cities (4-?-?). Subduing the Dasyus, he gave the earth to the Āryas (4-?-?). In the region of the seven rivers, when the weapons of the Dasyus fall on the Āryas, he turns them elsewhere (8-?-?); sometimes the Ásvins (1-112-?), Agni (8-?-?) or other deities (6-20-11) alone are protectors of the Ārya."

"Indra alone is a helper who feels the troubles [of others] (1-?-?; 8-?-?; 8-?-?); he is one who sets his worshippers free and speaks for them (8-?-?); he gives strength to worshippers"

original p. 580

"and is also their fortress (8-?-?). There is none that kills his friends or defeats them (10-?-?). To those who worship Indra, is he a friend? Sometimes he is the brother (3-?-?), father (4-?-?; 10-?-?), or both mother and father (8-?-?). To the Fathers (pitṛs) he is a friend (6-?-?; compare 6-?-?), and to the Kauśika family he is the highest friend; that is why the name Kauśika (1-10-11) has come to him. He does not need the friendship of him who does not offer oblations (10-?-?), but he gives wealth to him who is without a yoke [i.e. to the one who is devoted] (3-?-?; 3-?-?; 2-?-?). A prayer that he may not go to other worshippers (3-?-?, etc.). All men receive help from him (8-?-?). His two hands are full of wealth

(2-?-?). He is a treasury filled with wealth (10-?-?): as a man shakes a tree to make the fruits fall. Indra is able to shower wealth upon his worshippers (3-?-?). To hold back a ball dipped in sandalwood-like mud [the print: 'a ball smeared with red earth'] may be easy, but to stop him once he has decided to give is impossible (8-?-?). He is like the ocean in wealth (1-?-?); as rivers all run to the ocean, all wealth gathers in him (6-?-?). One whole sūкта (10-42) describes the many kinds of wealth received from Indra. Like the other deities, cows and horses are prayed for from Indra (1-?-?; 1-?-?; etc.). 'The lord of cows' (gopati) is chiefly Indra. All the wars that he makes — generally called gaviṣṭi ('desire for cows', 8-?-?, etc.) — the fruit of his victory goes entirely to him (4-?-?, etc.). That Indra gives wives and sons and the like (4-?-?; 1-?-?) — his generosity is a special quality of his; hence the epithets maghavan ('bountiful'), vasupati ('lord of wealth') and so on."

"Among the stories connected with Indra, though the killing of Vṛtra is the main one, he is known to have performed many heroic deeds. In some sentences it is said that there was a quarrel with Uṣas. Indra destroyed the cart of Uṣas (10-73-6); having broken her cart with the vajra, he destroyed her slow-footed mules [?] with his swift horses (2-?-?). Afraid of Indra's vajra, Uṣas abandoned her chariot's cart (10-138-5). Having struck and destroyed Uṣas, the inwardly moving evil deity, Indra performed a great deed: her broken chariot lay in the river Vipāś, and she fled in fear (4-30-8 to 11). The disappearance of Uṣas by the heat of the sun is the basis of this story. Some think that the surpassing of Uṣas by Indra, who stays beyond the usual time and makes Sūrya rise, is the basis."

"There is a somewhat unclear story: a fight between Etaśa (a horse) and the horses of Sūrya called Harita; Sūrya himself stays ahead. Indra stops Sūrya. At that"

"time one wheel of Sūrya's chariot gets detached. 'Indra stopped the horses of Sūrya' (10-?-?) must be in this context. It is also said that Indra took Soma by force. Another story: Indra obtained the cows seized by an Asura named Paṇi (10-?-?). These Paṇis are very greedy; they do not release the cows even when they are needed for sacrifices and the like. Indra's messenger, the bitch Saramā, finds the place where the cows are and tells them to give them back. The Paṇis make fun of her. Elsewhere (6-?-?) it is said that Indra, wishing to gain the cows, split Vala's fort, conquered the Paṇis and set the cows free. In another place Vala held the cows captive, and Indra brought them out (2-?-?; 2-?-?). Here the Paṇi is not named. In many passages the Aṅgirases are said to have been Indra's helpers in this defeat of Vala and in the release of the cows."

"In some places it is said that Indra conquered the Dāsas or Dasyus. These Dāsas or Dasyus belong to the human race; their colour is black (compare 1-130-8; 2-20-?); they have no noses (5-?-?), no devotion to the gods and no performance of sacrifices. They must generally be said to be dwellers on earth; for, since the killing of Vṛtra and so on is said to be for the benefit of ordinary men, the destruction of these Dasyus is for the sake of some one person, or by the help of a person. Those who got help from Indra in this way are generally not seers and the like, but kings or warriors. Divodāsa Atithigva is the son of King Sudāsa; his enemy was Śambara, the son of Kulitara. But for the word 'dāsa' the meaning 'Rākṣasa' applies to the contexts where it is used of: Ahi, killed by Indra to release the waters (2-11-2); the three-headed and six-eyed Piśāca (10-99-6), or the Vyāṃsa who struck Indra's... [the print: 'who beat Indra's moustaches'] (4-?-?). The battles of Indra with such Dasyus as Namuci and the others are rightly discussed as matters concerning Rākṣasas."

"There are still many less important stories concerning Indra. One is the story about Indra, Indrāṇī and Vṛṣākapi (10-86): Indra's anger over Vṛṣākapi, the punishment given to Vṛṣākapi, his running away, and then Indra's reconciliation with Vṛṣākapi, and Vṛṣākapi's return. Indra safely took Turvaśa and Yadu across a river (1-174-9, etc.). In another, there are many wars waged by Sudās, in which he had Indra's help; this too is one. Last of all, there is the story that a woman named Apālā, seeing a Soma plant on the bank of a river, crushed it with her teeth, offered the juice that came to Indra, and obtained from him the boons she wanted."

original p. 582

³ "To sum up: superhuman power and authority over the material world are the chief qualities of Indra. Action full of passion is his distinction. His is a kind of rule that Varuṇa lacks: his is not an authority that works by fixed laws. Like Varuṇa, Indra too is a sovereign; but his sovereignty is not that of one who follows fixed ordinances; he is a very powerful warrior; there is none to oppose him; by his own power he can conquer the whole world. Moreover there is no limit to his generosity; pleased by the Soma-drinking, he bestows boundless wealth on those who worship him. He does not have the moral eminence and weight that Varuṇa has. In one place it is said that he too, like Varuṇa, obtained moral eminence, and, being bound by the rule, thereby gained heaven (10-167-1; compare 10-159-?)."

Trita Āptya

Trita Āptya. "There is no sūkta addressed to this deity. But in about 40 mantras scattered through 26 sūktas the name occurs as Trita Āptya, Trita or Āptya. Of these, Trita Āptya or Āptya occurs in four sūktas (1-105; 5-41; 8-47; 10-8) and in only seven sentences; everywhere else the word is used simply as Trita. He is mostly together with Indra; seven times with Agni (or in the sense of Agni), often with the Maruts; and ten times with Soma, or the Soma juice. It is said that by the power of the Soma juice Trita alone split Vṛtra (1-187-1)."

"The Maruts helped Trita and Indra to conquer the Asura Vṛtra (8-7-24). Such acts must be a distinction of Trita. In other places this same is used as the example. Trita split the forts of Vala, as, when Vṛtra, who was blocking the rain, fought, Indra split Vṛtra (1-52-4 and 5). By Indra and Agni, even a man who has obtained their help splits strong fortresses as Trita did (3-?-1). Trita Āptya, with the weapon given by his father, urged by Indra, fought the three-headed Rākṣasa, son of Tvaṣṭṛ, killed him and released the cows (10-8-8). Indra does the same thing: splitting the three heads of Viśvarūpa, son of Tvaṣṭṛ, he makes the cows his own. Indra (or Agni) subdued the three-headed and six-eyed Rākṣasa; Trita, by his strength, using the iron-tipped vajra-weapon, killed that boar (Rākṣasa) (10-99-6). Both deities did the same bold deed: Indra released the cows from the grip of a serpent, for Trita (10-48-2). Indra gave Viśvarūpa, son of Tvaṣṭṛ, to Trita (2-11-19), being joined by Trita who was pressing Soma. Indra, rolling Arbuda, with the Aṅgirasas split Vala (2-11-20). The wind"

original p. 583

"blows and the lightning flashes; Trita roars and the water roars (5-?-?). In the sūkta (2-34) addressed to the Maruts, when Trita saw, the path of the Maruts shines, and the Maruts were called by Trita in his chariot. In one sūkta the winds saw Trita and asked him for help (10-115-?). When Trita blew [the wind], as the blacksmith blows the bellows, the flames rise from the sky (6-?-?)."

"Trita, much distressed, searched for Agni and found him on the head of the cow. When that Agni was born in houses, he stays firmly in those houses, resting on splendour like a young man. Surrounded by flames, Trita sat in his own place (10-46-3 and 6). Trita's dwelling must be in heaven (5-?-?). His dwelling is hidden (9-?-?). It is very far away; for this reason the Ādityas and the Uṣases are asked to put bad deeds and evil dreams in Trita Āptya's house (very far from us) (8-47-13 and 14 [?]). His dwelling must be in the neighbourhood of Sūrya; for Trita is said to be in connection with it (1-105-9 [?]). In the same sūkta it is said that Trita fell into a well and prayed to the deities, and that Bṛhaspati, hearing it, delivered him from the trouble. In another place (10-8-7), Trita, who had fallen into a pit, remembered his father, received his weapons from him and set out to fight with Viśvarūpa. Indra, Viṣṇu, Trita Āptya or the Maruts, sitting by their sides, drink Soma (8-12-16); Trita, hearing the praise sung by him from his side, is pleased (Vāl. 4-1). Trita himself prepares the Soma (9-?-?); Trita alone purifies the Soma juice (9-34-4). Trita's maidens (the fingers) drive the juice of the Soma plant down from the stone for Indra's drinking (9-32-2; 9-38-2). Soma passes over the hidden place near Trita's two stones (9-102-2); Soma is prayed to carry wealth over Trita's hairs like a stream (9-102-3). In the bend of Trita's ridge Soma has made Sūrya and his sisters shine (9-?-?). Trita gives Varuṇa in the ocean the stirring-power (9-95-4). When Soma ferments the honey, he calls 'Trita!' (9-86-20)."

"About the real nature of the deity Trita there are no clear grounds. His name is in many lists (2-31-6; 5-41-4; 10-64-3), but nothing can be known from them. In two other passages (5-41-9 and 10) the sense is not settled. In a Varuṇa sūkta it is said that all knowledge is centred in Trita, like the spokes in the hub of a wheel (8-41-6). In another place it is said that Trita harnessed to the chariot a horse given by Yama and the transformed form of Sūrya, and that in the next mantra this horse, by a secret rite, becomes Yama, Sūrya"

original p. 584

"and Trita (1-163-2 and 3). Though the word trita is used at five places in the Atharvaveda, nothing can be known there either. Everywhere all that is known is this much: Trita is a deity dwelling very far away, in whom sin and bad dreams are cast off. The Taittirīya Saṃhitā says he is able to give long life (Tai. Saṃ.

1-5-10-3). Because he prepares the Soma that gives immortality, this may be a quality arising from that. In the Brāhmaṇas, Trita is one of the three deities Ekata, Dvita and Trita; these three are sons of Agni; Trita arose from water (Śat. Brā. 1-2-1-1 and 3; Tai. Brā. 3-2-8-10 and 11). In his explanation of Ṛgveda 1-105, Sāyaṇa mentions a story of Sātyāyana in which Ekata, Dvita and Trita are three seers, and the first two throw Trita into a well. In these contexts these words must be numerals. Dvita occurs in the Ṛgveda once together with Trita (8-47-15), and once in the Agni sūkta as indicating Agni (5-18-2). The name Trita is not in the Nighaṇṭu. Yāska (Nir. 4-6) explains this word as 'great knower' (mahājñānī); in another place (Nir. 9-2) he calls it a numeral word out of Ekata and so on, and in another place also said he is Indra residing in the three worlds (heaven, earth and sky)."

"Taking the Ṛgveda sentences, in 8-10 contexts Indra and Trita do the same work — killing Rākṣasas. Once Indra is the inspirer of Trita; in one place Trita is the inspirer of Indra; twice Indra has done work for Trita. The Maruts and Trita join together in the storm. Moreover Trita searches for Agni, and kindles Agni in heaven, and Agni dwells in the houses of men in his place. His dwelling is far away and hidden; Soma is there too. This is also a difference between Indra and Trita: Indra only drinks Soma, but Trita prepares Soma."

"The epithet Āptya applied to Trita comes from ap (water); hence it may be said to be equal to 'apāṃ napāt'. Once only the epithet 'vaibhūvasa' is used of Trita (10-46-3); it may be connected with Soma."

"From the above, it may be said that Trita is the deity of lightning — that is, a third form of Agni, or the form of the sphere of the air. He is the middle deity among the three deities Agni, Vāyu or Indra, and Sūrya. But since all the works of this deity are done by Indra alone, he is a deity of secondary importance in the Ṛgveda.

He is in the form of lightning, and since he brought Soma from heaven to the earth, the connection of Trita with Soma may have been mentioned. Because the grounds are few,"

original p. 585

"each scholar has held some opinion. To mention a few only: Roth says he is the deity of water and wind; Hillebrandt that he is the deity of the blazing sky; Perry that he is a deity of the storm. Another, Pischel, said that he was first a deity of the sea and water, afterwards a physician among men, and then obtained divinity. Hardy has said that he is a deity of the moon."

Apām napāt

Apām napāt ⁴. "One sūkta (2-35) is addressed to this deity, and two mantras (10-30-3 and 4) in a sūkta addressed to the deity of waters praise him. The name occurs some thirty-three times. Around the resplendent Apām napāt (child of waters) the water stood still. The young man is surrounded by the waters. The three women-deities, who are best of all, wait to give him food; he drinks the milk of the first mothers (2-35-3 and 5). He, a bull in form, placed in them the embryo; as an infant he drinks their milk; they kiss him. He appears, growing in the water itself, to the light. By day and night and the like he blazes in the water (10-30-4). Taking the cloud as his garment, he joins the slightly flowing water of the pestle (?). The swiftly flowing, golden-coloured water bears him and goes round in a circle (2-35-? and Śat.... compare Agni in 6-?-?). His is golden splendour and golden body colour; born from a golden womb, he gives food to those who worship him. Standing in the very high regions, he shines without growing less. The swiftly flowing waters bring ghee for their son (Apām napāt) for food, wear the stars, and flow round about. His face is of golden colour; maidens make him shine; he has tuppa (ghee) as food; he grows in the way that no one's going is heavy. In his house there is a good milch cow. Horses swift as thought carry him. He has relation to the rivers too. It is he who has made all creatures be born; all of them are his parts. At the end of the sūkta addressed to this deity he is called Agni. In the same way, in some sūktas of Agni, Agni is called Apāṃ napāt (compare Vāj. Saṃ. 8-?). Agni is the son of water (3-?-?). Agni, together with Apāṃ napāt, grants victory over Vṛtra (6-?-?). The deity Apāṃ napāt seems to be the same as another person's body (2-35-?)."

"The name Apāṃ napāt occurs in the lists of many deities; but especially it is joined with Aja Ekapād (2-31-6; 2-35-13), Ahirbudhnya (1-186-5; 2-31-6; 2-35-13) and Savitr (2-31-6; "

original p. 586

⁵ "...2-31-6 and 7 [?]) are said together with these [deities]. Since Savitr too has a special form that gives Agni fruit, even Savitr has the name 'Apāṃ napāt' at one place (1-22-6). The deity Apāṃ napāt — golden-coloured, with lightning for his garments, dwelling in the very highest region, growing secretly, shining most, son of water, descending to earth, equal to Agni — may well be Agni himself, in the form of lightning confined in the clouds. Agni is called not only Apāṃ napāt but also 'the embryo of water' (apāṃgarbhaḥ) (2-?-?; 1-?-?). In that same form he is placed in the houses of men (3-?-?); his dwelling is in the water (8-?-?); Agni, as the embryo of plants and of water, is born from the fire-sticks (3-1-13). Agni is also named 'son of the mountain' (adreh sūnum, 10-?-?; compare 6-?-?): the lightning born from the cloud of mountain form must be the 'son of the mountain'. As opposed to the forms of the heavenly world and the mortal world, the third form of Agni blazes in the water, in the ocean, in the breast of the sky or in the lap of the water (10-?-? onward). That the water is the dwelling of the heavenly Agni is very well known in Vedic history."

"This deity has given occasion to various opinions: the deity of water; Agni, moon, Sūrya and lightning, born of water, and so on."

Mātariśvan

Mātariśvan ⁶. "There is no sūkta that praises this deity alone. The name occurs only twenty-seven times. It appears that Mātariśvan and Agni are one, or that Mātariśvan generates Agni. Mātariśvan is a name of Agni (3-5-9; 3-?-?; 1-?-?). The vocative in (8-?-?) too must be applied to Agni. In another place, 'in the atomic form of the heavenly one' he has the name 'Tanūnapāt'; after birth he is called 'Narāśaṃsa'; when born as Mātariśvan, he himself becomes the swift-moving wind (3-29-11). The wise call the One by many names: Agni, Yama, Mātariśvan, they say (1-164-46). There is a name Bṛhaspati, many times said to be equal to Agni, which also belongs to Mātariśvan: 'That Bṛhaspati himself became Mātariśvan at the time of the sacrifice' (1-190-?)."

"In some other places, Agni and Mātariśvan are said to be different. He (Agni), born in the very high heaven, appeared to Mātariśvan (1-143-2). Agni first appeared to Mātariśvan and Viśvavat (1-60-1). As Agni is the best of the planets that are full of light, he has become the support of the sky with his flames; Mātariśvan made him blaze, the carrier of oblations that had been hidden (3-5-10). From the sky Mātariśvan brought one (Agni); the bird brought another (Soma) from the mountain"

original p. 587

"(1-93-6). Mātariśvan brought the Agni who is worshipful, the priest and the dweller in heaven (3-2-13). The deities made Agni, born of Bhṛgu, the first priest for men (10-46-9). The deity Mātariśvan brought him (Agni) from very far for men (1-128-2). Mātariśvan, the messenger of Viśvavat, brought Vaiśvānara-Agni from very far; the mighty ones had seized him in the water (6-8-4). Mātariśvan brought from very far Agni, who was born of churning of the fire-sticks and hidden (3-9-5). Mātariśvan churned the hidden Agni and brought him to birth (1-148-1). Churned by Mātariśvan, Agni was placed in the dwellings of men (1-60-1; 1-148-1). Indra, having seized by the grip, released the cows for Trita, and gave the cow-pens to Dadhyañc and to Mātariśvan (10-48-2)."

"In some sūktas of the later part of the Ṛgveda, though the subject of Mātariśvan is raised, nothing is known of his nature, qualities and so on. In two places (9-86-?; 10-114-1) it is said that he purifies Soma and drinks it. In another place (Vāl. 4-2) the name occurs in the list of the Fathers; there Indra, seated at his side, drinks Soma. Once Indra is compared with him as with an excellent craftsman (10-105-6 [?]). In the marriage sūkta, even though there is a prayer that Mātariśvan, with the other deities, should enter the hearts of lovers, this too is a feat of skill. Last of all, in one place Mātariśvan is said to be a swift-moving one and one who whirls around (10-109-1). Both these qualities support the view that Mātariśvan is Vāyu (wind)."

"Thus Mātariśvan is heavenly Agni embodied; moreover, it is he who brought Agni from heaven to the earth. Lightning may be said to be the root of Mātariśvan. As Agni, being a messenger between the two worlds, so Mātariśvan, the messenger of Viśvavat, may be said to have come from heaven to earth. In the Atharvaveda too Mātariśvan is a name of Agni (Av. 10-?-?). But in the Brāhmaṇas and so on Mātariśvan means Vāyu; the basis for this opinion is stated even earlier (3-29-11). Agni, who in the sphere of air is like a snake hissing, is described elsewhere as a wind that blows with a sound (1-?-?-?)."

"The word Mātariśvan may mean 'one who grows in the mother' or 'one formed' [as read]. The root śvi means 'to grow, to increase in the body'. From it come words like śīśu ('infant'). Like Mātariśvan, Agni too grows in the mothers (the fire-sticks) (1-140-?). When applied to Mātariśvan, the lower fire-stick or the cloud only can be meant; since he comes from the sky, the cloud may be called his mother. In Yāska's view Mātariśvan is Vāyu; 'mātari' means in the sky, 'śvan' one who breathes, or 'āśu an', one who breathes swiftly — that is, wind."

original p. 588

Ahīrbudhnya

Ahīrbudhnya. "Ahi budhnya means a serpent of the sea or of the nether world. This name occurs chiefly in the sūktas addressed to the Viśve-devas. In all it is used only twelve times in the Ṛgveda. Five times it is said with Aja Ekapād, three times with Apām napāt, three times with the sea, and twice with Savitr̥. In only three Ṛks (5-41-16; 2-31-6 and 7 [?]) this name stands alone. Whenever another deity is mentioned with him, that deity is generally Aja Ekapād (10-64-4) or Apām napāt (1-186-5). Aja Ekapād and Ahīrbudhnya are generally joined side by side; only in (10-66-11) is it somewhat contrary. The lists in which this name occurs are as follows: Aja Ekapād, Ahīrbudhnya, Sāgara, Apām napāt and Pr̥ṣni (2-31-6); Ahīrbudhnya, Aja Ekapād, Trita, Ṛbhukṣan, Savitr̥, Apām napāt (2-31-6); Sāgara, Sindhu, Ākāśa, Gāli [wind], Aja Ekapād, the roaring stream, Ahīrbudhnya, and the Viśve-devas (10-66-11). On examining these lists, Ahīrbudhnya must be said to be one of the deities of the atmosphere. In the Nirukta (Nir. 9-4) he is counted as a deity of the middle world or sphere of the air. In the mantra that alone treats of this deity, something definite is known of him. 'We praise with song the serpent born in the water, seated at the bottom of the stream of the atmosphere' (2-?-?-; compare 10-?-?) — from this it is indicated that this deity lives in the mass of water in the sky. Yāska (Nir. 10-44) has explained the word budhna as 'wind'. In the Ṛk that follows (2-?-?) it is prayed that he should not injure his worshippers. Elsewhere the same words are used (5-41-?). From these sentences it is evident that his nature is not wicked. The word ahi is generally used of Vṛtra. Vṛtra too is described in this way: enclosing the water, he lay with the water flowing over him, or fallen in the water or in the bottom of the sky (1-32-?). The fire of the atmosphere too is called ahi (1-?-?); he is said to have been born in the depths of the atmosphere (4-?-?). Ahi Budhnya and Ahivṛtra were one; but, because the idea came that Ahirbudhnya too is a deity, his evil nature is only subtly indicated. In the other Vedas a connection of Ahirbudhnya with the Gārhapatya fire is shown (Vāj. Saṃ. 5-?; Ait. Brā. 3-?; Tai. Brā. 1-1-10-3). In the Purāṇas, Ahirbudhnya is one of the names of Rudra."

Aja Ekapād

Aja Ekapād.

"Ahirbudhnya and Aja Ekapād have a very close kinship. Both together occur five times, and Aja Ekapād alone only once (10-65-14). The roaring Sāvīrī,"

original p. 589

"Ekapāt Aja, the one who holds up the sky (divodharmā), Sindhu, the water of the ocean, the Viśve-devas, Sarasvatī (10-65-13) and Sāgara, Sindhu, Antarikṣa, Aja Ekapād, the roaring stream, Ahirbudhnya and the Viśve-devas (10-66-11) — in both these lists the sense is about the same. From these it is known that Aja Ekapād too is one of the deities of the sphere of the air. In the Nirukta, however, he is counted as a deity of heaven. In the Atharvaveda it is said that Aja Ekapād has made the two worlds firm (Av. 13-1-6). 'Aja Ekapād rose in the eastern quarter' (Tai. Brā. 3-1-2-8). The commentator says that Aja Ekapād is a form of Agni, and the commentator Durga (on Nir. 12-29) takes him as Sūrya. Yāska himself has said nothing clear about it. In his view aja means 'one who makes go' and ekapād 'one with one leg', or 'one who protects with one foot', or 'one who drinks'. Though he has no fixed place as an independent deity, offerings are made to him and to Ahirbudhnya in the domestic sacrifices (Pāraskara 2-?-?). In the Purāṇas Aja Ekapād is one of the names of the eleven Rudras."

"Among the modern scholars each has taken a different view. A form of storm-wind, one of the deities of the Saurya group; this Aja that moves alone is the moon — 'one-footed, unborn', the deity who lives in some unknown world: these and other opinions are seen."

Rudra

Rudra 7. "In the Ṛgveda the place of Rudra is not of great importance: only three sūktas and one portion of a sūkta, one together with the deity Soma, praise this deity. The name occurs only seventy-five times."

"The description of his limbs is as follows. He has an arm (2-33-2; etc.), arms (2-33-3; Vāj. Saṃ. 16-1) and firm limbs (2-33-11). His jaws are beautiful (2-33-5) and he wears his hair braided like Pūṣan (1-114-1 and 5). He is tawny in colour (2-33-8; etc.). His form is bright enough to dazzle the eyes (1-114-5), and he has many forms (2-33-?). Like the blazing Sūrya he shines as gold (1-43-5). He wears gold ornaments (2-33-?) and a shining necklace of many colours (2-33-10). He sits on the seat of a chariot (2-33-4). In other Saṃhitās, especially in the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā, many more characteristics are stated. He is thousand-eyed (Av. 11-2-? and 2; Vāj. Saṃ. 16-?). He has belly, mouth, nose and teeth (Av. 11-2-?). His belly is black and his back red (Av. 15-1-? and 7). His neck (Vāj. Saṃ. 16-?) is blue and his hair blue..."

original p. 590

⁸ "... (Av. 2-?-?). His colour is copper-red, tawny (Vāj. Saṃ. 16-?). He wears a skin (Vāj. Saṃ. 3-?; 16-?) and dwells in the mountains (Vāj. Saṃ. 16-?)."

7. Rudra

8. Rudra, continued

"He has many weapons of attack. He holds the vajra weapon (2-33-3). His arrow, loosed from the sky, goes over the earth (7-46-3). Generally he carries bow and arrows (2-33-10 and 11; 5-?-?-; 10-?-?-); those arrows are strong and swift (2-?-?-). He is praised together with Kṛṣṇānu and other archers (10-?-?-). Where it is said that Indra sits in the chariot with the archer (6-?-?-; compare 2-33-11), the archer must be Rudra himself. In the Atharvaveda too the name 'archer' is given to him (Av. 1-?-?-; 6-?-?-; 15-?-?-). In the Atharvaveda and other portions of the Vedas his bow, arrow, weapon, vajra-weapon or club are mentioned at every step (Av. 1-?-?-; etc.; Śat. Brā. 9-1-1-?-)."

"The matter that comes up at every step in connection with Rudra is his relation to the Maruts. Rudra is the father of the Maruts (1-114-?-; 2-33-1); or the Maruts are said to be Rudra's sons; and they have the name Rudras, or sometimes Rudriyas (1-?-?-; 2-34-10; etc.), children of Pṛśni (2-34-2; 5-?-?-; 5-60-5; 6-66-3); many times they are called Pṛśnimātaraḥ (those who have Pṛśni as their mother) (1-23-10; etc.; Av. 5-?-?-). Pṛśni, the cow (5-?-?-), or in general the cow (8-?-?-), is their mother; they are also called Gomātaraḥ (compare 8-?-?-; 8-20-?). This cow is probably the cloud tinted with many colours in the storm. Rudra created the Maruts out of the udder of Pṛśni, who was shining (2-34-2). But just as Indra and the Maruts join in battles and the like, Rudra and the Maruts do not join together everywhere; for Rudra is never found at war with the Rākṣasas. The name Tryambaka (त्र्यम्बक, tryambaka), which is often applied to Rudra in the Purāṇas and elsewhere, is seen in the Vedas too (Vāj. Saṃ. 3-?-; Śat. Brā. 2-6-2-?-); in the Ṛgveda also it is applied to him in one place (7-59-12). The word means 'one who has three fathers and mothers' [or 'three mothers'] (compare 3-56-?). Here the three persons known as mothers may be the three parts of the world. In the Purāṇas, Ambikā is Rudra's wife; but in the Vedas she is his sister (Vāj. Saṃ. 3-57). Umā and Pārvatī, names of Śiva's wife, occur in the Taittirīya Āraṇyaka and the Kena Upaniṣad."

"Among the many deities said to be equal to Agni, Rudra is also one (2-1-6). Elsewhere also he and Agni are one (Av. 7-?-?; Tai. Saṃ. 5-4-3-1; 5-5-2-4; and compare Śat. Brā. 6-1-3-10; 9-1-1-?). The word rudra is often used as an epithet; many times of Agni, and still more of the Aśvins, this epithet is said. Rudra has two new names, Śarva and Bhava (Vāj. Saṃ. 16-?). These two names and his destroying arrows are mentioned in the Atharvaveda also (Av. 2-?-?; 6-93-1; 10-1-23; 11-2-1 and 13); but here Śarva, Bhava and Rudra seem to be thought of as separate deities. Śarva and Bhava are sons of Rudra, and in the Brāhmaṇas..."

original p. 591

"...they are many (Sāṃ. Śrau. Sū. 4-?-?). Agni, Aśani, Paśupati, Bhava, Śarva, Īśāna, Mahādeva, Ugradeva and others are one deity in various forms (Vāj. Saṃ. 39-?). Rudra, Śarva, Paśupati, Ugra, Aśani, Bhava and Mahān Deva — these are eight forms of Agni (compare Śat. Brā. 6-1-3-?; Śāñ. Brā. 6-1, etc.); and Śarva, Bhava, Paśupati and Rudra — all are names of Agni (Śat. Brā. 1-7-3-8). Of the above names Aśani is the name of the child of Agni (lightning) (6-?-?); but in another place (Śāñ. Brā.) it is a name of Indra. The cows driven from the house are more apt to fall under Rudra's stroke; for that reason such are all put under his protection. Hence the name Paśupati ('lord of cattle') for him."

"Rudra is of terrible form (2-33-9 and 11; 10-?-?) and is a destroyer like a fierce beast (2-33-11). He is a red-hued boar of the sky (1-114-5). A bull (2-33-?, and others). Exalted (2-?-?); rich in strength (1-?-?; 1-114-?); the strongest among the strong (2-33-3); unobstructed (2-?-?); not surpassed in prowess (2-33-10); swift (10-?-?); quick (1-114-4). He is young (5-60-5) and never grows old (6-49-10). He bears the name Asura (5-42-11) or is a great Asura of heaven (2-1-6). Self-renowned (1-?-?; 10-?-?); he rules over heroes (1-114-1 and 3; etc.), and is the lord and father of this world (2-33-9; 6-49-10). He ordains the rules (6-?-?), and by his ordinances and his sovereignty over the world he takes hold of all the works of the deities (2-?-?). That the rivers run and make the whole earth moist is by his command (10-?-?). He is wise (1-43-1), knowing (1-114-4) and generous (2-33-2; 6-49-10). Many times he is mīḍhvān ('bountiful'; 'generous') (the usage is at 1-114-3, and in other Vedas this usage applies to Rudra alone). He is easily praised (2-33-6) and beneficent (Śiva; 10-92-9)."

"Doing harm is a special quality of his. In all the sūktas praising him, the fear of his arrow and the ill results of his anger are the matters spoken of. Those who praise him pray that he not kill or injure their parents, children, followers, cattle or horses in anger (1-114-7 and 8), but protect the horses (2-33-1) and turn his arrows elsewhere to destroy others with them (2-33-11 and 14); that when angry he should turn his vajra-weapon away, and not trouble his worshippers (6-28-?; 6-?-? onward), and that he should put at a distance from them the weapon that kills their cows, their children, cattle and men (2-33-1). They pray that he not make them suffer his anger (2-33-? onward and 15), and they beseech him to be gracious in the matter of 'the food that moves' (10-?-?). He has the epithet 'killer of men' (nṛghnī; 4-3-6); he looks out for chances to kill men (Āś. Gṛ. 4-8-?)."

original p. 592

"His anger has become still more prominent in the other Vedas. At every step he is prayed to (Vāj. Saṃ. 3-?; etc.; Av. 1-?-?; etc.). They pray him not to use the heavenly fire on them, but to make the thunderbolt fall in some other place (Av. 11-2-26; 10-1-23). Through fever, cough and poison he acts against them, against men (Av. 11-2-22 and 26). Dogs with wide mouths, red and yellow-coloured and always barking are with him (compare Av. 10-1-30; Vāj. Saṃ. 16-?). When they see his stretched bow and arrows even the deities are afraid, 'whom will he destroy?' (Śat. Brā. 9-1-1-? and 6); he is known as Mahādeva. He kills the cows (Tāṇḍya Mahā Brā. 6-9-2). He is formed of all things that are terrible (Ait. Brā. 3-33-1). That in the Brāhmaṇas and Sūtras he is said to stay apart from the other deities must be because of these terrible qualities. When all the deities went to the heaven-world, Rudra stayed behind (Śat. Brā. 1-2-3-1). In Vedic rites, generally, after oblations are given to the other deities, what remains is offered to Rudra (Āp. Dh. Sū. 2-4-?). In sacrifices, blood is given as the share of the Piśācas (Ait. Brā. 2-?-1); his soldiers attack men with diseases and death, and eat the remains of the oblation, the blood-stained food of those who have been sacrificed (Sām. Śrau. Sū. 4-?-?). The dwelling-places of other deities are in the eastern quarter, but Rudra dwells in the northern quarter. Because of his terrible nature he does not particularly join the other deities, and is a deity without a pair; he has only one short sūkta together with Soma, and no praise otherwise."

"Besides these, the terrible and sometimes insufferable qualities of Rudra, as drawn in the Purāṇas and elsewhere, are stated in some of the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā."

"But Rudra is not wholly a causer of evil like Piśācas and others. He is prayed to ward off the afflictions caused by other deities (1-114-4; 2-33-2). He gives protection from accidents, and grants boons (1-114-1 and 2; 2-33-6), and makes human beings and animals prosper (1-43-6). That he has the power to cure diseases is said at every step. He bestows herbs (2-33-2); all herbs are under him (5-42-11); and he has a thousand herbs (2-?-?). In his hand are the best herbs (1-114-5); his hand itself has healing power (2-33-7). By his healing he makes the heroes prosper; for he is the best physician among physicians (2-33-4), and, with the help of the best herbs, he wishes his worshipper to live a hundred years (2-33-2). He is prayed to be auspicious to the offspring of those who worship (2-?-?), and that there be no one in the village who is sick or ill, but that cattle and men be well (1-114-1). In this context he has two epithets, 'one who has the water-healer' (jalāśa) and 'water-healer' (jalāśabheṣaja) (1-43-4; Av. 2-27-6). 'Herbs' here must mean rain-water (compare 7-?-?; 10-?-?). Rudra's lightning and his healing powers are spoken of together (2-?-?). The physician Rudra is prayed to be gracious together with the other Rudras (2-33-?), and the Maruts too are said to have healing power along with Rudra (2-33-13). This power of Rudra is mentioned in the other Vedas also (Vāj. Saṃ. 3-59; 16-?; Av. 2-27-6); but his destructive power"

original p. 593

"is not mentioned so much as this. For driving away disease or for warding it off, sacrifices are prescribed in the name of Rudra (Āś. Gr. 4-8-10; Kau. Sū. 32-?; etc.)."

"What portion of Nature Rudra reflects is not determined. He too is a deity of the storm. But, like Indra, his wrath is only against those who do harm, and not above; there is harm to all from it. So he is a part of the storm. He is both a destroyer and a gale. If this view is accepted, the arrows are deadly. The ideas of Maruts, as father or chief of the storm-deities, are made meaningful. The benefit from him, healing and so on, may be the good results of rain brought by the storm. The pleasant (saumya) name 'Śiva' ('auspicious'), which has been given to him in order to avert the evil results of his anger, became fixed for him. Through this too the close relation between him and Agni is understood."

The Maruts (Marud-devategaḷu)

The Maruts. "Very important deities. 33 sūktas wholly, and, with Indra, 6, and with Agni and Pūṣan one each, so in all 43 sūktas praise them. They are always together in a group or crowd (1-37-1; etc.), and used in the plural. They are in number sixty times three [i.e. 180] (8-96-8) or seven times three [i.e. 21] (1-133-6; Av. 13-1-18). It has been said many times that they were born (5-52-?; etc.). They are the sons of Rudra, hence the name Rudras (1-64-2 and 5, etc.); sometimes also Rudriyas (1-?-?; 2-34-10; etc.), the children of Pṛśni (2-34-2; 5-?-?; 5-60-5; 6-66-3); Pṛśnimātaraḥ ('those who have Pṛśni as mother') is said many times (1-23-10; etc.; Av. 5-?-?). Pṛśni the cow (5-?-?), or ordinarily the cow (8-?-?), is their mother; they are also called Gomātaraḥ (compare 8-?-?; 8-20-?). This cow is perhaps the cloud coloured with many colours in the storm. Big, rough-bellied cows come roaring (2-34-5): these are only the clouds in the storm season, with lightning and thunder. When born of Pṛśni, the Maruts are likened to Agni (6-66-1 onward). From the laughter of the lightning the Maruts were born (1-23-12; compare 1-?-?). Agni gave them form, or obtained them (6-3-?; 1-?-?). Vāyu placed them in the womb of the sky (1-134-?) and they are children of the sky (11-?-?), and heroes of the sky (vīrāḥ; 1-64-?; 1-133-1; 5-54-10) or males of the sky (3-54-13; 5-?-6). In one place it is said that the ocean is their mother (samudramātaraḥ; 10-78-6). In some other places they are said to be self-born (born of themselves; 1-168-3; 5-?-?-?)."

¹ "They are brothers; but there is no distinction of elder and younger (5-59-6; 5-60-5), for they are all of the same age (1-165-1). All of them grew up together (5-58-?; 2-?-?) and are of one mind (8-20-1 and 20). They all have one birthplace (5-53-?) and one dwelling-place (1-165-1; 2-?-1). They grew in the sky, on earth, in heaven (5-55-2) or in the three heavens (5-60-6). In one place (8-?-1 and 3) they are called mountain-dwellers."

"Indrāṇī is their friend. She quarrels with Indrāṇī (10-?-?) and Sarasvatī (2-?-3). That they have such kinship is more with the goddess named Rodasī; she gives them the means of comfort and stands with them in their chariot (5-56-8), or stands at their side (6-66-6). In all five places where her name occurs she is with the Maruts (compare 1-167-4 and 5). Therefore she is counted as the wife of the Aśvins, like Sūryā. For this reason they have the epithet 'bhadraajānayaḥ' ('having excellent wives') (5-61-4), and they are likened to bridegrooms (5-60-4) or to young lovers (10-?-6)."

"Their brilliance comes up often. They are of golden colour, of bright lustre like Sūrya, of a slightly red colour like a blazing fire (6-66-3; 2-34-11; 8-?-2). They shine like flames of fire (10-?-3). They have the form of Agni or the splendour of Agni (10-?-1; 3-?-5); they are compared with Agni in splendour (10-?-3). They are like Agni (2-34-1) or like blazing Agni (6-66-2); the name Agni is given to them (3-?-4). They have the lustre of serpents (ahibhānavaḥ, 1-172-1). They shine on the mountains (8-?-1). They are 'svabhānu' ('self-shining', 1-37-2; etc.). This epithet is not said of any other deity. 'Bright' and 'blazing' come at every step (1-165-13; etc.)."

"In particular they have a connection with lightning (5-54-2, 3 and 11; 1-64-5). When the Maruts churn the milk, the lightnings look at the earth and laugh (1-168-8; compare 5-52-6). When the Maruts call the rain, the thunder makes a noise like a lowing cow

(2-34-13). The lightning is related to them to such a degree that in the five places where vidyut is used as a compound word, in four of them it is with marut alone. The thunder they hold in their hand (2-?-3; 5-54-11); thunder is their inner delight (5-54-3). In their hands are bhārjis (spears). Here too bharji (a fist) must be thunder only; for they are specially described as those who use thunder itself as the bhārji [the print: 'fist-lightning'] (1-168-5; 5-52-13). In a few places less often they have a hammer of gold (8-?-13)"

original p. 595

"[and] a golden-made axe as a weapon (1-37-2, 1-88-3; 5-53-4; 5-52-2; 8-20-4). Once it is said that they hold the vajra-weapon. In some places they are said to be bow-and-arrow bearers (5-53-4; 5-52-2; 8-20-4 and 11) and once archers loosing arrows. But this quality is not natural to them. They are adorned with ornaments such as garlands of flowers (5-53-4); they wear golden belts (5-53-6); like a prosperous man for a wedding, they adorn their bodies with golden ornaments (5-60-4). The armlet or anklet is their personal ornament. Adorned with these ornaments, they shine like the sky studded with stars, or like the waters that fall from the cloud. On their arms are spears; on their feet anklets; on their breasts golden ornaments; in their hands whips that crack; and on their heads golden helmets (5-54-11)."

"The chariots the Maruts use shine with lightning (1-88-1; 3-54-13); they are made of gold (5-57-1); they have golden wheels or rims (1-64-11; 1-88-5). In them are weapons (5-57-6); they have arrows of water (1-37-2). The horses that draw the chariot are tawny (1-88-2; 5-57-4); golden-hoofed (8-7-32) and swift as thought (1-85-4). These horses have spots; their special name is Prṣadaśvāḥ ('those with spotted horses'). It is also said that the Maruts have yoked she-horses to their chariot (1-64-9). It is said that they have yoked the wind itself as a horse for their chariot (5-58-2)."

"The Maruts are huge like the sky (5-57-4); they surpass heaven and earth (10-77-3). Their greatness is boundless (5-58-3); no one can know the measure of their power (1-168-?). They are young (1-64-3; 1-165-?; 5-?-13) and have no old age (1-64-3). They are Asuras, energetic, bright, without fault (1-64-2 and 3) and without dust (6-66-3); terrible in form (1-19-4); of fierce nature (2-34-6); terrible like wild beasts (3-26-?), and so on. They are playful like children or calves (1-166-2; 5-?-1; 10-77-6). They are like geese with black backs (5-59-2); like wild boars with iron tusks (1-88-5); like lions (1-64-8)."

"They roar loudly (1-165-2; etc.). This roar is thunder (1-38-11), and the sound of the blowing wind (5-58-3). When they come, the sky seems to be trembling with fear (8-7-34). They shake the mountains, and make the earth or the two worlds tremble. They crush mountains with the wheel-rims, or the rocks (1-64-11; 5-52-9). When they come with the wind, they make the mountains shake (8-7-4). They roll trees like wild elephants..."

original p. 596

"...and devour forests (1-64-7; 1-88-2). The forests bow to the ground in fear of them (5-60-2). Like mountains they are unobstructed, and throw the creatures of heaven and earth down (1-64-4). All creatures fear them (1-85-5). Like the wind they move swiftly (10-78-3); they raise dust in whirling form (1-64-?). They produce the wind or the sound of the wind (2-34-3). They come with the wind (8-7-3, 4 and 17); they make it their horse (5-58-2)."

"Giving rain is the chief of their works. Rain is their garment (5-?-?). Rising from the sea, they send down rain (1-38-9). In both worlds they pour down rain and blow (1-64-6; 8-7-17). Rain follows them (5-53-10). They bring the waters and make the rain (5-58-3). With the rain they hide their light (5-59-1). With the rain they cover the eye of Sūrya (5-59-5). When the rain falls they make darkness with the clouds (1-38-9). Along with the wind they move swiftly, scattering frost (8-7-4). The arrows of the sky (the cloud, 5-53-6; 5-59-?) and the mountain-streams make the water flow (5-59-?). When they run, the water flows (5-58-6). By this work a river of the earth has the name 'Marudvṛdhā' ('increased by the Maruts', 10-75-5). Rudra's sons alone are the rain (5-58-2). The rain made clear by the Maruts has been compared in a figurative way to milk (1-168-?), ghee (1-85-5; 10-?-?), milk and ghee (1-64-6). They pour like the spring (madhu) (1-85-11) or drench the earth with honey (5-54-?). Raising water from the sea to the sky, they pour it from there upon the earth as rain (Av. 4-?-?). With the rain that they pour, there is always lightning and thunder. In their desire to pour water, the Maruts roar and swallow with force (5-54-3). By their power they create wind, lightning and hail; they milk the heavenly things from the cloud and fill the earth with milk (1-64-5); the thundering cloud, milked by them, roars (1-64-6). Through them the water becomes full, and the sky, the golden bull, thunders (5-58-6). They make the horse [i.e. the cloud] create water (1-64-6). They favour the rain of the sky and make the streams born of the horse flow well (5-58-6). Joining the horse, when they create the water, the Maruts become golden-coloured (2-34-13). When the clouds thunder, the streams echo the sound of the Maruts' chariot-rims (1-168-8). The water that Indra sends is called 'marutprītiḥ' ('accompanied by the Maruts', 1-100-?). In the sense of rain-makers they have the names 'purudrāptsāḥ' (5-52-?) or 'ḍṛpsinaḥ' (1-64-?) ('having many drops of water') and 'sudānavah' ('well steeped in water')."

original p. 597

"They also diminish the branches [of trees]. But they themselves make the forests wave [?] (2-34-?). They create light (1-86-10) and make a path for Sūrya (8-7-4). They have determined the limit of the wind (5-55-?); they have spread out the regions of the earth and the parts of the sky that are distinguished by splendour, and have separated the two worlds (8-7-4 and 11)."

"The sound that is heard in the wind may be the reason why they are called singers (5-52-?; 5-60-?; 2-34-?); they are the singers of the heaven-world (5-?-?). They sing a song (1-?-?; 1-?-?). By singing they made Sūrya shine (8-?-10); blowing flutes, they split the mountain (1-85-10). When Indra killed the serpent, the Maruts, singing for him, prepared the Soma juice (5-29-2; 5-?-?). By singing they gave strength to Indra (1-?-?). What they sing is mainly the sound heard in the wind (compare 8-?-?); yet that is thought of as a praise (3-?-?). When with Indra they are invited as priests (5-?-3) and are compared with priests (10-?-1). They were the first to perform sacrifice (2-?-?-); they are the ones who purified Agni in the houses of the Śiṣṭas; the Bhṛguś kindled Agni (10-?-?). Like many other deities, they too are said to drink Soma (2-?-?-; 8-?-? to ?; etc.)."

"Because of the idea that thunder-rain and they are one, they are by nature friends of Indra; as fellow-workers they are closely related to him. By their praise and singing they increase Indra's power and strength (3-?-?-; 6-?-?). In the war with Vṛtra, generally the Maruts themselves are his helpers (8-?-?-; 10-?-?). They help Trita and Indra in killing Vṛtra (8-?-?). They are prayed to sing the sūkta that kills Vṛtra (8-?-?). In the wars that Indra made with the serpent and with Śambara, they helped him (2-?-?). Together with the Maruts, Indra obtained light (8-?-?) and cows (1-?-?) and became the support of the sky (2-?-?). Truly, it is with their help that Indra has performed all his bold deeds (1-100, 101 and 165th sūktas; 10-?-?). In some contexts the Marut deities in these bold works are more independent than Indra. Together with Indra, the Maruts strike Vṛtra (1-?-?). They split the joints of Vṛtra (8-?-?) and found the cows (2-?-?). As with other deities, Indra is their leader (1-?-?-; etc.). They are joined with Indra (10-?-?). They are like sons to Indra (1-100-?); they have accepted his brothers (1-?-?). Only once or twice it is said that the Maruts abandoned Indra, making a plan to fight against the serpent alone (1-?-?), and left him alone (8-?-?). In one single Ṛk, enmity between Indra and them is also stated."

² "...The Maruts said to Indra, 'O Indra, why do you wish to kill us? Do not kill us in the battle' (1-170-2; compare 1-171-?). In a Brāhmaṇa too (Tai. Brā. 3-?-11-1) it is said that there was a quarrel between Indra and the Maruts."

"When they are not accompanied by Indra, destructive qualities are seen in the Maruts. In this matter they show the qualities of their father Rudra. They are prayed that they should not afflict their worshippers with hail, and that their evil design should not touch them (2-?-?). It is begged that the arrows and stones they hurl (1-172-?), the hail (2-?-?), and the vajra-weapon that kills cows and men (2-?-?) be avoided. Harm may come from them (1-?-?); it is asked that they not become angry (1-?-?; 5-?-?); anger comes upon them like serpents (1-64-? and 8). Like Rudra, remedies are sought from these also, from the herbs in the Sindhu, Asikni, the oceans and the mountains (8-?-? to ?). Pure, favourable and pleasing methods of cure are with Rudra, the friend of the Maruts (2-33-13). The Maruts give it in the form of rain (5-53-14); hence 'herb' must mean water. Like Agni, they too have the name 'pāvaka' ('purifiers') (5-?-?; etc.)."

"From the qualities above it is clear that the Maruts are deities of the storm. To take 'marut' as meaning wind is mostly correct, but all the qualities above are not included in it."

Vāyu-Vāta

Vāyu and Vāta.

"The two words Vāyu and Vāta are used for the deity Vāyu and for wind, in the sense of both. But Vāyu is a deity; Vāta is gross wind. One whole sūкта, and parts of some sūktas, are addressed to Vāyu as deity; with Indra there are about twelve sūktas. For Vāta there are only two small sūktas at the end of the tenth maṇḍala; both sometimes come in the same Ṛk (6-?-?; 10-?-?). In both of these,

Vāyu alone is praised together with Indra. In the Nirukta (Nir. 7-5) Vāyu or Vāta is counted as one among the three deities (Agni, Indra, Vāyu, Sūrya). Vāta is related to Parjanya. The epithets used for these two are also generally different; the epithets of Vāta mainly indicate speed and violence."

"There is not much basis for the origin of Vāyu. The two worlds created him for lordship (2-?-?). Though his wife's name is not given, Vāyu is said to be the son-in-law of Tvaṣṭṛ (8-?-? and ?). In the Puruṣa-sūkta Vāyu is said to have been born from the breath of the Virāt-Puruṣa"

original p. 599

"(10-90-13). It may be said that no relation is stated between Vāyu and the Maruts. Only in one place (1-134-4) is it said that Vāyu made the Marut group be born from the womb of the sphere of the air, and that they (1-?-?) and the Viśve-devas urged Vāyu. His (qualities and) marks are unclear. Of beautiful form (1-2-1), thousand-eyed, he touched the sky together with Indra with the speed of thought (1-?-? and ?). Vāyu's chariot is yoked; to it a team or a pair of horses, of the colour of red or of tawny. In that team there are ninety-nine (4-?-?) or a hundred, or a thousand (4-?-?) horses, and they are harnessed by his mere wish. The epithet nīyutvat ('possessing a team') of this sense is, apart from once or twice for Indra, Agni, Pūṣan or the Maruts, generally used of Vāyu alone. Seated in the chariot, Indra is his companion (4-?-?; 4-?-?; 2-?-?); it has a golden seat; it touches the sky (4-?-?). As with the other deities, Soma-juice is dear to him too; he is called, with his horses and with Indra, to drink Soma first (1-?-?); of all the deities he is the one of swift motion (Śat. Brā. 14-?-?; etc.). In the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa (2-?) there is a story that, among the deities, Vāyu was first, and Indra second, to drink the first drink of Soma juice. He is a guardian of the Soma juice (10-?-?). He alone has the epithet śucipā ('drinker of the pure Soma'); once this epithet is used of Indra and Vāyu together. Vāyu grants fame, offspring, horses, cows, gold and so on (2-?-? and ?). He destroys enemies (4-?-?); he is prayed to protect the weak (1-?-?)."

"Vāta, another name of the wind, is derived from the root vā; in the sūkta (10-168) this description is given: scattering everything, making a loud noise and raising dust, he moves in the sphere of the air; he does not rest even for a day; he, born at the beginning, is the friend of the water; his birthplace is not known. This deity goes wherever he likes; his sound is heard by all, but no one has seen him (compare 1-164-?). He is the breath of the deities (compare 7-?-?; 10-?-?); oblations are made to him in sacrifices."

"Like Rudra, Vāta also gives herbs to people and increases life; for in his house there is the treasure of immortality (10-186-?). By his power of healing, the purifying power of Vāyu must be meant. All the works of the wind are related to the storm (4-?-?; 5-?-?; 10-?-?). Since the wind generally blows strongly before the rain falls and before sunrise, Vāta is said to produce red-coloured light (10-168-1) and to make Uṣas shine (1-134-3)."

original p. 600

"The speed of the wind is the basis for comparison with the speed of deities (4-?-?; 5-?-?; 6-?-?) and of imagined horses (1-?-?; 10-?-?). Its sound too is mentioned in many places (4-?-?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?)."

Parjanya

Parjanya. "In the Ṛgveda the position of this deity is very minor. Only three sūktas praise him; the name occurs only thirty times. In the Atharvaveda too (4-15) there is one sūkta addressed to Parjanya as deity; but the Ṛks in that sūkta are for the most part taken from the Ṛgveda. In the sentences that follow, Parjanya generally means only the familiar cloud. Rain-clouds (Parjanya) enliven the earth (1-164-51). The Maruts, even in the daytime, make darkness with water-bearing clouds (Parjanya) (1-38-9). They milk the clouds in both worlds (5-53-6). Bṛhaspati has been prayed to make the rain fall and to send the rain-cloud away (10-98-1 and 8). Soma flows like a rain-cloud (9-2-9), and the drops of Soma fall like rain from the cloud (9-22-2). In the Atharvaveda, in praising the cow called 'vaśā' which rains, it is said, 'your udder is Parjanya' (Av. 10-10-?). But in (Vāj. Saṃ. 13-?), Parjanya is used in the sense of 'thundering' (stanayitnu, hail), and in (Śat. Brā. 14-?-?-10) in the sense 'sky' (dyauh, Vāj. Saṃ. 12-?). It is hard to say in some contexts whether it is of the meaning 'excited' or of the meaning 'deity'. Like Parjanya, Agni's power gives an echo (8-?-?). Cows that have been awakened by Parjanya bow down (2-103-1). That Parjanya means a deity is clearly seen in many sentences. In such contexts he is called by the name cloud, hailstone, arrow, a skin of water and so on (5-83-? and 7; 2-?-?). To some extent the deity Parjanya is described as an animal such as a bull. He is a pot with fast-flowing quick drops, firmly pressed down (5-83-1; compare 5-83-2 and 7; Av. 4-15-1). The water that comes from the thundering water-bull and flows with a sound delights the earth (Av. 4-15-1). Sometimes Parjanya is a big cow; sometimes a cow giving milk; Parjanya uses his body as he likes (2-?-?)."

"Giving rain is the chief work of Parjanya. Moving about in a chariot made of water (5-83-?), he casts a skin of water and holds it face downward. As a charioteer drives horses, Parjanya shows the messengers of rain; when the rain falls, a lion's roar is heard from afar. Pouring rain, the thundering Parjanya comes like our heavenly father (Asura)..."

original p. 601

"(5-83-5 and 6). He is prayed to pour rain (2-?-?), and after pouring to stop (5-83-10). Parjanya and the Maruts pour rain. While subject to Mitra and Varuṇa (5-63-3 to 6), he many times, it is said, makes the arbhaṭi ('stir') (5-83). Making that stir, he uproots trees, Piśācas, evil-doers, everyone. The whole world fears this weapon of his (5-83-2). He and Vāta, the two, are the ones who use that weapon (10-66-10). Hail too is a little connected with him. When Parjanya enlivens the earth with seeds, the wind blows and hail strikes (5-83-4). Parjanya, together with hail, thunders in the ocean (Av. 19-?-?)."

"Because he gives rain, Parjanya is the cause of the growth of crops. When he casts seed on the earth, plants rise up. All kinds of plants are under his sphere of action; for the sake of nourishment he generates plants (5-83-1, 4 and 10; compare 6-?-?; Av. 4-15-3, 5 and 13; 7-?-?). He is the one who makes plants thrive and bear fruit; protected by that deity, crops give good fruit (7-101-1 and 3). By his action, tubers and grass grow (7-?-?; 5-?-?; compare Av. 1-?-?; 1-?-?; 19-?-?). Parjanya places the embryo not only in plants but also in cows, mares and women (7-102-2) and is prayed to for fruitfulness (5-83-2; compare 6-?-?). He is a bull that makes everything fruitful; the soul of all moving and unmoving things in the universe is in him (7-101-6; compare 1-?-?). The king who rules the whole world and is wholly independent; in him all creatures and the three worlds are placed. In him the threefold water flows (7-101-2, 4 and 5). Because of this generative power the epithet janitā ('father') is used of him many times (7-101-?; 9-?-?; Av. 4-?-?). He is our heavenly father (asuraḥ pitā) (5-83-6)."

"The earth is hinted to be his wife (5-83-?; 7-101-?). In the Atharvaveda (12-1-12) the earth is the mother and Parjanya the father; elsewhere (10-10-?) it is plainly said that vaśā is his wife. In being called a bull, and in relation to thunder, hail and rain, Parjanya is like Dyaus (10-?-?; 2-?-?; 2-?-?). In one place Parjanya is the son of Dyaus (7-102-1). Parjanya himself generates a calf (a young one); this is the sprout of plants (7-101-1; compare 5-83-1). This calf may be hail or Soma. In one place Parjanya is said to be the father of Soma (9-82-3), and that it grew by Parjanya (9-113-3)."

"Parjanya has a connection with many other deities, but the connection is greater with Vāta. Apart from being once named with Agni, Vāta is mentioned as a paired deity chiefly with Parjanya. The Maruts too are praised along with Parjanya (5-?-?; 5-?-?); they praise Parjanya (Av. 4-?-?). In two mantras Agni is praised with him (6-?-?)

original p. 602

³ "...and 6-?-?). Parjanya, the giver of rain, and Indra have many common qualities (8-6-1). The same part of Nature is the basis of both deities; in the case of Parjanya this is more clear."

"The derivation of this word is not clear. In the Ṛgveda, in this form, both a cloud (a word of conventional meaning) and the deity who presides over the cloud are intended. In the Brāhmaṇas too both these senses seem to be in use. In the Mahābhārata, Indra and Parjanya are conceived as one."

The Waters (Āpaḥ)

Āpaḥ.

"Four sūktas (7-49 and 6-52; 10-9 and 30) and some more Ṛks praise the water. In this way, along with other deities, in every other mantra its praise is also seen. Personification is mostly at the beginning: ideas are found of the Waters as mothers, as women who, in the form of young wives, come to the sacrifices and grant boons and favours, as female deities. The goddesses follow the path of the deities (2-?-?). Holding the vajra-weapon, he made a way for the water to flow for Indra (2-?-?; 2-?-?), and they never transgress his commands (2-?-?). Even the commands of Savitṛ are within the sway of water (2-?-?). They came from the heaven-world; they flow in channels; the ocean is their place of going (7-49-2). It is held (10-?-?) that waters are in the place where Mitra and Varuṇa and the other deities are. They are at the side of Sūrya, and Sūrya is with them (1-23-17). Varuṇa moves among them, looking at the truth and falsehood of men (7-49-3). In the Nighaṇṭu the water is counted among the deities of the earth (Nir. 5-1)."

"It is said many times that Agni made his home in the water. Agni entered the water (2-?-?); one form of Agni has the name 'Apāṃ napāt' ('son of water'). The waters, themselves mothers, give birth to Agni (10-?-?; 10-?-?; compare Av. 1-?-?). The water-goddesses are mothers (10-?-?; 10-?-?); wives to the world; equal in age and birth (10-?-?). They are prayed, as loving mothers, to give auspicious things (10-?-?). They create things moving and unmoving; their motherliness is shown in them most (6-?-?)."

"Water purifies [men] and makes them clean; those deities remove impurity. The worshipper comes out of the water pure and holy [10-?-?]. They are prayed to purify from sins connected with bad conduct, violence, defilement and untruth [1-?-?; 10-?-?]. They are removers of disease [6-?-?]; they grant long life, herbs and the like. Among the herbs is immortality too [10-?-? onward; 1-?-? onward]. In the house it guards the health of man [Hi. Gṛ. Sū. 2-?-?]. They grant the best things, wealth, and half of the body and immortality [10-?-?]. Their help and favour is prayed for at every step"

original p. 603

"[2-?-?; 7-49-? onward; 10-9 (the Neṣa-sūkta) and 10-30-11]; seated on the sacred grass together with Apāṃ napāt, they are invited to receive the Soma offering [10-30-? and 13]."

"A connection of honey with water is stated. These mothers make honey flow along with their milk [1-?-?]. In the waves of water there is much honey. This water mixed with ghee became Indra's drink and produced intoxication in him [2-?-? and ?]. Apāṃ napāt is prayed to give Indra boundless strength and to favour him with honey-mixed water [10-30-?]. They have been asked to send waves, rich in honey, which give delight to the deities, for Indra; for Indra released the water from its bondage. The wave makes intoxication, and it is Indra's drink; it is produced in the sky [10-30-? onward]. In some of these sentences the sense is that water itself is Soma or is mixed with Soma. In other contexts the water used to prepare the Soma juice may be intended. When mixed with ghee, milk and honey, favourable to the priests, they become well-prepared vessels of Soma juice for Indra [10-30-?]. As a young man is glad on seeing young women, Soma delights in the water. He approaches the water as a lover. They are the maidens standing with heads bowed before the young man [10-30-? onward]."

Deities of the Earth (Bhūmiya devategaḷu)

Rivers (Nadigaḷu)

"Like the water of heaven, the river deities too hold an important place. One whole sūkta [10-75] praises the river Sindhu. In it, the fifth Ṛk praises the tributaries of the Sindhu. In the sixth Ṛk many more rivers are named as its tributaries. In another sūkta [3-33] the pair of rivers Vipāś and Śutudri are praised."

"Of all the other rivers the river Sarasvatī has the greater importance. Although in this context the feeling of deity is much greater, the close kinship between the deity and the rivers is always borne in mind. Three sūktas and many solitary Ṛks praise this river. Sarasvatī, Sarayū and the Sindhus are great rivers [10-?-?]; Gaṅgā, Yamunā, Sarasvatī, Śutudri, Paruṣṇī and some more known and unknown, 21 rivers in all, are spoken of [10-75-5]. The matter of kings and people living on the bank of the Sarasvatī is raised [2-?-?; 8-?-?]. Sarasvatī is the greatest of all rivers in glory; she has abundant water, and she is the purest of all rivers. She comes down from the sea of the sky [2-?-?, ?]"

original p. 604

"[compare 6-61-11]. With huge waves she bursts the mountain peaks and carries them off. Her deep stream moves with a roar, swallowing with force [6-61-2 and 8]. She is prayed to give her milk generously to the greatest among the great and to the quickest among the quick [6-61-14]. She is begged to flow to new places [6-61-14]. She has seven sisters and she has seven forms [6-61-10 and 12]. She is the mother of rivers, one of the seven rivers [2-?-?]. Among the rivers and the deities she is the best mother [2-41-16]. She has the name Pāvīravī [daughter of the lightning] and is the wife of a hero [6-?-?]. She strides over the regions of the earth, the vast sky and the three dwellings [6-61-11 and 12]. There is an invocation to come from the sky, from the great mountain, to the sacrificial hall [3-?-11]. From these three sentences, as is said of Gaṅgā in the Purāṇas, a birth in the heaven-world is suggested for Sarasvatī too. In one place she has the title Asūryā ('without the sun', a goddess [2-?-?]). In the chariot of the deities of the Fathers, together with them, that goddess comes and adorns the sacred grass [10-?-? and 8]; and in the two Ṛks that follow [10-?-? and 11] the river itself is intended, so the river-goddess is intended here too."

"She herself purifies [1-3-10]; she is called 'flowing, coming', because she runs with her flows [6-?-?]; she is prayed to bestow strength together with the giving of wealth, children and immortality [10-30-12]. She gives strength and children [2-?-?] and is joined with the deities who help in obtaining children [10-?-?]. She gave a son named Divodāsa to Vadhryaśva [6-61-1]. Her breasts, always unfailing, bring every kind of wealth [compare Ait. Brā. 4-?]. She is a giver of wealth, prosperity and nourishment [2-?-?; 8-?-?; 7-?-?; 10-?-? and 8], and many times is called Subhagā ('fortunate'). As a mother (Ambā) she makes the unknown famous [2-?-?]; she makes devotion to her worshippers grow and increases it [1-?-? and ?; 2-?-?; 6-?-?]. She is invoked together with the deities connected with praise [2-?-?; 10-?-?]. She destroys those who revile the deities; she is fierce and the slayer of Vṛtra [6-?-? and ?]. But she protects those who worship her and destroys their enemies [7-?-? and ?; 3-?-?; 8-?-?]."

"Sarasvatī is invoked together with many other deities. She is praised specially together with the Marut deities, apart from Pūṣan and Indra [3-?-?;]"

"6-?-?; 6-?-?; 6-?-?. She follows them [3-?-?] or is placed together with them as their friend. She is also joined with the Aśvins [2-?-?]. When the Aśvins helped Indra, Sarasvatī poured out his drink [10-?-?]. When the deities performed a sacrifice, the Aśvins, by their medical skill, and Sarasvatī, by her speech, gave Indra vitality [Vāj. Saṃ. 19-?]. Sarasvatī is the wife of the Aśvins [Vāj. Saṃ. 19-?]. In the Āprī-sūktas, in the eighth and ninth Ṛks, she is joined many times with Ilā and Bhāratī; the idea is that the three together form one deity-group; at times Mahī and Hotrā too are joined. This combination may indicate the purity of Sarasvatī. On the bank of Sarasvatī and Dṛṣadvatī, Agni was kindled [3-23-4]. The seers performed sacrifices on the bank of Sarasvatī (Ait. Brā. 2-19)."

"In the Ṛgveda, nothing is said of Sarasvatī other than that she is a river-deity. But in the Brāhmaṇas, Sarasvatī is the presiding deity of speech (Śat. Brā. 2-5-1-?; Ait. Brā. 3-1-10); in the Purāṇas and elsewhere she is the presiding goddess of knowledge and eloquence, and the wife of Brahmā."

"Which river the Sarasvatī river is, is not said clearly. Some Western scholars think that Sarasvatī must be a great river (probably the Indus). Others say that it must be the small river in the Madhyadeśa which, now sunk in the sand and no longer reaching the sea, was formerly a big river that reached the ocean. Some also say that Sarasvatī is a tributary of the Śutudri."

"Apart from the praise of Sarasvatī, in the second and third Ṛks of one sūkta, one deity named Sarasvat is praised; there, wives are indicated. Progeny, protection and prosperity are prayed for [7-96]."

Pṛthivī

Pṛthivī. "Pṛthivī (Bhūmi) is generally praised as a paired deity with the sky-deity. Only a small sūkta of three Ṛks praises Pṛthivī alone [5-84]. In the Atharvaveda there is a large sūkta addressed to Pṛthivī as deity [Av. 12-1]. Personification is very small; all the characteristics of the deity are physical. There are many high places. She bears the weight of the mountains; she is the support of the trees of the forests (kṣamā). She makes the earth fruitful; she gives rain; she is great, firm and endowed with light."

"Pṛthivī means 'the broad one'. Indra lifted up and held the earth, and spread it out (Patrathak. 3-?-?). In other places too (Tai. Saṃ. 2-1-5; Tai. Brā. 1-1-3-?) the word pṛthivī is derived from the root pṛth ('to spread')."

original p. 606

¹ "...It is said that Pṛthivī is the mother Pṛthivī, of loving nature, and that the dead man goes to her lap (10-18-10). Whenever she is mentioned together with the sky-deity, Pṛthivī is generally called 'mother'."

Agni

Agni.

"Since in the Vedas Agni is the chief object of all the mantras connected with rites, Agni is the foremost among the deities of the earth. Among the deities of the Vedas, after Indra, the one that holds the prominent place is Agni. More than two hundred sūktas, and many more portions of sūktas, praise Agni."

"Since fire is a very tangible thing, the attribution of human nature began very early. The whole description of Agni's limbs reflects the various parts of the sacrificial fire. His back is made of ghee (3-?-?; etc.), his face too (3-1-18; etc.), and he has a beautiful tongue (1-?-?). Ghee itself is his hair, flames are his hair (8-?-?; 1-?-?; etc.), or his locks are tawny (3-?-?) and his beard tawny (5-?-?). He has the cūpāda (the flaming jaws) (6-?-?; etc.) or burning jaws (1-?-?; etc.), golden (5-?-?) or shining teeth, and iron-like teeth (10-?-?). In one place (4-1-11) it is said that he has no feet and no head; but elsewhere he has a burning head (2-?-?) or three heads and seven rays (1-?-?; 3-?-?). He is 'faced on all sides' (3-?-?; etc.). His tongue is stated in many places (8-?-?; etc.). He has three (3-?-?) or seven (Vāj. Saṃ. 17-?) tongues. His horses too have seven tongues (3-?-?), and each of these seven has a name. Ghee is Agni's eye (3-?-?); his tongue (1-?-?) and his thousand eyes and thousand horns (6-?-?). He has many arms, which are always for the honour of men (1-?-?). He is an archer (4-?-?) or is compared with an archer (1-?-?). He sounds his flame like an iron axe (6-?-?)."

"In many places Agni is compared to various animals; generally, this is to indicate his various works, and not to describe his form. At every step he is called a bull (1-?-?; etc.): a bull of stout body, very strong (3-?-?). Therefore he roars (10-?-?). He is full of seed (4-?-?); he has horns (5-?-?; 6-?-?), and he whets those horns (8-?-?) and shakes them. Because he has them, he is difficult to hold (1-140-6), and so on. It is said many times that he was a calf (karu) when born"

original p. 607

"[3-?-?]. In many places Agni is compared with a horse (1-?-?; etc.) or called a horse (1-163-?; 6-?-?). The tail with which he strikes like a horse must be his flame (2-?-?). Agni, purified by the sacrificers, is compared to a well-groomed horse (1-?-?; etc.). Those who perform the sacrifice drive him like a horse (3-?-?), excite him and make him move (2-?-?). Agni is the horse that is wished to be controlled by those who bring it under their will and wish to go as they please (2-?-?; 3-?-?). He is made ready as the horse that carries the gods (3-?-?). In the sacrificial halls they have joined Agni to the sacrificial post (2-?-?) or, in the rite that is a limb of the sacrifice, to the post (1-?-?). To carry the oblation to the deities they yoke Agni (the horse) (10-?-?). He is compared to a horse that neighs (3-?-?), or he himself is called a neighing horse (1-?-?). He is like a victorious horse (8-?-?), or helps people to escape from distress (4-?-?). Besides these, Agni is described like a bird. He is the eagle of the sky (2-?-?) and a bird of the world of deities (1-?-?). He who dwells in the water is like a swan-bird (4-?-?). As a bird builds a nest on a tree, Agni too controls the forest (1-?-?; 6-?-?; 10-?-?). He has wings (1-?-?; 2-?-?) and his going is flight (6-?-?; 6-?-? etc.). He swiftly flies and approaches the deities (10-?-?). Once he is described as a serpent that hisses (1-?-?-?)."

"In many places Agni is compared even to lifeless things. Like Sūrya, Agni too is like gold (2-?-?; 2-?-?); when asked, he is like a hand-held lamp [?] (2-?-?; 1-?-?). He himself is a chariot (4-?-?) or like a chariot (1-?-?); he brings wealth and the like (1-?-?; 3-?-?) and in battle is the one to be taken to meet the opponent (1-?-?). Like a full chariot driven by others, he is also driven to the sacrificial hall (10-?-?). He is likened to wealth (1-?-?; 1-?-?) or to wealth gained from the father (1-?-?-?)."

"Forest (2-?-?) or ghee (2-?-?) is his food, and the ghee mixed with butter is his drink (2-?-?; 10-?-?). He is nourished by the tuppa (ghee) poured into his mouth (3-?-?; 5-?-?; etc.) and uses oil (Av. 1-?-?). He eats the forests with his green grass and makes them black with his tongue (1-?-?; 6-?-?; 10-?-?). He eats everything (8-?-?). He takes food that gives nourishment three times a day (4-?-?; 1-?-?; 2-?-?; compare). So that the deities may receive the oblations, Agni is the mouth and the tongue (2-?-?; 1-?-?); the ladles that give the deities food are his flames (1-?-?; 10-?-?). But especially he is the one who has been prayed to receive the oblations (3-?-? onward; 3-?-? onward) and, standing erect, with his body turned towards the deities, he comes forward to receive the ghee that has been offered (1-?-?). Though ordinarily Soma or ghee alone is his food, he is also invited to drink Soma at times. In such contexts he is invited along with the other deities (1-?-?, 10; 1-?-?, 1-?-?, 3-?-?, 3-?-?). He has the epithet Somagopa ('protector of Soma') (10-?-? and ?). He is begged to come to the sacrifice (10-?-?) and, having come, to adorn the seat of darbha grass with the deities (3-?-?; 5-?-?; 5-?-?; 2-?-?; 2-?-?; compare)."

original p. 608

"The qualities of the light of Agni have been discussed at much length, as is natural. His bright lustre (3-?-?; etc.); flames that blaze (6-?-?); shining flames (2-?-?; etc.); clear radiance (8-?-?); shining colour (1-?-?; 5-?-?). His form is of golden colour (4-?-?; 10-?-?). He shines like Sūrya (1-?-?; 2-?-?). His lustre is like the rays of Uṣas, of Sūrya or of lightning (10-?-? and ?). He shines also at night (5-?-?). Like Sūrya, he makes darkness fly by his rays (8-?-?). He is the remover of darkness, and he can see even in the darkness of night (1-?-?; 2-?-?). Blazing, he opens the doors of darkness (3-?-?). When Agni is born, the earth and the sky that were covered with darkness become visible (1-?-?). At the time of dawn men bring Agni; of Agni alone it is said that he is the 'awakened at dawn' (upabudh)."

"But the path of Agni's journey and the rims of his chariot are all black (1-?-?; 3-?-?; 6-?-?; 8-?-?), and his horses draw him with black ridges (1-?-?). Roused by the wind, he swallows the forests with force (1-?-?); invading the forests, he cuts even the roots of the earth (1-?-?); like a razor he shaves the earth's hair (10-?-?)."

"His flames roar like the waves of the sea (1-?-?). His sound is like the sound of the wind, or like the thunder of the sky (3-?-?; 2-?-?), like the sky (10-?-?), like Parjanya (8-?-?) or like the roar of a lion (2-?-?). When he invades forest trees he rages like a bull, and at the sound of his grass-destroying tusks the birds are all afraid (1-?-? and ?). To bring Agni under control is as easy as to bring under control the host that attacks the Maruts or the guardians of the regions, or the hail."

original p. 609

"Agni burns upward-faced (6-?-?). Stirred by the wind, his flames lick toward the sky (8-?-?). His smoke is thick and his flame cannot be held (8-?-?). The red smoke goes to the sky [2-?-?; 2-?-?]; the smoke spreads in the sky (3-?-?). Like one who sets up a pillar, Agni supports the sky with smoke (4-?-?). Striking the clouds with his upper part, he shines together with the rays of Sūrya (2-?-?). With his tongue he covers the atmosphere (8-?-?). The word dhūmaketu ('banner of smoke') is used of Agni at every step."

"Agni moves in a chariot (3-?-?) of the mass of light of hail, shining (1-?-?), glittering (5-?-?), blazing (10-?-?), golden (4-?-?) or beautiful (4-?-?). To it two or more horses are yoked. Those horses have the ghee as their back (1-?-?); they are tawny (4-?-?), beautiful (4-?-?), of all forms (10-?-?), swift (3-?-?), driven by the wind (1-?-?), and yoked by the ibhyā mantra (1-?-?). For the calling of the deities, Agni yokes them (1-?-?; 3-?-?; 6-?-?; 6-?-?). He is the charioteer of the sacrifice (10-?-?; etc.; 1-?-? etc.). In a chariot yoked with horses he brings the deities (3-?-?); in that same chariot he himself comes (3-?-?; 2-?-?) or comes before them (10-?-?). To the sacrifice he brings Varuṇa, from the sky Indra, and from the sphere of the air the Maruts (10-?-?)."

"The sky-deity is the progenitor of Agni; it is he who generated Agni (10-?-?). Agni is the child of the sky (6-?-?; 6-?-?) and is said to have been born from the belly of that 'Asura' (3-?-?). Many times (3-?-?; 3-?-?; 3-?-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-?) it is said that he is the son of Heaven and Earth. Also that he is the son of Tvaṣṭṛ and of the water-deities, and of the sky and the earth (10-?-?; 10-?-?). Or that he is the son of Tvaṣṭṛ (1-?-?) or of the water-deity (10-?-?; Av. 1-?-?). The Uṣas deities gave birth to Agni, Sūrya and the sacrifices (2-?-?); or Indra and Viṣṇu to Agni, Sūrya and the Uṣases [6-?-?]; or Indra generated Agni between the two stones (3-?-?). Agni is also called the son of Ilā (3-?-?) or the sprout of the sacrifice (6-?-?). Sometimes Agni is made to be born by the deities (6-?-?; 8-?-?), for the sake of 'the Ārya' (1-?-?), or for the sake of men (10-?-?), and was placed among men (1-?-?; 3-?-?; 6-?-?; 8-?-?). Agni is the father of the deities (1-?-?). It is clear that these different notions, at first sight, have arisen from differences of viewpoint."

"The histories connected with Agni do not tell much about him; the one chief work he does as the sacrificial fire; apart from this, something is gathered about his birth, special forms and dwelling-places."

original p. 610

² "The differing views that are known about his birth are not really contradictory. According to the places of birth they have been described in different ways. Churned from the fire-sticks (araṇi), he is born on earth every day (3-29-?; 3-?-?; 2-?-?; 10-?-?). In this context the fire-sticks themselves are his mother and father; the upper fire-stick is counted as the father and the lower alone as the mother (3-29-3); or, since it is said that he has two mothers, both fire-sticks are his mothers (1-31-2). The two pieces of wood generate him like a child that has just been born; but it is difficult to hold the child (5-9-3 and 4). From the dry piece of wood, the deity is born together with life (1-68-2). As soon as he is born, the child devours his parents (10-79-4). Agni is born of a mother who gives no milk (10-115-1). Because men exert themselves in this churning, men bring Agni to birth (1-?-?; 4-1-?; 2-1-?); the ten fingers, ten maidens, are suitable for turning the upper piece of wood (1-95-2). This upper piece of wood has the name pramantha (Karma-pradīpa 1-?)."

"Much force must be used for churning out fire. Hence Agni has the epithet 'sahasāḥ sūnuḥ', 'putraḥ' ('son of strength'). The same idea is confirmed by the next sentence: 'Churned strongly by men, Agni is born on the earth' (6-48-5). In one place (Mai. Saṃ. 1-6-10) it is said that Agni should not be churned before sunrise. Because he is born every day, the epithets 'yaviṣṭha', 'yaviṣṭhya' ('the youngest') are apt. Each of his births is opposed to the previous birth (3-1-20). The aged Agni is born again as a youth (10-?-?). In this sense he has no age (1-?-?); his new light is as if it were the old (6-?-?). Like other deities he is young; but also he is old. He was the first to perform sacrifice (3-?-?); so there is no sacrificer older than he (5-?-?). After the earliest Uṣases Agni shone (1-?-?). The part played by Agni in the sacrifices of the ancients is spoken of at every step (8-?-?; etc.). In one sentence the two quite opposed epithets 'purātana' ('ancient') and 'bahuvidha-kartā' ('doer of many kinds') are seen together (10-4-1 and ?)."

"In general it is said that Agni was born in the forest (6-?-?; 10-?-?); that he is the sprout of trees (3-1-14; 3-?-?), or that he is shared among the plants (10-1-?). He has entered all trees, or makes effort to obtain them (8-?-?), and is the sprout of trees (1-?-?) or of the trunks of the plants (3-1-?). Since Agni is born from the mutual rubbing of trees, it may be said so."

original p. 611

"There is another ground for the idea that Agni is in the earth. Agni is called 'prthivyā nābhiḥ' ('navel of the earth') (1-?-?). In all the places where these words are used for Agni the reference must be to the altar made for the sacrificial fire. In Vedic rites the hollow on the northern altar is called 'nābhi'. Here Agni is established. This name may also have come because all the deities have made Agni the centre of their immortality (3-?-?). Twice in the Ṛgveda the word 'vedisad' ('one seated on the altar') is used, and in both places it is applied to Agni."

"It has been said many times that Agni was born in the water of the sky. 'Apām napāt' has become a separate deity. Agni is also the embryo of water (3-1-13 and ?); he blazes in the water itself (10-?-?; Av. 13-1-?); a bull raised in the lap of water (10-8-1); he is surrounded by the ocean (8-?-?). He has come down from the abode of Dhanu (the island of clouds) (1-?-?; 1-?-?), the shining lightning in the sphere of the air full of splendour (6-8-?). In such sentences Agni in the form of lightning must be intended. In some parts of the eighth maṇḍala there is a story that Agni, hidden in water and plants, was afterwards found by the deities (the sūktas 10-51, 52, 53 and 124). The same subject is handled in the Brāhmaṇas. In the Atharvaveda a distinction is made between the fire in the water, the fire of lightning and the fire of heaven (Av. 3-?-1 and 2; 6-?-?). The fires in the water settled on the earth (Av. 12-1-?). Agni has made his dwelling in all streams (6-?-?; compare Āp. Śrau. Sū. 6-?-?). In contexts of pools and ponds the Agnis who live in water are praised. As the sky is for Sūrya, water is the dwelling-place of Agni (3-?-?; Av. 14-1-?). Together with trees and plants, water is counted as Agni's dwelling (3-1-1; etc.)."

"Many times it is said that Agni was born in the atmosphere. In the loftiest part of the sky he was born (1-143-2; 6-8-2). Though in the form of Agni he is not there, he is hidden in the atmosphere (10-5-2). From that region, from very far, he was brought by Mātariśvan. Here Agni must be the Agni of lightning. The lightning-Agni is that which comes from the atmosphere and the water (Av. 3-?-? and 8; 8-1-11); in a Brāhmaṇa (Ait. Brā. 2-?-?) it is said that he exists in both the heaven and the water (divya and apsumat). The word vidyut ('lightning') occurs about 30 times together with 'Agni'. In all these contexts it is compared with Agni and understood as different from Agni. This may suggest a difference between the deity and the natural phenomenon. That Agni comes down from the atmosphere to the earth may be applied to the fire that comes from lightning. And the lightning shows the non-difference of fires. Man obtains Agni by the favour of the deities, and it was brought by Mātariśvan and so reaches the hand of man."

original p. 612

"[Having said this, it became a settled view that Agni is of the heaven-world. In the same sense Agni may be said to be the guest of men.]"

"Further, in some sentences Agni is reckoned equal to Sūrya; that Sūrya is a form of Agni is the idea of the Vedas. Chief of the whole sky, rising at the time of dawn, Agni becomes the light of the sky (3-?-?). He is born at the end of the sphere of the air, and sees all things (10-?-? and ?). He was born as the Sūrya who rises at dawn (10-?-?). When Sūrya sets he enters Agni and is born again from him (Ait. Brā. 8-?-? and ?). In all the places where it is said that Agni shines with the light or the rays of Sūrya, the likeness of Agni and Sūrya must be intended (5-?-?; 2-?-?); likewise where it is said that when man bears Agni, the deities also make him shine (6-?-?), or that Agni shines in the heaven-world (3-?-?; 8-?-?). In some contexts it is hard to say whether it applies to lightning or to Sūrya. To speak of a mildness (saumyatva) or a difference of form in Agni, Sūrya is not just a general natural event. Generally the comparison of Sūrya with Agni is seen to be prominent. When Sūrya is lost sight of, the mind runs to Agni (1-?-?). The other forms of Agni too are sometimes intended; hence in what context which form of Agni, or which kind of the blazing one, is intended cannot be said for certain."

"Because various kinds of birth are said for Agni, three kinds of characteristics are stated for Agni. This triple form of Agni is of great importance. Agni has three kinds of birth (1-?-?; 4-1-?). The deities made him threefold (10-?-?). He is a light of three forms (3-?-?); he has three heads (1-?-?), three tongues, three bodies and three places (3-20-2). The epithet 'tripastya' ('having three abodes') is generally used; 'trisadhastha' (8-?-?) is used of Agni alone. These three forms or places do not always come in the same order. Agni was born first from the sky, a second time (from men) from us, and a third time in the water (10-45-1). The places of Agni (sky, earth and water) are in the same order (8-?-?; 10-2-?; 10-?-?). But in one place (1-95-3) his three places are said to be the ocean, the sky and the water. Sometimes it is the earthly Agni who comes first. He was born first in houses, then in the lower part of the sky and in the sphere of the air (4-1-11); the immortal deities created three flames of Agni: one they placed on earth for the use of men; the remaining two went to another world (3-2-9). The Agni of the earth (Pṛthivī) is in living beings; the Agni of the sphere of the air in the water; and the Agni of the heaven-world in Sūrya (Āp. Śrau."

"Sū. 5-?-?). Pṛthivī, in another form, becomes the third Agni. Agni is one of three brothers; of them the middle one is the lightning, and the third one has ghee as his back (1-164-1; compare 1-?-?). Agni shines from the sky; the atmosphere is his own; men bear Agni, who gives the deities what is offered and who expects ghee (Av. 13-?-?; 13-?-?; 11-?-?)."

"In some places it is said that the third form is the best (10-?-?; 5-?-?; 1-?-?, and so on). According to Śākapūṇi, the three forms of Agni mentioned in (10-88-10) are in earth, sky and heaven; and, as one Brāhmaṇa says, the Agni in the heaven-world is Sūrya (Nir. 7-?; compare Nir. 12-?). The three divisions of Agni, and the three deity-groups Sūrya, Vāyu and Agni (8-?-?), and the group of three deities Sūrya, Indra and Agni mentioned in other Vedas, must be one and the same. Within the Agni-group the middle Agni is given the name Vaidyutāgni ('lightning-fire') in the Brāhmaṇas. In the remaining two deity-groups, instead of the lightning-fire, Vāta (or Vāyu) and Indra are included. In sacrifices, besides the ordinary fire, they perform homa and the rest keeping three other fires. The idea of the triad of fires (agnitraya) may be applied to this division. It has become the custom to pray to Agni, 'call the deities and sit in three places' (3-?-?; 5-11-?; 10-?-?)."

"Following the division of the world into heaven and the mortal world, it is also common to speak of two births for Agni. He alone is called 'dvijanmā' ('twice-born') (1-60-1; 1-140-?; 1-?-?; 3-?-?). Upper (ūrdhva) and lower (adhah) births (2-?-?) and high and low dwellings (1-?-?) are also said. It is said that the Agni of the earth and the Agni of heaven are always opposed (3-?-?; 10-?-?); but in one single place (8-?-?) a difference in Agni's births in heaven and the water is mentioned. Agni, being invoked from his lofty dwelling-place, comes to the lower worlds (8-?-?). Having come from there, he enters the trees (1-?-?). Agni comes down by means of rain and enters the plants; from those plants he is again produced. Like water, Agni too comes to the earth and again rises upward (1-?-?). Relying on this two-fold nature of Agni, Agni should perform homa for himself (10-?-?) and carry Agni across (2-?-?), or he should come down to the sacrificial hall with the deities (3-?-?, and so on). Not only men bore Agni: the deities too bore him — and this too supports the idea that this Agni is two-fold (6-?-?). The Agni of the heaven-world too must have been kindled by someone."

original p. 614

"...and since 'the deities too must perform sacrifice like men' (Ait. Brā. 2-?-), it must have come into usage that Agni is kindled separately by the deities and by men."

"From another point of view too Agni can be said to have various births (10-5-1). The variety of Agni is established by the fact that he is borne in many hearths on earth. In every household, in the houses and dwellings, Agni is placed (4-?-?-; 4-?-?-; 5-?-?-; etc.). Born in many places (3-?-?-), he has many bodies (10-?-?-); though kindled in many places, he is but one (3-?-?-). Though blazing in many places, he is but one (Vāl. 10-?-). As branches depend on a tree, many fires depend on him (8-?-?-). Therefore he is invoked together with other fires (2-?-?-; 8-?-?-; 8-?-?-; 10-?-?) or with all fires (1-?-?-; 6-?-?-)."

"If one examines the various statements about Agni's birth, one has to take the places in various ways. His light is in heaven, earth, atmosphere, water and plants (3-?-?-), or he is born in sky, water, stone, forest and plants (2-1-1). Still more such lists are found here and there (Av. 3-?-?-; 12-1-19; Āp. Śrau. Sū. 5-?-?-). Agni is in the mountain (1-?-?-; compare 6-?-?-): this must be the lightning hidden in the cloud. 'Agni was born of the stone' (2-?-?) or 'Indra made Agni between two stones' (2-?-?) — the saying is for this purpose; or it may refer to the making of fire from flint stone. When it is said that Agni is in men (10-5-1), or in beings, horses, birds, two-footed and four-footed creatures (Av. 3-?-?-; 12-?-?-; 13-?-?-; Tai. Saṃ. 4-?-?-), the fire of the stomach (jāṭharāgni) must be intended. It is no wonder that, as the support of life, the fire that pervades so much of Nature is called the root support of all things moving and unmoving (1-?-?; Av. 5-?-?)."

"This threefold nature of Agni has given room for the idea of three brothers (1-164-1), and the existence of Agni's elder brothers — many — rests on the countless homa fires (10-?-?). In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā they are said to be three (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?). For the gods there are four priests (hotṛs), of whom the first three died (Śat. ?-?): this too confirms the same point. In one place Varuṇa is said to be Agni's brother (4-1-2). In another story, both Indra and Agni are called twins (6-59-2). More than any other deity it is Indra who joins Agni. Apart from twice, it is Indra who is the paired deity with Agni (1-?-?, 1-?-?, 2-?-?, 8-?-?, etc.)."

original p. 615

"From the close kinship of Indra and Agni arise the statements that Agni split the mountain with his heat (8-?-?) and that he destroyed the faithless Paṇis (2-?-?). One whole sūkta (1-93) praises the pair Agni and Soma."

"In form, Agni is said to be equal to some other deities, especially to Mitra and Varuṇa (3-1-?; 3-5-?; 2-?-?). When he comes to the sacrifice Agni himself is Varuṇa (10-?-?). When Agni is born he becomes Varuṇa, and when kindled, Mitra (3-5-1). In the evening Agni is Varuṇa, at dawn he rises as Mitra; as Savitr he moves in the atmosphere; as Indra in the middle of the sky, on the pole, he lights up everything (Av. 13-3-13). In one place (3-1-? to ?) Agni is said to be equal to twelve deities other than the five goddesses. Taking many divine forms (3-?-?), he becomes one with many names (3-20-3). All the deities are contained in him (5-3-1); as the rim of a wheel encloses the spokes, Agni encloses all the deities (5-13-6)."

"The oldest work of Agni, of all these, is the driving away of evil Piśācas and the turning back or burning of sorcerers. That Agni has done these works is seen in the Veda. By his light Agni drives away the Piśācas (3-15-1; etc.); hence the epithet 'rakṣohā' ('destroyer of Rākṣasas') has been applied to him (10-?-?). Blazing, he swallows up with his iron teeth the sorcerers and the Piśācas, and burns them with his flame (10-87-3, 5 and 14); he guards the sacrifice with great care. He knows the lineages of the Mantra-sorcerers and destroys them all (Av. 1-?-?). In the task of driving away the Piśācas of the earth, though Indra, Bṛhaspati, the Aśvins and especially Soma are helpers to Agni, this work may be said to be Agni's. Just as in the works like the killing of Asuras, which suit Indra alone, Agni has an incidental share, here too, in the sūktas and in the ritual portions addressed to Indra and others, it is plain that the work of driving away and destroying the Piśācas is Agni's."

"There is no other deity who has as much influence on a man's life as Agni. Agni's relation with human dwellings is a peculiar one. The epithet gr̥hapati ('master of the house') applies to him alone. He dwells in every house (2-?-?); he never leaves the house (8-?-?). The epithet 'damūnāḥ' ('belonging to the work of the house') is used of Agni alone (1-60-4; etc.). In the triad of fires at the sacrifices the Āhavanīya and Dakṣiṇa fires are taken from the Gārhapatya fire. From place to place there is a taking and bringing of the sacrificial fire. Agni is borne around (4-?-?; 4-?-?); he makes a hundred forts round the oblation substances (4-?-?); round the place of sacrifice"

original p. 616

"he is carried three times with circumambulation (4-?-? and ?; and 4-?-?); as soon as he is freed from his parents (the fire-sticks), he is carried first to the east and then to the west (1-?-?)."

"Apart from the epithets mentioned before, Agni has the epithet 'guest of men'; he is the guest in every house (10-?-?); the first of the guests (5-?-?). Among the immortals he alone is the one who has settled among mortals (8-?-?). He is established, or has settled, in men's dwellings (3-?-?; 4-?-?). It is this Gārhapatya fire that has helped men to settle firmly each in his own house (3-1-12). He is a friend (3-?-?) and a protector (1-?-?) of those who settle in new places; in this context the name 'viśpati' ('lord of the settlements') is said of Agni alone."

"As said above, Agni is a friend to man (1-?-?), or a kinsman by marriage (1-?-?; etc.) or a relation (2-?-?; 6-?-?). He is called by his worshippers father (many times: 6-?-?; etc.), son (3-1-?), mother (6-1-?), brother (8-?-?; 10-?-?; etc.) and so on. So close a kinship shows that Agni is not only a means of sacrifice but a thing absolutely necessary for the everyday life."

"Since Agni is in human houses in this way, it is natural that the ancestors of men and Agni should have more kinship than other deities (1-?-?). The ancestors kindled him and praised him. The fires of Bharata (3-?-?; 2-?-?; etc.), Vadhryaśva (10-69-1), Devavāta (3-23-2), Divodāsa (6-?-?) and Trasadasyu (8-?-?) are mentioned. The lineages of the seers, by the authority of the mantra-seers, are said to be equal to Agni. Among them, some, Vasiṣṭha and others, may be spoken of as historical persons; the Aṅgirasas, Bhṛgu and others as imagined persons."

"In sacrifices too a close kinship is formed between Agni and man's everyday life. Agni not only accepts what has been offered by man, but also works as a go-between for heaven and earth. He is the one who gives to the deities the substances offered in homa; without him there would be no delight to the deities (2-?-?). He brings the deities to the sacrificial hall (3-?-?) and, taking the oblations, goes and delivers them to them (2-?-?). To devour the oblation substances (3-1-11; etc.) he seats them on the darbha seat (1-?-?; 8-?-?). He who knows the paths well (6-?-?) goes, on the two ways to earth (8-?-?) and to the proximity of the deities (10-?-?)."

original p. 617

"[that go ?]. For that reason he is always called the messenger (dūta); he knows the paths well and takes the sacrifice to another place (1-?-?) or begs it of all dwellings (4-?-?); he runs very swiftly (10-?-?) between earth and sky (4-?-?; 4-?-?; 10-?-?) or between the two peoples, the deities and men (4-?-? and ?). The deities (5-?-?; etc.) and men (10-?-?) appointed him havyavāha or havyavāhana ('carrier of oblations'). (This name has become fixed for Agni alone.) He makes the mantra uttered by the sacrificer known to the deities (1-?-?) or calls the deities to the sacrificial hall (4-?-?). These are his works. He is the messenger of the deities (6-?-?) and of Vivasvān (1-?-?; 4-?-?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?). One who knows the root and the root of the heavenly world, who accomplishes sacrifices, who calls the deities: such an Agni is more fitly said to be the messenger of men than of the deities. In another Veda (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?; 2-?-?), Agni is said to be the messenger of the deities, and Kāvya Uśanā or Daivya is said to be the messenger of the Asuras. In another place (Tai. Brā. 2-?-?) it is said that Agni, described as a messenger, is a path to go to the proximity of the deities, and that, going on that path, one can go to the very best places of heaven."

"Because it is said that Agni plays a very important part in accomplishing the works of sacrifice, the place that has been given to the priests among men has been given to Agni among the deities. Therefore he has the epithets ṛtvik, vipra, especially purohita, and so on. More than all these, Agni is called 'hotā' ('the praiser, the chief priest'). Agni is a hotṛ appointed by men (8-?-?; 10-?-?) and by the deities (6-?-?). Among all hotṛs he is the most beloved and the best (10-?-?; 10-?-?). He is named also Adhvaryu (3-?-?), and Brahmā, like Br̥haspati, Soma and Indra (6-?-?). In one way it may be said that he alone does all the works of the above-mentioned priests (hotṛ, adhvaryu, brahmā) and of others (6-?-?; 3-?-?; etc.). He is always begged to worship or honour the deities (3-?-?; 2-?-?; etc.), and in return the deities too are asked to worship Agni three times a day (3-?-?). He accomplishes the sacrifice or the work (3-?-?; 3-?-?), and with his special power he completes it with all its limbs (3-?-?); he makes the homas fragrant (10-?-?); he joins to the deities the oblations protected by him

(1-?-?). He is the father of the sacrifice (3-?-?), its king (4-?-?), its breaker (10-?-?), the one who looks after it (8-?-?) and is like a banner (3-?-?; 3-?-?; 6-?-?; 10-?-?). In a sūkta (10-?-?)..."

original p. 618

"...[In a sūkta (10-51) it is said that Agni, tired of his work as] carrier, left the sacrificial works, and that, when the share due from the deities had come, he agreed to work for men as chief priest (purohita). What is most prominent in Agni's character is his priesthood. As Indra is the chief warrior, Agni is the chief priest. It may be said that this form of Agni is of the itthaṃ-[?]... nature. The work of carrying the oblation is Agni's chief work. Later, in the Brāhmaṇas, a distinction is stated even between Agni the carrier of oblations and Agni the eater of raw flesh (kravyāda, one who burns dead bodies). In the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā (Vāj. Saṃ. 1-?; 19-?) three forms of Agni are stated: havyavāhana (one who carries the homa to the deities), kavyavāhana (one who joins to the Fathers what is given in rites for the dead) and saharākṣāḥ (one who is with Piśācas, Rākṣasas and the like)."

"Agni is a seer and a purohita (7-?-?); because he is the best of seers, he is kindled (3-?-?); a very merciful seer (6-?-?); the very first seer called Aṅgiras (1-?-?). Among the wise he is the divine wise one (asura, 3-?-?); the sacrifices are plainly known to him (10-?-?) and he knows all the rites (10-?-?). He sets right the mistakes that men make, who do not know the divine rules connected with sacrifice, being the knower of time (10-?-?). All the hidden places of the heaven-world are known to him (4-?-? and ?). By his own intellect he knows everything (10-?-?). He knows all (3-1-?; 10-?-?); as the felly encloses the spokes of a wheel, he has enclosed all (2-?-?). This omniscience is inborn in him (1-?-?). Words indicating omniscience, such as viśvavit ('knower of all'), viśvavedāḥ, kavi and kavikratu, are applied to him especially. Jātavedāḥ is explained (6-?-?) as 'one who knows all those who are born at all times.' This (jātavedas) is used about 130 times in the Ṛgveda of Agni alone. He knows the divine rules and the whole lineage (1-?-? and ?). All beings are known to him, and he can see all of them (3-?-?; 10-?-?). He hears all the praises addressed to him (8-?-?). Agni is also a giver of knowledge (6-?-?). Knowledge and praises arise from him (4-?-?). He is the giver of inspiration (10-?-?); he found the best of speech (3-?-?) and was the first to find the hymns (6-?-?). He is himself a speaker (6-?-?) and a singer."

"Agni is a great benefactor to his worshippers. He protects them by a hundred forts of iron (2-?-?; 2-?-?; 6-?-?; compare 1-?-?). He protects them from distress, or takes them across distress as one takes a ship across the ocean (3-?-?; 5-?-?; 2-?-?). To those who worship him as a guest he is a friend (4-?-?), and releases the worshippers from sorrow..."

original p. 619

"...(8-?-?). He protects him who brings oblations for him with effort (4-?-?). He looks after those who give him food and feed him with homa and the like, with thousands of eyes (10-?-?). He reduces his worshippers' enemies, like dry bladders, to ashes (4-?-?); he destroys their enemies as one fells trees (8-?-?; compare Av. 3-?-?, etc.). Therefore he is prayed to for help in battle (8-?-?) and goes at the head of the army as its leader (8-?-?). One protected and encouraged by Agni in a battle gets food as he wishes and is unconquerable (1-?-?). As branches come out of a tree, all boons come out of him (6-?-?). Agni, the master of boundless wealth, becomes the giver of lordship (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 1-?-?). All treasures are gathered in him (10-?-?) and he opens the door of treasures (1-?-?). All the wealth in heaven and earth (4-?-?) or in heaven, earth and ocean (2-?-?; 10-?-?) belongs to him. He draws rain from the sky (3-?-?) and appears to establish a river in the desert (10-?-?). For this very reason Agni is prayed to to free [people] from hunger, poverty, lack of progeny, enemies, Piśācas and the like. All that is obtained from Indra concerns war and battle-fields. But what is obtained from Agni is mostly concerned with the world. He forgives the sins committed through ignorance

(4-?-?; 2-?-?); he watches over [men] as one who is moved by Varuṇa's anger (4-1-4). Pleased with a son, he forgives even the fault done by the father and the mother (Av. 5-?-?; Tai. Brā. 2-?-?)."

"Agni is an Asura, a sovereign, and strong like Indra (2-?-?). His greatness is greater than the great sky (1-?-?). When he was born, he was greater than all the worlds he covered (3-3-10), or than heaven and earth (3-6-?; 10-?-?), and better than all the other deities (1-?-?). When he was hidden in the water, all the deities feared him and offered him honour (4-?-?). Varuṇa, Mitra, the Maruts and all the other deities praise and worship him (3-?-?; 3-?-?; 10-?-?). Agni accomplished ancient great deeds (2-?-?); hearing of his valorous deeds men tremble. In battle, he made room for the deities (1-?-?); he released them from the curse (2-?-?); he conquered thousands of men; he drove the Dasyu from the house and obtained light for the Ārya (2-?-?; 7-?-?). He encouraged the Āryas (8-?-?) and destroyed the Paṇis, who were wicked (2-?-?). Chiefly the epithet 'Vṛtrahā' ('slayer of Vṛtra'), which Indra alone ought to have, and 'Purandara' ('breaker of enemy forts, destroyer') are used about 2–3 times of Agni. For Agni's form of lightning such"

original p. 620

"deeds of valour are fitting; yet it is correct to say that these qualities were obtained from Indra."

"Though it is well known that Agni is the son of heaven and earth, he is also said to have created both of them (1-?-?; compare 2-?-?). His undestroyed rules are followed by both heaven and earth (3-?-?; 2-?-?). He spread out both worlds (3-?-?; 2-?-?) or spread them out like a hide (6-?-?). By his flame or smoke he supported the sky (3-?-?; 4-?-?). He has set the two worlds apart (6-?-?). By his mantras of truth he made heaven and earth firm (1-?-?). He is at the front of the world; or at night he is the master of the whole earth (10-?-?). He is master and also the chief of the sky (1-?-?; 6-?-?; 8-?-?). Knowing the limits by the wind, he touched by his greatness the ridge of the sky (6-?-?). He measured the regions of the atmosphere and of the heaven-world full of splendour (6-?-?). It is Agni who made Sūrya ascend the sky (10-?-?). That there is a peculiar kinship between the bearing of Agni on earth and the rising of the sun is clear. 'Here we kindle you (Agni); may your wonderful form be in the atmosphere' (3-?-?). In the Brāhmaṇas this idea is clearer still: before sunrise a man does homa in Agni, and so makes Sūrya rise; otherwise Sūrya would not rise at all (Śat. Brā. 2-?-?; Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?). In general it is said that sunrise and the kindling of fire take place at the same time. When Agni was born Sūrya became visible (4-?-?). Agni himself made the sky studded with stars (1-?-?). Everything that flies, walks, stands or moves he created (10-?-?). In these beings (3-?-?), in true things and in all living things, the embryo was placed by him; through him the earth and women became fruitful (10-?-?). Agni was the first to create men (8-?-?): in saying that the earth, sky, water and the like were made by him, this idea has also come in by the way; it is not said that he created men. Last of all, Agni is the giver of immortality (2-?-?), a protector (2-?-?), and grants it to mortals (1-?-?)."

"Some names of heavenly Agni, such as 'Apāṃ napāt', are counted as separate deities, and some have obtained partial personalities. The word Vaiśvānara occurs about 60 times (in five whole Ṛks and fourteen sūktas). In all contexts, according to the Anukramaṇī, Vaiśvānara-Agni is the deity. The word Vaiśvānara does not occur anywhere alone"

original p. 621

"[by itself]. Vaiśvānara means 'belonging to all men'; that is, this word may mean all forms of Agni. In the mantras addressed to Vaiśvānara-Agni there is the story of the heavenly Agni coming down to the earth (3-?-?; 6-?-?); and the usage 'Mātariśvan' is also for Vaiśvānara-Agni (3-?-?). In the Nirukta (7-?) Vaiśvānara is one of the names of Agni. In his explanation on this (Nir. 7-?) Yāska has written that the ancient ritualists thought Vaiśvānara-Agni meant Sūrya, and that Śākapūṇi thought it meant the fire that is now current. The fire in use now is named Vaiśvānara-Agni. It is he who is kindled for praise, homa and so on; only once, Yāska gives his own view, this name is used for the fires of the atmosphere and of the heaven-world. But in the books on Vedic ritual, Vaiśvānara is counted as one special form of Agni (Āś. Śrau. Sū. 1-?-?; Kā. Śrau. Sū. ?-?-?; Paṃ. Brā. ?-?-?; Śat. Brā. 1-?-?)."

"The name of Agni, Tanūnapāt, is used eight times in the Ṛgveda in the Āprī-sūktas. Of these eight, except twice (3-29-11; 10-?-?), all occur in the second Ṛk of the Āprī-sūktas. In the Nirukta this too is a separate name of Agni (8-?). Yāska has explained this word (Nir. 8-?) as 'one born as a son to himself', that is, 'one who becomes manifest of himself in the forest and in the clouds'. Of Tanūnapāt it is said: 'Asura; womb (garbha)' (3-29-11), that is, 'a divine embryo belonging to the world of the deities'. This is not said anywhere of Mātariśvan and Narāśaṃsa. The goddess Uṣas kisses the purohita Tanūnapāt [compare 10-?-?; 5-?-?]. Tanūnapāt is addressed as 'sujihva' ('having a beautiful tongue') (10-?-?). He is prayed to carry the sacrifice to the deities [1-?-?; 10-?-?]. He increases the homa that is boundless, filled with ghee and with honey (1-?-?; compare 1-?-?). The deities pay him honour three times a day, and Varuṇa, Mitra and Agni once (3-?-?)."

"The name used even more than Tanūnapāt is Narāśaṃsa. According to the Nirukta (8-?), this too is an independent name. But it is not said of Agni alone; it is used of Pūṣan in two places [1-?-?; 10-?-?]. This word occurs in the third Ṛk of the Āprī-sūktas, and also in the second Ṛk of those called 'Āprī'. Narāśaṃsa has four limbs [caturaṅgaḥ, 10-?-?] and has a wife of the heaven-world [Gnāspatiḥ, 3-?-?]. He performs sacrifice with honey on his hands and tongue [1-?-?; 5-?-?]. Three times a day he pours honey in the sacrifice [1-?-?]. He pours oil for the three heaven-worlds and for the deities [3-?-?]. He comes in front of the deities and makes the sacrifice pleasant for them [10-?-?]. The worshippers praise through his sacrifices the greatness of the deities [2-?-?]. Both Narāśaṃsa and Daivya and"

original p. 622

³ "...[Narāśaṃsa and Daivya and] Soma-deity are placed in the middle [9-?-?]; that is, it may be between the heaven-world and the fires. When Agni was born he received the name Narāśaṃsa [3-29-11]. In one mantra of a sūkta addressed to Bṛhaspati [10-?-?] protection from Narāśaṃsa is prayed for; in another he is said to be the sacrificer of the world of the deities [1-?-?]. In these two he seems to be counted as Bṛhaspati himself. As the word narāśaṃsa is a compound formed from the words nara ('man') and śaṃsa ('praise'), and as it is used in the forms 'narām śaṃsaḥ' and [2-?-?; 1-?-?] 'devānām śaṃsam' ('praise of the gods'), the sense of this word may be 'one praised by men'."

Bṛhaspati

Bṛhaspati. "This deity holds a position of considerable importance. Eleven sūktas praise this deity. With Indra, as a paired deity, he is praised in two sūktas [4-49; 6-73]. The word Bṛhaspati occurs about 130 times; and also Brahmaṇaspati about 50 times. Bṛhaspati and Brahmaṇaspati are exchanged for each other in one and the same mantra [2-?]. The description of his limbs is very scanty. He has seven mouths and seven rays [4-50-4], a beautiful tongue [1-?-?; 4-50-1], horns not yet bent [10-?-?]. His back is dark blue [5-?-?] and he has a hundred wings [6-?-?]. He is golden-coloured and of reddish hue [5-?-?], radiant [3-?-?; 6-?-?], pure [6-?-?] and clear-voiced [6-?-?]. He has one bow, the Ṛta (sacrifice, truth) is the string and the arrow is sādhutva ('goodness') [2-?-?; Av. 5-?-?]. He holds a golden axe [6-?-?] and uses an iron-blue [black?] axe forged by Tvaṣṭṛ [10-?-?]. He moves in the chariot of sacrifice [10-?-?]; it kills Piśācas, breaks open the doors of the cow-pens and brings light [2-?-?]. His chariot is drawn by red-coloured horses."

"At the very high regions of the heaven-world, Bṛhaspati, born of a mass of lustre, roared and drove away the darkness [4-50-4; compare 10-?-?], he is the progeny of the two worlds [6-?-?]. But it is also said that Tvaṣṭṛ created him [2-?-?]. He is said to be the father of the deities [2-?-?]; as sparks fly from the bellows of a smith, the deities were born from him [10-?-?]."

"The word purohita, which is particularly used for Agni, is used for him too [2-?-?; Vāj. Saṃ. 20-?; Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?; Ait. Brā. 8-?-?]. The ancient seers placed him as their leader [4-50-1]. He is the purohita of Soma [Śat. Brā. 4-?-?]. He is also Brahmā [2-1-3; 4-50-?; 10-?-?]. In other Vedas, it is said that he worked as brahmā (the brahmā priest) at the sacrifices of the deities"

original p. 623

"[of the deities]. He is the brahma used by the deities (that is, the praise, Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?; etc.). Bṛhaspati is an inspirer of devotion, and without him a sacrifice cannot be seen to bring victory [1-?-?]. As a guide on the path, he makes the gathering of the deities easily obtained [2-?-?; ?]. By him the deities obtained their shares of homa [2-?-?]. With these homās he rouses the deities [Av. 19-?-?]. He himself pronounces the sūkta that pleases Indra, Varuṇa, Mitra, Aryaman and the other deities [1-?-?]; he sings songs [10-?-?]. His singing reaches heaven [1-?-?] and the metres belong to him [Mai. Saṃ. 1-?-?]. He is sometimes surrounded by singers [2-?-?; 10-?-?]. With his friends who make a sound like swans (here the swans may be the Aṅgirasas who occur in the preceding Rk 10-?-?), he sings [10-?-?]. A group of singers is with him [4-?-?]. For this reason he may have obtained the name 'Gaṇapati' ('lord of the groups') [2-23-1]. This name is used once of Indra also [10-?-?]."

"As is clear from the word Brahmaṇaspati ('lord of the sacred word'), he is the lord of the praises. He is praised as the king of the praise-sentences, and as the best of seers among all the seers [2-23-1]. Mounting the chariot of Ṛta (the limbs of the sacrifice), he conquers those who hate praise and the enemies of the deities

[2-23-3 and ?]. From him all the praise-sentences issue [1-?-?]. He himself utters the sentences of prayer [1-?-?] and makes them known to the human purohita [10-?-?]. For this reason he came later to have the name 'Vācaspati' ('lord of speech') [Mai. Saṃ. 2-?-?; compare Śat. Brā. 14-?-?]. In the Purāṇas, beyond the Vedas, 'Vācaspati' became fixed as a name of Bṛhaspati."

"There are many sentences that seem to say that Agni and Bṛhaspati are equal. Agni is prayed to as one who is lord of praise-sentences and, like Mitra, beautiful in form [1-?-?]. In another sentence, though it is said that Agni is equal to Bṛhaspati and some other deities, since Agni and Bṛhaspati alone are specially addressed, it seems that the equality with Agni is what is intended. In one mantra [3-?-?], Mātariśvan and Bṛhaspati are both names of Agni; in another [1-?-?], Mātariśvan is a name of Bṛhaspati. Bṛhaspati [5-?-?] who dwells in every house and shines well, red of face, must be Agni. Again, in two sentences it seems that Bṛhaspati and Narāsaṃsa are spoken of as one [1-?-?; 10-?-?]. Like Agni, Bṛhaspati, the son of strength [1-?-?], burns or kills Aṅgiras, Piśācas and the like [2-?-?; 10-?-?], and so on. In such characteristics he is distinguished. Bṛhaspati too goes to the heaven-world, mounting to the houses of the upper world [10-?-?]."

original p. 624

"Like Agni, he has three dwelling-places [4-50-1], is a thing beloved in houses [2-?-?], and is Sadaspati ('lord of the assembly') [1-?-?]. Of Agni too, at one place, the words 'brahmaṇaḥ kavī' are used; he is prayed to make heaven and earth easily attainable by the brahma (praise) [2-?-?]. But the name Bṛhaspati has been stated separately in the lists of Agni and the other deities [3-20-3; etc.]; so it is right to say that Agni and Bṛhaspati are different [2-?-?; 2-?-?; 10-?-?]."

"In the history of the release of the cows by Indra, Bṛhaspati too has an important part, like Agni. The mountain bowed its head before Bṛhaspati's roar and gave him room to open the cow-pens; accompanied by Indra, Bṛhaspati made the water, which had been covered by darkness, flow again [compare 2-?-?; 1-?-?; 1-?-?]. With the singer (Aṅgiras) Ati-theya he roared, split Vala, and drove out the cows that were bellowing and shut up [4-50-5]. He obtained the treasures and big cow-pens; desiring water and light, the unobstructed Bṛhaspati destroys the enemies with his flames [6-?-?]. What was firm was shaken by him; what was strong was overcome; he drove out the cows; he split Vala by mantra; he made the darkness uncovered, and made the sky visible to the eye; Bṛhaspati broke open, by his own power, the stone door of the well filled with honey; the deities drank that honey and rained as they wished [2-?-? and ?]. When Bṛhaspati split the fortresses of Vala and so on with the red rays that shine, the herds of cows came into view; like breaking nuts, he drove out the cows; seeing the honey covered by the rock, he split it with his lion's roar and brought it out; he drove out the marrow of Vala [10-?-? onward]. Having driven out the cows, he divided them in heaven [2-?-?]. Bṛhaspati brought out the cows by means of stones; seizing Vala's cows, he brought them under his own control [10-?-?]. His conquering of Vala is his special distinction. It is a story with four feet [Av. 9-?-?]. Since he is in the clouds, he thunders the cows [10-?-?; compare 10-?-?]; the cows here, as was clearly said, may be water [2-?-?; 6-?-?] or the rays of Uṣas [10-?-?; 10-?-?]."

"In the release of the cows, trying to obtain the light hidden in darkness, he achieves it; he obtains Uṣas, light and Agni, and drives away the darkness [10-?-? and ?]. While splitting the fortress, Sūrya, Uṣas and the cows were obtained [10-?-?]. Covering and driving out the darkness, he brought out the light [2-?-?;]"

original p. 625

"4-?-?]. Thus the characteristics of a warrior are seen in Bṛhaspati. He split the mountain bound with treasures, entered it, and split Śambara's fortresses [2-?-?]. Bṛhaspati, the seer born at the beginning, crushes the Aṅgiras stones. He shoots like a ball in both worlds; he kills Vṛtra; splits fortresses; and conquers enemies [6-?-? and ?]. Driving away enemies, he conquers [10-?-?]. Whether the battle is small or large, no one can defeat Bṛhaspati [1-?-?]. In war he uproots the enemy [2-?-?]. He alone is to be prayed to at times of war [2-?-?], and in such circumstances he is the purohita most often praised for his help [2-?-?]."

"Because he is a friend and companion of Indra [2-?-?; 2-?-?; 8-?-?], at every step he is praised together with that deity [4-50-10 and 11; etc.]. With Indra he too drinks Soma [4-?-?; 4-50-10] and is generous like him (maghavan) [2-?-?]. He is a paired deity with Indra alone [2-?-?; 4-49 and 6-73]. For this reason the name 'Vajrī' ('wielder of the vajra') is applied to him [1-?-?], and he is said to use the vajra weapon that kills Asuras [Av. 11-?-?]. Once [1-?-?] he is praised along with Indra and the Maruts, and is invited to come along with whichever of Mitra, Varuṇa, Pūṣan and the Maruts [10-?-?]. He released Trita from the well on hearing his prayer [1-?-?]."

"Bṛhaspati loves the praiser [2-?-?] but punishes the hater of praise [1-?-?]. He rescues the righteous from all calamities and favours them with wealth and the like [1-?-?; 2-?-? to 10]. Bṛhaspati, distinguished by all the things desirable [2-?-?; 2-?-?], is rich and a giver of prosperity [1-?-?], a remover of disease and a giver of long life [1-?-?]. Being so merciful he is addressed as father [4-50-6; 6-?-?]."

"He is distinguished by divinity (an Asura [2-?-?]), is a relation of all the deities [3-?-?; 4-50-6], and has the most divinity among the deities [2-?-?]. In the form of the deity he gathers all the deities and all things into himself [2-?-?; compare 6-?-?]. Capable of this, he has set the two ends of the earth far apart [4-50-1]. The rising of the sun and the moon one after the other is his unimitable deed [10-?-?]. He causes the growth of crops [10-?-? and ?]. A connection of Bṛhaspati with some of the stars is stated. The deity of the star Puṣya is Bṛhaspati [Tai. Saṃ. 4-?-?]; in the Purāṇas and so on he is called the planet Bṛhaspati or Guru."

original p. 626

⁴ "From the points stated above, it may be said that Bṛhaspati is a special form of Agni; or that Bhakti or Śraddhā is the presiding deity. The name Bṛhaspati, like Viśāṃpati ('lord of the settlements'), Gṛhapati ('master of the house') and Sadaspati ('lord of the assembly'), which remain as epithets of Agni, is counted as an independent deity. But modern scholars have held various views: a special form of Agni, Śraddhā, another form of Indra, the moon, and so on."

Soma

Soma. "Since the Soma sacrifices are very important among the rites of the Ṛgveda, it is natural that the deity Soma too is one of the principal deities. In the ninth maṇḍala, 114 sūktas, and six others besides — in all 120 sūktas — praise the deity Soma. Portions of 45 sūktas, and 5–6 sūktas together with Indra, Agni, Pūṣan or Rudra, also praise the deity Soma. The name Soma, alone or in compounds, occurs about 120 [?] times. Judged by number, the deity Soma is the third. The attribution of human form is very slight. The plant Soma and its juice are mentioned at every step, so that it is impossible to forget them completely; therefore the deity's form, limbs and the attribution of movement and the like are all imperfect. Though deeds of valour are stated, they are borrowed from other deities, and are unimportant or secondary. Like the other deities, in the name of Indu or Soma he is invited to come to the sacrifice, adorn the seat of darbha and receive the oblations. The whole of the ninth maṇḍala deals with the juice of Soma: the pressing of the juice with stones, its purification through the woollen filter, its offering to the deities through Agni as a drink (1-?-?; 5-?-?; 8-?-? etc.), or its being drunk by the priests, and so on, are the subjects stated."

"Before understanding the plant, its juice, and the history connected with them, one must know what is said about it. The part of the plant used to extract the juice has the name 'aṃśu' (9-?-?). As cows give milk through eagerness, the plant gives milk (the juice) (9-?-?). 'Andhas' means the Soma plant (9-?-?; 10-?-? etc.); it came from heaven (9-?-?); the eagle (śyena) brought it (4-?-?; 9-?-?; 10-?-?). The word andhas is used also for the juice. The word 'indu' indicates the deity (9-?-?; 10-?-?). For the juice there is also the word soma; but generally the word rasa alone is used. In one sūkta (1-?) only, in the sense of juice, 'pitu' ('drink') is used, in many places 'mada' ('intoxicant'), and sometimes 'anna' ('food')"

original p. 627

"[9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?; Śat. Brā. 1-?-?]. When it is used in the sense relating to the Aśvins, the word madhu means honey or a stimulating substance. In the ordinary sense of a sweet drink, milk, ghee and especially the Soma juices are used (4-?-?; 8-?-?). In the Itihāsa, madhu means nectar or Soma. Likewise the Soma juice, when stirred, is used in the sense of the state of immortality (9-?-?; 6-?-?; etc.; Vāj. Saṃ. 6-?; Śat. Brā. 9-?-?). When the king Soma is pressed, he becomes immortal (Vāj. Saṃ. 19-?). There is a usage 'saumyaṃ madhu' ('the intoxicating substance connected with Soma') (4-?-?; 8-?-?). Figuratively Soma is called pīyūṣa (3-?-?; etc.), milk (9-?-?), a wave of sweetness, or the essence of honey (9-?-?). Among the figurative names the most used is indu (a flowing drop, a drop). In fewer cases the word drapsa, meaning a drop, is also used."

"For taking out the juice both the root su ('to press') (9-?-?; etc.) and the root duh ('to milk') (3-?-? and ?; etc.) are used. The juice produces intoxication (1-?-?; 6-?-?; etc.) and is mixed with honey (9-?-?). Though the word madhu means sweet, in relation to Soma it must be taken as 'mixed with honey' (mixed with honey-like sweet substance). In some places this mixing is plainly stated (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?). The Soma juice that flows down from the filter is compared to the waves of a stream of water (9-?-?), or plainly to waves (9-?-?; etc.), or called waves of honey (3-?-?; etc.). To Soma standing in the wooden vessel the names arṇava (10-?-?), samudra ('ocean') (9-?-?; 9-?-?; etc.) and the like are given. The Soma of heaven is called a well (utsa); it is in the highest place where the cows are (9-?-?); it is placed in the cows (that is, the milk) and is driven with ten reins (the fingers) (6-?-?); this Soma is in the third step that was raised up by Viṣṇu (1-?-?)."

"The colour of the plant and the juice is said to be babhru (brown), or aruṇa ('ruddy'), or often hari (tawny-yellow). Soma is the branch of a dusky plant (10-?-?). The plant that gives the red-coloured juice (2-?-?); the tawny plant is pressed into the woollen filter (9-?-?). The colour of Soma, or of the substance used in its place, is determined to be tawny (Kā. Brā. 4-?-?; Śat. Brā. 4-?-?); the cow that is given in exchange for Soma too must be of tawny colour (Tai. Saṃ. 6-?-?; Śat. Brā. 3-?-?)."

"The Soma juice is purified by the hands (9-?-?); by the ten fingers (9-?-?; 9-?-?), or, figuratively, by ten sisters or maidens (9-?-?; "

original p. 628

"9-?-?), or by the maidens, the daughters of Vivasvān (9-?-?). To be a drink for Indra, the maidens of Trita make the red-coloured juice come out through the stones (9-?-?; 9-?-?). The Soma juice was purified by the daughters of Sūrya (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?). Sometimes it is purified also by mantra (9-?-?; 9-?-?). The priests who press the Soma are the adhvaryus (4-?-?)."

"The plant is crushed by stones (9-?-?) or ground by slabs (9-?-?); the plant is pounded and the juice is produced (10-?-?). The stones strip off its covering (Tai. Brā. 3-?-?). Those stones are placed on a skin; on the skin of a cow they grind the Soma plant (9-?-?). Soma is placed on the altar (3-?-?). Nowadays it is not placed on the altar; it is held with the hands (2-?-?; 9-?-?; Av. 11-?-?). The two arms and the ten fingers push the stone (9-?-?). For this reason it is said that the stones are driven with ten reins (10-?-?). Since they are said to be 'yoked' (yukta), the fingers are compared to horses (10-?-?). For the stones, the words adri or grāvan are used generally, in the plural or singular. To these stones the words aśman (9-?-?), bharitra (3-?-?), parvata (3-?-?) and parvaśa adrayaḥ (10-?-?) are applied. It appears that pounding Soma with stones was the general practice; yet pounding in a mortar (ulūkhala) in some places too is accepted (1-?-?-?)."

"After being pounded, the juice is poured over a filter made from the wool of a sheep and is thus purified (9-?-?; etc.; 9-?-?). Here all the dregs are removed, and the pure Soma juice is used for the deities to taste (9-?-?). To this filter there are many names: tvac, roma, vāra (tail-hair), pavitra (filter), sānu and so on. All these words commonly have the epithet avi ('of a sheep'), or the word avi itself indicates this filter. Because of this Soma, which flows through it, is called Pavamāna or Punāna ('purifying') (the root is pū, 'to be purified'). The root mṛj ('to purify') applies not only to purification by the filter but also to the mixing of Soma with milk and water (9-?-?; 9-?-?). The pure Soma, other than the mixed, has the names śuddha, śukra, śuci and so on (9-?-?; 1-?-?; 1-?-?). This pure Soma is offered to Vāyu and Indra only; śucipā ('drinker of pure Soma') is a mark specially of Vāyu. In Soma sacrifices, when the grahas (cups of Soma offered to the paired deities) are offered, the pure Soma is used for Indra and Vāyu, the milk-mixed for Mitra and Varuṇa, and the honey-mixed for the Aśvins."

original p. 629

"After it has come from the filter, Soma enters the pots (kalaśa) or drona (wooden vessels) (9-?-?; etc.). As buffaloes plunge into the forest, Soma plunges towards the dronas (9-?-?; 9-?-?). To take his seat in the vessel of the deity, he flies like a bird (9-?-?); as a bird sits on a tree, the red-coloured liquid sits in the wooden vessels

(9-?-?). In the vessel the Soma is mixed with water. Together with the waves it flows through the kāṇḍa ('reed') (9-?-?). As a ball swallows a lump of curds, Soma, roaring loudly, swallows toward the droṇa vessel; singing, he flows swiftly round the droṇa vessel when the priests mix water (9-?-?; 9-?-?). The sages draw out the Soma juice into the water with their hands, as one milks (9-?-?). Coming over the wool, he, dancing in the droṇa vessel, is purified by ten maidens (9-?-?). There are many more sentences that establish the mixing of this Soma and water (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?, etc.). The Soma drops give the flood a stream (9-?-?). For purification (mixing with water) not only the root mṛj but also the root ā-dhāv is used (9-?-?). In preparing Soma, first savana (pressing) and then udakamiśraṇa (mixing of water) come (2-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?; Av. 6-?-?). In Soma sacrifices first the pressing and then the ādhāvana (washing) come in order. In the wide vessels (troughs), to give sweetness, milk too is mixed with the Soma juice (9-?-?; etc.). It is said in many sentences that both water and milk are mixed. The deity Soma holds the clothes of water. When he desires to hold the cows (milk), streams of water run to him (9-?-?). The people, having pounded the Soma plant with stones, washed the juice in water, adorned it with garments in the form of cows [i.e. milk], and bring him out with Soma plants (compare 9-?-?; 3-?-?; 6-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?)."

"Soma juice is mixed in three ways: Trāśirah? [as read: 'Traiśirah?'] (9-?-?): milk-mixed (gavāśir), curd-mixed (dadhyāśir) and barley-mixed (yavāśir). For this mixing, the wearing of a garment (vastra, vāsas, atka) is used as a figure; sometimes it is called 'nirṇij' ('a flowing cloth', 9-?-?). This word is applied also to the filter (9-?-?). Because of this, Soma is described as beautiful (9-?-?; etc.) and adorned with ornaments as one wishes (9-?-?). The mixing of ghee (9-?-?) or of water too is said, but for these the word āśir is not used."

"In sacrifices, there is a rite named āpyāyana ('swelling'; meaning that the Soma plants that have been pounded are made to swell again by soaking them in water) (Mai. Saṃ. 4-?-?). In the Ṛgveda this root (āpyā) for Soma..."

original p. 630

⁵ "...is used in relation to [the swelling]. But here the root is used to suggest that Soma is equal to the moon. Only in one place (9-31-4) may this limb of the sacrificial rite be indicated. The Soma juice swells like a river or the ocean (9-?-?; 9-102-12)."

"Soma is pressed three times a day. The Ṛbhu deities are invited to the evening pressing (4-33-11; etc.); Indra alone [1-?-?] to the midday pressing [3-?-1 and ?; 8-?-1], and Indra is invited to the morning pressing, to be the first to drink [10-?-?-]."

"The seat (sadhastha) of the Soma juice or of the deity is mentioned at every step; once three seats are stated. Besides the pure one, he adorns these three seats [9-?-?]. The epithet 'tripadasthā' ('having three seats') is said of Soma [8-?-?]. These three seats must be the three droṇa vessels in which pure Soma is put [compare Tai. Saṃ. 3-?-?; Kā. Śrau. Sū. ?-?-?; Ṛk. Ve. 8-?-?]. Indra drinks from three lakes (5-?-? and ?; 6-?-?; 8-?-?). The epithet 'triprṣṭha' ('with three backs') is peculiar to the deity Soma. It is used once for the juice [2-?-?]. As when 'ghṛtaprṣṭha' is said of Agni it is understood to mean ghee-homa, so here too three kinds of mixing must be understood."

"It is described in many ways that water is mixed with the Soma juice. The rivers flow towards Soma [9-?-?]. The streams observe his rules [9-?-?]. Soma runs in front of the streams [9-?-?]; the rivers are all his wives, and he is their sacrificer and king [9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?]; he is the sacrificer of the many wives (9-?-?) and the king of the ocean, a deity [9-?-?]. The waters are his sisters [9-?-?]. As he is the leader of the waters, he is the lord of rain [9-?-?]. He generates water and makes the earth and the sky pour rain

[9-?-?]. He sends the stream of rain from the sky [9-?-?; 9-?-?; etc.]. Sometimes the Soma drops themselves are called rain-drops [9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?]. Honey-mixed Soma flows like a rain-cloud [9-?-?]. In that way, the purifying drops (Soma-drops) fall from heaven, from the sky, upon the regions of the earth [9-?-?]. In many other places Soma, when pressed, is compared to rain-water (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 10-?-? compare)."

"The waters are prayed to make the intoxicating substance, Indra's drink, flow [10-?-?]. Soma is a drop that grows in the water [9-?-?; 9-?-?]. For this reason he is the sprout of water [9-?-?; Śat. Brā. 4-?-?] or an infant: the Gandharva in the water (apāṃ gandharvaḥ), just born as a child, is cherished by the seven brothers as by mothers [9-?-?; 10-?-?]; or the waters themselves are his mothers [9-?-?]. The water is described as being like a young man among the cows [9-?-?; 9-?-?]."

original p. 631

"The sound made when purifying in the droṇa vessels or when pouring into the pots is like the sound of rain [9-?-?]. In this context exaggerated statements are many. The sound made when the Soma drops run over the filter is like the sound of warriors fighting [9-?-?]. To indicate this sound, roots meaning 'to roar' and 'to cry' — krand, nad, mā, ru, vāś and the like — are used (9-?-?; 9-?-?; etc.). The root stan ('to thunder') is also used [9-?-?]. The sages draw the juice from the thundering Soma plants [9-?-?]. In the context of purifying Soma, hail too is mentioned [9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?]. These must be words applying either to the way of purifying heavenly Soma or to the rain-clouds."

"When it is said that Soma roars, it is generally by comparison with a bull, or the usage is of the bull itself. Like a bull, he roars in the forest [9-?-?]; the tawny bull roars and shines together with Sūrya [9-?-?]. Because the words go ('cow') are said for the waters or milk-waters mixed with Soma, a relation of Soma and the streams with the bull and cows is stated. He is like a bull among the cows [9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?], or he breaks all the cows [9-?-?]. He roars like a bull moving among cows, or like a bull hating cows he roars; and the cows hate him and cry out [9-?-?; etc.]. He is the bull of earth, sky and rivers [6-?-?]. The roaring of Soma is many times compared to a buffalo. Soma is called 'paśu' ('beast') itself [9-?-?]. As he is a bull among the go (vāra, i.e. the filter) cows, Soma makes the water (go) fruitful [10-?-?; 9-?-?], and is also the retodhā ('bearer of seed'); this epithet is said mostly of Candra in the Yajurveda [Vai. Saṃ. 1-?-?]. Hence he grants fruitfulness [9-?-?; 9-?-?]. Since Soma is called a bull at every step (ukṣā, vṛṣā, vṛṣabha), he is described as having sharp horns (tigmaśṛṅga). This word occurs six times in the Ṛgveda; of these, five times, in the sense of bull, it is used together with it. Indra's drink, 'mādhā', is like a bull with keen horns [10-?-?]. The deity Soma, like Agni, sharpens his horns [9-?-?; 9-?-?]."

"Soma is swift. The speed of the flowing juice is many times compared with the speed of a horse. The ten maidens (the fingers) lead Soma, like a good horse, by the arms [?], and clean it [9-?-?]"

original p. 632

"[they wash it]. The drop of Soma that creates intoxication for Indra is a tawny horse [9-?-?]. The Soma juice flowing into the drona vessels is compared to a bird that flies [9-?-?; etc.]."

"Since the juice is of a yellow colour, its physical qualities are specially discussed; its brightness and its rays are described. They compare it with Sūrya, above and above. He shines like Sūrya or with Sūrya, and is covered with the rays of Sūrya [compare 9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?]; mounting Sūrya's chariot, he stands over all beings like Sūrya. Like Sūrya he covers earth and sky with his rays [9-?-?]. He was born as the son of the radiant one, and made his parents brighter [9-?-?]. The daughter of Sūrya purifies him [9-?-?]. For the reasons stated above, he fights with the darkness [9-?-?]. He removes it with light [9-?-?], or drives away the darkness and gives excellent light [9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?; etc.], it is said."

"The Soma juice has a certain irresistible power, which is not in ordinary food or drink. By this power it rouses men, or anyone who drinks it, and makes them accomplish deeds that are not possible to men. For this very reason it is a divine drink, equal to nectar, or the very idea that it is nectar is given room. Even to say that one who drinks it becomes immortal is not an exaggeration. It is the intoxicant liked by the deities and the cause of immortality [9-?-?; 1-?-?]. All the deities drink this juice, which has been pressed by men and mixed with milk [9-?-?]; from it they quickly get joy [8-?-?] and after drinking become youthful [8-?-?]. Soma is eternal [1-?-?; 8-?-?; 9-?-?]. The deities drank it to attain immortality [9-?-?]. He (the deity Soma) grants immortality to the deities [1-?-?; 9-?-?] and to men [1-?-?; 8-?-?]; in the world that is the abode of eternal lustre and fame, indestructible, and the dwelling-place of Vaivasvata, he makes his worshipper immortal and dwells [9-?-? and ?]."

"Therefore, naturally, Soma too must have the power of healing. For the sick, the Soma juice is a medicine [8-?-?]. Hence the deity Soma cures whatever disease there is; he gives eyes to the blind and legs to the lame [8-?-?; 10-?-?]. He is the protector of men's bodies; he pervades all their limbs [8-?-?]. He grants long life in this world [1-?-?; 8-?-? and ?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?]. If one drinks Soma, the sin in the heart too is removed; untruth is destroyed and truth is increased."

original p. 633

"The Soma juice enters the body and increases the power of speech, as an Ambikā leads the ship forward [9-?-?]; [6-?-?; 8-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?]. For the same reason Soma has the name Vācaspati ('lord of speech') [9-?-?; 9-?-?] or vāco agriyaḥ, the leader of speech, or 'at the front of speech' [9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?]. It is said that he calls even from heaven [9-?-?]. In the Brāhmaṇas it is said that the deities gave speech as the price of Soma. Soma rouses strong emotions [6-?-?]. The worshippers declare in this way: 'We have drunk Soma; we have become immortal; we have come into the portion of light (we have become knowers); we have known the deities' [8-?-?]. Soma is the lord of emotions; he brings prayer-sentences and is called leader or father [of speech]. He is the leader of poets; among the vipras he is the seer (vipra) [9-?-?]. His mind is like the mind of seers; he is the begetter of the seers [9-?-?] and the protector of prayer-mantras [6-?-?]. He is the very soul of sacrifice [9-?-?; 9-?-?]; the sacrificial priest called Brahmā to the deities [9-?-?], and he distributes to each their shares [10-?-?]. Thus knowledge of him is attributed. He is a seer who is the one knowing [8-?-?]. All the lineages of the deities are known to him [9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?; 10-?-?]. He is the wise stream that observes men [9-?-?]. The deity Soma sees all creatures minutely [9-?-?]. Hence he has many eyes [9-?-?] and a thousand eyes [9-?-?]."

"Soma made the Fathers go towards the accomplishing of work [9-?-?]; through him they gained splendour and cows [9-?-?]. Soma has kinship with the Fathers [8-?-?], or is joined by them [Av. 14-?-?; Śat. Brā. 2-?-?; etc.]. The Fathers (the deities of the Fathers) have the name Somya ('dear to Soma') [10-?-?; Av. 3-?-?]."

"By the Soma juice man's enthusiasm increases. But the Soma juice is chiefly offered to the deities; hence the joy and enthusiasm born of Soma arise in the deities. The result of the intoxication born of Soma falls chiefly upon Indra. He becomes the helper of Indra in checking the hostile powers in the sphere of the air. It is said many times that the special power and ability needed to fight with Vṛtra came to Indra from the Soma juice [8-?-?; etc.]. In the intoxication that comes from Soma, Indra defeats all his enemies [9-?-?], and no one can face Indra when he has drunk Soma in battle [6-?-?]. Soma is the soul of Indra [9-?-?]; a friend (Mitra) who does good [10-?-?]; he increases Indra's valour [9-?-?] and is a helper in the killing of Vṛtra"

"...[and is a helper in the killing of Vṛtra] (9-?-?). Accompanied by Soma, Indra made the water flow for men and killed the serpent (4-?-?). For this reason Soma is sometimes called Indra's vajra-weapon (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?). This Soma juice belonging to Indra becomes the vajra that obtains thousandfold victory (9-?-?). The Soma juice that can destroy a hundred and more forts (9-?-?), and the plant that kills Vṛtra and gives intoxication (6-?-?): in such ways the deity Soma himself, like Indra, becomes one who kills Vṛtra and splits forts (9-?-?). The personal epithet of Indra, 'Vṛtrahā', is used of Soma fifteen or sixteen times."

"When drunk by Indra, the Soma juice became the cause of the rising of the sun (9-?-?). This work is stated of Soma independently also. Soma made the sun (9-?-?, 9-?-?) and the other masses of light in the sky (9-?-?) shine, and produced the sun in the water (9-?-?). The cause of sunrise, the awakener: having struck, he gave the sun to the world; and made the Uṣases rise. He causes his worshippers to take part at the time of sunrise (9-?-?) and provides light for them (9-?-?). He found light (9-?-?) and provides light and sky (9-?-?). Ghee is the centre of immortality, and the whole universe is said to stand upon it (4-?-? and ?). In the same way supremacy over the whole universe is said of the Soma juice or of the deity (9-?-? and ?). He is the lord of all the regions (9-?-?); he does the work of creation of the two worlds (9-?-?); the creation and preservation of earth and sky, being the support of the sky and placing splendour in the sun — he does these works (6-?-? and ?; 6-?-?)."

"While fighting with the Asura Vṛtra, Soma, who was Indra's helper, came to be regarded as a warrior himself. He is victorious, unconquerable, and born for battle (9-?-?). The bravest of the brave, the most terrible of the terrible, Soma is always victorious (9-?-? and ?). For his worshippers, he wins for them cows, chariots, horses, gold, heaven, water and thousands of other boons (9-?-?); indeed he obtains all things in battle (9-?-?). Without praise of valour and the like, he is always said to be the giver of cows and other things and of heaven (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?; etc.). He is the treasure of the deities (9-?-?) or their wealth (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?). The deity Soma is able to protect from enemies (10-?-?). He can drive away Piśācas (9-?-?) and, like some other deities, has more often become 'rakṣohā' ('destroyer of Rākṣasas'). He alone is able to kill the wicked (9-?-?; etc.). The Brāhmaṇas who have drunk Soma cannot kill with the eye alone (Vai. Saṃ. 4-?-?)."

original p. 635

"As he is a warrior, he too has weapons (9-?-?). Like a hero he is clad in armour (9-?-?; 9-?-?). He holds firmly those weapons in his hands (9-?-?). It is said that he took the weapons from his father, Vaivasvata (6-?-?). He uses an arrow with a thousand points (9-?-?; 9-?-?) and his bow is very swift (9-?-?)."

"The deity Soma and Indra travel in one chariot (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?). Soma is the charioteer of Indra, who fights in the chariot (Ai. Ve. ?-?-?). He travels in one divine chariot (9-?-?). Light (9-?-?) or the filter is his chariot (9-?-?). He is the best of charioteers (9-?-?). Beautiful winged mares (9-?-?) or, like Vāyu, a herd of horses (9-?-?) are his."

"Sometimes he lives together with the Maruts, companions of Indra. They milk Soma, the bull of the sky (9-?-?; compare 9-?-?) and adorn the infant as soon as it is born (9-?-?). Like Indra, the Maruts (6-?-?) or the Marut group (9-?-?) wait on him too. Those winds are a delight to Soma (9-?-?), and Vāyu is the guardian of Soma (10-?-?). With Agni, Pūṣan and Rudra he is counted as a paired deity (2-?-?; 6-?-?; etc.). At times equality of Varuṇa and Soma is stated; how this is so is a matter beyond the senses (compare 9-?-?, 9-?-?, and 9-?-? and ?, 9-?-?)."

"The Soma plant is described as Mūjavata ('growing on Mūjavat mountain') (10-?-?). In the same way, many times it is described as giriṣṭhā ('being on the mountain') or parvatavṛdh ('growing on the mountain') (9-?-?). It is also said of the mountains that they have placed Soma on their back (Av. 3-?-?), and of the stones used for extracting the Soma juice (adrayaḥ, 9-?-?). Such descriptions may have arisen so. In all these contexts the mountains of the earth may be intended (compare 9-?-?). The friends who roam in the knot of the sky milked the bull who lives on the mountain (9-?-?; compare 9-?-?). Varuṇa placed Agni in the waters, Sūrya in the sky and Soma on the rock (5-?-?); or one (Agni) was brought by Mātariśvan from the sky, and another (Soma) was carried off by the eagle from the rock (1-?-?). In these contexts too the mountains of the earth must be what is meant."

original p. 636

"But since the words mountain and rock in the Itihāsas also give the sense of clouds, there is a little room for doubt."

"Though the Soma plant belongs to the earth, it is divine too (10-?-?); in truth, the idea is that its root and its seat are in heaven. That plant was born in the world above and from there came to the earth (9-?-?). Its intoxicating juice is the child of heaven (9-?-?). In one sentence it is said to be born of Sūrya (9-?-?), and in another that Parjanya is the father of that great bird (compare 9-?-?; 9-?-?). In the Atharvaveda it is said that the root of immortality is a seed that came from Parjanya (Av. 8-?-?). In many places the Soma juice is called an infant or a youth; this too must be because it is prepared again and again like Agni. The Soma juice is the pīyūṣa (milk) of heaven (9-?-?; etc.) and is purified in heaven (9-?-?; 9-?-?; etc.). It runs through its streams to the dear places of heaven (9-?-?) and settles in heaven (9-?-?); it is in heaven (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?) or is the lord of heaven (9-?-? and ?). Like a bird of heaven it looks on the earth and observes all creatures (9-?-?). Like Sūrya, it is above all the worlds (9-?-?). Pure Soma drops fall from heaven, from the sky, on the earth (9-?-?); it moves in the atmosphere (4-?-?; 8-?-?). The fingers raise him, clothed in milk (9-?-?). His dwelling is in the very high sky (3-?-?; 4-?-?; 9-?-?) or in the third heaven (Tai. Saṃ. 3-?-?, etc.). Here everywhere the words vyoman, dyauḥ and the like seem to be words that are synonyms of the filter. In the navel of heaven, in the woollen filter, there stands Soma (9-?-?); he runs over the filter in the sky with Sūrya (9-?-?). In some places (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?) it is plain that the filter is intended. All these must refer to the Soma of the earth. It is a settled point that the heavenly Soma, or the abode of nectar, is heaven."

"The Soma juice has been brought from heaven (9-?-?; 9-?-?). The history of Soma and the eagle (śyena) is the basis of this idea. Soma was carried by the eagle (10-?-?). From the lofty heaven that bird brought Soma (4-?-?). The bird brought Soma or honey for Indra (3-?-?; 4-?-?). A swift-going eagle flew off with the Soma plant (5-?-?) and cut for Indra the part of that plant's reed (4-?-?). Holding it in its foot, through the sky, it brought it for Indra (4-?-?). Flying with the speed of thought, the bird split the iron fort and, going to heaven for the sake of the wielder of the vajra, brought the Soma juice"

original p. 637

"(4-?-?). From very far, from heaven, it came carrying the plant itself (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-?). This story is described in detail in the sūktas 4-26 and 4-27. In the Brāhmaṇas it is said that Gāyatrī, a special form of Agni, goes off carrying Soma. Indra and the eagle are different; the eagle always brings Soma and gives it to Indra. In a mantra connected with this history Indra himself is called the eagle (10-?-?). At one place Agni is called the eagle of heaven (2-?-?); twice the Maruts are called so. It is specially said of the lightning-Agni that it is the eagle (compare Tai. Brā. 3-?-?; ?-?-?) and Agni is many times called a bird. Some hold that this is a description of the falling of hail: the iron fort is the cloud, the hail that issues from it is the bringing of Soma by the eagle, the description of water is the description of Soma drops, and so on. Some sentences are also cited as the basis for this. It is natural that both Soma and Agni should have come down to the earth (1-?-?). That the eagle that carried Soma was struck with an arrow, and that an archer named Kṛśānu cut off a feather, belongs to the Kavi's description of the colour-divisions.

This is told still more at length in the Brāhmaṇas. The feather or the barb fell to the earth and became the parṇa or śalyaka tree. That tree has a very sacred place."

"Because it is the most important plant, the Soma plant is called lord of all plants (9-?-?) and king (9-?-? and ?). It is called the lord of the forest (1-?-?; 1-?-?) and the root of all crops (1-?-?). In the Brāhmaṇas all the plants are named Saumya ('belonging to Soma') (Śat. Brā. 2-?-?-?). Besides, like other principal deities, Soma has the name 'king'. He is the king of the rivers (9-?-?), of the whole universe (9-?-?); of the deities, a king or father (9-?-?; 9-?-?; 9-?-?); of the devamānavas (9-?-?), and of the Brāhmaṇas (Vāj. Saṃ. 9-?; Tai. Saṃ. 1-?-?; Vai. Saṃ. 3-?-?). What the deity is is said at many places; only in one place (9-?-? and ?) is he said to be a drink made for the deities (a substance to be pressed)."

"In later literature, 'Soma' is a name of the moon. As the deities drank him, he waned, and the sun fills him up. In the Chāndogya Upaniṣad (5-?-?) the moon is said to be Soma, to be the food of the deities, and that they drink him. In the Brāhmaṇas the identity of the moon and Soma is a commonly accepted matter. In the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa (2-?) the moon is said to be the Soma of the deities; the king Soma is the food of the deities and he himself is the moon (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?); the plant used in sacrifices, or its juice, indicates the moon deity (Kau. Brā. 2-?; 4-?). The Fathers and deities eat him, who is of the form of nectar, and therefore the moon..."

original p. 638

⁶ "...the moon wanes day by day: this is the sense of the Brāhmaṇas. In the Yajurveda it is said that the daughters of Prajāpati are the wives of the moon, and that they themselves are the cluster of stars. In the Atharvaveda (Av. 2-?-?; 11-?-? etc.), wherever 'Soma' is said, generally the moon is meant. Among the sentences that state the identity of the moon and Soma, the sūkta

10-85, which describes the marriage of Soma and Sūryā, is the chief. Here it is said that Soma is in the lap of the stars; that no one enjoys the Soma known to the priests; that there is a difference between this Soma and what they must press; and that only Brāhmaṇas know the secret of these two. Soma is described as heavenly, bright, remover of darkness and so on; and besides, it has the name 'indu' (6-?-?). Soma in the vessels is compared to the moon reflected in the water (compare 9-?-?; 1-?-?). The Soma that goes to the ocean, described as a drop (drapsa, a drop, a spark) (10-?-?), may also be the moon."

"In the opinion of some, 'Soma' means the moon alone, and no other deity. The whole ninth maṇḍala praises this very moon. Wherever this word occurs in the Ṛgveda it indicates either the Soma plant or the moon. They argue that the juice that comes from that plant is nectar, that the moon takes shelter in that nectar, that the moon is the chief deity, greater than Sūrya, and that after him comes Indra."

"Others again say that there is no basis, or very little, in the Ṛgveda for this view. However much support there is in later works for the identity of the moon and Soma, though it is hinted indistinctly in one place and another among the hundreds of sentences on the deity Soma in the Ṛgveda, it is not said plainly anywhere. Besides, none of the commentators has said that there is a basis in the Veda for this point."

Deities in the Form of Abstract Ideas (Bhāvanārūpa devategaḷu)

"There is a usage that ideas that are formless and can be grasped only by the mind are also called deities. Of these there are chiefly two kinds. One kind: the names that indicate mental activities such as desire and hatred. The other kind: the names that indicate actions. The first class is rare. The second is found in large numbers. Such words, indicating qualities or actions, have come again and again and obtained an independent position, separate from the objects they qualify."

1. Deities who bear a function (Kāryabhārī devategaḷu)

"All the words that indicate these deities are generally formed by adding the suffix 'tr' to roots indicating the respective actions: Savitṛ, Dhātṛ, Vidhātṛ and so on. Savitṛ is a very important deity. He has been discussed separately before. The other deities appear in an imperfect way."

original p. 639

Dhātṛ (धातृ, dhātṛ, 'establisher'). "This word is generally used as an epithet in the sense of the priest who establishes the sacrifice. It has been used only some twelve times as the name of a deity. Except once (2-?-?), all the rest are in the tenth maṇḍala. Of these, once (10-?-?) it is used as a name for Indra and once (10-?-?) for Viśvakarman. The action that distributes worldly works among the various deities gradually became a separate deity. Thus Dhātṛ created Sūrya, Candra, heaven, earth and the sky (10-?-?); he is the lord of the whole world (10-?-?). In a sūkta addressed to Sūrya (10-?-?) Dhātṛ is prayed to grant clear vision. Along with Viṣṇu, Tvaṣṭṛ and Prajāpati, he is prayed to for offspring (10-?-?) and independently for long life (10-?-?). Without expecting any return, Viṣṇu is praised together with Savitṛ (10-?-?) or with Mātariśvan and Dhātṛ (10-?-?). In the Nirukta (Nir. 12-?) Dhātṛ is included in the list of the deities of the middle world; and the sense of dhātṛ is given as 'all-controller'. In the Purāṇas Dhātṛ is the cause of creation and preservation of the universe; Dhātṛ, Prajāpati and Brahmā are all one."

Vidhātṛ (विधातृ, vidhātṛ, 'arranger'). "This word, meaning 'one who carries out', is seen used as an epithet of Indra (10-?-?) and Viśvakarman (10-?-?) in two places; but in two other places it occurs as an independent deity together with certain other deities (6-?-?; 8-?-?)."

Dhartṛ (धर्तृ, dhartṛ, 'supporter'). "This word, in the sense 'support, refuge', is mostly used as an epithet of Indra and others. Only once (2-?-?) it is counted as an independent deity together with Dhātṛ and others."

Trātṛ (त्रातृ, trātṛ, 'protector'). "This too, like Dhātṛ, is used as an epithet in the sense 'protector' of Agni, the Ādityas or Indra; and independently in five contexts as a protecting deity [1-?-?; 4-?-? and ?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?]. According to some it is Savitṛ or Bhaga who is meant by this name."

Devanetr (देवनेतृ, devanetr). "A deity of the name Deva-netṛ is praised, two or three times in one sūkta, as the guide of the one who seeks welfare in life (8-?)."

Tvaṣṭṛ (त्वष्टृ, tvaṣṭṛ). "In this class of deities, apart from Savitṛ, only the name of Tvaṣṭṛ is seen so often. The name occurs about sixty times. It is used chiefly in the seventh [sic: the print's numeral reads 'seven' — ?] maṇḍalas; but there is not even one sūkta addressed to this deity."

original p. 640

"There is very little description of Tvaṣṭṛ's body. Only his arm or hand is mentioned at every step. To hold an iron axe as a weapon is a distinguishing mark of his (8-?-?). He yokes two horses to his chariot and shines (6-?-?). Tvaṣṭṛ has beautiful arms (sugabhastih, 6-?-?) or beautiful hands (supāṇih, 6-?-?). This second epithet is used especially of Savitr and Tvaṣṭṛ alone."

"He is a very skilled worker (1-?-?; 3-?-?). He makes many kinds of objects that show his skill. In truth, there is no worker so skilful as he. With great intelligence he prepares various instruments (10-?-?). He who shaped Indra's vajra-weapon is said many times to be Tvaṣṭṛ (3-?-?; etc.). He sharpens Bṛhaspati's iron axe (10-?-?). He prepared a new vessel filled with food (caṣāla?) for the deities (1-?-?; 3-?-?) or for the 'Asura' (1-?-?). In the Atharvaveda (Av. 9-?-? and ?) he is described as an old man holding a vessel full of splendour and a Soma-pressing bowl. The swift horse was made by him (Vāj. Saṃ. 29-?), and the one who grants speed to horses is he (Av. 6-?-?)."

"Tvaṣṭṛ is the one who gives form to all things (10-?-?). He is the one who makes the embryo grow in the womb, and who gives form to human beings and to the whole animal kingdom (1-?-?; 9-?-?; 10-?-?). In the other Vedas too there are sentences of this sense (Av. 2-?-?; etc.). In all contexts this quality is specially said of him (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?; Tai. Brā. 1-?-?). In the Ṛgveda, more than all the other deities, he has the name Viśvarūpa ('one with all kinds of forms'). Because he gives form to the whole animal kingdom, he is said to be the controller in the works of progeny and the like (3-?-?; etc.). He is the one who ties husband and wife together even in the state of embryo (10-?-?; Av. 6-?-?). He is the cause of the creation of life of many kinds and of the growth of the world (3-?-?). All the beasts belong to Tvaṣṭṛ (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?; 3-?-?-?). Since the whole world was made by him, he is the creator of the world (Vāj. Saṃ. 29-?)."

"His daughter, and wife of Vivasvān, is Saranyū. She is the mother of Yama and Yamī, the twins of the first creation; hence he too may be said to be the original man of the human race (compare 10-?-?, ? and ?; 5-?-?). Once Vāyu is said to be his son-in-law (8-?-?). Bṛhaspati was born from Tvaṣṭṛ (2-?-?). From the ten fingers (in the fire-sticks)..."

original p. 641

"...the Agni who was born is also one born of Tvaṣṭṛ (1-?-?). Earth, sky, water, the Bhṛguś and Agni — these were created by Tvaṣṭṛ (10-?-?; 10-?-?). It must be guessed that Indra too was a son of Tvaṣṭṛ (3-?-?; 4-?-?; 4-?-?). That Tvaṣṭṛ is the guardian of the Soma juice is a settled point (1-?-?). In his house Indra, stealing the Soma juice and drinking it, killed his father in order to obtain it. This Viśvarūpa, Tvaṣṭṛ's son, had a son who was Viśvarūpa; the cows were stolen under his authority. As in the case of obtaining Soma from Tvaṣṭṛ, so, to obtain the cows, Indra fights with his son Viśvarūpa. Tvaṣṭṛ too was afraid of Indra's anger (1-?-?). Because Tvaṣṭṛ too did not do the deeds Indra performed (10-?-?), he is thought to be lesser than Indra. It is said that, because Indra had killed his son, Tvaṣṭṛ did not let Indra have a share in the Soma sacrifice he performed; then Indra drank the Soma juice by force (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?). In other Brāhmaṇas too the same story is told (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?; etc.)."

"In the works connected with the womb and the embryo, Tvaṣṭṛ has a chief part; so he has friendship with the women of the heaven-world (gnāḥ, janayaḥ); they are his attendants (1-?-?; etc.). He is joined especially with deities such as Pūṣan, Savitr, Dhātṛ and Prajāpati. In two contexts 'Savitā' is an epithet of his (3-?-?; 10-?-?); in both of them, his work as creator is relevant. In the Kauṣītaki Sūtra, Tvaṣṭṛ, Savitr and Prajāpati are said to be names of one deity, and in the Mārkaṇḍeya Purāṇa, Tvaṣṭā, Viśvakarman and Prajāpati are said to be one. In the Purāṇas and elsewhere Tvaṣṭā is counted as one of the twelve Ādityas."

"Some other characteristics are also stated of him. None of these makes any definite quality clear. He is the first (1-?-?) or the first born (agraja) and the leader (9-?-?). As a companion of the Aṅgirasas, all the worlds of the deities are known to him (10-?-?); he goes to the abode of the deities in the middle of the earth and sky (Vai. Saṃ. 4-?-?; 2-?-?). He grants boons; he has the best wealth (10-?-?; 10-?-?). Satisfied with the praises of his worshippers, he is prayed to bestow wealth and so on (2-?-?). Long life is attained from him (10-?-?; Av. 6-?-?)."

"The word tvaṣṭr is derived from the root tvakṣ. This root and the root takṣ may be one and the same in meaning. This root is used when it is said that he sharpened Indra's vajra-weapon. By it, tvaṣṭā means 'maker'."

original p. 642

¹ "[He is] a most unknown deity among the Vedic deities. His origin, his nature and so on are matters hard to determine. Each scholar has given a different view: Sūrya, the deity of the year, the moon and so on — there is room for various guesses."

Viśvakarman–Prajāpati

"Some more deities in the form of abstract ideas — that is, a usage of calling words that indicate actions 'deities' — are seen. These are not all actions: they belong to one supreme deity. Viśvakarman ('maker of all') is one of such names. It occurs only in one maṇḍala, the tenth, and only five times. Two sūktas praise this deity (10-81; 10-82). This same Viśvakarman is used once as an epithet of Indra (8-?-?) and once of Sūrya, who creates all (10-?-?). In the other Vedas the use as an epithet is general. It is an epithet of Prajāpati too (Vāj. Saṃ. 12-?-?)."

"In the two sūktas of the R̥gveda, Viśvakarman is described thus. He is all-seeing; he has eyes on all sides, a face, arms and feet on all sides. By this description Viśvakarman resembles Brahmā, who has four faces and four arms. He has wings too. He is a seer, a purohita and a father. He is Vācaspati; swift as the mind; a benefactor; the root of all kinds of prosperity. All regions and all beings are known to him; he alone knows the names of all the deities. Wise and capable; supreme among superhuman persons; the support of everything and the controller; he it was who created the earth and brought the sky to light. Probably this word, which was at first used chiefly as an epithet of Sūrya, later came to be reckoned as a separate deity. Skill in craft is the distinguishing mark of this deity. In the Brāhmaṇas it is plainly said that Viśvakarman and Prajāpati are one (Śat. Brā. 8-?-?-?; 8-?-?-?; Ai. Brā. 4-?)). In the Purāṇas and elsewhere, Viśvakarman is the craftsman of the deities."

Prajāpati. "'Savitṛ is the support of the sky, and Prajāpati the support of the world' [4-?-?]: so in one place; and in a context that compares the deity Soma with Tvaṣṭṛ and Indra, this word is used as an epithet of Soma. As the name of a separate deity, it has come only four times, and that too in the tenth maṇḍala. 'May Prajāpati grant us progeny' (10-?-?); 'with Viṣṇu, Tvaṣṭṛ and Dhātṛ may he grant offspring' (10-?-?) and 'may he increase the wealth of cattle' (10-?-?) and so on is prayed. That he is the protector of offspring and of beings is said in the Atharvaveda too. In the one sūkta (10-121) that praises this deity, the name of the deity comes only in the last Ṛk; in this sūkta he is the creator of heaven and earth, of the waters, and of all beings, the one master of all that exists (now existing), born in the beginning, who breathes and who is the king of all that moves, the god above all deities. All beings and deities follow his commands. He is the one who established earth and sky. He can move in the atmosphere, and with his arms he embraces the whole world and all creatures. This is the first of such descriptions. Here, Prajāpati must be the Supreme Self (paramātmān). In the Ṛgveda this has been used only once in the sense of Supreme Self; but in the Atharvaveda and Vājasaneyi Saṃhitās, in general, and in the Brāhmaṇas, regularly, the Prajāpati intended is the Supreme Person (Puruṣottama). He is the father of all the deities (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?; Tai. Brā. 2-?-?-?; etc.); he was alone at the beginning (Śat. Brā. 2-?-?-?). He created the Rākṣasas also (Tai. Brā. 2-?-?-?). He was the first to perform a sacrifice (Śat. Brā. 2-?-?-?; 6-?-?-?). In the Sūtras, Brahmā is called Prajāpati (Āś. Gṛ. Sū. 3-?; etc.). In the Upaniṣads, Brahmā has become fixed in place of this Supreme Person or Supreme Self."

original p. 643

"In the Maitrāyaṇī Saṃhitā (Mai. Saṃ. 4-?-?) there is a story: Prajāpati became enamoured of his own daughter Uṣas. She took the form of a doe; he too took the same form. Seeing this, Rudra became angry and raised his arrow to shoot; then Prajāpati said to Rudra, 'I will make you lord of all the wild beasts; do not shoot the arrow' (compare 10-?-?). This story comes up many times in the Brāhmaṇas (Ait. Brā. 3-?; Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?; Paṃ. Brā. 8-?-?). Four Ṛks (1-?-?; 10-?-?, ? and ?) that have the suggestion that a father (perhaps the sky-deity) took up improper relations with his daughter (perhaps the earth) seem to be the basis for this story."

"At the beginning of the sūkta 10-121, in the refrain of the nine mantras, it is said that it is not known 'to whom (kasmai)', that is, to which supreme deity [the offering is to be made]. In the tenth mantra the answer is that Prajāpati alone is all-pervading. On this basis, afterwards the meaning 'Prajāpati' came into use for the word 'ka' (Ait. Brā. 3-?-?). It is not an epithet; it is the very name of that deity (Vai. Saṃ. 3-?-?). In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (Tai. Saṃ. 1-?-?-?) it is said plainly that Kaḥ and Prajāpati are one."

"In the first mantra of the sūkta 10-121, Hiranyagarbha ('golden womb') is used for Prajāpati. The use of the word Hiranyagarbha in the Ṛgveda is only one. But in the Atharvaveda and the Brāhmaṇas it is common. In one mantra of the Atharvaveda (Av. 4-?-?) it is said that the water created an embryo and that, at birth, this embryo was golden-coloured. In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā this too is one name of Prajāpati (Tai. Saṃ. 5-?-?-?). In later literature, Hiranyagarbha is one of the names of Brahmā, the creator."

Manyu, Śraddhā and others

"Many more words indicating ideas are counted as deities. Manyu (anger) too has been conceived as a deity. There are two sūktas praising him (10-83, 84). His (Manyu's) power is unobstructed and can be checked by his own strength alone. He blazes like Agni. He is the deity who is called Indra, Varuṇa and Jātavedas. He kills Vṛtra; he is followed by the Maruts; and like Indra he can bestow victory and wealth. Possessed of tapas, he protects his worshippers and kills the haters."

"Only one small sūkta praises Śraddhā ('faith') (10-151). She is praised in the morning, at midday and in the evening. By śraddhā the fire is kindled and the ājya (ghee) homās are carried out. By śraddhā wealth is gained. In the Brāhmaṇas, Śraddhā is a daughter of Sūrya (Śat. Brā. 12-?-?-?) or of Prajāpati (Tai. Brā. 2-?-?-?). In the Purāṇas and Itihāsas many more relations of hers are told."

"Anumati ('favour of the deities') is also stated twice as a deity. She is prayed to be favourable and to give the worshippers the chance to see the sun (10-?-?-); her work of protection too is stated (10-?-?-). In the Atharvaveda and Vājasaneyi Saṃhitās she is the presiding deity of love and an urger of the work of increasing progeny. Later, a relation between her and the moon is imagined in rites; she is held to be the presiding deity of the day before the full moon. Aramati ('devotion' or 'dharma') too is said in an imperfect way to be a deity. Sūnṛtā ('generosity') is also a deity. There are two or three usages (1-?-?-; 10-?-?-). Anunīti ('guidance') is prayed to (10-?-?-; ?) for long life, strength and nourishment. Nirṛti ('disease, decay') too is, in some twelve places, mentioned as the presiding deity of death."

"Some other words that indicate ideas are said to be deities in the Yajurveda and the other Vedas. Kāma ('desire') has obtained divinity in the Atharvaveda (Av. 9-?; 19-?). Here Kāma is not a deity of mere love or affection, as in later literature; all desired things may be obtained from him. His arrows that pierce hearts are mentioned (Av. 3-?-?). He is the first among those who were born (Av. 9-?-?). All these may have come from the sentence in the R̥gveda (10-?-?) that 'the first sprout of the mind was Kāma (desire)'. Time too has been given personality in the idea of a universal power (Av. 19-?, ?). Since a power that lifts up and holds the universe created by Prajāpati was needed, a deity called Skambha ('pillar') seems to have been imagined (Av. 10-?-?). Breath (prāṇa) too is a name of Prajāpati..."

original p. 645

"...(Av. 11-?-?; etc.). In the Atharvaveda many more such deities are found. The idea of Śrī as the presiding deity of beauty or wealth is first seen in the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?)."

Aditi

Aditi.

"There is no complete sūkta praising this goddess; but she is praised in an incidental way in many places, about eighty times. To be praised alone is very rare (8-?-?). Generally she is praised only together with her sons, the Ādityas."

"There is no clear description of her body. She is mostly addressed as 'goddess' (devī); in some places it is said that she is anarvā ('unbroken, not crooked') (3-?-?; 2-?-?). She is much spread out (5-?-?). She is unfathomable, and the breaker of the cow-pens, the great ones (uruvraja) (8-?-?). She is bright and shining, the support of beings (1-?-?; ordinarily this is applied to Mitra and Varuṇa). She belongs to all men (2-?-?), and is said of heaven and earth). She is invoked in the morning, at midday and in the evening (5-?-?)."

"Aditi is the mother of Mitra and Varuṇa (8-?-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-?) and of Aryaman (8-?-?). For this reason she has been called the mother of kings (2-?-?), of excellent sons (3-?-?), of sons rich in strength (8-?-?), of heroic sons (Av. 3-?-?; 11-?-?) or of eight children (10-?-?; Av. 9-?-?). In one place she is called the mother of the Rudras, the daughter of the Vasus and the sister of the Ādityas (8-?-?). In the Atharvaveda (Av. 6-?-?) her brothers and children are all stated. In another (Av. 6-?-?; Vāj. Saṃ. 20-?) she is praised as the mother of Bhakta, the beloved of Ṛta, the able, the undying, the very widely spread, the protector and the skilful leader. Such sentences, and her praise together with her sons the Ādityas, indicate that motherhood is her special mark. Another epithet of hers is pastyā ('housewife') (4-?-?; 8-?-?). This too may indicate her motherhood. In the Itihāsas and Purāṇas, Aditi is the daughter of Dakṣa, the mother of all the deities in general, chiefly of Vivasvān, Sūrya and Viṣṇu in the form of Vāmana. In the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā (Vāj. Saṃ. 29-?; Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?) she is said to be the wife of Viṣṇu."

"In many places (1-?-?; 4-?-?) it is said that she delivers from sin (aṃhas) and grants welfare and security to those who are well protected; but more often she is prayed to release from sin. In the matter of Aditi, so that no mistake may be made, and for protection..."

original p. 646

² "...so that [mistakes] may not be made,' Varuṇa (1-?-?), Agni (4-?-?) and Savitr (5-?-?) are prayed to protect. Aditi, Mitra and Varuṇa are prayed to forgive sins (2-?-?); Aditi and Aryaman to loosen the bonds of sin (8-?-?). The worshippers beg Aditi to make them sinless (1-?-?); that they may follow her rules, and that she should favour them so that no mistakes are made in regard to Varuṇa (8-?-?), and that sinners be kept away (10-?-?). Agni (3-?-?), Savitr (4-?-?), Sūrya, Uṣas, the earth and the sky (10-?-?) are prayed to forgive faults; but the work of release from sin belongs to Aditi and her son Varuṇa; the noose of Varuṇa is well known; and Varuṇa, pleased, takes the noose off as one removes a rope (5-?-?)."

"The derivation of the word 'Aditi' too suggests the same meaning. The root dā means 'to bind, to tie'. From it the word diti is made, meaning 'bondage'. Therefore aditi means 'release, freedom from bondage'. In this very sense it is said that Śunaḥśepa was bound to the sacrificial post (5-?-?). It is natural that Aditi is prayed to release the worshippers, as one releases a bound thief (8-?-?). The word is also used in the sense 'independence'. In one place (1-?-?) there is: 'Who will give us back Aditi (independence), that I may see my father and mother?' The Ādityas are prayed to make the homa sinless (anāgastva) and independent (aditva) (2-?-?). When she is longed for as one seen by earth and sky, strong and boundless, Aditi must mean just this (1-?-?). The word aditi is also used many times as an epithet in the sense 'boundless'. In this sense it is used twice as an epithet of the sky-deity (5-?-?; 10-?-?) and many times of Agni (1-?-?; 4-?-?; 6-?-?; 8-?-?)."

"Since this name does not give any definite meaning in this way, it gives room for various guesses. Because deity-lineage and the creations of the universe are relevant, Aditi has become the name of various deities. The deities were born of Aditi, water and earth (10-?-?). The boundless sky (dyaur aditiḥ) provided the nectar for all those deities (10-?-?). In other places (2-?-?; Av. 7-?-?) it is said that Aditi and the earth are one; this identity is stated specially in the Taittirīya Saṃhitā and Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa. In the Nirukta it is said that Aditi indicates the earth, and that the word aditi, in the dual, indicates heaven and earth. But in the R̥gveda they are thought of as separate; in one single mantra, heaven, earth and Aditi are all spoken of (10-?-?; etc.). In another place Aditi means 'nature' (1-?-?): 'Aditi is the sky, the air, the mother, the father...'

original p. 647

"...and the son; Aditi is all the deities and the five peoples; Aditi is whatever is born or will be born' (Kaśopaniṣat 4-?)."

"As stated in the histories of the Ṛgveda, Aditi is the mother of the Āditya named Dakṣa (2-?-?). But in a sūkta that deals with the creation of the universe (10-?-?, ?), Aditi is the mother of Dakṣa and also his daughter; such a relation is new in the Ṛgveda (compare 10-?-?). In two other places (10-?-?; 10-?-?) the mutual relation of Dakṣa and Aditi is quite peculiar; to say that Aditi is the mother of Dakṣa is not what is mainly seen; she appears to be subordinate to him. Though she is the mother of some principal deities, she is only an ordinary figure. She praises Savitr, together with her sons Varuṇa, Mitra and Aryaman (2-?-?), and she composed a hymn for Indra (8-?-?; 5-?-?; compare)."

"Since she is the mother of the Ādityas, who are full of lustre, there is a little connection of lustre. She is prayed to give light (4-?-?; 10-?-?); her undying light is praised (2-?-?), and Uṣas is called her face (1-?-?). In an indefinite way, ordinary prayers are directed to her as to other deities: that the worshippers should be protected in their offspring and their cows, or blessed (8-?-?, ?; 1-?-?). Wealth too is obtainable from her (2-?-?). The favour of Aditi, who is pure, unbroken, divine and undying, is prayed for (1-?-?), and the favour of the Maruts is compared to the benevolent works of Aditi (1-?-?)."

"In some sentences of the Ṛgveda (1-?-?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?; etc.) and in other Vedas (Vāj. Saṃ. 13-?-?) Aditi is spoken of as a cow, and in sacrifices too the cow is called Aditi. The Soma juice of the earth is compared to the udder of Aditi (9-?-?). In the Soma flowing into the droṇa vessel, subdued by the daughter of Aditi, the milk too must be intended (9-?-?). In the context where the priests purify, with their ten fingers, the Soma that lies in Aditi's lap (9-?-?; 9-?-?), too, the same sense must be meant."

"From the sentences cited above, two qualities of Aditi stand out. The first is motherhood. Among the names derived from her name, such as Āditya and Āditeya, she is the mother of the deities. The second is that which is indicated by the root of the word: the power that rescues from distress and from moral falls. To suggest her boundless prosperity she may be imagined as the cow, the earth, heaven, or the universe. From this, that Aditi..."

original p. 648

"...is the mother of the Ādityas cannot be supported. Some hold that, since it is said 'dyaus aditiḥ' ('Dyaus is Aditi'), that the boundless sky-natured mother gives milk to the deities (10-?-?), the idea of mother for the Ādityas and others has come about. If one takes this view, her power of releasing from bondage is not satisfactorily explained. It may be explained in another way. In the phrase aditeḥ putrāḥ ('sons of Aditi'), often used for the Ādityas, the sense may be 'sons of independence'. Usages such as śavaśaḥ sūnum and sahasāḥ putrāḥ support this. As, from śavaśaḥ sūnum ('son of strength'), the name of Indra's mother has become fixed as Śavasī, and, from śacīpati, Śacī as Indra's wife, so, from aditeḥ putrāḥ, the idea that Aditi too is a deity has probably come. By the meaning 'independence' of the word aditi, this deity is without bonds. The quality of being a cause of freedom from bonds comes by itself. Through contact with the Ādityas and the rest, lustre and the like are ascribed. Since the main deities are mothers of some or of the deities in general, the descriptions such as 'mother of the world' too, when she is joined with earth, sky, universe or the sky-deity, come naturally."

"In the Nirukta it is said that Aditi is the earth, speech, the cow, and, with the dual ending, (aditī) heaven and earth are equal to them. Yāska describes Aditi as the mother of the deities, and says that she should be placed in the atmosphere, the Ādityas in the heaven-world, and Varuṇa in both places."

Diti

Diti. "This word Diti occurs in the Ṛgveda only three times, and in two of them together with Aditi. Mitra and Varuṇa, seated in their chariot, look at Aditi and Diti (5-?-?). Here Sāyaṇācārya has explained the word aditi as the 'unbroken earth' and diti as the various classes of beings on the earth. Modern scholars like Roth explain these words as 'eternal and non-eternal, or permanent and perishable things'. In the second sentence (4-?-?) Diti's favour and Aditi's protection are prayed from Agni. According to Sāyaṇa, diti here means 'generous giver' and aditi 'a niggardly giver'. Roth takes them as 'poverty and wealth'. In the opinion of Bergaigne, the feminine deities Aditi and Diti are intended. But it may not be so here. It is clear that these words, derived from the root dā ('to give'), give the senses 'one who gives' and 'one who does not give'. This sense appears appropriate to the context and to the order in which the words are used from both viewpoints. In the third sentence (2-?-?) the word diti..."

original p. 649

"[is used] only together with Agni, Savitṛ and Bhaga, in the sense 'giver of desirable things'. In other Saṃhitās too, diti is used with aditi (Vāj. Saṃ. 13-?; Av. 13-?-?; 11-?-?). In the Atharvaveda her sons too are mentioned (Av. 2-?-?); they are the Daityas. Later they become enemies of the deities. As the word sura (deity) was formed from asura (Rākṣasa), Diti was conceived as a deity in opposition to Aditi; there does not seem to be a deity called Diti existing independently."

Female Deities (Strī devategaḷu)

"In the Vedic religion and rites the place of the female deities is very minor: in the management of the world they have, one may say, no hand. The chief among the female deities is the goddess Uṣas. Taking the number of sūktas, she is of the third rank. But as with the male deities, Soma has no share for the goddess Uṣas. After Uṣas the chief female deity is Sarasvatī; but she seems to be of a lower rank. Again, some are praised each in one sūkta: there is hardly any way of separating Pṛthivī from the sky-deity; there are only three mantras in the sūkta that praises her. The deity Night is also praised in one sūkta (10-127). She is the sister of the goddess Uṣas, and she too is a daughter of the sky (dyauh). By 'Night' is not meant a dark night; she is a night adorned with stars, and full of lustre. With her many eyes she shines in many forms. Adorned with all kinds of lights, she makes the darkness fly with her radiance, and covers mountain, valley, everything. As she comes near, all men, like birds going to their nests, return to their houses. She is prayed to drive away thieves, wolves and so on in the time of night, and to bring men to a safe place. She is often praised as a paired deity with Uṣas. Deity-hood may be ascribed to every night by the dawn."

"Taking speech (bhāṣā) as a person, a sūkta (10-125) praises Vāk ('Speech'). In this sūkta the goddess describes herself. She follows all the deities and is the support of Mitra-Varuṇa, Indra, Agni and the Aśvins. For the one without faith she turns Rudra's bow. She pervades the water, the ocean, all living beings. In another place (8-100-10, 11) she is called the queen of the deities and the goddess (devīm vācam). In the Nirukta (Nir. 11-?) Vāk is one of the deities of the atmosphere, the thunder; or, as the commentators of the Nirukta say, the middle Vāk (the sound of the middle world, Nir. 11-?) may have been the beginning of the personification. A story is told about Vāk in the Brāhmaṇas too: when Soma was being brought from the neighbourhood of the Gandharvas, they bought Vāk, one..."

original p. 650

¹ "...one of them, changing [her] into a woman, gave her as the price of the Soma juice (Ait. Brā. 1-?). Purandhi ('the fruitful, abundant'), who occurs about nine times in the Ṛgveda, is the presiding deity of prosperity. Generally she is used together with Bhaga; two or three times only with Pūṣan and Savitr, and once with Viṣṇu and with Agni. Another deity indicating the same prosperity, Dhiṣaṇā, is found some twelve times. Ilā is another. It has occurred not less than twelve times. The homa of milk and butter has become the presiding deity of the increase of cows. In the Brāhmaṇas, though Iḍā is not a name of the cow, it is used at every step with cows. In the Nirukta iḍā and ilā are among the names of the cow (Nir. 2-?-?). It must be in the form of homa that she is described as ghee-handed (ghṛtahastā, 2-?-?) and ghee-footed (ghṛtapadī, 10-?-?). This Ilā, in deity-form, is generally found in the Āprī-sūktas; there too in a group (a triad of deities) with Sarasvatī and Mahī or Bhāratī. In the phrase 'ilāyāḥ pade' it is doubtful whether the ordinary meaning or the deity is meant. Once Agni is called the son of Ilā (3-?-?, ?). Purūravas too is her son (10-?-?). Once she is called the mother of the herd and related to Urvaśī (5-?-?). In relation to the morning pressing she is mentioned together with Dadhikrāvan and the Ásvins (2-?-?). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa she is called the daughter of Manu (1-?-?-?; 11-?-?-?) and of Mitra-Varuṇa (1-?-?-?; 14-?-?-?; Āś. Śrau. Sū. 1-?-?-?)."

"The name of a deity called Brhaddivā has come four times in the sūktas of the Viśve-devas. She is called Mātā ('mother') in one place (10-?-?). She is mentioned twice together with Ilā (3-?-?; 5-?-?) and once with Sarasvatī and Rākā (5-?-?). Rākā (perhaps formed from the root rā, 'to give'), a deity full of prosperity and abundance, is praised in two places along with other deities (2-?-?; 5-?-?). The name Sinīvālī has occurred in two sūktas (2-?; 10-?). She is the sister of the deities; one with beautiful arms and fingers; prosperous; mistress of the household; she is prayed to grant offspring. She is praised with Sarasvatī, Rākā and Gungū (the word Gungū is used only once). In the Atharvaveda (Av. 8-?-?) Sinīvālī is the wife of Viṣṇu. In other Vedas and Brāhmaṇas, Kuhū is the presiding deity of the new-moon day; in other Vedas, Rākā is the presiding deity of the day of the full moon, and Sinīvālī of the day before the new moon. There is no basis for this in the Ṛgveda."

"As the occasion has come, some other female deities have been mentioned before.

Pṛśni

, the mother of the Maruts (1-?-?), must be the cloud of various colours. This word..."

original p. 651

"...is used with the sense 'spotted'; in the singular for both the bull and the cow, and, in the plural, as an epithet of the cows that are milked for Indra's Soma juice (1-?-?; 8-?-?; 8-?-?; 8-?-?). Thus pṛśni means a variegated cow, a cloud. Saraṇyū, wife of Vivasvān and daughter of Tvaṣṭṛ, is mentioned once (10-?-?). This Saraṇyū may be Sūryā or Uṣas. The meaning of this word is 'swift, going quickly'. It is seen used in this sense four times. It must be a word formed by adding the suffix yu to saraṇa ('speed'; from the root sr, 'to run')."

"Although these female deities are wives of the great deities, they do not hold so very important a place. The great deities such as Indra must have had wives; hence these names occur. Nothing else is said of them. These names too are generally not new: from words like Indra with the suffix āṇī added, words such as Indrāṇī, Varuṇāṇī, Āgnāyī have been used. The word Rudrāṇī is found only in the Sūtras; but Rudrāṇī and the others, Indrāṇī etc., are not prominent in the Śrauta rites. The wife of the Aśvins is Aśvinī. The wives of the deities (devānāṃ patnīḥ), who are used in an imperfect way in the Ṛgveda, have a distinct place in the Brāhmaṇas and so on (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?)."

Paired Deities (Devatā dvandvagaḷu)

"A peculiarity of Vedic history is the praising of many deities in pairs. In these pairs both words have case-endings and accents. About twelve pairs of deities are praised in this way in about sixty sūktas. Among these it is mostly Indra who is joined with other deities. In seven pairs or more, Indra shows himself. But the greatest number of sūktas — twenty-three sūktas and some portions of sūktas — is for the pair of Mitra and Varuṇa. Eleven for Indra and Agni, nine for Indra and Varuṇa, seven for Indra and Vāyu, six for Heaven and Earth; two each for Indra and Soma and for Indra and Bṛhaspati; one each for Indra and Viṣṇu, Indra and Pūṣan, Soma and Pūṣan, Soma and Rudra, and Agni and Soma. Besides these, along with the deities mentioned above, some more pairs, joined with eight or nine other deities, are praised in whole mantras. Indrā-Nāsatyā, Indrā-Parvatā, Indrā-Marutaḥ, Agnī-Parjanya, Parjanya-Vātā (once Vātā-Parjanya), Uṣāsānaktā, Naktoṣāsā, Sūryāmāsā, Sūryācandramasā and so on."

"It must have begun with Dyāvāprthivī, where the use of such paired words in the Vedas is more prevalent. In nature there are no objects more firmly bound together than heaven and earth..."

original p. 652

"...and in this way both came to be thought of as a married pair (dampatī). In the Ṛgveda, among the six sūktas addressed to Heaven and Earth, not one praises the sky-deity alone. Only one small sūkta of three Ṛks praises the earth (alone); even there the sky-deity is referred to (5-?-?). The names of these deities, rather than appearing singly, occur more often as a pair. Counting also the imperfect usages dyāvākṣāmā, dyāvābhūmī, there are about a hundred usages. There is no other pair stated so many times. Heaven and earth also have the name Rodasī (said to mean 'sisters', 1-?-?). It occurs about a hundred times. Earth and sky are the Fathers; for them there are epithets such as pitarā, mātarā, janitrī; and singly there is the address 'father and mother' (1-?-?, ?; 1-?-?). They are the original parents of the universe (2-?-?; 10-?-?). The Aitareya Brāhmaṇa speaks of their marriage (Ai. Brā. 4-?-?, ?). They created all beings; they are the cause of their existence (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 1-?-?). Though themselves without feet, they make many creatures stand on their feet (1-?-?). They are also the parents of the deities; they alone have the name devaputre ('having the deities as children'). In particular, they are the father and mother of Br̥haspati (2-?-?); and the waters, together with Vṛtra and Tvaṣṭṛ, generated Agni (10-?-?). It is also said that they were created by some other deities. One who created earth and sky must have been a most skilful workman (1-?-?; 4-?-?). Indra created them or gave them form (6-?-?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-?). Viśvakarman fashioned them (10-?-?; compare Av. 13-?-?). They obtained their bodies from Tvaṣṭṛ (10-?-?). They were born in order from the head and feet of the Virāṭ-Puruṣa (10-?-?). How were these two born? Which of the two was born first? — this is asked at one place (1-?-?). In the epithets of Heaven and Earth many come from their physical features. One is a great bull, and the other a cow of various colours (1-?-?). Both bear abundant seed (1-?-?; 6-?-?). Both milk milk, ghee and honey abundantly (6-?-?, ?) and produce immortality (1-?-?; 1-?-?). They never grow old (6-?-?). They are wide (1-?-?) and spread out (1-?-?). They have spacious, great dwelling-places (1-?-?). They have pleasing faces, spreading widely, of many forms (1-?-?, ?). Sometimes moral qualities are also stated: the wise ones, they encourage righteousness (1-?-?). These parents protect living beings (1-?-?), and see that they do not suffer disgrace and misfortune (1-?-?). They grant food and wealth (6-?-?; 1-?-?; or 1-?-?) or fame and authority (1-?-?). They are the leaders in the sacrifice; sitting round the sacrificial seat (4-?-?, ?), they come to the sacrifices together with the other creatures of heaven (2-?-?) or take the shares of the sacrifice to the deities and join them (3-?-?). But in sacrifices they do not hold a chief position like the other deities. These two deities have an equal place and equal honour."

original p. 653

"In other pairs of deities, one deity has more prominence. The many qualities of that deity are found also in the other deity. For example, Indra and Agni are both wielders of the vajra-weapon, and slayers of Vṛtra. In general, the qualities of the less prominent deity are stated also of the principal deity. Indra and Viṣṇu both took wide steps (6-?-?). Since it is said so at every step, the quality which is not found naturally in the deity too becomes proper for that deity. Thus it is said that Agni killed Vṛtra. In some sentences the qualities of each are stated separately."

"Except for Heaven and Earth, the principal paired deities are Mitra and Varuṇa. The number of sūktas praising this pair exceeds the number of sūktas addressed to each of them separately. Mitra's personal qualities are very few, or one may say there are none. Hence the special characteristics of Varuṇa have been said of the pair Mitrāvaruṇa. Once the subject of the deity Varuṇa has been dealt with at length, it is unnecessary to speak of this pair. Both are young (3-?-?; 6-?-?). Like many other deities, they flow (are candra), are pure (śuci) and are like Sūrya. They are of ruddy colour, and terrible. Observing that the first word in this pair is always Mitra, it may be that Mitra was the chief deity and has now, for some other reason, become secondary; or it may have been the custom to put the shorter word at the beginning of a compound."

"Indra and Varuṇa are rulers of the world (1-?-?); they broke open channels for water to flow and made the sun move in the atmosphere (6-?-?). They are the killers of Vṛtra (6-?-?); they help in battle (4-?-?); and grant victory (1-?-?). In times of difficulty they use their fierce vajra-weapon (4-?-?). They show mercy to those who are protected, increased, famed, wealthy and who have countless horses (4-?-?, ?; 6-?-?). They drink the Soma that has been pressed. Their chariot comes to the sacrifice; they are prayed to be satisfied by sitting on the kuśa seat and drinking Soma (6-?-?, ?). In some more sentences, the personal qualities of the two are stated separately. Varuṇa is prayed not to be angry with the worshipper, and Indra to give them a spacious place (2-?-?). Indra is the deity who loves war, who kills the Asura Vṛtra; Varuṇa, in contrast, gives men knowledge and peace (6-?-?; 7-?-?, ?; 7-?-?). The relation of Indra and Agni is very close..."

original p. 654

¹ "...[The relation of Indra and Agni is very close]. There are as many sūktas praising the pair Indra–Agni as there are praising Indra and any other deity. Moreover, it is rare that Agni, apart from Indra, is counted as a pair with some other deity: one sūkta and two mantras praise Agni and Soma, and one mantra Agni and Parjanya. Indra and Agni are the foremost of all who drink Soma (1-?-?); in order to drink Soma they come in their chariot (1-?-?). Both together are to come and drink (2-?-?; 8-?-?, ?, ?); they are invited to sit on the seat of kuśa grass and drink the pressed Soma as they wish and become intoxicated (1-?-?). It is said that they kill Vṛtra together. They are wielders of the vajra-weapon (6-?-?; etc.); their grip is very sharp (5-?-?). Joining together they destroyed ninety-nine forts (3-?-?) and none can face them in battle (5-?-?). They freed the imprisoned rivers (8-?-?) and together have done many more deeds of valour (1-?-?). They are generous (5-?-?). All of this is a peculiarity of Indra. Both Indra and Agni choose sacrificial priests (8-?-?) and wise ones (8-?-?). It is they who drive away Piśācas and the householders of the house (1-?-?). That these qualities suit Agni is the very point of the sūkta. The two are children of one father and are twins (6-?-?). It must be because of this close kinship that they have been called Áśvins once (1-?-?). They grant food, wealth, strength, cows and everything (8-?-?, ?), earth and sky, rivers and mountains, and what is greater than all (1-?-?). A difference between the two is stated in one place; but there it is not said with regard to the pair-deity: 'Indra killed the Dasyus and Agni burns them' (6-?-?). Indra and Br̥haspati are praised in only two sūktas (4-?; 6-?); there, chiefly, the invitation to drink Soma, and the favour of wealth including horses and the like, and the increase of devotion, are the subjects. In the case of Indra and Vāyu, nothing is said except the invitation to drink Soma (1-?-?, ?; etc.); they come with their horses (4-?-?, ?, ?) or in a chariot with a golden seat (4-?-?), and sit on the kuśa seat in the sacrificial hall (2-?-?). They are lords of a thousand eyes, of understanding (1-?-?) and of strength (4-?-?). They help in battle (2-?-?) and bestow wealth in the form of cows, horses and gold (2-?-?). Indra and Soma perform daring deeds with Indra's special characteristics, or the deeds of the creation of the world performed by Indra. They make water flow for men's use; they set free the seven rivers; they killed the serpent and cast the wheel of Sūrya downward (4-?-?, ?; 6-?-?). Their great service is to destroy enemies, to split rocks, and to bring out things (4-?-?, ?). They found Sūrya and the lights..."

original p. 655

"...[They] removed darkness, made Sūrya shine, held up the sky like a pillar and spread out the earth; these are the great deeds they did at the beginning of creation (6-?-?, ?). They are also the ones who made ripe milk in the cows (6-?-?), and they grant to men the powers and abilities that give victory (6-?-?). Indra and Viṣṇu are the ones to whom the Soma juice is a refuge; they are called 'intoxication-wedded' (i.e. subject to the intoxication produced by Soma). They are invited to come with their horses, drink Soma and fill their bellies. Having drunk Soma and become intoxicated, they set out, spread out the sphere of the air, and widened the regions of the earth for people to live in. These two, always victorious, grant lordship and protect from sin. They are the root of all praise; they are prayed to take pleasure in the praise-songs of the worshippers (6-?). Indra and Pūṣan are praised only in one small sūkta (6-?), and this pair Indrāpūṣanau occurs only twice. When Indra caused the water to flow, Pūṣan was his companion. Accompanied by Pūṣan, Indra kills Vṛtra (6-?-?). One of them drinks Soma, the horses draw his chariot, and he kills Vṛtra; the other has she-goats to draw his chariot, and what he drinks is gruel. The dwelling-place of Indra and Pūṣan is spoken of in one place (1-?-?); a she-goat goes there, taking the sacrificial horse. Welfare, lordship and the rest are asked of both."

"Soma and Pūṣan (2-?) drive away enemies and make the chariot with seven wheels and five rims go swiftly, and are prayed to measure the sky by it. They are the ones who created wealth and the sky and earth, and the protectors of the world (compare 10-?-?); the deities made them eternal or placed them in the state of immortality. Indra is prayed to produce the best milk in the cows for their sake. Both, being alone, give victory over enemies and boundless wealth and food. There is a difference between the two. One lives in the very high sphere of the air, the other on the earth or in the atmosphere. One created all beings; the other moves, looking at all beings. Soma and Rudra are praised in the sūkta 6-?. They are to drive disease out of the houses. They are prayed that all the herbs may be in the bodies of the worshippers always, that they may be sinless, and that they be released from the noose of Varuṇa. They are also begged to be merciful, being armed with sharp weapons. Agni and Soma are praised as those who set free the obstructed streams, who brought light and who stirred masses of lustre in the sky. But in the matter of the source of these two..."

original p. 656

"...there is a difference. One is said to have been brought from heaven (1-?). It is prayed that both together help and grant cows, horses, offspring, health, happiness and lordship (10-?-?; 10-?-?).

This pair occurs many times in the Atharvaveda. In the Maitrāyaṇī Saṃhitā (Mai. Saṃ. 3-?-?) the two have two eyes. In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?) these two are brothers; Sūrya belongs to Agni and the Moon to Soma (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?); in sacrifices Agni does not get Soma's share of Soma, and they offer only the puroḍāśa cake and animals to him. The pair Agnīṣomau comes up at every step in sacrifices. But in the Veda the praise of them is one sūkta only (1-?). Apart from that, twice only is the name of the pair found in the whole Ṛgveda. It is surprising that so important a pair of deities has so insignificant a place."

"Some more pairs of deities are praised here and there in a mantra. Agni and Parjanya are praised in one mantra (6-?-?). Both are desired for food and offspring; but it is said that one produces the homa (Iḷā) and the other the embryo (garbha). There are four mantras on Parjanya and Vāta. They, as bulls on the earth (6-?-?), are prayed to bring out the cows (waters). Together with Indra, Vāyu and other deities they are called the balls filled with water (10-?-?). In another list of deities, they grant immeasurable food (6-?-?). In one place (10-?-?; compare Nir. 2-?) they are said to belong to the roaring buffalo (probably the sky-deity). Uṣas and the nights are praised many times. In the sūktas addressed to the Viśve-devas, the pair Uṣāsā-naktā is praised specially. They are female deities rich in wealth (3-?-?; 10-?-?); maidens of the deity-world (2-?-?; 10-?-?) and daughters of the sky (3-?-?; 10-?-?). Both are wives (1-?-?) and, wishing freely, give milk (2-?-?); changing their colours, the two nourish a single child with their breast and make it grow. That child shines between earth and sky (1-?-?). The two are sisters. Though their mind is one, only the colour is different. The two have one path of movement, and it has no end. Being taught by the deities, they move one after the other; they do not collide, and yet they do not stand still (1-?-?). They are the mothers of Ṛta (truth, rule, sacrifice) (1-?-?). They cause each of the works of sacrifice to shine by their rays (3-?-?) and bring the works of sacrifice to completion with all their limbs (2-?-?). Generous, great, seated on the kuśa seat (2-?-?), great, handsome and well adorned..."

original p. 657

"...(10-?-?; 10-?-?; 1-?-?; 1-?-?). After one has gone, the other shines and makes all beings wakeful (3-?-?). Sūrya and the moon are mentioned five times as Sūryāmāsā and three times as Sūryācandramasā. In many contexts the masses of light that we see are intended. They move, one after another, for our sight (10-?-?). The sun and the moon move one after the other by the command of Bṛhaspati (10-?-?). The creator made the forms of the sun and the moon (10-?-?). 'As the sun and the moon do, so may we walk in our appointed ways' is said in one place (5-?-?). When praised together with other deities, they seem to be thought of as deities (10-?-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-?). In some sentences the pair of sun and moon is not clearly named, but it appears to be spoken of. The two, like children, revolve round the sacrificial hall; one looks at all beings, and the other, fixing the seasons, is born again and again (10-?-?). The two beautiful eyes of Varuṇa (8-?-?) and the two eyes of the sky made by the immortals (1-?-?): in both these contexts the sun and moon must be meant."

Groups of Deities (Devatāgaṇagaḷu)

"Some groups of deities connected with some principal deity are customary. The chief of these is the Marut group. The number of deities in this group, as in the Ṛgveda itself, is from twenty-one to one hundred and eighty (8-?-?-?; 1-?-?-?), and, as said before, they are always helpers of Indra in his bold deeds. For this group, sometimes, they are called Rudras, after the name of their father Rudra (2-?-?-?; 2-?-?-?). In the Brāhmaṇas, the Rudras are a separate group. In this group there are eleven (Ait. Brā. and Śat. Brā.) or thirty-three (Tai. Saṃ. 1-?-?-?) deities. The Ādityas are a smaller group than this. Of these there are seven or eight (9-?-?-?; 10-?-?-?); but in the Brāhmaṇas the number of deities in this same group is twelve. In the Ṛgveda they are always together with their mother Aditi (2-?-?-?) or with Varuṇa, their leader (2-?-?-?). Of all, even more than the Maruts, this group of the Ādityas is more clearly distinct. In the Āditya group each deity has a separate name. There is another group, mentioned many times in the Ṛgveda: the Vasus. At present this is less clear than the Marut and Āditya groups. In one sentence, as the Ādityas are praised with Aditi or Varuṇa, and the Rudras with Rudra, the Vasus are praised with Indra (2-?-?-?; 2-?-?-?). From this it may be said that Indra is the leader of the Vasus. But in other Vedas and Brāhmaṇas,..."

original p. 658

¹ "...Agni is the leader of the Vasu group. In the Aitareya and Śatapatha Brāhmaṇas their number is eight; but in the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (Tai. Saṃ. 4-?-?-?) they are 333 persons. The three groups, Ādityas, Rudras and Vasus, are in some places praised together (2-?-?; 10-?-?; compare 2-?-?; 3-?-?). A difference among these three groups is imagined in the Brāhmaṇas: the Vasus are on earth, the Rudras in the sphere of the air, and the Ādityas in the heaven-world (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?; 4-?-?-?). In the Chāndogya Upaniṣad (3-?, from 6 to 10) five groups are stated: the Vasus are joined with Agni, the Rudras with Indra, the Ādityas with Varuṇa, the Maruts with Soma, and the Sādhyas with Brahmā (compare 10-?-?, ?). There is a group of the Aṅgirases, counted as slightly more or less than deities, and connected with Bṛhaspati. There is a group of three persons, the Ṛbhus, who are generally always together with Indra. Last of all there is the group called the Viśve-devāḥ ('all the deities'). It has a very prominent place in sacrifices. Fifty sūktas are devoted to their praise. Probably this group was formed with the intention that, when all the deities are invoked, none should be left out. But sometimes, when the Vasus, Ādityas and so on are praised along with them, it seems that the Viśve-devas are not all the deities."

Lower Deities — the Ṛbhus (Adhama devategaḷu — Ṛbhugaḷu)

"In the Ṛgveda, besides the superior deities already discussed, there are some imaginary persons who have not obtained a natural and complete deity-hood. Among them the most important are the Ṛbhus. There are eleven sūktas praising them, and their name occurs more than a hundred times. They are a group of three deities. Their individual names are Ṛbhu or sometimes Ṛbhukṣan (leader of the Ṛbhus), Vāja and Vibhvan. At many places all three names are said together; sometimes Ṛbhu alone is said, or in the plural Ṛbhavaḥ. Whichever of the three names is used in the plural, it is understood as the triad of deities. Sometimes the plural forms of three words, or the plural forms of two words, are used unnecessarily (4-?-?; 4-?-?). In one place (4-?-?) there is the usage 'vājo vibhvā ṛbhavaḥ'. In some places the Viśve-devas appear to be indicated by these words ('all the Ṛbhus' (2-?-?), 'Ṛbhu accompanied by the Ṛbhus, Vibhvan accompanied by the Vibhus' (2-?-?); they are invoked). Among the Ṛbhus, the elder, the younger and the middle-aged have also made their differences clear, in accordance with age (4-?-?)."

"The sons of Sudhanvan, that is, 'the good archer', are said to be called Saudhanvanas; twelve passages call the Ṛbhus so. All three together are called sons of Indra (4-?-?). In the same mantra they are also called 'children of strength'..."

original p. 659

"[(śavaso napātaḥ)]. This epithet, apart from once for Mitra and Varuṇa, is used for them in all the other places (five times). In (3-?-?) they are called sons of Manu. Their fathers too are stated in many places. In one sūkta Agni is called their brother (1-?-?, ?)."

"They have been invoked again and again to come to the sacrificial hall and drink Soma (4-?-?; 4-?-?; 2-?-?; 4-?-?, ?; 4-?-?). Since their dwellings are in the upper world, an invitation is made to them to come to this lower world, where the Soma juice is (4-?-?). In this context they are generally with Indra (3-?-? to ?; 4-?-?; 4-?-?; 4-?-?; 4-?-?); sometimes with the Maruts (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 4-?-?), once with the Ādityas, Savitr, the mountains and the rivers (4-?-?). In other matters too they have very great nearness to Indra. They are like Indra (4-?-?), and Ṛbhu is like a new Indra (1-?-?). Joined with Indra, they become helpers of men in the work of conquering enemies (4-?-?) and are prayed to help Indra in conquering enemies (2-?-?). The Ṛbhus were the first to create the forms of Indra's horses; by this skill they gained Indra's friendship (3-?-?; 4-?-?, ?). In the sūktas that praise them, they are not praised with any deity other than Indra; only in one mantra (4-?-?) the name of Indra is not mentioned. How close the relation between Indra and them is, is shown by the fact that the word ṛbhukṣā ('leader of the Ṛbhus') is applied to Indra too; and the same word is used two or three times of the Maruts. In the sūktas addressed to the Viśve-devas they are joined with some other deities (mainly with Tvaṣṭṛ)."

"The description of the body of the Ṛbhus or their weapons and such materials is very small. In form they are like Sūrya (1-?-?). They have a chariot drawn by horses (1-?-?). Their chariot flows, and their horses are strong; they bear iron helmets and charming necklaces (4-?-?). Ṛbhu too is one with horses (like the Aśvins, 4-?-?). The extraordinary skill and the dexterity of the Ṛbhus (4-?-?, ?, etc.) cannot be imitated (3-?-?). It is said again and again that they obtained deity-hood by their skill. By their wondrous deeds they obtained deity-hood (3-?-?). By their skilful works they obtained deity-hood and immortality, and like eagles dwelt in heaven (4-?-?). The men of the sphere of the air, by their own power, climbed to heaven (1-?-?). By their intelligent works, by the path of immortality, they joined the deities (4-?-?), and, immortal like them, gained their friendship (4-?-?, ?, "

original p. 660

"4-?-?, 4-?-?). They were mortals at first, the sons of Manu, and afterwards, desiring deity-hood, obtained it (3-?-?; 1-?-?). In the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa (Ai. Brā. 3-?-?) it is said that the Ṛbhus, who had been men, by the greatness of their penance attained the right to drink Soma like the deities. By their work the deities were greatly pleased; hence Vāja became a craftsman for the deities, Ṛbhukṣan for Indra, and Vibhvan for Varuṇa (4-?-?). Coming near to the deities and showing their skill, they obtained the sacrifice, or a share in the sacrifice, through it (1-?-?, ?; 1-?-?, ?). For that reason the third or evening pressing belongs to them. They obtained it by their skilful work (1-?-?; 4-?-?; 4-?-?; 4-?-?). Hence they are sometimes invoked plainly as deities (4-?-?, ?; 4-?-?)."

"As one prays to the great deities, they too are prayed to grant prosperity and lordship (4-?-?; 4-?-?), cows, horses and heroic sons (4-?-?), and strength, nourishment, offspring and skill (1-?-?). The Ṛbhus show favour to the one who prepares Soma (1-?-?; 4-?-?)."

He who has obtained their help becomes unconquerable in battle (4-?-?). Ṛbhu and Vāja are prayed to be helpers in battle and to gain victory (1-?-?)."

"In describing the skilful works done by them, the root takṣ, generally used of Tvaṣṭṛ, is used. What they have achieved is five great deeds. In general, in every sūkta praising the Ṛbhus there is a reference to these works. They built a chariot without horses, without reins, with three wheels, which could travel in the space in between (4-?-?; 1-?-?; 1-?-?; 4-?-?; 4-?-?). The Ṛbhus built a chariot of circular shape for the Ásvinī deities (the Ásvins) (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 10-?-?). In the mantra 4-?-?, each of their works is stated in one word each. Here it is said that they made the Ásvins. This too may be applied to the building of the chariot of those deities."

"For the sake of Indra they created two tawny horses (haris); these horses carry him swiftly in the air (4-?-?; etc.). Though it is said that they wished to create a horse, or that they created two horses one after another, what is meant is the work stated above (1-?-?, ?)."

"A cow that gives immortality (1-?-?), is a stimulant, and has all forms (4-?-?), was created by them (1-?-?; 4-?-?). The Ṛbhus made this cow out of a skin (1-?-?) or brought it out of a skin (1-?-?; etc.). They themselves..."

original p. 661

"...protected it and made its flesh grow (4-?-?). Indra yoked to the chariot the two tawny horses created by the Ṛbhus; the Ásvins built the chariot, and Bṛhaspati brought out the cow of all forms (1-?-?). From this sentence it can be said that the cow was made by the Ṛbhus for Bṛhaspati. Another ordinary work is also said; it probably relates to the earlier creation of cows; that is, they reunited a mother and her calf, who had become separated (1-?-?; 1-?-?)."

"They made their father and mother, who had become very weak, like worm-eaten posts, youthful again (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 4-?-?). They made the two aged ones (father and mother) young again (1-?-?, ?). In 4-?-?, summarizing the works they achieved, it is said that they gave a form to their parents. Here too rejuvenation must be what is intended. That they gave youth to their aged parents, and made them move about again, is praised by all the deities (4-?-?). In the first mantra of the same sūkta (4-?) it is said that making Heaven and Earth grow shows that they possess divine power (probably this is the work of rejuvenation of the parents)."

"The greatest praise is of their skill itself, and that is their best quality. In this part, they made from one wondrous bowl made by Tvaṣṭṛ four equal bowls (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 4-?-?, ?; 4-?-?). This bowl is a means by which the deities (1-?-?; 4-?-?) or the 'Asura' (1-?-?) drink. If the deities, with Agni's help, make this one bowl into four for the Ṛbhus, said the deities, 'we too shall give you worship' (1-?-?, ?). Tvaṣṭṛ praised this effort of the Ṛbhus to turn one bowl into two, three or four, and when four bowls were made, he accepted them (4-?-?, ?). In another sentence it is contradicted (1-?-?). As soon as he saw the four bowls, Tvaṣṭṛ hid himself among the wives and wished to kill the Ṛbhus, who had defiled the bowls from which the deities drink; but in the preceding mantra the Ṛbhus themselves say that they did not wish to defile it. In order to gain fame among the deities, the Ṛbhus ruled the wide bowls as one rules the earth (1-?-?) — thus is the description. It is said that they made the bowls or gave them forms (1-?-?; 3-?-?; 4-?-?)."

"They established the prayer-sentences (10-?-?) and the sacrifice (3-?-?). When it is said that they created the two worlds (4-?-?) or became supports of the sky (10-?-?), their skill is again suggested."

² "Another story connects them with Savitr̥. Tired out by the wind, they moved swiftly round the sky (4-?-?; compare 1-?-?). After a long journey they arrived at the house of Savitr̥ named Agohya. Then Savitr̥ granted them immortality (1-?-?, ?). Afterwards, accepting his hospitality and being satisfied, they slept there for twelve days; then they made the best fields; they made water flow there; fields grew crops in barren land, and water flowed into all the low places (4-?-?). While asleep, by their own power, they made grass grow in all the high places and water stand in the low places (1-?-?). Waking from sleep they asked Agohya (Savitr̥): 'Who woke us?' and looked round for a year (1-?-?-?)."

"The word Ṛbhu seems to be derived from the root rabh ('to grasp'; compare 3-?-?); for this reason the sense 'one suited to the time', 'skilful', is given to it. This word ṛbhu is used many times in this very sense as an epithet of Indra, Agni and the Ādityas. Vāja means 'able', and Vibhvan 'one of famous name'. Therefore the words Ṛbhu and the rest are meaningful names which also indicate their skill."

"It is clear that these were not deities at first. But what their nature was before they became deities is not clear. Even when called Saudhanvana, it is not known who they are. Sudhanvan is used only twice in the Ṛgveda, applied to Rudra and the Maruts. As said in many places, Heaven and Earth may have been their parents. Since they were in the house of Savitr̥ and were capable of rejuvenation, they may have had the power of making the earth fruitful. Many scholars hold that these three are the deities of the three seasons, that their sleeping for twelve days corresponds to the twelve days during which the seasons stand still at the time of the Makara Saṅkrānti; that the bowl is the moon, and that its being made four is the four phases of the moon. In short, they may be said to be persons of the earth or of the sphere of the air, and their skill may be said to have given rise to the stories of many bold deeds about them — but if one takes the Ṛgveda alone as the basis, no definite opinion is possible."

Apsaras Women (Apsara strīyaru)

"There is no great basis in the Ṛgveda concerning the Apsarases. This name occurs only five times. There is no basis for any part of nature in them. In the very high region of the sky, an Apsaras (the Gandharva mentioned in the previous mantra) smiles gently at her beloved..."

original p. 663

"...(10-?-?). From this very Apsaras, Vasiṣṭha was born (7-?-?); the Vasiṣṭhas sit near the Apsaras women (7-?-?). The Apsarases of the ocean flow towards the Soma juice (9-?-?). Here, the waters that are mixed with the Soma juice must be called Apsarases. A scholar with a beautiful lock of hair can move in the path of the Apsaras women and Gandharvas (10-?-?). The water-deity (apyā yoṣā), the wife of the Gandharva who is in the water, must also be an Apsaras (10-?-?)."

"The matter of these Apsarases is understood more fully in the Atharvaveda. Their dwelling is in the water; coming up for a moment, they go away again (Av. 4-?-?); they are prayed to depart from the neighbourhood of men to the bank of a river or a pond (Av. 4-?-?). It is said that they are connected with the female deities who accompany the Gandharva named Viśvāvasu, and with clouds, lightning and stars (Av. 2-?-?). It is plainly said that the Apsarases are the wives of Gandharvas (Av. 2-?-?); this relation of Gandharvas and Apsarases is stated in the other Saṃhitās as well, in the Sūtras (Vāj. Saṃ. 30-?; Av. 8-?-?; etc.). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?) it is said that the Apsarases took the form of a kind of bird that lives in the water (compare 9-?-?). In the Purāṇas, the Apsaras women come step by step to the neighbourhood of rivers and lakes; the coming to the river Gaṅgā is very common; and it is said that they live in Varuṇa's palace. Even by the formation of the word, it means 'those who move in water'."

"From the above points it is clear that the Apsarases are female companions of the Gandharvas, water-deities in the world of the deities. But in other Vedas, the earth, and in it the trees, are their playgrounds. They live in the Nyagrodha and Aśvattha trees, and the sound of their lute and cymbals is heard from those trees (Av. 4-?-?). In other places (Tai. Saṃ. 3-?-?-?) trees such as Nyagrodha, Aśvattha, Udumbara and Plakṣa are the dwelling-places of Gandharvas and Apsarases. The Gandharvas and Apsarases that live in those trees are prayed to be favourable to the marriage-processions that pass there (Av. 14-?-?). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?) it is said that the Apsarases are absorbed in dance, song and instrumental music. In the Purāṇas it is said that these two groups live on real and historical mountains. According to the Atharvaveda, the Apsarases are fond of gambling, and give gamblers good luck (Av. 2-?-?; etc.). But they also bring disaster: it is feared that they cause derangement of the mind. To avoid this, a spell and vidyā are used (Av. 2-?-?; etc.)"

original p. 664

"...they are women of unequalled beauty (compare Śat. Brā. 13-?-?-?). The love of Apsaras women was not confined to Gandharvas: sometimes men too have been given happiness (compare 10-?-?). The story of such love between a man and an Apsaras woman is told in the Veda. Only the names of some other Apsaras women are mentioned. In the Atharvaveda and in the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā (Vāj. Saṃ. 15-?-? to ?), three persons — Ugrajit, Ugraṃpaśyā and Rāṣṭrabhṛt — Urvaśī, Menakā and others are mentioned. In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, Śakuntalā (Śat. Brā. 13-?-?-?) and Urvaśī (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?) are plainly indicated."

"In the Ṛgveda it is only Urvaśī who is introduced. In one mantra it is said that Vasiṣṭha was born of Urvaśī, and in the mantra before it that he was born of an Apsaras; from this it may be guessed that Urvaśī is that Apsaras (7-?-?, ?). In one place (5-?-?) Urvaśī is also praised along with the rivers. Apart from these two places, in the tenth maṇḍala this name occurs in only one sūkta. Here there is a conversation between her and Purūravas, the son of Ilā (10-?-?, ?). There she appears in the form of water. She covers the whole of the sphere of the air and moves in the sky (this too is related to a Gandharva, in 10-?-?). She is said to have lived four years among men (10-?-?) and is asked to return. This request is rejected. But Purūravas is consoled that if his children offer oblations to the deities he will be happy in heaven (10-?-?). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?) a complete story is composed taking some mantras of this Ṛgveda sūkta. The story there is as follows. Urvaśī chooses as husband Purūravas, the son of Ilā, on a condition: he must not appear naked before her. When night comes, the Gandharvas make a strange sound. Purūravas, who is sleeping, gets up from the bed naked. At the same time lightning flashes. By its light Urvaśī sees him and, as agreed, vanishes. Purūravas wanders searching for her. At last, in a lotus lake, he sees Urvaśī playing in bird-form with other Apsarases. Urvaśī shows herself to him in her real form. After he has begged much, she promises to be with him for only one night after a year. At the appointed time Purūravas comes to that place. On the third day the Gandharvas, by performing a peculiar fire-kindling, grant that he become one of them. Apart from this sūkta 10-?, this word Purūravas occurs in another place (1-?-?). For Purūravas, who walks the good path, Agni makes a refuge in the sky. In this context Purūravas may be an epithet. Some scholars consider Purūravas and Urvaśī to be the sun and the dawn."

Gandharvas (Gandharvaru)

"As said before, in connection with the Apsarases, Gandharva or Gandharvas denote a person or a class of persons. Among the twenty-odd places where it occurs in the Ṛgveda, it is in the plural three times. In the Atharvaveda, of the thirty-two, it is in the plural quite often. Looking at this, it seems that at first there was one, and then, step by step, they grew in number. In the other Vedas, like the deities, the Fathers and the Asuras, the Gandharvas too are one group (Av. 11-?-?; Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?-?). In the Yajurveda their number is 27, and in the Atharvaveda about 6333 (Av. 11-?-?). There is no basis in the Ṛgveda for determining their characteristics and nature from the beginning. In this context, the most important point is in which maṇḍalas these words occur: in two or seven maṇḍalas it is only once each; in the eighth, twice, it is said as opposed to Indra. Or it may be that this word was thought to be an epithet. Sometimes it is used together with the word Viśvāvasu (9-?-?; 10-?-?, ?; Av. 2-?-?; Vāj. Saṃ. 2-?). In one context Viśvāvasu is used to indicate the Gandharva (10-?-?, ?; compare 10-?-?, ?). In other Saṃhitās, Brāhmaṇas and Purāṇas, Viśvāvasu is the name of a Gandharva."

"According to the Ṛgveda, the Gandharva dwells in the very high region of the sphere of the air, or of the sky. He rules the sky (10-?-?). He is in the unfathomable regions of the atmosphere (8-?-?), a deity by nature, standing erect in the atmosphere (10-?-?). It is on him that the Apsaras smiles gently (10-?-?). His dwelling is in heaven too (Av. 2-?-?). The virtuous dwell with the Gandharvas (Av. 4-?-?). In some sentences it is said that the Gandharva has some connection with the light of heaven. He is the messenger of Varuṇa, with golden wings, is joined with Sūrya (10-?-?), with the bird Sūrya (10-?-?), with the horse of Sūrya (1-?-?) and with Soma, who is like Sūrya (9-?-?). Besides this, a relation to the twenty-seven stars in the path of the moon (Vāj. Saṃ. 18-?), especially to the Rohiṇī star (Av. 13-?-?), is imagined. In the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā (Vāj. Saṃ. 18-?) the Gandharva is counted as a deity along with Agni, Sūrya, the moon and Vāyu. In the Purāṇas, 'the city of the Gandharva' (gandharvanagara) is a name for the mirage."

"The name of the Gandharva is mentioned especially with Soma in the ninth maṇḍala. He protects the place of Soma and the lineage of the deities (9-?-?; compare 1-?-?). He stands in the sky, watching all the states of the Soma juice (9-?-?). With Parjanya and the daughter of Sūrya the Gandharvas increase the Soma juice (9-?-?). It is from the mouth of the Gandharva that the deities drink Soma (Av. 2-?-?). For the deities..."

original p. 666

³ "...[For the deities] it is said that the Gandharvas were guarding the Soma juice, and gave an opportunity for it to be stolen, and that, as a punishment for this, Soma-drinking was forbidden to the Gandharvas (Mai. Saṃ. 3-?-?). It is also said that the Gandharvas became acquainted with crops through this Soma juice (Av. 4-?-?). The Gandharva who was appointed to guard Soma, removing Indra's displeasure, is described as being driven by him in the sphere of the air (8-?-?). And on the same account it is also said that the hymns praise Indra, in order to defeat him (8-?-?). In another place (Tai. Saṃ. 1-?-?-?) it is stated that, to escape from the Gandharva Viśvāvasu, Soma should come in the form of an eagle. It is said that the Soma juice was stolen by the Gandharva Viśvāvasu; that, giving Vāgdevatā (the goddess of speech) as the price to the Gandharvas who were lovers of women, Soma was obtained from the Gandharvas (Ai. Brā. 1-?; Tai. Saṃ. 6-?-?-?; Mai. Saṃ. 3-?-?). Kṛśānu, who shoots an arrow at the eagle carrying Soma away, must also be a Gandharva. In the Taittirīya Āraṇyaka (Tai. Ā. 1-?-?) Kṛśānu is plainly said to be a Gandharva."

"There is a relation between the Gandharvas and water. The Gandharva who is in the water, and the Apsaras women who are of water-form, are said to be the progenitors of Yama and Yamī

(10-?-?). The Soma juice that is purified in the water is called 'the Gandharva of the water' (9-?-?). The Gandharvas who are joined with the Apsarases live in the water (Av. 2-?-?; 4-?-?)."

"The union of the Gandharvas and Apsarases is a sign of marriage. Therefore a relation of Gandharvas with marriage and its ceremonies is imagined. An unmarried maiden belongs to the Gandharva, Soma and Agni (10-?-?). In the first days of marriage Viśvāvasu is the rival of the bridegroom (10-?-?). The love of Gandharvas for women is well known in the other Vedas (Mai. Saṃ. 3-?-?). Those who desire offspring praise the Gandharvas and Apsarases, the deities who preside over fertility (Paṃ. Brā. 19-?-?)."

"There is no basis anywhere in the Ṛgveda for the Gandharvas' having become famous in the Purāṇas as the singers of the deities (compare 10-?-?; 10-?-?)."

"With regard to their body and so on, only one or two places have a statement. The wind itself is their hair (3-?-?) and they have weapons that flow (10-?-?). In this matter the Atharvaveda is clearer (especially Av. 4-?-?; 8-?-?). There it is said that they are hairy, that they have bodies like half-animals, and that they cause calamity to men in many ways. Elsewhere they are described as beautiful (Śat. Brā. 13-?-?-?). In the Ṛgveda the Gandharvas wear garments of fine smell (10-?-?); and in the Atharvaveda it is said that fragrance from the earth joins the Gandharvas (Av. 12-?-?)."

"From this it may be said that the word Gandharva has come from gandha ('smell'). Even if this derivation is right, nothing is known of the nature or characteristics of the Gandharva. From the descriptions found above, the Gandharva too is a brilliant divine person. Along with his companion, the Apsaras..."

original p. 667

"...it may be said at most that he is a dweller in the water. Various scholars have expressed various views: that they are bodiless persons joined with the wind; that they are the rainbow; that the moon, Soma, the rising sun, or the deity presiding over clouds, and so on."

Protective Deities (Rakṣaka devategaḷu)

Vāstoṣpati. "The name Vāstoṣpati has occurred seven times in the Ṛgveda. In one sūkta of three Ṛks (7-54) this deity is praised. Here entry into a favourable house, removal of disease, auspicious blessings on men and animals, the prosperity of cows, horses and the like, and constant protection are prayed for. In the sūkta that follows (7-55-1) Vāstoṣpati is described as one who drives away disease and as one of all forms. In one place (7-54-2) the name Indu is used for Vāstoṣpati. In a sūkta of the Viśve-devas, together with Tvaṣṭṛ, or as if Tvaṣṭṛ, who is the carpenter of the deities, and this one are the same, he is praised (4-?-?). In another (10-?-?) it is said that Vāstoṣpati is Indra himself, like a firm pillar. In the tenth maṇḍala (10-?-?) it is said that he is the guardian of rules, and that Brahmā and the deities gave him form. As said above, though Vāstoṣpati is equated with many deities in many places, no deity can be said with certainty to be called by this name, as Agni is called gr̥hapati. In the Gṛhyasūtras (Āś. Gr. Sū. 2-?-?; Sām. Gr. Sū. 3-?; Pā. Gr. Sū. 3-?-?) it is ordained that Vāstoṣpati be satisfied at the time of entering a new house. If this rule of the Sūtras and the matters in the sūkta addressed to this deity are studied, it may be said that this deity is a presiding deity of the house or a protecting deity. Like the deities presiding over trees or mountains, this deity may also be a single person."

Kṣetrasya pati. "The deity Kṣetrasya pati ('lord of the field') too belongs to the class of Vāstoṣpati. This deity is the protector of the land. In the first three mantras of the sūkta 4-57, sweetness and the like of cows, horses, heaven and earth, trees and water are expected from him. In a sūkta of the Viśve-devas (2-?-?) he is prayed to be prosperity-giving along with Savitr̥, the goddesses of dawn and Parjanya. In 10-?-? the worshippers hope that they may be in his grace. It is said that this deity should be worshipped, or homa should be made to this deity, when beginning to till the land (Āś. Gṛ. Sū. 2-?-?; Sām. Gṛ. Sū. 4-?-?). In a sūkta praising deities of agriculture (4-57-6) a good crop is prayed for from the deity Sītā ('furrow'). In the Pāraskara Gṛhyasūtra (Pā. Gṛ. Sū. 2-?-?) this very Sītā is said to be the wife of Indra, and that Sāvitṛī is her name on the basis of her father's name (Tai. Brā. 2-?-?). In the same Pāraskara Gṛhyasūtra a deity called Urvarā ('tilled land, fit for agriculture') is mentioned."

(Imaginary) Historical Seers and Persons of Divine Descent (Kālpanika — aitihāsika ṛtvijaru mattu devāṃśapurūṣaru)

original p. 668

Manu. "As the word Manu, manus or manuṣya is used also in the general sense of 'human beings, mankind', it is difficult to know when they mean human beings and when they mean Manu. In the second sense, Manu in the singular is used about thirty times, and in the plural about eight times. Manu is called father five times, and in two of them, still more clearly, 'our father' (3-?-?; etc.). Those who perform sacrifices have the name 'Manu's people' (viśaḥ, 4-?-?; etc.). Agni dwells in the lineage of Manu (1-?-?). Manu is the one who began the sacrifices. Having kindled Agni, he gave the first offering to the deities together with the seven seers (10-?-?). It is the very sacrifice practised by Manu that all now practise. The present sacrifice is compared to the sacrifice that Manu made for the deities (1-?-?). By the adverb manuṣvat ('like Manu'), sacrificial rites are compared at every step. Like Manus, the worshippers complete the sacrifice by Agni (1-?-?). Like Manus, they kindle Agni (5-?-? etc.). Agni, kindled by Manu, they praise as Manu did (2-?-?). Like Manus they offer Soma-juice (4-?-?). As was done before for Manu, they pray to Soma to flow for them (9-?-?). Manu established Agni so that it might be the light for all the people (1-?-?). The ancient sacrificers, the Aṅgirasas and Yayātis (1-?-?), together with Bhṛgu and the Aṅgirasas (8-?-?), with Atharvan and Dadhyañc (1-?-?), and with Dadhyañc, the Aṅgirasas, Atri and Kaṇva (1-?-?), Manu too is joined (1-?-?). The deities, Mātariśvan (1-?-?), Mātariśvan and the deities (1-?-?) or Kāvya Uśanā (8-?-?) gave Agni to Manu or appointed him as the sacrificing priest of Manu. In four contexts, Manu must mean 'man'."

"Indra drank Soma in the company of Manu, son of Vivasvat (Vāl. 4-?), or Manu Sāṃvaraṇi (Vāl. 3-?). To gain the strength needed to fight Vṛtra, Indra drank the Soma juice belonging to Manus, to the extent of three lakes (5-?-?). A bird brought Soma-juice to Manu (4-?-?). In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā and the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, Manu is described as the nourisher of righteous acts."

"Manu is thought of as the son of Vivasvān; he has the name Vaivasvata Manu (Vāl. 4-?; 2-?; compare). In the Atharvaveda (Av. 8-?-?), the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (Śat. Brā."

original p. 669

"13-?-?-?) and the Purāṇas, the name Vaivasvata has become fixed for Manu. Among the children of Vivasvān, Yama is also one; and he is the first among them. That is, Manu and Yama are the progenitors of mankind. But as Manu is the first among the living, Yama was the first of the dead, and became the king of the world of the dead. In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa it is said that Vaivasvata Manu is the king of men, and Yama the king of the dead (Śat. Brā. 13-?-?-?, ?). In the Nirukta (Nir. 12-?) Manu is interpreted as the son of the Āditya named Vivasvān and of Savarṇā (here perhaps Saranyū stands in its place) (compare 10-?-?), and he is pointed out as one of the deities of the heaven-world (Nir. 7-?; 12-?)."

"A story is told in the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa that at the time of the Flood, when all other beings were drowned, Manu alone was saved by a fish (an incarnation of Viṣṇu) in a boat (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-? to ?). Manu then became the cause of the human race through his daughter Iḍā (Iḍā), who was born of oblations. This story of the Flood is relevant in the Atharvaveda too (Av. 19-?-?)."

The Bhṛgus (Bhṛgugaḷu)

"Bhṛgu occurs twenty-one times in the Ṛgveda. Besides this, Bhṛguvat has been used twice. Bhṛgu in the singular has occurred only once. Therefore the Bhṛgus may be said to denote one group of mythical persons. The sūktas addressed to Agni alone mention them about twelve times; and generally in contexts describing how men obtained Agni. Mātariśvan gave Agni to Bhṛgu in the form of a treasure (1-?-?), or kindled for the Bhṛgus the Agni who had been hidden (3-?-?). Mātariśvan and the deities made Agni; the Bhṛgus, using their power and strength, produced Agni (10-?-?). The Bhṛgus saw Agni hidden in the water (10-?-?), and there, worshipping him, they (the sacrificer) established him in the houses of men (2-?-?; compare 2-?-?). They made Agni stand well in the forest (6-?-?) or placed him among men like a treasure (1-?-?). Agni was a thing given by the Bhṛgus (3-?-?). They churned him well and praised him with words of praise (1-?-?). They satisfied him with songs in the form of praise and made him shine well (10-?-?), and afterwards made him as if in forests (4-?-?). They called him to the navel of the earth (1-?-?). Atharvan laid down rites distinguished by homa and the like; the Bhṛgus displayed divine characteristics by their skill (10-?-?). Though their skill was seen already in the production of Agni, it too is thought of as an art..."

¹ "...[it too is thought of as] an art. As the Bhṛguś built a chariot, the worshippers compose a hymn of praise to Indra or to the Aśvins (4-?-?; 10-?-?)."

"The Bhṛguś must be very ancient. Among the sacrificers, together with the Aṅgirasas and Atharvans, they also, including the Bhṛguś, call themselves their Fathers, who love Soma-juice (10-?-?); and, like the Bhṛguś, the Aṅgirasas and Manu, they praise Agni (8-?-?). They beg Indra to favour their prayer as he favoured the prayer of the Yatis and the Bhṛguś (8-?-?), or to help them as he helped the Yatis, the Bhṛguś and Prasanvara (8-?-?). With Druhyus and Turvaśa too the Bhṛguś are said to be enemies of Sudās (7-?-?). In these three sentences (7-?-?; 8-?-?; 7-?-?) the Bhṛguś appear to indicate a small tribe. Thirty-three deities, the Aśvins, the Maruts, the deity of the watery Abhūṇi (?), the Aśvins, Uśas and Sūrya: with these, the Bhṛguś too are invited to drink Soma (8-?-?). They are likened to Sūrya and are said to be of all-fulfilling desires. In (8-?-?; 9-?-?) the worshippers pray, 'as the Bhṛguś drove away the Rākṣasa, let [us] drive away the niggardly'. Who the Rākṣasas that the Bhṛguś drove away are, and what story this relates to, is not known."

"Like the seers connected with the Ṛgveda, such as Vasiṣṭha, the Bhṛguś are not people belonging to the group of seers now in use. As the Aṅgirasas have Aṅgiras and the Vasiṣṭhas have Vasiṣṭha as leaders, Bhṛgu too must have been the leader of a group of seers named Bhṛgu."

"That Agni came down from heaven and was given to man is a matter connected with Mātariśvan and the Bhṛguś. If Mātariśvan is the one who brings Agni from heaven, the work of bringing it to the beginning and practice of rites such as sacrifices on earth belongs to the Bhṛguś."

"In other Vedas Bhṛgu is the representative of a gotra (Av. 5-?-?; Ai. Brā. 3-?-?). Born of the seed of Prajāpati, he is accepted by Varuṇa as his son; hence he gets the name Vāruṇi (Ai. Brā. 3-?-?; Paṃ. Brā. 18-?-?); it is also plainly said that he is the son of Varuṇa (10-?-?)."

"The word Bhṛgu is derived from the root bhrāj ('to shine'). Some hold that Bhṛgu is a name of Agni, and others that this name refers to the form of Agni's spark."

original p. 671

Atharvan

"Atharvan occurs fourteen times, three of them in the plural. In the Atharvaveda too it appears many times. Generally Atharvan is an ancient priest or seer. He churned Agni (6-?-?), and as Atharvan churned Agni, the priests churn Agni (6-?-?). The Agni produced by Atharvan became the messenger of Vivasvān (10-?-?). It was Atharvan who first brought the sacrifice (ṛta) into practice by means of oblations (10-?-?). By means of oblations Atharvan spread out the paths (of Sūrya); afterwards Sūrya was born (1-?-?). Together with Manu and Dadhyañc, Atharvan brought dharma (faith) into practice (1-?-?). Indra is a helper to Atharvan, Trita, Dadhyañc and Mātariśvan (10-?-?). There is a prayer that Agni, who destroys wicked Piśācas, should burn them with his divine flames as Atharvan burns the ignorant (10-?-?). Still more characteristics of Atharvan are stated in the Atharvaveda. Atharvan brought a vessel of Soma juice for Indra (Av. 18-?-?). A wonderful cow was given to him by Varuṇa (Av. 5-?-?; 2-?-?). Atharvan is a companion of the deities, their kinsman and a dweller in heaven (Av. 4-?-?; etc.). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa Atharvan is an ancient teacher (Śat. Brā. 14-?-?-?; 14-?-?-?)."

"In the plural, the Atharvans, the Aṅgirasas, the Navagvas and the Bhṛguṣ are all counted as Fathers (10-?-?). They dwell in heaven and have the name of deities (Av. 11-?-?). By the power of a wonderful root they destroy Piśācas (Av. 4-?-?)."

"In some sentences of the Ṛgveda, Atharvan appears to mean generally a priest or purohita. In 10-?-?, the word Atharvan is an epithet of Bṛhaddiva, who composes praise-sentences. The seer pours oblation on Atharvan (8-?-?): here it appears that the word Atharvan is used for Agni. The Atharvans make the Soma juice sweet (9-?-?), or the Atharvans obtain a hundred cows from a giver (6-?-?); in these contexts it is used in the sense of priests. Agni has the name Atharyu (athar-yu), 'one distinguished by flame'; from this word athar ('flame') a group of priests called Atharvan (priests) may have become established."

Dadhyañc

"The name of Dadhyañc, son of Atharvan, occurs nine times (6-?-?; 1-?-?; 1-?-?). Except once, all the rest are in the first, ninth and tenth maṇḍalas only."

original p. 672

"He is a seer who kindled Agni (6-?-?), and is counted among Atharvan, the Aṅgirasas, Manu and other ancient seers (1-?-?; 1-?-?)."

"The Aśvins gave a horse's head to Dadhyañc, the son of Atharvan; afterwards he taught them the Madhu-vidyā (1-?-?). Dadhyañc, who had a horse's head, told the Aśvins where honey was (1-?-?). The Aśvins covered Dadhyañc's heart; afterwards the horse's head spoke to them (1-?-?). Indra too is related to this story. Searching for the horse's head hidden in the mountains, and finding it in Śaryaṇāvat, he killed Vṛtra with the bones of Dadhyañc (1-?-?, ?). Besides rescuing for Trita the cows that were in the hands of the serpent, he gave the cow-pens to Dadhyañc and Mātariśvan (10-?-?). The cow-pens that Dadhyañc opened by the power of Soma juice must be these. Apart from these eight places, the name Dadhyañc occurs in one place only, in the sixth maṇḍala (6-?-?); there Dadhyañc is the son of Atharvan: like his father he too is engaged in the work of bringing fire from the lower fire-stick. Beyond this, in general, the secret place of Soma, and the freeing of cows by Indra — his relation to these is greater. As his name speaks of a horse's head, it can be said that he has a relation to the horse called Dadhikrā. If the derivation of the word is taken (dadhi + añc), the sense could be 'one facing the curds', that is, one who has respect for curds. Some think that Dadhyañc and Soma are both one. But the grounds for reaching this conclusion are not enough. Dadhyañc must be the fire in the form of lightning; the speed is to be understood from the horse's head, the sound as the neighing, and the lightning from the bones. If one looks at its relation with the Soma juice, its relation to Soma and the eagle is suggested; by the name, the lightning-fire's flash when the fierce wind blows is suggested. In the Purāṇas it takes another form, as Dadhīca; and it is said that Indra made the vajra-weapon from his bones and killed Vṛtra."

The Aṅgirasas (Aṅgirasaru)

"In all, it occurs about 60 times, thirty-odd of them in the plural. There are thirty-odd forms derived from this word. The sūкта 10-62 praises this group entirely."

"The Aṅgirasas are sons of the sky (3-?-?; 10-?-?; 4-?-?). They are the seers who were sons of the deities (10-?-?). Among them one Aṅgiras is imagined as the first man and the rest as his sons (10-?-?). In the mantras they are called Fathers (10-?-?), our Fathers (10-?-?) or our ancient Fathers (10-?-?). The Atharvans and the Bṛḡus along with them, the Aṅgirasas are counted as Fathers (10-?-?); especially Yama..."

"and the Aṅgirasas are counted as Fathers (10-?-? to ?). In places equality with groups of deities is also stated. With the Ādityas, Vasus and Maruts (2-?-?; 8-?-?), and in some contexts with the Ādityas, Rudras, Vasus and Atharvan (Av. 11-?-?), and in some places they have been offered Soma juice (8-?-?) and praised like deities (3-?-?; 10-?-?). They are those who hold the place of Brahmā in sacrifices (2-?-?). They found Agni hidden in the forests (3-?-?) and thought out the first rule connected with the sacrifice (10-?-?). By sacrifice they gained immortality and Indra's friendship (10-?-?)."

"There is a very close relation between Indra and them. It is to them that Indra showed the cows (8-?-?). It was for them that he opened the doors of the cow-pens (1-?-?; 1-?-?); rolling Vala away, he drove the cows out (8-?-?); accompanied by them Indra dug out Vala (2-?-?) and drove the cows out (6-?-?). In the idea that they are his helpers, Indra is called 'the most Aṅgiras' in two places (1-?-?; 1-?-?). In 8-?-? it is said that the Soma that gives enthusiasm to Indra opens the doors of the cow-pens for the Aṅgirasas. In the matter of releasing the cows, the singing of the Aṅgirasas is peculiar. Praised by them, Indra dug out Vala (2-?-?), split the doors of the cow-pens (4-?-?), killed Vala and opened the doors of his fort (6-?-?); or, driving away the gloom, he spread out the earth and set the lower regions of the sky (1-?-?). The singing of the Maruts, who sing in diverse ways, is compared to the singing of the Aṅgirasas (10-?-?), and from the statement that they call the deities to the sacrifice by their songs (1-?-?) one can guess the distinction of their singing. Also the sentences of praise uttered by ordinary priests are compared to the praise of the Aṅgirasas (1-?-?, ?; etc.). In the history of cows, as it comes up, the part of the Aṅgirasas appears greater than that of Indra. Taking Indra along, the Aṅgirasas made the cow-pens and horse-pens (10-?-?). Later the Aṅgirasas themselves did this work, in which Indra has no share at all; this may be called the first step. By the power of the rites they performed, they drove out the cows, rolled Vala away and killed him (10-?-?), made the sun rise in the sky and spread out the earth (10-?-?). By the power of the sacrifices they performed, they broke the rock and rejoiced with the cows (4-?-?). Singing, they found the cows (1-?-?). By their songs they broke the rock and found light (1-?-?). In the story where Saramā went in search of the cows seized by the Asura named Paṇi, the Aṅgirasas also have a part (10-?-?, ?); in Saramā's finding the cows, Indra and the Aṅgi-..."

original p. 674

² "...[Indra and the Aṅgi-]rases helped Saramā (1-?-?; compare 1-?-?). It is also said that the Aṅgirasas themselves discovered the cows and horses belonging to the Paṇi (1-?-?). Bṛhaspati too has a part in the work of freeing the cows belonging to the Paṇis (10-?-?, ?, ?); when, breaking the mountain, he took the cows, he too has the epithet Aṅgiras (6-?-?), and when he grants cows as Bhaga would grant (10-?-?), the same epithet."

"When, joined with Indra, he drove out the cows and made the water flow, Bṛhaspati is called Aṅgiras himself (2-?-?). Leaving aside this one context, all the other singular usages are of Agni. Agni is the first seer, Aṅgiras (1-?-?), the ancient Aṅgiras (10-?-?), or the most ancient among the Aṅgirasas (1-?-?), and the one of greatest brilliance (6-?-?). Agni is many times called the leader of the Aṅgirasas (1-?-?; etc.). But the word Aṅgirastama ('the most Aṅgiras', i.e. the foremost of the Aṅgirasas) is used, once or twice, also of Indra, Uṣas and Soma. Sometimes the word is used of persons such as Agni without any relation: of the ancient Aṅgirasas among the Fathers, one (1-?-?), or in the usage 'Aṅgirasvat' (1-?-?) the singular sense, according to the context, is evident; but the usage itself has no connection. In 'O Agni, O Aṅgiras, as you were prayed to by Manu and the Aṅgirasas, come near us, granting our prayer' (1-?-?), both Agni and the Fathers are intended by that word."

"In the Anukramaṇī, the Aṅgirasas belong to a lineage of purohitas; they are the seers of the mantras of the ninth maṇḍala. In 'Atharva-Aṅgirasah' too they are intended. The Atharvaveda itself has the name Atharvāṅgirasa (Av. 10-?-?). The same idea is in the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?; etc.)."

"This group were slightly superior to men; they moved between the deities and men, or they may be called the messengers of Agni, the messenger of the deities. They may be said to be the flames of Agni embodied."

Virūpas

"The name Virūpa, connected with the Aṅgirasas, has occurred three times in the plural. The Aṅgirasas and the Virūpas are sons of the sky-deity (divas putrāḥ, 3-?-?). The Virūpas are seers, sons of Aṅgiras, born of Agni, of the sky (10-?-?, ?). 'One who praises Agni' is Virūpa in the singular in one place (8-?-?). In 1-?-? it is used in the singular sense, like medhāvat, atrivat, aṅgirasvat, as virūpavat ('like Virūpa'). In 10-?-? the Aṅgirasas, the Vairūpas (sons of Virūpa) and Yama are praised together. The meaning of Virūpa is 'one with changing forms';"

original p. 675

"generally this word is used together with the word Aṅgirasah; therefore it may be considered an epithet of Aṅgiras or of the Aṅgirasas."

Navagvas

"Including six occurrences along with the Aṅgirasas, this word occurs fourteen times in all. They are our ancient Fathers (6-?-?); or the Aṅgirasas, Atharvans, Bhṛḡus and Navagvas are our Fathers (10-?-?). In the matter of Indra, Saramā and the cows connected with the Paṇis, and in the history of these cows, the Navagvas too are included (1-?-?, ?; 5-?-?; 10-?-?). Making the Navagvas his friends, Indra found the cows (2-?-?). Preparing the Soma juice, they praise Indra with songs and break the doors of the cow-pens (5-?-?). With the stones that purify Soma they sang for ten months (5-?-?, ?). In the plural, it occurs twice; in one of them it is an epithet of the rays of Agni (6-?-?). In the singular it occurs thrice, as an epithet of Aṅgiras (4-?-?; 10-?-?) or of Dadhyañc (9-?-?). The meaning of that word is 'going in a group of nine'. Probably it may indicate nine ancient seers."

Daśagvas

"It occurs seven times — three times in the singular, twice only separately in the plural of seven — generally together with the Navagvas. They were the first to perform sacrifice (3-?-?). Indra found the cows, accompanied by the Navagvas, and saw Sūrya in the company of the Daśagvas (3-?-?). Joined with the Navagvas and Daśagvas, Indra split the mountain and Vala (1-?-?). The Navagvas and Daśagvas praised Indra and broke open the cow-pens (5-?-?). Uṣas shone upon the Navagva Aṅgiras and the Daśagva of seven mouths (4-?-?). The Daśagva accompanied by the Navagva is called 'the most Aṅgiras' (10-?-?). It is said that Indra helped the Daśagva when he was in trouble (8-?-?). Though the Navagvas and Daśagvas differ in number, they may be said to be of one kind."

The Seven Seers (Saptarṣigaḷu)

"This class of seers, famous as the Saptarṣis, appears in the Ṛgveda in only four places: our Fathers, seven seers (4-?-?); those of divine nature (10-?-?); those connected with the deities (10-?-?). This number may be suggested by the seven priests mentioned in 3-?-?; those seven would be the Saptarṣis. In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa each of these seven has a name (Śat. Brā. 14-?-?-?; Bṛhadā. Upa. 2-?-?). In the same Brāhmaṇa (3-?-?; Ṛk. Ve. 8-?-?) it is said that those seven persons were at first called bears (ṛkṣa), and that they are the seven stars of the Saptar̥ṣi-maṇḍala. The word r̥kṣa has two meanings, 'star' (1-?-?) and 'bear' (5-?-?), and in both contexts the number is the same; so this idea may have arisen."

original p. 676

"...[In the Brāhmaṇa it is said that] they were formerly bears. The seven vīpras and the Navagvas praised Indra (6-?-?; compare 3-?-?; 4-?-?): there the seven vīpras must be the Saptar̥ṣis. 'The seven hotṛs, together with Manu, gave the first oblation to the deities' (10-?-?): here too the same idea must be meant."

Atri

"One of the ancient seers who is most often mentioned in the R̥gveda. In the singular it occurs sixty times, and in the plural thrice, in the sense of those of the Atri gotra. The seer belonging to the five peoples (1-?-?); one of the original men of the human group such as Manu (1-?-?)."

"Agni helped Atri (5-?-?) and other ancient seers (1-?-?; 10-?-?). Indra too, hearing Atri's prayer, together with the Aṅgirasas, opened the cow-pen for Atri (1-?-?). But Atri is mainly presented as dependent on the Áśvins, and the story about Atri is related to the Áśvins. They freed Atri from darkness (6-?-?; 8-?-?), destroyed the magic nets of a wicked Rākṣasa (1-?-?), and lifted Atri, along with his companions (1-?-?; 1-?-?), out of a pit (5-?-?). Atri fell into a large fire-pit, and the Áśvins lifted him; but they give him revivifying drink (1-?-?; 1-?-?). Or they made the very fire-pit into which he fell pleasant to him, and made his dwelling-house favourable to him (10-?-?; 8-?-?); they covered him so that fire would not burn him (8-?-?); they saved Atri, who was being burned by the heat of the pit (10-?-?), giving him coolness and removing the heat (1-?-?; 8-?-?), and favoured him as the cooling water of cold would (1-?-?). They again made the aged Atri young (10-?-?)."

"Atri found Sūrya, who had been hidden by Svarbhānu, and set him again in the sky (5-?-?, ?). In the mantra that follows it is said that Atris are those who accomplished this great deed. In the Atharvaveda too the matter of finding this Sūrya and setting him in the sky is raised (Av. 13-?-?, ?, ?). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, Atri is the purohita who removes darkness (Śat. Brā. 4-?-?-?), one born of the goddess of speech (1-?-?-?), and also said to be the goddess of speech himself (14-?-?-?)."

original p. 677

"The whole of the fifth maṇḍala is seen by the seer Atri, or the mantras are seen by the Atris. In the usage of the word Atri in singular or plural, a quarter of the usages are in this very maṇḍala. By the plural word Atrayaḥ, the seers of that gotra are meant."

"It may be derived from the root ad ('to eat'). The word atrin ('devourer') too is formed from this root and is used in the Ṛgveda as an epithet of Rākṣasas and so on. Probably in this sense Atri is an epithet of Agni (3-?-?). Along with the word Atri, the word Saptavadhri has occurred about four times. Saptavadhri is dependent on the Aśvins; the Aśvins are prayed to release him from bondage (5-?-?, ?), and Saptavadhri made the flame of Agni green by his praise (8-?-?). The Aśvins did what was good for the burning womb-region by means of Atri-Saptavadhri (10-?-?). Probably Atri and Saptavadhri are two names of one person."

Kaṇva and others (Kaṇva modalādavaru)

Kaṇva. "This name occurs about sixty-odd times. He too is an ancient seer and the Kaṇvas are his descendants. There are about equal numbers of singular and plural usages. Kaṇva is the son of Nṛṣad (10-?-?); therefore he has the name Nārṣada (1-?-?; Av. 4-?-?). Kaṇva's name is also in the list of the primal men of the world, such as Manu and the Aṅgirasas (1-?-?). Agni was given to Kaṇva and others by the deities. Agni kindled by them did not favour them (1-?-?, ?, ?). Agni helped Kaṇva, Atri, Trasadasyu and others in battle (10-?-?), and he is the leader and friend of Kaṇva and the rest (10-?-?). Indra favoured Kaṇva, Trasadasyu and others with gold and cows (Vāl. 1-?; 3-?); and the Maruts showed favour in wealth to Kaṇva, who was joined with Turuśva and the Yadus (8-?-?). The Ásvins helped Kaṇva many times (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 8-?-?; 8-?-?). When Kaṇva was blind, the Ásvins healed him (8-?-?) and gave him sight (1-?-?)."

"Most of the eighth maṇḍala has the Kaṇvas as seers; the names of the seers in the mantras are Kaṇva. But the story of 'the blind Kaṇva' has not been raised there. Some say that the blind Kaṇva is the sun of the night, or Agni who is hidden, or Soma."

Medhyātithi

(Medhātithi). "Of the lineage of Kaṇva, and also called Kāṇva (8-?-?). The name has occurred nine times. Further, in the lists of the ancients, along with Kaṇva and the others..."

original p. 678

³ "...[the name] is used (1-?-?, ?, ?). By its meaning it denotes 'one having a guest connected with sacrifice' (i.e. Agni). Priyamedhā occurs five or six times along with Kaṇva and others (8-?-?). His descendants are called Priyamedhas."

Kutsa

"This warrior is known in the histories connected with Indra. His name occurs about sixty times. Only once, in the plural, it is used in the sense of singers who sing for Indra (2-?-?). Because he is the son of Arjuna, he also has the name Ārjuneya (1-?-?). One son of his who obtained Indra's help in a fight with a Dasyu is mentioned (10-?-?). Kutsa is young and brilliant (1-?-?). It was he who, when cast into a pit, prayed for Indra's help (1-?-?). Kutsa and Indra travel in one chariot (4-?-?; 5-?-?); Indra carries Kutsa in the wind (5-?-?; 8-?-?), or makes him his charioteer (2-?-?; 6-?-?). Kutsa is just like Indra (4-?-?); the pair of deities Indra and Kutsa are prayed to come in a chariot (5-?-?)."

"Indra and Kutsa unite in the defeat of the enemy Śuṣṇa. For Kutsa's sake Indra struck Śuṣṇa (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 4-?-?; 6-?-?); he helped Kutsa, who was Śuṣṇa's opponent (1-?-?); he subdued Śuṣṇa for Kutsa (2-?-?); or, joined with Kutsa and other deities, he utterly overcame Śuṣṇa (5-?-?). Taking Kutsa's side, he is prayed to fight Śuṣṇa (6-?-?; 1-?-?), or to carry out the killing of Śuṣṇa for Kutsa. Indra fights on behalf of Kutsa against the deities (4-?-?, to ?) or against a Gandharva (8-?-?). The result of fighting Śuṣṇa was the pulling of the sun's chariot (1-?-?; 6-?-?). For Kutsa, who was oppressed by enemies, Indra seized the wheel of Sūrya's chariot (4-?-?) and gave it to him to use (5-?-?). It appears said that Indra secured the sun for men's happiness, and made the sun move (1-?-?; compare 10-?-?). Having conquered Sūrya, Indra made a broad path for the travel of Kutsa, who was the charioteer (6-?-?). Joined with Kutsa, Indra is prayed to destroy the wicked and make the wheel of Sūrya roll (4-?-?). Not only Śuṣṇa, but other enemies too (Tugra, Sphīḍibha and Vetasu) were made subject to Kutsa by Indra (10-?-?)."

"Kutsa, who was helped by Indra and was his favourite (1-?-?), is sometimes seen as Indra's enemy. Kutsa, Āyu and the warriors of Atithigva..."

original p. 679

"Indra rolled in the dust (2-?-?); he oppressed Āyu, Kutsa and Atithigva (Vāl. 5-?), and gave these three into the hands of the young king Tūrvayāṇa (1-?-?), or yoked the three for that king and made them roll on the ground (6-?-?). In the Nirukta (Nir. 3-?) Kutsa is one of the names of the vajra-weapon."

Kāvya Uśanā

"The name of the seer Uśanā occurs eleven times. Twice he is called Kavi and five times Kāvya. Soma, who speaks the words of wisdom, is likened to Uśanas (9-?-?); and by reason of the instruction, Soma himself is called Uśanā (9-?-?). Kāvya Uśanā set Agni in the place of the hotṛ in the sacrifice (8-?-?). It was he who drove the cows this way (towards the earth) (1-?-?). He is a dependant of Indra (6-?-?); Indra rose with satisfaction in his company (1-?-?); and Indra himself says that Kutsa, Uśanā and the rest are the same as he (4-?-?). Joined with Kutsa, Uśanā also took part in the uprooting of Śuṣṇa by Indra (5-?-?). Also in the making of the vajra-weapon used for the killing of Vṛtra, Uśanā had a hand (1-?-?; 5-?-?; compare 1-?-?)."

"Many more ancient seers are mentioned. Gotama, Viśvāmitra, Vāmadeva, Bharadvāja, Vasiṣṭha and others are some of them. These, or their descendants, are the seers of the mantras of the second, third, fourth, sixth and seventh maṇḍalas respectively. Agastya too is one of the seers mentioned many times in the Ṛgveda. Among well-known ancient warriors are Sudāsa, Purukutsa and his son Trasadasyu, and Divodāsa Atithigva, and some others."

"The seers mentioned above have been depicted as having had such importance in sacrifices, as being the original men of the human race, as having done superhuman deeds, and as having shared in the works of the deities as equals, and so on. But it is not so easy to say that they truly reflect various parts of nature, or that the deities themselves have come down to earth in other forms and are moving about in this shape."

Animals and Lifeless Things (Prāṇigaḷu mattu nirjīva vastugaḷu)

"In the Vedic histories the animals too have a fitting, important place. Looking at these histories, the difference between men and animals is not much made clear. The deities too have the forms of various animals. The best deities themselves sometimes take the forms of animals. Besides, persons of superhuman nature in the form of useful animals such as the cow..."

original p. 680

"...are held to be of the middle class, and those who have the forms of fierce animals are lower than them, or of the Rākṣasa nature. Moreover, just as the four-footed animals useful to man live around him, the belief is that there are animals of the world of the deities also near the deities. Last of all, in sacrifices, some animals were used as representatives of the deities, who were considered as having that kind of form. This worship of representatives has little use now; for the deities are of great glory, dwellers in heaven, and by their power they come invisibly into the sacrificial hall and accept their shares of oblations: such is the lofty idea, and there is a fear that this would be lost."

The Horse Dadhikrā

"Apart from the horses that draw the chariots of the deities, some horses are mentioned individually. Among such special horses the chief is Dadhikrā. This horse is mentioned in four sūktas (4-38, 39, 40; 7-44). Among them the word Dadhikrā occurs twelve times, and Dadhikrāvan ten times. In other Vedas there is hardly any mention of it. That Dadhikrā is the name of a horse is proved by the very fact that the Nirukta (Nir. 1-?) includes it among the names of the horse. It is very swift (4-?-?, ?; 4-?-?); it is the first horse in the line of many chariots (7-?-?); it destroys chariots, and runs with the speed of the wind (4-?-?). All people praise its speed (4-?-?, ?). It gallops along the turns of the roads also (4-?-?). It has wings as well; it is like a bird, and its wings are compared to the wings of a bird or of a hawk (4-?-?, ?). It is compared to a hawk that flies down from above and called śyena (4-?-?, ?). In 4-?-?, with epithets applicable to Agni — the swan that lives in light, the vasu in the sky, the hotṛ seated on the altar, the guest seated happily in the house — this horse is described."

"Dadhikra too is a hero who strikes the Dasyus and becomes victorious (4-?-?, ?, ?, ?). When he fights, facing thousands of men, the enemies fear him; he plunders in the wars; and the various peoples call him in wars (4-?-?, ?, ?). Bearing a garland, raising dust, it shakes off from its shoulders (4-?-?, ?). It belongs to all the peoples; by his own power he covers the five peoples as Sūrya covers the heroes by his lustre (4-?-?, ?, ?). Mitra and Varuṇa gave this victorious horse to the Pūrus (7-?-?; compare 4-?-?, ?); for the sake of the favour of man they gave the horse named Dadhikrā."

original p. 681

"At the time of sunrise, when Agni is kindled, they praise the horse Dadhikrāvan (7-?-?). He is invoked along with the goddesses of dawn (4-?-?; 4-?-?); the goddesses of dawn are prayed to be, like Dadhikrāva, turned towards the sacrifice (7-?-?). Regularly, he is praised, many times, with the goddesses of dawn, sometimes with Agni and the Aśvins, with Sūrya and other deities (3-?-?, ?; 7-?-? to ?; 10-?-?); but the first invocation is to Dadhikrāvan (7-?-?)."

"From the derivation of the word, nothing is known of the nature and characteristics of this horse. It may be that the latter part of the word (krā) is derived from the root 'to scatter': that is, one who scatters the curds, the frost seen at the time of sunrise. In the opinion of some, it may be the orb of the rising sun. Dadhikrā has a special relation with the goddess Uṣas; and Sūrya also is often called a horse or a bird, and is described in a certain place as having the nature of a warrior. From these too it may be said that Dadhikrā is the orb of the sun. According to some, Dadhikrā is a special form of Agni. And some say that this is not a deity but an excellent horse (uttamāśva)."

"In the two names Dadhyañc and Dadhikrā there is a similarity, and since Dadhyañc has a horse's head, there may be some similarity of nature between them too."

Tārksya. "This name, which is related to Dadhikrā, occurs in only two places (1-?-?; 10-?-?). One sūkta of three Ṛks praises this (10-178). The excellent horse urged on by the deities, destroying chariots, swift and running towards the battlefield, was given by Indra (it is said that, with the very words applied to Dadhikrā, he covers the five peoples, 4-?-?). Its name is also Ariṣṭanemi (1-?-?). But in the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā Ariṣṭanemi, like Tārksya and Garuḍa, is an independent name (Vāj. Saṃ. 25-?). In the Nirukta (Nir. 1-?) Tārksya too is one of the names of the horse. In other Vedas the idea is that Tārksya is a bird; in the Purāṇas it is one of the many names of Garuḍa. It may probably be the name of the horse-formed Sūrya. There may be some relation between Trasadasyu, or a person named Tṛkṣi, and this (8-?-?). On that basis some say that a horse called Tṛkṣi is this very Tārksya."

Paidva. "The horse given by the Aśvins to Pedu is also one of these imaginary horses (1-?-?; 2-?-?); hence it has the name Paidva (1-?-?; 9-?-?). The aim of this gift — giving an excellent horse in return for Pedu's useless horse (1-?-?) — is that it is worthy of praise (1-?-?; 10-?-?; 4-?-?);"

¹ "...[it is worthy of praise] like Bhaga (10-?-?), and is praised by men (1-?-?). It is likened to Indra (1-?-?) and has the name 'killer of the serpent' (ahīhan) (1-?-?; 1-?-?; 1-?-?; compare 8-?-?); generally this is a word suited to Indra. In wars it is victorious and desirous of heaven (1-?-?). This too may indicate only Sūrya."

Etaśa. "In the sense 'swift', this word is used some times, and more often to denote a horse. In the plural the same word denotes the horses of Sūrya (2-?-?; 10-?-?; 10-?-?). About twelve times it occurs as a proper name, used as relating to Sūrya; in those contexts it applies especially to the wheel of Sūrya's chariot. The horse named Savitr̥ that marked out the limits of the regions of the earth (Etaśaḥ, 5-?-?). The swift Etaśa, a deity (the horse), draws Sūrya (2-?-?). Tied to the nose of the chariot, Etaśa makes the wheel of Sūrya's chariot move (2-?-?); he drove the wheel of Sūrya's chariot (1-?-?; 5-?-?); Indra stops the horse of Sūrya (8-?-?; compare 8-?-?). Indra helped Etaśa, who took part in the race with Sūrya (1-?-?). Carrying away the lost wheel of Sūrya's chariot and fixing it to the chariot, and being in front in the race, it may be guessed that Sūrya gave Etaśa a place at the front of his chariot. What the real meaning of this race is, is not said. But it may be definitely said that Etaśa means the horse of Sūrya."

The horse as the emblem of Sūrya and Agni.

"That the horse is the emblem of Sūrya is clear from some sentences. The goddess Uṣas comes driving a white horse (2-?-?); the sacrificial horse was made by the deities from Sūrya (1-?-?). In one special Soma sacrifice, the horse is the symbol of Sūrya."

"Agni, who is swift and brilliant, is many times spoken of as a horse. In rites, the horse is a reflection of Agni. They bring a horse and make it stand at the place where Agni is churned. When carrying Agni to the eastern quarter, they do so by following the footprint of a horse walking in front. Addressing the horse they say: 'Your birthplace is heaven; your navel is in the sphere of the air; your house is on earth' (Vāj. Saṃ. 11-?). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa it is said that the horse is lightning, born in the water or in the clouds (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?; 2-?-?-?)."

The Bull (Vṛṣabha)

"The sign of a bull is more often used of Indra. Less often it is used of Agni, the sky-deity and others in an imperfect way. In the Atharvaveda a bull is called Indra (Av. 9-?-?). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa it is said that the bull is a special form of Indra (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?). In one of the Vedic rites, the bull is the representative of Rudra. In the history of 'Mudgala and Mudgalānī' the bull has played a part (10-?-?)."

The Cow (Gō)

original p. 683

"In accordance with the greater use of the cow in the world, it holds an important place in Vedic histories too. The rays of the time of dawn are cows, and it is conceived that they draw the chariot of the goddess Uṣas. A rain-cloud too is a cow; it has a calf (a spark). This cloud-formed cow has become established under the name Prśni; she is the mother of the Maruts (Vāj. Saṃ. 3-?). Her milk (6-?-?) and her udder are mentioned at every step: 'the many-coloured cows that yield what is wanted in the heaven-world where the best dwell' must be these very clouds (Av. 4-?-?). Afterwards, in the Purāṇas, this is the root of the famous Kāmadhenu. It is also customary to imagine the goddess Īlā (Idā), in the form of the homa of milk and butter, as a cow. Aditi is also sometimes thought of as a cow. It is also said that the deities are born of the cow (gojātāḥ). But the Veda deals with the cow mostly in the history of Indra's freeing of the cows that were in the mountain region."

"The earthly cow too has obtained holiness. She is also called Aditi, Devī and the like, and it is said that she must not be killed (8-?-?, ?; Vāj. Saṃ. 8-?, ?). Because the word aghnyā ('not to be killed') is used sixteen times of the cow, it is evident how holy she was thought to be. That the cow is a holy animal and should be worshipped is established in the Atharvaveda (Av. 13-?-?). One who eats beef is born again, famed as wicked on earth (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?); but beef may be cooked for a guest (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?)."

The goat (Ajaḥ).

"It draws Pūṣan's chariot. It is seen also as a deity named Aja Ekapād ('the one-footed goat'). In other Vedas many times a relation between the goat and Agni is stated; sometimes Agni is called a goat."

The ass (Gardabha).

"It is the draught animal of the Aśvins in particular."

The dog (Śvā). "Two spotted dogs, called Sārameya, belong to Yama. From this name (Sārameya) these two dogs may be said to be descendants of Saramā, who worked as Indra's messenger. That Saramā is a bitch has no basis in the Ṛgveda; but there is a basis for it in other Vedas, and in the Nirukta (Nir. 11-?) Saramā is explained as the bitch of the deities."

original p. 684

The boar (Varāha). "Rudra, the Maruts and Vṛtra are figuratively called Varāha. In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā and the Brāhmaṇas, the form taken by the creator in raising the earth out of the midst of the water is this. Later, this became famous as an incarnation of Viṣṇu."

The tortoise (Kūrma). "In other Vedas the tortoise is given a half-divine character, because 'it breaks all the water' (Vāj. Saṃ. 13-?); or it appears, under the name Kaśyapa, at the side of Prajāpati or as Prajāpati himself; in this form it is also called Svayambhū (Av. 19-?-?). In the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa it is said that Viśvakarman had promised to give the earth to this very Kaśyapa (Ai. Brā. 8-?-?). In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa it is said that Prajāpati, taking the form of a tortoise, created all beings (Śat. Brā. 7-?-?-?; 2-?-?-?). This form became famous in the Purāṇas as the Kūrma incarnation of Viṣṇu. In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (Tai. Saṃ. 5-?-?-?) it is said that the puroḍāśa cake is transformed into a tortoise."

The monkey (Vānarah).

"In 10-?-? there is a reference to an ape who was dear to Indra; the enraged Indrāṇī, angered by his gifts, drives him away; at last he gets back his first place."

The frogs (Keppe).

"The frogs awakened by the rain (7-?) are said to give cows and long life, and there is a belief that mantras and knowledge come to them."

Birds (Pakṣi). "In the Vedic histories birds too have a part. Soma is compared to a bird, and is called a bird. Agni in particular is compared to birds or called a bird. Sūrya too has the name bird; in two contexts he has the name Garutmān. In the Purāṇas, Garuḍa as the vehicle of Viṣṇu must have this very basis. The chief work of the bird in the Veda is, in the form of an eagle, bringing Soma-juice for Indra. In the manner of the Kāthaka Upaniṣad, Indra himself, in the form of an eagle, takes the Soma or nectar."

"Omen-birds and other animals are sent by some deities. The owl and the pigeon are Yama's messengers. In the Sūtra books the owl is a messenger of evil deities, and the fierce bird stained with blood, and the pigeons that are wild, are Yama's messengers. In the Ṛgveda there is a prayer to an omen-bird that it may indicate only good omens (2-?-?-?)."

Fierce animals. "These are seen as Rākṣasas or as possessing the characteristics of Rākṣasas. In the Ṛgveda, to indicate Rākṣasas, the word mṛga ('beast') is also used (1-?-?-?; 5-?-?-?; 5-?-?-?). A Rākṣasa named Ūrṇavābha (of the kind of the spider) is mentioned three times (2-?-?; 8-?-?; 8-?-?); and another is Uraṇa, that is, a ram (2-?-?)."

original p. 685

The serpent (Ahi, sarpa). "The word ahi is most often used to indicate Rākṣasas in this way. It is generally another name of Vṛtra; as a serpent coils round creatures, he too encircles men; hence the name may have come. Indra, who killed Vṛtra, also kills Ahi (8-?-?; 4-?-?). That Ahi and Vṛtra are one person is clear from the mantras 1-32-1 to 14. In those sentences, in the places where the word Vṛtra should have been said, Ahi is used; likewise, in place of the word Ahi, Vṛtra is said. The Ahi born in the first part of 1-32-3, 4 is no other than Vṛtra; in many other sentences the two words stand in the two halves of a verse. It may be said that Vṛtra is Ahi-formed. Even if only Ahi is spoken of, the results of Indra's victory are the release of the waters and the gaining of cows, as when Vṛtra is slain. When it is said that Ahi has covered the water, the same root vr ('to cover') is used. Likewise the serpent swallows the water (root gras; 4-?-?; 10-?-?). Cloud, thunder and the like are the weapons of Ahi (1-?-?). He too is brilliant; the Maruts have the epithet ahibhānavaḥ ('shining like serpents') (1-?-?). Agni too has been given this word; he is described as a serpent hissing like wind blown from a bellows (1-?-?). Soma is prayed to hand over the enemy to the serpent (2-?-?). In the plural, ahayaḥ, the race of Rākṣasas is meant (9-?-?; 10-?-?); among them Ahi was the first born (1-?-?). By the name Ahi Budhnya, this serpent has also been counted as a deity."

"In other Vedas, serpents too are counted, like the Gandharvas, as semi-divine. They live in heaven, earth and the sky (Vāj. Saṃ. 13-?; Tai. Brā. 3-?-?). In the Atharvaveda they are mentioned in many places. In one place a whole sūkta is devoted to the praise of serpent-deities (Av. 11-?). In the Sūtras, oblations are laid down separately for the deities of earth, sky and heaven (Āś. Gr. Sū. 2-?-?; Pā. Gr. Sū. 2-?-?). Along with the deities, crops and Rākṣasas, serpents too are worshipped (Sām. Gr. Sū. 4-?-?; 4-?-?; Āś. Gr. Sū. 2-?-?); protection from them is also sought (Āś. Gr. Sū. 4-?-?). As the serpent is a fierce animal, it is believed to be of the Rākṣasa nature and to be satisfied only by oblations. Oblations are made to ants too (Kau. Sū. 1-?)."

Material Things Imagined as Deities (Devategaḷendu bhāvisalpaṭṭa bhautika vastugaḷu)

"Besides the natural phenomena and powers connected with heaven and the sphere of the air, earthly things too are conceived as deities; this is established in the Ṛgveda. Things that come within this class of deities are generally only those that are very useful to man. Such worship is called sarvadevatārādhana ('worship of all the deities'), or Viśve-devas, the deities themselves..."

original p. 686

¹ "...[the deities themselves...] one should not think of this as the doctrine of 'all (viśva)'. Here each thing has its own place. It may be called merely worship of things."

"The rivers, being of the form of deities, have been discussed already."

Mountains. "Mountains possess divine life. They are praised about twenty times in the plural and four times in the singular. In this way mountains alone are nowhere praised; generally they are praised together with water, rivers, plants, trees, heaven and earth (2-?-?; etc.), or with Savitṛ, Indra and other deities (6-?-?; etc.), as those who are endowed with manliness, firm and well satisfied (3-?-?). In Indrā-parvatā it seems that a position equal to Indra's is intended (1-?-?; 1-?-?). The two travel in one big chariot; they are called together to come to the sacrifice (3-?-?). Here the mountain is a mountain-deity and Indra's companion."

Herbs (Oṣadhi).

"The herbs too have obtained divinity. The whole of the sūkta 10-97 is devoted to praising the power of these to cure diseases. They are described as mothers, as deities, and the like. All the crops are subject to the Soma plant, and Soma is available to all. A crop that is useful as a medicine is praised as a goddess born in the earth-goddess (Av. 6-?-?). So that they should not stand in the way of offspring, an animal is also offered as a sacrifice to these herbs (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?-?)."

Trees (Vanaspati).

"Trees (in the plural, 2-?-?; 10-?-?, or in the singular, 1-?-?; Vāl. 6-?) are conceived as deities together with water and mountains. At marriage ceremonies, the worship of big trees (the Aśvattha and others) is prescribed."

The Forest (Aranyānī). "In the sūkta 10-146 the forest-deity (the presiding deity of the forest) is described under the name Aranyānī. She is the mother of the wild beasts; though there is no agriculture, there is no lack of food. The various sounds heard in the forest are described in various ways. But the part played by these crops and forest-deities is not important, not only in the Vedas but in sacrifices and rites. Only in Buddhist books is a very close kinship between them and men established."

Implements (Upakaraṇagaḷu)

"Another group of things that come within personification and the ascription of divinity are the implements of sacrifice. The chief of these is the sacrificial post (yūpastambha). It has the names vanaspati and svaru as well. Both are praised in 3-?-? as being of the form of deities. They are purified and adorned by the priests. The posts set up by the priests go, like the deities and other deities, near the deities. In the ten and eleven mantras of the Āprī-sūktas it is said that the sacrificial post, purified three times with ghee, and placed at Agni's side, is prayed to send the oblations to the deities..."

original p. 687

"...(the same sūкта, 3-?-?; 10-?-?). The barhis (sacred grass) too is said to be a deity. The doors of the sacrificial hall have often been called deities (Devīr dvāraḥ)."

"The stones used for pressing Soma-juice (grāvāṇaḥ, adrayaḥ) are conceived as deities in three sūktas (10-?-?, ?, ?). They have no destruction, and no old age; and they are greater than heaven. At the time of pressing Soma they are like horses or bulls, and the sound produced by them reaches heaven. They are prayed to ward off Rākṣasas and harm, and to grant lordship and progeny. In 1-?-?, ? the kalabatta (pestle), kuṭṭaṇi (mortar) and the like, sounding loudly, are prayed to press the Soma juice."

"In the Atharvaveda it is said that the remnant of the homa (the left-over, ucchiṣṭa) has great divine power (Av. 11-?); likewise the sacrificial ladles sruk, sruva and the rest, used in sacrifice, have power."

"There are some praise-sentences too for the agricultural implements, the plough (śuna, sīra), (4-?-? to ?), and for them the puroḍāśa is prescribed (Śat. Brā. 2-?-?-?)."

"Weapons too have the form of deities. The whole sūkta 6-75 is devoted to the praise of implements of war — the bow, arrows, the quiver and so on. The arrow too is divine; it is prayed to protect and to strike the enemies. The drum too is dealt with in the same way, and it is prayed to drive away the evil, the enemies and the Rākṣasas. A whole sūkta of the Atharvaveda praises it (Av. 5-?)."

Emblems — Images (Lāñchanagaḷu — Pratimegaḷu)

"In other Vedas, a little of the practice of speaking of ordinary things as representatives of the deities is seen. 'Who will buy this Indra of mine for ten cows? After defeating his enemies, he may be returned' (4-?-?; compare 8-?-?): in a statement like this, a certain image of Indra must have been the thing for sale. References to images are found more in the Brāhmaṇas and Sūtras."

"In some rites the wheel is used as the representative of Sūrya (indicating form and motion). In the Vājapeya sacrifice, at the time of the installation of the fires, they use it in this way. In the Purāṇas, the wheel is a weapon of Viṣṇu."

"After sunset, when sprinkling water, they place in the place of the sun a piece of burning charcoal or a burning torch (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?); but when there is a sign of the sun..."

original p. 688

"...it also serves the same purpose (Śat. Brā. 13-?-?-?). When building the fire-pit, in place of the sun they use a gold plate with a hole in it (Śat. Brā. 7-?-?-?)."

"Worship of the male organ seems to have been current; the word śiśnadevāḥ occurs in two places. But it may be said that this worship was opposed to the Vedic view. Indra is prayed not to let the śiśnadevas come near the sacrifice (7-?-?-?); it is also said that Indra killed the śiśnadevas when he was obtaining the wealth of a fort with a hundred doors (10-?-?). In the Purāṇas, as an indication of Śiva's being the creator, worship of the śísna or liṅga came into use."

Evil Deities and Piśācas (Pāpadevategaḷu mattu Piśācigaḷu)

Asuras. "Certain persons who are opposed to the auspicious deities and are violent are called by many names. In all the Vedas, asura is a Rākṣasa of the heaven-world, always an enemy of the deities; they fight with them constantly in historical wars; and sometimes they become strangely enemies of men too (Av. 8-?-?; Kau. Sū. ?-?-?; ?-?). But in the Ṛgveda this word has this meaning in a strange way. In the plural, in the sense of Rākṣasas, it is used only four times. A prayer to Indra: 'Drive away the Asuras who have no faith in the deities' (8-?-?). The remaining three usages are in the tenth maṇḍala itself: 'the deities struck the Asura' (10-?-?); Agni promises, 'I shall find and catch a means to uproot the Asuras' (10-?-?); it is said that the deities placed their trust in the Asuras, who were hard to conquer (10-?-?). In the singular, three times it refers to one Rākṣasa. Bṛhaspati is prayed to guard the warriors of the Asura as a rock that looks after (2-?-?). Indra destroyed the forts of the Asura named Pipru (10-?-?); Indra and Viṣṇu defeated the hundred thousand warriors of the Asura Varcin (7-?-?). Even in the epithet asurahā ('killer of Asuras'), applied to Indra (6-?-?), Agni (2-?-?) and Sūrya (10-?-?), asura means a Rākṣasa. This war of the deities and Asuras, beginning at first with one deity, Indra, and one Asura, Vṛtra, seems gradually to have grown into a constant war between the two parties — the deities as one group and the Rākṣasas as the other. The same idea is expressed in the Brāhmaṇas. In these wars there is a peculiarity: in the beginning the Asuras have the upper hand, and in the end the deities win by trick. The most important example is the Viṣṇu who, in the Trivikrama incarnation, takes three steps and makes the Asuras give back their kingdom, covering the earth."

"In the Brāhmaṇas a relation is imagined between Asuras and darkness (Śat. Brā. 2-?-?-?). The day belongs to the deities, and the night to the Rākṣasas (Tai. Saṃ. 1-?-?-?). But the Asuras too were born of Prajāpati, and at the beginning were equal to the deities, like them..."

original p. 689

"...It may be for this reason that some harmful persons are indicated by the word deva (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?-?; Av. 3-?-?-?)."

"In the Atharvaveda and thereafter, asura means Rākṣasas only; but in the Ṛgveda it is mainly the deities themselves who are meant by this word. It may be that the meaning 'Rākṣasa' became fixed in the word that was first used mostly of the deities. There seems to be a peculiar meaning in the word asura. It is generally used of Varuṇa or Mitra and Varuṇa, and their māyā power is their distinction. But māyā may also mean a power of deceit or harm. The evil meanings that the word asura has (10-?-?-; 10-?-?) may also have given room for the decision that it is unfit for the deities. In one sūkta (10-?) the word seems to be used in both senses. It must have grown less as the sense 'deity'. Moreover, they were very mighty. For those who are opposed to the suras, a separate name was also needed, which is another reason. Therefore the name came to be fixed for the Rākṣasas, as those who are not the suras (deities — as seen in the Upaniṣad)."

Paṇis. "The Paṇis in the sphere of the air are mainly enemies of Indra (6-?-?-; 6-?-?-), of his friends, of Soma, Agni, Bṛhaspati and the Aṅgirasas. In all the places where the name of these Rākṣasas occurs, their cows are mentioned, plainly (10-?-?-; 6-?-?-), or under the name paṇīnām nidhi ('treasure of the Paṇis') or their wealth (3-?-?-; 8-?-?-). It is said that the deities discovered the ghee hidden in the cows by a Paṇi (4-?-?). Indra overcame them in strength (2-?-?), but they did not obtain the strength of Mitra and Varuṇa (1-?-?); even so they are very strong among the lower beings."

"It occurs sixteen times in the plural and four times in the singular. Indra, or Agni-Soma, took the cows from a Paṇi (10-?-?; 1-?-?); and the deity Soma is prayed to strike down the wolf-formed Paṇi and make him lie dead (6-?-?)."

"The word paṇi has been used many more times in the singular; but not as indicating a Rākṣasa — in the sense of 'miser'. Even then, it is used to indicate stinginess in the matter of giving gifts and making homa in sacrifices. By saying that they let no one obtain heavenly wealth and the like, the idea may have come that the Paṇis are Rākṣasas."

Dāsa or Dasyu. "By the word dāsa, or the word dasyu that is equal to it, the Rākṣasas of the sphere of the air are also meant. These were probably men at first, and..."

original p. 690

¹ "...some of the undesirable qualities seen in them may have brought them into the class of Rākṣasas. Some of the names of Rākṣasas of certain clans seem to have historical prominence."

"The singular (2-?-?; etc.) and plural (1-?-?) forms indicate Rākṣasas destroyed by Indra; many times these words are used together with the word Ṛtra (6-?-?; etc.). For this very reason Indra has the names dasyuhā ('killer of Dasyus', 1-?-?; etc.) and, for this act, dasyuhatyā ('killing of Dasyus', 1-?-?, ?; etc.). To protect those who sought his shelter, Indra put thirty thousand Dasyus into a long sleep (4-?-?); he bound a thousand Dasyus (2-?-?); or, with Dadhyañc and Mātariśvan, he took the cow-pens from the Dasyus (10-?-?). Where help from Indra is sought against enemies in the form of Āryas and Dasyus (10-?-?; etc.), or where it is said that he makes a division among the Ārya Dasyus (1-?-?; 10-?-?), the ordinary enemies on the earth must be intended. When it is said that Indra fights the Dasyus for the Āryas (6-?-?; 6-?-?), the same meaning applies. In this way, as the Āryas in wars took the Dāsas or Dasyus as prisoners, the word dāsa seems to have been used two or three times in the sense of 'slave', which is now current (2-?-?; Vāl. 8-?). Those thrown down by Indra, having climbed to heaven (8-?-?; compare 2-?-?), or those burnt and thrown down in heaven (1-?-?), or those destroyed as soon as they were born (1-?-?; 8-?-? to ?), or those on whom Indra helps the deities in war (10-?-?), the Dasyus were Rākṣasas. Overpowering the mist and the clouds, Indra attacks the Dasyus (10-?-?), kills the Dasyus, and obtains the sun and the waters (1-?-?); and in contexts like 'the deities and the Dasyus are enemies of each other' (3-?-?) the same sense. One Dāsa, the lord of the waters (the deity presiding over the waters), must also be a Rākṣasa (1-?-?; 5-?-?; 8-?-?); defeating him, Indra makes those water-deities wives of the best deity (10-?-?). Like the cities of Vṛtra, the seven forts of the 'Dāsa' who is thought of as autumnal (6-?-?; compare 2-?-?) also belong to the sphere of the air."

"It is fitting to say 'Piśācas' for both Dāsas and Dasyus. As generic terms, these words are used of each Piśāca who is mentioned in battles with Indra. Namuci (3-?-? to ?; etc.), Śambara (3-?-?; etc.), Śuṣṇa (2-?-?; etc.), sometimes Pipru (8-?-?; 10-?-?), Cumuri and Dhuni (2-?-?; 2-?-?), Varcin (4-?-?; 6-?-?), Navavāstva (10-?-?, ?), once Śvāpr (?), and a serpent named Ahi (2-?-?)."

original p. 691

Vṛtra

"Of the Rākṣasas of the sphere of the air, the most important is Vṛtra. No other Rākṣasa is mentioned so many times. He is Indra's principal enemy; and for the killing of him Indra was born or grew (8-?-?; 10-?). Vṛtrahā is Indra's personal epithet. In two places the meaning of this word is explained. 'To kill Vṛtra, O killer of Vṛtra, slay Vṛtra' (8-?-?) and 'O Indra, killer of Vṛtra, slay the Vṛtra' (8-?-?). This deed of Indra's is indicated by the words vṛtrahatyā (killing of Vṛtra) and sometimes vṛtratūryā (conquering Vṛtra)."

"It is known beforehand that Vṛtra had the form of a serpent. For this reason he has no hands and feet (1-?-?; 3-?-?). His head, which is cut off by Indra (1-?-?; 8-?-?; 8-?-?), and the trunk that is struck by the vajra (1-?-?), are mentioned many times. He hisses or snorts (8-?-?; 3-?-?, 1-?-?, 1-?-?, and 6-?-?). Thunder, lightning, frost and the like (1-?-?) are under his control."

"Vṛtra's mother has the name Dānu, and she is compared to a cow (1-?-?). The same word (dānu) in the neuter gender indicates a stream, and in the feminine, heavenly water. These two words may be the same. The same word in the masculine is used of Vṛtra. Probably it is because he is the son of Dānu that the name came (2-?-?; 4-?-?). The same name is applied to Ūrṇavābha (2-?-?) and to the seven Rākṣasas killed by Indra (10-?-?). From the word dānu (meaning 'son of Dānu') the word dānava is formed, and it indicates a Rākṣasa who fought with Indra (generally Vṛtra himself). Indra drove away all the deceitful arts of the Dānava (2-?-?); he struck and destroyed the hissing Dānava (5-?-?), and afterwards released the waters (5-?-?)."

"Vṛtra has a hidden dwelling; released by Indra, the waters escape past Ahi and come out of that dwelling-house (1-?-?). Vṛtra lies on the water (1-?-?, 2-?-?), or in the lower part of the sphere of the air, covered by water (1-?-?). When Indra made the water flow, Vṛtra was lying in a high place (1-?-?), or from many high regions Indra pushes him down (8-?-?). When Vṛtra was killed, Indra pierced his ninety-nine forts (2-?-?; 8-?-?; 10-?-?)."

"There is no doubt that the word Vṛtra is formed from the root vr ('to cover, to encircle'). Apovamvāṃsam (3-?-?; etc.; 'one who covers the water') or..."

"vṛṣṭi (1-?-?), or nadīvṛt (1-?-?; 8-?-?; 6-?-?; 6-?-?) — such usages confirm the derivation given above. Vṛtram avyanot (3-?-?). In usages such as avāvṛṇot (1-?-?; 1-?-?) there appears to be a pun on this word. Vṛtra has encircled the rivers (paridhiḥ, 3-?-?)."

"By the word Vṛtrahā not only the killing of the Rākṣasa Vṛtra but also the killing of the Vṛtras is meant. In the plural, and in the neuter, as vṛtrāṇi (bhūrīṇi vṛtrā, 2-?-?), it is used to indicate various Piśācas (2-?-?; 10-?-?). The result of Indra's fight with these Piśācas is also the release of water (2-?-?), or the freeing of the rivers (8-?-?); these too were covered by Piśācas (8-?-?). As soon as he was born, Indra was created by the deities to strike these (3-?-?) and to destroy them (3-?-?); as, with the bones of Dadhyañc, he destroyed the ninety-nine forts of Vṛtra, he also destroyed the Vṛtras (1-?-?)."

"By this plural word Vṛtra the enemies on earth too are indicated. There are two kinds of Vṛtras, Āryas and Dāsas (6-?-?; 6-?-?). In many sentences, the enemies of men are also intended, as the enemies of the deities. In such contexts, Vṛtra does not mean merely an enemy or ill-wisher; the qualities of the Rākṣasa Vṛtra are also in view. This word in the neuter gender must at first have had the general sense of 'obstacle' or 'obstruction', and afterwards the sense 'Piśāca' came."

"In the Brāhmaṇas, Vṛtra is the moon; and on the new-moon day, Indra, in the form of the sun, swallows him."

Vala

"It has occurred about twenty-four times. Indra or his companions, especially the Aṅgirases, are those who destroy him; it is in connection with the freeing of the cows by them that he is mentioned. When the Paṇi had seized the cows, Indra destroyed Vala, who was the guardian of those cows (10-?-?; compare 6-?-?). When Bṛhaspati took them and was going away, Vala grieves for them (10-?-?; compare 10-?-?). Indra forcibly took his forts (6-?-?);

Indra cut the creepers (1-?-?); and Indra broke the unbroken high ground (the peak, sānu) (6-?-?). In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā, Indra, opening the hole of Vala, threw out the best creature in it; the remaining creatures followed it (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?-?). It appears that the word is used many times in the sense of a covering, a hole, a cave, which is not applicable to any person. In two..."

original p. 693

"...contexts (1-?-?; 4-?-?; 8-?-?) it is used together with phalaga as a refuge for water; in the Nirukta (Nir. 1-?) vala too is one of the names of cloud. Indra drove all the cows out and opened the door of Vala (2-?-?); or he opened the hole of Vala that was filled with cows (1-?-?). In the Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa it is said that the cave of the Asuras (vala) was broken by a stone (Paṃ. Brā. 14-?-?). In some sentences this word may indicate the person Vala or a cave and the like (1-?-?; 2-?-?; 3-?-?). In Valaṃruja ('breaker of Vala'), the epithet of Indra along with Vṛtrakhāda, the Rākṣasa Vala must be intended (3-?-?; compare 3-?-?, ?). The change of person into 'cave' is clear in 3-?-?. In the name 'Vala himself is the cow-pen; Indra strikes him', this Vala opens the door of the pen. By not using, for the killing of Vala, the roots han, bhid, dr or ruj, the personification is incomplete. Valabhit ('splitter of Vala') is an epithet of Indra; it is seen especially in the Purāṇas. Here Indra kills both Vala and Vṛtra, who are brothers (Vala-Vṛtra-hā)."

Arbuda.

"It occurs seven times; always as an enemy of Indra. He is deceitful; Indra drove his cows out (8-?-?). Indra threw him down (2-?-?, 3-?-?; compare 8-?-?), crushed him with his foot (1-?-?), or cut off his head (10-?-?). Two or three times he is mentioned along with Vṛtra (Ahi), and is by nature of his race."

Viśvarūpa. "Son of Tvaṣṭṛ, with three heads; Indra and Trita killed him and brought his cows under their control (10-?-?, ?). In two or three other sentences too he is indicated only by the word Tvāṣṭra ('belonging to Tvaṣṭṛ'). Tvāṣṭra was rich in cows, horses and so on (10-?-?); Indra seized him and handed him to Trita (2-?-?). In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?-?), Viśvarūpa, though connected with the Asuras, is the purohita of the deities. In the Mahābhārata, the notion is that the three-headed Tvāṣṭra and Vṛtra are one and the same."

Svarbhānu.

"He too is a Rākṣasa by nature. He has occurred four times in one sūkta (5-40). He covers Sūrya with darkness. Defeating his deceits, Indra fought; and Atri placed Sūrya's eye again in the sphere of the air. His story is told in many places in the Brāhmaṇas. In the Purāṇas, Rāhu is in the place of Svarbhānu. The meaning of this word is 'one who obstructs the light of the sun'."

Uraṇa.

"This one, with ninety-nine arms, was killed by Indra (2-?-?)."

The Dāsas — Dasyus

Śuṣṇa.

"His name occurs about forty times. He is Kutsa's chief enemy. Together with Kutsa, or for Kutsa's sake, Indra uproots Śuṣṇa (4-?-?,..."

original p. 694

² "... (4-?-?, etc.). He has horns (1-?-?) and hoofs (6-?-?, ?), that is, there are hoofs made of horn (compare 10-?-?-?); so Śuṣṇa too may be said to be a serpent. He hisses (śvasanaḥ, 1-?-?). Six times the epithet aśuṣa ('swallower') is used of Agni only. He has strong forts (1-?-?) or a fort (4-?-?), and these are moving forts (8-?-?-?). Indra destroys Śuṣṇa's forts and sets the waters free (1-?-?-?); having struck Śuṣṇa, he creates the water-store (Vāj. Saṃ. 3-?) or, uprooting Śuṣṇa's family, he lets heavenly water (svarvatīḥ) flow (8-?-?-?). Four times Śuṣṇa has the epithet kuyava ('one who causes bad grain'). The word kuyava is found twice, probably used in place of Śuṣṇa (1-?-?, 1-?-?). The result of the fight of Indra and Śuṣṇa may be not only the release of water, but the gaining of cows or of the sun (8-?-?). While fighting with Indra, Śuṣṇa moves about in darkness. He is called a son of frost and a Dānava (5-?-?). Śuṣṇa is a Dānava who holds nectar within himself (Kāṭhaka)."

"From the sentences above, Śuṣṇa may be said to be a cause of drought. The root of the word Śuṣṇa, śuṣ, means 'to dry up' or 'to reduce'. This too supports the idea of a cause of drought."

Śambara.

"This name occurs about twenty-odd times. It is associated with other Piśācas: Śambara is mentioned especially along with Śuṣṇa, Pipru (1-?-?, 1-?-?, 2-?-?, 6-?-?) and Varcin; when fighting Ahi and Śambara, the Maruts help Indra (3-?-?); when he split Śambara, Indra shook the very sky (1-?-?). Searching for Śambara, who lived on a mountain (2-?-?), he rolled him down from the mountain (1-?-?, 6-?-?). Indra rolled down from the big mountain the Dāsa named Śambara, son of Kulitara (4-?-?). Considering himself a minor deity, he struck Śambara and made him fall from a high place (2-?-?). Ninety-nine (1-?-?; generally ninety-nine, 2-?-?, etc.) or a hundred (2-?-?, etc.) forts are under him. Once, in the neuter ending, this word means 'the forts of Śambara'. Br̥haspati pierced these and entered the mountain region that was joined with treasures (2-?-?). Atithigva (1-?-?), generally Divodāsa (2-?-?, etc.): sometimes both (1-?-?; 4-?-?); Indra destroys Śambara for them. Śambara and Divodāsa may be two names of one person."

Pipru.

"An enemy of R̥jīśvan, who is dependent on Indra (Vāl. 1-?). This R̥jīśvan makes Indra drink pressed Soma and obtains help against Pipru in battle (3-?-?; 10-?-?)..."

"...Indra, joined with R̥jīśvan (1-?-?, ?; 10-?-?) or in his cause (4-?-?; 6-?-?), subdued Pipru. Many forts are under Pipru, who is accompanied by the deceits of Ahi; Indra splits them (1-?-?; 6-?-?). Indra killed the Dāsa Pipru and some others and drove the waters out (8-?-?). When the sun, in the middle of the sky, drove his chariot, the Ārya saw a warrior equal to Pipru; Indra, joined with R̥jīśvan, destroyed the strong forts of the deceitful Asura Pipru (10-?-?). Indra gave Pipru, in the form of a forest animal, to R̥jīśvan; he subdued fifty thousand black-skinned people and split forts (4-?-?). With R̥jīśvan, Indra destroyed the family of the dark-coloured ones (1-?-?). Since he has the epithets Asura and Dāsa, some hold that he may also have been an enemy of men."

Namuci. "Apart from the nine times it occurs in the Ṛgveda, this name is seen in the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā, the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa and the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa. He has the epithet Asura ('one of Asura nature') (10-?-?; Śat. Brā. 12-?-?-?), and in the other Vedas he is called an Asura. He is called a Dāsa in three or four sentences (5-?-?, ?, etc.) and māyin ('one of deceitful power') in one place (1-?-?). When Namuci is mentioned, Indra's companion is a protégé named Namī Sāpya (1-?-?, 6-?-?). Like many other Piśācas, Namuci too is killed by Indra (2-?-?, 2-?-?), or struck and killed (1-?-?). Killing Vṛtra and Namuci, Indra destroyed a hundred forts (2-?-?). He splits Vṛtra's head, but twists and crushes the head of Namuci (5-?-?; 6-?-?). Indra twists Namuci's head (5-?-?) or has cut it with the foam of water (8-?-?). In the Brāhmaṇas it is also said that he cut the head. Indra sat at the side of Namuci and drank liquor; then, with the help of the Aśvins, Sarasvatī healed him (10-?-?, ?)."

"According to Pāṇini (6-?-?), Namuci means 'one who does not (na) release (muc)'; that is, he may be called a Piśāca who obstructs the waters."

Dhuni and Cumuri.

"Generally the two names come together; once Cumuri alone has come. Once they are used in the dual (6-?-?), from which it is known how close the relation between them is. Indra put both of them to sleep (2-?-?; 6-?-?; 2-?-?); the same happened to Cumuri alone (6-?-?). Along with Śambara, Pipru, Śuṣṇa and others he destroyed these too, and destroyed their forts (6-?-?). For Dabhīti, who prepared Soma juice for himself (6-?-?), these two were destroyed by Indra, or made to sleep..."

original p. 696

"...(10-?-?); and Dabhīti received from the deities a reward suited to his devotion (2-?-?). For Dabhīti, Indra made thirty thousand Dasyus sleep (4-?-?); for him he bound the Dasyus without a rope (2-?-?)."

"Dhuni means 'one who roars'."

Varcin and others. "He is mentioned four times together with Śambara. He too is an Asura (7-?-?), but Śambara and he are called 'Dāsa' (6-?-?). Indra, breaking Śambara's forts, destroyed one hundred thousand warriors of Varcin (3-?-?; 4-?-?). Varcin means 'one who shines'."

"Along with Vala, Śuṣṇa, Namuci and others, some more Piśācas are named, and they too were destroyed by Indra. Among them are Vṛśīka, Rudhikra (2-?-?, ?), Anarśani, Spabinda (8-?-?) and Ilibiśa (1-?-?)."

Rākṣasas (Rakṣasaḥ)

"The Piśācas or ghosts (bhūta) of the earth are haters of men. The generic name for them is rakṣaḥ ('Rākṣasa'). It occurs more than fifty times in the singular and plural; generally it comes in the form of a prayer to destroy the Rākṣasa with some deity, or praise that the deity killed the Rākṣasa. They are described in the sūktas 7-104 and 10-87; there the words rakṣaḥ, yātu, yātudhāna and the like indicate them. The word rakṣaḥ is a name for all evil deities and Piśācas; so it may be understood as a generic word, and yātu as a sub-generic word."

"These Piśācas or ghosts have the forms of dogs, wild beasts, owls and other birds (7-?-? to ?). Being in the form of birds, they fly about at night (7-?-?). Taking the form of brother, husband or lover, they approach women and wish to destroy their children (10-?-?). In the form of dogs or monkeys they wait to fall on pregnant women (Av. 4-?-?); therefore women with child and children are afraid of them (Av. 8-?-?). At marriage times they run round the bride; to peck out their eyes, little arrows are shot in the sky (Hā. Gṛ. Sū. ?). The description of their forms and the rest is in the Atharvaveda. They especially take the form of men. They have heads, eyes, hearts and other limbs; but there is always some deformity: three heads, two mouths, four eyes, five feet, no fingers, feet turned backward or horns on the hands, and so on (Av. 8-?-?;"

original p. 697

"Hi. Gṛ. Sū. 2-?-?). Blue, yellow or hairy Piśācas are also mentioned (Av. 19-?-?, ?). Among them there are males and females, families and kings (Av. 5-?-?; Hi. Gṛ. Sū. 2-?-?); they too are mortal (Av. 6-?-?; etc.)."

"The Yātudhānas eat the flesh of men and horses, and drink the milk of cows (10-?-?, ?). To satisfy their desire for blood and flesh the Rākṣasas attack men; this attack is generally by entering them. Agni is prayed to prevent Rākṣasas from entering the worshippers (8-?-?). A Piśācī in the form of a disease flits here and there and enters men (Av. 2-?-?). These ghosts and spirits enter us generally through our mouth when we eat or drink (Av. 3-?-? to ?); sometimes by other doors (Av. 8-?-?). The obstacle is only entering; having entered, they cut the man's flesh, eat it and cause disease (Av. 5-?-?, ?). They cause madness and destroy the faculty of speech (Av. 6-?-?; Hi. Gṛ. Sū. 1-?-?). They attack the dwelling-houses of men (Kau. Sū. 1-?-?). Some ghosts, at evening time, move round the houses crying and howling like jackals, or wander in the forests, or laugh loudly, or drink from skulls (Av. 8-?-?, ?, ?; H̥i. Gr̥. Sū. 2-?-?)."

"Their time of movement is night or evening (2-?-?). In the east they have no play; there the rising sun drives them away (Tai. Saṃ. 2-?-?-?). It is believed that a burning torch is the form of a ghost (Kau. Sū. 1-?-?). The new-moon day and the dark half are favourable times for the movement of ghosts, as they are for the dead (Av. 1-?-?-?; 4-?-?-?)."

"There is nothing that they will not do to harm sacrifices. In sacrifices meant for the deities they cause loss and defects; and the Yātus pour the prepared oblations out (2-?-?-?, ?). In seeing the hymn they cannot stand (10-?-?-?). Agni is prayed to burn up Rākṣasas and the like so that the sacrifice may not suffer a curse (1-?-?-?). There is a mantra that makes ineffective the sacrifice of an enemy through the deceit of Yātudhānas and Rākṣasa-groups (Av. 2-?-?-?). At the time of giving rice-water to the dead (the annodaka), they appear in the form of the dead and block it (Av. 18-?-?-?; compare Vāj. Saṃ. 2-?-?). It is common in the Purāṇas that these Rākṣasa groups (behaving like Rākṣasas) trouble yogis."

"Both Agni, who produces the sacrificial fire, and the sacrificer hate those who move the skulls and who cause trouble. Agni alone is prayed to burn, drive away or destroy them (10-?-?-?, etc.). By this work Agni and some other deities have received the name rakṣohā ('destroyer of Rākṣasas')."

original p. 698

³ "These ghosts are not only harmful by nature; they sometimes do harm when urged by others. The words rakṣoyujaḥ ('those who impel Rākṣasas') (2-?-?-?) and the ghosts and Yātus of mantra-wizards are found here (2-?-?-?; 8-?-?-?). One who has come under the attack of a ghost sent by an enemy may drive them away by making an offering in the Yaviṣṭha fire (Tai. Saṃ. 3-?-?-?); and the prayer to the ghosts themselves is, 'swallow the one who sent you' (Av. 2-?-?-?)."

"In the sense of ghosts, the word rakṣaḥ is used both in the masculine and the feminine. In the neuter it also has the meaning 'harm'. From the root rakṣ ('to protect') the word rakṣaḥ may be formed — in the sense that they are to be protected against (rakṣitavya) as one who does harm; but this use is very unusual. Or it may come from the usual root rakṣ ('to guard'). In this context rakṣaḥ means 'what is to be avoided'."

Piśācas. "The third kind of ghosts are the Piśācas. In the Ṛgveda only in one place (1-?-?) the word occurs, ending in the singular, as piśācī. Indra is prayed to destroy the golden-yellow-crowned and water-formed Piśācī and to strike and destroy every ghost. The Asuras, Rākṣasas and Piśācas are, in order, enemies of the deities, of men and of the Fathers. Piśācas in particular must have been connected with the dead ones (preta). The dead ones have the name kravyāda ('eaters of raw flesh or a dead body') (Av. 3-?-?; etc.); this is a word equal to piśāca. Agni is prayed to get back the flesh of the sick man eaten by the Piśācas (Av. 5-?-?). For that reason they are a kind of flesh-eating Piśācas. Piśācas flow in the water (Av. 4-?-?; 4-?-?) or haunt the houses and villages of men (Av. 4-?-?-?)."

"The feminine word arāti ('miserliness') and the masculine and feminine words druh ('one who causes harm, trouble') are each counted as one kind of Piśāca."

"Kimīdin is a group of ghosts (2-?-?; 10-?-?-?)."

"There are many Piśācas connected with our everyday life. From their names alone the trouble they cause can be understood. They have no relation to nature. Generally it is believed that those who are hostile to us, being dead, come in these forms and give us trouble. They have less relation to persons; certain powers that cause disease, childlessness, sin and the like to men are moving about in the air and cause trouble. The chief use of the mantra-science is to turn these back towards those who are not ours."

"Some Piśācas who move on the earth are not harmful; they even help us. They help in getting back the lost, and they grant a long life to the bride..."

original p. 699

"...Arbuda is the chief of a group of Piśācas, who cause fear to enemies and help us in wars (Av. 3-?-?; 3-?-?; 11-?-?)."

Eschatology (Antimagati śāstra) — The Doctrine of the Last Journey

Funeral rites (Āntyakriye).

"In the Vedas there are very few sentences relating to death. The ones that do occur incidentally are only to pray that death may come to enemies and that one's own life may be long. Thought about the other world arises only at the time of the funeral. Burning and burying of dead bodies are both customary. In 10-?-? the burning rite, and in another (10-?-? to ?) the burial, are mentioned. 'The house of earth' too is said in one place (7-?-?). Fathers burnt in the fire and those not burnt are both seen (10-?-?; Av. 18-?-?). Burning is the right way for the dead to go to the upper world. In the books describing rites, it is laid down that only the ashes and bones of the burnt, and of children and ascetics, are to be buried (compare Āś. Gṛ. Sū. 4-?)."

"With the funeral, the history of the next-world life is connected. Agni takes the dead body to another world, to the neighbourhood of the Fathers and the deities (10-?-? to ?; 10-?-?). He places the mortal in the most excellent immortality (1-?-?). Ancient seers, those born at first, have gone to the very high place of Sūrya, to the highest heaven, or to the world of the virtuous, through Agni, the bird of the world of the deities, and men go there (Vāj. Sam. 18-?, ?); Agni, the lord of the household, leads the dead to the world of the virtuous (Av. 6-?-?). Agni first burns the body of the dead and then places him in the world of the ṛtvijas (Av. 18-?-?). The Agni that burns the dead (kravyāda) is different from the Agni that carries oblations to the deities (10-?-?). It is prayed that Agni should burn the goat, his share, and protect the body (10-?-?). The dead body is placed on the skin of a black goat, and in the sacrifice a cow or a goat is sacrificed. In the matter of the body, Agni and Soma are prayed to heal at the time of burning the cows (the wounds) that may have been made by any bird, beast, ant or serpent (10-?-?)."

"It is believed that the soul of the dead goes to heaven with the smoke (Āś. Gr. Sū. 4-?-?). It is a very long way; there Pūṣan is the protector and Savitr the one who shows the way (10-?-?). The sacrificed goat goes ahead to the Fathers and makes known the coming of the dead soul. On the way, the dead is made to cross the black dog, and then he must cross the third inner stage of heaven, the place of the Fathers (compare Av. 8-?-?, ?; 9-?-?)."

"So that it may be useful to the life in the other world, ornaments and clothes are offered to the dead person's soul; this practice is current still (Av. 14-?-?). His wife and..."

original p. 700

"...weapons too are indicated as burnt along with the corpse (10-?-?, ?). A rope was tied round the corpse. The aim of this is that the soul of the dead should not know the way to come back (Av. 8-?-?; 10-?-?; and 18-?-?)."

The soul (Ātman). "Agni or funeral pyres consume only the body; they cannot destroy the personality of the dead. Even in the state of unconsciousness, the life can be separated from the body, and it is believed that life remains even after the body is destroyed. The whole of sūkta 10-58 calls back the life of one bound like a captive. In the Ṛgveda there seems to be no basis for the belief that the soul takes another body; but in the Brāhmaṇas it is said that one who has not performed sacrifices in the prescribed manner, dying, is born again and is subject to death again (Śat. Brā. 10-?-?-?). Prāṇa, ātman, asu (the power of the body, 1-?-?; 1-?-?), manas (the support for thought and feelings, located in the heart; 8-?-?) — all of these indicate the soul. Many sentences, especially in the Atharvaveda, say: if there is asu or manas, there is life; otherwise death. Asunīti or asunīta is the name of the path along which the souls of the dead are taken from this world to the upper world (10-?-?; 10-?-?). The words asu or manas are not used in the mantras of the funeral; they use the words father, mother and so on. For this reason the 'soul' is not a thing without form; it too has a personality. Only after men have given up the body is immortality attained (Śat. Brā. 10-?-?-?); as heaven and the other worlds are material, the body too has an important place. In the existence of other worlds the body too has a share (10-?-?; Av. 11-?-?). A body free of any fault (Av. 6-?-?) is not an ordinary earthly body; it is a body purified by the power of Agni (compare 10-?-?), what the present Vedāntins would call the 'subtle body'. If, after burning, the bones that remain to be collected are destroyed, it is said that this is a harsh punishment (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?; 14-?-?-?); from this it can be understood how important the place of the corpse is. In 10-?-?, ? it is said that the eyes of the dead go to Sūrya and the breath to the wind. But it is not clear that, after Agni takes the dead to the other world, each limb goes to a separate place. This may have been said following the description of the Virāṭ-Puruṣa. In the same sentence (10-?-?; 10-?-? to ?) it is said that the life of the dead enters the water or the crops; probably this is the beginning of the 'entering another body' idea."

"Proceeding along the path followed by the Fathers (10-?-?), the life of the dead goes to the world of eternal light (9-?-?); then, in a chariot of a splendour equal to the deities (Av. 11-?-?) or on wings (4-?-?), killing ghosts..."

original p. 701

"...it goes on the wings which Agni uses (Vāj. Saṃ. 18-?). Pushed upward by the Maruts, serving the beneficent Vāyu and filled with the waters of the rain, the soul regains its old form (Av. 18-?-? to ?), and, distinguished by splendour, goes with Yama to the highest heaven, where the Fathers pass time with delight

(10-?-?, ?; 10-?-?, ?). It is said that, in order to reach heaven in this way, one must return home (astam, 10-?-?). Yama, recognizing him as his own (Av. 18-?-?), gives him also a place of rest (10-?-?)."

"According to the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, the dead leave this world and go along a path between two dogs; the dogs burn the wicked souls and let only the best pass ahead. Thus the best souls that go ahead continue, taking the path to the neighbourhood of the Fathers or the path that goes near Sūrya (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?; etc.). In the Upaniṣads, two paths are told to those who have obtained the knowledge of Brahman: one (for those of complete knowledge) goes to the world of Brahman, the second is the path of heaven. When the fruits of their meritorious acts are exhausted, they come back from this heaven and are again born on earth. Those who have no knowledge of the Self go to the world of evil deities or ghosts, or are born again on earth as wicked."

Heaven (Svarga).

"The place where the Fathers and Yama dwell is in the middle of the sky, standing on eternal light (10-?-?), in the highest heaven (10-?-?), in the third heaven, in the deepest regions of the sky (9-?-? to ?). In the Atharvaveda too it is the same: the very high (Av. 11-?-?) and the world of lustre (4-?-?), the back of the sky (Av. 18-?-?), the third sky (Av. 8-?-?, ?; 18-?-?) and the third heaven (Av. 18-?-?) are described as the worlds of the Fathers and the place of Yama. In the Maitrāyaṇī Saṃhitā (Mai. Saṃ. 1-?-?; 2-?-?) the world of the Fathers is the third world. The world of the Fathers is the very highest part of the sphere of the sun (9-?-?). The Fathers have gone with Sūrya or protect Sūrya (10-?-?; 10-?-?), or have joined the rays of Sūrya (10-?-?; compare Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?), and Sūrya shines for them (3-?-?). There is a relation between them and the foot of Viṣṇu (10-?-?), and it is said that the righteous rejoice at the third step of Viṣṇu in that beloved dwelling (1-?-?). As Viṣṇu placed his three steps in the place where the deities rejoice, so the virtuous go to the place where oblations are offered, and Sūrya also goes there, carrying Uṣas in his lap."

"The lights of the virtuous who go to heaven are the stars (Tai. Saṃ. 5-?-?-?; Śat. Brā. 6-?-?-?), and the seven ancient seers were raised to the group of stars (Tai. Ā. 1-?-?-?)."

original p. 702

¹ "In the Ṛgveda a tree is mentioned. Near it Yama drinks, seated with the deities (10-?-?-?). In the Atharvaveda (Av. 5-?-?-?) it is said that this is a tree of Atri."

"Life in the other world is dealt with especially in the ninth and tenth maṇḍalas, and generally in the first. To those who perform severe penance, the fruit of their penance is heaven; and the same fruit goes to those who die in battle (10-?-?-? to ?). But more than all these, heaven is the fruit for those who generously give the substances of homa (10-?-?-?; 1-?-?-?; 10-?-?-?). The fruits obtained from sacrifices and such acts are described much more in the Atharvaveda."

"The dead experience in heaven a very delightful life (10-?-?-?; 10-?-?-?; 10-?-?-?, ?); there all desired objects are fulfilled (9-?-?-?, ?); among the deities (10-?-?-?), and especially in the presence of Yama and Varuṇa, there is this kind of life (10-?-?-?). There is no talk of old age (10-?-?-?). Distinguished by beautiful bodies, they are dear to the deities and are wished for by them (10-?-?-?; 10-?-?-?; 10-?-?-?). There they see father, mother, children and others (Av. 6-?-?-?), and meet again with wife, children and the rest (Av. 12-?-?-?). In that life there is not the least trace of defects; likewise there is no bodily suffering (10-?-?-?; Av. 6-?-?-?). All the diseased remain on the earth; lameness, a crooked belly or a hump and such defects are not there (Av. 3-?-?-?). In that world they are joined with a complete body, say the Atharvaveda and the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa."

"The dead are happy in heaven and rejoice (modante, mādayante: 10-?-?; 10-?-?, etc.). The happiness of life in heaven is given in great detail in 9-113, 114. There the light is constant; the waters flow quickly; there is no obstacle to the flow (compare Tai. Brā. 3-?-?-?). There too is food in the form of svadhā (what is offered to the Fathers), and satisfaction; there is contentment, joy and the gaining of desired objects. The happiness spoken of there as joy and contentment, without being plain, is later explained as sensual pleasure (compare Tai. Brā. 2-?-?-?; Śat. Brā. 10-?-?-?). In the Atharvaveda it is said that sensual pleasure is obtained there as one wishes (Av. 4-?-?). A hundred times more happiness than the greatest felt on earth is experienced there (Śat. Brā. 14-?-?-?, ?). In that world of the virtuous, the sound of the flute and of song is heard (10-?-?-?); streams of Soma juice, ghee, honey and milk flow for those who live there (Av. 4-?-?, ?; Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?). Cows, clean, of various colours and giving desired things, are always ready (kāmadughāḥ, Av. 4-?-?). There, no distinction of poor and rich, great and small exists (Av. 3-?-?-?)."

original p. 703

"This heavenly happiness described in the Saṃhitās and Brāhmaṇas is said in the Upaniṣads to be not eternal and not the best; to those alone who know the truth of immortality are attained the unity with Brahman and the eternal bliss that arises from it. For that reason, the idea is that those who have done good deeds, after death, pass time in the heaven-world, desirous of pleasure, like (Somapāri) Soma-drinkers."

"Heaven is more glorious than this world and full of sensual pleasure. It is the world of those who do good deeds (10-?-?-?); here those who know the rites pass the time in joy. They enjoy the fruits of the homas they performed and the gifts they gave; and among these, the more they gave to priests and others, the greater the happiness (10-?-?-?). Those who have performed sacrificial rites in the prescribed way gain, not only the worlds of Āditya and Agni, but also union with the worlds of Vāyu, Indra, Varuṇa, Br̥haspati, Prajāpati and Brahmā (Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?; 10-?-?-?; 11-?-?-?, ?; Tai. Brā. 3-?-?-?). It is said that a certain seer, by the power of his knowledge, took the form of a golden swan, went to heaven and attained union with Sūrya (Tai. Brā. 3-?-?-?). In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā the view is that, by performing certain acts, man may attain heaven in this very physical body (Tai. Brā. 6-?-?-?)."

"Those who practise the Veda in the prescribed manner become free from the fear of birth and death and attain equality with Brahmā (Śat. Brā. 10-?-?-?). By the result of learning some secret matter, man is born again (Śat. Brā. 1-?-?-?). In these the beginning of the ideas of the fruits of sin and of transmigration may be seen. These are fully expounded in the Upaniṣads such as Chāndogya, Br̥hadāraṇyaka and Kaṭha, and in the Sūtras. The Kaṭhopaniṣad tells the story of Naciketas; in it the main part is the dialogue of Naciketas and Yama. Those who are not fit for heaven and release, again and again subject to death, are caught in the wheel of worldly existence, and are born on earth, if not as embodied beings, as inert matter; one who has self-control of mind can attain the world of Viṣṇu; there is no hell for those who are unable to attain release: so Yama instructs Naciketas."

Hell (Naraka)

"Though, alongside the statement that the virtuous obtain heaven and the like in the other world, no punishments are laid down for the wicked, there must be a separate place for them. The Atharvaveda and the Kāthopaniṣad say plainly that such people experience the fruits of their sinful acts in hell. As opposed to the world of heaven there is the hell-world (the world below) where female Piśācas and others dwell (Av. 12-?-?; Av. 2-?-?; 5-?-?); the murderer experiences punishment in this world (Vāj. Saṃ. 30-?). In the lowest region, darkness (Av. 8-?-?;"

original p. 704

"etc.), darkness covered with gloom (Av. 5-?-?), pitch darkness (Av. 18-?-?, etc.) — this world is described thus. The sufferings of hell are described in Av. 5-?, and still more fully in Śat. Brā. 11-?. The same Brāhmaṇa says: everyone is born again after death; his deeds are weighed in a balance; the virtuous experience happiness and the wicked suffering according to their deeds (Śat. Brā. 11-?-?-?; 12-?-?-?). But there is no basis, even in the Ṛgveda, for denying that there is such a place for experiencing sorrow. 'This deep place has been created for the wicked, for those who speak untruth, and for the untruthful' (4-?-?). Indra and Soma are prayed to throw the wicked into the nether world, into bottomless darkness, so that not one of them may rise again (7-?-?); like the owl, the Rākṣasī who moves about unseen by anyone should fall in the darkness (7-?-?); the hater and the one who speaks harshly should fall below the three earths (7-?-?). These sentences only make known that there is a region below the earth covered with darkness. The pleasures of this earth are the main aim; the happiness and sorrows after death are not so much the main concern. In the Brāhmaṇas it is only said that those who did good deeds and those who did evil are born again in another world and experience the fruits of their deeds (Śat. Brā. 6-?-?-?; 10-?-?-?); the duration of this suffering or punishment is not stated. It is also a belief that those who do not understand rightly the rules of the sacrificial limbs and do not practise them go to another world, before the time fixed for them in the world of earth (Śat. Brā. 10-?-?-?)."

"There is, one may say, no basis in the Vedas for the belief that after death each one is judged as good or bad according to his deeds. The one or two sentences cited above are not clear. In the Taittirīya Āraṇyaka (Tai. Ā. 6-?-?) it is only said that Yama separates those who go the right path from those who go the wrong path; it is not said that he has the highest authority to decide this."

The Fathers (Pitr̥gaḷu)

"Among the dead, the virtuous live in the third heaven; to them the name Pitr̥ ('Fathers') is given. They are the original forefathers who followed the ancient paths (10-?-?, ?). The dead, following the very path these seers made, go to their neighbourhood (10-?-?, ?, ?). They are related to the third step of Viṣṇu (10-?-?; compare 1-?-?). Two sūktas have the Fathers as deity (10-15; 10-54)."

"Among the Fathers there are groups: Navagvas, Virūpas, Aṅgirasas, Atharvans, Bhṛ̥gus and Vasiṣṭhas (10-?-? to ?; 10-?-?); of these the last four names are the names of the seers of the second and seventh maṇḍalas of the Atharvaveda and the Ṛgveda. Among these..."

original p. 705

"the Aṅgirasas have a special relation to Yama too (10-?-?, ?). Among the Fathers there are divisions as avarāḥ (those of lower rank), parāḥ (those of higher rank) and madhyamāḥ (those of middle rank). Though they are not known by their descendants, Agni knows all of them (10-?-?, ?, ?). Together with the Uṣases, rivers, mountains, heaven and earth, Pūṣan and the Ṛbhus, their favour is also prayed for (6-?-?; 6-?-?; 2-?-?; 1-?-?). Prayers for their kindly look (10-?-?) are made to give their descendants wealth, progeny and long life (10-?-?, ?; Av. 18-?-?; 18-?-?). They pray to Vasiṣṭha to help their lineage (7-?-?; compare 10-?-?); and Turuṣya, Yadu and Ugradeva are praised as a party of three (1-?-?)."

"The Fathers too are immortal (Av. 6-?-?) and are called deities (10-?-?). With the Aṅgirasas and some other groups, priesthood too is joined to deity-hood. The works of creation are also stated of some Fathers; it was they who made the sky studded with stars; day was made bright and night dark by them (10-?-?); they found the hidden light and gave birth to Uṣas (7-?-?; compare 10-?-?); and joined with Soma, they spread out earth and sky (8-?-?). As the Agni who carries oblations to the deities (havyavāha) and the Agni who burns corpses (kravyāda) are different (10-?-?), so the paths of the deities and of the Fathers are different (10-?-?; 10-?-?; compare 10-?-?). In the same way a distinction between the world of heaven and the world of the Fathers is stated: the door of the deity-world is in the north-east (Śat. Brā. 6-?-?-?) and the door of the Fathers' world in the south-east (Śat. Brā. 13-?-?-?). The Fathers and men are different classes, and their creation too is different (Tai. Brā. 3-?-?-?). The Fathers are dwellers on earth, in the sphere of the air and in heaven (Av. 18-?-?; Ṛk. Ve. 10-?-?)."

"The ancient Fathers once offered Soma oblation (10-?-?). They pass time happily with Yama (10-?-?; 10-?-?; Av. 18-?-?) and eat with the deities (2-?-?). Living like the deities, they sometimes obtain worship suited to the deities. They come in the same chariot as Indra and the deities (10-?-?). They too long for Soma juice (10-?-?, ?); seated on the darbha seat, with the dakṣiṇā in front, they drink the pressed pāṇīya (10-?-?, ?). They are eager to drink Soma juice prepared for them; they are invited to come with Yama, their father Vivasvān and Agni, and to accept what has been offered (10-?-? to ?; 10-?-?, ?). They are invited to come in thousands, to sit in order on the darbha seat..."

¹ "...[to sit in order on the darbha seat...] and to partake [of the offering] (10-?-?, ?). When the Fathers come to the sacrificial hall, some Piśācas too, in the form of their friends, may mix with them (Av. 18-?-?)."

"When food is offered to the deities they say 'svāhā', and when it is given to the Fathers 'svadhā' (10-?-?); in all rites this difference between the shares of the deities and of the Fathers must exist (Śat. Brā. 2-?-?-?). They too are worshipped. There is also the prayer that they should listen to the prayers of their followers, take their side, and forgive the mistakes that happen naturally (10-?-?, ?, ?; compare 3-?-?)."

Yama

"Among all the virtuous dead, Yama is the chief. Because the Vedas have not much to say about the other world, Yama is praised in only three sūktas (10-14, 10-?, 10-?). In another (10-10) there is a dialogue between Yama and his sister Yamī. The name of Yama occurs about fifty times, in general once in the first and eighth maṇḍalas, and most of all in the tenth."

"He is always engaged in play with the deities (2-?-?; 10-?-?). He is mentioned along with Varuṇa (10-?-?), Bṛhaspati (10-?-?; 10-?-?) and, especially, Agni, who leads the souls of the dead to other worlds. Agni is Yama's friend (10-?-?) and purohita (10-?-?). One deity and Yama (the two being indicated as one) together found Agni, who was hidden (10-?-?). Agni, Yama and Mātariśvan are three names of one (1-?-?). Yama is included in the list of Agni and other deities (10-?-?; 10-?-?)."

"From the sentences above it can be guessed that Yama too is a deity. He is not plainly called a deity; he is said to be king of the dead (Yamarājñah, 10-?-?). After death, the soul sees the two, Yama and the deity Varuṇa (10-?-?). One whole sūkta (10-14) deals with the relation between Yama and the Fathers, and in it too there is special mention of the Aṅgirasas. Yama comes with them to the sacrifice and is pleased (10-?-?, ?; 10-?-?). The matter of his horses, with golden eyes and with the lustre of dark clouds, is raised (Tai. Ā. 6-?-?; Āp. Śrau. Sū. 14-?-?). He is the one who gathers all the people (10-?-?); he provides a place of rest for the dead (10-?-?; Av. 18-?-?) and provides a separate dwelling-house for him (10-?-?)."

"Yama's dwelling is in a corner of the sky (9-?-?). Of the three heavens, two belong to Savitṛ and one to Yama (1-?-?; compare 1-?-?); the world of Yama is the third and the very highest. In the Vājasaneyi Saṃhitā (Vāj. Saṃ. 18-?) it is said that Yama and Yamī live in heaven at this highest place. In this place of his — this is also the place of the deities — the sound of the flute and of song is heard around Yama (10-?-?)."

original p. 707

"For Yama, Soma-juice is prepared and ghee offered (10-?-?, ?); and he is prayed to come to the sacrificial hall and be seated on the seat (10-?-?)."

"Vivasvat is his father (10-?-?), and a woman named Saraṇyū is said to be his mother (10-?-?). He is many times called Vaivasvata (10-?-?; etc.). Since he has no superior, Yama alone is greater than Vivasvat (Av. 18-?-?; 18-?-?, ?; compare)."

"In the dialogue between Yama and Yamī, they both say that they are children of a Gandharva and a water-goddess (apyā yoṣā) (10-?-?). Yamī says that Yama alone is mortal (10-?-?). It is said that Yama gave up his body and desired death itself (10-?-?). Showing the path to the many who would come afterwards, he went to another world; here the ancient Fathers too have gone (10-?-?, ?). He is the first of all the dead mortals (Av. 18-?-?). 'Mortals' here must be men; but in some other contexts, by the word 'mortal', the deities too are indicated. Since he is the first and very ancient of the virtuous, it is natural that all of them should be known as his people. He has the epithets Viśpati ('lord of all settled ones'), and 'our father' (10-?-?). Through Yama, later, the family-name of all men, 'descendants of the Āditya Vivasvān', has come about (Tai. Saṃ. 6-?-?-?; Śat. Brā. 3-?-?-?; and compare Ṛg. 1-?-?). The 'horse that moves in the sky' given by Yama must be the place Yama gives to those who have become immortal (1-?-?; compare 1-?-?); so one may say that the relation of Yama and the sun is stated in the Ṛgveda too."

"Death itself is the path of Yama (1-?-?) and once (1-?-?; Mai. Saṃ. 2-?-?; Av. 6-?-? and 6-?-?) he is also called Death. The shackles used by Yama are equal to Varuṇa's noose (10-?-?). By such sentences and by the characteristics of his messengers, Yama can be shown to be terrible. In the Atharvaveda and other Vedic histories, since death and the sufferings after death are said to be caused by Yama, Yama is counted as the deity of death. But in the Purāṇas too, it is plainly said that hell alone is not Yama's kingdom. In other Saṃhitās also, Yama is one among the list of Antaka, Mṛtyu and Nirṛti (disease) (Vāj. Saṃ. 39-?; Av. 6-?-?; Mai. Saṃ. 2-?-?), and Death is his messenger (Av. 5-?-?; 18-?-?; etc.). Death is the lord of men, and Yama the lord of the dead..."

original p. 708

"(Av. 5-?-?, ?); Sleep (the deity presiding over sleep) is said to come from Yama's kingdom (Av. 6-?-?)."

"The word yama is also used in the sense of 'twin' (yama), generally in the masculine or feminine dual (yamau), and in some places in the sense 'rein' (yama) or 'guide' (mārgadarśaka). Yama and Yamī are conceived as twins (10-?-?). In other books, in describing Yama as a god of death, a harsh teacher and the like, the idea is that this word is derived from the root yam ('to restrain'); but for this there is hardly any basis in the Vedas."

"A bird — generally the owl or the pigeon — is Yama's messenger (10-?-?; compare 10-?-?). Here Yama himself is thought of as Death; therefore Yama and Death have one and the same messenger (8-?-?). A little more fully discussed is the matter of the two dogs who are Yama's appointed messengers (10-?-? to ?). They have four eyes and broad noses; their bodies are spotted and brown; they are the children of Saramā (Sārameya). They are guards who protect the path to Yama's world (10-?-?), or are seated on that path (Av. 18-?-?). To the dead man it is advised: 'Cross by these two dogs and go quickly and join the Fathers' (10-?-?). Yama is prayed to hand the dead over to the Fathers and to grant him well-being and health. Having been satisfied in their own life-form, they move like Yama's messengers among men. They too (the dogs) are prayed to be gracious to men so that they may enjoy the light of the sun for ever. They are watching which of men shall die and at what times, and their work must be to protect the blind on the path to Yama's world. There is basis for saying that these dogs do not harm the wicked on this path; this idea comes in the sentences of 7-?-? onward. To indicate Yama's messengers, words in both the plural and the dual are used in the Atharvaveda (Av. 8-?-?; 8-?-?; 5-?-?). Of the two dogs, one is Śabala and the other Śyāma (Av. 8-?-?). Some think the two dogs are Yama and Yamī themselves; some, the sun and moon. Some think that Yama is the representative of one part of nature — a special form of Agni, Sūrya, the evening time, or the setting sun; and that therefore there may be a deity of death

—" 2

Close of the Pariśiṣṭa and of Volume 5

*Note on the translation of the Pariśiṣṭa (added at the user's request, 2026-10-06):* the whole appendix (printed pp. 531–708) is now translated into English, page by page. It is a Kannada prose essay without Sāyaṇa's bhāṣya; the Sanskrit words and phrases in it are given in Devanagari + IAST + English; the bracketed Ṛgveda/Atharvaveda/Brāhmaṇa references (small Kannada digits) are reproduced as read at 150 dpi and are unverified — digits that could not be read are shown as "?" throughout, and passages where the print was crowded are rendered loosely. The statement in the header of this file that "the Paṛiśiṣṭa is not being translated" is therefore out of date, the file being append-only. The contents of the Paṛiśiṣṭa follow the list given in the header (deities of the heavenly region, of the atmosphere, of the earth; abstract-idea deities; female deities; paired deities; groups; the Ṛbhus; Apsarases; Gandharvas; protective deities; historical/imaginary seers and persons; animals; material things, implements and images; evil deities and Piśācas; and the eschatology: funeral rites, soul, heaven, hell, the Fathers, Yama).

2. Here the Paṛiśiṣṭa ends: the last line of the print breaks off in mid-sentence, with a small printer's ornament below and the printer's imprint:) "ಶ್ರೀ ಚಾಮುಂಡೇಶ್ವರೀ ಎಲೆಕ್ಟ್ರಿಕ್ ಪ್ರೆಸ್, ಕ್ಲಾಕ್ ಟವರ್ ಸ್ಕ್ವೇರ್, ಮೈಸೂರು, 1950" — Śrī Cāmuṇḍeśvarī Electric Press, Clock Tower Square, Mysore, 1950. (The sentence ends with a dash in the print; the volume closes without a further colophon. The printed page number is 708 = PDF 724, the last page of the PDF.

Collected Notes

Every translator's note and editorial remark of this volume, gathered by Sūkta and Rik.

Sūkta 47

1. Fourth sūkta of the Ninth Anuvāka; first of the Fourth Adhyāya.
2. no separate title line is printed at the head of p. 1: the sūkta begins directly under the Adhyāya title; the heading block with "Sūkta — 47" is on p. 2
3. the same verses as in Volume 4, editorial and tentative
4. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; the words marked [?] are crowded
5. Crowded: the Anukramaṇikā clause "ayaṃ daśa prāgāthaṃ ...", the parenthetical references to the "paribhāṣā", and the word "kratau" — printed so that it reads like "katau"; all [?].
6. editorial and tentative
7. The Kannada numeral for the second group of Satobṛhatī ṛks, "೩, ೪, ೫, ೬, ೭, ೮, ೯", reads like "3" where "2" is meant; kept as read.
8. The varga numerals are small and read with doubt.
9. accents not reproduced
10. characterized, numerals as read [?]
11. the heading is printed "viśeṣa viśayagaḷu"
12. pp. 4–6 — grammar pages, noted briefly
13. The print reads trivandhureṇa with v throughout — the usual form is tribandhura; It is given as printed [?].
14. On the sense of "adhvare ... brahma" in the bhāṣya, the printed text reads yoge ("in your yoga") for yajñe, as read, [?]; given as printed.
15. from p. 7

16. Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-118-2 as read [?]
17. Ṛ. Saṃ. 8-8-[?] as read [?]
18. Ṛ. Saṃ. 1-157-3 as read [?]
19. pp. 8-9 — grammar pages, noted briefly
20. the print here spells the first member with b: "tribanduraṇa" / "tribandhura"
21. The bhāṣya of Rik 3 begins at the foot of p. 9 and runs on to p. 10; not yet written.
22. from the foot of p. 9
23. pp. 10-11 — grammar pages, noted briefly
24. The Saṃhitā prints the first word triṣadhasṭhe, the Pada tri-sadhasṭhe: the s becomes ṣ by sandhi.
25. Crowded: the words after triṣadhasṭhe ("karmāśraya-trayarūpeṇa..."), and dyur iti ... nāma, which reads like "dhyur ita harnāma", perhaps "dyur ity ahar nāma"; the Pāṇini and Mahābhāṣya-style numerals; all [?].
26. The Special Topics and grammar of Rik 4 begin on p. 13, not yet written.
27. from p. 13
28. pp. 13-14 — grammar pages, noted briefly
29. The words "spaṣṭam anyat", "the rest is clear", are the print's own. The words "su avatam" (the print reads like "ṣv avatam") and the numerals are crowded [?].
30. pp. 16-17 — grammar pages, noted briefly
31. The bhāṣya of Rik 6 begins at the foot of p. 17 and runs on to p. 18; not yet written.
32. from the foot of p. 17
33. The reading "ñitsvareṇa" is crowded; the print has a letter like ghāt, read ñit [?].
34. p. 19 — grammar page, noted briefly
35. The print divides parāvati with an avagraha mark as parā-vati.
36. The clause "nāsatyā | satsu bhavau satyau | ..." is as read; the Kannada print of the etymology is crowded [?].
37. The Special Topics and grammar of Rik 7 begin on p. 21, not yet written.
38. from p. 21
39. p. 21 — grammar page, noted briefly

40. The second pāda of the first line is printed सवनेदुप ("savanedupa"); It is given as printed, and read as savanā id upa from the Pada.
41. The words "savanedupāsmadanuṣṭheyāni" are as printed and crowded [?]; the Uṇādi number and two Pāṇini numbers [?].
42. pp. 23–25 — grammar pages, noted briefly
43. The Pāṇini/Mahābhāṣya numbers after saptamīpamānety ādinā are crowded and the first words are uncertain [?]. "tena rathene ti" is tena rathene'ti, "'with that chariot': the connexion is with the preceding".
44. The Pratipadārtha, Bhāvārtha, English, Special Topics and grammar of Rik 9 begin on p. 26, not yet written.
45. from p. 26
46. pp. 26–27 — grammar pages, noted briefly
47. The Saṃhitā prints the second word as arvāg, the Pada as arvāk: the final consonant is voiced by sandhi.
48. p. 29 — grammar page, noted briefly

Sūkta 48

1. Fifth sūkta of the Ninth Anuvāka.
2. large Kannada title line at the head of p. 30: "nalavattettaneya sūktavu"
3. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; the words marked [?] are crowded
4. editorial and tentative; the clause on metre and the Anukramaṇikā words are crowded
5. The varga numerals are small and read with doubt. In the Kannada anuvāda the print lists the first group as "1, 3, 5, ..." and the second as "2 [printed like 3], 4, 6, ...".
6. accents not reproduced
7. The print has vyucchā with a long ā in the Saṃhitā, and the Pada vi | uccha; Both are given as printed.
8. The print has rāyo where the Saṃhitā has rāyā in the bhāṣya's "rāyo paśulakṣaṇena": taken as a misprint; and "nakārasya rephādeśaḥ" is the reading of "rephādeśaḥ" [?].
9. the source adds in English: "daughter of heaven"
10. pp. 33–34 — grammar pages, noted briefly

11. The print reads "somāścendriya..." in the first rule-name; "somāśvendriya..." is given [?]. The sentence "ṇer aniṭi" is the print's "ṇerani..."; the second pāda of "coda" crowded.
12. The Pratipadārtha, Bhāvārtha, English, Special Topics and grammar of Rik 2 begin on p. 36, not yet written.
13. from p. 36
14. pp. 37–38 — grammar pages, noted briefly
15. The first words "uṣā devy uvāsa" appear with the word "devī" as in the Pada; two Pāṇini numbers, the Uṇādi number and the reading "supto 'dvenudātteti" [print: "suptvādenudātteti"] are crowded [?].
16. pp. 40–42 — grammar pages, noted briefly
17. The Bhāvārtha, English, Special Topics and grammar of Rik 4 begin on p. 44, not yet written.
18. from p. 44
19. pp. 44–45 — grammar pages, noted briefly
20. The Saṃhitā prints the particle as long ghā, the Pada as short gha; the grammar below explains the lengthening in the mantra.
21. The tail is as read from the print; several rule-names and numbers ("tunugḥamakṣutaṅkutroruṣyāṇām", "ācer", the Paribhāṣā numbers 3 and 89, the Uṇādi number 2-81, the Kāśikā number) are crowded, [?]; the reading "kṛṣṇavṛji..." for the print's "kṛṣyāvṛji..." follows the Kannada author's list in the grammar page below.
22. pp. 47–49 — grammar pages, noted briefly; the long discussion of the accent of padvat is outlined only
23. The Saṃhitā's vyarthinaḥ is read as vi arthinaḥ as in the Pada; "nakiṣ te" is the reading of the Saṃhitā's नकिष्टे, from the Pada nakiḥ | te.
24. from the foot of p. 49
25. This is the longest crowded stretch of the bhāṣya so far: the word kasya after tudādittvāc chaḥ, the clause antodāttāc chapah ..., the rule-names yusmattatvakṣuḥṣv antaḥpādam, kasipater graheś chandasi, the clause tatkṛ[...lyate, and all the numerals are as read and doubtful, each marked [?]. The first word of the bhāṣya, printed "yo", may be "yā" [?].
26. the source adds in English: "diligent, busy, industrious"
27. The Kannada author's gloss on nakiḥ reads "all, the whole" where, in Rik 6 itself, the word is the negative "no one/never"; The gloss is given as printed [sic?].

28. pp. 51–53 — grammar pages, noted briefly
29. The print has the unusual "eṣoṣodevī" for "eṣā uṣodevī" [as read]; "ñityādir nityam" is printed "ñitsvara...". The numerals are as read.
30. pp. 55–56 — grammar pages, noted briefly
31. The Saṃhitā prints nānāma with a long ā and uccha dapa; the Pada has nanāma and uchchhat | apa; The line-end is read as ucchad apa sridhaḥ, from the Pada, [?].
32. The bhāṣya of Rik 8 begins at the foot of p. 56 and continues on p. 57; not yet written.
33. from p. 57
34. Crowded: "tujāditive ... totujāna ... i[va]", the Pāṇini number after susoḥ sāmārthyē, and the word after apṛītau; marked as read, [?]. The print says ucchat; the Saṃhitā's line-end is thus ucchad apa sridhaḥ.
35. pp. 58–60 — grammar pages, noted briefly
36. Crowded stretches in the print, marked [...] and [?]: the words after "nittvād", the sentence "subhagā[ntra] ityādinā | ityadvā[...]", the Uṇādi and Kāśikā numbers. The print has "diviṣṭa" for the Sun, where "div-" with "iṣṭa" is read, [?].
37. The Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā of Rik 9 begins on p. 62, not yet written.
38. from p. 62
39. pp. 62–63 — grammar pages, noted briefly
40. The Pada prints the compound as one word, citrāmaghe, not divided.
41. The print is crowded at several points: the number after samāse 'nitēḥ, the Uṇādi-type rule-name ācer iti, the number 5-2-109-1, and "herapitveva" [as printed "hera-pitreva"], all as read [?]; the word ceṣṭanam in the first sentence is as read, [?].
42. the source adds in English: "of all creatures of the Universe etc."
43. the source adds in English: "movements"
44. in English: "life"
45. pp. 66–68 — grammar pages, noted briefly
46. The print has vanhayaḥ in Kannada spelling: the conjunct hn is written as nh; vahnayaḥ is given.
47. Crowded in the print: the Mahābhāṣya-style number after nīvahyor hartreś ca, and the Pāṇini numbers 1-4-49 and 1-4-51; marked as read [?]. The word "yocasva" in the first sentence is as printed and probably stands for yācasva, "ask"; the Kannada anuvāda does not repeat it. The print gives sukṛtaḥ ... yajamānān, and the note on dvikarmakeṣu vahateḥ is as read.

48. the Kannada: "uttamavāda"

49. The long Sanskrit sentence in the Special Topics of Rik 11 (p. 70) is printed in Kannada in a crowded stretch: "ಯೇನೇಷು ಜನೇಷು ಯದ್ಧನಮುತ್ತಮಮಿತಿ ಕಥ್ಯತೇ ತತ್ತ್ವಂ ಅಸ್ಮಾಭ್ಯಂ ಭಿರ್ಮರ್ತ್ಯೈರ್ಲಭ್ಯಮೇನ...". No Devanagari is given for it, to avoid completing garbled text; the sense as given above is the Kannada author's own gloss at the end of the passage.

50. The Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā of Rik 11 begins at the foot of p. 70 with vājam; the rest is on pp. 71 ff., not yet written.

51. from the foot of p. 70

52. pp. 70–72 — grammar pages, noted briefly

53. The Pada prints the verb as dhāḥ and, as the grammar below shows, takes uṣaḥ at the head of each half-line as the vocative.

54. The Saṃhitā has āśvāvad; "āśvāvat" is given in the tail as printed ("āśvāvat" for āśvāvat, with the lengthened first member, as in Rik 2, [?]).

55. pp. 74–75 — grammar pages, noted briefly

56. The print has "sugmyam" in the Saṃhitā and Pada; in the tail "sṛjīdṛśor jhaly akiti" is as printed, the line "ṣatvakatvaṣatvāni" as read [?], and the numbers as read.

57. The Special Topics and grammar of Rik 13 begin on p. 77, not yet written.

58. from p. 77

59. the source adds in English: "dazzling to the eyes, auspicious, refreshing &c."

60. in English: "desirable by all"

61. Ṛ. Saṃ. 3-4-2 as read [?]

62. Ṛ. Saṃ. 6-37-1 as read [?]

63. Ṛ. Saṃ. 6-49-4 as read [?]

64. Ṛ. Saṃ. 7-7-5 as read [?]

65. Ṛ. Saṃ. 7-10-4 as read [?]

66. Ṛ. Saṃ. 7-84-4 as read [?]

67. Ṛ. Saṃ. 8-71-3 as read [?]

68. Ṛ. Saṃ. 10-150-3 as read [?]

69. pp. 78–79 — grammar pages, noted briefly
70. The first words of the bhāṣya in the print read "he mahi mahate pūjanīye voṣodevate", where uṣodevate is read; the clause "vakārasypadadhāyās ca ūṭh", the numbers after kā., and the closing numeral are crowded, [?].
71. pp. 81–82 — grammar pages, noted briefly so far
72. The rest of the Vyākaraṇa-prakriyā of Rik 14 (on mahi and the following words) is on pp. 82–83 and is not yet written.
73. from p. 82
74. pp. 82–83 — grammar pages, noted briefly
75. The reading "nasoṇatvābhāvaḥ" and the two Uṇādi numbers are as read, [?]; the words "chardiś chadir iti" in the Nighaṇṭu-reference are as printed and crowded.
76. pp. 85–86 — grammar pages, noted briefly
77. The Saṃhitā prints mimikṣvā, with a long ā, and viśvaturōṣo, which the Pada divides mimikṣva | sam ... ā and viśvaturā | uṣaḥ.
78. Crowded: the print's ilābhir ā, the Nirukta and Śatapatha numerals, the Nirukta citation in the middle, and the closing numeral, which is printed so that it reads like "5" [?]; all as read.
79. The Special Topics of Rik 16 begin at the foot of p. 88 and run on to p. 89; its grammar and the close of Sūkta 48 follow; not yet written.
80. from the foot of p. 88
81. pp. 89–90 — grammar pages, noted briefly

Sūkta 49

1. Sixth sūkta of the Ninth Anuvāka.
2. large Kannada title line at the head of p. 91: "nalavattombhattaneya sūktavu"
3. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; words marked [?] are crowded
4. editorial and tentative; the Anukramaṇikā clause and the Āśvalāyana numerals are read with doubt
5. accents not reproduced
6. Crowded: the Mahābhāṣya-style number after gonardīyaḥ, the two Uṇādi numbers, and the clause "ṛṇākhyāyāṃ cit ... cid ity anuvṛtter"; all as read, [?].

7. pp. 93–94 — grammar pages, noted briefly
8. The phrase "śrūyata iti sataḥ" and the numerals after the Nirukta references are crowded, [?]; "tiṣṭhater chandasi" is as read.
9. pp. 97–98 — grammar pages, noted briefly
10. The print's Pada shows the verb as "ār" with a cluster read as āran, [?]; the Saṃhitā's prārann and the grammar below show āran.
11. Crowded in the print: "ṛtūnu" for "ṛtūn" at the start, the Pāṇini numbers 5-4-140, 6-2-198, 8-3-41, 8-3-37 and the clause on duduṣpadhasya, and the Uṇādi number; all as read, [?].
12. The grammar of Rik 3 begins on p. 100, not yet written.
13. from p. 100
14. pp. 100–102 — grammar pages, noted briefly
15. Crowded: the list of roots in the Uṇādi rule āśipruṣi..., its number, and the closing numeral of the bhāṣya; the first two verbs of the Uṇādi list are as read, [?]. The print's gṛbhiḥ Pada division reads "gīḥ-bhiḥ".
16. pp. 104–105 — grammar pages, noted briefly

Sūkta 50

1. Seventh and last sūkta of the Ninth Anuvāka.
2. large Kannada title line at the head of p. 106: "aivattaneya sūktavu"
3. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; words marked [?] are crowded
4. editorial and tentative; the Anukramaṇikā word "saptronā" is crowded
5. The varga numerals are small and read with doubt.
6. accents not reproduced
7. Crowded: the Nirukta numbers, the Uṇādi number "4-666" as printed [?], and the clause gatikāarakopadayoh ...; as read.
8. pp. 109–110 — grammar pages, noted briefly
9. Crowded: the Taittirīya references and their numerals, the Nirukta number, the Uṇādi numbers (3-102, 4-213), and the Mahābhāṣya number; all as read, [?]; "āktur" for aktuḥ is as printed in the tail, the lexicon-name being aktuḥ.
10. Tai. Brā. 1-5-2-6 as read [?]
11. Tai. Brā. 1-5-2-3 as read [?]
12. Tai. Saṃ. 5-4-1-3 as read [?]

13. Ni. 3-20 as read [?]
14. pp. 112–113 — grammar pages, noted briefly
15. The print has "ṛtūna" style crowded readings: the numbers 3-1-57, 2-1-8 and the Atharvaveda reference "13-1-18" are as read [?]. The print's first word adṛśram is "adṛśram" in the bhāṣya and is the first-person-singular-looking form said to stand for the third-person plural.
16. sic: the printed word is "high"; the Kannada and bhāṣya sense is "the rays of the Sun" — the line is as printed, and "like" is printed "llke" [sic].
17. The Special Topics and grammar of Rik 3 begin on p. 114 and run on; not yet written.
18. from p. 114
19. p. 115 — grammar page, noted briefly
20. Crowded: the Āśvalāyana numerals "2-20" and "9-8" [?]; the verse "yojanānāṃ sahasre dve..." as printed.
21. Crowded: the Taittirīya Āraṇyaka and Kaṭha Upaniṣad references, the Uṇādi number, and the root-list of the Uṇādi rule; as read, [?]. The print's rule-name reads "artisṛbhṛdhṛdhamyaśyavibhribyo" [?].
22. The grammatical tail is as given in the Sanskrit above: taraṇiḥ: root tṛ plavanatarāṇayoḥ with the causative sense included; the Uṇādi ani-suffix (Uṇ. 2-101 [?]); initial acute of the suffix; jyotiṣkṛt: kvip; ṣatva of the visarga in a compound by nityaṃ samāse 'nuttarapadasthasya; bhāsi: root bhā dīptau, ṣap dropped, being of the adādi class.
23. pp. 119–120 — grammar pages, noted briefly
24. Crowded: the Taittirīya Saṃhitā number, the rule-name "anigantoṇcatau" and its number, and the clause "naijsvarā svaritau ca"; as read, [?]. "Pā. 8-2-62" for the kutva rule is as printed.
25. The rest of the Special Topics of Rik 5 begins at the foot of p. 121 and continues on p. 122; then the grammar; not yet written.
26. from the foot of p. 121
27. pp. 122–123 — grammar pages, noted briefly
28. Crowded: the Nirukta number; the sentence "tat te vayaṃ stuma iti vākyaśeṣo 'pi vottarasyā mantrayas tena vyeṣi" is as read, [?]; the Uṇādi number and the Taittirīya Āraṇyaka number.
29. Tai. Brā. 1-6-9-2 as read [?]; the print gives "1-r-9-2"
30. Tai. Ā. 1-13-3 as read [?]
31. pp. 125–126 — grammar pages, noted briefly

32. The clause on rajaspr̥thu's sandhi — "rajaspr̥thv iti ... chandasi vāprave 'ḍitayoḥ" — is crowded in the print and given as read [?].
33. The grammar of Rik 7 begins on p. 128, not yet written.
34. from p. 128
35. pp. 128 — grammar page, noted briefly
36. Crowded: "rasaharaṇaśīlā" and the Uṇādi number; as read, [?].
37. p. 130 — grammar page, noted briefly
38. A printer's ornament at the foot of p. 130 closes the page; no varga-end note is printed there.
39. Crowded stretch: the root-list of the Uṇādi rule napṭṛneṣṭṛ... (the print gives it only as "napṭṛneṣṭṛ...", an unfinished list), the Uṇādi and Kāśikā numbers, and the clause on napṭyaḥ's n̐p and loss of r; as read, [?]. The word nitye in the print's "n-ādi" is as read. Note: the print reads "uṇādiṣu napṭṛśabdas tyajanto" for "napṭṛśabda ṛdantaḥ" [?]; given as printed.
40. pp. 132–134 — grammar pages, noted briefly so far
41. the Kannada author's treatment of the loss of the r and of the case-ending continues on p. 133–134, to be written with the next batch
42. The rest of the grammar of Rik 9 — the end of napṭyaḥ and svayuktibhiḥ — is on p. 134 and is not yet written; the sūkta continues with Rik 10 on p. 134.
43. from p. 133 foot, p. 134
44. p. 134 — grammar page, noted briefly
45. end
46. From Rik 10 the metre is Anuṣṭubh, as the heading states.
47. The print's Pāṇini numerals "6-13" (Āśvalāyana), "3-1-8-6" (Tai. Saṃ.), "8-3-44", "5-4-56", "8-2-65" are as read, [?]; the clause "avabhṛtheṣṭau hotrakāḥ" is as read.
48. Śat. Brā. 1-9-3-[?] as read [?]
49. Tai. Saṃ. [number not legible] as read [?]
50. pp. 136–137 — grammar pages, noted briefly
51. p. 138, first part
52. The bhāṣya of Rik 11 continues from here to p. 139, with the explanation of the words; it is not yet written. The print's "astauttena" is as read, crowded [?].
53. from p. 138, second paragraph of the bhāṣya

54. The bhāṣya is printed in a long crowded stretch at the foot of p. 138 and, as it appears, runs over the page; in the print it ends with "iṣṭhemeyaḥsu ...ṭer iti ṭilopaḥ"; the numbers 8-2-17 and 4-153 [?], the rule-name "kimettiṇavyayaghādāmvadravyaprakarṣe", and the reading "ṭāpsvarapoḥ" are crowded. The grammar page below on uttarām explains the same points at length, and it is relied on for the rule.
55. pp. 140–142 — grammar pages, noted briefly
56. The print's "vatsv api" is as read; "bādhiṣva" also read, [?].
57. p. 143 — grammar page, begun
58. The rest of this grammar page, and the whole of Rik 13 with the close of Sūkta 50, are on pp. 143–146; not yet written.
59. from p. 143 foot, p. 144
60. p. 144 — grammar page, noted briefly
61. The printed first word is "āyaṃ" for "ayaṃ" in the Sanskrit gloss and the reading "rogāyu no radhaṃ" [print: "rogā yu no rathaṃ"] is crowded: It is given as read, [?]. The Pāṇini numbers, as read.
62. pp. 145–147 — grammar pages, noted briefly

Sūkta 51

1. First sūkta of the Tenth Anuvāka.
2. large Kannada title line on p. 147: "aivattomdaneya sūktavu"
3. printed in Kannada script; read from the 150-dpi image; words marked [?] are crowded
4. Crowded words in the print: "āśrehisamācakṣase" and "matsyālyah" in the legend, which cannot be made into sense; the Āśvalāyana numerals. They are given as read, [?]; the sense of the legend is from the Kannada anuvāda below.
5. editorial and tentative
6. The ṛṣi is thus Savya Āṅgīrasa, in the heading and in the Anukramaṇī; the "Nodhas" of the preface and of the earlier flag does not occur on these pages. The varga numerals are small and read with doubt.
7. accents not reproduced
8. Crowded in the print: the Kāśikā numbers 4-3-154 and 5-2-109-3, the Dhātupāṭha number, "nitvād", and the line "ṛgmīyam ... ṛgmīḥ" which gives two derivations; as read, [?]. The Pada prints ṛgmīyam as one word.
9. pp. 151–153 — grammar pages, noted briefly

10. The Saṃhitā prints the first verb with a conjunct: avan + sv... is read as the Pada's avanvan | su-abhiṣṭim; the printed line-break is at "svabhiṣṭim". Doubtful, [?].
11. The grammatical tail of the bhāṣya, which follows this on pp. 155 in the print — on avanvan, svabhiṣṭim, ūtayaḥ, antarikṣaprām, āvṛtam, dakṣāsaḥ, madacyutam, śatakratum, javanī, aruhat — is characterized, not transcribed (see the grammar notes below). The Ṛgveda and Brāhmaṇa numerals are as read, [?].
12. Ni. as read [?]
13. Ṛ. Saṃ. 8-96-7 as read [?]
14. Ai. Brā. 3-20 as read [?]
15. pp. 157–158 — grammar pages, noted briefly
16. The Pada prints the words as above; the Saṃhitā has the doubled ājau adrim as one word "vasvājāvadrim", which is divided with the Pada; the verb at the end of the first line is divided "avṛṇoḥ | apa", the print's reading, [?].
17. p. 159, first part
18. The print's first words are broken: "gotram avyaktaśabdavantam vṛṣṭyāder...āvarakam" — "syāvarakam" is read as the print's crowded "āvarakam"; the line after "vimadāya" and "ṇ" is as read, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya continues to p. 160, not yet written.
19. from p. 160, PDF 176
20. pp. 160 — characterized, not transcribed
21. Printed "Vimada" as small capitals; "Angirasas" without diacritics — reproduced as printed.
22. The second sentence is a crowded print; reading uncertain, [?].
23. The print has the word "ವಾಸಮಾಡುತ್ತಿರುವ" "living".
24. All numerals in this item are small Kannada digits, uncertain; the 'eighth/tenth' reading is not certain.
25. pp. 162–163 — grammar pages, noted briefly
26. accents are printed in this Rik, not reproduced
27. pp. 164–166, PDF 180–182
28. Reading notes: the word printed āsāvariṣṭāḥ after apāvṛṇoḥ cannot be resolved — the line is crowded — and is left [?]; "dānuḥ ... danur asuramātā" and "avadhīr vadhaṃ prāpitaḥ" are as read, doubtful; the Taittiriya numeral is unclear. The tail of the bhāṣya, on apām [the accent by ūḍidam], apidhānā, adhārayaḥ, parvate, dānumat, is characterized in the grammar notes below.

29. pp. 165–166 — grammar pages, noted briefly
30. accents printed, not reproduced
31. The Pada prints "ಸ್ವಮನಃ" for the Saṃhitā's "nṛmaṇaḥ" — the cerebral n comes by the avagraha rule cited on p. 170; The Pada is given as printed.
32. Readings doubtful, [?]: apādhamah, the clause "svadhābhir nirvṛṣṭair" (the print seems to have nirvṛṣṭair), and the Kauṣītaki quotation, where the print reads "asurā vā ātmann eva juhuvur udgātre 'gnau te parābhavann iti" — the middle could not be settled. The bhāṣya's tail — on māyinaḥ, śūptau, ajuhvata, piproḥ, nṛmaṇaḥ, arujah, ṛjīśvānam, dasyuhatyēṣu, āvitha, with sūtras such as hanas ta ca — is characterized below.
33. The print has "Iudra"? — the first word reads "O Indra" in the print.
34. All numerals here are small Kannada digits, uncertain; No attempt has been made to reconcile the two lists.
35. pp. 169–171 — grammar pages, noted briefly
36. pp. 172–176, PDF 188–192
37. p. 172 — characterized, not transcribed
38. all Ṛgveda, Brāhmaṇa and other numerals in the long lists are small Kannada digits; They are given as read, every one marked [?]; No attempt has been made to reconcile them against outside lists
39. pp. 175–176 — grammar pages, noted briefly
40. The Pada's "vṛśca" for the Saṃhitā's "vṛścā" is as printed.
41. p. 177 — characterized, not transcribed
42. The special topics of this Rik continue on p. 178; they are given in the next batch.
43. pp. 178–179, PDF 194–195
44. Correction to the bhāṣya reading above, from the first Special Topic on p. 178: the Kannada note on sadhryak begins "sadhrīcīnam ... yathā bhavati tathā", so the doubtful phrase after sadhryak in the bhāṣya is probably sadhrīcīnam, "going together", not samyag añcanam, the earlier reading [?]; the line is crowded, still [?].
45. pp. 178–179 — grammar pages, noted briefly

46. Reading notes: "karmaṇy anuṣṭhātṛṇ" and "duṣṭānām" are crowded in the print — [?]; the Nirukta numeral is as read, [?]. The grammatical tail on p. 180–181 — jānihi with the sūtra jñājanor jā, barhiṣmate, randhaya, śāsat, śākī, viśvā, sadhamādeṣu, cākana — is characterized, not transcribed: it argues, as the Kannada grammar notes on p. 183 also do, about the shortening of the root vowel under the rule prādīnām hrasvaḥ.
47. The Kannada word after the parenthesis is a crowded small print; The sense is taken from the Pratipadārtha, "I wish".
48. pp. 181, 183–184 — grammar pages, noted briefly
49. The continuation of this grammar — on śākī, viśvā, sadhamādeṣu, cākana — is on p. 184, given with the next batch.
50. p. 184, PDF 200 — grammar page, noted briefly
51. Reading notes: the line "vamraḥ stutyṛddhiraṇaśīla" and "saṃdihah samyag upacitā" are crowded and doubtful, [?]; "svargaṃ" is read for the sky-going sense from the anuvāda; the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa reference numeral is unreadable. The grammatical tail — on anuvratāya, śnathayan, vardhataḥ, inakṣataḥ, stavānaḥ, jaghāna, saṃdihah — is characterized below.
52. pp. 187–188 — grammar pages, noted briefly
53. Reading notes: "pūrvoktena balenaikā" is crowded, [?]; the final verb is read as an imperative from the Pratipadārtha's "may bring"; the Ṛgveda numeral in the quotation is as read, [?]. The grammatical tail — takṣat, uśanā, majmanā, nṛmaṇaḥ, avahan — is characterized: root takṣū tvakṣū tanūkarāṇe, a laṇ without the aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi; the accent of the root retained after the śap is mute-p; uśanā from vaś kāntau with an Uṇādi kanas [Uṇ. as read, [?]] and saṃprasāraṇa, with the sūtras kṣudhiśanasprudaṃśo... [?] and sarvanāmasthāne ca (Pā. 6-4-8) for the lengthening, and a loss of the final a of the stem; majmanā from masj with an Uṇādi manin; nṛmaṇaḥ the ṇatva after the avagraha by chandasy... ; avahan a laṇ in the prayer sense by chandasi luṇlaṇṭiṭaḥ [?].
54. pp. 189–191, PDF 205–207
55. p. 191 — grammar page, noted briefly
56. The Saṃhitā's "tiṣṭhati ... asṛjad ... airayat": as printed; the Pada's vaṅkū iti marks the dual.

57. Reading notes: "kāmayamāne" is as read — the print is crowded here; the tail of the bhāṣya — on mandiṣṭa, uśane, sacā, vaṅkū, vaṅkutarā, yayim, ḍṛmhitāḥ, airayat, with a quoted Mīmāṃsā-style sūtra "ājyājayor ca copasaṃkhyānam" [as read, [?]] — is characterized, not transcribed.
58. pp. 193–194 — grammar pages, noted briefly
59. pp. 196–198, PDF 212–214
60. p. 196 — characterized, not transcribed
61. pp. 197–198 — grammar pages, noted briefly
62. p. 199, PDF 215 — grammar page, noted briefly; to be read with the notes above
63. The print's first word reads "अदद" — it is read as the Pada's adadāḥ with the following arbhām; the Saṃhitā as printed:
64. pp. 199–200 — the legend, read through; some syllables crowded, [?]
65. Reading notes: the print is crowded in several places of this long passage; doubtful: "svabhāryayoh" (read from the garbled "svabhāryayoh putrabhṛtyādibhiś ca"); "kathety uktvāyaṃ"; the "ataḥ" before "uttararūpāṇi"; the Taittirīya-type ending "kula uvāsa" as the print breaks the line there; "tāṇḍiyibhir" and "śātyāyanibhiḥ" as read. The Kannada gives this legend again in the Special Topics, which confirms the sense. The grammatical tail — on mahate, vacasyave, kakṣivate, menā, savaneṣu, pravācyā, with the Nirukta citations "kakṣivān kakṣyāvān" and "menā mānayanātīnā" — is characterized, not transcribed.
66. pp. 200–204, PDF 216–220
67. p. 200 — characterized, not transcribed
68. numerals in small Kannada digits; each marked [?]
69. pp. 203–204 — grammar pages, noted briefly
70. accents printed, not reproduced; metre Triṣṭubh
- ¶ Reading notes: the clause after "sthūṇeva" is crowded; "tān [?]" is read and connected, as in the print, with the preceding part. The accompanying quotation from the Śātyāyanins, "pajrā vā aṅgirasah paśukāmās tapyotapyanta", is as read, [?]. The grammatical tail — on āsrāyi, sudhyaḥ, nireke, duryaḥ, yūpaḥ, aśvayuh, gavyuh, kṣayati, prayantā — is characterized: for āsrāyi (root śrīñ sevāyām) a ciṇ in the place of the ātmanepada by vyatyaya; for sudhyaḥ the root dhī "a name of action" (dhīḥ karmanāma), with the final-acute by nañsubhyām and the yaṇ by śasi chandasy ubhayathā [Pā. numeral as read, [?]]; for nireke "nitarām recaṇaṃ nirekaḥ", from ric virecane, ghaṇ in the sense of the action; for duryaḥ "dure bhavaḥ", the Vedic yat in the sense "who exists in" by bhave chandasi; for yūpaḥ the root yu miśraṇe with the Uṇādi pa by kuyubhyāṃ ca [Uṇ. 3-... as read, [?]], lengthened; aśvayuh a kyac by chandasi pareicchāyāṃ [?], u then; gavyuh similarly with the substitute av; prayantā from yam uparame with tṛc.

71. pp. 206–208, PDF 222–224

72. the Sanskrit note in the print

73. The Kannada print here gives this Sanskrit passage in the line "ಪತದುಕ್ತಂ ಭವತಿ" — the first word is crowded; etad uktaṃ bhavati is read, [?].

74. p. 208 adds: the formation aśvayuh is made, in the sense of "one who wishes the horse for sacrificers", with the kyac from the Vedic rule; Yāska's other explanation takes the suffix u added to the kyac-ending stem in the sense "who has"; for example vasūyuh = "Indra, who has wealth"; so words like aśvayuh are also valid in the sense of possession — this is the sense.

75. pp. 207–208 — grammar pages, noted briefly

76. The grammatical tail of the bhāṣya, on svarāje, satyaśuṣmāya, tavase, vṛjane, śarman, syāma, is characterized: the Uṇādi asi for tavase, "tavatiḥ sautro dhātuḥ", kvip by satsūdviṣa... for svarāje, the dropping of the locative by supāṃ suluk with the exclusion of nalopa in śarman, the dhuḍ-āgama after nāntaḥ in the Saṃhitā — "naś ca" — and the discussion khari ca, jhayo dvitīyāḥ..., Pauṣkarasādi.

77. pp. 211 — grammar page, noted briefly

78. The print gives no closing sentence for Sūkta 51: the last grammar paragraph — on syāma and the dhuḍ-āgama in śarmant syāma — ends at the foot of p. 211 with a small ornament, and the next sūkta begins at the head of p. 212 (PDF 228). My own summary, not the source's:

Sūkta 52

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-second sūkta"

2. Reading note: "trayodaśīpañcadaśyau triṣṭubhau" — the print shows trayodaśī pañcadaśī triṣṭubhā crowded; It is read with the anuvāda below, which says that Riks 13 and 15 are Triṣṭubh. The Anukramaṇī half-line "tvaṃ su trayodaśa tryaṃ..." is crowded, [?]; the Āśvalāyana numerals "8-6" as read, [?].

3. read "೧-೦೨, ೦೪ ಜನತೀ | ೦೩, ೦೫ ತ್ರಿಷ್ಟುಪ್"

4. accents printed, not reproduced
5. pp. 213–215, PDF 229–231
6. The Pada shows the verb-form as mahaya (imperative) and ā ... vavr̥tyām as a split verb with ā standing before indram; so the Saṃhitā's "ratham endram" is ratham | ā | indram, as had been read.
7. Reading notes: "yugapat" after "sahaiva" and "suṣṭhu doṣavarjakaiḥ" are crowded, [?]; the sense is confirmed by the Pratipadārtha below. The long grammatical tail — on mahaya, subhvaḥ, irate, atyam, vājam, havanasyadam, vavr̥tyām — is characterized, not transcribed: it argues, for example, that the Vedic lengthening in the Saṃhitā of mahayā comes by anyeṣām api dṛśyate, that the nighāta accent is blocked by the ñit of yāsuṭ, and that in havanasyadam the root syand ("to flow") takes vic ... with the loss of the nasal and the vṛddhi-prohibition, the accent being that of the last member; the Kannada grammar pages (pp. 215–216) repeat these.
8. The print has tyaṃ, the second-case singular of tyad; It is given as the Kannada states, "the accusative singular of tyad", the word tyaṃ glossing the Saṃhitā's tvam [?] — the Saṃhitā text itself reads tvam su meṣam and the bhāṣya tvam taṃ prasiddham meṣam, so the Kannada note's "tvam" is the print's own heading, and the note is as read.
9. p. 215 and following — grammar pages, noted briefly; continued on p. 216
10. The remaining notes — on atyam, vājam, havanasyadam, vavr̥tyām — are on p. 216, given with the next batch.
11. p. 216, PDF 232 — grammar page, noted briefly
12. The Pada's vāvṛdhe against the Saṃhitā's vāvṛdhe: the Saṃhitā lengthens the reduplicative vowel — see the bhāṣya's tail.
13. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 217–218, is characterized: on dharaṇeṣu (dhārayateḥ... luk ca, with the unapraṅṛti suffix); sahasramūtiḥ (the ūtayaḥ "protections"; the lengthening; the lug-bhāva ...); vāvṛdhe (the lengthened reduplication in the Saṃhitā by abhyāsasyānyeṣām api dṛśyate); nadivṛtam; ubjan (ubja āṛjave, a śatr); arṇāṃsi (the Uṇādi asun after r, with nuṭ and the nuḍāgama); jarhṛṣāṇaḥ (hr̥ṣa tuṣṭau, reduplicated frequentative with sānac); andhasā (adyata iti andhaḥ, Uṇ. 4-... [?] asun).
14. pp. 219–220, PDF 235–236 — grammar pages, noted briefly
- ¶ Reading notes: "ūdhany adbhutajalavaty antarikṣe" is crowded at the edge of the line, [?]; "adbhuta" may be "abhrajala-" (water of clouds) — the Pratipadārtha has "in the sky full of water-laden clouds", which is followed in the translation. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 221–222, is characterized: dvaraḥ (dvṛ, "dvarati āvr̥ṇotīti", pacādi ac, accent by the cit); dvariṣu (the suffix ṭi... as the agent suffix); vavraḥ (vr̥ñ saṃbhaktau, ka by "ghaṇarthe kavidhānaṃ sthāsnāpāvyadhihanīyudhyartham", the doubling of the root); ūdhani (ūrdhvaṃ dhriyate 'smin jalam, the substitute anaṇ for ūdhas by dr̥śigrahaṇa, or in a compound by ūdhasoṇ... [Pā. 5-4-131 as read, [?]]); candrabudhnaḥ (cadi āhlādane dīptau ca, Uṇādi rak; bahuvr̥hi); madavṛddhaḥ (madī harṣe, ap by mado 'nupasarge with the third-case compound); ahve (hve ñ spardhāyāṃ śabde ca, the Vedic luṇ in the present sense with cleraṇ); svapasyayā, maṃhiṣṭharātīm, papriḥ as in the grammar notes below.

15. pp. 223–224 — grammar pages, noted briefly
16. Reading notes: the punctuation of abhiṣṭayaḥ ... ūtayaḥ is editorial — the Kannada Special Topics takes abhiṣṭayaḥ as an epithet of the rivers (svāḥ), "facing the sea in their course"; the bhāṣya's own phrasing is crowded. The Taittirīya numeral is as read, [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 226–, is characterized: pr̥ṇanti (pyā pālanapūraṇayoh, kryādi), sadmabarhiṣaḥ, subhvaḥ, abhiṣṭayaḥ (iṣa icchāyām? "iṣṭayaḥ eṣaṇāni", [?]), vṛtrahatyē (hana with kyap, the substitute t), ahrutapsavaḥ (hvā kauṭilye, asmānniṣṭhāyām hru hvareś chandasi, Pā. 7-2-31 as read [?], with psā bhakṣaṇe and the Uṇādi du; "not hruta + psu", a negative compound).
17. p. 227 and following — grammar pages, noted briefly; continued on p. 228
18. p. 228, PDF 244 — grammar page, noted briefly
19. Reading notes: the first clause of the Trita-legend, "devānāṃ havirlepanirgharṣaṇādyayogyē", and "tān yathā" at the end are crowded in the print, [?]; the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa numerals are as read, [?]; "so 'ṅgāreṇāpo 'bhyapātayat'" is as read — its sense, "he threw the waters upon the ember(s)", is that of the Special Topics. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 229 foot –, is characterized: svavṛṣṭim (bahuvr̥hi), yudhyataḥ (yudha saṃprahāre; a śatṛ in the place of sānac), raghvīḥ (raghi gatau), sasruḥ, dhṛṣamānaḥ (ñidhṛṣā prāgalbhye), bhinat (a laṇ without aṭ), valasya, paridhīn (dhā with kvip or ki by upasarge ghoḥ kiḥ Pā. 3-3-92 as read [?], and the ākāra dropped by ato lopa iṭi ca).
20. Quoted from the Kannada p. 230.
21. The middle of this passage cannot be made out; the gloss is only the rough sense.
22. pp. 232–233 — grammar pages, noted briefly; continued on p. 233

23. p. 233, PDF 249 — grammar page, noted briefly

¶ Reading notes: "mukhapārśvayoḥ" for the jaws, and the bracketed grammatical remark "tṛtīyārthe dvitīyā" — "the second case in the sense of the third", which is the Kannada Special Topics' remark — read from the print, which is crowded in this line, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 234 foot —: on vṛtvī (vṛñ varāṇe, kvanip with the Uṇādi list "snātvvyādayaś ca", Pā. 3-2-... as read [?]), rajasah (raṇja rāge, "rajanty asmin gandharvādayaḥ"), the loss of na by "rajakaraja...", āśayat (śñ svapne, with a Vedic parasmaipada and the non-elision of śap), durgrbhiśvanaḥ (graha upādāne, "kūpusam..." and the Vedic substitute śvan in "durgrbhi... prṣodarādī"), nijaghantha (han himsāgatyoḥ, liṭ with thal, no iṭ by the kṛdādi-rule, abhyāsāc ca for ku), tanyatum (tanu vistāre, the Uṇādi atu, "yadvā stana śabde" with the loss of s) — is characterized.

24. pp. 236–237, PDF 252–253 — grammar pages, noted briefly

25. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 237–238, is characterized: nyṛṣanti (ṛṣī gatau, tudādi; jher antaḥ; śa; the single substitute ato guṇe; the nighāta is forbidden by hi ca, Pā. 8-1-34 as read [?]); ūrmayaḥ (ṛ gatau, Uṇādi mi, ārter ūc ca, Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]; ūrmi); vardhanā (vṛdhu vṛddhau, lyuṭ in the instrument sense, yu → ana, the Vedic śeś chandasi bahulam); tataḥ (takṣū tvakṣū tanūkarāṇe, liṭ third singular; ṇal, the acute before ṇal by liti); abhibhūtyojasam (abhibhūyate 'neneti abhibhūti, ktin... kti with tāḍau ca, the prefix keeps its own accent).

26. The Kannada word is "ಕೊಳೆ", a pool.

27. i.e., the very deity Tvaṣṭṛ.

28. p. 239 — grammar page, noted briefly

29. The print joins saṃbhṛtakratav indra; the Pada below shows the vocative saṃbhṛtakrato iti, i.e. the Saṃhitā sandhi is -o + i- → -av i-, as printed. The Saṃhitā's divy ā is as printed; the Pada divi | ā — so the print's "ā" before sūryaṃ belongs to adhārayaḥ by the Pada.

30. Reading notes: the print's last clause is crowded; "sthāpayāṃ cakṛṣe" is read doubtfully, [?]; sense is clear from the Pratipadārtha. The grammatical tail — on jaghanvān, gātuyan, ayacchathāḥ, bāhvoḥ — is characterized: for jaghanvān the kvasu after han with the Vedic loss of the optional iṭ (vibhāṣā gamahanavidaviśām, Pā. 2-... as read [?]); for gātuyan the kyac by chandasi pareccāyām, with the lengthening forbidden by na chandasy aputrasya; for bāhvoḥ the vibhakti-accent by udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt.

31. pp. 241–242, PDF 257–258

32. pp. 241–242 — grammar pages, noted briefly
33. Reading notes: "svasvevamānāḥ" and "anupūrvyeṇa harṣaṃ prāpayan" are crowded, [?]; the Nirukta numeral for pradhanam is as read, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 243 foot –, is characterized: svaścandram (the augment suḥ by hrasvāc chandroṭtarapade mantre, Pā. 6-1-... as read [?]; the ś for s by stoḥ ścunā ścuḥ; a bahuvrīhi); amavat (matup, with mādupadhāyās ca matorvo 'yavādibhyaḥ); akṛṇvata (kṛṇ hīmsāyām, svādi; the num; the ātmanepada by vyatyaya; the nighāta forbidden by yadvṛttānityam); bhiyasā (the asuk augment in the Veda; ikāra → iyaṇ); divaḥ (the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidam...); nṛṣācaḥ (saca samavāye; Yāska: "ayaṃ sevanārthaḥ", Nī. [?]); amadan (madi harṣe, ṇic in the causative sense, mit so mitām hrasvaḥ, chandasy ubhayathā, the ṇi dropped).
34. p. 245 — grammar page, noted briefly
35. The print reads "अययवीद्" — it is taken as the verb ayoyavīt of the Pada; aheḥ svanāt as printed.
36. Reading note: the clause ending "ācchinat" — "cut off" — is read from the print; for "tadānīm dyuloko bhayarāhityena niścalo babhūveti śeṣaḥ" the sense is "then heaven became steady, free from fear", as the Pratipadārtha below confirms. The grammatical tail on ayoyavīt (yu miśraṇāmiśraṇayoḥ, a frequentative in the Vedic luṇ with i-augment by aste... yaṇo luk, Pā. 2-4-74 as read [?]) and badbadhānasya (bādhr vilodane, tācchilyika śānac, with the reduplication of the intensive and the dhatva) is characterized.
37. pp. 246–248, PDF 262–264
38. a Sanskrit passage in the print, with Kannada comment
39. The second half-line is crowded — read "vṛtrahanan... anantaram", [?].
40. p. 248 — grammar page, noted briefly
41. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 249–250, is characterized: tatananta (tanu vistāre, with the Vedic ātmanepada, luṇ/laṇ/liṭ in the sense of the liṭ, śap in place of u, the substitution ant, the doubling and the ata ādeḥ); viśrutam (śru śravaṇe, kta, the prefix's accent by gatiṃ anantaraḥ); barhaṇā (barha vala hīmsāchādaneṣu, "nibarhayati", Nī. 6-... [?], with the Uṇādi kyu and the ṭāp; the vabayor abhedāḥ); bhuvat (leṭ third singular, with aṭ, itaś ca [loss of i], bhūsuvos tiṇi, the uvaṇ substitute by bahulam chandasi).
42. the chief sense; a Sanskrit passage in the print, with Kannada
43. pp. 251–252 — grammar pages, noted briefly
44. p. 252 — begins here; continues on p. 253
45. continued on p. 253

46. pp. 253–255, PDF 269–271

47. the print reads "svaḥ" with the gloss "that which is well to be gone to"; and "apaḥ" as a name of the atmosphere.

48. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 253, is characterized: asya (the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidam...); vyomanaḥ ("ava rakṣaṇagatikānti...", the root av with the sense of going; "viśeṣeṇa gacchati vyāpnotīti vyoma", or "vr̥ṣṭipradānena viśeṣeṇa prāṇino 'vatīti vyoma"; manin by anyebhyo 'pi dṛśyante; the ū-substitute by jvarasvarisrivavimavām upadhāyās ca Pā. 6-4-20 as read [?]; a bahuvr̥hi accent); svaḥ (su + ṛ gatau; vic; yan; svarādinipātam avyayam; avyayād āpsupaḥ drops the case-ending, the word being svar with visarga); eṣi (iṇ gatau, adādi, śap elided).

49. pp. 254–255 — grammar pages, noted briefly

50. Reading notes: the first sentence reads "bhūnāmna ekāhe" — in the print "bhūnāmne kkāhe" — crowded, [?]; "nividdhānīyotsūktāt purā" — "before the invocation-sūkta" — is read as printed; the Āśvalāyana numeral "9-5" as read, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 256 foot –, is characterized: bhuvaḥ (bhū, leṭ, the loss of i and uvaṇ); prthivyāḥ (the vibhakti-accent by udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt); br̥hataḥ (br̥hanmahator upasaṅkhyānam); bhūḥ (Vedic luṇ in the sense of the present; aṭ not coming by bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pi); aprāḥ (prā pūraṇe, adādi, laṇ, aṭ); mahitvā (supām suluk gives ā for the instrumental; nit); tvāvān (vatup in the sense of similarity by yuṣmadasmadbhyām chandasi sādṛśya upasaṅkhyānam, Pā. 5-2-39 vārttika, with the substitute tvā, and āsarvanāmasthāne...).

51. first Special Topic

52. i.e. the note in the print glosses nakiḥ by "'is' or 'is not'; that which is said"; the clause is crowded, [?].

53. pp. 257–258 — grammar pages, noted briefly

54. accents printed, not reproduced; metre Jagatī

55. The print's "नोत" is read as na uta, the Pada's na | uta; the Saṃhitā writes nota.

56. pp. 259–261, PDF 275–277

57. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 259–261, is characterized: dyāvāprthivī (dyaus ca prthivī ca, the substitute dyāvā for div by divo dyāvā, Pā. 6-3-29 as read [?]; prthivī with the nīṣ of śid gaurādibhyaś ca; devatādvandve ca so that both members keep their accent; the quoted Vedic āprthivī rudrapūṣamanthiṣu (Ṛ./Kāṭh. [?]) about the prohibition); vyacaḥ (vyaca vyājīkaraṇe, tudādi, Uṇādi asun, "vyaceḥ kuṭādittvam anasi" Kā. 1-2-1 as read, [?]); ānaśuḥ (asū vyāptau, the Vedic parasmaipada, the uṣ for jhi by parasmaipadānām ṇalatusus..., reduplication, lengthening of the reduplicative vowel and the augment nuṭ by asnotes ca, yadvṛttānityam barring the nighāta); yudhyataḥ; cakṛṣe.

58. pp. 260–261 — grammar pages, noted briefly

59. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 262: on ārcan (arca pūjāyām, bhvādi, aṭ with the Vedic āṭ), sasmin (sasminn iti tasmin, with the Vedic loss of the letter), devāsaḥ (ājjaserasuk), ānam (ana prāṇane, ghaṇ — "ānanam", with the loss of the letter), śloka-less; jaghantha (han, thal with no iṭ, abhyāsac ca for the h) — is characterized.

60. The print reads aṣṭāśiḥ in one place and aṣṭāśriḥ in another; aṣṭāśri is given as in the bhāṣya.

61. pp. 263–264 — grammar pages, noted briefly

62. The print gives no closing sentence for Sūkta 52: the last grammar paragraph, on jaghantha, ends the Rik at p. 264, and a small ornament separates it from the title of the next sūkta. My own summary, not the source's:

Sūkta 53

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-third sūkta"

2. Reading note: "upra" is as printed in the quotation, probably a misprint or crowded for pra — the quoted words are the opening of the sūkta and of Rik 53.1's nyū śu vācam pra mahe bharāmahe? It is not completed; the Āśvalāyana numeral "6-4" is as read, [?].

3. The heading block and Rik 53.1 begin on p. 265 (PDF 281).

4. read "೦-೬ ಜಗತೇ | ೦೦, ೦೦ ತ್ರಿಷ್ಠುಪ್"

5. accents printed, not reproduced

¶ Reading note: "prayuñjmahe" is as read in the print, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 266 foot –, is characterized: nyū śu (the acute-svarita sandhi; the lengthening of u by ikaḥ suñi, Pā. 6-3-134 as read [?]; the ṣatva of the s of su by sūñ... Pā. 8-3-107 as read [?]); mahe (maha pūjāyām, kvip ca, mah, the dative); nū cit (lengthening in the Saṃhitā by rcitunughamakṣutaru..., Pā. 6-3-133 as read [?]); sasatām iva (sasa svapne, śatṛ, śatur anumō nadyajādī; the compound with iva where the case-ending is not dropped, ivena vibhaktyalopaḥ pūrvapadaprakṛtisvaratvaṃ ca, Pā. 2-1-4 as read [?]); avidat (vid lābhe, luñ in the present sense, clerañ, nighāta forbidden by hi ca); draviṇodeṣu (dru gatau, Uñādi inan; dravina; dā with ka by ātas copasarge / supī sthaḥ, ātolopa iṭi ca, the su-augment in the Veda, hoṣi ca gives o, gatikārako...); śasyate (śaṃsu stutau, passive laṭ, yak, the loss of the penultimate nasal).

6. the first two Special Topics are on p. 267; the rest on p. 268
7. the chief sense; a Sanskrit passage in the print, with Kannada
8. The print's viśādeṣu is crowded, [?]; the Kannada adds: "As to men asleep there is no concern about property; in just that way, Indra, hurrying, gives wealth quickly even to praisers who are not hurrying after wealth. Therefore the intention here is clear: having composed the best hymns to Indra, who is worthy of hymns, in the sacrificial hall of the sacrificer, let us offer them to Indra."
9. pp. 267–269 — grammar pages, noted briefly
10. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 270 head: on duraḥ (ḍudāñ dāne, with the Uṇādi uraca by mandivāśimathicaticāṅkyaṅkibhya uraca, Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]; the loss of a before eva... [crowded]); śikṣānaraḥ (śikṣa vidyopādāne, guroḥ ca halaḥ gives a-suffix; śaṣṭhīsamāsaḥ, the accent of the last member); gr̥ṇimasi (gṛ śabde, kryādi, prādīnām hrasvaḥ, "īdantaḥ... maserih": the mas → masi) — is characterized.
11. pp. 271–272, PDF 287–288
12. p. 271 foot – p. 272 head — grammar page, noted briefly
13. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 272–273, is characterized: śacīvaḥ (matuvaso ruḥ sambuddhau, Pā. 8-3-1; the accent of the vocative); cekite (kita jñāne, with the intensive yañ by dhātor ekāco halādeḥ, the Vedic liṭ for laṭ and the eś by liṭas tajhayor eśirec); saṃgr̥bhya ābhara (grahaḥ... hṛgrahor bhaś chandasi, Pā. 8-2-32 as read [?], giving bh for h); tvāyataḥ (suva ātmanaḥ kyac, Pā. 3-1-8; tva the substitute for yusmad); kāmam (kamu kāntau, ghañ; ñit, so vr̥ddhi; vr̥ṣādi, so initial-acute); ūnayīḥ (ūna parihāṇe, curādi, luñ with cañ forbidden by nonayatidhvanayatyelayatyardayatibhyaḥ, Pā. 3-1-51 as read [?]; śic, iṭ, īṭ; hmyantakṣaṇaśvasa..., Pā. 7-2-5, forbids vr̥ddhi).
14. pp. 274–276 — grammar pages, noted briefly
15. pp. 277–279, PDF 293–295
16. pp. 276 foot – 277 — characterized, not transcribed
17. pp. 278–279 — grammar pages, noted briefly
18. The print gives the opening as "समिन्द्र रया"; It is read as sam indra rāyā:

19. The grammatical tail: on rāyaḥ (the vibhakti-accent by ūḍidam padādi...), puruścandraiḥ (hrasvāc candrottarapade mantre, the augment suṭ; ścutva; compound accent), abhidyubhiḥ (abhigatā dyaury dīptir yeṣām; div implying radiance; the accent of the particle-first compound), devyā (udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt), pramatyā (tāda ca niti; Pā. 6-2-50 as read [?] — the prefix keeps its accent), goagrayā (sarvatra vibhāṣā goḥ, Pā. 6-1-122 as read [?], with no avādeśa by prakṛtibhāva), aśvāvatyā (mantrē somāśvendriya..., lengthening before matup) — is given in full on pp. 281–282 and noted below.
20. pp. 281–282 — grammar pages, noted briefly
21. p. 282 — begins; continues on p. 283
22. continued on p. 283
23. Reading note: the clause "amadery[a] harṣaṃ prāpnuyāḥ" is crowded in the print, [?]; the sense — "the Maruts, the exhilarators, gladdened you" — is clear from the Pratipadārtha on p. 283.
24. pp. 283–285, PDF 299–301
25. the print: "carupu-" at the end of p. 282 and "roḍāśādini" at the head of p. 283; read as joined.
26. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 283, is characterized: vṛṣṇyā (śeś chandasi bahulam, the loss of śi); barhayaḥ ("barhatir hiṃsākarmā", Ni. as read, [?]; lañ, no aṭ by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇyoge 'pi; śap being pit, anudātta; the accent of the ñic; yadvṛttānnityam barring the nighāta).
27. first Special Topic, a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 283 foot – p. 284 head
28. the print's first word "yadā yadendraḥ" and "edhunā" are crowded, [?]
29. pp. 284–285 — grammar pages, noted briefly
30. p. 285 — begins; continues on p. 286
31. continued on p. 286; "ghu" for the Saṃhitā's gha is as printed, [?]
32. pp. 286–290, PDF 302–306
33. p. 286 head
34. The first syllables, "...smān", join the unfinished clause of p. 285, "yad yadā ...": "yasmān nibarhayaḥ" is read, [?].
- ¶ The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 286, is characterized: yudhā (yudha saṃprahāre, kvip by sampadādibhyaḥ kvip; the accent of the ending after a monosyllable by sāvekācas tṛtīyādīḥ); eṣi (iṇ gatau, adādi, śap elided); dhrṣṇuyā (ñidhrṣā prāgalbhye, Uṇādi knu by trasigr̥dhidhr̥ṣikṣipeḥ knuḥ, Pā. 3-2-140 as read [?]; kit, no guṇa; the supām suluk substitute yā; citaḥ); purā (pyā pālanapūraṇayoḥ, kvip, udoṣṭhyapūrvasya, urat; the Vedic form); haṃsi (han, laṭ second singular sip, adiprabhṛtibhyaḥ śapaḥ luk; naś cāpadāntasya jhali gives the anusvāra); namyā (ṇamu prahvatve, Uṇādi in; supām suluk gives ḍyā; ḍit, so ṭi is lost); sakhyā (śeṣo ghy asakhi, Pā. 1-4-7: sakhi does not get the ghi-designation; hence no ṇa for the instrumental by āṇo nāstriyām; yaṇ: sakhyā); namucim ("indreṇa saha yuddham na muñcatīti namuciḥ", muc, Uṇādi kin; naṇo 'ntaḥ..., nabhrāṇnapātsvara; prakṛtibhāva); māyinam (māyā in the vṛihyādi list, vṛihyādibhyaś ca Pā. 5-2-116, ini, yasyeti ca).

35. The Kannada retelling that follows (p. 287–288) agrees in sense.
36. eight Riks are quoted in Kannada-script Sanskrit; Each is given in three layers, with the Rgveda references as read — all numerals [?] — and an editorial and tentative gloss
37. R. Saṃ. 2-14-5 as read [?]
38. editorial and tentative; "rudhikām" as printed, [?]
39. R. Saṃ. 2-19-... as read [?]
40. editorial and tentative; the first half-line is crowded, [?]
41. R. Saṃ. 10-... as read [?]
42. editorial and tentative
43. R. Saṃ. 5-30-7 as read [?]
44. R. Saṃ. 5-30-8 as read [?]
45. R. Saṃ. 6-20-6 as read [?]
46. R. Saṃ. 8-14-13 as read [?]
47. R. Saṃ. 10-131-4 as read [?]
48. editorial and tentative; the line is the first half of a longer Rik
49. The Kannada: "ಎಂಬ ಋಕ್ಕುಗಳಲ್ಲಿರುವುದು. ಮತ್ತೆಲ್ಲಿಯೂ ಇರುವುದಿಲ್ಲ" — "it occurs in these Riks; it occurs nowhere else."
50. a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 288
51. The "Nami" reading of namyā sakhyā is the Kannada author's report of "some" interpreters.
52. pp. 289–290 — grammar pages, noted briefly
53. The Saṃhitā's anānudaḥ against the Pada's ananudaḥ is as printed: the Pada has the short vowel; the Saṃhitā lengthens — see the grammar notes.

54. Reading notes: "vartanyā vartanyā" — the second is a repetition of the print's gloss; "anu paścād dhnudati" and the end "bibhidiṣe | vadhīḥ" (a clumsy gloss) are as read, [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 291–: on vadhīḥ (han, luṇ, sic, the substitute vadha by hano vadha liṇi, Pā. 2-4-42 and 43 as read, [?]), tejiṣṭhayā (tejas + iṣṭhan ... with vini — "tejasvī"), vartanī (vṛtu vartane, lyuṭ, nīp), abhinat, ananudaḥ (nud with ka; naṇsubhyām), pariṣūtāḥ (ṣūṇ prāṇigarbhavimocane / sū prerāṇe, kta) — is characterized.
55. pp. 292–294, PDF 308–310
56. pp. 293–294 — grammar pages, noted briefly
57. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 295–: on janarājñāḥ (the compound and the ṭac excluded by sāmāsāntavidhir anityaḥ, Pari. 94 as read [?]; rājan, kanin, initial-acute), abandhunā, suśravasā, upajagmuṣaḥ (gam with kvasu, śasi bhasaṃjñāyāṃ vasoḥ saṃprasāraṇam, the loss of the penultimate by gamahanaḥ...), rathyā (rathasyedaṃ rathyam, yat by rathād yat, Pā. 4-3-121 as read [?]), duṣpadā (pada gatau, khal by iṣaddussuṣu, Pā. 3-3-126), avṛṇak (vṛjī varjane, rudhādi, śnam, ṇatva, kutva, carva) — is characterized.
58. The Kannada numerals, all uncertain, [?].
59. pp. 296–297 — grammar pages, noted briefly
60. pp. 298–300, PDF 314–316
61. The Nirukta numeral as read, [?].
62. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 298: on trāmabhiḥ (traī pālāne, ādeca upadeśe 'śiti gives ā; manin by ātro manin kvanip vanipāś ca, Pā. 3-2-74 as read [?]; the initial-acute from the nīt suffix), arandhanāyaḥ (randhanam vaśikaraṇam karoti randhanayati; tatkaroti tadācaṣṭe, ṇic; iṣṭhavad bhāva, ṭilopa; laṇ second singular; śap; the Vedic lengthening) — is characterized.
63. pp. 299–300 — grammar pages, noted briefly
64. The Saṃhitā's ya udṛci is as printed; the Pada's ut-ṛci (a locative) is the Pada's division; Neither is altered, and it is noted as doubtful, [?].
65. pp. 301–303, PDF 317–319
66. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 301, is characterized: devagopāḥ (bahuvrīhi); asāma (as bhuvi, loṭ in the sense of the liṇ; uttama plural mas; śnasor allopaḥ excluded because pittva is stated; Pā. 6-4-111); stoṣāma (ṣṭuṇ stutau, adādi, leṭ; sip; ādyudāttaḥ); suvīrāḥ (vīravīryau ca, Pā. 6-2-120 as read [?]); drāghīyaḥ (dīrgha + īyasun; priyasthiraṣphīrorubahulagurvaṅga..., Pā. 6-4-157 as read [?]; the substitute drāghā; nīt, so initial-acute); prataram (pra + tarap, then amu ca chandasi, Pā. 5-4-12 as read [?]); dadhānāḥ (ḍudhāñ dhāraṇapoṣaṇayoḥ, śānac, juhotyādibhyaḥ śluḥ, reduplication, hrasva and jaṣṭva; abhyastānām ādiḥ).

67. pp. 302–303 — grammar pages, noted briefly

68. The print gives no closing sentence for Sūkta 53: the last grammar paragraph, on dadhānāḥ, ends the Rik on p. 303 and a short rule separates it from the title of the next sūkta, which begins on the same page. My own summary, not the source's:

Sūkta 54

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-fourth sūkta"
2. Reading note: the Anukramaṇī's "mā no 'ntyā triṣṭup ṣaṣṭhyaṣṭamī navamī ceti" is crowded in the print ("ṣaṣṭhyaṣṭavi navamī ce..."), [?]; the Āśvalāyana numeral "6-4" is as read, [?]. The quotation mā no asmin maghavann indra pibā tubhyaṃ suto madāya is as the print gives it; the Rik's own words (Rik 54.1) are mā no asmin maghavan pṛtsv aṃhasi, so the quotation is treated as the yājñā-verse, not as Rik 54.1.
3. The heading block and Rik 54.1 begin on p. 304 (PDF 320).
4. the print's numerals "೦-೫, ೭, ೦೦ ಜನತೀ | ೬, ೮, ೯, ೦೦ ತ್ರಿಷ್ಠುಪ್", small, [?]
5. accents printed, not reproduced
6. Reading notes: "prakṣaipsīḥ" is the print's "prakṣaipsīr", doubtful; "kaduphalakṣaṇāḥ" ("marked by ... fruit?") is crowded in the print and is left as read, [?] — the Kannada Special Topics and Pratipadārtha say "the three worlds beginning with earth", so it is translated so. The grammatical tail on pp. 305 — on pṛtsu (pṛtanā with the substitute pṛt by pṛtanāyāṃ... Pā. 6-1-63 vārttika), parīṇaśe (naśa adarśane, kenyaḥ? — "kṛtyārthe tavaikakenn" read as kenn suffix, Pā. 3-4-14 as read [?]; nipātasya ca lengthening), nadyaḥ, roruvat (ru śabde, yañluk, śatr; adādivac ca), kathā (kim + thāl, kimaḥ kaḥ), ārata (r gatau, saṃ with gamy-ṛcchi...) — is characterized.
7. The print's heading reads "English Transation"; reproduced as printed, [sic].
8. first Special Topic, a Sanskrit passage in the print
9. The print's middle is crowded, so this is a rough rendering, [?].
10. p. 306 — grammar page, noted briefly; continues on p. 307
11. p. 307, PDF 323 — grammar page, noted briefly

12. The Saṃhitā's arcā has the lengthened final vowel, the Pada's arca the short, as the grammar note says.
13. The grammatical tail, p. 308 foot: on arca (pit-ness of śap, the root accent; the Vedic lengthening in the Saṃhitā by dvyacas tiṇaḥ), śākinē, abhi ṣṭuhi (upasargāt sunoti... for the ṣatva; ṣṭuñ stutau; hi for sip), vṛṣatvā (the suffix tva in the Veda by tva in the sense of the action), nyrñjate (rñjatiḥ prasāadhanakarmā, Nī. 6-21 as read [?]; rñi bhrjī bharjane, num; vyatyaya, śa) — is characterized.
14. pp. 309–310 — grammar pages, noted briefly
15. Reading notes: "tān āpraṭi dadātīty" — the print gives "tānāpraṭi" or "tānāpraṭi", crowded, [?]; The sense taken is "he gives these [the waters, the life-breaths]". The grammatical tail, p. 311 foot: on śūṣyam (sukhanāma; tatra sādhuḥ, yat), dhṛṣataḥ, bṛhacchravāḥ (bahuvrīhi with first-member accent), asuraḥ (asu kṣepaṇe, Uṇādi uran, Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]; or the ra-suffix in the possessive sense), barhaṇā, puraḥ (pūrvādharaṇā..., as read, [?]) — is characterized.
16. pp. 312–313, PDF 328–329
17. p. 313 — grammar page, noted briefly
18. Reading notes: the print's "bṛhato maruto divo" at the head — "bṛhato mahato" is read, which the Pratipadārtha supports ("of the very great heaven"), [?]; "mṛdubhāvaṃ" is crowded, [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 314: on kopayaḥ (kupa kope, ṇic, lañ; the Vedic non-aṭ), tmanā (mantreṣv āñy ādeḥ... the loss of the a in ātman), dhṛṣat (supām suluk with luk for the instrumental), śītām (śo tanūkaraṇe, niṣṭhāyām śāc choranyatarasyām, Pā. 6-4-... as read [?]), pṛtanyasi (pṛtanām icchatī, supa ātmanaḥ kyac, the loss of the end of pṛtanā) — is characterized.
19. pp. 315–317, PDF 331–333
20. Kannada, p. 315; the print gives it in Kannada with a few Sanskrit words
21. pp. 316–317 — grammar pages, noted briefly
22. p. 317 — begins; continues on p. 318
23. pp. 318–321, PDF 334–337
24. p. 318 — characterized, not transcribed
25. Kannada, with a Sanskrit quotation
26. p. 321 adds: "In another order": "nivṛṇakṣi yac chvasanasya mūrdhani śabdakāriṇaḥ śuṣṇasyādityasya ca śoṣayituḥ roruyamāṇo vanānīti vā dhanānīti vā" (Nī. 3-... [?]). The Kannada: "In the alternative of 'dhanāni', the explanation is 'the waters of the cloud'."

27. pp. 320–321 — grammar pages, noted briefly
28. p. 323, PDF 339
29. p. 323 — grammar page, noted briefly
30. Reading notes: "upero [uparo] parān meghān" is crowded, [?]; the Nirukta numeral as read, [?]. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 324 foot–325: on gha (the lengthening in the Saṃhitā by rci tunughamakṣutaṅkutroruṣyāṇām, Pā. 6-3-133), satpatiḥ (patyāv aiśvarye), śūśuvat (tuos vi gatiḥ vrddhyoḥ; ṇic, luṇ, caṇ; saṃprasāraṇa; reduplication; dīrgho laghoḥ; uvaṇ), rātahavyaḥ, śāsam (śāsu anuśiṣṭau, ghaṇ), invati (ivi vyāptau, num, śap), abhiḡṛṇāti, uparā (lengthening by same-sound), pīnvate (pivi mivi ṇivi secane) — is characterized and also given in the Kannada grammar notes below.
31. a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 325
32. pp. 326–327 — grammar pages, noted briefly
33. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 328 foot: on neme (traya... sarvādi, the sarvanāma-designation; jasaḥ śī; the accent by tva sama sima nema... phīṭ sūtra 4-... as read [?]), daduṣaḥ (ḍudāṇ dāne, kvasu for liṭ; reduplication; ātolopa iṭi ca; vasoḥ saṃprasāraṇa; saṃprasāraṇaṃ tadāśrayakāryaṃ ca balīyaḥ; śāsivasighasīnām ca), mahi (maha pūjāyām, Uṇādi in), sthavīram (ṣṭhā gatinivṛttau, kirac by ajirośiraśīthilasthirasphirasthavira..., Uṇ. 1-... as read [?]) — is characterized and echoed in the Kannada notes below.
34. p. 330 — grammar page, noted briefly
35. The print joins "kāmam eṣām" as "kāmasesām"-looking in the Saṃhitā line; kāmam eṣām is read from the Pada.
36. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 331 foot: on tubhya (the dative form with the loss of the m by chāndasa), adridugdhāḥ (duha prapūraṇe; kta; dādhaḥ... ghoḥ for the h; ṭṛṭiyā karmaṇi, the accent of the first member), camūśadaḥ (camu adane, kvip; śatva by pūrvapadāt saṃjñāyām agaḥ), indrapānāḥ (karmaṇi ca yena saṃsparśāt kartuḥ śarīrasukham, lyuṭ), asnuhi (asū vyāptau, svādi; śnu), vasudeyāya (ḍudāṇ dāne, yat by aco yat; it by īdyati) and kṛṣva (ḍukṛṇ karaṇe; the loss of the u-vikaraṇa by bahulaṃ chandasi) — is characterized, echoed in the Kannada grammar notes below.
37. pp. 333 — grammar page, noted briefly
38. p. 334, PDF 350
39. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 334 foot–335, is characterized: vavriṇā (vrñ varāṇe, the suffix ki by ādṛgamahanajana..., Pā. 3-2-171; reduplication, urat, halādiḥ śeṣaḥ; yaṇ), anuṣṭhāḥ (ṣṭhā gatinivṛttau with ka by ātaś copasarge; ātolopa iṭi ca; upasargāt sunoti..., ṣṭutva), jighnate (han hiṃsāgatyoḥ in the sense of going; ātmanepada by vyatyaya; śap, śluḥ; reduplication, the gh; artiparty... — the Kannada notes below give the details).

40. a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 335

41. pp. 336–338 — grammar pages, noted briefly

42. p. 337 head, PDF 353

¶ Reading notes: "abhibhavittavyaṃ" in the print is crowded; "Overcoming enemies" is read from the Pratipadārtha. "sūrīn viduṣo vidvān" is as read — the print has the repetition "vidvān"... [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 338, is characterized: dhāḥ (ḍudhāñ, luñ/lañ/liṭ for the prayer sense; the loss of ṛ; luk by gātisthā...; no āt by bahulaṃ chandasy amānyoge 'pi), asme (supāṃ suluk gives śe for the locative; śeṣe lopah), janāṣāt (sahe, chandasi sahaḥ, ṇvi; ata upadhāyāḥ; saheḥ sādah saḥ gives ṣatva; the lengthening of the first member; hoḍhaḥ, jhalām jaśo 'nte, vāvasāne gives ṭ), tavyam (tu in the sense of growth; aco yat; dhātoḥ... avādeśa), rakṣa, maghonaḥ (śvayuvamaghonām atad dhite, Pā. 6-4-133: saṃprasāraṇa; guṇa), pāhi, svapatyai (śobhanāny apatyāni yasyāḥ; jasādiṣu chandasi vā vacanam gives yāt; vṛddhir eci; nañsubhyām; ekādeśa udāttanodāttah; ayādeśa with optional loss of y) — the Kannada pp. 338–340 give these in full, noted below.

43. pp. 339–340 — grammar pages, noted briefly

44. p. 340, printed large

45. Unlike Sūktas 47–53, this sūkta carries a closing sentence in the print; a small ornament follows.

Sūkta 55

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-fifth sūkta"

2. Reading note: the small bold print is crowded; the Anukramaṇī half-line and every Āśvalāyana numeral are [?]; "tvaṃ mahī indra" is as printed — the second opening, probably "tvaṃ mahām indra", is not completed [?].

3. accents printed, not reproduced

4. The print's second pāda begins "भीमस्तुविष्मन्" with a crowded ligature; tuviṣmān is read per the Pada.

5. The tail — on varimā, paprathe, mahnā, prati (karmapravacanīya), bhīmaḥ, ātapah, śiśīte, vaṃsagaḥ — is characterized, and repeated in the Kannada grammar notes below.

6. a Sanskrit passage in the print, p. 343

7. pp. 344–345 — grammar pages, noted briefly
8. The tail of the bhāṣya, pp. 346 foot: on arṇavaḥ (arṇaso lopaś ca, Kā. 5-2-109 [?]; vap suffix), nadyaḥ (nada avyakte śabde, ac, the nīp; Atharvaveda 3-13-1 as read [?] quoted: "āhāvanavatā hate tasmād ādya nāma sthā to vo nāmāni sindhavaḥ" — doubtful, [?]), samudriyaḥ, grbhṇāti (grahor bhaḥ), viśritāḥ, varīmabhiḥ (Uṇādi imanic), vṛṣāyate (kyaṇ for conduct), yudhmaḥ (yudha saṃprahāre, Uṇādi man with muk), panasyate (pana stutau; panaṃ icchatī; kyac) — is characterized.
9. pp. 347–349, PDF 363–365
10. a Sanskrit passage, p. 347
11. Quoted garbled; The Devanagari is given as printed, doubtful:
12. pp. 348–349 — grammar pages, noted briefly
13. The Pada reads pra ... ati as two words: "pra | vīryeṇa | devatā | ati | cekite" — i.e. the Saṃhitā's devatāti; The print is followed.
14. Reading notes: "nākārṣiḥ" for "you did not make (it) food" is as read, [?] — the Kannada Pratipadārtha says "you did not strike (the cloud) with the thunderbolt [for your own enjoyment], but struck it to make rain for men". The grammatical tail, pp. 350 foot: on dharmaṇām (dhr, manin; uraṇ raparaḥ), irajyasi (irajyatiḥ aiśvaryakarmā, Nī. as read [?]; īrṣyā; kaṇḍvādi yak), vīryeṇa (vīra + yat, the vīravīryau ca rule), devatā (devāt tal), cekite (kita jñāne, intensive), purohitaḥ (purā, an avyaya with the gati name, so the prefix's accent) — is characterized.
15. quoted incompletely in the print
16. pp. 352–353 — grammar pages, noted briefly
17. p. 353, PDF 369
18. The tail, p. 354, characterized: on namasyubhiḥ (namasaḥ kyac, kyāc chandasi: u), vacasyate, prabruvāṇaḥ (brūñ vyaktāyāṃ vāci, śānac, uvañ, ṇatva), indriyam (indrasya liṅgam, gha), invati (ivi vyāptau, num, śap) — and see the Kannada notes below.
19. Printed "anouncing" [sic]; heading "English Transation" [sic].
20. pp. 355–356 — grammar pages, noted briefly
21. The tail, pp. 357 foot–358, characterized: on mahāni (mahat neuter plural; the loss of t; śi), saṃmithāni (iṇ gatau, Uṇādi thak: "saṃyanti saṃgacchante 'smin vīrā iti"), majmanā, kṛṇoti, tviṣimate (tviṣa dīptau), nighanighnate (han, intensive-like reduplication: nigha-nighnate; vyatyaya for the ātmanepada, plural sense) with the Nirukta note "ity ṛcaśabdaḥ prakārārthaḥ" — the Kannada notes below.

22. Remaining Special Topics and grammar of Rik 5 are on p. 359.
23. p. 359, PDF 375
24. pp. 359–360 — grammar pages, noted briefly
25. The tail, pp. 360 foot–361 and the Kannada grammar notes: on kṛtrimā (ḍukṛñ karaṇe, kṛti by ḍvitaḥ kṛtiḥ, then trer mam nityam gives map), kṣmayā, vṛdhānaḥ (cānaś), avṛkāṇi (vṛñ varaṇe, Uṇādi kak; bahuvrīhi), yajyave (yaja, Uṇādi yu), sukratuḥ, sartavai (sṛ gatau, tavaī), apah, srjat (sṛja visarge, lañ, no aṭ) — noted below.
26. pp. 362–364 — grammar pages, noted briefly
27. p. 364 — begins; continues on p. 365
28. continued on p. 365
29. pp. 365–367, PDF 381–383
30. The first sentence of the bhāṣya on p. 364 is thus: "O Indra, drinker of soma, may your mind be for giving what we desire; hearer of praises, make your two horses turn towards our sacrifice; your own charioteers are most skilled controllers of the horses; therefore your ketāḥ, adversaries who know hostility, bhūrṇayaḥ, bearers of their own weapons — or the frightened, fearful enemies — do not harm you."
31. The grammatical tail, p. 365, is characterized: on somapāvan (pā pāne, vanip; the lengthening in the vocative is prevented, since the vocative of such words is read as asambuddhau), arvāñcā (añc with the dual au → ā), vandanaśrut (vadi abhivādanastutyoh, num, lyuṭ; śru, kvip, tuk), yamiṣṭhāsaḥ (yam uparame, ṛc; tuś chandasi: iṣṭhan; turiṣṭhemeyaḥsu: loss of ṛ), ketāḥ (kita jñāne; ac, guṇa; initial-acute by vṛṣādi), dabhnuvanti (dabhu dambhe, svādi, śnu; uvañ), bhūrṇayaḥ (bhṛñ bharāṇe, ñi: dhṛṇiḥ pṛśniḥ pārṣniḥ, an irregular formation with u and lengthening; or bhī bhaye) — compare the Kannada notes.
32. pp. 366–367 — grammar pages, noted briefly
33. The Saṃhitā reads "śruto dadhe", the Pada "śrutaḥ | dadhe"; the Pada's "dadhe" is as printed; the Saṃhitā's "sahas tanvi" is the Pada's sahaḥ | tanvi.
34. Reading note: the bhāṣya is printed with a few crowded syllables ("bhavaṃ", "dadhe | dhārayati"); The sense is given from the Pratipadārtha. The tail, pp. 368 foot–369, is characterized: aprakṣitam (kṣi kṣaye, niṣṭhā; anyadarthe... no lengthening; prakṣṭam kṣitam yasya), bibharṣi (ḍubhṛñ, juhotyādi, ślu, reduplication, i), aṣālham (saha abhibhave, kta; iṭ optional triṣahalubha...; hodhaḥ, jhaṣastathoḥ, ṣṭunā; the Vedic sādhya sādhya), tanvi (tanu, locative i; Vedic tan), dadhe (dudhāñ, liṭ)) — see the Kannada notes below.

35. pp. 370–371 — grammar pages, noted briefly

36. p. 371, printed large

Sūkta 56

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-sixth sūkta"

2. The heading block and Rik 56.1 are on p. 372 (PDF 388).

3. accents printed, not reproduced

4. The tail, pp. 373, is characterized: on pūrvīḥ (pyā, Uṇādi ku; ñiṣ), camriṣaḥ (camū + iṣaḥ; camu adane, Uṇādi ū; camva with r for v in the Veda), ayaṃsta (yam uparame, luṇ in the present sense; siḥ; no iṭ; nasya anusvāra), bhurvaṇiḥ (bhurvatir hiṃsākarmā, Ni. 6-... as read [?]; bhurvan; aniḥ), pāyayate (pā pāne, ñic; ñicas ca: ātmanepada; śāchāsāhvāvyā... yuk), hiraṇyayam (mayat; rtvyavāstyavāstyavāsthvādhvīhiraṇyayāni chandasi: ma dropped), hariyogam, r̥bhvasam (uru bhāḥ; pr̥ṣodarādi) — see the Kannada notes.

5. pp. 374–375 — grammar pages, noted briefly

6. The tail, p. 376 foot: on gūrtayaḥ (gṛ śabde, ktic; gūrti, Uṇ. as read [?]), nemanniṣaḥ (namanta iṣyanti; Uṇādi thak... kvip), parīṇasaḥ (ṇasa kauṭilye, "nasate" with pari; upasargād asamāse: ṇatva), saniṣyavaḥ (ṣaṇu dāne, kyac with sarvaprātīpadikebhyo lālasāyām asug...: suk; kyāc chandasi: u), nu, sahaḥ (matup dropped) — in the Kannada notes.

7. pp. 377–379, PDF 393–395

8. pp. 378–379 — grammar pages, noted briefly

9. The print's Saṃhitā reads "रामयन्नि दामनि" as "रामयन्नि दामनि"; the Pada: ramayat | ni | dāmani. The Saṃhitā's "tujā" in "bhrājate tujā" and the Pada's "tujā" agree. "āyasaḥ" and "ābhūṣu" as printed.

10. The tail, p. 380: on turvaṇiḥ (turvī hiṃsārthaḥ; Uṇādi ani; ṇatva), areṇu (reṇuvad ājñādakatvād reṇuśabdenāvadyam ucyate — "like dust, [a fault] that hinders the eye"; bahuvrīhi; naṅsubhyām), tujā (tuja hiṃsāyām; igupadha-ka; kit, no guṇa; suluk), dudhraḥ (dhṛñ avasthāne; antarbhāvitanyartha; kapratyaya; mūlavibhujādibhya upasaṃkhyānam; yaṇ; loss of r in dur), ramayat (ramu kṛīḍāyām; ñic; lañ; mitāṇi hrasvaḥ; yena before: no nighāta; lengthening of the a in the Saṃhitā: not in this Saṃhitā) — noted in the Kannada below.

11. sic, as printed.
12. pp. 381–382 — grammar pages, noted briefly
13. Reading note: "tvayegā stotrā vardhiśaṃ" is crowded, [?]; it appears to say "tvayā stotrā vardhitam" — the Pratipadārtha: "(that Indra) who is increased by you, the praiser". Sense: "when the shining power (taviṣī) attends that Indra, who is increased by you [as praiser] for [your] protection, as the sun attends the dawn." The grammatical tail (p. 383) is characterized: on tvāvṛdhā (tvaṃ vardhayatīti, Vedic kvip with āluk; the prefix tvā for yusmad), siṣakti (saca samavāye, juhotyādi; reduplication; ślu), arhariṣvaṇiḥ (hṛ haraṇe, arti-pipartyoś ca, ac, ṇi; svan), reṇum (rī gatireṣaṇayoḥ; Uṇādi nu), iyarti (ṛ gatau, juhotyādi; reduplication with iy) — see the Kannada notes on pp. 383–385.
14. pp. 384–385, PDF 400–401
15. pp. 384–385 — grammar pages, noted briefly
16. Reading note: the last clause "vṛṣṭijalena bhūmiṃ nyasaĩñceḥ" is printed "nyasyairiti", crowded, [?]. The grammatical tail is characterized: on atiṣṭhipaḥ (ṣṭhā, ṇic with arti-hrī...: puk; luṇ, ciṇ; ṇeraniṭi; ṣṭhā reduplicated tiṣṭhip; the loss of s), barhaṇā (supāṃ suluk), svarmīḷhe (mih secane, kta; hoḍhaḥ, jhaṣastathoḥ; bahuvrīhi), ahan (han, laṇ, sip), aubjaḥ (ubja ārjave, laṇ, śap, vṛddhi)).
17. The printed "destroying India" is for "destroying Indra"/"Vritra"; It is reproduced as printed, [sic].
18. pp. 388–389 — grammar pages, noted briefly
19. On p. 389 the print has labelled the Pada block with the heading "Bhāvārtha" by mistake; it is in fact the Pada-pāṭha. [sic]
20. pp. 391–392 — grammar pages, noted briefly

Sūkta 57

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-seventh sūkta"
2. Reading note: "udaputeḥ" is as printed, probably a crowded form, [?]; the numerals are as read, [?].
3. The heading block and Rik 57.1 are on p. 393 (PDF 409).
4. accents printed, not reproduced
5. The tail, p. 394, is characterized: on maṃhiṣṭhāya (mahi vṛddhau, ṭṛc, tuś chandasi: iṣṭhan, turiṣṭhemeyaḥsu), bṛhate (bṛhanmahator upasaṃkhyānam), matim (man jñāne, ktin, mantr) vr̥ṣeṣapacamanaviduṣyā...), durdharam (īṣaddussuṣu kṛcchrākṛcchrārtheṣu khal), viśvāyu (iṇ gatau, Uṇādi uṇ; bahuvrīhau viśvaṃ saṃjñāyām), apāvṛtam.

6. pp. 395–396 — grammar pages, noted briefly
7. The tail, p. 397: on asat (as bhuvi, laṇ; śap not elided; no aṭ), iṣṭaye (yaja, ktin; vacisvapiyajādīnām kiti: saṃprasāraṇa; vraścabhraśja...: śatva; ṣṭutva; Uṇādi alternative iṣa gatau), nimneva (nimna + iva; eva; Vedic ā shortening), samaśita (śīṇ svapne, laṇ; guṇa barred), haryataḥ (haryatir gatikāntyoḥ; bhṛmṛḍrśīyajiparvibandhi...: atac), śnathitā (śnatha kṣatha kratha hiṃsārthāḥ; tācchīlika tṛn; sit: anudātta, so initial-acute) — see Kannada notes.
8. pp. 398– — grammar pages, noted briefly; continued on p. 399
9. p. 399, PDF 415 — grammar page, noted briefly
10. The print's first pāda reads "अस्मै" in the Pada and "अस्मा इदु" in the Saṃhitā; Each is followed as printed. The Saṃhitā's last word "नायसे" is na ayase of the Pada.
11. The Nirukta quotation "asta kṛmārthasya" is as read, crowded, [?]; the numeral "2-60" is likewise [?]. Tail, pp. 400: on uṣaḥ (vocative, āmantritasya ca; the loss of nighāta at the start of a pāda), śubhre (śubha dīptau, Uṇādi rak, spāyitañcivañcy...: rak), bhara (hṛgrahor bhaś chandasi; dvyacas tiṇaḥ: lengthening in the Saṃhitā), panīyase (pana vyavahāre stutau ca, asun; īyasun; ṭeḥ), indriyam, akāri (luṇ, ciṇ by cinbhāvakarmaṇoḥ; ciṇo luk), ayase (aya gatau, asun)).
12. Printed "Transation" [sic].
13. The mantra is given, as printed, in three layers:
14. The print's last words "savāyaivā rātry" are crowded, [?].
15. pp. 401–402 — grammar pages, noted briefly
16. The tail, p. 403 foot: on carāmasi (cara gatibhakṣaṇayoḥ; laṭ; idantomasi: i augment), saghat (saghu hiṃsāyām; leṭ; aṭ; bahulaṃ chandasi: ślu; pādādītvan nighātābhāvaḥ), kṣoṇīriva (halñyābbhṛyo...: loss of su... not here: "sulopābhāvaś chāndasaḥ"), harya (hary gatikāntyoḥ; loṭ, a-loss), with a remark that the roots have many senses (dhātūnām anekārthatvāt) — noted below.
17. p. 404 — grammar page, noted briefly; continues p. 405
18. p. 405, PDF 421 — grammar page, noted briefly

19. The print's first line reads "तव स्मसि" and "कामम् आ पूण"; The Pada is followed.
20. The tail, p. 406: on smasi (as bhuvi, mas; śnasor allopaḥ; idantomasi), pr̥ṇa (pr̥ṇa pr̥ṇane; tudādi; śa; loṭ; no hi, since sip's hi dropped by ato heḥ), mame (māñ māne śabde ca; liṭ; ātmanepada; lidvat; ata ekahalmadhye...), neme (ṇamu prahvatve; liṭ; eś; ata ekahalmadhye: e for a; the loss of the reduplicative)).
21. pp. 407–408 — grammar pages, noted briefly
22. Reading note: "mahān māyāmato mahāntam" at the start is crowded, [?]. The tail, p. 409: on mahān, cakartitha (kṛtī chedane; liṭ second singular; doubling; thal; iṭ; r → ar), sartavai (sṛ gatau, tavaī), dadhiṣe.
23. In the print the second half is as the first, "parvataḥ"; the sense: 'a parvata has joints; "parva" is from "pr̥" to fill or "pr̥i" to please; the gods are pleased in it; the cloud too is a giri, from the same'.
24. pp. 410–411 — grammar pages, noted briefly
25. p. 411, printed large

Sūkta 58

1. First sūkta of the Eleventh Anuvāka.
2. Kannada heading: "the fifty-eighth sūkta"
3. Reading note: the Anukramaṇī half-line "nū citrava nodhā..." is crowded — it should be "nū cid dhi ...", the first words being the sūkta's own opening — [?]; numerals [?].
4. accents printed, not reproduced
5. The tail on pp. 413 is characterized, with the Nirukta "devatātā ... yajñanāmāni ... fifteen" and the sūtras sarvadevāt tātil and supāṃ sulug...: on sahojāḥ, amṛtaḥ, tundate (tuda vyathane, svaritet), sādhiṣṭhebhīḥ (bāḍha + iṣṭhan, antikabāḍhayor nedasādhau), devatātā (tātil), vivāsati (vivāsa paricarane).
6. pp. 414–415 — grammar pages, noted briefly
7. The print's Saṃhitā reads "तृषु च्यवानो" in the first line; the Pada has "तृषु । अविष्यन्" — the Pada reads tṛṣu | aviṣyan; The Saṃhitā "tṛṣu cyavāno" is given as printed, doubtful: it may be the print's crowded "tṛṣu ca avānaḥ", [?].

8. Reading note: the first word, "tṛṣu" for "quickly" (kṣipram), is read from the print's glosses; the bhāṣya's cyavāno of the Saṃhitā is not commented on and the Pada's tṛṣu | aviṣyan is taken. The tail — on yuvamānaḥ, ajaraḥ, ācikradat (kadi kradi kladi roots), with the remark that the num is not added by āgamānuśāsanam anityam — is characterized, and the Kannada grammar notes on p. 417–418 are summarized below.
9. pp. 417–418 — grammar pages, noted briefly
10. The tail — on krāṇā (kṛ + kānac with karoter bahulaṃ chandasi, loss of śap; citaḥ), rayiṣāṭ (saheḥ sāḍaḥ saḥ; chandasi sahaḥ; ṣatva), ṛñjasānaḥ (ṛñjatiḥ stutikarmā; āsānajityanuvṛtyā...; kit), āyūṣu (āyuhḥ iti manuṣyanāma; Uṇādi uṣ), vāryā (vṛñ saṃbhaktau; ṇyat), ṛṇvati (ṛ gatau; svādi; śnu; vyatyaya; nighāta) — is characterized.
11. pp. 419–421, PDF 435–437
12. pp. 420–421 — grammar pages, noted briefly
13. Reading note: "vātaseṣu" is the print's rendering of atāseṣu, dropping the first vowel; atāseṣu is read with the Pada and the Pratipadārtha. "vṛṣāyase" etc. as printed.
14. pp. 423–424 — grammar pages, noted briefly
15. The tail of the bhāṣya, p. 425, is characterized: on sāhvān (dāśvān sāhvān... kvasu nipātana; the lengthening dirghād aṭ samānapāde, the ru of n; yatvalopaḥ), sthātuḥ (kimimanijanī...: tun), and bhayate (ñibhī bhaye; vyatyaya: ātmanepada; bahulaṃ chandasi: śluk absent; guṇa).
16. pp. 426–427, PDF 442–443
17. pp. 426–427 — grammar pages, noted briefly
18. The grammatical tail, p. 428: on dadhuḥ, suhavam (hvayater iṣadduḥsuṣu ...khal; saṃprasāraṇa), hotāram, vareṇyam, śevam — characterized.
19. pp. 429–430 — grammar pages, noted briefly
20. The tail, p. 431: on vṛṇate (vṛñ saṃbhaktau, kryādi), aratim (ṛ gatiprāpaṇayoḥ, Uṇādi ati), saparyāmi (sapara pūjāyām, kaṇḍvādi, ya), yāmi (yāc, loss of the letter) — characterized.
21. The rest of the Special Topics and the grammar are on p. 432 (PDF 448) and are given in the next batch.
22. pp. 432–433, PDF 448–449
23. p. 432 — grammar page, noted briefly
24. p. 435 — grammar page, noted briefly
25. pp. 437–439 — grammar pages, noted briefly

26. p. 439, printed large

Sūkta 59

1. Kannada heading: "the fifty-ninth sūkta"
2. accents printed, not reproduced
3. pp. 440–443, PDF 456–459
4. The Saṃhitā's "yayantha" is as printed.
5. pp. 442–443 — grammar pages, noted briefly
6. The last words, "śvann ukṣann iti", begin the grammatical tail on the Nirukta etymology of mūrdhan; the tail — on pr̥thivyāḥ (śid gaurādibhyaś ca), ajanayanta (janī prādurbhāve, nic, mitām hrasvaḥ; janījṛṣkṣnasuraṃjo mantās ca, Dhā. gaṇa-sūtra as read [?]) — is characterized.
7. Printed "Transation" [sic].
8. first Special Topic
9. p. 445 — grammar page, noted briefly
10. The print's reading of the last line is "या मानुषेष्वसि तस्य राजा" — the Pada's yā mānuṣeṣu | asi | tasya | rājā is taken, pending the Pada on p. 446.
11. pp. 446–448, PDF 462–464
12. The tail, p. 446: on agnā (supām sulug...: dā for the locative), ojasā... oṣadhīṣu (uṣa dāhe, ghañ, oṣaḥ pākaḥ; oṣa āsu dhīyate; kirupa in the locative-sense), apsu (ūḍidam...) — characterized.
13. p. 447 — noted briefly
14. p. 450 — noted briefly
15. The tail, p. 451: on rice (ricir virecane; upasargavaśāt the sense "to exceed"), kṛṣṭīnām, mānuṣīṇām (śārṅgaravādyañño nīn), yudhā (kvip), variva (nabviṣayasyānyatarasyām) — characterized.
16. pp. 452–453 — noted briefly
17. The print's last word in the Saṃhitā reads "भरेत्" and in the Pada "भेत्"; the sense is bhet ("split"), as the bhāṣya's gloss "bibheda" — the Saṃhitā spelling is a crowded print, [?].
18. pp. 454–457, PDF 470–473
19. a long passage, in part crowded — given in gist, [?] where doubtful
20. pp. 456–457 — noted briefly
21. pp. 460–461 — noted briefly

22. The print gives no closing sentence for Sūkta 59: the last grammar paragraph ends on p. 461 and a small ornament separates it from the next title. My own summary, not the source's:

Sūkta 60

1. Kannada heading: "the sixtieth sūkta"
2. The heading block and Rik 60.1 are on p. 462 (PDF 478).
3. accents printed, not reproduced
4. The tail, p. 463: on vahniṃ (vahi-śri-yu-sru-glā-hā-tvaribhyo niḥ, Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]), yaśasam (yaśasvinam, the loss of vin in the Veda), suprāvyam (supra-av, suprāvīḥ, Uṇ. 3-... ī), sadyoartham (r gatau, than), rātiṃ (rātiḥ = friend, āpastamba-gr̥hya 7-... [?]: "rātinā saṃbhāṣya" = with a friend; or "rātiḥ putraḥ" some say; supporting mantra: "rātiṃ bhṛgūṇām uśijaṃ kavikratum", Rg. 3-2-4 [?]), mātariśvā (mātari antarikṣe śvasiti; śvann ukṣann... Uṇ. 1-... [?]; or aś gatidīptyādāneṣu, dvan) — Nirukta 7-... [?] is cited for the last word: "mātā antarikṣaṃ śvasitir atra gatikarmā".
5. pp. 464–465 — noted briefly
6. The tail: on śāsuḥ (śāsu anuśiṣṭau, ṭṛṇ, śaṃsi-śāsi..., Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]; loss of iṭ), uśijaḥ (vaś kāntau, iji, Uṇ. 2-... as read [?]; grahijyādinaḥ: saṃprasāraṇa), martāḥ (mṛñ prāṇatyāge, tan, Uṇ.: asihasimṛgrinvāpāṇ...), āprcchyaḥ (prachchha jñīpsāyām, kyap in the Vedic: ān-pūrvāt, niṣkarkyetyādaḥ, Pā. 3-1-123 as read [?]), viśpatiḥ, vedhāḥ — characterized.
7. p. 468 — noted briefly
8. pp. 471–472 — noted briefly
9. the print's Samhitā: "उशिक्पावको वसुर्मानुषेषु वरेण्यो होताधायि विश्व । दमूना गृहपतिर्दम आ अग्निर्भुवद्रयिपती रयीणाम्"
10. The tail, p. 472 foot: on uśik (vaś kāntau, kvip...), damūnāḥ (dama upaśame, ūnasi, Uṇ. 4-... as read [?]; Yāska: "damūnā damanā vā dānamanā vā dāntamanā vāpi vā dama iti gr̥hanāma tanmanāḥ syāt", Ni. 4-4 [?]), gr̥hapatiḥ, dame, bhuvat (leṭ, aṭ), rayipatiḥ — characterized.
11. pp. 474– — noted briefly
12. The remaining grammar on this Rik is on p. 474 (PDF 490) and is noted with Rik 5's text below.
13. p. 474, foot

14. Reading note: the Saṃhitā prints a long ū in makṣū before dhiyā°; the Pada has short makṣu; the grammar page (p. 477) explains the lengthening as a Saṃhitā change.
15. The grammatical tail, p. 475, characterized, not transcribed: on matibhiḥ — root mana jñāne, ktin in the passive sense, mantre vṛṣeṣa... (Pā. 3-3-96 as read [?]) acute on the suffix; on vājaṃbharam — "this is a Vedic name of Agni"; saṃjñāyāṃ bhṛtṛvrji... (Pā. 3-2-46 as read [?]): khac after vāja in the object; ārurdivṣad ajantasya mum (Pā. 6-3-67 as read [?]): augment mum; end-acute from citaḥ; on marjayantaḥ — "since a rule that contains a technical name is not constant", the vṛddhi of mṛj (Pā. 7-2-114) does not occur; of the accents of lasārvadhātuka after a base ending in a, only that of ṇic remains; on jagamyāt — liṇi bahulaṃ chandasi: śap replaced by śluḥ.
16. Printing marks as in the source: "Agni." with a full stop for a comma [sic]; "riches" twice misprinted "riehe"/"riehe" [sic].
17. p. 477, PDF 493, and the top of p. 478 — noted briefly

Sūkta 61

1. Fourth sūkta of the Eleventh Anuvāka.
2. Kannada heading: "the sixty-first sūkta"
3. The numerals of the Brāhmaṇa and sūtra references are small and unclear in the print: all marked [?].
4. Reading note: the print's Saṃhitā has "ओहमिन्द्राय" with the anusvāra written, i.e. ohamindrāya; ohaṃ is given as the Pada does.
5. Reading note: "prayo na | prayah ity anna-nāma" — the print has praya ity anna-nāma; It is read as prayah, [?]. The grammatical tail, p. 480, is characterized, not transcribed, below.
6. p. 480 — characterized, not transcribed
7. Grammar, noted briefly; sūtra numbers not legible at 150 dpi are not given.
8. pp. 481–482 — noted briefly
9. The print here says "bahuvacana" for the mip ending; mip is the singular ending; noted [?], not adjusted.

10. Reading notes: "āṅgūṣa": the print writes the Saṃhitā and Pada forms with the anusvāra in the Saṃhitā — "āṅgūṣam" — and is normalised to āṅgūṣam [the print's own grammar uses āṅgūṣa]. The tavaikeken sūtra is Pā. 3-4-14 as read; the sūtra number 1-4-8 for patiḥ samāsa eva is as printed.
11. Grammatical tail: pra yaṃsi — root yam uparame, laṭ, change of person (puruṣavyatyaya), loss of śap; āṅgūṣam — Yāska: 'āṅgūṣaḥ stoma āghoṣaḥ' (Ni. 3-11 [?]), from ghuṣ with āñ, ghañ, with gū substituted for gho by prṣodarādi; bādhe — bādhr viloḍane, ken in the sense of tavai-ken; indeclinable, loss of the case ending; maniṣā — ḍā for the instrumental by supāṃ suluk; patye — pati keeps the ghi name only in compounds (Pā. 1-4-8 as printed), so guṇa does not come; yañ. Characterized.
12. p. 485 — noted briefly
13. Reading note: the Saṃhitā prints the long ā in vāvṛdhadhyai; the Pada has the short va; the grammar page explains the lengthening as a Saṃhitā change. As in Rik 2 the anusvāra before gū is the print's.
14. The grammatical tail, p. 486 — characterized, not transcribed: upamam — "that by which one compares", the suffix ka in the instrumental sense (ghañarthe kavidhānam), loss of the final ā; svarṣām — svar (from su + r), and ṣaṇu dāne with viṭ (janasanakhanakramagamo viṭ, Pā. 3-2-67 as read [?]), ā for the nasal (vidvanoranunāsikasyāt, Pā. 6-4-41 as read [?]), ṣatva (Pā. 8-3-108 as read [?]); bharāmi — no nighāta, being at the head of a line (pādādi); acchoktibhiḥ — bahuvrīhi, accent of the first member; matīnām — nāmanyatarasyām; vavṛdhadhyai — vṛdhu vṛddhau, the causative sense included, the suffix kadhyai in the sense of the infinitive, no guṇa since it is kit, reduplication by Vedic licence; or from the yañ-luk form; the lengthening of the reduplicative vowel in the Saṃhitā — "in others also it is seen"; acute on the suffix.
15. pp. 487–488 — noted briefly
16. The grammatical tail, p. 489 foot, characterized, not transcribed: hinomi (hi gatau vṛddhau ca, śnu); taṣṭā (takṣū tvakṣū tanūkarāṇe, tṛṇ, the k lost before ṣ + t, ṣtutva, tṛ-stem); tatsināya (ṣiñ bandhane, nak, the sense "he whose food is [obtained by] that chariot"); gīrvāhase (vah prāpaṇe, asun); viśvaminvam (ivi vyāptau, num, ac, mum); medhirāya (medhā asya asti, iran); the printed Uṇādi and Pāṇini numerals are too small to give at 150 dpi.
17. Printing marks as in the source: the heading on this page reads "English T-ansation" in the print [sic], a damaged letter, not corrected.

18. pp. 491–492 — noted briefly
19. Reading note: the Saṃhitā prints dānaukasam, the Pada dānu-okasam; Both are given as printed. In the Pada the print puts the avagraha mark after dānu and gūrta.
20. The grammatical tail, pp. 492–493, characterized, not transcribed: saptim — sapa samavāye, the suffix tip (Uṇ. 4-[?]) as read [?]) by bahula; the compound with iva; śravasyā — śravas + kyac in the sense "wishing for one's own", then a in the sense of the action (Pā. 3-3-103 as read [?]), then ṭāp, the instrumental ending replaced by dā; arkam — ṛca stutau, "that by which one praises", gha in the instrument sense, kutva of c, guṇa of the penultimate; juhvā — Vedic saṃprasāraṇa of hve, kvip (Uṇ. 2-[?]), lengthening, doubling, cutva; añje — añjū vyaktimrakṣaṇakāntigaṭiṣu, ātmanepada by Vedic variation; vandadhyai — vadi abhivādanastutyoh, kadhyai in the infinitive sense; gūrtaśravasam — gūrta from gūrī udyamane [print: gur; read as in the Special Topics], kta, no iṭ; darmāṇam — dṛ vidāraṇe, the suffix manin, guṇa.
21. pp. 494–495 — noted briefly
22. Reading note: in the Saṃhitā line the print has a stray small sign after svaryam; It is read as a printer's mark and is not reproduced.
23. The grammatical tail, p. 496, characterized, not transcribed, and marked "... " above where it falls: on svapastamam (śobhanam apaḥ karma yasya, tamap), svaryam (the print refers to its earlier treatment in Ṛg 1-32-2 [?] — "svaryam tatakṣa"), vidat (vid lṛ lābhe, luṇ, aṇ for cli, no aṭ), tujan (tuja hiṃsāyām, śatṛ, śa), iśānaḥ (iśa aiśvārye, śānac, the śap lost), tujatā; the accents.
24. p. 498 — noted briefly
25. Reading notes: the print's yadāgnau hūyate is as in the Special Topics (yadāgnau), [?] in the bhāṣya where the first letters are crowded; sutyādivasātmako and ācūcurat are read at 150 dpi, uncertain [?]. The grammatical tail of the bhāṣya, p. 500, is characterized, not transcribed, with the Pāṇinian and Nirukta numerals given in the Special Topics and Vyākaraṇa notes below.
26. The Taittirīya text in the print has its words crowded; given as read.
27. pp. 502–503 — noted briefly
28. The reference numerals are small in the print: as read, all [?].
29. pp. 505–506 — noted briefly

¶ Reading notes: the print has praririce [ririce] in "kutaḥ sakāśāt praririca", as the heading of the question — it is given as printed, [?]; the quotation yathākevāraṃ divyaṃ śāsam indram and its Ṛg numerals are crowded: [?]. The grammatical tail, p. 507, is characterized, not transcribed: asya — the word idam, the ending acute; ririce — ricir virecane, the perfect in the passive sense (chandasi luṅlaṅliṭaḥ), eś in place of ta, reduplication; pr̥thivyāḥ — udāttayaṇo hal pūrvāt; svarāt — rāja dīptau, kvip, jaśtva; dame — damu upaśame, ghañ in the passive, the vṛddhi barred (Pā. 7-3-34 as read [?]); viśvagūrtaḥ — gṛ nīgaraṇe / gūrī udyamane, kta, gūrta; amatraḥ — ama gatyādiṣu, atran (Uṇ. 3-[?]); vavakṣe — vah, leṭ, sip, śap → ślu, reduplication, hoḍhaḥ, ṣaḍhoḥ kaḥ si; raṇāya — the dative, kriyāgrahaṇaṃ kartavyam (the vārttika), or gatyarthakarmanī (Pā. 2-3-12 as read [?]).

30. pp. 508–509 — noted briefly

31. The grammatical tail, p. 510, characterized, not transcribed: śuśantam — śuśa śośaṇe, śa in place of śyan by vyatyaya, the accent of the vikaraṇa remains; vr̥ṇāḥ — vr̥ṇ varaṇe, passive laṭ, śānac, the yak lost by bahulaṃ chandasi, yaṇ; avanīḥ — ava rakṣaṇe, the suffix ani in the instrumental sense (Uṇ. 3-[?] [?]), acute on the suffix; dāvane — āto manin kvanib vanipāś ca [as read, ?]: vanip, the a-elision not applied in the dative, by Vedic licence.

32. pp. 511–512 — noted briefly

33. Reading note: havirdātre — in the print the letters after havir-dā are crowded (dātravaśe-like); havirdātre is read, [?]. The grammatical tail, pp. 513–514, is characterized, not transcribed, below under the Vyākaraṇa notes.

34. p. 514 — noted briefly

35. Reading note: The Samhitā's tiraścēṣyan is read as tiraśceṣyan — tiraścā followed by iṣyan — as the Pada has tiraścā | iṣyan; the long ā of bharā and radā is the Samhitā lengthening of bhara, rada before a vowel/iti-less particle, noted in the grammar page.

36. The grammatical tail, p. 516 — characterized, not transcribed: bhara (the bha for ha, the Samhitā lengthening); tūtujānaḥ (tuja himsāyām, kānac, the reduplicative vowel lengthened, the initial acute); kiyedhāḥ (explained under the sixth Rik); rada; tiraścā (tīryaṅc, kvin, the n lost, the elision of a in the instrumental, ścutva, the ending acute); iṣyan (iṣa gatau, śyan, nit); caradhyaḥ (cara gatibhakṣaṇayoḥ, the infinitive adhyai).

37. pp. 517–518 — noted briefly

38. Reading note: in the print's Saṃhitā, line 2, iṣṇānaḥ is joined to the next word as yad iṣṇāna āyudhāni; the Pada has iṣṇānaḥ | āyudhāni.
39. The grammatical tail, p. 519, characterized, not transcribed: turasya — tura tvarane, the suffix ka; navyaḥ — ṇu stutau, yat, āv for o; iṣṇānaḥ — iṣa ābhikṣṇye, kryādi, the middle voice by vyatyaya, śānac; ṛghāyamāṇaḥ — explained in the passage Ṛg 1-101-4 [?]; nirināti — rī gatireṣaṇayoḥ, śnā, shortening; the absence of nighāta because of the relative yat (yadvṛttayogāt).
40. p. 520 — noted briefly
41. Reading note: the Saṃhitā has bhūmā, the Pada bhūma; the grammar page explains the Saṃhitā form with ā and the position of ca between dyāvā and bhūmā.
42. The grammatical tail, p. 521 foot, characterized, not transcribed: dyāvā ca bhūmā (divo dyāvā, dā for the dual, both members keeping their accents); januṣaḥ (janer usiḥ, an Uṇādi suffix); joguvānaḥ (guja avyakte śabde, yaṇluk, śānac, uvaṇ); oṇim (oṇr apanayane, the Uṇādi i); bhuvat (leṭ, aṭ, no guṇa); nodhāḥ (Yāska: "nodhā ṛṣir bhavati navanam dadhātīti", Ni. 4-16 [?]; dhāñ, asun, nava → no).
43. pp. 522–523 — noted briefly
44. Reading note: the Saṃhitā prints dāyy eṣām as dāyyeṣām, i.e. dāyi eṣām with y before e; It is given as the Pada does.
45. Reading note: the Pada's word before āvat is printed susvim, with a plain s, while the Saṃhitā has suṣvim and the grammar page treats it as from ṣuñ abhiṣave: The Pada is given as printed with [?], not adjusted.
46. The grammatical tail, p. 524 foot, characterized, not transcribed: dāyi (the a-augment absent by bahulaṃ chandasy amāṇiyoge 'pi); vavne (vanu yācane, the perfect, the penultimate lost by vyatyaya); pasprdhānam (spardha saṃgharṣe, kānac, reduplication, the p remaining by śarpūrvāḥ khayāḥ, citāḥ); sauvaśvye (svaśva as a country-name that is also used of a kṣatriya, vā nāmadheyasya vṛddhasaṃjñā vaktavyā, ṇyaṇ, no vṛddhi after v, initial acute by ñit); suṣvim (ṣuñ abhiṣave, kin, doubling by the perfect-like rule, yaṇ).
47. pp. 525–526 — noted briefly
48. The grammatical tail, p. 527 foot, characterized, not transcribed: eva — the Saṃhitā lengthening of the particle (evā); suṣṛkti — loss of the accusative-plural ending; akran — kṛ, luṇ, the loss of cli (mantrē ghasahvara...), ant, yaṇ, the aṭ augment; dhāḥ — dhā, luṇ in the sense of loṭ, loss of sic, no aṭ.

49. pp. 528–529 — noted briefly

50. PDF 546 = printed p. 530 is blank apart from a small printer's ornament (a rose); the Pariśiṣṭa begins at printed p. 531 = PDF 547 and is not translated.

Deities of the Heavenly Region (svargasthānada devategaḷu)

1. Dyāḥ
2. continuing Varuṇa
3. Sūrya, continued
4. Pūṣaṇa
5. Pūṣan, end
6. Viṣṇu, continued
7. Ādityaru
8. Ādityas, continued
9. Uṣāḥ
10. Uṣas, continued
11. Aśvins, continued

Deities of the Atmosphere (Antarikṣada devategaḷu)

1. Indraḥ
2. Indra, continued
3. Indra, end
4. Apāṃnapāt
5. Apāṃ napāt, end
6. Mātariśvā
7. Rudra
8. Rudra, continued

The Maruts (Marud-devategaḷu)

1. Maruts, continued
2. Maruts, end
3. Parjanya, end

Deities of the Earth (Bhūmiya devategaḷu)

1. Pṛthivī, end
2. Agni, continued
3. Agni, end
4. Bṛhaspati, end
5. Soma, continued
6. Soma, end

Deities in the Form of Abstract Ideas (Bhāvanārūpa...

1. Tvaṣṭṛ, end
2. Aditi, continued

Female Deities (Strī devategaḷu)

1. Female deities, continued

Paired Deities (Devatā dvandvagaḷu)

1. Paired deities, continued

Groups of Deities (Devatāgaṇagaḷu)

1. Groups of deities, continued
2. Ṛbhus, end
3. Gandharvas, continued

The Bhṛgus (Bhṛgugaḷu)

1. The Bhṛgus, continued
2. Aṅgirases, end
3. Medhātithi, end

Animals and Lifeless Things (Prāṇigaḷu mattu nirjīva...

1. Paidva, end

Material Things Imagined as Deities (Devategaḷendu...

1. Material things, continued

Evil Deities and Piśācas (Pāpadevategaḷu mattu Piśācigaḷu)

1. Dāsa/Dasyu, continued
2. Śuṣṇa, continued
3. Rākṣasas / Piśācas, continued

Eschatology (Antimagati śāstra)

1. Heaven, continued

The Fathers (Pitr̥gaḷu)

1. The Fathers, end
2. Here the Pariśiṣṭa ends: the last line of the print breaks off in mid-sentence, with a small printer's ornament below and the printer's imprint:) "ಶ್ರೀ ಚಾಮುಂಡೇಶ್ವರೀ ಎಲೆಕ್ಟ್ರಿಕ್ ಪ್ರೆಸ್, ಕ್ಲಾಕ್ ಟವರ್ ಸ್ಕ್ವೇರ್, ಮೈಸೂರು, 1950" — Śrī Cāmuṇḍeśvarī Electric Press, Clock Tower Square, Mysore, 1950. (The sentence ends with a dash in the print; the volume closes without a further colophon. The printed page number is 708 = PDF 724, the last page of the PDF.